Philippines' Gold Being Shipped Out

11/20/00—#1 (14-96)

RE: THANKSGIVING, PHILIPPINE DEBACLE: GOLD SHIPPED OUT OF COUNTRY TO PLACES NOW PETITIONED TO LOAN BACK MONEY TO THE PHILIPPINES TO COVER OUTSTANDING DEBTS. IS IT TRUE THE PHILIPPINES IS THUMBING NOSE AT IMF?

ECONOMICS TOO DIFFICULT IN OIP?

Hatonn—Do you feel bogged in hogswill in a global measure? That is because you ARE. However, when you try to deal with a global mess in increments suitable to some understanding possibilities you are caught in the tar-baby.

So, we have the U.S.A. to watch and then we have to depend on you readers to KEEP UP with the information flow which, just from CONTACT, is enough to bury you in confusion. Dharma doesn't want to sit to the keyboard because the absolute lies are offered so freely and abundantly as to negate almost ANY article in the paper. But, ah, wait, my chelas—if you look at the articles in a “generalized” manner and check out the connections, you will see a great deal more of probable truth.

Let us first look at:

THE IMF input regarding the due-and-owing tranche of a couple of hundred million loan to the Philippines might first come to attention.

That tranche was under conditions long since blown out.

The IMF demanded privatization of the Philippine National Bank (PNB). Lucio Tan, Taipan, met that challenge, or so it was published—but more hang-ups have raised their forked heads, so we will ignore that for the moment. On OCTOBER 13, 2000 the IMF pressed hard on that privatization taking place. It

(IMF) had also said the Philippines had to meet the requirements of meeting a debt of P62.5 billion as a limit above which they would not make the payment. In October that had already risen in FACT to over P82.9 billion. Today it is in the upper P90+ range and spiraling upward.

So, on Monday, November 13, 2000 suddenly came forth from Governor Buenaventura in the middle of the political mess: [QUOTING The Philippine STAR, “Business”:]

RP WON'T KOWTOW TO IMF AGAIN

Government will not kowtow again to the International Monetary Fund (IMF) for the new program despite a general slump in the economy, Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) Governor Rafael B. Buenaventura said over the weekend.

“The Philippines will just ask for a post-monitoring program that would not require any funding and would thus not entail any strict conditionalities,” Buenaventura explained.

He also denied reports that the country is getting shut out of official development assistance (ODA) programs, contrary to what some quarters are spreading.

“That’s disinformation,” Buenaventura said of rumors that the country’s ODA donors are withholding new official assistance because of the current political uncertainty.

However, some quarters said some project proponents are now wary of undertaking even ODA assisted projects or privately funded ones because of the tripling of their political insurance.

But Buenaventura said ODA projects do not need political insurance, saying that since ODA funds are still available, the country does not need to get funding from the IMF.

“We don’t really need it,” he said, adding that “It’s about time we get away from concessional financing.”

[H: THE LIE OF LIES coming up next.]

The BSP chief pointed out the country has been trying to exit from the IMF way back in 1997 but because of the Asian financial crisis, the country was forced to remain under the IMF’s tutelage.

He also admitted it will take some time before the country can recover from the credit-rating downgrade it received from two international rating agencies.

Buenaventura said before the Philippines can get an upgrade, it would have to work on restoring its economic outlook back to stable first. The credit rating for Philippine sovereign issuances is currently just below investment grade.—Marianne Go

[END OF QUOTING]

Hummmn, now that [exit] would put Singson in place as bank governor and Ramos still in the seat of President.

What does that have to do with GAIA or the price of tea in China? LOTS.

The Consulate of PALESTINE here in Manila is Mr. Tony Leviste, husband of Senator Lagarda-Leviste. As you might guess, Mr. Leviste is also a mover-shaker business man in the Philippines. With the senator present, as well as Ekker, Martin and Neil, he picked up the phone and called BSP Governor Singson personally. He repeated that Gov. Singson had said, regarding GAIA, “Go ahead and just USE IT. It will be honored unless it gets too big and out of hand so that we have to GET INTO IT.” This was in the Fall of 1998 prior to Mr. Leviste’s Christmas travels to Israel for the Holidays. He left his staff to look into the matter—from which time we heard no conclusion but certainly no denial of authenticity.

In due course of political changes Gov. Singson stepped down and Gov. Buenaventura took the Governorship of the Central Bank.

We have been told by many people that the Central Bank had authenticated GAIA and the deeds could not legally be DENIED.

So what might be the problem here? I want you to look carefully at the SHELL GAME in progress. IT IS ALL ENTANGLED RIGHT THROUGH THE U.S. AND IT WILL BE REMEMBERED, PLEASE, THAT BUENAVENTURA WENT TO THE U.S. AND DID ACTUALLY MEET WITH CLINTON DURING THE “INFORMAL STATE VISIT OF ESTRADA” THIS YEAR.

BUT! What else is taking place as we write here today? Well, the election is not being settled in the U.S., is it? Still pending?—and Estrada is relying on Gore to be elected to save his assets—apparently as guaranteed by Clinton—“if...”.

OK, now let us dig a bit deeper and consider the article we offered and shared yesterday. It was important enough that John Ray noted it on the Internet and forwarded another copy to us in Manila. That regarded the FACT (directly from the Central Bank) that 95 percent (95%) of ALL THE GOLD RESERVES HAD BEEN SENT OUT OF THE COUNTRY AND TO SUCH INSTITUTIONS AS BANK OF ENGLAND, NEW YORK FEDERAL RESERVE AND OTHER UNNAMED BUT MAJOR INSTITUTIONS.

Does anyone remember the bail-out of the hedgefund dealing in gold [LTCM] and coming up so short that they had to be shored up to keep the entire industry from collapse—over abuse of gold dealings? Wow, does the plot thicken, Dr. Watson?

So, note that today is Monday, Nov. 20, 2000. STUDY THE LINEUP NAMED AND SEE IF YOU CAN GUESS WHO HAS LOST THE GOLD: Keep in mind that the annual interest of the Philippines to IMF/WB is some $6 billion.

[QUOTING The Philippine STAR, Nov. 20, 2000, “Business”:]

BSP TO BORROW $870 MILLION NEXT YEAR

The Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) will borrow a total of $870 million next year to refinance maturing obligations of the same amount.

This was announced by BSP Governor Rafael B. Buenaventura and BSP Deputy Governor Amando Tetangco Jr. who identified at least six banks which have expressed interest in joining a club loan for an initial $400 million.

[H: Please note that there was a meeting of GAIA’s people, including Martin-Neil AND MANNY GADI with Deputy Governor Amando Tetangco. Again the documents were found whole and true.]

THE SIX BANKS ARE CITIBANK, HSBC, STANDARD CHARTERED BANK, EQUITABLE PCI BANK, TOKYO-MITSUBISHI AND CHASE MANHATTAN.

The BSP, Buenaventura said, is also talking to several other banks which may want to participate in the club loan that the BSP hopes to complete by January next year. The BSP governor said the BSP has decided to do the borrowing in two tranches—as borrowing the entire amount would probably be more costly.

At the moment, Buenaventura said, it is a “lender’s market” rather than a “borrower’s market”.

Because it is a lender’s market, Buenaventura said, the BSP is negotiating for a club loan to be able to get better pricing.

If it was a borrower’s market, Buenaventura said the BSP could ask the banks to compete and submit separate proposals.

The club loan, Tetangco explained, would be based on “relationships” that take into account the long-term relationship of the bank lender to the country. During a borrower’s market, Buenaventura said, the offers are more “opportunistic”.

The BSP has begun negotiations for the club loan this early before the loans that need to be refinanced mature.

At this stage, there is still no term and pricing.

The old loan was also financed through a similar club loan way back in 1998 and had a term of three years.

However, this time around, Buenaventura said the BSP could seek a longer term of five years depending on the pricing it gets.

Under a club loan, the banks would contribute almost equal amounts with no lead bank, arranger or underwriter.

[END OF QUOTING]

So next let us consider, while referring back to the top of this article itself regarding ODAs (official development assistance) where Mr. B. denied being “shut out” of assistance. Are there more problems in the woodpile than possible to factually account?

I also ask you to remind selves that Japan is a major player referred to here as a resource for ODA and it should be noted that the political mess in Japan and Mr. Mori is actually WORSE than in the Philippines. And guess what is going to be the final destruction of the Prime Minister? Of course—abuse of money, reserves and economic dealings of a most shady nature. He is accused of being “graft-prone”.

[QUOTING SAME PAPER, SAME SECTION, SAME PAGE:]

GOV’T TO SHUN INTERNATIONAL
CAPITAL MARKET
IN FAVOR OF ODA NEXT YEAR

The National Government will rely next year on official development assistance (ODA)—and funding from bilateral and multilateral financing would supplement domestic borrowings. As a last resort, the government will only go back to the international capital market if the domestic funding and ODA funds are not enough.

Pardo revealed that the country has $10.3 billion in ODA funds that have not yet been utilized. [H: Say what???

He denied claims that the Estrada government has been shut out of any further new ODA funds until it institutes key structural reforms in the political arena. Former Finance Secretary Edgardo B. Espiritu had said that the Estrada government has been shut out from any new ODA funding until it institutes structural political reforms as well as economic reforms.

The World Bank, one of the country's primary multilateral sources of funding, has suspended the release of the remaining $200 million in the Bank Sector Reform Loan (BSRL) following the failure of the country to meet key conditionalities on fiscal performance.

The same conditionalities on fiscal performance, specifically revenue generation and the budgetary deficit, have derailed the country's program with the International Monetary Fund which serves as the economic watchdog for the international financial community.

The Estrada government has also decided not to seek a new funding program with the IMF but will merely enter into a post-monitoring program that will not necessitate strict conditionalities.

However, the seal of good housekeeping by the IMF is normally a prerequisite to any ODA, bilateral or multilateral financial assistance.

The Estrada government is having difficulty tapping the international capital market because of the current wide spread on Philippine debt papers.

The latest spread, which has supposedly improved, is still about 585 basis points over the corresponding tenor of U.S. Treasury bonds.

The negative perception of the Philippines stems from its current uncertain political picture which has also prompted international credit rating agencies to down-grade their economic outlook of the country to negative from stable.—Marianne Go

[END OF QUOTING]

I would like to point out a very important point presented in another article on the same page of this same paper. It states that "FOREIGN FUNDS START COMING BACK" and it quoted from these same people at the BSP.

I want to point out that you can now GUESS pretty clearly that the things are in such a mess as to be a setup for STEALING the Philippines.

To manage the currency, which didn't get managed after all, the interest rates are outrageous and businesses are going to fail one after another now. This allows the structure already established to allow a full theft of the Philippines. Goodbye freedom, hello New Puppet-Masters (or old ones as the case is).

Meanwhile, Philippine citizen: "WHERE IS YOUR GOLD, YOUR RESERVES, YOUR COUNTRY?" If you thought Mr. Soros was a nasty Grinch who stole your Christmases past, present and future—you haven't seen anything yet. And you can read it here but it is now public information put to press in your own papers. YOU HAVE BEEN ROYALLY "HAD" AND SO TOO HAVE ALL YOUR NEIGHBORS.

I ASK THAT THE ARTICLE FROM YESTERDAY TO WHICH I REFERRED BE APPENDED TO THIS WRITING, PLEASE, SO THAT THIS CAN BE SHARED. YESTERDAY'S EXPLANATION OF THE SHIPPING OUT OF GOLD IS BY FAR THE FOUNDATION UPON WHICH THE REST OF THE SELL-OUT IS BASED.

I suggest that it is only a matter of mere moments before you will be confronted again by the GAIA instruments, ladies and gentlemen, and there will be a demand for answers—all the way back to the players in Washington D.C.

Since the assets were USED by President George H.W. Bush Sr., validated and authenticated, it is unlikely that, even with the ouster of Fujimori of Peru as to authentication of the original Peruvian Certificate, the asset can be denied for it is registered, recorded, proven by jurat as a contract and it might just be a good thing, gentlemen, to consider how best to USE IT NOW as a foundation for some measure of recovery for the nations who have been destroyed at the hands of the criminals. I would guess that Bush Jr. might have a glowing and brilliant opportunity to prove his promise and commitment to GOD and NATION. So be it.

P.S.: Speaking of losses to the thugs—look at poor Bro. Jefri in Brunei who was convicted of losing funds (gold?) in just such a shift-and-hide in speculation—reserves. Now, what? Oh, the British Crown is dumping honor and promises on Brunei like candy going out of style. They stole Brunei's gold also, and as well, KNOW that in addition, British Petroleum and Shell are part of the game as well. May all those "Sirs" hold up in court. Join the Crown and steal the world. Well, there is also Sir Bush, et al., along with other great and wondrous "actors"—but, don't count on it for Erap Estrada, who has embarrassed his Masters and whose uncovering is also going to uncover myriads of additional criminals and treasonists in his circles.

THE INSERT FROM YESTERDAY'S WRITING:
[QUOTING The Philippine STAR, Business section, Sunday [H: So nobody would notice.] November 19, 2000:]

REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES (RP)
GOLD RESERVES VALUED AT $1.86 BILLION
By Marianne V. Go

[D: This points up that if people really knew how and who runs the government and their lives—there would be lynching of the politicians in the streets.]

The country's gold reserves as of Oct. 31 this year has been valued at approximately $1.86 billion, it was revealed yesterday by the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP).

The BSP also explained that 95 percent of the gold reserves, HAS BEEN SHIPPED OUT OF THE COUNTRY VIA A LOCATION SWAP TRANSACTION WITH AN ACCREDITED INTERNATIONAL FINANCIAL INSTITUTION.

Under a location swap transaction, the BSP's counterparty delivers an equivalent amount of gold to the BSP's account at the BANK OF ENGLAND after they take delivery of gold from the BSP's vault and ship the gold out of the country.

That way, the BSP said, the counterparty and the BSP both save on the costs of shipping.

The BSP further explained that it ships its gold reserves to its account at the Bank of England so that these may be used for investment in the international market.

For example, the BSP's gold reserves can be deposited with accredited foreign financial institutions, in the name of the BSP, to generate interest income.

Such shipments, the BSP said, are always approved by the MONETARY BOARD, the policy-making body of the BSP, and are properly documented.

The BSP pointed out that the shipment of gold bars out of the country has been part of the gold operations of the BSP since its establishment in 1993.

The BSP said numerous countries also ship their gold reserves to a bank account located outside their respective countries, for example, an account with the Bank of England or with the FEDERAL RESERVE BANK OF NEW YORK, so that the gold can be used for international financial transactions.

The BSP's gold reserves are also part of the country's gross international reserves, or GIR.

As of the end-October, the country's GIR stood at $14.4 billion.

The BSP said that it used to buy gold from silver-scale miners from Davao. However, their gold production has dropped and most of its miners now no longer sell to the BSP since the buying and selling of gold has been liberalized under Circular 1389.

[END OF QUOTING]

Now to make your day sad perhaps: Know that the entire leadership of the "opposition" teams are U.S. puppets, including Clinton classmate, Gloria (unless she takes a stand on her own merit). The Philippines is gearing up for Civil War, it appears, while everyone whistles in the dark—er-ah—wind. I also suggest that you readers who can do so look at the "Gotcha" column by Jarius Bondoc today. "One mansion equals 2,000 mass houses." Indeed, Merry Christmas—However, do NOT expect Christ to be very proud of most today.

As to the "lights in the sky" which "dance" and are seen by all in the area? Touché! Have a nice day—if you can. GCH

GLOBAL ALLIANCE INVESTMENT ASSOCIATION

HOW TO QUIT A WINNER

By E.J. Ekker

No matter what steps are taken to save it, it is becoming clear that the Estrada Presidency will be greatly foreshortened. That early termination can be a disgraceful debacle, or a triumphant withdrawal—leaving a legacy far more valuable than anything any other President has ever left this nation.

If, for instance, one of the last things done by President Estrada was to be his issuing and signing an Executive Order instructing the BSP to immediately implement the use of the GAIA DEEDs as banking reserves, the same as any other U.S. Treasury debt, the impact upon the Philippine economy would be no less than “electric”. He could then say, as he waved “goodbye”, “Because I am leaving now, I can do something that I could not do before. As my final act as your President I am keeping my promise to lift the poor out of poverty. Many of you, through your livelihood organizations, have DEEDs OF ASSIGNMENT from the GLOBAL ALLIANCE. I have ordered the Bangko Sentral to accept those DEEDs through our commercial banking system as supplemental collateral for project loans, which will make billions of pesos available for your livelihood projects, much of it even in time for Christmas if you do your part. I have wanted to do this for some time but have been prevented from doing so by the IMF and World Bank. Now that I am leaving, and can draw the “heat”, I am doing so, leaving my successor blameless and unfettered to enjoy, with you, God’s boundless abundance. May God bless you all.”

The benefit to the new administration is that it can avoid controversy with the IMF.

PROPOSAL TO JUMP-START THE PHILIPPINE ECONOMY AND REVERSE THE DIRECTION OF THE VALUE OF THE PESO

ACTIONS REQUIRED FOR IMPLEMENTATION

RP: Presidential Executive Order to BSP requiring BSP treat GAIA DEEDs as U.S. Treasury debt, payable in gold. (This allows BSP to issue new credit/currency equal to the discounted value of each project plus its accompanying DEED.) [Estimated time required: 1 day.]

BSP: Notify member banks (domestic only) that the GAIA DEEDs are to be treated as RESERVES the same as other U.S. Treasury debt with the exception that the “face amount” of the DEED does not require a discount for coupon or maturity so none of those calculations are needed. Please Note: Expert attorneys specializing in international banking have designed this program to fit into virtually all banking systems so that no special education of bank personnel will be required. [Estimated time required: 2 days.]

DOMESTIC BANKS: Main offices must pass on notification to branch offices. [Estimated time required: 2 days.]

GAIA: Telephone its contact persons in the Provinces; they will contact the 1200 plus DEEDholders to take their project proposals and feasibility studies to a bank of their selection. [Estimated time required: 2 hours.]

