Demise Of IMF, WB Planned For 2000

4/13/00—#1 (13-241)

FROM DORIS

Yesterday, when Mayor Valdez (Bataan) was here, we were again nagged to do a tour, etc. I told him we are just working for now but when our friends Rex and Margie get here, I will hold him to the offer. He laughed and wanted to make an APPOINTMENT. Then the whole group started talking about Bataan and Corregidor, and the areas involved. They say the water between Bataan and Corregidor is so clear that it is actually transparent blue. In today's Philippines, I truly do have to see THAT. Anyway, teams are starting to form here and I don't mean B.S. teams, I mean such as publishing, business, growth, development and REALITY.

We will have access to obtaining one or both of TWO papers, one a weekly and one a daily "major" press. We also have a PUBLISHER who does books, etc. and that would give us access to such as Erick's, Coleman's, Phillips', and anything else for which we choose to have a major resource and distribution network. We can publish both here and in the U.S. with these assets—IF WE WANT TO DO SO.

As to the physical/environmental Philippines: If the destruction is stopped soon, there can be a great reclamation because of the tropical environment, where rain forests flourish and the growing season is year-'round. There is, in Central Luzon, a city called Baguio, which is some 6,000-ft. elevation, covered in pines (mostly planted by the U.S. people over here), and it is the special place around for living or for vacation time for we tender Americans and the more-moneyed Filipinos. [Due to its nearly constant temperature in the 70s, it is called the "air-conditioned city".]

This place could very well have served, at the time, as THE Garden of Eden—so often referred to as the perfect place for survival without anything else. But, like most other things touched by Man, it doesn't resemble the Garden any more, for all that came after the "garden" experience—you know, corruption, incest, molestation, unlikely story lines and outright greed, avarice, murder and crime. All this latter is mostly presented by the CHURCH. I don't know about the "experiencing" part but boy what an education.

And people, pay attention, PLEASE. As we move toward April 19th, remember and KNOW that it is the time of the more outrageous satanic times and year 2000 is meaningful. I think if you look back only in this past decade, you will see the ugly shadow. However, it is becoming more and more critical, as more and more children are being DAILY abducted here, right under the noses of the police and citizens—EVERY DAY! The one yesterday belongs to a visiting couple here on holiday—mother from the Philippines, father from New Zealand—TO CELEBRATE THEIR LITTLE GIRL'S BIRTHDAY, APRIL 19 (birthday 11).

Hatonn—So now, to a superb writing by Erick San Juan:

[QUOTING:]

DEMOCRACY OR DEMO-CRAZY?

In his first public statement since the Aug. 28 coup attempt, fugitive Col. Gringo Honasan told radio station DZRH listeners: “The country is well on its way to another 20 years of misrule. This we cannot allow, and we shall not allow it” (MALAYA, 9/6/87).

Honasan blamed the Aquino Government for “duplicating the corruption and incompetence of ousted President Marcos”, even as he accused Aquino and her advisers for “indecision against the growing communist menace”.

Strangely, the Heritage Foundation, a leading U.S. “conservative” policy organization, not only agreed with Honasan but it also came out with a published report on the same day, via the ASSOCIATED PRESS. Part of the foundation’s report reads:

“President Aquino faces more problems, unless she gives higher priority to battling the communist insurgency and improving conditions for the Armed Forces.”

Originally established by brewery magnate Joseph Coors to act as a conservative think tank, Heritage was soon taken over by Fabianists Sir Peter Vickers Hall, Stuart Butler, Steven Ayzler, Robert Moss and Frederick Von Hayek under the direction of the Club of Rome.

According to Dr. John Coleman, this institute played a major role in carrying out British Labour Party leader Anthony Wedgwood Benn’s order to “Thatcherize Reagan”, i.e., make him “use rightwing ideas to impose leftwing principles”. Heritage is simply not a conservative operation, although at times it may look and sound like one.

In order not to be detected as a pro-communist group, Heritage urged Mrs. Aquino to work for mutual trust between her Administration’s civilian leaders (made up mostly of leftists, human-rights advocates and communists) and the military. Richard Fisher, author of the report, also suggested for the Aquino Government to “publicly identify CPP [Communist Party of the Philippines] fronts and other groups in Western countries supporting the communists to prevent them from soliciting funds overseas under false pretenses”, as if the CIA, Heritage’s allied network, did not already know who these people were.

Fisher said that through the National Democratic Front (NDF), Filipino communists had managed to create “solidarity groups” in the West to gain support. (It is well known that since 1976, ex-Jesuit and communist central committee member Louis Jalandoni has been organizing funding and support from European trade unions and religious and political groups to corresponding NDF fronts in the Philippines.)

In exchange for following Heritage’s policy proposals, the U.S. study group dangled its carrot-and-stick diplomatic approach by calling for more American, Japanese and Australian aid to “upgrade the capability of territorial forces, such as police and constabulary, as the United States has done in El Salvador, and training to upgrade the Armed Forces’ intelligence capability”.

Upgrading the AFP’s intelligence capability is an easy task for conspiratorial groups like the Heritage

Foundation. All it has to do is “beep” the Club of Rome for assistance. “The Club of Rome has its own private intelligence agency and also ‘borrows’ from David Rockefeller’s INTERPOL,” says Dr. Coleman. “Every U.S. intelligence agency cooperates very closely with it, as does the KGB and the Mossad.”

The Club of Rome is a conspiratorial umbrella organization composed of financiers from the Anglo-American financiers and the old Black Nobility families of Europe, particularly the so-called “nobilities” of London, Venice and Genoa. Together with the Socialist International, the Club is directly responsible to the dreaded Committee of 300. In Italy, Club members are assisted by elements of P2 Masonry and the Red Brigades, all of whom are working for the same goals.

The Club of Rome also has its own highly organized political and economic agencies. Which explains why RAM, despite its anti-communist stance, did not enjoy the trust and confidence of local and foreign capitalists in the country. In fact, they even blamed Honasan and his quixotic comrades for causing the collapse of the Philippine economy.

“The failed military mutiny may have failed to topple the Philippine Government—but it could succeed in killing the economy’s three-year expansion,” writes Rigoberto Tiglao of FAR EASTERN ECONOMIC REVIEW. As a consequence, “The Philippine Government will now have to rely on increased official foreign loans, and hope foreign and domestic investors will recall the fortunes made by risk-takers willing to get back into the market soon after the 1987 August coup attempt,” he adds.

Speculators are, by no means, investors. They are economic vampires who suck the blood of Third World countries. At the first sign of trouble, they take their loot and run. Tiglao’s concern for these saboteurs only heightens the suspicion of many that the conspiratorial groups are behind each and every major publication in the world.

Tiglao should be informed that the Club of Rome decreed back in 1986 that it would stop exports of nuclear technology to developing countries. With nuclear power stations generating abundant but very cheap electricity, the Philippines would have gone over the economic hump and would have become a genuine economic tiger by the early 1990s. This was not to happen.

What the conspiratorial groups have in mind for the Philippines, Mexico, Brazil and the others is, as Coleman correctly analyzed, “a feudal peasantry, a condition that allows for easy manipulation and looting”.

The eminent economist Lyndon LaRouche, Jr. calls it “Democracy, IMF-style”. The World Bank-IMF, of course, pretends to campaign against “corruption” and “cronism” in Third World countries. But, as the LaRouche Movement has shown, their real intent is “to force sovereign nations to submit to supranational domination and looting by the global financial oligarchy” (EIR, 31 July, 1998).

[H: In this line of thought we are actually asked, if we are so smart, do we know the head of the World Bank in, say, the Philippines. Yes, we certainly do. In the countries such as the Philippines, that position is called “resident representative” and in Manila it is Vinay Bhargava. And, he is trying his best to get things worked around so the Philippines can remotely qualify for some of the funds promised them. BUT NOW, I AM GOING TO ASK YOU: WHO IS THE PRESIDENT OF THE BANK WITH WHOM YOU DO BUSINESS? WHO OWNS YOUR BANK? WHO IS THE BRANCH MANAGER? HOW MUCH DO YOU KNOW ABOUT YOUR BANK? SO, STOP THE NONSENSE, PLEASE.]

The world, therefore, is not getting any safer for democracy simply because democracy is not getting any stronger around the world. “Under the rule of these institutions,” writes LaRouche, “virtually all nations, and their governments, have been subject to increasingly savage austerity measures. By the standards of practice of the insurance actuary, during the past quarter-century, the IMF and associated institutions have caused far more deaths than the Adolf Hitler regime did. The pattern has been, increasingly, that governments which balk at imposing such murderous policies on their nations’ citizens are overthrown by coups conducted on behalf of the IMF. No nation whose government adopts IMF or World Bank conditionalities can be described as ‘democratic’ in any meaningful sense of the term.”

[H: Please stay tuned to this because I want to give you some food for thought at the end of this article.]

The IMF’s murderous regime is carried out under the immaculate banner of “free trade”, which all the post-Marcos presidents have adopted. As LaRouche pointed out, the ideas of “freedom” and “democracy”—which are behind these IMF policies—first saw the light in Athens, about 400 B.C., when the democrats of that period “democratically” murdered Socrates for daring to question the “wrong-headed axiomatic beliefs of the ruling oligarchy”. [H: Thank you for that particular reference, Erick.]

After all is said and done, our political and military leaders will come to the inevitable conclusion, which many around the world before them have come to realize, that “It is not ultimately ‘humanity’, but a frighteningly small conclave of political figures—some more or less ‘democratically elected’, some not—who wield the authority of life and death over the entire planet. Some of them are intelligent and responsible, but some are unimaginative, insensitive, even positively stupid. Some are manifestly incompetent. Some are arguably insane, to one or another degree. Yet, it is they who, with a signature appended to a document, or even with a single spoken word, can send individuals into battle, can determine people’s nationalities, can dictate the circumstances in which one lives, can pronounce where one can go or cannot go, what one can do or cannot do. It is they who, for example, by drawing a line on a paper map, can conjure a ‘frontier’ into being, a barrier as restrictive and insurmountable as any physical wall... And it is they, not ‘humanity’ who, if there is, indeed, to be an apocalypse, will bring it about.”

Frightening, isn’t it? But look what they have done to our country and the rest of the world since the turbulent 1960s. We are headed toward a one-way, socialist “New World Order”. Only then will our distinguished RAM officers and men fully realize that, just like the 1896 Revolution, the 1986 EDSA Revolt was not a spontaneous, people-power uprising, but a well-planned, foreign-hatched conspiracy, using Filipino stool pigeons.

[END OF QUOTING]

NOW, look at some pretty important points as regards that World Bank and International Monetary Fund, as with the World Trade Organization.

NOTE: In ALL nations in Southeast Asia (except Malaysia), the IMF/WB are in place, for all sorts of excuses—BUT NO MONEY, AS PROMISED, IS FLOWING. NOTHING IS ACTUALLY BEING RELEASED—JUST TALKED ABOUT AND USED AS A THREAT FOR ACTUAL NATIONAL-COLLAPSE PROBABILITIES.

Without these institutions for resources: WHERE WILL THE NATIONS GO FOR HELP—WHAT OTHER ENTITY IS EVEN REMOTELY CONSIDERED FOR ASSISTANCE—ANYWHERE ON THE GLOBE?

Ah, now consider something else, please: THE FACT IS THAT THE CLOSURE OF THE IMF AND WORLD BANK AS NOW ESTABLISHED WAS AND IS PLANNED AS PART OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF YEAR 2000—“ANYWAY”.

NASTY? Well, yes, it would appear so to me, but then I am just that dupe who makes Dharma “too tired”, just like I made Socrates stubborn in his expectations of “democracy” and made Garrison unreasonable about “Slavery”. Oh, well.

What happened to the old RESOLUTION TRUST CORPORATION? They finally took the loss on all property they could seize—gave the good loans and mortgages to the “BIG Mother Banks”, covered the asses of the S&Ls and their miscreant players—i.e., such as the George Bush twigs—and OOPS, it went bust. The TAXPAYERS added another several trillion dollars to the debt, the citizens lost their shirts into shreds in every direction and the Elite just said “Oh, well.”

I am going to ask YOU, right here and right now, especially you who just don’t want to offend the liars in your own midst: WHO IS GOING TO FEED THE DYING BABIES IN AFRICA? YOU? YOU WON’T EVEN LOOK AT TRUTH BECAUSE YOUR EYES ARE CLOSED AND YOUR BRAINS ARE CONFUSED. You are not just responsible for a little “Daniel”, kids, YOU ARE “RESPONSIBLE” for the whole of the WORLD. AND YES, AS YOU ARE GOING, THAT RESPONSIBILITY WILL REST MOST HEAVILY ON YOUR HEADS AS YOUR “CONFUSION” CLEARS.

Well, NO, THANK YOU, we are not going to attend YOUR LITTLE RUNNING NOSES—because people and nations are set up like ducks on the skyline, stuck in the ice—to be destroyed any way the Elite choose to kill the old world and its nice people.

Can we offer help? Of course, and are doing so, but the clash of titans is difficult to dig through in the daily agendas of “guilt-covering”.

I would close this now, and to you who would bash and crush my secretary, you had best reread some of Nora’s research and, as well, ask Al Overholt the identity as presented of some of the historical possibilities as HE FIRST PRESENTED. No, good children, YOU CANNOT HAVE IT BOTH WAYS.

GOD DOES NOT MAKE MISTAKES!

FUNDAMENTALS OF AN ALLIANCE

Hatonn—Ah, indeed, out of ashes and soot come beauty and life. So, might we look unto that from which all things flow, in that we might set forth foundations in WISDOM?

God HAS a perfect “heaven” and “HE/SHE” wishes not to set man’s experience, for man is but a growing MIND into His places of great perfection. “Perfect” means exactly THAT: “nothing added nor subtracted”. That which becomes perfection must GROW into that right of recognition—and “more perfect” is NOT A CORRECT DEFINITION UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCE. PERFECT “IS”.

Do you have to “overthrow” things to bring better goodness upon a process or thing? No, only bring forth that which can replace the evil, which always instills itself where opportunity exists—or where man fails to control that which is established (often in great “goodness”)—and evil, greed, corruption, etc. take over the control.

For instance, the International Monetary Fund HAD TWO BIRTH PARENTS: ONE WANTED TO ASSIST A STRUGGLING WORLD AND THE OTHER SIMPLY WANTED CONTROL OF THE WORLD AND ALL THE PROPERTY RIGHTFULLY THE PROPERTY OF THE HUMAN SPECIES AND GOD’S OTHER CREATURES—THE EARTH AND ITS LIFE.

When you found, as example, that you would cut great forests for building and manufacturing, you didn’t realize that one day you would destroy your very lives. God provided you with other “building” things, which are more durable and contribute TO and not take away FROM your life needs. You didn’t pay attention. You have allowed GREED for money to take possession of your thinking brains. You do NOT need a package the size of a loaf of bread to package a 2-oz. tube of toothpaste. You could cushion that toothpaste in a biodegradable product that would be size-formed and actually enhance the environment. The trappings of products are for SALES advertising, so let us stop fiddling around with words and LOOK AT WHAT IS. And NO, I am not interested in toothpaste or its packaging! Better for you would be to use hydrogen peroxide solution to brush, then a bit of soda (baking) and salt for abrasion and again rinse with hydrogen peroxide. Ah, but you want mint-flavored breath freshener so you can be “Close Up”? OK, chew a mint LEAF or use a bit of a chew from a twig of the tree of life from Southeast Asia (and yes, we have several projects going to grow whole orchards of that tree—and no, I won’t cause a rush on the product by telling you what it is in THIS writing and make a demand that strips the saplings just starting).

It is amazing that man has to have things and get them through destruction of his own environment in the first place.

But what do you do in areas both saved by, and destroyed by, the systems themselves? You evaluate and see what is WRONG. The IMF, for instance, CANNOT survive in good service when it is abused, corrupted, robbed and nations never repay—nor do they intend to do so. So, the very first offering is given in good intent by, at the least, the citizen-level operations managers. Manipulation comes where it can have strength—at the controlling TOP, and that is at both levels of banking manipulations and government power structures deeply into corruption.

At the same time gold, as a value-base for currency, is phased out—collateral of the NATIONS THEMSELVES is substituted as IMF/WB collateral, so when no return is forthcoming and the nations are into total inability for recovery—foreclosure is the next step in the pattern, along with COLONIZATION. So the serpent seems to be eating itself—of course starting with the tail, which is expendable. And by the time all you have left is the deadly fangs dripping with blood and froth—you are “done in”.

This is worse than bloody war with sticks and stones, for more people “DIE” in mind and body through the colonization method of warfare.

This kind of a snake is more like the anaconda than the quick-strike adder. All things living are simply inch-by-inch smothered to death through a myriad of “seemingly innocent or helpful” ways. The very life-sustaining elements are removed and replaced with poison, displacing the very oxygen you breathe. Mental capabilities are the first to go, and as a population is dulled to death through malnutrition and lack of elemental needs for air, etc., it becomes easy “kill-off” for the takers, who simply walk in and use the slaves for shift work, and slave labor AND depopulation are available, as well as mostly docile, half-living peasants to herd like chattel-cattle—JUST AS DEMANDED IN THE PROTOCOLS OF ZION.

I would like to make a bit of a notation at this point of this writing which will not mean much to casual readers but to our teams it will mean a great deal, for they are among the “founders” of this Global Alliance and Association of Global Communities that we are—through proper and FREE alliance and association—birthing. And YES, it can and shall simply coexist with that which IS and allow balance to return in peaceful evolution.

We are not some sort of CULT and we have no “RELIGION”—except based on the goodly attitudes and LAWS of Universal RIGHT-ness. We need no wonderful names for our goodly work, and we object to those who choose to use their “share” to invent or produce that which is given name under the CONTROL AND MANIPULATION OF SOME WOULD-BE STRING-PULLER.

What am I saying? I am telling you that we will start NO NEW RELIGIONS AS SUCH NOR SHALL WE BIRTH POLITICAL POWER STRUCTURES—ALTHOUGH GOOD GOVERNMENTS OF THE PEOPLE, BY THE PEOPLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE WILL BLOSSOM FROM THE VERY PRACTICE ITSELF. NO MAN SHALL BE SET FORTH AS THE GREAT “POPE” OR “GOD”—FOR GOD NEEDS NO RUN-ABOUT KINGS TO SET THEMSELVES UP AS GOD IN POWER AND FORCE IN THESE ARENAS OF COALITION.

When, in goodness, you as a planetary group are overcrowded—you shall have opened the gates to evolution into the Cosmic Brotherhood in an acceptable manner for integration. But you must now turn the process of evil control around and into FREEDOM OF MAN.

We are working full-bore on associations and alliances with others in the very area of that which is known as ASEAN with some of the more immediate countries IN THE AREA. Any coalition that has Big Brothers like the United States or even, in this area, China, is burdened with inability to function according to its own needs. A perfect solution for that now presents itself in both concept and ready structure. Know, team, that these are the reasons for seeming delays and slow evolution: THINGS HAVE TO BE STRUCTURED AND THAT TAKES TIME—BEFORE AND AFTER YOUR CONSCIOUS RECOGNITION OF CIRCUMSTANCES.

I now ask Dharma to take the time to simply COPY the writing on the established-establishing concept of BIMP-EAGA, and without much comment I think it will be apparent that we ARE the one part that will make this reality in progress. I want the article onto disk, for it will become some background for global opportunities for those who “don’t know what to do” or how to structure a coalition for optimal sharing.

Our “GAIA” products, from drias to CONTACT, will become the foundation upon which this Alliance will be built. And yes, you CAN have membership—if you choose to structure it properly—WITHOUT BEING REFERRED TO AS A CULT OR GROUPIE. I WOULD THINK THAT BACK IN THE UNITED STATES YOU WOULD PREFER TO BE A PART OF THE NATIVE AMERICAN COALITION. That, however, is not a topic for time consumption now.

I mention this here and now because those who are keeping the operations going for the paper and farm and other “Institute”-connected projects are already merged into the GAIA shelter for assurance of their asset and personal protection as participants. We will work through the already existing problems to resolution and conclusion and put it to rest.

This article offered here comes from a requested presentation made public through the PHILIPPINE STAR, Monday, March 27, 2000. We are using this publication a bit “late” for our readers because we had to establish connections, and E.J. had to establish inter-communications with important others. Please KNOW that—regardless of how it may well appear—WE REMAIN BUSY AND PRODUCTIVE.

[QUOTING:]

BIMP-EAGA:

EMERGING FROM THE BACKWATERS

DAVAO CITY—Except for Brunei Darussalam, the sub-national economies of this particular grouping are often considered as the backwaters, being located way down in the fringes of geographical setting of each of the four countries that make up this regional cooperation.

Far from the capital, development and at times even the delivery of basic services was hard to come by in these regions. An Asian Development Bank investigative study conducted in 1996 tagged these places as the “lagging sub-national areas”.

In terms of development priorities, these areas almost always get the smallest slice of the budget pie.

Determined to break out from such a sorry state, the participating areas of the Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia and the Philippines-East ASEAN Growth Area (BIMP-EAGA) geo-economic grouping found strength in bonding together by making the most out of their tremendous potentials.

The idea of forging ties between the economies of East-Indonesia, East Malaysia, Brunei Darussalam with Mindanao and Palawan for the Philippines first came out in 1992. It was broached by then former President Fidel Ramos before the political leaders of the three other nations, who were all receptive to the concept of an “open regionalism” policy.

Malaysian Prime Minister Mohamad Mahathir approved the idea of a regional cooperation, while former Indonesian Presidential Suharto gladly welcomed it and sultan Bolkiah signified intention that Brunei would take an active part in the undertaking.