BRIEF DISCUSSION

The primary objective of the Alliance is to bring the means of freedom and upliftment to the disadvantaged peoples of the globe, beginning in Southeast Asia, specifically the RP. This requires countering the forces holding those peoples in economic bondage whose primary tool is the exclusive use of paper money, which allows them to control the value and supply of nearly all currencies, and to profit from trading in currencies whether the values are forced upward or down. This can best be accomplished through the return to gold-based currency so that “foreign exchange” is no longer required and currency trading becomes unprofitable.

The standard Memorandum of Agreement between GAIA and its Joint Venture Partners requires the purchase of gold with the 50% of loan emissions belonging to GAIA. That obviously requires the establishment and implementation of new procedures, especially for banks that are not familiar with the administration of gold or gold-based documents. For this special quick-start program, GAIA will make two modifications which will simplify and speed implementation, and reverse the downward trend of the Philippine peso. First, GAIA will grant a delay in the purchase of gold; a provision for that is already in the MOA. Second, with its line-of-credit (50% of the total loan), GAIA will purchase and hold pesos. The effect of this will be much the same as “BSP intervention” in buying an “oversupply” of pesos, but without the harmful wastage of precious foreign exchange reserves to do so. At the current daily volume of currency transactions (as listed in the newspapers, less than $100M), only two average DEED loan transactions (purchasing $40M each) would completely absorb all of the “loose” pesos. Anytime this proved to reduce the system liquidity too much, GAIA would be responsive to a request from BSP to reduce its rate of purchase.

STEP-BY-STEP DESCRIPTION OF THE ENTIRE TRANSACTION

The Integrity And Validity Of GAIA

11/25/00—#1 (14-101)

RE: SABOTAGE WORSE THAN YOU MIGHT SUSPECT BUT BETTER, AS WELL, THAN YOU MIGHT GUESS. YESTERDAY'S MAIL REGARDING G.A.I.A. ALLIANCE AND, YES, INDEED, RICK MARTIN, ONLY CORRESPONDENT FOR SPECTRUM MISINFORMATION TABLOID.

WHAT YOU ARE UP AGAINST,
YOU WHO WOULD OFFER
A BIT OF A BETTER WAY
TO YOUR BROTHERS.

Hatonn—Every day brings mail, documents, petitions for help, AND HOPE for people reaching out just to improve their lot in this old world. They are ready to bend their backs to whatever task is at hand even though they are all but hopeless against the slave-masters.

I am going to give you three things from yesterday's communications so that you can get a general idea of what is taking place here as a new army of people reach out to change their worlds and that of their brother—and you can also see what happens when your own PROCLAIMED people who speak for God turncoat in betrayal and treason unto the very neighbor and present themselves as they REALLY ARE.

I ask to copy this in reverse order so that you can see how difficult it is to get a goodly thing accomplished and how far revenge for your own actions will take you into destroying rather than changing self within the light of Godly actions even if not intent.

RICK MARTIN

Rick Martin-Cortright was so integrally involved for years in the recognition and placement of the G.A.I.A. project that it is difficult to see how he might find any cause to color the presentations.

When he turned and ran because of the misdeeds discovered in Tehachapi and the theft of the paper, he announced his status as "enemy" with threats and actions which at best were criminal. He resigned from any participation, covered his outright thefts with a settlement and then continued in his destructive ways, aided and abetted by his new crew in service.

He sucked many right into that pious "serve Sananda Christ" innocence of presentation as a minister of God and Light and is now set up as the only "correspondent" for said news sheet, Spectrum, which is both a copy and misrepresentative of even the Masters.

Our people are stunned at the antics and the outright danger of his, and their, continuing foolishness and even further misrepresentation.

Around the globe they have sent their venom and disinformation but it is difficult to waste time on such antics because, yes, indeed, we have other things to do.

To negate further involvement we will not correctly identify the writers concerned but I will assure all of you that the interference is going to backfire and the warning is, again, as much for Rick Martin as to any other reader.

When we get past this writing we will offer information from Erick San Juan who shares a recent speech as well as some interesting follow-up on fabricated financial documents running about the globe in $100 million units. This very false program has been nailed and is connected even to the President of the Philippines and his cronies. Also, you will find a notably false person involved who claims to be a senior "son of Marcos". Bad scene.

With all that going on right in New York do you think that nobody is looking at Global Alliance Investment Association—like for some three years? Now, the waiting is for the election of WHICHEVER candidate makes it to the throne in the U.S. PEOPLE, THIS IS "TAKE THE WORLD" TIME!

So, here we go in the middle of bringing a "better way" for THE PEOPLE of your globe—and your pretenders continue their idiocy which indicates mental problems or downright treason. You cannot have it both ways—either Rick has lied internationally then or he lies now and whichever it might be—the product is PROVEN, along with holders established—right through "Cosmos".

Here is just one paragraph which tells it all:
[QUOTING EXCERPT FROM CORRESPONDENCE RECEIVED NOV. 21, 2000. NAMES AND LOCATION DELETED FOR REASON OF SECURITY AND PRIVACY:]
(Tuesday, November 21, 2000)

Hi, "X",

... Do you know anyone by the name of Rick Martin? He's playing havoc with my banker who keeps getting e-mails from this guy phoo-phooing the Deeds and E.J. I told my banker the guy must be an agent provocateur. So, if you know who he is or can shed some light on the fellow it would be appreciated. ..."—"XX"

This above proves once again that there is evidence and documentation of Rick's ongoing interference with our program, even in the face of reminders of sure consequences of breaking the agreements and "settlement" contract made with that bunch of thieves and liars which did not only allow them to avoid CRIMINAL prosecution but actually allowed them to go right on and use stolen mailing lists, subscriber private lists, and actually, the taking of FUNDS.

Oh, indeed, Satan IS ALIVE AND WELL and continues to do his work through your own neighbors and brothers. Well, no thank you, ladies and gentlemen, my people have lost all worldly assets to these hoodlums as has now also impacted miserably such as The Millers and you other nice, but misguided, followers.

We will get our job done just as soon as you stop serving the adversary. When you lay down with vipers you can expect to eventually get bitten. And by the way, little "games" often turn into major actions of a most serious kind.

I ask that the timelines of happenings and contacts with #3392-181 that we have offered since being in Manila be rerun for your information. These were provided by no less than V.K. Durham and Rick Martin.

1999—JANUARY 5: GAIA AUTHORIZED THE PUBLICATION OF THE “LEGAL NOTICE—CERTIFICATE OF DEBT” TO COMPLETE THE UCC PROCEDURE PERFECTING THE CLAIM OF GAIA TO THE DEBT OF THE UST/FED FROM WHICH THERE IS NO FURTHER APPEAL.

1999—FEBRUARY 16: FINAL PUBLICATION COMPLETED—THE DEBT IS PROVEN FINAL AND NO APPEAL IS POSSIBLE.

The proving has been from here right through Government and Banking circles. But, of course, the World Banking Cartel doesn’t like the program possibilities.

WELL, THEY HAVE THE WRONG PERCEPTION, FOR WE ACTUALLY PROVIDE A WAY FOR THEIR AVOIDING TOTAL DEVASTATION—WE ACT ONLY IN HONOR TO STABILIZE, NOT DESTROY.

NOW, IF YOU THINK WE ARE “JUST PUTTING YOU ON”...:

A letter also came yesterday—and let’s look at the “other side”. We will, FOR OBVIOUS REASONS LISTED ABOVE, not share any contact information. This particular letter comes, however, from “Mindanao”—where we have already had the public bashing from the Spectrum group’s attempt at destruction but the papers now have their own guidelines for anyone sending through information as priorly was tagged on Internet and local papers.

Since there are over 700 programs in finalizing in Mindanao—with us—the people are pretty nasty about such as Rick Martin and Dr. Young.

What do “we” present? The same thing we present right in the paper CONTACT for, LIKE IT OR NOT, CONTACT “IS” the agreed-upon method of communications with the POWERS-THAT-BE. How little Rick must have believed ANYTHING.

The “last” claim of Rick to a Christ writing was at Christmas year before last where he came up with a short little message, when Dharma asked for same, which dealt with “Do unto others...”. Well, that falls as flat as the lie, doesn’t it? You CANNOT serve God/Christ and at the same time continue to serve Mammon!

Rick has denounced “Hatonn”? That is the same as denouncing Aton and all the false use of the terms or the focus on goodness and TRUTH. We ARE “getting through” in a way that can be found acceptable, 100% for THE PEOPLE, and nobody has run off to Manila for a holiday of some kind in order to experience total corruption of the governmental system, theft from the people (citizens), devastation through mismanagement and failure to bring forth even credible construction or better health possibilities. And yet, I REMIND EVERYONE, we can only OFFER—for we do not hold down a body and stuff this into its being. We must get our program “accepted” or it will forever be blown in the winds of such as the Rick Martin “wisdom-impaired” who live on your globe.

Am I being “direct”? YES, I AM OF GOD—AND I WILL MEET EVIL INTENT WHERE IT PRESENTS.

Let us turn to this letter first in point:

[QUOTING:]

From: Cotabato, Philippines

To: E.J. Ekker (GAIA)

Nov. 17, 2000

Sir:

We’re very happy in hearing that our presentations with the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP), was consistent with the GAIA Fund Formula.

We are thanking for the receipt of the document we have requested for—Memorandum—dated November 7, 2000. It is a key embedded in the pages of history and in the lines of purposes principally for the welfare of the people.

Herewith is a copy of a resolution of re-affirmation by the Board of the authority vested on the undersigned.

We are following-up our presentations with the Bangko Sentral to obtain their positive response. Herewith is a copy.

We strongly believe that the Bangko Sentral could be persuaded to accept the DEED for the benefits which it will contribute to the betterment of the national economy.

We keep on praying for it.

Very faithfully yours,

C.C. DLC

[H: Ah, but are these people “serious”?
Please read on and note dates.]

(Nov. 13, 2000)

To: Bank Central.... [H: I think I’ll keep the rest of the information private for, again, obvious reasons, for Rick is in about enough trouble for the day. This person is known at the CB.]

Sir:

This is in connection with our letter-presentations dated OCTOBER 31, 2000.

As we see the shaky economic-political voyage of the Ship of State, we strongly believe that although we are obscured parcels and parties of the Filipino People it is no less our duty to help, the least we can, rescue our Nation from sinking into utter poverty. [H: How grand and great of such as Rick Martin to make such efforts to destroy this possibility!]

Ours, as a Cooperative of poor people, is to make them productive and bankable through self-employment for food production through agri-business. Our people are intelligent and industrious as shown by the records of the Overseas Filipino Workers. But in the locality many people are jobless because very few, if not seldom, are the opportunities providing them jobs.

Being Joint Venture partner and a holder in due course of the Deed of Assignment for Consideration from GLOBAL ALLIANCE INVESTMENT ASSOCIATION (GAIA), we can give varied works (without payroll) to the jobless, principally through agri-business.

The Deed of Assignment for Consideration No. 18102467 in the amount of One Hundred Million United States Dollars (USD $100,000,000) will have these effects, namely:

1. It will be a sure addition to the Philippine dollar reserves;
2. Its equivalent in Philippine Peso will increase the money in circulation; and
3. It could make our livelihood projects actualized.

Sir, please help us make these things happen.

Toward that end, we have the honor to furnish herewith the Honorable Governor and the Monetary Board with a copy of the GAIA Fund memorandum dated November 7, 2000, regarding the implementation of the Deed of Assignment for Consideration. The Memorandum explains how, each:

1. DEEDholder, this Cooperative;
2. Global Alliance Investment Association (GAIA), the Assignor; and the
3. Bank (or Banking System) could be benefited.

A CERTIFICATION from the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP), which is similar to a Warehouse Receipt, to the effect that an amount in Philippine Currency, equal to the Assigned GAIA Fund, was allotted to “XXXX”, and which certification shows that such amount was used in purchasing gold and that gold was deposited as our collateral shall cause the Assignor to open a line of credit in our favor.

At this point in time, we are waiting for an advice for us to deposit our Deed of Assignment for Consideration as it represents and manifest, by law and in fact, our deposit of Gold.

We prayerfully hope that we will be directed soon to deposit the Deed of Assignment for Consideration No. 18102467 in the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP).

Very faithfully yours, C.C. DLA, Program Director.
[END OF QUOTING]

May I remind you readers that this is a very large undertaking which requires time AND the reaching through the brick walls deliberately constructed to STOP any such “people oriented” alliances from finding foundation.

Part of the reason I am writing this very message is to remind my own secretary that great things take great actions. First, remember, the train has to be STOPPED before you can turn it in the other direction. The people here are now ready, willing and able (quite hopeless, indeed) to stop the beast devouring them and then demand it be turned about. IT TAKES “TIME”; GOD NOR CHANGE IS “INSTANT” FIX.

And Rick Martin? Well, I would suggest that Millers look very carefully at who was present and directing activities at the Adam Drive PROPERTY and who passed out information from files and records, now missing as well as other “corporate” demands, etc., and consider your position. A man is JUDGED by his actions—NOT HIS WORDS!

Next, I would share another letter from “yesterday”, by Fax. This is a copy of a letter to our representative here, Mr. Sakiasi Genewa, International Relations/Marketing Director (GAIA).

[H: Mr. Genewa is now a long-time associate. He is from Papua New Guinea and is actually, at present, presenting our program to the very Parliament of Papua New Guinea. This particular letter, however, is from a company we will, again for obvious reasons, leave unnamed, in the Philippines. It will point out the problems but the tenacity of those who understand the project.]

[QUOTING:]

November 24, 2000

Dear Sir:

Our company, ... Corporation is a recipient of several Deeds of Assignment for Consideration issued on 1 August 1999.

This is to inform you that we followed with due diligence the program as outlined by GAIA but despite the effort, we failed to convince the banks to understand the simplicity of the GAIA concept.

One of our joint partners, a former Director of Landbank of the Philippines who is well versed with BAP and BSP guidelines, shares your observation that our banking system is under the control of a very powerful international cartel and for that reason, the hesitancy to discuss our proposal. The very idea appears to run counter to all the prevailing mechanism of the ruling system. It would really take an independent banker to accept the concept.

We believe that the GAIA principle is a workable solution to our country’s financial woes and we adhere further to support your noble cause.

We thank you for entrusting to us subject Deeds of Assignment. We find our alliance with your group an eye-opening experience. May we request further information on current developments regarding GAIA’s legal moves.

More power.

Truly yours,

(Corporation)

F.F.G., President, L.M.V., Chairman of the Board.

[END OF QUOTING]

I could go on and on and perhaps we shall, when the house is cleaned in our back-home dooryard. Until then we won’t jeopardize anyone who risks life and limb at the hands of this “powerful international cartel” as referenced above.

NO, WE DO NOT TAKE POLITICAL SIDES

We stay totally outside any involvement in political circles. We are apolitical and our offer is TO THE PEOPLE.

Our own potential success intent is to allow “the people” to begin to recover as well as the governmental stability. We do not FIGHT the banks or the bankers—for it will be noted the program SAVES THE ASSETS (NO PUN) of the very banks and bankers.

When the realization that ALL THE GOLD IN THE PHILIPPINES has been shipped out to THE BANK OF ENGLAND AND THE FEDERAL RESERVE IN NEW YORK, I think the wish to find an escape route might well be considered—even by the Bank of England and the Federal Reserve. Furthermore, I don’t think they will like Mr. Martin’s recent e-mail trippings to continue.

Please note, however, that with each public attack, more investigation simply increases our status and position.

WE DAMAGE NO ONE, NOT EVEN THE OVERDRAWN BANKERS. COULD THIS ACTUALLY BE FROM OTHER THAN GOD ALLAH—BY WHATEVER NAME? By the way, the ACTUAL TRANSLATION of ALLAH is “SACRED CONNECTION”. It also recognizes that “ultimate joining”. We have over 700 separate Deeds out to those who praise Allah (by recognition of the label) and that will overshadow, ultimately, any doubts my teams might conjure in day-to-day happenings which present painful circumstances. WE WILL WAIT UPON PROPER SEQUENCE AND RECOGNITION THAT WE ARE NOT FOUND WANTING.

As to Papua New Guinea, it will be easily remembered by Rick Martin himself that we approached and had interchange with PNG at the APEC meeting in Malaysia. They had just recently undergone a devastating Tidal Wave with massive destruction and loss of life.

We followed up with the embassy and finally we were contacted by Mr. Genewa—AFTER HIS LETTERS HAD BEEN SIDETRACKED AT NCH AND BY THOSE “RUNNING” CONTACT. Persistence was rewarded.

There have been three MAJOR quakes in the area of PNG within the month and their nation is devastated economically. The letters of appreciation are flowing in now as the “cabinet” members and members of parliament in PNG are responding.

Will the International Masters allow a place like PNG (where all the mines are owned and operated by the same Masters), to survive and flourish? I don’t know, but God offers his abundance and man must decide as to his stand or fall. As a bit of humor for one, Mr. Martin, there is a tribe of PNG natives who still occasionally EAT their visitors and this doesn’t even mention their ENEMIES.

By the way, no. 2: We have a recognized TAIPAN here in Manila who Mr. Martin wrote to in my behalf a couple of years or so back. He owns a lot of PNG and he is turning out to be a most interesting potential friend. We just never know, do we?

Hold the line, team, we are going to make the run and the touchdown, for what is happening, you cannot see.

Salu, GCH.

Reforming International Financial Institutions

11/26/00—#1 (14-102)

RE: ELECTIONS AND OTHER CURRENT CRISES WHERE THE WORLD ORDER, WORLD BANK AND IMF HAVE GREAT CONSIDERATIONS.

U.S.A.: WORLD BANK AND IMF HAVE STAKE IN ELECTIONS

DJE—This title is in reference to an e-mail received 11/25/2000 by us in Manila, Philippines. There are lots of reasons for delays in getting Internet mail due to remote terminal, weather, power failure and “OIP” (Only In Philippines), and some things remain “undiscovered” until “discovered” by such as Rays and other researchers.

We thank friends for not flooding our system with too much material, for we simply can't get to it all—and please remember that we have no ability to get e-mail, etc., at our living location. Therefore, our only source is the “mall” across the avenue and into the hub-bub of searches by security, masses of people, and finally to a computer area of Goodwill Book Store/Gift Gate. E.J. tries to make it every day but the hours (10 a.m. to 8 p.m.) are limiting because those are also the hours in which life is doing those “other” things.

Then it becomes necessary for us to consider that on which GCH wishes comment and special focus to our attention as we interchange with our contact people and our CONTACT people always waiting for structuring the paper for the week.

John and Jean Ray spend countless hours collecting current information for the paper as well as for informing us of those things of interest which might impact our task and we are grateful, for our next step might well rest on that information input.

When we find duplication of a focus already under attention we are getting confirmation of right steps or focus. We must, at all times, answer to human inquiries with human reasons, focus and backup.

We have no problem from anyone here over our input and, as we are given backup information, REALITY wraps up the package.

The bog of contradictory information flow is constant and yet even the very contradictions hold information imperative to the possibilities of what we do.

Even the negative flow of trashing by such interference we get from such as Rick Martin offers critical insights into the adversary's game.

This can be exemplified by the fact that Rick Martin not only interferes directly but the routing runs through parties at Nevada Corporate Headquarters as inquiries still go through that corporation because of earlier documents containing that information. Connections are then accomplished to Rick and off we go onto the Internet circuits and direct addresses for e-mail, etc. Then next comes the advice from these same parties directing the inquirers to go to “Four Winds” Internet site and other international discrediting sources of Dr. Young, et al. It appears that “The Watchers” and “Mr. Oracle” must have fallen into disfavor as being prime agents for “destroy the Ekkers at any cost”.

We are pleased that the information flow is such that with just the new stuff that hits daily, or at the slowest, weekly, keeps us within clear counting of “statute of limitations” under the law. The last word from Betty Tuten's lawyer, regarding the PI case, was long ago and he “couldn't locate the client”. (???) Well, we may be gone trying to do business but we are certainly very easy to locate. The case still has a Spring date, we are informed.

It would seem to us that some of the people in PI as to expected return would certainly put a stop to the nonsense of these destroyers—for loss comes with the closure or disallowance of getting this project done, as well as the demanded demise of PI itself. We have never ceased to push as hard as possible and we ARE getting it done.

Well, there are those things we can impact, those we can't and we simply ask wisdom to judge the difference.

If some of the accusations fall on those who claim to be innocent (and actually are not guilty), I suggest you look at your closest “friend” whom you have damaged, for anyone can use your identification for any purpose they wish—just as you might well have “used them”. We have found that there are some people you cannot trust and would betray, quickly, their own mothers for a bit more for themselves.

Even here in the Philippines it seems Erap's 93-yr-old mother (whom he claims to all but worship) is publicly asking him “to reform his ways”. I personally have met with a few mothers of some of our most dedicated “turned enemies”. And, yes, indeed, there was great concern for exactly what has happened within the “children” thereof.

So, to you who enjoy the ride, and thrive on the Internet disinformation, I remind you that the ones putting out the Four Winds/Bellringer material USED TO ANSWER THEIR TELEPHONE: “PLEIADES SPACE COMMAND HEADQUARTERS.” All the while, we certainly were never informed of such “headquarters” or foolishness. However, to each his own and I would guess the Hosts are capable of sorting the impostors as they accomplish their use thereof. After being caught in even one “intentionally deliberate” lie—credibility is GONE! And by the way, to such as Rick Martin: Dropping something of importance (the important paragraph) in “copy” for publication is a “whole lie”. Moreover, YOUR PEOPLE KEEP ADVERTISING THE VERY PUBLICATIONS WHERE YOUR LIES ARE CARRIED INTERNATION-ALLY—AND BY MAIL. IS THAT NOT MAIL FRAUD? YOUR NAMES ARE RIGHT UP THERE IN SOUND AND BLACK AND WHITE.

Now please, back to our article of importance.

Commander has told us much about the elections and who might become President of our beloved U.S.A. The importance of either becomes more publicly recognized, however, as we witness activities and presentations which do not even refer to our program (YET). As we watch the interest over in Southeast Asia over that election, we see the players (and plays) unfolding in every direction—including our own which “SEEMS” to get little attention at all.

Therefore, GCH asks that we type up the selected information papers which are pertinent to our ongoing input and you will see that we have been both busy and are making an impact as strength is building among these local area nations.

In this first article it will be easy to see why the Philippine President Estrada wants Gore in the driver's seat.

To me it seems apparent why Bush might still find us more interesting to befriend—since Bush (Sr.) had said to us “I'm not yet ready to deal...” some years ago when we first had interchange with his people who claimed to go DIRECTLY to him and his sons. That includes George Jr. GCH also had direct correspondence through this secretary with that man himself. This would indicate that a Global Monetary Fund could now be EASILY established, based on that old “SuperFund” of George's as well to actually help someone today. God has worked out a very good and substantial PLAN to accomplish this very goal. Indeed, the game is “high stakes” in the Global power push-pull.

We here find it extremely interesting that Fujimori of PERU bailed out to save his neck and is in Japan asking for security. I think the more interesting fact is that in the NEW GOVERNMENT OF PERU the head of the IMF/WB in Peru HAS TAKEN OVER THE FINANCIAL INTERESTS OF THE NATION. My goodness! This job just gets more and more “curious”.

I will now turn to the first article of major interest as to probabilities and even more interesting to find that the author wrote it prior to the election and it says pretty much the same thing, without personal reference, as we were being given by our own resources.

[QUOTING:]

U.S.A.: WORLD BANK AND IMF HAVE STAKE IN ELECTIONS

By Gumisai Mutume, Inter Press Service, 11/5/00

[H: This becomes ever so much more important as an observation today as the election nears total deadlock. For the confirmation of my own team, it is good you did not have this information prior to now and yet can now accept your input earlier by such confirmation finding its way to your terminal. Thank you, Rays. You are THE “Rays” I cherish in this nasty world of “getchers”.]

WASHINGTON—The differences may not be much, but it will matter for developing countries which of the candidates—Vice President Al Gore or Texas Governor George W. Bush—becomes the next U.S. president.

Bush, the Republican candidate for the Nov. 7 U.S. presidential elections, is more leery of the current role of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the World Bank, analysts say.

This may lead his administration to push for a scaling down of the institutions' roles in developing countries, especially if he obtains a Republican majority in both houses of Congress.

“The [World] Bank and IMF have increasingly become unpopular; it is taxpayers who finance these organizations, but activists hope they will have more powers to clip the institutions' influence, especially under a Republican administration,” says Robert Naiman of the Centre for Economic and Policy Research (CEPR).

Naiman points to the passage of a law in late October which restricts the IMF and World Bank from insisting that countries charge user-fees for certain social services as a sign of things that may come under the more conservative Republicans.

The 2001 foreign-aid bill freed $435 million to pay for U.S. obligations under the IMF and World Bank's Heavily Indebted Poor Countries Initiative (HIPC). Under the bill, the U.S. representative on the IMF and Bank boards is required to oppose user-fee conditions for basic health care or education services. Congress also increased funding for HIV/AIDS prevention programs to about $300 million—a 50 percent rise.

Bush has said that while the IMF has a role to play it must not be viewed as a way to say to world bankers, "If you make a bad loan, we'll bail you out." It needs to be available for emergency situations."

Gore has been less clear on how his administration will relate to the Bretton Woods institutions, but it appears he will continue the current relationship. He said during one of the presidential debates, however, that he would look at curbing corruption in the agencies.

He has said he may consider increasing U.S. funding to the agencies which are currently at an all-time low in popularity as activists, opponents of globalization and poor people in developing countries increasingly question their role.

Gore says he will seek greater efforts, through the Bank and the other multilateral development banks, to provide adequate social safety nets for economies facing turmoil. Gore also supports calls by the Group of 7 industrialized nations for stronger IMF efforts to contain financial crises.

The vice president has come out in support of the Asian Growth and Recovery Initiative, a multilateral initiative involving the World Bank and Asian Development Bank to promote financial restructuring in the region.

"There is potential for more movement towards reforming the international financial institutions with either of the candidates," says Naiman.

But how the developing world will fare during the next U.S. presidency does not depend only on who occupies the White House, according to Barry Bosworth of the influential Washington think-tank Brookings Institute.

What matters most for developing countries is whether the president has a Republican or Democratic Congress, he says. [H: No, it only REALLY matters that nobody has control over our asset—who has to deal with ME. And please note that through some coincidental "act of God" you have no mandate in either House of Congress!]

"Perhaps the worst-case scenario for developing countries would be Gore as president, with a Democratic majority in Congress," says Bosworth. "Such a combination would push for global labor and environmental standards in trade deals more than was true of the Clinton administration or presumably more than would be true of Bush and a Republican Congress."

An announcement by President Bill Clinton at the failed World Trade Organization (WTO) summit in Seattle last year that the United States could sanction countries that violate labor standards was one of the factors that led to tensions at the negotiating table.

A Gore/Democrat administration would likely have to accommodate its powerful trade union constituency and the green lobby, analysts say. Gore has said in trade he will push for "standards to end child labor, to prevent the exploitation of workers and the poisoning of the environment."

Analysts say this could lead to less favorable trading arrangements for a number of major emerging economies that rely on cheap labor and use under-age workers to compete in the global market.

A Gore/Republican combination would be an extension of the present status quo. The House of Representatives consists of 222 Republicans, 211 Democrats and 2 Independents. The Senate comprises 55 Republicans and 45 Democrats. [H: Go check it out today—after the election.]

"With a Republican Congress, Bush would not be felt, there are more [sic] stronger Republican characters than Bush and he would be led by Congress," says Bosworth, an international trade specialist.

Bush too would be under pressure to accommodate conservative Republicans, some of whom welcomed the Meltzer Commission's recommendation for a reduced role for the Bretton Woods institutions. The commission was set up by Congress to report on the reform of the Bank and IMF.

The Commission said the Bank should pull out of developing countries and abdicate its role to regional banks such as the Asian Development Bank. One of the arguments it used was that 70 percent of the Bank's non-grant lending is concentrated in 11 countries, with 145 other member countries left to scramble for the remaining 30 percent. [H: How many of you remember that all these various "Development" banks sprang out of the same downstream of the Inter-American Development Bank of George Bush, et al.? They just set up bunches of "Development" Banks and "Bankos" and "Bangkos Nacionales". So, it remains a very "small world after all". We are not "judging" Godliness, we are working to see how and who are our best possibilities for offering a revamp.]

It noted that the failure rate of Bank projects was 65-70 percent in the poorest countries and concluded that the institutions were not efficiently executing their roles. [H: And as usual, it is the depositors that lose EVERYTHING.]

On the campaign trail, Bush lashed out at the IMF for misusing taxpayers' money to finance corrupt regimes. During the second of three presidential debates, Bush pointed to Russia as an example of a country that has squandered IMF funds and charged that aid money "ended up in Viktor Chernomyrdin's pocket".

In the area of trade, both candidates have promised to seek fast-track trading authority from the U.S. Congress as soon as they come to power. The authority facilitates presidential negotiations of trade agreements through expedited congressional approval, limiting amendments.

The House of Representatives defeated President Bill Clinton's request in 1998—the first time in 25 years a president has not had such powers.

The two candidates have not been specific on their future trade preferences, but both want to see China enter the WTO. The Texas governor also supports Taiwan's early entry into the WTO.

If he seeks new trade arrangements, Bush is expected to place priority on Latin America, although he will have to go past the isolationist sections of his party. Bush has said in trade, he would be led "by U.S. interests".

Both candidates support the expansion of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) with Canada and Mexico, to accommodate the entire Western Hemisphere.

But because U.S. foreign relations have hardly appeared on the radar of the campaign for the 43rd U.S. president, both major candidates have given little detail on their pronouncements. It is also unclear how much of what they are saying is campaign talk.

Gore is expected to continue the policy of the Clinton administration that saw the approval of 270 U.S. trade agreements including NAFTA, the establishment of permanent normal trade relations (PNTR) with China and efforts to increase trade with Africa.

But Bosworth warns that if the Democrats take over Congress with representative Richard Gephardt as speaker, he may choke the passage of trade agreements judging from his record of protectionism.

Bush, on the other hand, has said that Africa "doesn't fit into the national strategic interests". His campaign has described HIV/AIDS, which is ravaging sub-Saharan Africa and which the Clinton administration has said poses a threat to the United States, as among the soft issues in his foreign policy thrust.

But, it remains to be seen whether as president he will be indifferent to the fact that India, China and Russia may soon have rates of HIV infection approaching Africa's.

[END OF QUOTING]

Chelas, you still have no idea how convoluted is the election processes under way in the US. But I hope you will be paying attention as things unfold.

Watch that block of "elderly Jewish" people who now claim they were voting for their man Gore and his "Jewish" vice president but their votes were not counted—"because of the poor ballots".

NO, THAT WHOLE LOCAL BLOCK OF SEVERAL THOUSANDS OF JEWISH VOTERS WERE INSTRUCTED AS TO "EXACTLY WHAT TO DO" AND HOW TO HANDLE THEIR VOTING TO BE SET IN SUCH A WAY AS TO BE ABLE TO DEMAND A RE-COUNTING EXACTLY AS HAS COME ABOUT. NOW, THAT IS BEING BROUGHT OUT IN VERY SUBTLE WAYS AS TO THE MASSIVE NUMBERS OF "FLUBBED" VOTE CARDS WHICH ONLY SEEMED TO HAVE PROBLEMS WITH THE PRESIDENTIAL CHADS. IF THE VOTE WOULD BE CLOSE, A DEMAND FOR A COUNTING OF THOSE VOTES WOULD BE MADE AND FORCED "FOR" GORE-LIEBERMAN. NOTHING IN POLITICS IS EVER LEFT TO "CHANCE". HOW CAN YOU "KNOW"? BECAUSE OF THE NEW ATTACK AS "ANTI-JEWISH" AND "ANTI-SEMITIC" ENTERS THE LANGUAGE IN ORDER OF PRIORITIES. THE JEWISH ELEMENT OVERSTRETCHED THEIR ADVANTAGE WITH BOTCHING THE MILITARY ABSENTEE VOTES. FUN AND GAMES? WELL, PERHAPS WE CAN CALL IT "THIS IS YOUR LIFE", CITIZEN.

"FREEDOM", CITIZEN? THE PLAN WAS IN PLACE FROM BEFORE THE ELECTION AND THE EXACT PLAY WAS IN OPERATION. THE GORE BUNCH KNEW THEY WOULD LOSE FLORIDA AND THIS WAS "THE" BACKUP. NOTICE THAT GORE IS EVEN GOING TO KEEP CLINTON'S SHILLS IN PLACE IN WASHINGTON, I.E. SECRETARY OF TREASURY—AND YOU LOOK AT THE LIST AT YOUR LEISURE.

Perhaps by the time our readers get this writing it will be all over but the killings. But don't count on it, for remember from whence springs the majority of lawyers and politicians.

Destruction Of Nation-States: Financial Oligarchy's Gameplan

11/25/00—#2 (14-101)

RE: ERICK SAN JUAN'S RECENT SPEECH
GIVEN IN MANILA, PHILIPPINES ON TOPICAL AFFAIRS.

[QUOTING]

"SOMETHING BIG IS BREWING"

November 2000

Friends:

In his November 13 article for The Philippine STAR, my friend Boo Chanco warns: "They're here again [referring to the foreign correspondents]. When they descend upon a country, you now something big is brewing. They have this uncanny ability to smell an international headline-maker that the locals may take for granted." Boo likewise mentions the arrival of an old acquaintance, "fresh from the turmoils of East Timor and Indonesia".

Indeed, the foreigners know something which many Filipinos don't. For example, they know that since the end of the Bretton Woods system in 1971, most nations have been subject to a one-world government's dictatorship, enforced by the World Bank-IMF and related institutions.

During the past 25 years or so, the IMF and associated institutions have caused far more death than the Adolf Hitler regime did. "The pattern," says an economist, "has been increasingly that governments which balk at imposing such murderous policies on their nation's citizens are overthrown by coups conducted on behalf of the IMF." In a word, no nation whose government adopts IMF or World Bank conditionalities can be described as 'democratic' in any meaningful sense of the term.

The gameplan of the international finance oligarchy is to destroy the nation-state by ripping out that which is the soul of the body politic, by means of "free trade", "globalization", and "rule of law", which are mere names conveniently used to better describe the revival of the old pagan Roman Empire. This time, it comes in the form of a one-world dictatorship exerted by London and Wall Street.

The globalists, for starters, always begin their wrecking operations by tearing down the three pillars of the nation-state, without which it cannot exist: First, there is the sovereign right of a nation to issue currency, that is, to have its own currency, its own credit system. A nation without a currency is not sovereign. Look at Panama, a devastated country. Its currency is called the "Balboa", but in reality is a U.S. dollar bill. The second pillar of a nation-state is that it must have a viable military, an armed forces to perform functions such as defending the existence and sovereignty of that nation-state. The third pillar of the nation-state system is that of territorial integrity. I will not hesitate to state before this august body that all three pillars of our nation-state are under siege.

The oligarchy also use indigenism, environmentalism, and all of the other new "isms" that have been concocted to promote the idea that national territorial integrity should no longer exist. "On this basis, they are proceeding to chop countries into salami and then govern them from the top, through their global institutions," says American economist Lyndon LaRouche. They then proceed with resource grabs, to seize the oil, the mineral wealth, and other resources that were previously under national sovereign control.

This is the way their strategy operates: The oligarchy picks a target country and then attacks it through their hedge funds. George Soros, the world's leading proponent of legalized drugs, is usually sent to obliterate the country's currency, and reduce it to rubble. After annihilating it, they come in with their dollarization flytrap.

The same thing happens with the national military. First, the globalists weaken the military through budget cutbacks, through international human-rights campaigns, and through non-governmental organizations [NGOs]. This way, they make the nation incapable of defending itself. Once the military becomes helpless to fight narco-terrorists, separatists, and what not, they send some of their UN Blue Helmet troops to "help" out.

Against this backdrop, what our country needs is strong and firm leadership—which the lumpen proletariat, Joseph Ejercito Estrada, can never provide. Upon assuming office on July 1, 1998, Mr. Estrada immediately announced that he was pursuing the policy of globalization, a pre-election promise which was delivered by his Defense Secretary, Orlando Mercado, to the Great White Fathers. Later, Estrada discovered that he had inherited a government with a budget deficit of P26 billion in a budget of P540 billion. This deficit grew to P70 billion by the end of 1998, or 20% of the national budget. What made matters worse for the geopolitically naive Estrada, was the World Bank-IMF announcement of the withholding of $1.2 billion and $500 million of fresh loans respectively, until assurances of compliance with the liberalization program were given by the new administration.