The Mindanao Economic Development Council (MEDCO), then headed by Presidential Assistant for Mindanao Paul Dominguez, followed through the idea by holding exploratory talks with its counter-parts in Malaysia, Indonesia and Brunei.

The initiative took its concrete form two years later. In a meeting held at the Davao Insular Hotel on March 24 to 26, 1994, the economic ministers of the four participating countries signed an all-too-important agreement, signaling the birth of the BIMP-EAGA.

Hope for the area’s accelerated growth and development was apparently pinned on the formation of the EAGA as a tool in energizing productive resources within the region.

Since 1994, designated senior officials and the economic ministers of the four countries have been holding meetings to tackle developments involving the regional cooperation in EAGA.

A strategic mechanism for the new growth area, which has a market base of over 46 million consumers and a land area that covers some 1.6 million square kilometers, was then drawn—based on the shared complementarities and the opportunities for regional economic cooperation and investment.

BEYOND BORDERS

History tells us that even during pre-colonial times, cross-border trading and commerce were already brisk between Mindanao, Palawan and the Sulawesi and Kalimantan provinces, Ujung Pandang and other parts of Eastern Indonesia, as well as that of the Malaysian states of Sabah and Sarawak, including Brunei.

Sights of boats setting sail to the neighboring islands, carrying loads of goods sold by traders, were common even before the Spaniards, the Dutch, the British and the Portuguese and other colonizers stepped onto the soils of the islands of Borneo, Sabah, Mindanao and other areas.

Such economic activities were disrupted when territorial jurisdictions were emphasized by each of their respective governments in the early 1900s, hence restricting cross-border travels of people and goods.

Perhaps what is taking place nowadays are the exchanges of trade missions and visits to key areas in EAGA organized by both government and private-sector delegations, on top of the increasingly frequent travels by traders between these areas.

But more than the economic aspect, cultural ties also have a very significant role to play among those in the EAGA areas.

These cross-border ties enhance the chances of increasing trade, investments and tourism in the EAGA. Specifically, EAGA’s objectives are to facilitate the free movement of people, goods and services, as well as share common infrastructure and national resources and economic complementation.

WORKING ON THE AREAS OF COOPERATION

If one takes a closer look at the profile of EAGA, it can be noted that its component areas are largely resource-based economies characterized by the abundance of natural resources consisting of vast forests, oil, gas and coal reserves, including an extensive coastal zone.

Mindanao is agriculture-based, while the economy of East Malaysia depends on timber and its vast forest resources. Gas and oil deposits comprise more than 93 percent of the economy of Brunei—and East Indonesia also banks on its agriculture, fishery and forest resources.

Taking into account these distinct characteristics of the economies of EAGA, at least 13 working groups have been formed to facilitate how the regional cooperation can be effectively carried out.

The working groups included expansion of air linkages, joint tourism development, expansion of sea linkages, construction and construction materials, telecommunications, expansion of fisheries cooperation, people mobility, forestry and environment, energy, human resource development, capital formation and financial services and agro-industry.

Since 1994, significant developments have so far taken place in each of these areas of cooperation, as manifested in the growth of each sector and recorded by Medco, which also serves as the secretariat for the Philippines in the EAGA.

The developments in these areas of cooperation can also be gauged [by] the amount of joint-venture agreements forged between EAGA-based business firms. These new investments were mostly in coconut-processing facilities, passenger-ferry terminals, cargo services and fast-ferry services, among others.

Take, for instance, the air-services sector: Travel between Davao City and the North Sulawesi capital in Manado used to be circuitous before, with one having to pass by Manila and Jakarta before reaching the said destinations. With the establishment of direct air linkages by the Indonesian Bouraq Airlines since 1992, travel between the said areas now only takes an hour and 30 minutes by a Boeing 737-200 aircraft.

Malaysia Airlines, however, had to suspend its direct Davao-Kota-Kinabalu flights due to the financial crunch that affected Asia two years ago. Singapore Airlines continues to service regular flights between Davao and Singapore, while Mindanao Express is mulling the idea of a direct General Santos-Manado flight and another route servicing Zamboanga and Sandakan in Sabah.

Royal Brunei Airlines has been considering direct flights between Brunei Darussalam and Davao City. While Qantas Airlines of Australia also ponders on a possible direct-flight service between Davao City and Darwin in the Northern Territory.

The shipping services sector, on the other hand, has proven to be the most dynamic sector in EAGA regional cooperation. Medico noted that the transport of goods has been made possible and accessible through the introduction of new shipping services connecting the major ports within the region.

At least 11 new Indonesian vessels were reported to have started serving the route connecting General Santos City and the port city of Bitung in North Sulawesi. Two Zamboanga-based shipping lines and another two Malaysian ferry firms regularly ply the Zamboanga-Sandakan route.

There has been a continuing increase in the number of passengers taking the intra-EAGA shipping routes since these started way back in 1995.

And to encourage an increase in traffic for both air and sea travel, the Philippine Government has waived the payment of travel tax for any travel from Mindanao and Palawan to any point within EAGA. The same policy has also been implemented by the three other component nations.

In the field of telecommunications, Globe Telecom Philippines, Inc. played a major role in the realization of interconnection within EAGA by operationalizing the Global System for Mobile Phones Roaming Services, which now covers more than 100 cities and towns in the region.

The four participating countries have also signed a memorandum of agreement on tariff reduction, wherein rates for overseas calls to EAGA areas have been reduced by at least 7 to 23 percent.

A BIMP-EAGA home-page on the Internet has also been put into operation to help facilitate the flow of information in the region.

Another important area of cooperation is the development of the tourism industry in the area, wherein a BIMP-EAGA Tourism Council was formed in 1996 in an effort to push further the tourism potentials of the region.

EAGA is considered to have among the most exotic destinations in the world. Although EAGA areas can take stock of the rich culture of the place as a come-on, still the breathtaking scenery of its flora and fauna and the unspoiled sanctuary of its forests and the spellbinding lure of its coastal zone could make each tour worth it.

The forests of Borneo, from Sandakan down to Kuching, never fail to enthrall visitors, while the dive sites [of] Bunaken Island in Manado and the enticing culture of Mindanao are hard-to-resist tour packages.

And to further boost tourism in the region, several hotels have been put up in anticipation of the expected increase in tourist arrivals. It is not only the number of rooms that has increased but the quality of hotel services has also greatly improved.

Among the most prominent hotels recently established in the EAGA are the Marco Polo Hotel and the Mercury Grand Hotel in Davao City. The Marco Polo Hotel, considered as among the world-class hotels in the region, was established as a result of the EAGA cooperation.

Several hotels in the area have also expanded their operations by adding more rooms and putting in more amenities.

Meanwhile, the EAGA component areas have also ventured in a cooperation in fisheries, especially since the region is known to have the world's largest fishery resources.

A BIMP-EAGA Fisheries Quarantine Task Force has also been recently created, wherein discussions were lately focused on the harmonization of fisheries quarantine processors, including its law, rules, regulations and standards.

Plans are also afoot now in making EAGA as the food basket of Asia. EAGA has a vast land area that is suitable for agriculture.

"We are looking at making the most out of the agricultural industry in the EAGA. We want to produce more high-value crops that would enhance the production capacity of the area. And there is no question that EAGA can make it, since it has all the potential. What is needed here is just a little shift in focus," said John Teo, Executive Director of the East ASEAN Business Council (EABC).

Meanwhile, a Geographical Information System (GIS) has also been set up by the working group on forestry and environment to map the natural resources found in EAGA and at the same time to enhance information-sharing on forestry and environmental protection and management.

EAGA's diverse natural flora and fauna are also said to be among the world's best locations for high value-added biotechnological and medicinal-research industries.

The working group on construction and construction materials has also been mulling the idea of establishing a pan-EAGA multi-modal transportation network system that would connect the component areas to enable the easier flow of people and goods in the region. The establishment of the Panadany Construction Skills Training Center in Davao City, for one, was a realization of the proposal to set up a manpower training center in the region.

Arrangements have also been finalized by the working group on capital formation and financial services for the establishment of a multi-million dollar EAGA growth fund that would be used to enhance investments in the region.

The growth fund is intended to help finance the enterprising endeavors of the small and medium scale industries in the region.

THE PRIVATE-SECTOR COUNTERPART

Government shall pave the way by institutionalizing the needed mechanisms, such as policy reforms, for the full participation of the private sector in the EAGA.

"Much of the success of EAGA depends largely on the private sector. Government can only do that much but the ones that should fuel the engine of growth are still those in the private sector," Dominguez said.

As counterpart of the Government-initiated EAGA, the business councils of the component areas also organized the EABC.

A full-time secretariat of the EABC has been holding office in Bandar Seri Begawan with the Brunei Government shouldering a large part of the financial requirements for its operation.

According to Joli Ilagan-Bian, Chairman of the Mindanao Business Council, also one of the two country directors for the Philippines in the council, the EABC is a vital instrument in further strengthening the ties within the growth area.

There is no mistaking in the tremendous response that the private sector has accorded the regional cooperation.

The impressive attendance of those who make up the country delegations in the senior officials and ministers' meetings of the EAGA and the countless other events such as trade exhibits and missions, business conferences and other travel exchanges within the region would show that they all come from the private sector.

The EAGA calendar of activities also reflects an array of events that provide opportunities for the businessmen in the region to meet and match their interests.

There is no question that when these business opportunities do materialize, they would also mean job openings for the residents in the EAGA region.

Aside from possible dealings with their counterparts within the growth area, these businessmen have also found a crack in the international business community that has signified interest in the EAGA.

The Department of Asian Relations and Trade of Australia's Northern Territory never missed [sending] sizeable delegations to the different activities in the EAGA.

EAGA has also been featured in various international economic activities in the EAGA.

Flurries of international investment conferences on EAGA have also been slated and are expected to draw thousands of participants who recognize the tremendous potentials of doing business in the growth area.

KEEPING THE TORCH BURNING FOR EAGA

The Asian economic crunch that hit [from the middle] of 1997 [into] 1998 may have also put investments and certain economic activities in EAGA on hold. But as things start to get better again, EAGA is also [endeavoring] to move forward.

"EAGA never got lost. The spirit is still there. It has just slowed down a bit because of the economic crisis. But, nevertheless, it still remains within," said Sebastian Angliogto, Medco Chairman.

The Administration of President Estrada vowed to continue what [was] started six years ago in as far as EAGA is concerned.

"We are still continuing with the activities, while the meetings of the working groups and the senior officials and economic ministers are still ongoing," Angliogto added.

A visit to the key areas in EAGA, and even in some villages, would show the impact made by the creation of the growth area and what a difference it has made. Possible comparisons can be made between the pre-EAGA days and how things have improved after the regional cooperation came into being.

EAGA, after all, is more than just a regional economic cooperation.

It is the very way of life of those wanting to break free from the bondage of being last on the list.

[END OF QUOTING]

Now, readers, if you cannot see God's hand at work—you are quite blind, indeed. However, if you are to participate in this plan—which can be totally fulfilled in perfection through our program of sharing—YOU MUSLIMS, INDIGENOUS AND CHRISTIAN PEOPLE are going to have to stop kidnapping, murdering and warring with one another. If we participate, we will have NONE of the ongoing strife and fear taking place TODAY. To make this work, you must work TOGETHER in love and integration and stop the "RELIGIOUS" bigotry. YOU ARE, EACH AND ALL, "HUMAN" (HIGHER UNIVERSAL MAN)—and if you continue to act like territorial dogs in heat, you are going to miss the very gifts God sends to allow you growth and abundance within HIS wondrous expectations of such men.

Further, if you people cannot see the incredible opportunity for growth—bringing order and protection into the areas shown here—you are blind and should stay out of it. To integrate growth with need and COMMUNITY in BROTHERHOOD is the ultimate FREEDOM.

And no, we will not continue to entertain the "few" who have tried to garner the whole of our program unto their control and use—at great, great expense in percentages to those who come with projects. We will begin to revamp the program as established to allow better conditions FOR THE BANKS THEMSELVES, as they more slowly and more comfortably meet needs. We are not going to longer load them with concepts of TRILLIONS of $$$, when start-up for ALL things only requires that which STARTS a project. It will also prevent the devious diversion of funds into those programs negating our own agreements. It is probably time now to begin to make life a bit miserable for those who have, through devious means, begun their own cults and programs. So be it.

Inconceivably Important Philippines Connections

JUGGLING IN THE PHILIPPINES

Hatonn—As we make an effort each day to decide what of the myriad topics on which to base our articles, we are continually stunned to find that there is so much of interest EVERY DAY and all is so related to everything of which we take note as to have great difficulty sharing even a tiny portion of what needs noting. THIS IS THE WAY THINGS GET LOST, CHELAS, IN THE PLANNED AND INTENTIONAL REVISIONS OF HISTORICAL TRUTH.

There is no way that in a tiny weekly paper we can even start to cover the overwhelming piles of information, so we don't even try—you just have to keep up as best you can as readers. Our major purpose is to set to TRUTH that which is offered to you as public receivers of propaganda—a CORRECTION of data.

We focus on the Philippines right now, as a point to emphasize that very statement—for the history has been written without regard to truthful entry for well over a century of involvement with just the U.S. and the New World Order, politics and you name it. Publications allowed on the open market are those by paid-for dis-information writers in all but the most “subdued” and suppressed presentations.

Dharma daily feels remiss in the inability to bring attention to even those things which she knows are intended topics for future presentations from this keyboard. It is not possible. For example: Today there is an article on AIDS which is quite short—but seems to hold obvious information and hits here as if it is international NEW FINDINGS. Therefore, readers, KNOW that this type of “bury-the-readers” is intentional and even the major daily papers, even if they were NOT propaganda-controlled sheets, could not even touch on the massive mountains of available information. And NOW, there is so much dis- and mis-information foisted off onto you through electronic media as to be staggering. We have been the targets of such disinformation thrusts and thus MISUSE of the media itself, as to surprise even the targets themselves.

A MAJOR story today in the Philippine Star gives an indication of an example of how difficult it is to cover even the timely and immediate information and just how incredibly ill-informed the people are kept as to their own safety and security—even as to things such as AIDS and activities and why this Syndrome is so destructive in the diseases it presents.

[QUOTING from the Philippine Star, Sat., Apr. 8, 2000, “THE NATION”:]

ORAL SEX NO SAFEGUARD VS AIDS

If you think you're safe with oral sex, better watch out.

The Department of Health (DOH) warned yesterday that the practice of oral sex is not a protection against the deadly AIDS-causing virus.

Government health authorities aired the warning after results of a study pointed to oral sex as the probable cause of HIV infection among a number of homosexuals.

The study conducted by the US Center for Disease Control and Prevention revealed that 8 percent of homosexual men in San Francisco acquired HIV through oral sex.

Although there were previous reports of people acquiring HIV orally, foreign health experts had difficulty in substantiating such reports.

But the new study pointed to oral sex as the probable cause for the HIV infection among 8 of the 102 gay and bisexual men involved in the research.

“The study revealed that all of the men apparently acquired the virus by giving oral sex, rather than receiving it,” the DOH noted.

Health authorities further cited results of the study, indicating that most of those who acquired the infection thought that oral sex had little or no risk at all.

Sexual intercourse remains the predominant mode of HIV transmission in the country.

To prevent the spread of HIV and AIDS, government health authorities are currently promoting the use of condoms and safe-sex practices.

[END OF QUOTING]

Now, for the punch line to this horror tale? A sincere and honest individual actually asked the speaker involved here: “Where do you put the condom for safe oral sex?” How many of you would tell these “safe sex” preachers where to shove it?

Why would THIS take focus? Because, dear hearts and uninformed readers, one of the biggest legal cases EVER, in Southeast Asia, is about a sodomy case and other sexual deviations by a near Head of State in a two-year ongoing drag about sexual practices, in Malaysia. And where, by the way, the United States through your Vice President and Secretary of State and Defense Secretary are supporting the guilty party in the case AGAINST THE ADMINISTRATION OF MALAYSIA. Sodomy may well be accepted, even if still unlawful in many places, in the U.S.—BUT IT IS A CRIME OF THE WORST KIND IN MALAYSIA AND IN THE OTHER SO-CALLED NON-CHRISTIAN NATIONS OF SOUTHEAST ASIA—IN THE MUSLIM AREAS THEREOF. And for you “believing” Bible preachers—sodomy is listed as against the laws of God. What do “I” think? What matters what I think, pray tell? WHAT DO “YOU” THINK? The practice, obviously, is a killer two-minute caper into the world of Dr. Ruth's 100 ways to catch disease AND SPREAD IT.

My observation? Go depopulate yourself, if you choose—and take a friend—but be prepared for that friend to send you to the death-row facilities when he realizes your carrying capability against his poor unsuspecting few moments of altered-mind participation through the bottom of a lot of San Miguel's Super-Dry.

Here, however, we need to share some things to your attention, while continuing to cover the background of what actually happened in and around the Philippines, for this is WHERE we are taking a stand for TRUTH and LIGHT.

UNLIKELY PLACE?

So, is this a most “unlikely” place? Perhaps, but it IS WHERE IT WILL BE DONE—and we WILL give the truthbringers who KNOW and present truth through investigation as much audience as we can offer.

As we go along here, team back home, please be forwarding these Erick San Juan writings to the “Napa” people. Some of the information offered prior to now by “some” writers and utilized by that paper, is simply fabricated MISINFORMATION. The truth is ever so much the more interesting, however, so they might well enjoy sharing and, yes, they have direct permission to use the information.

These bits of information are INCONCEIVABLY IMPORTANT in the unfolding drama taking place RIGHT NOW in these Pearls of the Pacific Islands.

[QUOTING, Erick San Juan, Philippines:]

WHY THE COUP ATTEMPTS AGAINST THE CORY GOVERNMENT?

How did it all start?

After the Aug. 28, 1987 failed coup, an organization composed mainly of patriotic civilians joined hands in setting up the Save Our Soldiers Movement (SOS), and immediately launched a massive propaganda drive supporting the “nationalist soldiers' cause”. It was a reaction to the Aquino Government's order to arrest the putshcists on sight. A leaflet sent to a national daily reads:

“The nation today stands at the crossroads of destiny. Our people are faced with a crisis greater in magnitude than all the crises still fresh in our memory. The Armed Forces has been torn apart because of an evil design implemented by the proponents of a godless ideology. If we do not act in time to save our soldiers' lives, then we will all witness the unfolding of the bloodiest chapter in the history of our country.”

Three years later, Brig. Gen. Edgardo Abenina of the Nationalist Reformist Movement (NRM) would still echo the same sentiment in his January 2, 1990 open letter to then Senator Joseph E. Estrada:

“After the EDSA Revolt of '86, expectations were so pink and bright... Tomorrow will be brighter. Progress will come. We all waited. Nothing came... Things got worse and the situation bleaker. Communists were set free. Soldiers continued to die... The communists got bigger and bigger democratic space. The rich got richer. The poor got poorer.”

All this demonstrates that at least until 1986, the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) top echelon was not fully cognizant of the danger brought about by the post-Vatican II bishops and priests of the Roman Catholic Church.

As far back as 1977, the Vatican started to condition Catholic minds for communist participation in European governments. This revolutionary idea had to start in France. “For the Vatican, as for Moscow, France is the linchpin of Europe's economic and military evolution. As France goes politically, so will go the rest of Western Europe—this is an axiom of Vatican geopolitics.”

Two years earlier, Paul VI shocked attendees of the 5th International Roman Synod on September 30, 1975, when he opened the ceremonies at the Sistine Chapel with the following words:

“We have been chosen, called and invested by the Lord with a transforming mission. As Bishops, we are the successors of the Apostles.” [H: WOW!]

Immediately after this ominous speech, the Church’s mission has been transformed into nothing more than social activity and her religious ideal with material betterment. Proponents of Liberation Theology, people like Gustavo Gutierrez of Peru, Juan Luis Segundo of Uruguay, Hugo Assman of Brazil, Miguel Bonio of Argentina, Sergio Torres of Chile, the Capuchin Fathers in Nicaragua, and the Jesuits in several places, went to work.

According to ex-Jesuit Malachi Martin, the Vatican’s new policymakers formulated a specific political theory initially called “democratic socialism”, to which belief must hew. The first to fall victim to this subversion was the priestly seminary training. He writes:

“The whole training of young priests now is completely away from the traditional doctrines and over to an outlook that stresses urban problems, population problems, devotion that allows for any form of religious faith.”

In a short period of twenty years, Liberation Theology has managed to destroy the moral fiber of millions of people all over the world. It has pushed traditional theology aside in favor of irrationalism. Consequently, the Church has become “socialized and psychologized, to such a degree that the pulpit is being totally misused as a major center for the dissemination of political propaganda of the most irrational kind.”

In his article for the U.S.-based publication CHRISTIAN DEFENSE LEAGUE (CDL), Dr. John Coleman, an ex-CIA operative, [H: This is not quite accurate as to Dr. Coleman’s intelligence association. Dr. Coleman personally states that he is not, and never was, attached to the CIA; he personally says his intelligence connections were through MI-6 (Her Majesty’s Secret Service [Great Britain]). This is a very common error in identification, for the intelligence services are so intertwined today as to be unable to separate one from the other. However, Dr. Coleman needs this information to be better specified because he no longer serves in this capacity.] shows how Liberation theologians have worked to destabilize and even overthrow duly-constituted governments. Part of it reads:

“Cardinal Sin of the Philippines worked diligently to overthrow the Government of President Marcos. He was ably assisted by a former executive of the World Council of Churches, Jovito Salonga. Salonga was brought back to the Philippines under the escort of the U.S. State Department, in the same way as South Korea’s WCC puppet, Kim Dae Jung, was escorted back to South Korea.