Like Cory Aquino and Fidel Ramos before him, Erap found himself compelled to obey the dictates of the international puppet-masters. His economic managers, many of whom are globalist agents, began to privatize or "grabitize" major government assets, to cover P29 billion of the budget deficit.

In a published report, a local economist identified the termites working inside the Erap Cabinet. He writes: "The establishment and conservative elements are undoubtedly powerful—Ronaldo Zamora, representing banking, mining and traditional political interests, holds the position of the Little President. Edgardo Espiritu is Finance Secretary and has publicly vowed to stay within WB-IMF prescriptions. Dr. Benjamin Diokno, a neo-liberal economist from the University of the Philippines, who already proposed in 1996 to devalue the peso, was named Budget Secretary. Another neo-liberal and monetarist economist from the same school, Dr. Felipe Medalla, who championed the IMF tariff liberalization and tax reforms, was appointed to head the National Economic Development Authority, in charge of economic policy. For Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas, the old governor, Gabriel Singson, was retained, apparently at the behest of the Bankers' Assn. of the Philippines and the IMF." Also, "As the Secretary of Trade and Industry, Jose Pardo, 7-Eleven convenience store Philippine franchisee, was appointed. For the Secretary of Environment and Natural Resources, a lawyer, who has represented loggers, former Congressman Antonio Cerilles was named. For the all-important Secretary of Agriculture—Angara—legal counsel for most transnational corporations in the Philippines."

Urban people normally do not see the importance of Agriculture. Without a strong agricultural sector, the country is vulnerable. The strategy of the enemy assault is to destroy it, and that is why violence is being deliberately fomented in the countryside and why there is no security provided for the sale of agricultural products.

With agriculture destroyed, the globalists and their subversive agents will control, through hunger, legions of miserable people willing to do anything for a plate of food. In the end, the enemies of the state will control genetics, chemical supplies, and seed production, so that those who continue to farm will do so on their knees, not praying to God, but to those with money.

"This country has been under IMF-WB supervision for 35 continuous years, and yet it can't even produce a globally competitive bubble gum," says economist Alejandro 'Ding' Lichauco. What then are we to expect from an Erap leadership? Nothing, except sub-zero economic growth and national bankruptcy. This is the reason why Erap must step down. For as long as he is around, our problems will compound each and every single day. His economic managers have created a "casino economy". Under his administration, gambling in all its forms has become such a dominant force in the economy that it has caused a social crisis of spreading poverty from an epidemic of "problem gambling" while simultaneously producing an explosion of chosen paper millionaires from a gambling-mania-driven stock market. Luckily, a man named Chavit Singson dared to come forth and expose the myth behind the man who pretends to be a "champion of the masses".

Singson's exposé, a.k.a. "juetengate", corroborates those of the Philippine Center for Investigative Journalism, that in such a short period of time, Estrada has amassed wealth said to reach P50 billion or so. And this does not include assets which have been stashed abroad. Talks of fabulous mansions purchased or constructed here and there fed the rumor mills, forcing even the cool and calculating journalists like Today's Teddy Boy Locsin to write something about Erap's alleged "wealth-building". He states: "Of the far worse things that have been said about him—on his alleged luxury building binge, the rumored scale of the alleged construction of his luxury houses for his mistresses, the baroque opulence of the alleged detail, the staggering expense of the execution (always quoted in billions)—all dwarf the claims made by the indefatigable women of the Philippine Center of Investigative Journalism."

Estrada's accumulation of unexplained wealth during these times of hyperinflation infuriated the long-suffering Filipino populace. Once again, as in those days prior to the Marcos fall, mass protest actions adorn the streets of Metro Manila, even as the peso threatens to go on a free-fall. In a flash, an unfavorable investment climate descended upon all industries, losing an estimated $3 billion in potential investment for mining alone, as shown by a position paper prepared by the Australia-New Zealand Chamber of Commerce.

In a matter of days, the Philippine economy began to sag much in the same manner as that of Ecuador's, whose hapless electorate was also hoodwinked into electing a popular but incompetent movie personality to the presidency. Allow me to tell you something about slave labor in dollarized Ecuador. In 1999, the minimum wage for a day's labor was $6. Now, in dollar equivalent, in the year 2000, as a result of the dollarization policy of the Ecuadorian government, the minimum daily wage fell to $2. Worse, 20% of the workforce in Ecuador earns $1 or less per day. And the day laborers, especially in the countryside, earn an average of 35cents a day.

Ecuador's banking system is obliterated, now that approximately two-thirds of the banks have already gone bankrupt. Some have been closed outright; others have been seized by the government, which is trying to keep them afloat, but they are going to go under too. Only the top third, more or less, have managed to keep themselves above water.

To make matters worse for the Ecuadorians, the IMF has entered the picture with its typical, insistent demands: End all subsidies on prices; raise utility rates, oil prices, and price of basic consumption items up to so-called "international levels"—meaning, they zoom up to the sky. Wage levels should be reduced, says the IMF, and everything in the country should be privatized.

The Ecuadorian currency, the sucre, was attacked, just as happened to the Philippines and Indonesia. In March 1999, the sucre was assaulted by international speculators. The authorities let it float, and its value dropped quickly from about 7,000 to the dollar, to 18,000 to the dollar. A few months later, in September, Ecuador defaulted on its foreign debt obligations. It went bankrupt. And by the beginning of this year, the value of the sucre dropped to 25,000 to the dollar.

[H: Humnnnn—don't we all wonder what, exactly, took place in PERU? Come now, friends, aren't we getting warm? Wow, how came about all the attention to such as Peruvian Bonus Certificate (GOLD-BASED) into a SUPERFUND, to use and attention? Thank you, Russell Herman.]

Some say that ours closely follows the Indonesian scenario. In the case of Indonesia, which is a nation that is fast disintegrating, a systematic assault on its currency, the rupiah, was also carried out. In December 1997, 108 U.S. cents could buy you a thousand rupiahs. Then, with the financial attack on the country, in just a few months, it dropped down to the level of about 30 cents per thousand rupiahs. This is a two-thirds drop in the value of the currency; it was completely wiped out.

Indonesia is also presently suffering from the Yugoslavia Syndrome—that is, it is crumbling into pieces. It has already lost East Timor, and it will soon lose Irian Jaya, Aceh, Sulawesi, Maluku, and Kalimantan. Its military institution, which was historically essential to its existence as a nation-state, was placed under assault. After Suharto was toppled in May 1998, a systematic campaign against the military was begun. Accusations of human-rights violations and charges of thousands being massacred proceeded.

During the May 29 Asia Oil and Gas Conference 2000 held in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysian Prime Minister Dr. Mahathir warned his Indonesian neighbors: "Human rights [are] for people who have leaders willing to submit to the will of the powerful." Unfortunately, General Wiranto failed to hear Mahathir's advice. He allowed himself to be pushed, cajoled, and induced to head the so-called "reform process" of the Indonesian military, thinking that he could better deal with the problem from the inside, by being involved in the process. He played right into the trap, because the strategy of the demilitarizers, the people who want to wipe out this institution, is exactly that: to get rid of the people who are opposed to them, and then use the reformers who helped to make the change, and obliterate them as well. This, incidentally, is what happened to Defense Secretary Juan Ponce-Enrile and his RAM forces during the Aquino takeover. And this is what is NOW happening to Wiranto.

The upshot in the case of Indonesia was a plain old resource grab and fragmentation of the country. It didn't just happen that there is a huge amount of oil sitting in the East Timor Sea, right between Australia and East Timor. This is why East Timor had to be the first to be separated from Indonesian territory.

At this point, some may ask the question: Will the same fate await us? It depends upon two things: (1) Erap's peaceful resignation; and (2) vice-president Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's firmness not to follow IMF prescriptions and move towards the organization of an Asian Monetary Fund, as suggested by nationalist leaders around Southeast Asia and Japan.

A refusal on the part of Erap to resign will only worsen the already critical situation and may plunge us into a bloody civil war from which only the communists are expected to benefit. A Franciscan associate, who used to be an intelligence operative, puts it candidly: "To weaken or destroy a nation without a war, the most efficient strategy is to destroy its families, radicalize religious positions, and weaken and demoralize its Armed Forces. These were accomplished in the 1988 EDSA Rebellion. What we have today is a capitalistic democracy which is unacceptable to God because it says all power is vested in the people—whereas we know from traditional Catholic teaching that all power is vested in God and passes from God to all those who have authority in our country—people of rules. And on the other side, a section of us is willing to throw in its lot with a socialist democracy that invests all power in the economic forces of history—and the hell with God and the people! Behind both forces are the schizoid preachers, who celebrate God's love in the morning and sit at Mammon's counting tables at noontime."

In plain, simple, layman's language, what my friend is saying is that, like Mexico during the 1920s and 1930s, we are gradually being pushed into a fratricidal "Cristero War". The puppet-masters know that the only way they can swiftly and effectively impose their measures is under conditions of a civil war which hit Mexico, which is historically our sister nation. They are now manipulating patriots on both sides of a fraudulent dividing line between "clerics and anti-clerics", as Venice achieved during the terrible religious wars in Europe of the 16th and 17th Centuries.

History shows that all of the old pagan empires used state-regulated religious belief as the principal means of governmental mind-control over subject populations. Each of the fallen empires of Mesopotamia practiced this. The Cult of Apollo, originally the Gaea-Python cult at Delphi, was the principal such enemy of civilization inside ancient Greece. The Roman and Byzantine empires, too, used state-regulated pantheons as the principal means of control of subject peoples.

The British monarchy, as it became a world empire, imitated precisely such practices of its Roman and Byzantine predecessors. King Henry VIII's declaring himself the Pontifex Maximus of England was used as an established precedent for the Anglican Church's adopted role of regulating the varieties of religious beliefs among the subjects of the British Empire, and used religious channels for persisting efforts at attempting to reconquer the United States of America from within.

The most successful forms of such attempted subversion are, naturally, the charismatic cults. The advantage, that a purely arbitrary doctrine, by its nature, as the old pagan religions did, conceals its true purpose from the light of reason. Thus, the British monarchy's control over key sections of the U.S. military is now the single greatest security threat to the continued existence of the American republic.

The same is true here in the Philippines. We need to free our religious communities from the control of such foreign, pagan powers as the British monarchy and its World Council of Churches. And this, mind you, includes all those who participated in Erap's Luneta Rally.

Another major security threat to our country is the presence of agents and fellow travelers from Mainland China, a factor which contributes to the CPP-NPA's growing threat. Many of their moles have managed to ingratiate themselves into the inner business and social circles of President Estrada. And they are expected to stay there, making their influence felt, for as long as Estrada reigns in the Philippines, and the Democrats occupy the White House.

According to a Reuters report, China has silently hoped for a Gore victory in the U.S. presidential polls, fearing that a Republican administration would boost ties with Taiwan and back missile defense systems.

Gore is viewed in China as a levelheaded and experienced statesman, who is expected to continue Clinton's Taiwan policy. Bush, however, whose Republican Party has strong links with Taiwan, has said that he would back a Taiwan Enhancement Act boosting military ties between Washington and Taipei.

The same is expected to hold true in the case of the Philippines. A Bush presidency will ensure stronger military ties between Washington and Manila, a development which will not sit well with China and its operatives in our country.

Recent happenings, however, dictate that there is no longer any need for the appropriate quarters to wait for the official ascendancy of Texas Gov. George W. Bush to the most powerful position on Earth. We are told that during the APEC meeting in Brunei, President Clinton snubbed Erap, and U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright castigated him—indicating that the handwriting is, indeed, on the wall. For, as the British magazine Economist states, the Filipino leader “no longer enjoys the confidence of his own business community, of international investors, or of many in his party.” He, therefore, no longer has any moral claim to the presidency.

We end this speech with a warning, especially addressed to our military brothers, using the apocalyptic words of The Philippine STAR publisher, Max Soliven: “(Contrary to the empty boast of presidential son JV Ejercito that the protest strike held last Nov. 14 was off the top) The mammoth welga ng bayan delivered a sharp message to the president and the administration, but it was also worrisome to ordinary citizens and those neutral in the confrontation. The proliferation of Red banners and streamers shows there's a dangerous alliance between the radical Leftists and the capitalists and employers. Some people might live to regret this ‘marriage of convenience’—the Communists and their vicious front organizations are now in the process of creating a ‘revolutionary situation’ in the Marxist-Leninist mold, piggy-backing on the indignation of the middle class and the upper class. Just remember the French Revolution. It sent a king, his queen, and the hated aristocracy to the Guillotine. Estrada himself has been helping provoke this terrifying situation by trying to mobilize the ‘poor’. If he persists in this folly, he could be devoured, too.”

[QUOTING November 2000:]

THE AUTO-DEMOLITION OF ESTRADA ADMINISTRATION

By Erick San Juan

Many world leaders today, from President Fujimori of Peru to President Estrada of the Philippines, face the dilemma of how to ensure the continued survival of their political leadership, in the face of globalist-sponsored insurgencies, terrorism, economic warfare and even military attack. The astute, patriotic leader knows what is basically needed to defend the national sovereignty. To save his country from dismemberment and ruin, he must have the earnest sympathy and powerful cooperation of his loyal fellow-countrymen. Without this primary and essential condition, all his efforts will only be in vain. Unfortunately, President Estrada is fast losing popular support he once enjoyed.

Up against a morally decaying popular culture, a free-falling peso, a vox populi demanding the modern equivalent of Caesarism's “bread and circuses” under the banner of “people power”, an increasingly hostile press and foreign-sponsored political forces fueling mass action if not outright insurrection, Estrada's scandal-ridden government cannot possibly survive this latest destabilization attempt.

“A country which does not submit to the rules of the financial markets, is a country which will pay the price,” an IMF stooge told CNN lately. President Estrada blindly followed this dictum to the letter, and ran “a government which does not get in the way of investors”, but his unabashed cronyistic practices terribly upset his handlers. He has to go—with or without bloodshed. Thus, Vice-President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's ascendancy to the top position of the land is just a matter of time.

The electorate, however, is cautioned against prematurely celebrating Arroyo's impending presidency. She may yet go the way of Alexander Kerensky's “transition government” in Russia, just before the Bolshevik takeover. Because of her track record of supporting globalist initiatives like free-trade deregulation and privatization, Arroyo is viewed by nationalist economists as “the female counterpart of Mexico's Vicente Fox”. The latter was backed by London and Wall Street financial interests, and also got a quiet endorsement from the Trilateralist-controlled U.S. government as well.

Unless she proves otherwise, Arroyo is perceived to be using the “political revolution” just to “fan the free-market revolution”. Which I believe is not true.

Madame Vice-President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo must guarantee that under her administration, if she will be the successor to Erap, certain kinds of business activities ought to be prohibited such as buying stocks on credit, and also hostile corporate takeovers.

“Every single mega-merger is a relapse into the Stone Age,” says Wilhelm Hankel, former chief economist at the Bank for Reconstruction. Such assertion is not new. In the 1940s, economist Josef Schumpeter emphasized that, contrary to what Karl Marx wrote, “The real road to socialism leads through a process of monopolization.” And this is taking place right now.

Meanwhile, we must expect the worst. Everything is not going to be a “walk in the park”, as the Americans love to say. A bloody civil war could break out, as battle lines are now being clearly drawn. A division between supposed Amarillos of EDSA 1986 vintage on the Arroyo side and supposed Marcos Loyalistas of the Estrada government, is already being encouraged from several sides. This is the apparent intent of the globalist Mafia which is out to dismantle the nation-state and to conserve the International tyranny of free trade through “democratic” beads and circuses.

The globalist puppet-masters have come to realize that the only way they can plunge the country into a bloody civil war is to adopt the Mexican scenario (not the Indonesian one) in the 19th Century, and in the 1920s and 1930s, here in the Philippines. This is the old Venetian tactic of manipulating patriots on both sides of a fraudulent dividing line between “the corrupt and reactionary” forces (linked to the various churches) and the liberal and progressive anti-clerics of the Estrada regime.

Next is a short item by Erick in:

[QUOTING MANILA STANDARD, Sat., Nov. 18, 2000, “OPINION”:]

WHERE'S THE MONEY COMING FROM?

In recent weeks, President Estrada has been accused of taking bribes worth a few hundred million pesos. If the rumors are true that his properties are numbered at 35, and 11 of them cost a total of P3.694 billion, the extent, and thus the source, of his “take” has not yet even been hinted at. Just as interesting is the source of the millions of pesos being passed on daily to legislators and mayors to buy their loyalty. All that money does not come from jueteng and jai-alai. There must be a BIG cache somewhere.

If the annual interest on the national debt payable to the IMF and World Bank is some $6 billion and they typically “re-allow” 20 percent to support their continuing control of administrations, finance departments and central banks, perhaps the press has not yet located the mother lode.

There are two things that the people must be vigilant about: The truth about why almost all our gold reserve in the amount of $1.8 billion was deposited in the Bank of England. Secondly, unless Erap will be out of office his pagadors and supposedly “known” owners of mansions and building being investigated will never tell the truth. Makonsiyensya naman kayo. ESJ

THIS WRITING IS PRESENTED WITH OTHER VARIOUS INPUT FROM ERICK SAN JUAN, MANILA, PHILIPPINES.

I will remind all of you that Erick San Juan is a most highly respected journalist and long time participant as such in the Philippines since the days of one infamous Ferdinand Marcos.

He has the ability to be an objective observer and can be trusted by any “party” or political team—for he is a patriot and supports his NATION, the Philippines. We respect, fully, his position as he respects ours.

We appreciate his willingness to share with our readers because his observations are remarkably astute. We honor him and are pleased to call him “friend”.

The political unrest is bogging to the economy, the nation and the people in this place where every day brings prolonged delays in “justice”. Stabilization continues to hinge mightily on an American election. How tiny has become your world!

Dharma, I ask that you first offer the “fake bonds” article that, although is not by ESJ, certainly needs attention because of its focus relative to other things taking place currently—even as to the impeachment of a President. Also note again the reference to “Marcos’ son”. Ah, indeed, the world is very tiny after all.