“Salonga will soon take over from Mrs. Aquino, who is on her way out. The first thing Salonga will do is cut a deal with the Marxist New Peoples’ Army (NPA)... the NPA Marxists are supported, financially and politically, by the World Council of Churches through a string of Catholic and Protestant churches in America and Europe (mostly in Holland) such as the Catholic CEBEMO and the Protestant ICCO church organizations based in Utrecht.

“Another very active Marxist liberation front is the Christian Conference of Asia, a front for the World Council of Churches. In Singapore, the CCA was used to foment trouble there and in other Asian countries, such as the Philippines and South Korea.

“The Catholic (Peace and Justice) Commission also ran the Asia Partnership of Human Development, an organization offering protection, shelter and help to the May First Movement and the Task Force Detainees which acts for guerillas detained by the authorities. From the Philippines, Radio Veritas run by Cardinal Sin spews out communist propaganda in 13 languages throughout Asia.”—CDL October 1988, issue 111

The National Council of Churches in the Philippines (NCCP) is the official arm of the WCC here. It has ten members: (1) United Methodist Church, (2) United Church of Christ in the Philippines, (3) Philippine Independent Church, (4) Philippine Episcopal Church, (5) Iglesia Evangelica Metodista en las Isleas Filipinas, (6) Iglesia Evangelica Unida de Cristo, (7) Lutheran Church in the Philippines, (8) Salvation Army, (9) Convention of the Philippine Baptist Churches and (10) Christ Centered Church. The NCCP’s total membership is about 9.26 percent of the Philippine population.

During the 1986 EDSA revolt, the National Council of Churches in the Philippines was joined by another Protestant group, the Philippine Council of Evangelical Churches, which includes 19 regular denominations, 33 local churches and 34 associate members. They have a membership of about 500,000.

Paul VI’s speech on “transformation” had also reached the Protestants and Evangelicals in the Philippines. And no less than Richard L. Schwenk, author of Onward, Christians! (Protestants in the Philippine Revolution), admits it:

“The NCCP’s participation in the 1986 Philippine Revolution took place long before the historic days in February. The task of conscientization or awareness-building among the people has been a long-term program thrust of the Council called ‘Transformation of Church and Society’. Through the seminars and consultations, the NCCP helped people understand the national situation, the issues and problems facing the country such as poverty, militarization, graft and corruption, violation of human rights, and oppression and exploitation of the people.”—p. 11

The Rev. La Verne D. Mercado, former Bishop of the United Methodist Church and NCCP General Secretary, was one of those jailed by the Marcos Government in 1974. He was often placed under surveillance for subversive activities.

As of this writing, Liberation theologians are still engaged in promoting the agenda of the “forces of separatism”, and many continue to be attracted by their revolutionary “theology”. Martin tells us why:

“The essential teaching of this new theology, first formulated by Latin American theologians, is that the first and essential step in Christ’s salvation of the human race is the liberation of all men and women from the yoke of Capitalism—chiefly and evilly represented by the United States. The Church, according to this theology, should be the servant of the human race and of its history. And the Church should not only allow, it should sanction and foment, any revolutionary violence (called justifiable counter-violence) in order to unseat and eradicate the centers of Capitalism.”

In the Philippines and elsewhere, this “culture of violence” has taken and continues to take the lives of innocent civilians. Which led a local Freemason to ask, “Is the Grand Orient that evil?”

Malachi Martin believes that the problem lies beyond the Grand Orient. “It is something far more sinister. There is abroad... a more comprehensive, more subtle, more far-reaching organization of particular men who give loyalty to no particular countries but to very particular principles, according to which they have in mind a very particular destiny for, among other institutions, this Holy Roman Catholic and Apostolic Church. For them, Freemasons are puppets. And Marxists are puppets besides being temporary impediments to the working out of their will and intention.” He explains:

“The sooner we heed these wise words, the better it will be for most of us. It’s high time we put politics back to religion where it truly belongs; otherwise, we shall never understand the problems which confront us.” A dejected Gringo Honasan unwittingly admitted what we just said, when he was interviewed by the TIME Southeast Asia Bureau Chief, William Stewart, on October 1, 1990: “The very same people who are telling us now that violence is bad, are the same people who egged us on in ’85 and ’86 to kill Marcos.”

[END OF QUOTING]

It certainly is long past time that you take this thought SERIOUSLY—before you AND your world go down to the Religious Frauds.

“Religion” is NOT the “opiate of the people”, as Marx claimed, and hear me well: RELIGION IS THE DUTIFUL OVERSEER THAT CHAINS THE PEOPLE TO THE SLAVE-MASTER. IT SERVES THAT “MASTER” AND NEVER THE SLAVE. IT TEACHES MAN TO NEVER THINK FOR SELF AND THAT INDEPENDENT THOUGHT PUTS THE SOUL IN DANGER OF SOME ETERNAL DAMNATION. AND NOW IT COMES FULL CIRCLE TO PRODUCE A FRAUD UPON THE PEOPLE (SLAVES) AS TO BEING THE ONLY WAY TO RAPTURE YOURSELVES TO SOME ELUSIVE HEAVEN FOR DOING NOTHING—JUST DUMP YOUR SOUL ON SOMEBODY ELSE’S MURDERED BODY. RELIGION WILL INTRODUCE YOU NOT TO GOD, BUT DIRECTLY INTO THE WORST KIND OF SLAVERY.

Do not be BLIND, DEAF AND STUPID, readers, for Cardinal Sin, Cory Aquino and Fidel Ramos are directly set forth to DESTROY THE GOVERNMENT AS ELECTED IN THE PHILIPPINES. THEY ARE DIRECTLY IN SERVICE TO THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND THROUGH THE FRAUDULENT AUSPICES OF THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH, WHICH NEITHER APPROVES OF NOR EVEN LIKES THIS CARDINAL SIN, COMMUNIST LEADER.

May you each and all get just a bit better informed, if you wish to ever again find FREEDOM—ANYWHERE!

WAISTLINE OR WAISTLINES—
BUT ALL ARE WEIGHTLINES

What might the international news be like in other nations—say, the U.S.—regarding the Philippines? It is focused, even in the Philippines, this month, on total “unfitness” (overweight and total disability of a normal officer to run, much less catch a criminal). This is a very important and heavy problem as things measure up—so, the thrust right now is a mandatory “get thin and fit”, or OUT. And, the new Philippine National Police head does, unfortunately for everyone else, have PERFECT measurements and fitness level. And, of course, in considering this problem, you have to realize it is made to fit the smaller dimensional size of the Filipinos and Filipinas.

Just now, “2 x 1/16th” (a pretty good measurement in its own right) sent the following from the April 7, 2000 ORLANDO SENTINEL.

FILIPINO COPS MUST SHRINK WAISTS
OR LOSE THEIR JOBS

MOUNT PINATUBO, PHILIPPINES—With banners reading “Fat belly, flab. Mount Pinatubo will remove,” overweight Philippine police officers scaled a treacherous volcano Thursday in an attempt to beat a deadline for flattening their tummies and avoiding dismissal. HUNDREDS OF OTHERS FAILED (among them, the Ekkers, even in a 4X4) to complete the trek to Pinatubo’s peak, part of a fitness campaign launched last month by national Police Chief Panfilo Lacson. Policemen with waists greater than 34 inches must exercise for six months, and they face possible dismissal if they don’t slim down. The waists of policewomen must be no more than 29 inches.

[END OF QUOTING]

Note the argument of one Doris: “Well, I am about the size of the average Filipino or perhaps a bit taller, so I’m sure the measurements for the male more nearly fit my circumstance—but E.J. will definitely not be hired for the Police Academy Director.” And “THANKS, ‘2 x 8’, FOR REMINDING US!”

On a more serious note, E.J. just had a conversation with Erick San Juan who had put together some things, while requesting others, and sent documents over by courier. At first glance, the humor is difficult to suppress and then the seriousness of the facts involved here is evidence of the desire to enslave and warp the minds of THINKING people.

Our people will remember back years ago when we offered some information on the Jewish Holocaust in a couple or so volumes of the Journals and in CONTACT (back then, The Phoenix Liberator) and those Journals got “arrested” at the Canadian Border and condemned to the burning stake AS HATE MATERIAL. And, worse yet, we actually defended the Jews! We called the series “The Trillion Dollar Lie”—and in it we covered the arguments, facts, misinformation, etc., as presented by eyewitnesses and investigators. Times don’t change much, do they? We are getting hailed upon again just because we present some more facts, same facts, and—with freedom of speech allowances—give space to some interesting historical questions as regards topics of the last millennium.

We, remember, did not know or even know of somebody named Erick San Juan in Manila, Philippines. He shares with you some of his consequences of simply offering others’ observations and scientific data—and questioning some 6 million Jews dying in WW II.

He has sent three immediate rebuttals to his article which, even though a bit long for an Editorial “letter”, speak VOLUMES!

And—since I fear “confusion” on the part of some eavesdroppers who usurp our material and amend it to fit their own needs—I will point out some very interesting things regarding especially the ones who objected to a rather objective article, the issue of the Holocaust “as presented” by the Revisionist Jews.

Since April is so near the time of Holocaust Hype and the Easter Season, it comes up again and the papers and movies are pushed off onto everyone worse than a Presidential Election or Superbowl. Over here, they are running over and over again a story of some girl who “dreamed” she was in the Holocaust, years before, and it is now required watching—“LEST ANYONE FORGET”. My goodness, does this also mean that the Jews actually DO believe in reincarnation and have lied about that little trick all these generations as well?

First, San Juan’s article:

(Check the date or you might miss the impact.)

[QUOTING, BUSINESSWORLD, Wednesday, April 8, 1998:]

Did 6 million Jews really die in WW II?

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH AND THE HOLOCAUST

By Erick San Juan

On March 18, 1998, the eve of the Feast of Saint Joseph, the Vatican publicly repented for the passivity of Roman Catholics who merely watched “as Hitler’s Germany sent more than six million Jews to death camps across Europe”. [H: Already, note the howl and cry of the Jews THIS YEAR against the Pope, who tried to again apologize to any who were treated badly by the Holy Roman Church.]

The Australian Cardinal, Edward Cassidy, head of the Vatican Commission for Religious Relations with

Judaism, told reporters, “This is more than an apology, since as members of the Church, we are linked to the sins as well as to the merits of her children.” [H: BOTH THIS CARDINAL CASSIDY AND THE POPE ARE JEWISH. MOREOVER, THAT POPE OF 1998 IS THE SAME ONE TODAY, A POLISH JEW, WHO—AS A REMINDER—SOLD ZYKLON-B (CYANIDE) GAS DIRECTLY, PERSONALLY, TO THE NAZIS AT THE CAMPS. The purpose for the gas? To delouse, for Typhus had begun to spread from the fleas in the camps.]

Did six million Jews really die in World War II?

According to Chambers Encyclopedia, the total number of Jews living in pre-War Europe was 6,500,000, but the Basler Nachrichten, a neutral Swiss publication using available Jewish statistical data, establishes that between 1933 and 1945, about 1,500,000 Jews emigrated to Britain, Sweden, Spain, Portugal, Australia, China, India, Palestine (now Israel) and the United States. This information was confirmed by the Jewish journalist Bruno Blau, who cites the same figures in the New York Jewish publication, Aufbau, of August 13, 1948.

Of these emigrants, approximately 400,000 came from Germany before September 1939. Again, this was acknowledged by no less than the World Jewish Congress in its publication, Unity in Dispersion (p.377), which states: “The majority of the German Jews succeeded in leaving Germany before the War broke out. In addition to the German Jews, about 220,000 of the total 280,000 Austrian Jews had emigrated by September 1939, while from March 1939 onwards, the Institute for Jewish Emigration in Prague had secured the emigration of 260,000 Jews from Czechoslovakia. All told, therefore, only 360,000 Jews remained in Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia after September 1939!”

Meanwhile, an estimated 500,000 Jews from Poland had emigrated prior to the outbreak of the War. This means that the number of Jewish emigrants from other European countries, such as France, Netherlands, Italy and others of Eastern Europe was approximately 120,000.

The exodus of Jews before and during the hostilities, therefore, reduces the number of Jews in Europe to around 5,000,000. In addition to these emigrants, we must also include the number of Jews who fled to the Soviet Union after 1939, and who were later evacuated beyond reach of the German invaders.

In Colliers magazine of June 9, 1945, Freiling Foster, writing of the Jews in Russia, explained that “2,200,000 have migrated to the Soviet Union since 1939 to escape from the Nazis”, but a lower estimate of 1,500,000 is probably more accurate.

Jewish migration to the Soviet Union, therefore, reduces the number of Jews within the sphere of German occupation to only around 3,500,000. From these should be deducted those Jews living in neutral European countries who escaped the consequences of the War.

According to the 1942 World Almanac (p. 594), the number of Jews living in Gibraltar, Britain, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Ireland and Turkey was 413,128. Consequently, a figure of around 3,000,000 Jews in German-occupied Europe is as accurate as the available emigration statistics will allow.

STATISTICAL IMPOSSIBILITY

It is clear, therefore, that the Germans could not possibly have gained control over or exterminated anything like “six million Jews”. To approach the extermination of even half of six million would have meant the liquidation of every Jew living in Europe. And yet it is known that large numbers of Jews were alive in Europe after 1945.

Philip Friemand in Their Brother's Keepers (N.Y., 1957, p. 13) states that “at least a million Jews survived in the very crucible of the Nazi hell”, while the official figure of the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee is 1,559,600. [H: But more than this number ARE COLLECTING MONEY IN DAMAGES.]

Indisputable evidence is also provided by the post-War world Jewish population statistics. The World Almanac of 1938 gives the number of Jews in the world as 16,588,259. But after the War, the New York Times of February 22, 1948 placed the number of Jews in the world at a minimum of 18,700,000.

Quite obviously, these figures make it impossible for the number of Jewish wartime casualties to be measured in anything but thousands.

Fifteen-and-a-half million in 1938—minus the alleged “six million”—leaves nine million. This means that the world's Jews produced seven million births, almost doubling their numbers, in the space of ten years—if we are to seriously accept the New York Times figures. This is patently ridiculous.

NO GAS CHAMBERS?

What about Auschwitz and the gas chambers?

When it was discovered by honest and reputable observers that no “gas chambers” existed in the German camps such as Dachau and Bergen-Belsen, attention was shifted to the eastern camps, particularly Auschwitz. It was claimed that ovens definitely existed there. Unfortunately, the eastern camps were in the Russian zone of occupation, so that no one could verify whether the allegations were true or not.

The Russians refused to allow anyone to see Auschwitz until about ten years after the War, by which time anyone in their place would have been able to alter its appearance and give some plausibility to the claim that “millions of people have been exterminated there”.

The truth about Auschwitz is that it was the largest and most important industrial concentration camp, producing all kinds of material for the war industry. The camp consisted of synthetic coal and rubber plants built by I.G. FARBEN INDUSTRIES [H: Jewish], for whom prisoners supplied labor. [H: Remember “Schindler's List” and the salvation of thousands—as presented by one, Steven Spielberg?] Auschwitz also comprised an agricultural research station with laboratories, plant nurseries and facilities for stockbreeding, as well as Krupp's armament works. This kind of activity was the prime function of the camps.

Accounts of visits by Himmler to the camps show that the main purpose was to inspect and assess their industrial efficiency. This hardly accords with a policy of exterminating prisoners by the millions.

So where did historians get their information about the Holocaust? In The Final Solution (p. 63), Reitlinger admits that information regarding Auschwitz and other eastern camps comes from the post-War communist regimes of Eastern Europe: “The evidence concerning the Polish death camps was mainly taken after the War by Polish State commissions or by the Central Jewish Historical Commission of Poland.”

ANNE FRANK'S DIARY

What about The Diary of Anne Frank?

The truth about the Anne Frank Diary was first revealed in 1959 by the Swedish journal, Fria Ord.

It established that the Jewish novelist Meyer Levin had written the dialogue of the “diary” and was demanding payment for his work in a court action against Otto Frank, the girl's father, who made a fortune from the sale of the book. A condensation of the Swedish articles appeared in the American Economic Council Letter of April 15, 1959.

It is now clear that Zionist Jews lied about the story of six million Jews dying in the Holocaust myth, invented by Hollywood. Even the emaciated prisoners in posters were not Jews but Allied prisoners who were starving because of the blockade of ships around Germany during World War II. The Anglo-American armies prevented any shipment of food into Germany.

JEWISH INFLUENCE

By the way, did you know that both Pope John Paul II and Cardinal Cassidy are Jews? Karol Wojtyla hails from the Jewish region of Odessa, Poland. Cassidy, on the other hand, is a product of Jewish emigration to Australia.

Joseph Roddy of the now-defunct LOOK magazine is right. The Jews have changed Catholic thinking. The prophecy of the Blessed Mother in LaSalette (1846) and Fatima (1917) has been fulfilled.

The Second Vatican Council's Declaration Nostra Aetate, highly ambiguous like most of this Council's documents, draws no distinction between the Jewish religion and the Jewish race, but seems to dwell on the latter. After absolving the Jewish people of the crime of Deicide, the Declaration “deplores the hatred and displays of anti-Semitism directed against the Jews at any time and from any source”.

Now it can be told. The Vatican has changed its religion from Catholicism or Christianity to “Judeo-Christianity”, meaning, “the infiltration of Talmudism in our churches”.

And according to Sigmund Sternberg of London, in his letter to the editor at the International Herald Tribune dated March 24, 1998, Pope John Paul II was the first Pope to visit the Rome Jewish Synagogue in 1986—the first by any pontiff to a Jewish place of worship.

[END OF QUOTING]

Now, I take notice that there was one question involved here which drew forth some statistics and referenced the original question put forth by Mr. San Juan: “Did 6 million Jews really die in WW2?” I find this no more ridiculous as a question than if you asked: “How did 10 thousand come down the hill when only 5 thousand went up the hill?”

But let's now look at rebuttals to this particular article:

[QUOTING, “Dear Editor”, 4/10/98 Businessworld:]

HOLOCAUST EVIDENCE

[This letter comes from:] Mrs. Annabelle Esteban, 36 Chico Street, Barangay Santa Rosa, Pasig City.

Mr. Erick San Juan, author of the article “The Catholic Church and the Holocaust”... has just earned himself full and unqualified membership in the circle of Ernst Zundel and his ilk—members of a lunatic fringe of Holocaust deniers. These Holocaust deniers are, of course, no different from the other lunatics who still proclaim that the world is flat in spite of overwhelming evidence to the contrary.

Mr. San Juan's logic goes like this: It is statistically impossible for the Germans to have systematically killed 6 million Jews. Ergo, the Holocaust did not occur. Maxwell Smart of that comical TV series Get Smart, when confronted with such figures would probably have asked, “Would you settle for 4 million Jews killed?” The point is whether the number be 4, 5, or 6 million Jews killed is irrelevant. Any of these figures is still a large number of people!

[H: Ah, but—the question raised was “Did 6 million Jews really die in WW II?” and, therefore, there could be no “light” consideration of 4 or 5 million, for it makes no reference to THE question at all. Mr. San Juan did not even raise a question as to whether or not there WAS A HOLOCAUST WITH PEOPLE KILLED but only referenced the claim of “6 million”, so how does this writer draw her own conclusions? How many of you want to lay bets on this person possibly being married to a Jewish businessperson? This is the prevailing way Jewish businessmen move into the Philippines! (!!!) And, of those who bring scams and outright fraudulent “offerings” into the Philippines, the majority are Jewish by religion and, they say, “race”. We make no reference to EITHER. Another interesting thing is that many women marry Philippine nationals for the same REASON, especially if the men hold a “status” position. This marriage gives “dual” citizenship and is a very convenient thing, especially for American Jews.]

Historians know that the Holocaust happened by using convergence of evidence [H: Say what?]—a method used by scientists in such fields as Archeology and Paleontology. Mr. San Juan seems to think that if he can find a single tiny crack in the Holocaust story, the entire structure will collapse. This is a fundamental flaw in his reasoning because the Holocaust was not a single event; it was thousands upon thousands of events in thousands upon thousands of places and proved by millions upon millions of bits of data that converge into one conclusion. The Holocaust cannot be disproved by minor errors or inconsistencies here and there for the simple reason that the Holocaust was never proved by these lone bits of data in the first place! [H: !!!!!? Will the rocket scientists please stand up and tell us what would happen if your calculations are off by some half-billion or so?]

The convergence of proof that the Holocaust did occur can be found in: 1) captured Nazi documents that mention the statistics of the destruction of European Jewry (e.g. the Korherr Reports), or discuss the final solution to the Jewish problem; 2) the testimony of several thousand eyewitness prisoners who saw mass killing in the death chambers and the piles of bodies;

[H: Actually, there has never been found even ONE EYEWITNESS.] 3) the testimony of former Nazis, such as Adolph Eichmann, who participated in the genocide; 4) the documents at Yad Vashem, in Israel, [H: Boy, now that's a good source.] which record the names and deaths of more than three million Jews; [H: But NOT 6 million, and the point is "six million".] and 5) the photographs—and physical existence of the death camps themselves, along with the uncovered evidence of human remains.

The evidence is so overwhelming that it would require more time and space to detail than anyone of us could spare at this time. Suffice it to state that Christians (Hitler was a Catholic and the German nation was mostly Protestant) have been killing Jews for many centuries now. Hitler only put Germanic method and efficiency into this genocide. [H: It gets hard to tell on which side this person might be, since there is no rational statement among those in this paragraph. Hitler was Jewish—by "birth" parentage and according to the rules of the Talmud.]

Mr. San Juan writes unmindful of the serious consequence of his bigotry, prepared, it seems, to revive in his zealousness the deadly consequences of the Protocols of the Elders of Zion (translated in English as the Jewish peril), a proven hoax, [H: Well, now we are getting there, aren't we? I don't believe Mr. San Juan even mentioned anything about anything such as Protocols of Zion.] responsible nevertheless, for inspiring in Hitler's Germany an inflammatory excuse for the mass murder of Jews.

[END OF QUOTING]

Now, the next one is even more interesting in that it comes from DR. WOLFGANG GOTTELMANN, the Ambassador, Federal Republic of Germany. Now why do you suppose there would be an Ambassador TO THE PHILIPPINES who is a German Jew? You have problems, WORLD!

[QUOTING, BUSINESSWORLD, 4/21/98:]

I am surprised, and actually appalled, that your paper which the Embassy normally holds in high esteem has devoted, in its April 8 edition, almost half a page to an article that flatly denies the Holocaust. [H: NOTE AGAIN THE TOTAL LACK OF FACTUAL REFERENCE.]

International historical research has established the facts of the Holocaust, including the figure of approximately six million Jewish victims, long ago and beyond any doubt. Mr. San Juan's argumentation reflects ignorance and malice, to say the least. [H: Oh, indeed. I could point out that this man actually refers to "...historical research has established the facts...". THIS INDICATES A TOTAL FABRICATION OF THE ORTHODOX PRESENTATION OF HISTORICAL DATA—FOR RESEARCH WILL PROVE MR. SAN JUAN TO HAVE THE FACTS, AND THE PRESENTATIONS OTHERWISE ARE TOTALLY FABRICATED.]

The whole article is an insult to the victims and survivors of the Holocaust and perpetuates the discrimination and persecution which the Jews have suffered under the Nazis.

Let me add that in Germany the denial of the Holocaust is punishable as a criminal offense under the German Penal Code. I wonder how such tasteless fabrication could find its way into your paper?

[END OF QUOTING]

[H: AND, BY THE WAY: WHAT IN HECK IS THE "FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF GERMANY"?]

And now, to leave you with the best yet:

[QUOTING:]

Atty. ROBERTO R. BARRALES

President, GVA Israel-Philippines Gospel Foundation, Inc. P.O. Box 2609, Central Post Office, QC. (Quezon City, Phil.) [H: This one is almost too much even for me.]

DEAR EDITOR

Biblical Truths

Erick San Juan's article, "The Catholic Church and the Holocaust" is a classic example of modern-day anti-Semitism, using Holocaust denial as its essential thread. I wonder what this anti-Semitic article was doing in a business publication such as Businessworld [H: ah—er—a—hummmn].

I would just like to remind Mr. San Juan, who even questions the pronouncements of the highest authority of the Catholic Church, about several Biblical truths, which, if he is truly a Christian, he already knows, understands and adheres to:

[H: Can't let you miss this, readers: This man is going to give backup for his "christian" authority on something out of ISAIAH. This is an OLD Testament book, eons before the fact of a "Jesus" Christ or those nice "Jews".]

1. Christ's death on the cross, which he unfortunately calls Deicide and for which he blames the Jews, is really the fulfillment of the prophecy regarding the promised Messiah, his death and resurrection, as stated among others in Isaiah 53:4-12: "He has borne our griefs and carried our sorrows, yet we esteemed Him stricken by God and afflicted, but He was wounded for our transgressions; He was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement for our peace was upon Him, and by His stripes we are healed... and He bore the sin of many..."

[H: Get ready to puke, dear ones:]

Christ's death is, therefore, OUR GAIN—yours and mine—for through his death, we received forgiveness of sins, healing, eternal life, prosperity and the abundant life that He promised in John 10:10, as well as every other promise that He made in the Bible. [H: I am here stopped to note a "proverb" out of a fortune cookie from this very day: "A winner makes commitments. A LIAR MAKES PROMISES."] Hebrews 9:22 further states that "without the shedding of the blood, there would be no remission of sins." [H: The facts are that through the shedding of blood—THE SINS ARE COMMITTED.]

2. God in His infinite mercy includes us Gentiles in His great plan of salvation. [H: That spells it out pretty directly, doesn't it? Gentile? Jew? I thought you would never notice!]

Ephesians 3:12-13 puts it more clearly, "...remember that at that time you were separate from Christ, excluded from citizenship in Israel and foreigners to the covenants of the promise, without hope and without God, in the world. But now in Christ Jesus, you who were once far away have been brought near through the blood of Christ." Christ was originally sent for the Israelites (see Luke 15:24). But because of the Jews' rejection of Christ, "to provoke them to jealousy, salvation has come to the Gentiles". (Romans 11:1) So, shouldn't we thank the Jews instead of cursing them? Because of their disobedience and rejection of and have them made partakers of the covenant God made through Abraham.

[H: Does anyone reading this remember Mr. San Juan "cursing" anyone, including the Jews? Is this some kind of selective reading interpretation?]

3. In Genesis 12:3, it says, "I will bless who bless you, and whoever curses you I will curse; And all the people on earth will be blessed through you." (Genesis 12:3, NIV) This is what the Lord's covenant with Abraham, the father of Isaac, the father of Jacob, or Israel, who has also become the father of Christians through the blood of Jesus. Shall we therefore curse Israel and the Jews and be cursed, or shall we choose blessings? [H: Anyone who can figure that one out suitably, please feel free to write—to Mr. San Juan.]

4. The Lord commanded us to pray for Israel and to come to their comfort. In Psalms 102:3, it says, "You will arise and have compassion on Zion Jerusalem, for it is time to show favor to her; the appointed time has come." Then in Psalms 122:6, it says, "pray for the peace of Jerusalem; they shall prosper that love thee." "Comfort, comfort my people says your God. Speak tenderly to Jerusalem and cry out to her, that her warfare is ended; that her iniquity is pardoned," according to Isaiah 40:1.

The Catholic Church could not have done better than what the author calls "absolving the Jewish people of Deicide", and nothing could be more timely than the Declaration of the Australian Cardinal, "deploring the hatred and displays of anti-Semitism directed against Jews at any time and from any source. It is about time we Christians rid ourselves of this hatred and racism, if we truly are of God, who is Love personified, and if we truly understand the biblical significance of our relationship with Israel. [H: GOD IS FIRST "TRUTH" PERSONIFIED.]

Don't you think we should commend the Pope for his visit to the Rome Jewish Synagogue? Praise God that he is breaking barriers that separate people and bridging the gap in the name of God's love for Jews and Gentiles alike! Praise God for the Pope's understanding of the biblical significance of the Judeo-Christian relationship!

[END OF QUOTING]

What I think is that the whole bunch of you should go read the Jewish Talmud and, again, those old Protocols of Zion and look carefully at where you sit on your hotseat RIGHT NOW. "JUDEO" and "CHRISTIAN" are at opposing ends of the extreme. YOU CANNOT HAVE A CONNECTION OF "JUDEO-CHRISTIAN" IN MEANING. AND THAT SIMPLY IS THE WAY IT IS.

This last writer has obviously studied NEITHER.

And, look again at where you find yourself TODAY, year 2000, and see how far you have come and in which direction of travel.

Gold And Other Interesting Things

(Part 6B)

AH, WHERE TO BEGIN

Hatonn—In the bewildering world of newspapers and electronic networks, where do you even begin with only a handful of editors and people willing to do this rather thankless task of information-gathering? Would it not be wondrous to be able to simply have a directive and a single focus and move ever toward completion? Life doesn't work that way, though, does it? Very few have the privilege of simply plowing through on a topic or waiting for the "creative bug" to bite each day.

TUBERCULOSIS

There is big news today from the WHO (World Health Organization), in that the epidemic of TREATMENT-RESISTANT TB is all but out of control. The numbers with active and debilitating disease are phenomenal and those who are carriers (or carry within themselves)—yet without active symptoms—are into the high 80-95 percent range. And public health care? All but non-existent.

This is not just an Asian malady, my friends—it is GLOBAL but simply not recognized as TB. If you can get some treatment for your upper respiratory disease, it is never noticed. IT IS THERE WAITING TO SPRING FORTH THE MINUTE THE DRUGS FAIL TO WORK.

And then there is the problem of health habits to further plague the lands. People are so careless as to the welfare of others that when you go into the cities and villages, the people handle their irritations with the greatest of ease—they hack, cough, choke and spit all over everything, while a sneeze will do the most work in one giant scatter.

In the cities, you are breathing up to two-thirds less oxygen than the basic need of human intake. That compromise is then compounded by the pollution from particles that cannot be cleaned from the lungs. It is serious time, species! Oh, well, I'm sure the WTO will take good care of you—just like they did with AIDS. When you get the rest of your trees cut down, you are finished, chelas.

That old giggle-bit about aliens coming to your globe for upgrading their own species has to be THE chuckle of the cosmos.

SPEAKING OF AIDS

The U.S. troops have landed in great force for the games and already the population of the Philippines is quivering in their boots. With the games and all the U.S. soldiers, there are having to be new regulations passed out AND ENFORCED—guess what! "NO CONDOM, NO SEX." So it is expected that there will actually be a surge in the rubber industry, which is a major product over in Southeast Asia. You do remember, don't you, that rubber does grow on trees!

And why all this protection? Because of the fear of infection of the Philippines from the U.S. visitors! "You've come a long way, baby!" as the cigarette ad reminds.

CIGARETTE AD REMINDERS

There is a movie I want all, who will, to see; it is called The Insider or something pretty similar. It is about those nice cigarettes and tobacco products you puff and chew. But the point I want to make is not on the product topic, for we have beaten that to death pretty much prior to now and Dr. Coleman did a real number of revealing the truth to you several years ago.

I want you to take a GOOD, HARD LOOK at what is required in this world to DO THE RIGHT THING! People who present truth are battered, beaten, threatened, slain and lose everything—IF THEY SIMPLY STAND FORTH AND DO THE RIGHT THING. We have experienced it—from being moved from a very nice standard of living to absolute poverty—just for trying to do the RIGHT THING.

People like Mark P. and Cathy, Colemans, Stich, Wean—oh, on and on, including the Ekkers—have paid so dearly for simply offering information and DOING THE RIGHT THINGS IN TRUTH AND INTEGRITY. What is baffling is how or why they continue the struggle. But where do you think you will be if somebody DOES NOT shift this incredible mudslide around some way?

We find in our own little former circle of participants that the evil little games just grow and feed one upon the one before. As players are named, it turns out that others are losing greatly because they, like Ekkers, paid THROUGH a party to ensure house payments, etc. got made—but ah, they didn't, and somehow 'twixt payment and receiving of same, the HOUSE WAS SOLD, literally. Now the expenses of more court struggles loom ahead. Well, we find more problems. We have a "wonderful friend" who has been dear to all of us, who lately cut his hand and had to be off work to recover. He struggled and struggled to keep up his car payments so that he would have at least that property when he was well enough to get around again. Ah, but the person he paid to make the payments kept the last few months payments for self (hard times all the way around since Ekkers couldn't pay everybody—like the whole Spectrum crowd and friends) and now he loses his last possession, as the car is taken and the payment to date of over $21,000 is GONE. Is this intentional hurt? No, but it sure doesn't ease the loss much, does it?

Then comes the next realization that of the gold holdings (called the Overton Gold), we find through the latest filed documents that there has been total collusion with Abbott, Horton and Green throughout the Texas Court dealings. We also find that it was being manipulated—before we caught it two years ago—that participating parties who worked in the legal group had literally set it up so they would split 50% of the sum

AS BONUS for services. Oh, they are beginning to now tell on themselves and each other, as the net gets drawn tighter and tighter by their own pulling, pushing and cover-ups.

Can my people "take it"? Would somebody give us another way to go? These people took the money and then complained about misuse of the funds. Would you not agree that something must be done to rectify this ungodly affront to right actions? When people put their very lives on the line—only to have bits and pieces of their very bodies and lives chopped away—is it not somehow unacceptable to just pray and pray for God to save you? WHY WOULD GOD DO THAT? IT IS TIME YOU REALLY CONSIDER THIS POINT!

May we please, Dharma, move on with the topic underway so that we can better see the passage and players involved.

CHAPTER 15

DENIALS AND MORE DENIALS

"They found gold in Napindan," Craig Nelson tells a couple of reporters from Ang Pilipino Ngayon (APN), Rufino Miranda and Al Pedroche, in a telephone interview held on April 12, 1989. Nelson, an American who lives on the island of Saipan, was a major investor and the Assistant Project Manager of the Napindan Dam Gold Recovery Project.

Why had Charles McDougald never mentioned anything about Napindan in his two books?

In the same interview, Nelson expressed his willingness to help the Government recover all of the 340 tons of gold bars dug up in the area, even if this would mean having to make personal appearances in the halls of the Philippine Congress.

Nelson vehemently denied allegations that he executed a "second affidavit" disavowing his previous exposé of 340 tons of gold recovered in Napindan, worth about $4.5 billion at that time. According to him, the only document that bore his signature had something to do with the full payment of a drill rig, which he had purchased for $150,000. The rig, subsequently used in the Napindan project in Cainta (Rizal), became the object of much talk when Nelson sent a fax message (to no. 415-883-3473) which read:

"I hereby authorize Atty. Ted Hume and Kevin Kinzler to be my representatives concerning the hydraulic drill I purchased in September 1988 (CLLDM-115). This drill was placed in the name of a company formed and owned by Mario Ongkiko, CHARLES MCDUGALD, and the brother-in-law of Emmanuel Soriano."

Nelson stipulated in the message that he was to be paid immediately the amount of $75,000. Otherwise, the rig would remain under his ownership until the balance of $75,000 was paid in full.

[H: Can we top that? Sure, as the things people do are ever increasingly ridiculous. Our people had two forklift construction machines. One was very large and the other smaller. They were purchased outright for thousands of dollars, for use at the farm and elsewhere where heavy equipment might be needed. The purchase was to meet a need of the owner at the time. So, as time has gone by and the operation began to fall apart—after the tractor was totally ruined by THE vandals of the day—they were used as tractors to pull discs, to weed the now-unproductive fields.

So, Charles made a deal to rent the machines and when one broke down, it came back. The other was rented to the construction crew of one of the people in Tehachapi—to take to Los Angeles for a personal construction project.

The rent was to be $1,000-$1,200 per month. NOTHING was ever paid. And, further, when the equipment was badly needed, our people were told that there had been some repairs made so there would be no rent payments and, further, that the equipment belonged to the contractor “anyway”. It is still in Los Angeles, still needed in Tehachapi, and apparently there will be another legal hassle to get the thing. Oh, well? Now, is this good business or what? The party with whom the money exchanged hands turns out to be the most private, trusted party in the loop. Do you REALLY blame Ekkers for wanting OUT?

We can go a step further: After Christmas a year ago, the Millers loaned money to this same group of players for catching up salaries, etc. at CONTACT and to pay the Editors (Young, Martin, et al.). Fine so far? Well, the Millers then asked Ekkers to sign a personal guarantee on that loan. Now, note, all of you readers, EKKERS GOT NOTHING AND WERE PAYING ALL THE TRAVEL EXPENSES IN ADDITION.

And yes, indeed, readers, THESE ARE THE SAME PEOPLE WHO CLAIM TO SERVE GOD, NATION AND PATRIOTS IN GOODNESS! NOW, TELL ME AGAIN WHY GOD SHOULD ANSWER ALL YOUR PRAYERS FOR ABUNDANCE? WHEN YOU WILL SCREW YOUR VERY PARTNERS AND LIE, CHEAT AND LITERALLY “STEAL” FROM THEM—WHY SHOULD GOD HELP YOU GAIN ANYTHING?]

Ang Pilipino Ngayon was the first publication to have exposed the alleged gold recovery in Napindan on March 29, 1989, based on the three-page sworn statement made by Craig Nelson, which was annexed by Charles McCubbins, Project Manager of International Precious Metals, Inc. (IPMI) in his letter to Executive Secretary Catalino Macaraig, requesting Malacanang to “dig deeper into Nelson’s story”. This was followed by ABS-CBN’s anchorman Noli de Castro’s interview with Nelson over DZMM Radio. In their conversation, Nelson reiterated his preparedness and willingness to testify on everything he claimed, despite the denial made by National Security Adviser Emmanuel Soriano. Soriano branded Nelson’s story “a big joke”.

No one from the Aquino Administration admitted participation in any gold recovery. Two years later, Philippine Newsday reporter Barbara Fabian dropped an unexpected bombshell. She revealed that President Corazon Aquino’s relatives were in Hawaii in 1988 to ask the former strongman for “eighty percent of an alleged gold hoard worth $25 billion, in exchange for permission to return home”. The deal, however, fell through. Mrs. Imelda Marcos confirmed this information in an interview aired over GMA Channel 7’s program, Business Today.

When President Ferdinand Marcos finally agreed to give the authority to sell the gold, the relatives asked for 80 percent of the earnings, with 20 percent going to the Marcoses. The former First Lady further added that “There exists a document containing the proposal for a $20 billion-$5 billion sharing agreement of the proceeds from the sale of the gold.”

Asked by Marcos how much money would go to the Government, the relatives said, “Nothing”. Marcos then insisted that his share should go to the Philippine Government. “There are (also) documents to prove this deal,” Mrs. Marcos pointed out. “Some were even signed by Ambassador Emmanuel Pelaez.”

Pelaez, however, denied having seen such a document, much less having signed anything pertaining to it, in a separate telephone interview from Washington, D.C., with television host Ricardo Puno. “This is either a fantastic story or the product of somebody’s fertile imagination,” Pelaez said.

But on May 22, 1991, Tarlac Rep. Jose Cojuangco, Jr., younger brother of President Aquino, faced newsmen in a press conference and virtually admitted, for the first time, the truth behind Mrs. Marcos’ testimony. He confessed his involvement in Operation Big Bird launched in 1986 to recover part of the Marcos wealth stashed in Swiss banks.

Cojuangco was also mentioned in the report submitted by Rep. Victorico Chaves of Misamis Oriental, Chairman of the House Committee on Accountability, and said to have been briefed on the recovery operation.

Sen. Jovito Salonga, who was held responsible for having aborted the operation, likewise mentioned Cojuangco as having authorized the appropriation of a twenty percent commission for Michael de Guzman, who carried out the secret operation together with General Jose Almonte, then Chief of the Economic Intelligence and Investigation Bureau (EIIB).

According to Daily Globe’s Miguel Genovea who covered the press conference, Almonte and Rep. Dante Tinga of Taguig-Pateros disputed claims made by Salonga that the latter had no knowledge about the operation, that he did not abort it, and that the whole operation was a “big sting”.

Chaves overturned Salonga’s statement by presenting a letter from one of the Swiss lawyers hired by the Philippine Government, which clearly indicated how Salonga and then Secretary of Justice Sedfrey Ordonez had instructed him (the Swiss lawyer) to “stop the operation”. Thus, Salonga could not feign innocence—since his very own people had been regularly updating him on the progress of the entire operation.

Denials, denials and many more denials.

CHAPTER 16

AGENT REINER JACOBI

Reporting on his Swiss gold-hunting mission, PCGG Chairman David Castro told President Aquino on June 20, 1992 that he had finally confirmed the existence of some $5 billion worth of gold owned by former President Ferdinand Marcos at the Kloten Airport warehouse and other places in Switzerland. His informants included Reiner Jacobi, an ex-PCGG agent, who had been arrested in Germany for illegally tapping into Swiss bank computers, and an American lawyer based in Geneva.

Castro reported that two sets of prospective buyers from Monaco and Rome had shown him documents and footage of the gold hoard totaling 325 tons. However, another newspaper reported that Castro saw the gold only on film clips shown on German television.

Castro told Malacanang reporters that the same sources had said that the gold was minted at the Central Bank minting plant, based on their files, which they later turned over to the PCGG. However, another news report claimed that Castro had based his findings on the deposition of several trustees of Mr. Marcos, three of whom are Filipinos and the remaining three, foreigners.

According to Jacobi, Adoracion Edralin Lopez, a relative of Marcos, claimed to be one of the signatories when the gold was deposited in the Kloten Airport bonded warehouse in 1983. She likewise claimed that the other two signatories were a Filipino and a foreigner, both living outside Switzerland, but did not reveal their names. The gold was deposited at the Airport to avoid having to declare and register the entire list at Customs. Lopez added that Marcos rented the space for ten years until 1993.

Lopez flew to Zurich sometime in 1990, a year after Marcos’ death, to inquire about the gold. This was how she discovered that her name had been deliberately deleted as signatory, without her permission. “Her objections at the bank fell on deaf ears,” writes McDougald. “She knew the power of the people she was dealing with, so she came home to Manila to try and think of a way to reclaim her rights. Eventually, she and Mama Mary crossed paths.”

Mama Mary reportedly has been a close friend of Mrs. Marcos since her teens. Her real name is Maria I. Gosilatar, but Imelda fondly calls her the “Midnight Lady” because of her unusual habit of visiting the First Lady at ungodly and late hours. She claimed to have once had possession of the “Blue Book” which allegedly contained a complete record of all the Marcos gold shipments to different banks, with their corresponding account numbers.

A year after Castro submitted his report, a London-based television network reported the very same old story about the Kloten gold, with slightly differing sets of figures. A report by British Channel 4’s Dispatches program indicated 1,240 tons of gold, worth about $15.5 billion, stored in a bonded warehouse at Zurich’s Kloten Airport.

“We are not storing the Marcos gold,” says Walter Michel, a manager at Freilager AG, the storage company named by British Television. “I wish we were, because it would be great business,” he added.