We realize that we would be more appreciated by you readers if we were quicker on the copy but please be patient, for the work has to be redone so that we don’t absolutely wipe out our CONTACT “person”. He has enough load and we have to work through our own pile of entropy and demands on physical time. Thank you for your patience.

[QUOTING MANILA BULLETIN”, Monday, November 6, 2000:]

AMERICAN ARREST IN FAKE BONDS AFFECTS RP TRADERS

By Marvyn Benaning

The recent arrest of Kevin S. Jackson in Newark, New Jersey in the act of encasing a bogus $100 million Federal Reserve bearer bond allegedly issued in 1934 would most likely affect the operation of several Filipino businessmen specializing in the trade of these bonds.

Jackson, 49, claimed that he secured the bond from an unnamed Filipino general who, in all likelihood, was operating with a syndicate that had been specializing in the production of U.S. Federal Reserve Bonds with the same face value.

Another group allegedly engaged in the same trade was identified as Edilberto del Carmen Marcos or Edilberto Marcos who recently organized an office in Hong Kong to engage in investment banking and the trading of bonds in the secondary market.

This Marcos, who says he is the eldest son of deposed President Ferdinand Marcos, claims to have access to billions of dollars of Federal Reserve Notes similar to the ones recovered from Jackson, 49, an auto mechanic who has been charged with mail fraud for trying to encash the bogus bonds.

According to the most reliable sources in Hong Kong, the “Marcos son” has been seeking millions of dollars in investments from Japanese, Chinese, Singaporean and Italians in his bid to collate all Marcos assets, including 1934 Federal Reserve Bonds, stashed in the Bank of America and other banking institutions.

This “Marcos son” had successfully secured cash from foreign groups in May, with an Italian group pumping in $2.5 million as capital for the worldwide search for hidden Marcos assets.

He is supposed to have close links with some groups engaged in the pilferage of security paper from the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) and the snatching of original Federal Reserve Bonds and notes for use in counterfeiting. The BSP was hit by fire twice in a span of one year and no official report on its inventory of security paper, damaged or salvaged, was ever made.

About two months ago, the residence of two persons in Malaybalay and a nearby town were raided by elements of the Presidential Anti-Organized Crime Task Force (PAOCTF) and Federal Reserve Bonds with a face value of $100 million were recovered, along with highly confidential prints of U.S. notes and bonds along with security paper which is not available to private individuals.

HONG KONG SOURCES SAID AT ABOUT THE SAME TIME THE “MARCOS SON” INAUGURATED HIS OFFICE IN THE FORMER CROWN COLONY THAT IT WAS ATTENDED BY RELATIVES OF A TOP FILIPINO POLITICIAN, A FORMER OFFICIAL OF THE PRESIDENTIAL COMMISSION ON GOOD GOVERNMENT (PCGG) AND AN ERSTWHILE TOP EXECUTIVE OF THE PUBLIC ESTATES AUTHORITY (PEA). [H: CAPS MINE.]

[END OF QUOTING]

Not to belabor and beat this dog further to death, it should be noted that one or two of our own contacts have fallen prey to this bunch of hoodlums. No, it has NOT hurt our program, only caused it to come under magnified investigation and be proven real and sound.

HOWEVER, as with the other political turmoil abounding around the president here in Manila—his hands are all over the program through relatives and officials. This is either wittingly or unwittingly recognized but this is quite blatant—right down to obvious destruction of documents within the Central Bank itself.

It is no wonder that problems arise with ANY program, even if honorable—as to how do they hide the prior indiscretions and blatant criminal actions actually entered into by the very WORLD BANKS which are also involved? Well, the security is easily seen and recognized with GAIA which does not need get into the harangue of past indiscretions but, rather, can be used immediately while protecting the people while other investigations are forthcoming.

We respect the FACT that Joseph Ejercito Estrada (Estrada is actually his stage name) is President of the Philippines and we honor that so that information flows directly, and through over two years of effort, to HIS ATTENTION. We have HIDDEN NOTHING!

We also, however, offer the SAME to any opposition—for our commitment and agreements are to remain without political input or action.

In referring to the last paragraph of the article above it is recognized that involved are relatives and associates of said President which we can give name but no comment, for although things become public we find that often, by tomorrow, the publications have changed. Therefore, just for information of what is noted:

Relatives of Erap: Pilarica Ejercito, Pat Ejercito de Guzman, Raul de Guzman.

Others named:

Ex-PCGG Chief David Castro

Ex-PEA Chief Ed Zialcita

Gov. of Rizal: Ito Jnalez

Forgive, please, if we misspell these names.

This is enough for this writing, please, for I want it sent to parties in the U.S.A. who undoubtedly are wondering WHY some of their projects are bogged in New York or London, supposedly by such as the IMF.

We most sincerely wish our friends well and that there is no connection, but since Philippine HOUSING is involved in expected projects under Erap Estrada, the whole program may well be jeopardized until political chaos is settled. We can, if you like, reserve a joint venture possibility with some of our contacts and Deed holders, for they present pretty flimsy housing as is now in the programming while the political grabbers rip off the funding. Let us see how it plays out here on the current game-board.

Other so-called “Marcos” heirs are meeting with equal disasters as the “focus on dramas” becomes the art of the day. We find the traders, banks, and bankers having gone out on the gold limb to be desperately trying to cover and make up funds any way possible.

This is WHY we do not bend in our presentations nor do we bite on the “games people play” with us beyond uncovering them. We have no need to “turn them in” for their silly nonsense but, when too serious, we will PUBLISH AS A PUBLIC NOTICE names of deliberate deceivers who continue to discredit—in the same line of action as we would for a Rick Martin, Ed Young, Jovy Fulgencio (Morales) or a Ben de Goitia. These people are not just deceiving my team—they damage the very people and nation they claim to serve. And interestingly enough—THEY ALL CLAIM TO BE WORKING IN THE NAME OF GOD. SO BE IT.

Thank you for your attention.

TUE., SEP.22, 1992 7:15 A.M. YEAR 6, DAY 37

WHAT HAPPENED TO BONNIE?

The hurricane Bonnie served her purpose and will be moved off into northern waters without further notice. There are others forming which will serve as the next "either/or".

Note that the hour the Shuttle was returned to base WITHOUT launching the satellite system intended to interconnect with "launched" rocket payloads, the storm began to weaken. Everything tried last week could be called a failure because the hornets and frogs were nothing but silly cover to tax your intelligence and insult you-the-payors. The major intent was for Japanese benefit but that, too, failed to materialize. You STILL DO NOT have much going in "space". You can still do a lot of damage from within grids inside your atmosphere but you are in a REAL deficit position as regards overall power.

Why? Because it will never be allowed that your global squabbles reach out into the cosmos. The facts are that ones from your own place have control in the arena which contains you. These are human physical beings who are simply a long way ahead of the would-be world rulers.

Why doesn't the "Command" step in and let your toys work? Because you are the forefront nation now bringing the world into slavery. The United States of America as it has become has pulled away from every thing Godly, including the dumping of your Constitution, even to setting up a required religion under the requirements of the Talmud. This is PUBLIC LAW 102-14. I suggest you either get the tapes which I will make this day—and/or—get the writings regarding same. This became law in March (20), 1991—wiping out freedom of religion. It simply hasn't been brought down on you. You are moving into the "rules and regulations" by your accepted actions. You are being completely stripped of your spiritual connections with God Creator, thus limiting your experience and existence to the PHYSICAL STATE. That state of being only lasts in its cycles on physical dimension some averaged 75 years. In the scheme of infinity, that is a mere eye-blink, if that much. However, in the physical entrapment also resides the trapped soul—for as a MAN thinks, so is that man. You cannot rise higher in knowing when the conscious being is trapped in physical perceptions. So be it.

EARTHQUAKES

No, do NOT unhook your bungies or set out your best crystal goblets on the window ledge, along the Western "front". The quake at Santa Rosa should have told you all you need to know. It was inland from the San Andreas and is simply more of the same tactics as in Southern California. The intermittent eruptions of volcanoes such as Spurr (Alaska) are indications of continued bombardment.

Out of the Philippines will come the hope and assistance to God's troops and, therefore, is the reason for continued Mt. Pinatubo activity. God will prevail, it simply takes a while to arrange the mechanism for transfer and receiving. Clean your houses while you are able, friends.

By the way, the whole of California and inland a thousand miles is still trembling like a ship at sea as the breakpoints weaken. The symptoms to the bodies physical are under assault by viruses and other substances that distract you from your symptoms of dizziness, instability and inner ear-gastrointestinal "seasickness". The evidence must point to physical ailments—lest you notice the motion under your feet. California is ONLY an example, for the entire globe is under attack in one way or another to bring about the depopulation mandated, by the year 1998-99. By year 2000 the ULTIMATE WORLD ORDER plans to have a working society with no more than 550 million people.

The "rulers" are prepared with supplies which will last them until enough of the lands recover to again support that many physical beings. But, things will continue to go wrong in the "movement" and we shall see. God wins—it is HOW HE wins that becomes most interesting. IT WILL NOT BE THROUGH FORCE NOR BREAKING OF HIS LAWS—FOR THOSE WHO ARE OF GOD WILL REMEMBER AND THE MIND IS MIGHTIER THAN THE SWORD. FIRST, YOU MUST BECOME INFORMED. THAT IS OUR PURPOSE AT THIS TIME—NOT TO SNATCH UP NOR SAVE YOU FROM YOURSELVES. IF YOU WANT TO SAVE YOURSELVES IN THE PHYSICAL EXPERIENCE, ALONG WITH YOUR GLOBE—YOU WILL WAKE UP AND GET BUSY IN THE WAYS OF GOD—THROUGH THE SPIRITUAL POWER WITH WHICH YOU WERE GIVEN CREATION.

RANDY WEAVER UPDATE

I am remiss for not catching you up mid-week—but our load is tremendous and time waits not for any man.

Randy has been indicted and charged with heinous assaults against Federal agents—which brings a life sentence to prison or DEATH. He was disallowed bail, much less, "fair" bail as demanded by the Constitution. What has transpired since is not in my attention at the moment of writing. The children are placed in a "mental institution" to reprogram their thinking. Indeed, this is what your nation has become—God will help you to "see", HE will not attend this FOR you.

AS TO OUR AUTHENTICITY

I herein respond to D.E. Jones. I would appreciate it if you would come from under the bushel, sir, and share with us that which you are being given. You are given this insight to assist in opening the eyes of your brothers in a format which they WANT to believe. The prophecies are now in the fulfilling and the meanings of the puzzles are coming forth. YOU cannot know of the importance of that which you are gifted to "see" as well as that which simply comes into your attention.

For you who want to unravel more of the puzzles of, say, Nostradamus—read or listen on. Thus far only small fragments have been identified and correctly displayed. I chuckle as to that which is presented as "truth" in presentation, from Cheetham to Cannon. Some is valid—most is total drivel.

Indeed, D.E.J., Nostradamus surely DID SPEAK OF BOTH THE COMMAND AND THE PHOENIX. Thank you for sharing insight—and just clear your spaces a bit more completely and great and wondrous insights will be given into your care. You have some interesting energy forms working you over and I can only suggest you rise beyond them, for your insight is good and, yet, the information is so important that you will be blasted by the adversary at EVERY TURN.

I would like to share a portion of the correspondence received from D.E. Jones (D.E.J.). Would you find it interesting to note that my scribe's initials are the same as is the surname? Ah, indeed, some coincidences are more interesting than are others. Her name was "Jones", her birth labels Doris Eloise. Birthed in the realm of the Eagle in the accepted sign of Scorpio. These are simply "signs" to give you clues along your own pathways.

[QUOTING Jones' letter:]

CENTURY VIII:27 (Nostradamus)

...The original French is:
"La voie auxelle, l'une sur l'autre fornix,
Du muy deser hormis brave et gene t,
L'ecrit d'Emperpeur le fenix
Vu a'celui ce qu'a nul autre n'est."

Nostradamus spoke of the "Commander of the Phoenix".

"The road of the soldiers of the One, certain the other (Hatonn, et al.), is of the Vault. (It meant Heaven then.) Due to the moving desert, saving the brave and the gorse. The writing of the Commander of the Phoenix, Observed by the One. Those whom are hopeless are not."

...It is not hard, just very tedious because I use the Old French, not anyone's interpretation, but from the true quatrains in Old French to translate and go from there. I send this because I was so disgusted at P.C. letter.... I know what Hatonn writes is Truth. (I ain't crazy about it, but I do know it is the Truth.)

[H: Referring to the first paragraph (in French):]

...much was phonetically spelled then! One of the rules of Nostradamus' games. It is from the book by Edgar Leoni, done in the early forties. He kept the Old French pure (God Bless him for that). This is from over a decade of research, not hocus-pocus-speak to spooks. (Ones that lie, too.)

"Emperor" in Latin means commander or general; to capitalize the word was a sign of respect. I will not bore you with all the details of Old French, Latin or Greek, but essentially, those strong enough to keep their faith, one that must be greater than Faith, will be saved. The meaning is very clear, but then I have spent a decade at it. No, I've never offered them up to anyone else—for my own reasons. All too soon, those who mock will be, "...gnashing their teeth," and many will be no more than hot ashes on the winds.

I will say that things will begin to really get ugly in late 1993 and just get much, much worse....

[END OF QUOTING]

AND PLEASE, D.E., KNOW THAT I KNOW THAT I HAVE RESTRUCTURED THE UTILIZED SEQUENCE OF YOUR LETTER IN STATING THE FRENCH FIRST. THANK YOU FOR SHARING AND FOR YOUR SUPPORT—PERHAPS IT IS TIME, SON, TO PUT THESE THINGS TO PRINT THAT YOUR BROTHER MIGHT BETTER SEE HIS PLIGHT. I WOULD WILLINGLY UTILIZE THIS FORMAT FOR YOUR SHARING, BUT IT IS PERHAPS "TIME".

[NEXT QUOTE from S.Y. in West Palm Beach, from the newspaper on or about 9/20/92:]

FOUND: FAMILY TOMB OF PRIEST WHO TRIED "JESUS"

(New York Times News Service)—Israeli archaeologists have discovered [H: And I "still" have THAT bridge for sale.] the family tomb of Caiaphas, the Jewish high priest who presided at the trial of Jesus and delivered him to the Romans to be crucified.

Buried in an ancient cave on the outskirts of Jerusalem, the family's bones were sealed in ornate and elaborately carved ossuaries, ceremonial boxes used widely by the Jews of the late 1st Century. [H: How is it that the Israelis seem to "find" and get "control" of EVERYTHING ABOUT YOUR RELIGIONS? How, too, is it that the term "JEW" is so widely used in descriptive information. Could it be that the assault on Southern Iraq is to continue to keep the sugaring information buried away from your searching eyes? Better begin to read the information such as the Dead Sea Scrolls with a more perceptive eye to detail—for you are being fed bunches and bunches of lies piled upon lies.]

Archaeologists say no comparable evidence exists for the remains of any other such major figure mentioned in the New Testament.

After 2,000 years, the presence of Caiaphas' bones in the tomb cannot be verified. But the age of the bones, the inscriptions on the ossuaries and the artifacts that surrounded them all point directly toward his influential family.

One of history's most reviled and enigmatic men, Caiaphas has often been portrayed by historians as malevolent, mad for power and blindly eager to please Pontius Pilate, the Roman governor.

Academic debates about Caiaphas' role in condemning Jesus and his desire to please the Romans have raged for nearly 2,000 years. [H: And all the raging didn't make a bit of "it" truth.]

Some historians contend that he played only a minor historical role; others, supported largely by the Gospels, suggest that without the decision by Caiaphas, Jesus would surely have lived.

Like many such discoveries, this one came by accident, when workers widening a road in Jerusalem's Peace Forest in 1990 stumbled across an unusually large burial site.

Although it has been nearly two years since the site was uncovered, researchers have taken until now to assure themselves through the... [H: And, thus and so it goes.]

[END OF QUOTING]

You are getting into deeper and deeper yogurt every day, chelas, as you accept all this propaganda piled upon you. Most of the Evangelical preachers on the TV are solidly into the Zionist movement and simply collecting more and more of your willing contributions to pay for your own death squad—"they" won't even give you a "funeral", you know.

History also will prove that what is given in AND THEY CALLED HIS NAME IMMANUEL is absolutely true. Even Mr. Nostradamus documented that Esu Immanuel did not die on the cross. (There is proof of this and yet, had you been given simple English by one, Nostradamus, HE WOULD HAVE BEEN BURNED AT THE STAKE FOR HERESY.)

Some of you continually write that I, Hatonn, should "... get with the program and do a little show-and-tell". It is not "I" nor "we" who had best "get with the program", friends.

May you walk this day in greater understanding and with more insight—so that you find your way in TRUTH and gain freedom from the lies.

CHAPTER 9

REC #2 HATONN

TUE., SEP. 22, 1992 9:08 A.M. YEAR 6, DAY 37

We will continue with the discussion of the ULTIMATE NEW WORLD ORDER as presented through THE JEWISH UTOPIA. This, so that there will be no misunderstanding wherefrom comes this information. It flows DIRECTLY from the "JEWS" who do, indeed, call themselves "Jews" and "Zionists"—whichever is suitable at any given presentment. Both of these terms were "created" from non-existent language terminology for this Ultimate New World Order.

This information comes from compiled data and research of one Robert Williams, whose security I shall keep in mind.

[QUOTING CONTINUED:]

MUST BE TOTALLY JUDAIZED

You will have to embrace the Jewish religion, Jewish culture, Jewish thought:

"The basis of that culture and wisdom, through which God's glory will be manifest upon Israel, and by light of which nations will walk, will be the Torah, Israel's traditional inheritance. For the source of Israel's new life of righteousness and of divine glory will be rooted in the Torah".

This confirms our earlier statement that the unpardonable sin of idolatry will consist of adhering to any religious faith other than the Jewish Torah, with its "holy" head in Jerusalem.

We have already pointed out that the Torah consists of the first five books of the Old Testament, the Books of Moses, the Pentateuch. [H: That term alone should scare the living daylights out of you perceptive and insightful truth-seekers.] While the entire Old Testament is Jewish, it is specifically the Torah which most religious Jews acclaim as their Bible. It is the basis of much of the Talmudic interpretation of how Jews should conduct themselves, in their dealings with other Jews and with non-Jews. [H: We reprinted some of the Talmudic instructions and we were blasted as being vulgar and evil. No, it is the set of instructions which are vulgar and reproachable—being totally against the laws as given by God Creator.]