The program, likewise, quoted one gold dealer to have said, “Its very existence can’t be admitted at the moment due to a deal between Imelda and the Philippine Government that she would return the booty.” The hoard, which would be more than double the gold holdings of the Bank of England, is now reported to be in the custody of major Swiss banks.

Rhona O’Connell, a bullion analyst of T. Hoare and Company, said, “The sources of any Marcos gold hoard were usually assumed to be purloined Philippine production and Japanese war booty. The Philippine Government had been buyers of gold from 1978 to 1980 at an average of about $620 per ounce. It then became a distressed seller at around $440 in 1985.”

Just when the Philippine Government was finally closing in on the Marcos gold, another cloud of mystery surrounded the PCGG office. Magtanggol Gunigundo, the man who took over from Castro, discovered that some documents on the Marcos gold were missing. The new PCGG boss suggested sabotage, because the discovery of the missing papers coincided with the discovery of four paper shredders situated in four offices at the commission. Gunigundo found the presence of the shredders highly questionable.

[H: OK, sweet brethren, regarding the missing files and documents from the offices of Phoenix Institute, etc.: Check out the fact that the very night of the lock-up of the CONTACT OFFICES, Dr. Al had come specifically to borrow a paper shredder because something was wrong or burned out on the one “they” had been using. Also note that the one in the office complex was ALSO burned out! It pays to keep up with little clues like this when you find missing the very files necessary in the legal ongoing confrontations. Files and property are GONE and everyone with access has denied any information, although the Spectrum bunch and watchers—PUBLISHED DOCUMENTS FROM THOSE VERY FILES!]

“I came to realize that the shredders could [have been used to destroy] vital documents, which can otherwise be taken out or removed from the office,” he said.

Noemi Alacala, a staff writer of the Daily Globe, reported that among the missing documents were the files of Reiner Jacobi, the commission’s controversial consultant on intelligence and security.

Jacobi reportedly was the first to discover the gold through industrial espionage. A German court refused to extradite him due to insufficient evidence.

Earlier, the Philippine Government set in motion an investigation on the alleged attempt by a group claiming to represent it, and allegedly commissioned to withdraw hundreds of millions of dollars worth of gold from a Swiss bank in London.

Castro, however, pointed out that before any gold could be withdrawn, “the consent and participation of at least four unknown Marcos trustees would be needed”. Obviously, not one of the trustees was a part of the group which attempted to rip off the gold deposits.

CHAPTER 17

WHERE’S THE GOLD?

“Where’s our gold?” Julie Amargo, the indefatigable protectress of consumers’ rights and welfare in this country must have asked the nagging question several times in her newspaper articles.

“The people have the right to know,” Amargo insists. She’s absolutely right. Article VI, Section 6 of the Philippine Constitution states: “The right of the people to information on matters of public concern shall be recognized. Access to official records and documents pertaining to official acts, transactions or decisions shall be afforded the citizens subject to such limitations as may be provided by law.”

Amargo’s invocation of constitutional rights was a reaction to the sudden replacement by President Marcos of Central Bank Governor Gregorio Licaros, in favor of Jaime Laya. Amid the cry of protests from CB officials and employees, Licaros was unceremoniously eased out of his position on January 15, 1981. “Many say that it was IMF pressure”, says Amargo, “but I am more inclined to believe that it had got to do with our gold.”

To Filipino consumers, Licaros was some sort of a demigod who built several vital structures such as the CB building, the PICC complex and the DBP building, all of which are monuments to his foresight and vision. Licaros was a true statesman, who saw to it that the welfare of Filipinos always came first and foremost. “Gifted with an executive ability that is unmatched up to this time, he was the real consumer hero who did not allow himself to be a puppet,” adds Amargo.

Licaros openly opposed World Bank-IMF impositions. During the oil crisis in the 1970s, he was pressured to sell our gold reserves to finance the importation of crude oil. Instead, Licaros chose to deposit our gold abroad, in case the credit of the Philippine Government was placed in serious doubt. “Our deposits of gold abroad served as an umbrella so that when IMF-World Bank conditionalities and impositions were not palatable, Governor Licaros ran to these banks where our gold was deposited for help. Such a strong psychologically planned buffer held us in good stead in the Licaros years,” Amargo explains.

Note: This was the reason why the late President code-named his last will and testament, The Umbrella, specifically appropriating 80 percent of all his earthly possession to the people of the Republic of the Philippines through a Marcos Foundation, all these acts cloaked in secrecy. This document now being controlled by the duly authorized yet undisclosed key personalities is different from that being exhibited lately by Mrs. Imelda Marcos at the Newsmakers Forum at the Hotel Sofitel on March 26, 1998. This personally handwritten will of the late President was willingly executed to assure the people of the Republic that it is the strongman’s intention to make them truly benefit from his funds, consequently vindicating his name. At the time, there was so much pressure from both the banking Mafia and the Trilateral Commission that Marcos had to let Licaros resign.

On one unexpected occasion, Licaros confided to Amargo how he developed a nervous and acidic stomach from all the American and other outside pressures. And these came at a particular time when intrigue against his person was relentless. “Julie, when I am gone, fight for the Filipinos,” Licaros said. “We are actually sitting on a mountain of gold; hindi dapat maghirap ang Pilipino; my hands are tied, and I am too old to battle the giants.” With the parting words, Licaros handed Amargo important detailed data and whispered, “These will prove how I have tried to manage well the monetary system of the country despite tremendous pressures. I have fought devaluation because it is the poor man’s Waterloo. If I had my way, every Filipino should be able to stand on his own two feet.”

Amargo waited for the proper time to use her secret weapon. It came when Jaime Laya committed the serious mistake of accusing the Licaros Administration of overstating our international reserves by $600 million when, in truth and in fact, it was the other way around. “Our gold reserves appeared in the Central Bank records at historical cost, which was $35 or less per ounce and during the Licaros years, at one time, the price of gold even soared up to more than $800 an ounce,” Amargo counters. This led to Amargo’s exposé of the gold in the latter part of 1983, leaving Marcos no choice but to transfer the erring Laya to the Department of Education, Culture and Sports.

In her now famous Open Letter to Laya, the feisty woman activist raised the following important question: “Considering that the Central Bank continues buying gold up to September 30, 1983, a total of $848 million worth of gold was demonetized per CB official records, what happened, Governor, to the rest of the gold deposits of December 31, 1980, the gold deposits of the Central Bank indicating location and number of ounces, are as follows: (1) Federal Reserve Bank of New York, ‘874,651,970’; (2) Bank of Nova Scotia, ‘112,429,702’; (3) Bank of England, ‘68,910,381’; (4) N.M. Rothschild, ‘72,071,898’; (5) Trade Development Bank of Geneva, ‘202,040,819’?”

Amargo went on to expose the interlocking directorates involving Far East Bank & Trust Co., Arthur Andersen & Co., Societe Cooperative and SGV, concluding that “Whichever way the wind blows, we are at the mercy of the SGV.”

“Our international reserves have gone down so low to the extent that a new Central Bank Authority is being created so that investigators and researchers cannot anymore follow the trail of our gold after the Licaros years,” laments Amargo. “I know the real story why Licaros was forced to resign despite another six-year term... I know the people who intrigued with Marcos to have Licaros booted out of the Central Bank. They are very visible among the ‘Mafias’, and they are afraid that my exposé on the SGV, AA & Co., and the Societé Coop will certainly blow the lid off a situation that is hidden from the public eye.” Maybe so. But the question remains unanswered: Where is our gold?

Since the early ’80s, the Trilateral Commission had exerted exceptional pressure on the late President Ferdinand Marcos into finally concurring to convert our Central Bank into a Central Monetary Authority. This would have been another masterpiece by the international banking Mafia to specifically gain full control over the Marcos gold scattered in different banks worldwide, particularly in the U.S. However, the wily Marcos immediately discerned and quietly detected the ulterior motives of the globalists. He instead made his snappy move to protect the Central Bank by making the good Governor Licaros become the convenient fall-guy to effect the conversion process.

The Trilateral Commission attempted to repeat the same modus operandi with the Ramos Administration and they almost succeeded. Upon personally learning about the treacherous scheme, I immediately contacted the office of the Presidential Commission on Good Government (PCGG), headed by Chairman Magtangol Gunigundo, and the office of the National Security Adviser, Jose Almonte. At that time, I still did not know these gentlemen that well but, out of a strong sense of duty, I knew I had no other recourse. Even my most basic instincts led me to decide immediately to inform them about what I personally uncovered to be the factual reasons behind the banking Mafia’s move to convert our Central Bank into a Central Monetary Authority, to be controlled by private bankers. The reason behind the rush move to create the CMA was to gain full control over the Marcos gold with the Central Bank’s imprimatur. Through the conversion, the global bankers would ultimately own the FM gold (with CB seals). It was but a dream turned into another nightmare for a while for these bankers.

They can never touch the Marcos gold kept in their banks because the CB seal markings make them the property of the Republic of the Philippines, while every movement of the gold is carefully monitored by international exchanges like the London Metal Exchange.

Unbelievable as it may seem, a friendly foreign intelligence officer claims that the reason behind President John F. Kennedy’s assassination was the late American President’s insistence to convert the Federal Reserve Bank of America into a Central Bank entirely controlled by the U.S. Government. This reportedly caught the ire of Corporate America, which controls the U.S. banking system through the Federal Reserve Bank.

The American situation was the reverse of the Marcos situation, but with still the same fixation—gold control.

[END OF QUOTING CHAPTER 17]

I would like to close this part, please, so that we don’t lose so much to computer interruptions as might happen in readjustment of furniture and tables in the room.

I find it quite amusing that you people miss the most obvious of all things happening in your world around you. Let us look at the price of oil and the big BLAME toward OPEC. Well, that might be interesting if it were not true that the major holders of oil might well be production from distant oil fields—but the biggest “getters” of the wealth of that oil are those such as Bush, The Queen of England, etc. DO YOU ACTUALLY FORGET THAT THESE OPEC MEMBERS ARE ALSO MADE UP OF THESE COUNTRIES—WITH A MAJOR PART OF IT BEING THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA!?! Ah, indeed, my dears: WAKE UP THINE SLEEPY EYES.

GOD, COUNTRY, AND WHAT'S GOING ON?

Hatonn—How do we count the ways of life and living?

This is an early writing in which I hope to make my own self as clear as possible.

And, if you hope for more, CREATE more! Do what you can NOW with what you NOW have.

We, you or me, walk a brief while in what is recognized as a visible, sensing realization made manifest by ourselves—within OUR OWN INDIVIDUAL CREATION. YOU are IN YOUR DREAM, YOUR VISION, YOUR CREATION! And how wondrous it is when our dreams as individuals find placement within the dreams of others for whom we care greatly and deeply. Although those “extras” on the set of life itself have purpose, we have, often, no real consciousness of same. We find that “memories” are NEVER gone and yet mostly unremembered, for whatever reason the mind has for placing things into categories of recognized time and space evaluations.

To Wally Gentleman, who is one of my most elder friends from so long ago in your quantum recognition of space and time that it is useless to consider that which relates to any other than him and me in this particular focus:

I recognize Wally as serving one of the very most fundamental purposes for our ongoing realization as any man who has walked your Earth in this time of evolution. We are all interconnected to the extent that without one of our pieces, we are at great disadvantage for positive conclusion of any segment of our journey, and sometimes, Wally, it is simply asking the correct question that allows man to see and finally KNOW what this illusion of experiencing living is all about—and the fragmented snippets that manifest in what is called “experience”.

What is GOD? Ah, the question asked by even those who know very well WHAT IS GOD. But until it can be expressed in a way in which comprehension AND realization can relate, it has little meaning other than as a concept but without much reality.

God is that which is the POTENTIAL, 100%, OF THAT WHICH IS YOU. YOU are the representation of that which IS CREATOR. Do you reflect well that which is God experiencing? Does this God have a name so that you don't have to say “Hey, you there...”? For what purpose is either God or you? AND, WHAT IS THAT LINEAR “ENDING” CALLED DEATH?

In reverse: THERE IS NO DEATH; there is only a refreshing of all that IS into an even greater potential than that which you have yet pulled into your being. And to example in parable, perhaps also applicable to Wally, we will speak of producers and directors of visual messages, who put to recording devices of some kind or other—the teaching through visual perception. This is the most intense form of the learning process, for the vision imprinted will always be present in any energy space or dimension in which soul finds itself. Realization is that which is “recognized” in some form of “consciousness”, even if the registering of same is less than fully conscious—as in picking up a book and actually seeing the words or pictures. But let me assure you that you have no way to simply look at a picture, for only the MIND sees the vision and that vision will be as varied as are the number of minds viewing it.

Then comes the real clincher to this perception: When you then witness, with your eyes, the “real thing”—as in a great and well recognized landmark such as Mt. Fuji—what do you really SEE: the vision, the picture or the thing itself? Now, think carefully: DOES IT MATTER? WHY? WILL YOUR VIEWING CHANGE “IT”? WILL YOUR REALIZATION CHANGE YOU? ALL OF THESE THINGS ARE, OF COURSE, YES INDEED, FOR “CHANGE” IS ALL THERE IS IN THIS ONGOING MOTION PICTURE OF VISUAL “MOVEMENT”—WITHOUT ANY MOVEMENT AT ALL OTHER THAN THE ENERGY PULSE-FREQUENCY AND COLOR OF LIGHT FLOWING FROM SOURCE.

Therefore, do you view the mountain or the filmstrip? Do you see the mountain in your mind or with your eyes viewing the mountain on location, the film with likeness, or can you, sitting wherever you are at this moment OTHER THAN AT MT. FUJI, see it? THAT IS REALITY. The mountain itself may well come and go, melt or blow—but that which is within the mind is what IS.

So, what is MIND? MIND IS GOD CREATOR, by whatever definition you might wish to call what you consider BIGGER, HIGHER, GREATER—THAN SELF! God is not bigger, higher OR greater than self. For, as a reflection of the Energy being of God, YOU are all there is in the oneness of REALITY. Your visions are but reflections within your own self, which is a collage of everything in your life, which is, like it or not, only in the NOW of the moment at hand. Therefore, whether YOU be two years of age or 102 years of age, there is no difference—EXCEPT IN REALIZATION AND CONSCIOUSNESS.

THE MOST IMPORTANT THING TO REMEMBER AS YOU NEAR AN AGE WHERE YOU “EXPECT” TO BEGIN TO FAIL IN HUMAN PHYSICAL TERMS OF RECOGNITION: YOU ARE ONLY IN THE PROCESSING OF THAT WHICH IS YET TO COME. JUST AS A CATERPILLAR MUST EXPERIENCE THE CHANGE OF ITSELF TO BECOME THE BUTTERFLY—WHICH IS ALSO BUT A BRIEF FEW MOMENTS OF EXPERIENCING—SO, TOO, MUST THERE BE THAT WHICH ALLOWS FOR THE TAKING PLACE OF THESE TRANSITIONS. MAN, FOR INSTANCE, FOR THE MOST PART, CANNOT REALIZE THAT CHANGE IS WITHIN HIS INSTANT GRASP AS TO DIMENSIONAL EXPERIENCE. YOU, FOR INSTANCE, WANT

THE UNSEEN REALITY TO BECOME THE LESSER BEING, SO THAT YOU MIGHT EXPERIENCE “IT” IN YOUR NARROW REALITY OF “SENSING” IN SOME PHYSICAL SLOW-DOWN OF RECOGNITION.

If this were all there is, how would anything be accomplished? Do not the greatest of all creators of art, of music, of living, recognize INSPIRATION? Without the experiences, THERE IS NO INSPIRATION OR CREATION!

Can Wally Gentleman cause to be made a sublime motion picture? Of course, but from where must Wally Gentleman view his task of full disclosure in TRUTH, full impact of allowance for others to accept his vision of wonder and HOPE? Where do you go for your own INSPIRATION? Wally, where do you go when you wish to confer with me, for instance? You are seeking that higher insight and realization which allows you to present that which, in fact, is inspired manifestation. So, from WHERE might the most INSPIRATION of, say, Wally Gentleman flow? And then comes the ultimate question: “If I, Wally, have been unable to physically make the picture, let's call it Sipapu, then have I failed or succeeded thus far?”

YOU HAVE BUT LIVED THAT PART OF EXPERIENCE WHICH IS MANDATED TO UNDERSTAND THE NEED FOR THE INSPIRATION-SHARING IN YOUR GROWING TO ALLOW FOR THE EXPRESSION, SO THAT THERE IS UNDERSTANDING WHEN THE PICTURE IS VISUALLY REAL, TO CONCLUDE THE MESSAGE ALWAYS JUST A STEP AHEAD. Already the vision of Sipapu, as is laid to paper, is NOT “THE” MESSAGE FIRST PERCEIVED. Ah, far greater is the purpose, potential and intent—but it can ONLY be birthed in the MIND. There comes to be no need for physical eyes, ears or, frankly, human imperfection of physical limitation.

I can speak with Wally, for we understand one another in this journey into reality from the incredible illusions foisted off from the minds of Man in his enslavement by himself. If Wally moved on and left the limitation of the physical expression THIS MINUTE, he would make a far more impressive picture in perfection, for he would then KNOW the lack of limitation and he could present, then, THROUGH INSPIRATION, the very perfect presentation of HIS VISUALIZATION, WHILE CREATING IN THAT CRITICAL SHARING THE VERY APPARATUS NECESSARY TO PRESENT WHATEVER HE CHOOSES TO PRESENT.

Ah, it is the recognition and legacy which man individual wishes to leave in the course of adventuring along the way of experiencing. Wally will leave a legacy beyond the touch of MAN but will be given the honor and recognition of far greater recognition than ever could be captured in the physical form in such a limited arena. And, best yet, in that different presentation Wally can CHOOSE his student to bring the vision to LIFE, LITERALLY! Do you want a visual teaser of what life COULD be or do you wish to CREATE REALITY? Ah, the opening up of realization is a wondrous journey—for the mind, the energy OR THAT WHICH IS SOUL is “forever” and it is forever growing, teaching and BEING.

Wally understands far better than others in the limitation of moving about, for he understands the massive impact of visual expression—IN THE MIND—as to reception on another. He can be or present Socrates as well as Sitting Bull and, within the moments of expression, they are far more “real” than what might have been the manifest “thing”.

So, what about that “passage” problem? There is no problem; there is only this moment and this moment. FREEDOM of attachment comes in a split instant of a pulse-wave, so quickly accomplished as to have no sense of the reality of the instant itself. Then, wow, what a release for that which has been bound in the human limitations.

Then you move on to accomplish that which is your purpose and, as with Wally individual, there is such higher consciousness as to allow for the very progression desired and that ability to TOUCH someone who will hear and do that which you can now realize is far greater.

There is unlimited need for “being” in any perception of presentation and that is WHY there is such diversity in choices.

So, when we find, such as with Nora, one who actually asked permission to make passage—it is not really asking, except that the response may well help others; it is for the purpose of discussing the journey itself and where might “I, in my limitations, be the most useful and creative—“Where can I best continue my service, Sir?” My own response would be and is: Wherever YOU KNOW YOUR SERVICE IS MOST USEFUL. A marathon runner with no legs cannot fulfill his potential longer in a human environment as a marathon runner—without great change, indeed, and there is no need to endure such transition when you can simply become AGAIN that which mind demands.

Do you not SEE that YOU ARE, IF YOU CHOOSE LIMITATION IN RECOGNITION, “MY” HANDS AND FEET IN THE CONSCIOUSNESS PERCEPTION OF ALL THAT IS PHYSICALLY BOUND? COULD I DO THE TASK WITHOUT YOU? NO, BECAUSE I HAVE “CHOSEN” TO DO IT THIS WAY—JUST AS WALLY MIGHT CHOOSE TO SHOOT A PICTURE IN ANY NUMBER OF WAYS WITH ANY NUMBER OF DIFFERENT PERSPECTIVES AND CAMERAS. “WE”, YOU AND ME, HAVE BROUGHT TO CREATIVE REALITY THAT PLAY ON THE STAGE OF OUR CHOICE AND HERE WE ARE IN THE NOW. Some of the players have moved aside and off our stage. Some wait to return for the next act. Many just couldn’t learn their parts in the greater idea of the play itself but made their contribution, which becomes the positive WHOLE of the production itself.

Let us put it into perspective in a way better received than dealing with the WHOLE. Let us say that you are making a picture and all is in readiness except the funding. WHERE IS “YOUR” FOCUS? Are you seeking for funds to solve the world’s problems or is YOUR focus on getting that which is necessary to get the movie off the start line?

You can only work in increments of sequence. Your overall goal may be to “save the world”, but your immediate need is to get funding. So, you have potential, as others are off seeking funding for whatever reason. Is YOUR need satisfied when there is enough to keep your project moving? Is theirs, who must consider the whole of the list of the projects? In your case, yes, but in their case, no.

“Success”, therefore, is at any perceived point of recognition of accomplishment! And, sorry BUT—some things can ONLY be accomplished in what any individual would consider “perfection” from another dimensional viewpoint. I mention this, for you will find Wally Gentleman, for instance, to be a very mild-mannered and agreeable social being. When the responsibility in presentation is accepted and the play begun, he becomes the perfectionist most would wish to kill on sight, for less than the very best is not enough. He may well never drop his good manners, but you will most certainly KNOW if you have botched something of importance. And, does he have to be standing there breathing down the necks of the cameraman? No, he merely needs to get the very best for the task at hand. And, furthermore, he can find them from my vantage point, overlooking the selection. The choice is actually with the individual still in the physical arena, who has chosen to be that “perfect” ONE to fill a role or do a creative masterpiece.

Most people are destined to be less than they can be because they never quite see that they ARE ALREADY PERFECTION. You must grow into realization and remembering your qualifications in the chaos of experiencing—however, that is not the metal of which you are fashioned in REALITY. People wait for others to choose what they will be and what role they will be “given”, instead of stepping out there and BECOMING that which is desired.

I will say to such as Wally, in his human position, as all pressures come in responsible recognition of that which impacts others along any experience—i.e., children, spouses and any other being left behind—let us clear up a thing or two while there is consciousness for the participants; it will be fine and to make further recognition of peace of mind, let us discuss some things.

Wally Gentleman has served well and held the vision for many who would have “tossed” the very idea of “our” dreams. And that which would have been available as a physical return or reward for the job, as projected, shall be rewarded to those in Wally’s life-stream that would now take focus as choices of residence are considered.

I keep my commitments and I choose my team leadership in such testing by fire, so that I KNOW that they will attend my wishes and commitments as they evolve and hold selves responsible for these very commitments and responsibilities. They have proven beyond an Earth shadow that they will pursue without stopping and will stand strong in right and responsibility.

Each does, however, have to understand that each individual remaining behind in the physical place must be allowed choices of their own. The one MOVING ON can consider his/her own wishes but the ultimate realization must rest with the individual in point. For example: If the child refuses that which the father leaves, it is the child who will be considered in the “having”, for a gift cannot be unless it is also accepted, and here we are not talking about an insurance policy payoff; we are talking about reward for a “man’s” service. In Wally’s specific case: Margaret shall have made available that which she needs in respect and honor for Wally’s ongoing provision and legacy. And, furthermore, we shall build a school in which opportunity for learning and experiencing in Wally’s vision shall come to be—with a Foundation for that purpose, whereat his MEMORY shall be honored upon this land where his passage would make its most notable mark.

Can we do this? Yes! Why? How? Because I also have a team who will not leave my service until the wherewithal is made available.

Again, for Wally, I bring another recognition to his attention. In years past, Wally brought to “Ekkers” attention a wondrous person by the name of “Naessens”. I do not wish to take time or focus too greatly on this topic at this time, but his Diachronic Condenser will change the very concept of microscopes and present the actual ability to move with light within cells.

Now, for a rather strange, perhaps, interesting thing. There will be great connection made with a young man in New Zealand to realize his own dreams for contribution in HEALING, for he has, through misery and wonder, stayed the course. Naessens has provided the “way”, through his relentless focus on his chosen task and purpose. And, yes, all these things require funds and freedom in order to allow evolution. Therefore, someone has to stay the course and produce those commodities. Will my team succeed in doing that portion of this ongoing experience? YES, INDEED. But they will NOT do it through demand, nagging or out of proper sequence, for I shall see to it. Within God, you DO have to get your merit badges the old fashioned way: YOU HAVE TO EARN THEM.

A wondrous thing happens when you come into higher realization and that is that you are “god” of your expression. Are you a worthy GOD or just a haphazard negative-producing god? DO YOU CREATE WONDROUS AND POSITIVE GOODLY FREEDOM AND PROSPERITY FROM YOUR OWN UNBENDING INTEGRITY—or do you steal from another to grab what you can for self? Oh, indeed, yes, it DOES make a very large difference. Eternal life has extraordinary MEANING in REALITY. You will not find change even recognized in that moment of transition but you will have all that came before upon which to write your next “acts” in your ongoing plays. What will YOURS be? Will you have glorious joy in realization—or shame, as you have allowed ego to stunt your growth and potential?

You who actually serve the adversary will find selves at great DISadvantage, for reality hits that fan in that transition into and within the sequential movement along the linear trail. And no, stop thinking that your linear movement stops with some transitional “death” of some physical cells. The perception of LINEAR movement does not stop; the only change will be in form and realization of greater freedom, without some of the limitations accepted in the physical format. You didn’t have to accept them—but you needed to have them.

Man desires something so much greater than himself to attend to his confusion and sort it. No such thing exists—that is a lie in which you have wallowed quite long enough. There is no “rapture” where another does it for you, saves you, feeds you, shelters you or gives you absolution. ONLY YOU CAN GIVE “YOU” ABSOLUTION, SANCTION, BLESSINGS OR EVEN A RIDE. Even an eagle must fly and soar with feathered wings. YOU HAVE NO LIMITATION—EXCEPT THAT WHICH YOU PRONOUNCE ON SELF. The only problem is that you don’t know—or have forgotten—how to get that physical and bothersome housing of yours off the ground, even while the energy soul is out front pulling as hard as it can. This is why MAN is so easily ENSLAVED, for he refuses to see beyond into the glory of his potential.

Is Wally LESS “real” in Los Angeles or in Toronto? Is he less “real” as a voice on a telephone line? Come on, students, REALITY “IS” and all your conjured illusions are exactly THAT—illusion created by YOU, for YOUR use, through YOU and OF YOU. This is WHY no OTHER being can interpret YOUR DREAMS! They are ONLY “yours”. Only YOU can know why you dreamed them and what they represent. You are the producer, the director AND THE AUDIENCE. Don’t, for instance, ask me what means your dream—TELL ME WHAT YOUR DREAM MEANS TO YOU—FOR IT IS “YOURS”, NOT OF ME. I may well pass within your mind or your dream—but only because YOU have invited my presence.

AND BE VERY CAREFUL AS TO WHAT YOU ATTRIBUTE TO ME, FOR A BLUNDER IN PRESENTATION MAKES YOU LOOK VERY FOOLISH, INDEED, WHEN YOU PRONOUNCE YOUR PERCEPTIONS UPON ME AS SOURCE.

And to you who continue to pronounce “receivings” AS BEING FROM ME to my scribe—as in discipline or some kind of “inability” for me to reach through to her—you obviously have not yet come within any CONCEPT of these connections. Not even as a physical, earthly, stupid “boss” would I approach anything or anyone in such manner as you project. And you who do these things and continue on your path of foolishness only bring harmful sham and shame upon selves for, in truth, your projections CANNOT BE.

Some speak of “voices”. No, I am not a “voice” as such and I don’t rattle around in the brain cells. When you put these highest of exchanges on the level of gossip mongering, you have erred greatly and negate everything which came before. Why do you children continue to pretend such nonsense? You want to live in your narrow little worlds? Fine, but you know what? Those who have grown and outgrown your narrow little self-presentations will no longer wait for you to consider and “catch up” with the REAL GAME IN TOWN.

Doris, by the way, might well get “tired”—DHARMA is tireless! KNOW the difference, you who want to stop her with your projections of “exhaustion”—as pronounced upon her by such as Ed Young and Norey Latona, Suzy or Gail Irwin and Rick Martin. DHARMA IS WITHOUT ABILITY TO BE “TIRED” AND MUCH THE LESS “EXHAUSTED”. When you confuse the TWO, you have really proven your lack of comprehension of much of anything except the tangled webs of limited input you accept. And I suggest you STOP using me as your resource and source—for I WOULD NEVER ACT IN SUCH MANNER AS YOU FOOLISH CHILDREN PRESENT. HUMAN GETS TIRED, SOUL ONLY BECOMES ENERGIZED THROUGH THE INPUT OF POSITIVE FLOW.

Wally may not “see” well, as through his eyes, but there is only a sharpening awareness of VISION in that very dimming of the stage lights. I MUST HAVE A MAN WHO HAS VISION—NOT A ROBOT WHO HAS EYES, FOR A CAMERA CAN ONLY PROJECT THAT WHICH A MAN SEES—THINK ABOUT IT. And that series of expressions on film can only project that which a director presents for photographing. LIFE IS BUT A MOTION PICTURE, CHELAS, AND LIFE IS THAT WHICH YOU PRESENT TO THE PRESENTATION.

I hope I have responded to some of the thoughts of my beloved friend, Wally Gentleman, who actually spends so much time with me already as to be a great laugh in the near encounter. This is far from a “mystical” expression and, actually, when understood and experienced, is not even longer a “mystery”. It is simply an unfolding of that which IS. The more wonderful thing is that in confronting possibilities and recognitions prior to making the changes, the experience of freedom is, indeed, a miracle of wonder!

And, chelas, you may well refer to me as the “Old Man”, or Dad or whatever you choose—BUT I AM NO OLDER THAN THEE! Ponder it.

Salu, and may you make your days each a creative miracle in realization. And, if you want some “things”—go make it happen, please, and stop your nagging.

Love and obviously in more faith in you—than you hold,

Doris’ Corner

By Doris Ekker, 4/6/00

OK, so perfection truly is of the soul. We have been at least 5 days off in our “Yr. 13 counting”. I will try to figure it out from the 17th of Aug. backwards—one of these days. Karen used to give me a calendar that counted for me. And we think there is no possibility of people “making mistakes” about souls, life, mind, etc? We can’t even count a sequence of 365 days it seems. Worse, I never really got “leap-year”, either, because it just doesn’t add up!

I note that we have been told, warned really, that “A negative thought travels just as far as a positive thought—but disrupts and confuses, in damage of negative input, everything it touches.” Hummmn, I bet a man on death row wouldn’t have such errors in his counting. And THAT brings a more important thought: Aren’t we ALL on “death row”? So, we are five days closer to execution day? Wow, and geeze, where is your forgiveness? What could we have done with those five days that we didn’t do—and when did we not do it? Or is it now, “Oh well...”? What really scares me, friends, is that nobody caught it!!! As I try to roughly catch the error, I find that somewhere in there about March, I was off by nine days. Is this like life, or what? Never mind, it seems to be April 6th this morning in Manila and sometime on the 5th around the U.S., and who knows what it is elsewhere—OR WHAT TIME. Somebody give me a count, please—the year 14 starts with day one on Aug. 17th.

“When you break an oath with the Devil, he just kills you physically. If you break an oath to God, He just gives you a soul and makes you live with your errors.”—Commander

So, I will never mind the “days”, for we are also told, “The only hope now for ‘saving’ (reclaiming) this civilization is by restoring a system of ethics which will rebuild character, honor, dignity and righteousness into the human race.” And, in addition to this fact, we have to consider that it takes more to hold the line for God than any other task in the universe—and all the while we are choosing to have God be WHAT WE PERCEIVE WE WANT HIM TO BE.

As we struggle to find the proper way to express our intentions and reasons for our ongoing interactions, we are constantly asked “why?”. We are also looked at quite suspiciously as to our truthful intent—for few can actually believe God would REALLY do anything like this for “them”.

So, what happens? Most fiddle and manipulate and twist whatever it might be to fit their perceptions, training, wishes and trickeries—to go right on in the foolish and devastating ways of fabricated (and that which won’t work and you told them so) sailing over the “speed bumps”, WHICH DO NOT SLOW THE DEMISE OF A PLAN—BUT STOP IT DEAD IN ITS TRACKS. Everybody TOUTS GOD, nobody believes in IT, HIM, HER—WHATEVER.

So:

Our agreements, which will be honored by the Treasury, FED, IMF—you name it—are exactly what we have presented. The world economies are so unbalanced that they have already collapsed but nobody seems to ever get the facts. If you don’t have anything, how can you pay, give, get or shove around anything?

With that in mind, people go right on out there and present the wrong thing and then come back and ask what went wrong? Doing the wrong thing is what went—goes, and will go—WRONG.

But the real answer to the inquiries pouring upon us about why we would work so hard for sharing and giving is that THIS IS THE PLACE WE HAVE TO LIVE ALSO—IF WE CAN GET ENOUGH OXYGEN TO JUST MAKE IT THROUGH ONE MORE DAY. We start stopping this insanity now or we certainly can’t look forward to much “fun” out of the struggle for life.

We are in this together, people: the good, the bad, the ugly and those who set themselves aside as “the beautiful and special people”.

I am caused to go through Rustan’s department store when we go to the market—right through the most wondrous smelling perfume garden of all time—the floor where every EXPENSIVE scent is sold. AND WE LAUGH EVERY TIME. The more expensive the perfume, the more tiny the bottles. And, of course, for advertising the brand names, there are the BIG containers representing the most beautiful of the “designer” brands.

Now, everyone knows that perfume—ESPECIALLY THE EXPENSIVE PERFUMES—are in containers that are small and that large containers at best would only LOSE quality.

Now, with that in mind, here is what is said about Imelda Marcos, who is noted for EXPENSIVE habits and gobs of EXPENSIVE (the most) perfumes and jewelry: It is said that “she had dozens of those gallon-sized containers of her favorite perfumes” purchased and around her bath(s), etc. Why, there were “dozens” (or more, depending on who never saw anything but is telling the tale) left when they “ran” (they were KIDNAPPED by the CIA/Mossad) FROM MANILA. Doesn’t it scare anybody that such stories actually get printed in international news as some kind of fact—when any IDIOT who stops to consider even the most fundamental FACTS would not be so stupid? Reminds you of the “Holocaust”, doesn’t it—where NOW THE GAME IS TO GET THE REST OF THE WORLD’S GOLD STORES UNDER THE LIE OF RESTITUTION PAYMENTS FOR SOME DREAMED-OF WRONG. SLAVE “LABOR”? WHAT ELSE KIND OF LABOR IS THERE? SOME OF US CLAIM FREEDOM—BUT “NOTICE, PLEASE”, WE DON’T SEEM TO GET PAID FOR IT (!), DO WE?

CORT CHRISTIE AND NEVADA CORPORATE HEADQUARTERS

We are delighted to hear rumors that Cort won the battle with the assaulters over nominee regulations in the State of Nevada. Perhaps there is hope in the world, after all. I just hope that Cort realizes that his “good friends”—Young, Irwin, Martin (Cortright) and Spectrum, ET AL.—TURNED HIM IN AND GOT HIM INTO THE MESS IN THE FIRST PLACE. But, now, let us see what they do to rectify the damage and pain to such as David O’B and Ron K.—and such as the Phoenix Institute and every other corporation which utilized services for privacy and convenience to cover the non-operational period of startup time. When will the people take a stand, legally, against these criminals in practice? They have practiced long enough to have become good at crime, supposedly, but this is one more failure for their little miserable troopers.

THIS CASE SHOULD BE WRITTEN UP AND ENTERED INTO EVERY LEGAL DOCUMENT POSSIBLE IN THE UNITED STATES, NEVADA AND CERTAINLY IN THE LEGAL HOGWASH OF “ANONYMOUS” TURNER-INNERS.

I hope this is not just a rumor and, if not, we will do everything to make it known through the press and through our own contacts with business people: Our hearts and sincere appreciation go out to Cort for seeing this miserable thing through and hiring good counsel to see to the JUST CARRIAGE OF JUSTICE AND RIGHT. Now, if you get the “cause” of the problem and rectify it publicly, you will be amazed at how much you gain. YOU, CORT AND JEN, WERE WRONGED, AND YOU CHOSE TO LET THE MOMENT “GETCHA” AS THE MISFITS PULLED AND PUSHED AT YOU, AND A LOT OF PEOPLE HAVE GOTTEN HURT—AND NOT JUST WITHIN OUR LITTLE CIRCLE OF ACQUAINTANCES.

Usually, we find that most things that “feel good” really don’t “feel very good” for much longer than the moment of encounter. AND EVIL MUST NOT LONGER PREVAIL—and THAT is what we are about. We are not here to further the WRONG ACTIONS—WE MUST GATHER WITH THOSE WHO WISH, CAN AND WILL CHANGE TO APPROPRIATE, BALANCED AND WELL-FOUNDATIONED GROWTH. IT HAS TO START SOMEWHERE AND, THEREFORE, IT MUST START WITH “ME”, AS THE OLD SAYING GOES.

LITTLE CROW

I would comment here on the WISDOM of Little Crow. He comes from the “ORAL TRADITION” and this week we received some papers from Mr. Crow and not a single word of written or oral wisdom came with them. And suddenly I knew that the message missing said it all: “The oral tradition is that wisdom is to keep that ‘oral’ orifice shut when appropriate and in that manner you do not MIS-SPEAK!”

We each have a JOB and a pathway. We can have input, help and choose the path. But nobody can do it or walk it—’cept ourselves.

Most of our friends will remember the day that Little Crow came to visit and I handed him a “traditional” “talking stick” that Karen Singer-White had given to me at the prior Christmas Season. So, I handed it to Little Crow and proceeded to explain everything about the stick: When you hold the stick (which is a cow rib with paint and a feather), you get to TALK. After about five minutes he just smiled and asked me if I wanted him to “give it back”? Little Crow speaks when he needs to—TO ME—and I appreciate the recognition and true trust and confidence in that silence. Does this keep me “humble”? No, it gives me confirmation that we are doing the RIGHT thing and when the time is RIGHT, next steps will be readied for the taking. And, if “I” (we) don’t do our part, the next bearer of the baton has to walk on one leg—for we will have deprived him of what he needs to walk on TWO. GOD WILL NOT FAIL THIS MISSION. TOGETHER, WE RECLAIM OR WE DON’T, AND WE HAVE TO “WANT TO” AND “WANT TO DO IT RIGHT”. It is not really hard to understand—we just don’t want to understand it, lest we have to respond to the responsibility.

Could we just “have had enough” and stop and walk away? Yes, but we won’t because there is an army of you there ready to take the load when we finally get to our “start line”, for there is no “finish line”. The pathway becomes easier to comprehend, moreover, when we stop playing in the LIE and get with the program.

Do I “OWE” anyone else anything? YES! I may well not be “obligated under the law” but I am RESPONSIBLE under the commitment accepted. Yet, NO, I do not owe everyone their right of passage and it has taken me nearly 70 years to understand that simple fact. Until we get THIS job done, others are truly stalled from moving forward to the final thrust with their portion. So, yes, it has hurt EVERYONE (every last human being) that our “declared enemies” have bogged us in hate and vengeful acts of criminal proceedings but we do find that even in the very deepest muck of the swamp-things’ mire, our support teams somehow manage to get one more paper out—one more day, week, year is covered—and when we consider the things GAINED through the perceived LOSSES, it is also a realization of the lessening of the constant botheration of the details of living that have been removed. This is not our choice, mind you, but it is somehow easier to have some things taken out of our hands by that which others do in intent to harass and damage. And yes, there are a whole big incredible bunch of us who are going to sit together one day and look out over the big universal casino in the sky! And yes, indeed, we will still be around to share that. What form or shape? BETTER!

We are happy to note that, as we are told, it appears that one of the illegal Internet sites now bears a warning of “FORBIDDEN” TO ACCESS. It is NOT AMONG THE DAMAGING OR TRULY AND REALLY UNLAWFUL SITES. IT IS NOT A CLOSURE OF A SITE THAT OFFERS WHOLESALE BOOKS OF GREAT AUTHORS FOR DOWNLOADING OR RIP-OFF TO FEED THE GEORGE GREENS OF THE WORLD, IN COLLUSION AND ADVERTISING OF THE SPECTRUM CRIMINALS.

And no, I kid you not, readers—we have it in hard, cold print where Dr. Young and Mr. Martin advertise where books they tout are on download-it-free sites. Then there is a suggestion that the books themselves can be gotten from George Green and a petition to buy the books to “help Green who has given years of his life to help the world... and needs the support”.

One of Green’s operations, by the way, is GLOBAL INSIGHTS, and has been for several years, after going for bankruptcy of America West Publishers to keep from paying his debts and in an effort to hold onto the gold he stole from the Institute and Dave Overton. Is that not some kind of “alter-ego” or something—where you just “shape-shift” from one crooked game to another? It is noted, however, that he still advertises as source for Dr. Coleman’s “300” book and probably even more and he can’t get away from that, as America West Publishers first did the deed AT THE EXPENSE OF THE INSTITUTE and, later, Dr. Coleman himself. George just offers it for the downloading, as well. He also has other sites, where others offer Stich’s writings, all the Journals, banned and otherwise, Mark and Cathy’s Trance-Formation book, Immaculate Deception and you name it—as in all the UFO books—not to even mention the three books he now advertises as to have written “himself” on “Truth”, “Love” and extra-terrestrials, as obtained through the work and property of Billy Meier and every other “truthbringer” from whom he could beg, borrow and steal.

I suppose Mr. Green thinks that nobody who counts knows his hangouts but you can find his operation about 5-10 miles north of Coeur d’Alene, in Hayden, IDAHO. And we are in Manila, Philippines, so it wouldn’t seem as difficult for you in the States to pin this man down to his misdeeds—he is in full working joint-venture with your beloved Spectrum groupie cult.

One of the most wondrous things for “our side” is that it is now touted by Green’s attorneys in Nevada that they have all this new information and have also appealed for a fourth time to the Nevada Supreme Court on a case thrown out the prior three times. Oh, good, we will now find out exactly and specifically WHO STOLE THE RECORDS AND FILES. They plan to cast the blame on Kathy and Karen, who had total office and home access. Fine, this is what we have been waiting for—for the guilty thieves to hang themselves. Too bad that damage has to be heaped on such wonderful people as Millers.

These dudniks have already testified over and over again, and what are they going to do now? If the story is different, did they perjure themselves THEN or NOW? AND IF THEY HAVE DOCUMENTS, AS GREEN CLAIMS, WHEREFROM DID THEY GET THEM, I.E., WITH ALL THE RECORDS NOW GONE AND EVEN SOME OF THEM, WE ARE TOLD, OF THE IMPORTANT VARIETY, TOTALLY REMOVED FROM THE DRIVES OF THE COMPUTERS. Well, we haven’t been around and we don’t know anything about computers to even begin to attempt such a project—but Norey and Al DO. Both (ALL) had free access, for months, to all office equipment, files and records.

GOD may well have “mercy” but I wouldn’t count on we wounded human people.

AND BY THE WAY: THE PROPERTY WHERE ALL THAT RESIDED IS BEING GUARDED BY “THEIR TEAM” WHO HAS EVEN LIED, NOW, TO “THEIR TEAM”. I guess it just takes a while for those circles to close? God says to clean it up along the way and we shall not have “denials” from those “delays”. I have to suppose it required a year or more to catch the thieves and even longer to assess the damages.