The "righteous" nations and individuals will have to glorify the Mosaic triumphs, conquests, deceptions, theft and slaughter of unsuspecting (gentile) villagers, as the basis of their religion and culture. Even so, your grandson could not become the grand exalted ruler, not being descended from the house of David.

Our grandchildren must not be permitted to know that their ancestors came from Europe or anywhere but the "holy land". Our grandchildren must be denied any knowledge of the history, struggles and triumphs of our own people. They must assume that we all came from the tribes led by the scheming, bloody Moses of the Torah. They must never know that their ancestors once enjoyed, throughout untold ages, in their tribal life, sacrosanct individual freedom under a fair and just code of laws, an elected king or chief and a representative government (out of which sprang the U.S. Constitution and much of the English Common Law, and modern parliamentary government).*

* Dr. Charles Kingsley, lecturing at Oxford in the 1870s, told of "The Laws of the Lombards" and other Teutonic tribes quoting not only from a Lombard compilation of the 7th Century, but also from the historian Tacitus, six hundred years earlier. (This series of lectures, titled The Teuton and the Roman, have just been republished by Northern World, 24 Highgate, West Hill, London N. 6, Eng.)

Dr. Kingsley said the Teutonic tribes had the essentials of the modern Anglo-Saxon constitution, originated the jury trial by twelve men, guaranteed property rights and the freedom of the individual. They elected their kings or tribal chiefs, who were usually their military leaders, and important edicts had to be confirmed by the people or their representatives.

"With their wives, children and cattle, the Lombards; brought (from their Baltic home—RHW) also something with them that was not to survive against the memory of Rome. And this was the Teutonic laws. The liberties of the Lombards, if not their inherent creativeness, were later destroyed by the Latin clergy, but for a while they survived, and a study of them is profitable as a fair specimen of the laws of any Teutonic people. You may compare them profitably with old Gothic. Burgundian, Franco-salic, Anglo-Saxon and Scandinavian laws, all formed from the same parent model, agreeing often in minute details, and betokening one primeval origin of awe-inspiring antiquity. By studying them you can gain some idea of that primeval individual liberty and self-government, common at first to all the races, but preserved only by the English..."

“The laws of the Lombards were collected and published for the first time by their King Rothar, in A.D. 643, two generations after the Lombards came to Italy. They were ‘the laws of our fathers, as far as we have learnt them from ancient men, and are published with the counsel and consent of our princes, judges, and all our most prosperous army... and are confirmed according to the custom of our nation by garathings’ () as quoted)... it is clear from the publication that the law was in the nature of social contract, a distinct compact between king and people, from which you will immediately perceive that these Lombards, like all Teutonic peoples, were a free nation under a form of constitutional monarchy. They would have greeted with laughter the Roman idea of a God Emperor.”

Dr. Kingsley, obviously, was not talking about the original Romans, the founders of the republic, a thousand years earlier, but of the degenerate empire, a motley mixture of more than 20 racial elements—predominantly negroid elements mixed with Mediterraneans. Little Celtic and Teutonic blood remained in Southern Italy. “The Lombards saw the evil of degenerate Rome, and despised it. They despised the cosmopolitan ‘Roman’ population which they had conquered.”

The “Roman” idea of a God Emperor, in fact, was largely bequeathed to the later Romans through centuries of Jewish influence. (End footnote)

So vast has been the movement of “liberalism” and progressive education that even most individuals of the present generation have lost the golden thread of history. So valuable is it especially in showing how far our people have been perverted against their native temperament and their once-great heritage of freedom and justice, that our history must be destroyed; the Israelitic group must see that it is entirely lost.

Of the Anglo-Saxons, the Angles are known to have occupied a position which is approximately Southern Denmark, the Saxons just to the South of them, for centuries before the birth of Christ—during the centuries in which the 12 tribes of Israel were a pastoral, sheep-herding people. The Lombards and the great Goth tribe, which split into Ostro-Goths and Visi-Goths were their brothers and near neighbors. The Celts apparently had lived somewhere near the upper Rhine River a thousand years before Christ. These tribes, both the Teutonic and the Celtic branch of the Nordic (or northern) race, were of fair complexion, tall and (as described by Caesar 60 years before the birth of Christ and by the historian Tacitus about 100 years after) blond or red headed.

HISTORY REVEALS RACIAL DIFFERENCES

Herodotus visited them and wrote about their generous nature, their orderly living and their kindness toward their children and kinsmen, nearly 500 years before Christ. It is obvious that they had occupied Northern Europe for thousands of years—before the 12 Tribes of Israel—a Semitic, Eastern Mediterranean or Middle Eastern people—existed as such.

It was these Nordic tribes who originated the concept of freedom of the individual and constitutional government; they had parliamentary government and courts of justice, and elected tribal chiefs, at the earliest stages of their known history.*

* Will Durant’s Caesar and Christ (1944) says the northern tribes pioneered the iron industry and taught it to the pre-Romans of Italy 1000 years before Christ: “In the valley of the Po the descendants of these terramaricoli (the early inhabitants of the Italian peninsula—RHW) about 1000 B.C., learned from Germany the use of iron...” (End footnote)

As long as the northern tribes rendered their loyalty to the tribe and race, they were indestructible. The only way the crafty Romans could make a dent in their armor was to propagandize among those tribes (notably the Franks) which had moved out of the north and settled among Mediterraneans, and had begun the process of outbreeding. Some of these could be recruited for warfare against the remaining northern tribes.

The race was powerful till it came into contact with other racial elements, and especially with the Jewish propaganda movements which always, in Greece and Rome, incited one religious cult against another, one political or military faction against another, and which “brotherly love” propaganda, perverting early Christianity, made the Whites greatly speed their blending with the Black and Brown.

The great Roman republic apparently was built by men of Nordic ideals, probably the early Celts but possibly also some of the Teutonic Nordics.*

* The textbook The Ladder Of History, says “Probably most of the early people of Italy came down from the north... They were a fair-haired, blue-eyed people like the early Greeks.” (End footnote)

But there were not many of them, and under the Jewish propaganda before the time of Christ, and especially later under the guise of the Christian movement, the Jewish subversion induced the big, sturdy, honest—if gullible—Nordics virtually to breed themselves out of existence, leaving an utterly unmoral, unambitious, carefree swarthy mixture content to live on handouts from a Socialist government, and let the great Roman order crumble ’round them. When the men of vision and character dwindled to too few in numbers, they could no longer maintain a high level of public character among the masses and Rome fell in a cesspool of degeneracy. The Goths, and later the Lombards, revived Rome but only till they, too, (always few in number) softened under the degenerate, easy living of the racially chaotic Mediterranean. They made the suicidal mistake of taking slaves.

The tribes were indestructible till they came into contact with other races, and turned their loyalty to a geographic area and political unit rather than to tribe and race.

By contrast with the freedom of the individual among the Teutonic tribes, the Jews—despite their fierce individualism and admirable skill in looking after their own interests—always managed (and still manage) to bind themselves in webs of private power organizations and coercive laws. They are constantly today inventing some sort of organization to bring pressure on somebody, or some governmental body, to get something for nothing or to divide gentiles (and perhaps to provide highly paid jobs at the same time). In Jerusalem at the time of the birth of Christ, all labor and commerce was organized to the minutest detail. Every Jew was a “sea lawyer”, gifted in interpreting his own rights. Labor unions, a Jewish invention, dictated wages and hours and other “unions” fixed prices and conditions of business conduct and laws—and the rabbis that stood above these Laws even regulated charity; the owner of a fig tree could not completely strip the tree, but (by law) must leave some for the poor.*

* The students of ancient civilizations know a great deal about earlier races and peoples. Not all is guesswork. It was a White race, or element of a White race—the brunette Mediterranean branch—which built the great Egyptian civilization and which maintained it for three thousand years, letting it lapse into retro-grade only after the Egyptians began interbreeding with imported Negro soldiers and slaves (farm workers). Some of the men who engineered the building of the pyramids evidently were red headed, kinsmen of the northern European tribes.

One of the leading authorities of this century on ancient Egypt, Prof. G. Elliott Smith of the University of Manchester, England, wrote in 1911:

“The hot, dry sands of Egypt have preserved through a span of more than sixty centuries the remains of countless multitudes of the earliest peoples known to have dwelt in the Nile Valley; and not the mere bones only, but also their skin, and hair and the muscles and organs of the body; and even such delicate tissues as the nerves and the brain, and most marvelous of all, the lens of the eye, are available for examination today. We are able to form a very precise idea of the structure of the body of the Proto-Egyptian... no resemblance whatever to the so-called ‘wooly’ appearance and peppercorn-like arrangement of the Negro’s hair.” (The Ancient Egyptians And Their Influence Upon European Civilization.) (End footnote)

The vast difference in Jewish law and systems on the one hand and our Constitutional government, our live-and-let-live attitude and the freedom of the individual on the other, is due to a deep, abiding difference in racial temperament, attitude and ambition, and this difference is the key to the entire world situation and to much of the history of the West for the past 2,500 years. The history of the world is a racial history. The difference in the temperament and racial, or tribal, ambitions of the Jews and persons of “Western” or Northern racial stock is still evident for all but the blind. Yet, strange to say, our people fail to see it, fail even to suspect it—and now, under decades of indoctrination by the “utopian” “Jewish” nationalists, many of our professors in high school and college even ridicule the idea that there is any difference in the temperament, intelligence and native endowments of the different races. Their blindness is beyond belief. They might as well say there is no difference in the temperament, intelligence and disposition of the big, dignified St. Bernard dogs and the nervous barking terriers. No amount of education, no amount of good food and housing will make one out of the other. The Black Africans, however happy and admirable in their own environment, do not have the disposition and capabilities to build what we might call civilization; they have been free to do so for thousands of years, but still live in huts in their native lands. On the other hand, set a colony of White men down in any wilderness and they will strike out—hell-bent to make over the wilderness into the burden we call civilization. The White man creates his own environment. I would be the last to say that for this he is any better than the Negro; but if you like civilization and if you like your freedom, you had better start waking up the blind citizens to the importance of preserving the White race. [H: Again, chelas, this has no reference to “preference” or WHY conditions came upon you through the eons of time. The White men destroy just as much as possible to “civilize” the environment, whether or not anyone wants it that way—but, these attributes or disadvantages are utilized to their full potential in the hands of the clever adversary who would have ultimate control of the globe and all upon it.]

It is the Anglo-Saxon who must be undermined if the Zionists are to win. It is the Anglo-Saxon who must be softened, brainwashed, made to outbreed with dark races and leave the field to the Zionist strategists. This is not news to students of subversive movements. Our own Army Intelligence tried to warn us as early as 1920. The Chicago Tribune of June 19 of that year carried the Intelligence release, telling about a movement within a movement, a Jewish world-power movement hidden inside the Communist movement:

“This second movement aims for the establishment of a new racial domination of the world... the moving spirits in the second scheme are Jewish radicals. Within the ranks of Communism is a group of this party but it does not stop there. To its leaders Communism is only an incident. They are ready to use the Islamic revolt, hatred by the Central Empire of England, Japan’s designs on India and commercial rivalries between America and Japan.

“As any movement of world revolution must be, this is primarily anti-Anglo-Saxon.... The organization of the world Jewish radical movement has been perfected in almost every land.”

In studying the subversive movements of our time it is impossible to make headway without taking into account race, temperament and racial ambitions and disposition. Shintoism was Japanese. It grew out of a religious belief, but it just suited the Japanese temperament. Communism sprang out of Jewish cabalism, Jewish secretive organizing. We of open, lie-detector faces, of European stock, more or less honest and much more gullible, we could never invent a countywide secret movement, let alone a worldwide one. We are not especially interested in trying to regiment people, in trying to undermine, deceive and destroy other races, nations and religions. We do not want to be bothered with the tensions necessary to conduct secretive, murderous underground activities. While we do not do too good a job of practicing the Golden Rule, even when not under alien influence, still we do idealize the live-and-let-live philosophy. And because we are more or less honest—and generally incapable of secretive cunning and scheming on a sustained and organized scale—we are sitting ducks for those who do conduct such operations. Our strength is in our temperament. Nordics in their own environment can get along with hardly any laws and law enforcement bodies. But our temperament also is our weakness; for we can be snared into wars and suicidal movements without ever suspecting the existence of a trap.

The native honesty and suicidal naivete of our ancestors was such that they considered it mean and low to use surprise or stratagems, or to win by unfair or cunning devices. In 102 B.C., when 300,000 Teutons met Roman legions and naively asked them to state the time and place to do battle, the crafty Romans set a trap and destroyed them—men, women and children—many of the women committing suicide rather than fall into the hands of the Romans.

[H: Do you begin to see how you function? Part of you who hold out for demonstrations and timed statements of happenings, etc., from even we of the Command, do so as openly as did the Teutons tell their deadly enemy exactly where to be and what to do. The opposition and ones who would destroy the WORD and gain the world, use this naive honesty (“suicidal honesty”) to thwart you and pull you down and you blunder into the same trap time after time after time. It goes beyond the inherent tendency to believe in the goodness of all men—it moves right into stupid misdiscernment of those sent to destroy you. Even ones who come into your house and eat at your table and, while there, poison your food—you simply turn around and eat the poisoned food and ask them in again and again. You do not need go into battle and utilize “force”—simply do not offer them entry after they have proven their intent to USE you for their own gainful purposes—even if they, themselves, do not recognize their own purpose.]

WE MUST BE BRAINWASHED

[H: Gross understatement of the century!]

The same Nature which prescribed the temperament of each separate race, also provided a physiognomy to match. The Oriental has heavy lids, with slits for his dark, opaque eyes; his skin is dark and heavy; he is poker-faced. [H: Does this make him “less equal” in spirit? Of course not—but it DOES make him “DIFFERENT” in heritage.] It is easy for him to deceive; and naturally he is inclined to make use of the talents and facilities with which Nature equipped him.

We, of thin, fair skin and light, wide-open eyes, rarely can deceive for long; our faces are lie detectors. We are so smug, so accustomed to security, success and frankness, that we do not perceive that certain aliens moving in among us are utterly different. We are thus at a tragic disadvantage in the psychological war directed against us from behind the alien masks. The big, dignified Nordic, of generous nature, courage, energy and resourcefulness, the man who has brought freedom to so much of the world, the natural leader who blazed trails and built much of the New World—this remarkable man is fast disappearing. His race is degenerating under the impact of perverse propaganda and is steadily breeding downward, not only within itself but with the less-gifted, less-ambitious races. [H: These are the ones who kept their word and stood by agreements at all costs—these are not the slimy, puny little cheats and liars who did-in the natives and stole their lands.]

The entire White race is doomed, in fact, unless very soon its ministers, teachers and political officials quit trying to give it away and begin fighting for its survival.*

* Edwin A. Embree, head of the $30,000,000 Julius Rosenwald Foundation (all of which was spent in Communist propaganda inciting the Negroes against the White race) was reported in the Afro-American of June 10, 1944, as having told the National Conference of Social Work in Cleveland:

“For 300 years White men of Western Europe and North America have ruled the world... but the White man of the Western world is being offered his ‘last chance for equal status in world society’.”

For this violence by certain incited Negroes against their White benefactors, we can thank the American Jewish Committee, which told its members in its annual report, titled “American Jewish Committee Budget, 1953” that the AJC was virtually the source and the over-all guiding authority behind the race agitation, the so-called “civil rights” revolution, and all related activities:

“The Civil Rights Division (of the AJC—RHW) plans its over-all program in terms of community and organizational needs as they are presented to the Department from a wide source of groups and individuals. Any realistic attempt to plan a program, as well as to implement it, must depend on the efficacy with which we work in cooperation with outside agencies who present their issues to us.

“Local Jewish Community Relations Councils and comparable organizations, all of which are alert to local, state and federal civil rights problems, bring their problems to us for advice, guidance and expert assistance. Needs are presented by organizations, such as the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People—RHW), on a national level, and by mayors’ councils, and other city and state organizations on a local level. Special-purpose organizations whose sole function it is to work in such fields as housing or employment, and overall civil rights organizations which serve entire communities or racial and religious groups, service us and are serviced by us.

“In the field of employment, much effective work is done through such organizations as the 1952 Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, which coordinates the activities of all agencies interested in civil rights and which coordinates the varied efforts of approximately fifty other organizations...”

“The Civil Rights Department maintains a particularly close liaison with certain general purpose agencies working in the field of civil rights. An example of this is our relationship with the NAACP, which comes to us for assistance in certain matters where we have special competence, and we look to them for aid in solving what we consider to be mutual problems. The same is true of our relationship with the ACLU (American Civil Liberties Union, a legal staff defending principally Communists and fellow travelers in court actions—RHW).

Thus, the American Jewish Committee is really behind the Communist revolution in our country. (End footnote)

While there remain millions of Nordic families in our country—and we are perhaps 65 percent Nordic as a whole—nevertheless, we are no longer Nordic tribes; our problem now is the problem of the whole White race. The Nordics are rapidly mixing with the other two, often charming but softer, branches of the White race. Our problem is now White unity for common survival. It is the White race which invents and makes the weapons of mass destruction; even Russia under Communism has to depend on White scientists, industrialists and generals. It is the White race which will commit suicide with its own weapons unless its leaders change their course. If the White race will wake up to its situation and realize its power, if it will develop a common bond of understanding, the world wars cannot recur; the whole world will have peace. [H: This is certainly in no way a “Put-down” to any other races, it is simply a matter of FACT. You certainly do no favor to the lesser-treated brother to join him in his slavery—you both will gain from the gathering into unity and lifting BOTH up from the persecution—but in TRUTH, not within the lies foisted off on you by would-be-rulers—OF YOU.]