I am also beginning to live in REALITY of the FACT that IMPERFECTION IS MY HUMAN “RIGHT”. Also, we have to each realize that no one ELSE is going to go out of their way to defend us—so we will take whatever defense is necessary to allow the successful realization of this task at hand. Then, if there be something we can do in the “personal zone”, we will do that. We will be able then to have backup strength, as well. GOD SEEMS REALLY QUITE GOOD AT TIMELY ASSISTANCE—IF OUR COURSE BE WORTHY AND OUR INTENT BE HONORABLE.

Well, our course is worthy and our intent is honorable and, therefore, we can expect that which we need—if we keep pushing on the wagon.

I am extremely appreciative to McLaughlin for the fax this morning, which references “Minnesota Indian Affairs Council” addressing the topic of “Indian Tribal Sovereignty”—the very first word being ignoble, as in “Indians”. The Native Americans are NOT “Indians” as would be amply concluded by the citizens of “India”; therefore—if we can get through that particular first-line error—perhaps there is some good information, if we really put our minds to the subject.

Perhaps someone can make sure L. Crow gets a copy of this which was sent in such a brief form from McLaughlin, so that LC has explicit recognition of anything to which we might well refer along this trail of interesting events.

We see NO inability to use our assets in any form of flexibility which might be considered to be utilized in “Treaty”, Agreement, international interchange or whatever might be deemed feasible. We deal in “reserves”, sheltered and covered in hard collateral. Dollars are based on nothing but I’m sure that can be rectified just as other nations such as Israel have rectified that little discrepancy—by asking for payment of debts IN GOLD as allowed by non-sovereign U.S. citizens or in any number of other value exchanges. It would likely be a long while before the Native American Sovereign Nations would care to use any inconvenient currencies—except perhaps in their casino exchanges, as in “chips” or whatever tokens might be called.

And, speaking of such as agreements and treaties: Yes, indeed, we are most happy to have good business agreements and contracts at very little cost to the Native American United States of Tribal Nations. Let’s see, that equals like NAUSTN, or whatever. Perhaps the only thing we will want is a PLACE to lay our head as a “citizen” of some kind—or a permanent working VISA. We are AN ALLIANCE, in ASSOCIATION with.... So let us not get all tight and drawn, for we are for a building alliance in good international relationships, trade agreements, business interchange, religious freedom and the pursuit of happiness for all. And maybe, just a little plot to lay our bones when the journey interrupts for time out. You know, just a little stick in the ground that says “Here lies... who made an effort to make a difference”. Before which, I suppose, we can have a “yard sale” (without the yard, of course). Good stewardship REALLY DOES toss aside a whole bunch of problems for mere citizens of human form. Having NOTHING greatly enhances FREEDOM, it appears.

When we can lay forth some of our possibilities and “they” present their needs and possibilities—I am confident we will arrive, through good council/counsel, a potentially and truly workable resolution to suit the needs within all laws and agreements already established. And perhaps, after all, the whole around-the-world journey has been to arrive back on our own native-soil homeland—having done what was necessary to accomplish THIS VERY CONCLUSION. Jason went for the Golden Fleece, as I remember, and really didn’t consider the Cyclops or giants in his pathway. The problem now becomes all the silly nincompoops who go for fleecing the sheep, us included. Most often we feel a bit like NAKED SHEEP—and at our age, it is not a pleasant picture.

Who are these “Ekkers”? Oh gosh, friends, NOBODY and EVERYBODY, for we are the ghosts of Christmas past, present and future—just tripping along the best we can while learning that, for real, we don’t know much of anything about almost everything. For instance, I have a picture here on the calendar that says the mountain depicted is the “Matterhorn”. Is it? I don’t know. I’ve never seen the Matterhorn and yes, indeed, pictures and presenters lie all the time. And then, consider this: Are there really “Indians” in Minnesota? Probably and there might even be some Native Tribal Americans—that weren’t even called “Americans”, for there was NO AMERICA!

Therefore, who are we fooling other than, on a grand scale, OURSELVES? There is even a Native American RESERVATION south of Coeur d’Alene, Idaho by the same name. Do, I, however, KNOW that to be so? NO. But I can be pretty confident of something: If George Green discerns a way to get in there and sell them a bill of goods, like he sold us—we will know one place to look for him, along with his Rainbow streamers.

George still is working, he says, to just “get the word out” and we are left to amazement as to what that “word” might be! He presents others’ words, gets their gold and steals it and then cries “foul” when caught with his hands in the gold-pot. The Spectrum friends of “Get-The-Word-Out” drag right along with him in his miscreant ways. You see, we didn’t realize there was an entity by the name of “Get-The-Word-Out”—you really have to watch that old gent, Mr. Adversary, he is a really nifty and shrewd advocate of “change the name” to protect the guilty. Let me apologize to all of you for taking so long “to understand”. I put poor “2 X ¼” to shame, it appears. Now that I better understand, perhaps things will move more rapidly for all of us who have chosen to form this team in purpose fulfillment.

Thanks for the visit and feel free to discard what you wish.

Love and sincerest efforts to get a bit smarter through these never-lessening loads of lessons,

Doris and E.J. (It has been 32 long years of his putting up with me, and you can add 5 years to the anniversary for recognition of a joint mission. We didn’t remember—AGAIN—until he wrote the date on the e-mail yesterday. Oh, well, it took 30 of those years to come to an agreement on the date itself for celebration. LIFE is a celebration—bindings are but counters. What a walk through the myriad of years in Fantasia this has been! Reality can’t be much more interesting—CAN IT?)

CAST YOUR SILVER AND GOLD TO THE STREETS!

Intelligence Digest, 3/31/00

...I had been at the computer for 12 hours last night trying to figure out how they were going to introduce a global currency. It seemed the current articles floating throughout the Christian circles weren’t adequate in terms of introduction. So my search led me to find that countries such as Switzerland and Britain have been selling off their gold reserves and investing into the Internet. Curious—how the standard since civilization began could shift so quickly and recklessly into cyberspace. Suddenly it dawned on me that the flickering screen at which I was staring turned out to be the answer all along. It is truly terrifying how well orchestrated the New World regime is...

...A report by the Electronic Telegraph states that in the near future, money as we know it—as government-issued coins and paper currency—will be replaced with an electronic currency issued by private corporations on the Internet...

...In this utopian electronic economy, e-currency will flow freely around the world; it will be accepted everywhere; there will be no exchange fees or currency fluctuations. The plan appears to be well drawn out this very day.

“It’s difficult to put a time frame to it, but it’s likely that we won’t be using the ‘dollar, pound or the euro,’” says Ian Pearson, a BT futurologist. “It won’t happen overnight and it will be an evolutionary change but in my view, it’s inevitable. The pound, dollar and the euro will become quaint collectors’ items in the next century.”

The catalyst for this economic revolution is, of course, the Internet, as well as the emergence of the global market. Theoretically, more than one e-currency will appear because consumers will demand it. Says Pearson: “What consumers want is to be able to use their money on any site anywhere in the world without incurring exchange charges and paying commissions. It is likely that a group of private companies could create such a currency, which every web-site would accept as a form of money. I doubt that people will continue to use national currencies when they can use a world currency.”

The subsequent evolutionary step is harder to imagine, but far from impossible. Because consumers would be using this new currency, they would demand to be paid in it. And if that happens, says Pearson, “...the next stage is to download it on to a smart card so it could be used for buses and shops and buying a round in a pub”.

You say this sounds visionary, to say the least, and the implications of a privately controlled electronic world currency are colossal. It’s also true, of course, that the demise of bank notes and coinage and their replacement by cards of one sort or another has been predicted before, yet we remain attached to pounds and pence, dollars and cents. The difference now may be that the technological impetus for the switch is at hand in the Internet.

If it happens, it’s going to work like this: You, the consumer, will have an account on the Internet in the new e-currency. The account will be administered by an issuer; for the purpose of this example, let’s say you’ve decided to use

Microsoft microns (this is not meant to imply, by the way, that Microsoft has any intention of launching such a currency). These have been issued by a consortium of large companies with, collectively, the assets to back the new currency. There will be no “hard” version of the microns; they will exist purely as entries on your personal balance sheet on the Internet. If you happen to be paid in microns, your employer would transfer your salary in microns from his own micron account to yours, electronically, without the need to issue a cheque or go through a bank. Your micron account would be available to pay for goods on the Internet—plane tickets, books, CDs, clothes, whatever—through secure transfers.

But there’s more. Using a mobile phone and a smart-card attachment, you would be able to access your micron account and download micron credits from your account to your card.

And what would a micron be worth? Well, it would be worth a micron, because there wouldn’t be any national currencies to compare it with. If everything is denominated in e-currencies, then government-issued currencies become redundant...

...An electronic-currency pilot [“currency”] in Britain is called “beenz”. These beenz points are awarded on promotional items or discounts offered by an on-line shop which can then be “spent” on other items. Savers can visit the Bank of Beenz to check their balance, or use a small “beenz counter” which pops up on their screen when they are on-line. They are also sent regular bank statements...

...Of course, monies minted by states have existed for thousands of years, but until the 18th Century, they were made of precious metals such as gold or silver and their values were inherent. They weren’t currency in the modern sense of the word; they were instead items of known value within themselves and could be used anywhere.

Private currency may have a greater tendency toward stability, to postulate that private companies have more interest in retaining the value of money than governments do. This means, ultimately, that privately issued currencies will be internationally accepted, transferable without bank charges, practically non-taxable and sound.

Ultimately, what this means my friends, is that the program(s) is already in use. It’s just a matter of slowly merging all “pilot programs” into one system. Kind of like the way Microsoft purchases everything in its path!

Leading academics have welcomed comments made by a senior Bank of England official that emerging Internet-based currencies could drive central banks to extinction.

Speaking at a banking conference last Friday (August 27th) in Wyoming, the Bank of England’s Deputy Governor, Mervyn King, admitted that emerging forms of currency used in web-based trade could fall beyond the control of the world’s central banks.

Losing control of the money flow will naturally mean the loss of economic power and could wipe out central banks altogether, according to King.

Alistair Kelman, visiting fellow at the London School of Economics (LSE), said: “It’s about time central banks realise the implications of the digital economy.”...

...Others... claim King’s prediction that central banks could become redundant will come true. “The European Union and national governments have completely lost the plot, wasting time deliberating over the single currency, when it’s electronic cash that is the real issue. What King is talking about is the inability of the state to control its own destiny,” he said...

[JR: I have to think that those TV ads where you have children from all over the world asking "Are you ready?" are introducing the e-currency gimmick. I, however, don't see the banksters allowing their equally imaginative system of fiat money (of no intrinsic value) and fractional-reserve lending (manipulating of numbers) to allow anyone else into their monopoly-money game. I'm for barter and trading of services—no investment and no risk.]

LUCRATIVE DEALS MAY OUTWEIGH U.S. COMPLAINTS

By Arieh O'Sullivan, Jerusalem Post, 4/4/00

There is no doubt that China is not only a lucrative arms market but a willing customer for Israel's sophisticated weaponry. The sale of the Phalcon advanced airborne radar system, mounted on a Russian jet, was considered Israel's golden ticket, possibly leading to one of the largest arms deals this country has ever known.

According to foreign reports, the Phalcon's phased-array radar is capable of tracking up to 60 targets simultaneously and guiding a dozen fighters in all-weather, day/night operations.

According to these same reports, the system, which was originally developed for the IAF, is actually more advanced than the AWACS the United States can deploy in the Taiwan-China arena.

With tensions rising between those two countries, it is hardly surprising that Washington is against the sale.

The Israel-China deal has been in the works for years, but only during the past few months has the U.S. openly disapproved of it. It seems highly unlikely that Israel will be able to pull out of the deal at this advanced stage, since such a move would do irreparable damage to its business credentials.

What U.S. pressure may do, however, is nip the project in the bud, quashing it after the delivery of this one plane. Considering that China reportedly holds an option for at least three more aircraft and possibly a total of eight, losses could be over $1.5 billion. Senior U.S. leaders regularly come to Israel and vow to maintain Israel's qualitative edge, and U.S. Secretary of Defense William Cohen was no different.

Those words rolled off his tongue in his very first statement yesterday at a joint press conference with Prime Minister Ehud Barak.

There are two ways Israel can maintain its qualitative edge: invest more funding in local research and development, or increase cooperation with the U.S. and link into their new technologies.

Defense Ministry policy is to develop new markets, and China and India are high on the list.

"We are very sensitive to the positions of the Americans and if they demand something, we try to accommodate them. But there is also the matter of competition," said one senior defense official.

The problem is compounded even further by the fact that China intends to establish itself as a credible military power and could ultimately turn into America's foremost rival—ironically, with the aid of Israel, which received over $3 billion in U.S. military aid last year alone, including $1.2 billion in special funding related to the Wye Agreement.

Israel could maintain its qualitative edge simply by using U.S. aid to purchase U.S. weaponry. But that comes at the expense of developing domestic hi-tech defense industries.

Ironically, as the peace prospects with Syria seem to dwindle, American leverage over the Government may have diminished somewhat, since the $16.7 billion in additional military aid Israel has sought for withdrawing from the Golan Heights appears to have been put on the back burner.

Maybe Israel will get away with the China deal for the single system this time around. But in the long run, Israel must ask itself just how dependent it can allow itself to become on U.S. money, with all its strings.

During Moshe Arens' recent term as Defense Minister, a study was done on the effects of U.S. funds on local defense industries. The results were compiled just as he left office and filed away. Perhaps now is a good time to review them.

[JR: Let's subtract from our foreign aid to Israel one dollar for every dollar she makes with this arms deal with China. It's time we adopt the Israeli policy and Mr. Cohen should declare: The U.S. is for the U.S.—and Shalom to all others.]

ISRAEL FREES MAN GRABBED IN '86 AND IMPRISONED WITHOUT CHARGES

By Deborah Sontag, New York Times, 4/6/00

JERUSALEM—Israel freed one of 16 Lebanese prisoners who have been held without charges as bargaining chips for the potential release of Israeli soldiers captured in Lebanon.

After a decade in an Israeli prison, Ghassan Dirani, 35, a former bank clerk, on Wednesday crossed back into Lebanon, where he was met at the border by International Red Cross officials and his family.

Three years ago, the Israeli High Court blocked a Tel Aviv District Court judge's order to free Dirani on humanitarian grounds. That had been the recommendation of Israeli prison doctors, who considered him physically and mentally ill. This time, when another Tel Aviv judge issued the same release order, the High Court did not intervene.

Dirani spent most of his captivity isolated in a prison hospital and attempted suicide several times, according to his lawyer, Zvi Rish.

Rish said his client was kidnapped in 1986 by a Christian militia group in Beirut, who considered him valuable because he is related to Mustafa Dirani, a former leader of the Amal militia. He was imprisoned for four years in Lebanon, "and during the interrogations, he simply lost his mind", Rish said.

In 1990, Ghassan Dirani and several others were secretly transferred to Israel, and their incarceration was kept hidden until 1992. Four years later, Ghassan Dirani's mother tried to visit her son, traveling into Israel on a false passport.

According to Amnesty International, she was told by a Government spokesman that there would be no meetings with Lebanese detainees until information was released about Ron Arad, an Israeli navigator who was captured by the Amal in 1986 after parachuting from his jet in Lebanon.

Rish said that international human-rights organizations had taken a special interest in Ghassan Dirani's case. "He is so mentally ill that he does not have to be—even if there are bargaining chips—he doesn't have to be in this game," he said.

"I hope with the perspective of time the issue will be investigated: how the state of Israel and the courts permitted the holding of hostages."

Mustafa Dirani is one of the 15 remaining Lebanese detainees in Israel.

Five others were freed in December.

Also Wednesday, the High Court issued a temporary restraining order to block the imminent release from jail of Yoram Skolnick, who was convicted of murdering a bound Palestinian man and sentenced to life in prison.

His sentence was reduced by a presidential order to 14 years and then by prison authorities to 7 years when he met criteria for early release.

[JR: How is this for an example of the Noahide Laws (as expounded upon in the infamous and much-denied Protocols of the Elders of Zion)? We use (selectively) the same laws here—Public Law 102-14, installed them in 1991 as the law of the land right here in the United States. Where is all the protest and outrage from world leaders on these ISRAELI human-rights abuses? Does "during the interrogations, he simply lost his mind" remind you of the claims of the Nazi and Bolshevik interrogations? Didn't they also conduct experimental torture, where victims died or went insane?]

USDA BANS OZONE-DEPLETING PESTICIDE

Capital Hill Blue, 3/30/00

WASHINGTON (AP)—The worldwide phase-out of an ozone-depleting pesticide could cost U.S. consumers and producers $400 million to $450 million a year if alternatives aren't developed for farmers to use, the Government said Thursday.

The biggest loss from the phase-out of methyl bromide would be to growers of strawberries, tomatoes and other vegetables, according to a study released by the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service.

Methyl bromide, an odorless, colorless gas, is used to fumigate the soil, treat commodities while in storage and control pests during Government-imposed quarantines. California and Florida account for 80 percent of its use as a soil fumigant.

Under federal law, use of the pesticide was to be cut by 25 percent last year, 50 percent in 2001, 70 percent in 2003 and then eliminated in 2005, except for limited purposes, such as quarantines.

"The phase-out of methyl bromide will cause substantial, short-term losses to U.S. producers and consumers of crops treated with methyl bromide, until more cost-effective alternatives are developed and made available," the study said.

Imports of Mexican-produced tomatoes, peppers and eggplants would likely increase because Mexico is not phasing out methyl bromide until 2015, the USDA said. Mexico is classified as a developing country under the treaty that required the elimination of the pesticide.

The most likely alternatives to methyl bromide as a soil fumigant are chemicals called Telone and Chloropicrin, but California and Florida have restrictions on both, due to air and water quality concerns. Other chemicals have not been approved by federal regulators.

[JR: This methyl bromide is very similar to ethylene dibromide, which was banned from agricultural use in 1982, a highly toxic component now commonly used as a flame retardant in JP-8 jet fuel. This is what contributes to what many today refer to as CHEMTRAILS crisscrossing our skies—and the increased exposure seems to be making many people sick with allergies and respiratory problems. I wonder if they will find a similar use for this methyl bromide in the U.S., as well (they always do). They will still continue their profitable manufacturing by changing its use in addition to increasing sales to Third World countries?]

OPTO-CHIP PROMISES COMPUTER REVOLUTION

By Tim Radford, The Guardian—UK, 4/7/00

U.S. chemists and engineers have developed a polymer which could trigger another revolution in computing and communications—and bring Star Trek-style 3D-hologram fantasies a step nearer to reality.

Using the new material, they promise an "opto-chip" that will process signals at 100 gigabytes a second. This is the equivalent of War And Peace, multiplied 80,000 times, every second.

The material could accelerate information-processing speeds 10-fold, but needs only a fraction of a volt of electricity to operate, according to the journal Science Today. Microscopic devices made from it would translate electrical signals—from television, radar, computer and telephone—into optical signals to run down fibre-optic cables, or to steer radio waves and microwaves to telecommunications satellites.

“These electro-optic modulators will permit real-time communication. You won’t have to wait for your computer to download even the largest files,” said Larry Dalton, a chemist who led teams from the University of Washington and the University of Southern California.

The scientists found that a chip measuring a thousandth of a millimetre across could provide 300 gigahertz of bandwidth—enough to handle all the telephone, computer, television and satellite traffic of a major corporation. The chips could make possible a three-dimensional holographic projection with no flicker—a step nearer the “holodeck”, in which characters from Star Trek: The Next Generation created their fantasy worlds.

It could be used in aircraft navigation, and anti-collision radar in cars. “It has the potential of revolutionising the way we function,” said Professor Dalton.

[JR: Yes, this could work wonders for communications, business and entertainment. I, however, am looking forward to when the Star Trek “REPLICATOR” will be available. That would really revolutionize the way WE as individuals will function, especially at dinner time.]

JUDGE SAYS EPA CAN SET RUNOFF LIMITS FOR RIVERS

By Bob Egelko, Boston Globe, 4/6/00

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—In the first ruling of its kind, a federal judge has upheld the Environmental Protection Agency’s authority to set limits on water pollution caused by runoffs from farms and logging.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge William Alsup allows federal regulators to combat such pollution by pressuring states to change land-use practices. Federal officials, including EPA Administrator Carol Browner, said they hope the ruling starts a national trend.

“This important decision allows us to build on our successes of completing the task of cleaning our nation’s waters,” Browner said Wednesday after the ruling was released.

The ruling concerns provisions of the 1972 Clean Water Act that the EPA did not start to enforce until 1991, under pressure from courts and environmental groups.

The provisions allow the agency to tell states to come up with ways to reduce pollution in rivers and waterways contaminated solely by runoff, as opposed to industrial waste or sewage. The EPA says runoff has become the leading threat to water quality in the United States.

The Agency was sued by two California landowners, the American Farm Bureau Federation, and state and local farm organizations.

The landowners, Guido and Betty Pronsolino, own forest property along the Garcia River, one of 17 rivers on California’s North Coast classified as “substandard” by the EPA in 1992. The Agency said the river’s coho salmon and steelhead populations have been severely damaged by sediment from many years of logging.

When the Pronsolinos sought a logging permit, state forestry officials required various measures to reduce erosion as mandated by the EPA, including leaving certain trees uncut. The couple said the measures would cost them $750,000.

The landowners argued that nothing in the Clean Water Act authorized the EPA to set pollution limits for waterways contaminated solely by runoff. Their lawsuit argued that the EPA had the right to regulate only pollutants discharged from “point sources”, like drainpipes from sewage systems and industrial plants and not runoff.