We need to understand only a few basic, simple fundamentals: (1) that the world revolution in both its Communist and its Zionist phases, is destroying the White race; (2) that each member of any and every race has a right and a duty to love and protect his own, not because his race is better than any other but because it is his, just as he loves his mother because she is his.*

* Evidently the White non-Jew ever has been a gullible fellow, easily herded by a crafty herdsman. When the Phoenicians were competing for domination of the commerce of the Mediterranean and other known sea lanes before the time of Christ, they used propaganda to scare off competition. Being double first cousins of the so-called “Jews”, they were great propagandists. They circulated stories along the Mediterranean that some seas beyond the Gates of Hercules (the Strait of Gibraltar) were boiling hot, that others harbored deadly monsters. So well did they circulate the fable that the Earth was flat—that ships sailing out too far would fall off the edge—that the fable persisted for a thousand years, among the masses. [H: And YOU think there couldn't be a little “miscounting” of the numbers of “Jews” in Europe and within the prison compounds of World War II prisons? Why do you think laws are made to prevent the stating of correct outlay and numbers? If you can enforce a law for three generations, it becomes accepted fact—and truth is hidden until some daring historian uncovers something like the PHOENIX JOURNALS some centuries later.] These tales discouraged the Mediterraneans of Western stock, and no doubt the Negroid elements, too, from following the sea.

A Greek scientist and mathematician named Pytheas (a Nordic, by the way) sailed to the Gates of Hercules, north to the British Isles and on to Iceland, developing and proving some navigation formulas. He wrote a book about his voyage, incorporating the formulas to their sea captains, and their potential value to competitors; so they launched a campaign of ridicule which made Pytheas and his book the laughing stock of his time. So successful was the smear campaign that the book completely disappeared, but the Phoenicians used the formulas, and these formulas became the basis of modern navigation. Within the past century the facts have been established—not, however, from Pytheas' book, which is still missing, but ironically enough, from fragments quoted from it by his detractors for purposes of ridicule. (End footnote)

If we are to accept the Torah as our own ancestral history and our religion (PUBLIC LAW 102-14, MARCH 20, 1991) AS IS NOW THE LAW OF THE LAND), as the Zionist Utopian demand, then it is necessary that all other history disappear from the schools and libraries of this Earth. [H: This is WHY there is all-out effort at all costs to ban this information, and especially the information on your God connections, from the face of the Earth.]

This explains why the Jewish revolutionary organizations, and their “liberal” dupes are so ardent in promoting “progressive education”, the race-mixing teachers' “workshops”, etc. (The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith in its bulletins has claimed authorship of the teachers' summer workshops, which are indoctrination courses in progressive education, racial integration and Socialist and Internationalist concepts—the landmarks of the world Jewish revolution, which one must promote to be “righteous”. These summer workshops, now in scores or hundreds of public school systems, are patterned after the Communist “workshops”—and use the same name—of the revolution of 1848.)

While Jewish nationalists, or Zionists, launched Communism as a temporary, destructive “front”, its objective was not exactly the same as that of Zionism. Communism mixes all the races, whereas the Zionists would destroy or Judaize only the religion of the non-Jews, and destroy the nations and races of non-Jews, while building a seven-strata racial hierarchy among their own people, firing them with such fanaticism that they will not substantially accept their own race-mixing propaganda, driving them to build a Jewish nation which is to be the seat of power.

The Communists want a Communist world; the Zionists, a Jewish world. As the Zionists gain power, the fact that the Communists are suckers becomes increasingly evident—for they destroy the resistance of the nations and races, while Zionism takes over. If Zionism wins, it must destroy its Communist illegitimate child.

[H: The above two points are about as important as you will ever find in sorting out WHAT IS GOING ON IN YOUR WORLD TODAY!]

The author says (page 29) for the “ideal civilization to take root”:

“One nation would have to establish its life on a Utopian foundation, thereby leading the way for the rest of the world to follow its example. A model, ideal state comprising a group of righteous individuals and living an ideal life, will gradually spread its teachings and influence from nation to nation, throughout the world. The Kingdom of God will then become a fact.

“Israel is the only nation that is suited for that purpose... What Tennyson has said of the human race, may well be said of the ideal Israel: ‘We are the Ancients of the Earth, and in the morning of the times.’... The Kingdom of God will come only through an ideal Israel.”

The author emphasizes the exalted position which Israel is to hold after the holocaust:

“Isaiah's prophecy will then be realized: ‘And their seed shall be known among the nations, and their offspring among the peoples; all that see them shall acknowledge them, that they are the seed which the Lord hath blessed.’ Israel will thus become a light, a symbol of the ideal life for the nations, so that, in the words of Isaiah, ‘the nations shall walk at Israel's light, and kings at the brightness of Israel's rising.’

“... The people of Israel will thus conquer, spiritually, the nations of the Earth, so that Israel will be made high above all nations in praise, in name and in glory.”

[END OF QUOTING FOR THIS SEGMENT]

Does it now begin to make sense as to WHAT happened and how it came to be that suddenly “Communism” simply was pronounced “DEAD”? It was time to move on to the next more terrifying step in the overall plan of world domination. Well, there are still some die-hard “Communist believers” and free Russians who don't like the Israeli plan for Zionist domination. You liked it in America and let your government be swallowed hook, line, and pay for your incarceration by yourself, to take place. This is WHY everywhere in the world where you would find “Communism” taking hold (as in Central and South America, as example), you would also find Israeli instructors and the ever-present Mossad at work. These Zionists stole Communism the same way that they have stolen your Constitution, freedom and Democracy. Well, the Russians don't like it and if you are a freedom-loving American or free-world citizen—you don't like it either. This is WHY, however, the seats of your vermin-infested places of cities, banksters and power will be taken out by the humans with the most powerful capability in weapons and technical ability. So, a bunch of you goodly brothers get hurt? It is the way it is, for you have slept too long. Your friends, if you are of God's intent, will be spared to the best of the ability of the brothers in the Cosmospheres with the capability as projected through human physical—and, on the surface you who hold to the “Phoenix” Truth will be spared—if possible—but the would-be rulers have no brother out in the cosmos and they have infiltrated your numbers so greatly that to get them—most of the ones of your globe will perish also. The intended and purposeful depopulation of the globe is under way—the infections injected and now you will experience until you die of either disease or war—IF YOU FAIL TO SEE THE MONSTER FOR WHAT IT IS. GOD WILL DO NOTHING TO SAVE YOU, FOR YOU HAVE RIGHT OF CHOICES AND CERTAINLY HE WILL DO NOTHING TO SAVE HIS VERY ADVERSARY—SO, YOU HAD BEST FACE FACTS AND STOP THE LA-LA LAND FANTASY FARCE.

We are NOT going to produce light shows and “miracles” to impress you—that is the game of the adversary. You are going to come unto us and unto God Creator in TRUTH and not through B.S. about “being”. It is through “actions in intent” that you are “judged” and witnessed. IT IS TIME YOU STARTED MAKING A LITTLE MAGIC, PERHAPS. I am exactly who I say I am and the adversary knows it well—If you know not who you are, then you are in real, real trouble. If you can't seem to make up your mind about me and my mission—you are in even greater trouble because you obviously are not “one of them” with a ticket to security shelter and are obviously marked by the beast to perish in that la-la land dream-state. If you perceive this as my being “hard”, so be it—hard as carbide-steel nails! I don't even “bend” wherein the “laws” are concerned—neither shall I “break”—nor shall my crew.

It is time you stopped playing at believing the stories of the adversary about everything from ritual to what is actually God. You don't have the slightest idea yet, about God, and if you think you have a wimp for a Commander—I trust you will surely “think again”.

Let us close this segment, please, at this point. Thank you. Hatonn to clear.

Cartel Manipulates Silver Price

LOOK FOR THE SILVER LINING: THE COMING BULL MARKET IN SILVER

By Don McAlvany,
gold-eagle.com (Editorial), 11/18/00

PART I

INTRODUCTION

This writer first acquired silver dollars in the 1950s and '60s, when, due to a lack of inflation, they could be acquired for only a little over a dollar. It was understood by all that these silver dollars were money—similar to the silver dimes, quarters, and halves—all of which were used to buy goods and services just like paper currency.

During Lyndon Johnson's presidency, silver was removed from most U.S. coinage as the federal government began to develop far more inflationary policies (i.e., the days of "guns and butter"). By the early 1970s, silver (which the government said had been "demonetized") began to rise in price along with gold, platinum, oil, inflation, and U.S. interest rates—ultimately rising 2500% by January 1980 (i.e., from about $2 to $52/ounce).

Wall Street, the government, and conventional wisdom later attributed the rise to "market manipulation" (or cornering) by Texas oil billionaire Bunker Hunt and his brother Herbert, but this was not true. The Hunts did take very large positions in silver (i.e., at least 100 million ounces) because the price was cheap and the inflation-induced upside potential was huge. They bought most of their silver under $10 per ounce and all of it under $15.

These purchases of an underpriced commodity were not unlike the very large purchases of silver (or silver shares) over the past year or two by Warren Buffett, George Soros and Bill Gates—who, like the Hunts in the '70s, recognize a very undervalued commodity in a sea of very overvalued investments.

In the late '70s speculators jumped into the silver market and gave the metal its final run to $52. The ultimate collapse of silver from this overpriced pinnacle was blamed on the Hunt brothers by Washington and Wall Street. But that was as dishonest as the non-stop economic/financial lies that come out of Washington and Wall Street today—and the manipulation by financial officials was as blatant then as it is today in financial markets.

The Comex and the Commodities Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) changed the silver trading rules (i.e., they raised the margin requirements to 100%; they refused to let the Hunts take delivery of their silver; and they allowed only futures sell orders, not buy orders). Of course, the market could do nothing but collapse. But first (before changing the rules) a number of the board members of the Comex and the CFTC shorted massive quantities of silver. They made billions in the greatest financial manipulation in history—up until that time—and blamed the Hunt brothers for the collapse of silver. (ED. NOTE: Today's stock and financial market manipulations are even larger and more blatant.)

Over the past 20 years, silver has given up most of its 1970s gains and has retreated to the $5 range (where it has been building a huge base for several years) and where it is trading today (in inflation-adjusted terms) at its lowest level in almost 100 years. It is today (i.e., $4.92 at this writing) the most undervalued investment vehicle in the world, a fact that has not been overlooked by Buffett, Soros, Gates and other large value-conscious investors.

Today, the fundamental factors in the silver market are very similar to, but even more extreme than in the early 1970s. Industrial, consumer, and jewelry demands for silver are rising all over the world even as production is declining. The greatest supply/demand shortfall in history now exists—even greater than the one the Hunts spotted in the early '70s, which, along with sharply rising inflation, helped to trigger the 25-fold rise during that decade.

A similar confluence of factors: rising global inflation and interest rates; rising oil and commodity prices; severe silver shortages; and huge political instability in the Middle East all bode very well today for this long-overlooked investment vehicle. And, as long-time precious metals investors know, silver is by far the most volatile and potentially profitable of all the precious metals (i.e., when it moves, it can literally double overnight).

A. BULLISH SUPPLY/DEMAND FUNDAMENTALS

A historical perspective of silver supplies might be helpful: A half-century ago, at the end of World War II, total known (i.e., above-ground) stocks of silver were over ten billion ounces, with the U.S. government holding 4 billion ounces of that total. At that time, we were entering an era of unprecedented global economic expansion and prosperity which has lasted to the present.

During this era, silver was consumed in a variety of vital modern applications at a phenomenal rate. Today, known global stocks of silver (in private or government hands) have shrunk over 90% to under a billion ounces. This 9 to 9½ billion-ounce drawdown was the result of a persistent shortfall between supply and demand which continues to this day. Today, demand for silver is 170% of mine supply, and continues to grow. A severe deficit has existed between demand and supply for over 10 years now. It was bad in the '70s; eased off in the '80s; and was huge throughout the '90s. This deficit has accounted for the drawdown in above-ground supplies. The great majority of the above-ground stocks (or inventories) have been depleted to fill the supply shortfall and avert a price explosion. These supplies are now effectively gone.

1. SILVER DEMAND

Similar to platinum and palladium, the lion's share of demand for silver is for industrial applications, in which the metal is a small part of the finished product. Consequently, if silver goes up 3, 5 or 10-fold (or even 25-fold as it did in the 1970s) it will diminish industrial silver demand very little (i.e., if a $1,000 item has $2 worth of silver, and the price of the silver content of that item rises to $10 or $20, it will not keep the manufacturer from using silver, or the end user from buying the item).

Industrial demand for silver has been explosive since 1950 (but especially in the 1990s), using up most all of the 10 billion ounces of global reserves accumulated since the days of the Roman Empire. Prior to the 20th Century, silver was used primarily as a monetary metal—hoarded like gold. However, in the last century, industrial demand kicked in, and became the dominant end use for silver. It is noteworthy that virtually all of the gold ever mined is still with us, whereas most of the silver ever mined has been used up (consumed).

(a) SILVER'S UNIQUE PROPERTIES: Silver has unique properties which are not replaceable in industry. It is malleable; fatigue resistant; corrosion resistant; it has high tensile strength; it is soft enough to be formed and stretched; it is wear resistant; has a very long functional life; it is very sensitive to and reflects light [the most reflective metal], conducts heat, and electricity; it provides catalytic action; it renders unique properties when alloyed with other metals; it reduces friction; and is a bactericide which can be used in infection-fighting applications [colloidal silver]. Because of its unique properties, it is virtually impossible to replace silver in most of its tens of thousands of applications.

(b) SILVER'S INDUSTRIAL APPLICATIONS: Silver is used in the manufacture of high-performance batteries, with billions of silver oxide batteries generating power in tools, portable electronic equipment, cameras, watches, etc. Silver zinc batteries have a wide number of high-tech military and space applications (i.e., rockets, torpedoes, satellites, missiles, etc.). Silver coatings are used in bearings in virtually all jet engines, in diesel engines; silver is used in auto manufacture and in virtually all motorized equipment; silver is used in plumbing, soldering; in computers in circuit boards, capacitors and chips; in mobile phones; it is used in the chemical industry in tens of thousands of applications.

Silver is used in thousands of electrical applications (i.e., switches, contacts, fuses, household appliances, in over 40 switches in a typical large auto, in computers, etc). Silver has thousands of high-tech applications where reliability, precision and safety are imperative. Since silver kills bacteria, it has hundreds of medical and dental applications.

Tens of thousands of industrial and medical applications of silver make up about half of global silver demand. About a third of the world's silver supply goes to jewelry and silverware (with a lot of that being consumed in India), and the remainder (about 20 percent) is used in photography. (In 1999, 280 million ounces of silver were used in jewelry and silverware and 245 million ounces were used in photography.)

(c) PHOTOGRAPHIC DEMAND FOR SILVER: Since 1980, silver bears have been arguing that silver usage in cameras and photography would cease—to be replaced by digital cameras. Photographic demand for silver has grown every year since then—right up through the present, now totaling almost 250 million ounces per year. Photographic demand in 1999 jumped 3.9% over 1998, and is forecast to grow by 4.5% in 2000 over 1999. Amateur and professional photographers around the world (numbering in the hundreds of millions), rely on silver halide film and paper, used in hundreds of millions of cameras to take tens of billions of photos each year.

Even if digital cameras should become popular, traditional camera use and photography will continue to grow because of its convenience, low cost, and better image quality. Nothing else reacts to light like silver salts. It is not likely that the $800 digital camera and $2000 computer needed to display the pictures will be a competitive substitute for a $7 disposable camera. Silver is also used widely in x-rays, graphic arts, and film for movies and videos.

(d) TOTAL GLOBAL SILVER DEMAND: It grew in 1999 to 877.4 million ounces. Asian demand was down in 1997 and '98 due to the Asian financial crisis but is now rising strongly as the region recovers. Overall demand for silver has doubled over the past 14 years (with most of the growth coming from industrial applications and photography) and is likely to continue growing at about a 4% annual rate. Demand for silver in coins and medals is the only category that has declined sharply over the past decade (i.e., to 29.5 million ounces in 1999) reflecting a decline in investor demand in the 1990s.

2. SILVER SUPPLY

Mine production of silver only supplies 58% of demand, with the supply/demand deficit growing steadily since 1989. Total supplies of silver from mine production in 1999 shrunk to 546.8 million ounces (versus total demand of 877.4 million ounces). The total "structural deficit" (i.e., total fabricator demand, less total supply—ignoring supply from government sales and paper derivatives) jumped to 155.7 million ounces in '99, up from 94.5 million ounces in '98. The cumulative deficits (from 1990-99) total 1,224 billion ounces.

(a) ABOVE-GROUND SUPPLIES OF SILVER ARE DISAPPEARING: Clearly, the supply/demand shortfall has been made up over the past decade from sales from government hoards, and from silver bullion bars and coins which have been melted down. In 1999 alone, 335 million ounces were taken out of above-ground supplies. Investor's coins and government (or investor) silver bars have been melted down and turned into industrial or consumer products which have been consumed. That silver is gone forever!

The 1999 total supply/demand deficit of 335 million ounces was covered: 208 million ounces from scrap or recycled silver; 30 million ounces from governments (including 6 million from the U.S. government); and 97 million ounces were supplied from melting down bullion, coins, and private inventories and converting them to industrial applications.

The important point to note is that most of the above-ground supplies of silver (which in 1950 were a little over 10 billion ounces and are now down to less than a billion ounces—down almost 95 percent—have now been used up to fill the growing industrial appetite for silver. Unlike gold, there are virtually no above-ground silver reserves. And large new silver mine production cannot be geared up since 75% of silver production is a by-product of lead-zinc, copper or gold mining operations. It is improbable that these operations would be expanded due to a silver price rise.

The U.S. government used to hold 4 billion ounces of silver in its strategic reserves (i.e., for wartime or other crises). Today, most of that is gone. The Defense Department silver stockpile is down 85 percent from the sale of mint coins alone (i.e., American Eagles).

(b) WHERE ARE THE ABOVE-GROUND SUPPLIES?: Of about 933 million ounces of global above-ground reserves, bullion and coins held worldwide (including market and industrial inventories) were down to 757 million at the end of 1999 (and probably under 700 million at the end of 2000). Most of these coins and bars are held by long-term players who will not turn loose of that silver.

Global governments held 153 million ounces at the end of '99 (part of the 757 million ounces), having sold 150 million ounces in the '90s. Berkshire Hathaway (i.e., Warren Buffett) held 130 million of the 933 million ounces. As of 12/31/99, market inventories held by Comex, Tocom, etc. and industrial inventories were at the lowest levels in decades (i.e., 113 million ounces). They are lower at the end of 2000.