Alsup disagreed, saying the Clean Water Act did not distinguish between sources of pollution in requiring quality standards for all waterways.

“The Clean Water Act called for a comprehensive set of water-quality standards for every navigable river and water in America,” the Judge wrote. “No substandard river or water was immune by reason of its sources of pollution.”

The American Farm Bureau Federation said the ruling was not a defeat because states would still make the final land-use decisions.

“This ruling will keep regulatory authority over non-point sources at the state level, where it belongs and where Congress intended it to be,” Federation President Bob Stallman said in a statement.

[JR: How about the EPA getting after military bases and Government dump-sites that contaminate the land and seep into underground aquifers? This court action is but another land grab from landowners, especially in rural farm areas. A violation would be any heavy rain that causes runoff from domestic animals, grazing areas or even wildlife in remote areas. With expanded asset-forfeiture laws, both federal and state governments can then proceed to take possession of even more land.]

EU MONITOR FEARS RACISM BECOMING ACCEPTABLE

By Karin Taylor, Reuters, 3/30/00

VIENNA—Racism is becoming increasingly accepted in the European Union as politicians pander to voter fears over immigration, the head of the European Union’s anti-racism watchdog said.

“Europe is going through a dangerous phase,” Beate Winkler, head of the European Monitoring Centre on Racism and Xenophobia (EUMC), told Reuters in a recent interview.

“There is an increasing move away from centrist positions and right-wing—even far-right positions—are losing their taboos.”

By an ironic twist of fate, the monitoring center is based in Austria, whose new Government has been ostracized by European Union partners since it took office in February because it includes the anti-immigration, far-right Freedom Party.

That has prompted the Centre, which has operated since July 1998, to abandon plans to invite EU heads of government to its official opening on April 7.

Instead, it has invited heads of state. Austrian President Thomas Klestil is still a welcome guest in other EU capitals, in contrast to conservative Chancellor Wolfgang Schuessel....

[JR: Why is Austria’s policy to question immigration, w/o controls, singled out and termed racist and xenophobic? An influx of foreign immigration impacts any country—socially, demographically and politically. This fits well into the globalist scheme to dilute a selected nation’s ethnic identity and history and to change it politically.]

DISARMAMENT PROVES FATAL FOR AUSTRALIAN CITIZENS

Intelligence Digest, 4/5/00

It’s been almost two years since gun owners in Australia were forced to surrender 640,381 personal firearms to be destroyed. A program costing the Government more than $500 million dollars of taxpayers’ money.

Within one year, Australia-wide homicides went up 3.2 percent; Australia-wide assaults rose 8.6 percent; and Australia-wide armed robberies skyrocketed 44 percent. In the State of Victoria, homicides with firearms increased 300 percent (Orange Country Register, 8/04/99).

There has also been a dramatic increase in break-ins and assaults on the elderly.... The most defenseless have been made completely defenseless.

Before the recent crackdown on personal firearms, figures over the previous 25 years had shown a steady decrease in armed robbery.

The “superior” intellects of governments worldwide have told us repeatedly that “gun ownership and availability are the reasons why so many shooting deaths occur... and why so much crime occurs”....

...Today, citizens who do not own guns are encouraged to feel badly against those who do own guns. Thus, you have the Hollywood liberals wagging their finger at Charleton Heston after a shooting saying, “I hope you’re happy!”

There’s a logical explanation for this phenomenon, people. The Government is trying to disarm the population to impose an absolute dictatorship [the likes of] which the world has never seen. With the presence of over 100 million guns in the United States alone, there is a great obstacle to the coming New World Order that looms as high as Mt. Everest. This number of guns and the number of gun owners [estimated at almost 90 million Americans] is overwhelming to the future dictators of the New World Order. Therefore, we are witnessing a most intense drive to get Americans pitted against themselves and against each other. So Americans that own at least one gun are targeted with propaganda to get them feeling guilty about owning guns. These are the suckers who turn their guns in during an Amnesty campaign.

The most unfortunate part of the scenario is that the elderly are the biggest victims [of] the confiscation of guns. The types of crimes being perpetrated against them are inexcusable. Since they are not able to defend themselves or flee, they continue to live in constant fear of home invasions and assault-related crimes.

Who cares, in a society which promotes infanticide and euthanasia, right?...

...Evidently, criminals have become more assertive and exceptionally confident since the law-abiding [citizens have] been forced to give up their weapons. And [this makes] it exceptionally hard for the police to cope with the surge in crime, I might add!

How could the people of Australia allow themselves to get snookered into giving up their guns? Because they have been brainwashed, and [they] allowed their elected representatives to appeal to their emotions rather than their reason.

Now, what was that popular bumper sticker in America? “When guns are outlawed, only outlaws will own guns.” This New World Order mentality in Australia has literally validated this sentiment 300%....

...In the United States, dirty tricks and tugging on the... heart strings [of the populace] is standard. President Pinocchio is now challenging members of Congress to produce tougher gun-control laws by April 20. With little surprise, it also happens to be the anniversary of the Columbine High School massacre.

As another example of their shameless tactics, Mr. Clinton met congressional leaders at the White House last Tuesday, with the mother of the six-year-old who was shot dead by a classmate last week.

His speech included the very predictable: "How many people have to get killed before we do something?"...

...Another example of increased violence after gun confiscation is in South Africa, [where] a new democratically-elected Government rode into office on a glimmering stallion with promises of equal rights for all, Black or White, rich or poor. That very same Government today is pushing ever-increasing restrictions on the gun rights of citizens; new gun registration and owner licensing requirements; increased fees; and a lifetime ownership limit of one firearm for self-defense.

South African anti-gun politicians soft-sell the new laws, but as Sheena Duncan, a spokeswoman for the anti-gun lobby admitted on camera, "Our ultimate goal is no guns in private hands at all."

Despite South Africa's already strict anti-gun laws, 25,000 murders and more than 40,000 rapes are committed each year. Nearly 1,300 policemen have been killed in the line of duty since 1994. All who obey the law—Black and White, rich and poor—suffer, while criminals thrive, all in the name of "global disarmament".

To date, at least 25 nations have tightened anti-gun laws or have banned guns entirely. Now they are plotting, through the United Nations, to stomp out firearms freedom wherever it exists....

[JR: Private ownership of guns is being outlawed, while our Government gets richer by selling arms and weapons to everyone else. The anti-gun lobbyists had better start doing some serious thinking because there just aren't enough bodyguards with permits to go around.]

UN BLAMES POVERTY ON GOVERNMENT

New York Times, 4/5/00

NEW YORK—After years of treading carefully around the issue of why so many countries stay poor or get poorer, the United Nations in a report Tuesday put a lot of the blame on bad government.

The report by the UN Development Program elevates "good governance" to the top priority in fighting poverty; the term is the newest notion in development theory.

Without good governance, reliance on trickle-down economic development and a host of other strategies will not work, the report concludes.

The program's new administrator, Mark Malloch Brown, a Briton who came to the UN last year from the World Bank, has drawn hostility from developing countries, which accuse him of interfering in the internal affairs of governments.

Nevertheless, he said, "What this report clearly demonstrates is that governance is a critical building block for poverty reduction."

That criticism has also been leveled at Secretary-General Kofi Annan for suggesting that nations with human-rights abuses can no longer hide behind their borders, claiming national sovereignty.

Development experts now accept that local governments, which are often neglected or non-existent in the developing world, must play a crucial role in reducing poverty. Historically, foreign aid has gone to central governments.

When donors could no longer ignore that aid was being siphoned off through corruption or misuse of funds, non-governmental agencies, not local governments, were given the money or goods.

A growing number of development experts believe that this shift bred its own problems, as the private agencies invented projects to get more money or funneled aid to meet their own priorities, making national efforts disjointed.

The UN report also concludes that big, expensive surveys of poverty are not much good either. It recommends frequent and rapid studies to serve as barometers of the effectiveness of programs and policies.

[JR: If the powerful nations ceased promoting their own agendas and allowed small nations to choose their leaders without outside influence and determine their own futures, it might create stability and an environment for development and progress. The UN hasn't allowed any of that to happen, has it?]

GLOBAL BANKS DRAW FIRE OVER AFRICAN OIL PROJECT

By Merrill Goozner, Chicago Tribune, 4/7/00

WASHINGTON—Etched on a wall overlooking the marbled atrium of the World Bank is both a sentiment and mission: "Create a world free of poverty."

But the pursuit of that goal—even in approving a relatively minor $90 million loan to jumpstart a huge oil-pipeline project in two of Africa's poorest nations—can become enormously controversial.

Initial funding for the Exxon-Mobil project in Chad and Cameroon is a prime example of decisions that will draw thousands of demonstrators to Washington in the coming week to focus attention on two institutions little known to most Americans but critical to poorer nations.

Emboldened by their role in the collapse of the World Trade Organization talks in Seattle last December, the anti-globalism demonstrators are taking aim at policies of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, lending agencies that were created after World War II to aid developing nations.

Protest groups plan to meet in Washington on Saturday to begin two weeks of events ranging from a rally against granting China Permanent Normal Trading status, to a "teach-in on the devastating effects of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank", said Nadine Bloch of the Mobilization for a Global Justice, the umbrella group for the demonstrators.

April 16 and 17 are slated for "non-violent, direct action and protest" at the IMF-World Bank meetings.

"We are calling for a shutdown of the Bank and IMF meeting," Bloch said.

The protesters charge that when the World Bank helps finance big projects like Exxon-Mobil's $3.5 billion developments in Chad and Cameroon, the proceeds have gone largely to foreign corporations and ruling Elites, without improving the lives of local residents.

In recent months, rebels in neighboring Nigeria have been blowing up oil pipelines because the promised benefits of oil exploration never trickled down.

"The Government people have nice houses and big cars, while the poor don't even have clean water to drink," said Delphine Djiraibe, a lawyer for the Chadian Association for the Defense and Promotion of Human Rights. "Many people don't want the government dealing with oil-project revenue because it is obvious they will steal all the money."

World Bank officials bristle at such charges, and claim they have built safeguards into the project to ensure its revenues go toward improving local conditions.

"Our job is not to get money out of the ground and into the pockets of Exxon or the Elites of Chad and Cameroon," said Philippe Benoit, a Bank official who has worked on the project for more than five years. "Our job is to alleviate poverty."

The U.S. is the largest stakeholder in both institutions, which have become a pervasive presence in poor countries.

The World Bank issued $29 billion in loans last year to more than 90 developing nations, bringing their total indebtedness to the Bank to a staggering $200 billion. The IMF is owed another $90.8 billion, with 43 nations dipping into its funds last year to help local economies avert disaster.

The protesters claim the strings attached to those loans have made things worse for many poor countries. The World Bank's and IMF's so-called "structural adjustment" policies, which require balanced budgets, stable currencies and export promotion, have left many of these countries deeper in debt and more impoverished than they were a decade ago.

They say the Chad and Cameroon oil project is typical. As currently structured, the project will only exacerbate the well-documented human-rights and corruption problems of both countries, they maintain....

...Cameroon, which includes some of the richest rainforests on the African continent, has done little to end the illegal logging and poaching that is despoiling its most precious natural resource. Its Government has been called the most corrupt in the world by Transparency International, a London-based group with chapters in 60 nations, dedicated to curbing international government corruption.

World Bank lending policies are also drawing fire from conservative critics, who suggest the Bank has no business subsidizing the private sector....

...International loans for education and health shouldn't be used to free up resources for armies and police, he said. Lending should no longer promote environmental destruction, and the Bank should get out of the business of providing loans that subsidize industries like oil that have easy access to private capital markets.

But the U.S. representatives on the World Bank Board have not questioned the Chad-Cameroon oil project. Most of the 650-mile pipeline route snakes through the rainforests of Cameroon, where the Government has colluded in illegal logging schemes and has turned its back, critics say, on poaching that has depleted wildlife and is destroying the traditional way of life of the forest-dwelling tribes.

Environmentalists are seeking a two-year moratorium to build firmer guarantees on revenue sharing and environmental protection.

Yet, World Bank officials are getting ready to plunge ahead with the project, which officials claim is the only chance for Chad to begin dealing with its grinding poverty.

To ensure project revenue is used to improve the health, education and infrastructure of both countries, Bank officials plan to set up offshore accounts so they can monitor the cash flow.

The World Bank also demanded Exxon Mobil re-route the underground pipeline along existing right-of-ways.

Bank officials also plan to provide technical assistance to Cameroon to help it monitor and enforce environmental protections along the pipeline route....

...The oil project would be a major boon for Deby's hard-pressed Government. While the oil consortium will fund most of the project, the World Bank plans to lend Chad $35 million and Cameroon $55 million so they can participate in the deal.

For Chad's Government, the projected annual revenue of $80 million is about half its annual budget. World Bank officials insist they have built-in safeguards that will ensure the money goes to improve living standards in a country where just a quarter of the population has access to safe water....

...The World Bank's 24-member board could approve the project as early as this month.

An Exxon spokesman vigorously defended its leading role in helping bring Chad and Cameroon into the ranks of the world's oil-producing nations.

"We operate in countries the U.S. allows us to operate in," said Thomas Cirigliano, a spokesman for Exxon-Mobil. "That doesn't mean we endorse the policies of the governments we have to deal with."

[JR: These globalists speak from both sides of their mouth. They can give assurances and guarantees but who will enforce it, since these multi-nationals are a law unto themselves. They are only in it for the profits and to show a good return to their stockholders. It is not in their plans to bring change, hope and a better future for these developing nations—unless it directly relates to their earnings.]

"DIGITAL STORM" BREWS AT FBI

By Robert O'Harrow, Jr., Washington Post, 4/6/00

In response to growing concerns about terrorism, hackers and other high-tech criminals, the Federal Bureau of Investigation is planning a series of sophisticated computer systems that would sharply increase agents' ability to gather and analyze information.

The FBI is seeking more than $75 million in budget appropriations to continue a massive information technology expansion, which includes a system dubbed "Digital Storm" that eases the court-sanctioned collection and electronic sifting of traffic on telephones and cellular phones.

Another proposed system would create "the foundation for an up-to-date, flexible digital-collection infrastructure" for wiretaps under the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act. A third initiative would develop an "enterprise database" that would enable agents to analyze huge amounts of data and share them via a secure World Wide Web-style network. The Bureau has also formed a privacy council to review the use of data and protect against unwarranted intrusions into innocent Americans' lives, a concern raised by privacy advocates.

FBI officials said the Bureau's information-technology systems are aging and need to be updated to keep pace with criminal activities, both on the Internet and offline.

"Our crimes [Hummmmm!] that we're investigating today have a much more national and global scale," said Deputy Assistant Director Edward Allen. "And it's so much faster-paced. It becomes much more critical that we communicate more comprehensively."

The proposals follow a series of Bureau initiatives in recent years to gain more authority to conduct wiretaps, crack encrypted documents and subpoena computer-related information. FBI officials believe that the new data-surveillance capability is crucial to the Bureau's strategic goal of deterring major criminal acts through surveillance and intelligence gathering.

"The [information technology] demanded of this plan presently does not exist within the FBI, but is at the core of activities to be implemented," the budget documents state.

But civil-liberties activists, legislators and legal specialists are alarmed that the Bureau's proposals could erode constitutional protections that limit Government searches, with almost no discussion to date about the implications on Capitol Hill.

The initiatives apparently would not require an expansion of FBI powers under existing law. But critics said the linking of scattered sources of information would lead to a huge increase in data collection and analysis.

In its budget documents, for example, the FBI estimates that technological advances would so improve the ability to conduct wiretaps that the number of approved taps would grow by 300 percent over the next decade....

...The agency would also continue expanding its use of commercial databases containing credit information, real estate records, vehicle registrations and a plethora of other personal details.

The budget says "the explosion and availability of open-source information, and the number of information bases and data sources that can and should be searched becomes formidable."

"They're not merely talking about making more efficient use of information they already have," said James Dempsey, Senior Staff Counsel at the Center for Democracy and Technology, an advocacy group in the District. "They're talking about casting a wider net and sweeping in vastly more information."

Others, such as Stewart Baker, former General Counsel for the National Security Agency, say the FBI already has tremendous power and little oversight.

"They're acting within the law, but it's fair to be nervous about that," said Baker, a partner at the law firm Steptoe & Johnson and a member of a privacy advisory board at the Federal Trade Commission. "An awful lot of information can be gathered with only a modest amount of justification."

Rep. Robert L. Barr, Jr. (R-Ga.) said... he will raise his concerns at a hearing today of the Constitution Subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee. The Subcommittee will explore the adequacy of privacy protections under current laws.

"The reason we're focusing on this now... [is] because of the Government's ability to gather, store and manipulate massive amounts of data," Barr said.

The FBI's Allen acknowledged that the Bureau's ability to manage that data will soar with the new technology. But he said Bureau employees will have only restricted access to the databases, and that there already are legal restraints on wiretaps and other surveillance. Agents seeking a wiretap, for instance, will still have to receive court approval and then make regular reports to the judge about the progress of the case.

Allen also said that the FBI will include software that tracks who accesses files in order to create an audit trail.

The Bureau is seeking $15 million for Digital Storm, a digital surveillance system that helps agents monitor telephone calls and analyze computerized recordings under federal Title III wiretap authority. Other law-enforcement agencies use similar systems. A similar program for monitoring under the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA) would cost $10 million next year.

Information from Digital Storm and the FISA system would be fed into new in-house databases known as Casa De Web. It would enable agents and other authorities to use web browsers to instantly upload the results of surveillance or other evidence. It also would archive "audio, data, and reports produced on these collection systems", the budget states.

"It facilitates the sharing of electronic-surveillance evidentiary data... and intelligence... between FBI field offices," the budget documents said in the $10 million request for Casa De Web.

The Bureau also is asking Congress for $41 million for an Information Sharing Initiative. That program, begun last year, calls for the creation of a giant "enterprise database" and an array of other technological improvements that would give the Bureau "a robust intelligence capability".

Carolyn Morris, head of the Bureau's Information Resources Division, noted... the Bureau is sensitive to Americans' privacy concerns. Several months ago, the Bureau created a privacy council led by Patrick Kelley, Deputy General Counsel and the senior privacy officer. Among other things, the council will develop privacy rules for databases with 10,000 or more records.

"Our goal is to ensure that there are no unwarranted invasions of personal privacy and to balance the interests" of investigators and individual citizens.

[JR: Protection of the privacy of U.S. citizens is not assured under present laws against "domestic terrorism". If you read, write and have access to information or publications that expose the abuses of power in Washington, or criticize the ruling class—you will fall under the surveillance net. I would not rest easy, comrade citizen—Big Brother is already monitoring all of us with their international Echelon system.]

GOLD "ON THE BRINK OF A BREAKTHROUGH"

By Keith Damsell, Financial Post, 3/30/00

The inflated U.S. dollar is long overdue for a major correction, a day of reckoning that will mean dramatic gains in the price of gold, a Toronto investment advisor says.

"We are in the early stages of the next up cycle for gold," David Chapman, investment advisor at Gorinsen Capital, Inc. in Toronto, told the Canadian Society of Technical Analysts yesterday. "If the U.S. dollar stands to slide, make sure you've got gold on board."

Within the next two years, he forecasts gold will rise to its rough historical median near "the value of a good suit", suggesting a price range of between $600 (all in U.S. dollars) an ounce to $1,500.

A price spike as high as $5,000 "may very well happen if we get a deep enough crisis", Mr. Chapman said.

The unique correlation between the value of the U.S. dollar and gold, figures prominently in the analyst's forecast. In 1971, the U.S. abandoned the gold standard, a move that has put pressure on the U.S. Federal Reserve to support the value of the dollar—and drive down gold—for much of the past 30 years. In 1994 and 1995, the Fed and the Bank of Japan undertook a "massive intervention" campaign to boost the ailing currency, sparking a chain of events that led to further pressure on bullion and a flood of capital into the U.S. stock market, Mr. Chapman said.

Gold eventually sank to a 20-year-low of $250 an ounce in August last year. Despite an agreement among Europe's central banks to limit sales and lending and dramatic hedging reductions by gold producers, the precious metal continues to hover in the $280 range. "Gold has slipped into oblivion," he said. "There is a lot of negative sentiment out there."

But "astounding" U.S. debt levels suggest a dramatic change is in the works, Mr. Chapman said. The U.S.'s record 10 years of economic growth has been fuelled largely by debt, especially corporate and household debt. The U.S.'s total debt has climbed from about $14 trillion, 10 years ago, to more than $24 trillion today, more than twice the size of the U.S.'s Gross Domestic Product [GDP].

Meanwhile, the U.S. trade deficit is rising at an alarming rate, with consumers and corporations buying a record $28 billion more foreign goods than U.S.-made goods in a recent month. Savings rates have hit record lows as more dollars make their way into soaring stocks.

"Why preserve regular economic activity, when I can make more money chasing stocks?" Mr. Chapman said. "It's debt that's holding the glue together and when that becomes unhinged, the whole house of cards will come down."

[JR: Gold, like the stock market today, is thoroughly manipulated. If you listen to the advice of these "NEW" market gurus, you are playing with sharks in a bathtub.]

TELEPHONE HOTLINE 661-822-0202

As an adjunct to CONTACT, the Telephone Hotline keeps you as informed as possible on current events and other important information that needs to get to our subscribers before our publishing date.

The message machine will answer after 2 rings if there are any new messages for that day, and after 4 rings if not. Thus daily callers can hang up after 2 rings and save toll charges if no new message has been recorded. If the Hotline does not answer your call, then there is currently no Hotline message.