THE BOTTOM LINE

There is a 335 million-ounce supply/demand shortfall or deficit, and it is growing each year. The shortfall has been met from above-ground supplies and those are now running out. This will bring about an explosive rise in silver prices in the not-too-distant future ala the 1970s and perhaps even greater—because global silver consumption is far larger today than in the 1970s; global above-ground reserves are down almost 95 percent; and the annual deficit is much larger.

B. THE BIG GUYS SEE

THE GIANT SILVER SQUEEZE COMING

Just as the farsighted billionaire Bunker Hunt saw the incredible silver opportunity in the early 1970s and acquired a huge position at low prices in anticipation of the great silver bull market, so Warren Buffet, George Soros, Bill Gates, and other very wealthy investors (including some Middle East oil sheiks) have been quietly acquiring silver (or silver equities) at the lowest nominal prices in over 25 years and the lowest inflation adjusted prices in almost 100 years.

These are very savvy investors as well as entrepreneurs who made their substantial fortunes by being ahead of the crowd, by being mavericks, and by recognizing value when no one else did. As Buffett has said, he does not see value in the present stock market (especially the high-tech sector) but he does see value in silver. In 1997 Buffet quietly accumulated what was then believed to be one-third of the available above-ground supply of silver—using 2% of Berkshire Hathaway's substantial holdings (i.e., he bought 130 million ounces for $650 million). He announced the acquisition in February '98, which prompted a 25% temporary run-up in the silver price.

If one considers the tightness of the 933 million ounce global (above-ground) float of silver, much of which is in strong (long-term) hands, which have no intention of parting with it anytime soon, Buffett is in a rather commanding position in the world silver market. What if more large OPEC oil producers begin to convert, let's say one or two percent, or five percent of their petro dollars into silver (as they did into gold and silver in the 1990s)? The global squeeze in silver and spike in its price would be huge. And like the present price rise in oil, it might last a lot longer and rise a lot farther than it did in the 1970s.

PART II

C. SILVER LEASING:

MANIPULATION IN THE SILVER MARKET

QUESTION: With a 10-year supply/demand shortfall, declining silver production, and evaporating above-ground supplies of silver, what has kept the silver price from rising sharply over the past year or so—along with oil, platinum, palladium, and a large group of other global raw materials?

ANSWER: Manipulation via a powerful group of financial institutions and central banks which have leased huge quantities of silver to mining companies and speculators such as hedge funds. Central banks earn interest by leasing their silver (via large bullion banks such as Goldman Sachs and Chase Manhattan, who act as broker/intermediaries) at low interest rates to silver mine producers (or speculators).

These entities sell the silver to raise funds for operations (or speculation) putting downward pressure on the price of silver. Their plan is to pay off the loan out of their silver production, or, in the case of the speculators (such as a hedge fund) by repurchasing at what they hope will be a lower price. These lease/sale arrangements (promoted by some of New York's biggest bullion banks) initially put temporary downward pressure on the price of silver, but are in effect creating a huge short position in silver—held by silver producers or the large speculators. Eventually, these positions must be covered, creating huge future upward pressure on the silver price.

[ED. NOTE: This is almost exactly what the central banks, bullion banks, gold mining producers, and large speculators have been doing in the gold market the past few years to hold the price down. (See the January '98 and June '99 issues of MIA for a detailed explanation of this manipulation technique. If you have not seen these reports, you may call 800-525-9556 and obtain a free copy of same.)

In both the silver and gold "bear operations", derivatives are utilized. The silver leases, however, are far more dangerous to both the lender (the central bank) and the borrower (the mining company or speculator) because the available physical supply of silver to repay the loans is so much smaller than that for gold.]

The size and scope of these lease/sales of silver are huge compared to production and must be paid back from an inventory which is virtually non-existent. If (or when) the central bank lenders call in their silver (or gold), the silver (or gold) market will explode because the mining companies cannot produce enough silver (or gold) in one year to cover their multiyear "shorts". In effect, there is too much paper and too little silver and, as a result, there is the biggest short position in silver in world history. Eventually this will trigger the biggest price explosion in silver in world history—probably even larger than in the 1970s.

It should be remembered that when you are short a stock, a bond, a commodity, etc. you have to purchase (or buy back in) the item to "cover" or close out your short position. If the price is higher than where you shorted it, you purchase at the higher price (i.e., at a loss). One of these days, a Buffett, a Soros, a Bill Gates, an Arab oil producer (or group of same), a Red China, etc. is going to start buying silver—and buying, and buying. As the price begins to rise it will drive the shorts to the wall, they will be forced to buy into a rising market to cover their positions and the silver price will explode.

Today, silver mines (and large speculators) have sold over a billion ounces short in leasing deals. There is another 750,000 ounces (or more) short in silver futures. That's about 2 billion ounces of a commodity that is already in short supply that has been shorted. There are about 993 million ounces (less than 1 billion ounces in above-ground supplies)—and those are being eaten up by industrial consumption and are held in part by long-term holders. In other words, they are not readily available for covering shorts and even if they were, 993 million ounces couldn't cover almost 2 billion ounces in short positions.

It is bizarre for the size of the silver derivative position to be larger than the "real" silver market (i.e., twice as large as all above-ground supplies and four times annual global production). It is worth repeating: There is a bigger short position than all the silver that exists in the world—twice as big! A huge squeeze (perhaps the biggest in world financial history) is in the making!

A classic example of a mining producer that has been shorting both gold and silver is Barrick. As of mid-2000, it was short 12 million ounces of gold and 14 million ounces of silver. Putting these gold shorts in perspective, the Bank of England sells 800,000 ounces of gold at their auctions. Barrick's gold short position is 15 times greater.

In both gold and silver, demand has been rising, production has been falling, and the price has been dropping. That is impossible in a "free market"! If this lease/sale bear operation were not underway, experts this writer respects believe that gold would be $500 to $600 per ounce today and silver would be $20 to $30 per ounce.

However, by artificially suppressing the price of both metals, the upside explosion will be far greater when free-market forces finally overwhelm the gold/silver bears (as they did in the 1970s, followed by a 25-fold upmove). Some metals experts believe that the silver squeeze (which will be far more severe for silver than gold—because the above-ground supplies to manage or negate the squeeze are not available in silver) will ultimately propel silver to $50 to $100 per ounce.

[ED. NOTE: While that seems preposterous looking at today's $5 silver and recent price inactivity, the idea of $52 silver in 1970 (when silver was trading near $2) seemed even more preposterous. It became a reality by January 1980. Similarly, 18 months ago, when oil was trading near $10 per barrel, who would have ever thought that by late 2000 it would have risen to almost $40 per barrel. We live in extreme times, as the meteoric rise and cataclysmic fall of the Internet stocks have recently proven.]

ECONOMIC IMPLICATIONS OF A SILVER SQUEEZE

There are severe economic implications of a silver squeeze. Industry is already running short of silver with most industrial users only having a few days of silver inventories on hand. Businesses totally dependent on silver for product production could shut down. Huge users like Eastman Kodak, the auto or aerospace companies will simply have to pay any price and pass it on to their customers.

[ED. NOTE: Information in this report was compiled from a number of excellent sources, which we believe to be reliable, including The Silver Institute, Franklin Sanders Money Changer, James R. Cook and Ted Butler. Ted Butler is a contributing writer [Please see article "Comex Silver Cartel" on next page by same.] on www.gold-eagle.com. For further research by Mr. Butler see www.butlerresearch.com]

CONCLUSION

A supply/demand shortfall of epic proportions has developed in silver—far greater than in the early 1970s just before the 25-fold rise in silver. However, unlike the 1970s, the above-ground supplies of silver are miniscule today and will for all practical purposes evaporate over the next year or so.

The silver price, like gold, has been artificially suppressed by central bank/bullion bank/mine producer/big speculator bear operators, via a complex series of leases, silver sales, use of derivatives, etc.—effectively creating a 2 billion ounce global short position. This is in a world with less than 1 billion ounces in silver inventory and only a little over a half billion ounces of annual production—all of which is spoken for by industry (plus another 335 million ounces over and above production).

Without these machinations by greedy market manipulators and desperate mine producers, silver would likely be $20 to $30 per ounce today. When the short squeeze eventuates, these prices are likely to be reached or exceeded; Central Banks will lose their positions in silver (in whole or part); the Wall Street bullion banks will lose heavily; and the heavily leveraged silver mine producers and big Wall Street speculators will go to the wall (i.e., many of these mining companies and hedge funds will go under), just as Long Term Capital Management (LTCM) would have, but for a huge Fed-engineered [U.S. Taxpayer-financed] bailout. Silver is truly the world's most undervalued ("straw hat") investment today—as Bernard Baruch would say today.

WHAT ARE A FEW POTENTIAL TRIGGERS FOR A SHARP UPTURN IN SILVER PRICES— FOLLOWED BY A MASSIVE SHORT SQUEEZE?

- (1) A continued upturn in global inflation;
- (2) An oil price explosion that triggers a public run into inflation hedges;
- (3) A Middle East war (i.e., Israel versus the united Arab states);
- (4) An oil embargo by OPEC and/or the diversification of petro-dollars (i.e., one to five percent) into gold and silver (all of which happened in the 1970s);
- (5) Red China or India (both traditionally heavy silver-consuming nations) suddenly become aggressive buyers;
- (6) A few large investor/speculators (i.e., Buffett, Soros, Gates-types) ala Bunker Hunt in the '70s, begin to take large aggressive silver positions;
- (7) A severe bear market in U.S. stocks, whereby investors begin to look for a diversification from stocks and a safe haven [ED. NOTE: What if one-tenth of one percent of the $13 trillion in stocks and mutual funds went into silver as a safe haven or diversification—it would be explosive!];
- (8) An accident in the derivatives market which takes down several large players, (such as the LTCM debacle in Sept. '98, which almost took out the 13 largest banks and brokerage firms in America).

The very conservative CPM group has forecast that silver will rise 63 percent to $8.35 an ounce by the end of 2001. Do stocks and mutual funds have that potential in 2001? This writer strongly doubts it! From January 1 to October 18, 2000, the S&P 500 was down 8.65%; the Dow Jones Industrials were down 13.24%; the NASDAQ was down 22.8%; and the NIKKEI 225 was down 21%. It should be remembered that precious metals (for about 2/3 of a total cycle) are contra-cyclical to the stock market. [ED. NOTE: Year to date (through 10/17/00) AT&T was down 52.8%; AOL was down 30.7%; Microsoft was down 56.9%; Lucent was down 68.3%; Motorola was down 54.5%. The list of e-Consumer 50 COMPANIES (i.e., Internet stocks) look like the 1929 crash.]

WHAT TO DO

Silver should be aggressively accumulated at present low prices for the biggest potential rise since the 1970s. One-third of a total portfolio should be in precious metals and 30 percent of that should be in silver. That is about 10 percent of your entire investment portfolio. (The remaining two-thirds of that metals position should be in gold, semi-numismatic coins and platinum coins.) And at least 50-60 percent of your total portfolio should be in Treasury bills or other conservative interest-bearing investments, such as tax-deferred annuities.

At this writing, there are some excellent buys in junk U.S. silver coins (pre-1965 bags [a "bag" consists of $1000 face value] of 90% silver dimes, quarters, or halves), bags of circulated silver dollars, and Morgan silver dollars. Other silver coins will emerge as good investment vehicles, as well, over the next few months.

A WORD OF WARNING

With silver prices down, and overall investor interest still quite low, there is nevertheless already a severe shortage in silver coins developing. Many have been melted down and used up in industrial applications, photography or jewelry since the '70s; there are still hundreds of thousands of investors who do understand the times and are holding onto their silver for "the big ride" (including the likes of Warren Buffett); and the investors who are buying silver coins now are soaking up much of the available supply. In 6 to 12 months, most silver coins may not be available at any price—or only at much higher prices.

This writer strongly believes that early 2001 will bring a severe financial crisis in America and abroad that will be very bad for the stock market but very positive for precious metals. Continued high oil prices (or an oil spike), war in the Middle East, or a precipitous drop in U.S. stocks could be the trigger. A U.S. recession is already standing in the wings and will greet the new president. It is time to reposition your assets in a very conservative configuration.

A strong silver position should be part of that equation. Very high silver demand and a severe shortage—combined with prices so low that silver mines are shutting down—computes to an explosive situation which argues for much higher prices.

you a free information packet.

[ED. NOTE: If you still have a portion of your assets in the stock market or equity mutual funds (a position this writer feels is very unwise)—liquidate a portion of same and place it in silver now! Silver coins can also be used in IRA, Keoghs, SEPS and other retirement funds.]—From The McAlvany Intelligence Advisor, mcalvany.com.

COMEX SILVER CARTEL

By Ted Butler, gold-eagle.com (Editorial), 11/16/00

Most of us understand what a cartel is, namely, a single entity or small group, acting in consort, for the designed purpose of imposing a price on a commodity different than what the free market may dictate. Prominent examples would include DeBeers in diamonds, and OPEC in oil. The purpose of this piece is not to debate the legality or nuances of cartels, but rather to establish that they do exist. But it is the unrecognized cartels that do the most harm, precisely because few are aware of their existence. One such cartel exists on the Commodity Exchange, Inc. (COMEX) silver market. The reason most people don't see it, is because the COMEX Silver Cartel is a short-side cartel, unlike the long-side cartels that we are all familiar with. While DeBeers and OPEC work to lift the price of their products, the COMEX Silver Cartel works to lower the price of silver. Unfortunately, because of this general unawareness, the COMEX Cartel has been wildly successful in depressing the price of silver.

The basic definition of how a cartel works is having sufficient control, or dominance of a market, so as to be able to dictate the price of that market. In crude oil, OPEC controls roughly a third of total world production (25 million barrels per day (bpd) versus 75 million bpd world production), but its dominance determines the price of all production. Sometimes, the oil price is low, and sometimes, like now, the price is high. But the price is always a function of how the cartel is behaving. (To simplify matters, I am intentionally ignoring current refining and transportation bottlenecks). OPEC's dominance is clearly visible. In silver, if you look in the right place, you will just as clearly see the COMEX Silver Cartel's dominance.

The right place to look for the existence of the silver cartel is in the Commodity Futures Trading Commission's weekly "Commitments of Traders" report, long-form version (<http://www.cftc.gov/dea/cot.html>). For the most recent report, released Nov. 13, for positions held as of Nov. 7, you will see that 4 or less large traders hold a net short position equal to 32,000 contracts, or the equivalent of 160 million troy ounces of silver. (Long time readers know I have raised this issue before—see http://www.gold-eagle.com/gold_digest_00/butler021800.html).

While I still contend that the COMEX silver market is, overall, the largest naked short position that the world has ever seen in prior articles, I am only interested here, in the 160 million ounce net short position by the 4 or less traders who make up the COMEX Silver Cartel. First off, 4 or less traders is an intentionally ambiguous term, ostensibly designed to shield the identity and market position of specific traders, or a specific trader. 4 or less, could mean 1 or 2, effectively. Can you imagine that—that the bulk of this position is held by only 1 or 2 traders? Put that concentrated 160-million-ounce short position into context. It is an amount greater than the annual combined production of the two largest producing countries, Mexico and Peru. It equals 30% of total annual world mine production. It is 37% of the entire COMEX futures position, the world's largest precious metals exchange. It is greater than all the visible silver inventory in the world. How could such a position not have a cartel-like influence on price? The 4 or less traders (maybe 1 or 2) have a more dominant position in COMEX silver, as a percent of the market, than OPEC has in oil.

To be sure, at least OPEC produces a real product. The COMEX Silver Cartel, in all likelihood, deals only in paper. But sales are sales, even if they are unbacked short sales, in terms of price impact. But shorts are different, and someday the day of reckoning will arrive. Someday, the silver cartel will have to put up, or shut up. That day will be like no other. In this sense, the silver cartel has done, and will do, more harm to the rest of the world, than any cartel that has ever existed. That's because it has so distorted the silver market, that its aftershocks will be felt for decades.

The shocking thing about the uneconomically large and concentrated position of the COMEX Silver Cartel, is that its very existence and behavior is expressly forbidden by the Commodity Exchange Act (CEA). Let's face it: There's not much we can do about DeBeers or OPEC, save not buy their products. But the COMEX Silver Cartel operates with complete immunity, within the jurisdiction of the very laws it blatantly violates. What laws, you ask? Well, aside from the number one purpose of the CEA, namely, preventing price manipulation and disorderly market conditions (which are coming), there is the clear violation of position limit regulations. (And if there is any doubt that the COMEX Silver Cartel is manipulating the price down on silver—just imagine what the price would be if this concentrated short position didn't exist).

The position limit regulations, and the clear intent of those regulations, that the COMEX Silver Cartel are violating, are straightforward. The CEA never intended for speculators to control a bigger position than the largest producers and consumers of a commodity. In fact, the larger real producers and consumers of a regulated commodity (the CEA specifies agricultural products and metals as regulated commodities) must apply for an exemption from position limits in order to control a larger amount. Any exemption from the (speculative) position limits granted to a real producer or user of a commodity is capped at what amount that producer or user actually makes or consumes, over a 12-month period of time. (As an aside, this is the aspect of commodity law that is violated by 'hedging' more than one year's production).

Since the 4 or less traders in the COMEX Silver Cartel control a position greater than what entire countries produce in a year (forget individual companies), and the cartel's position is much greater than the total visible world inventory of silver, it is not probable that the cartel is not violating the intent and clear specifics of the CEA. A reasonable person might ask, how can this be? My answer would be that this outrageous situation exists because the two entities responsible for upholding commodity law, the CFTC and the COMEX, are not doing their job. The CFTC seems hell-bent on dismantling any regulation protecting the integrity of the markets, and the COMEX seems to cater to the desires of the cartel, to the clear detriment of its rank-and-file members. Between the CFTC and the COMEX, there has been a complete gutting of position limits on silver. The CEA is very clear—there must be position limits on silver. Just as clearly, the CFTC and the COMEX have ignored this requirement. For reference, please see <http://www.cftc.gov/opa/backgrounders/specilmts.html>. Of course, I would be completely wrong in my assertions, and will apologize publicly, if the CFTC or the COMEX will reveal that the members of the COMEX Silver Cartel are bona-fide hedgers, holding good delivery inventory or are hedging 12-month production.

Just to answer, in advance, any claims that I am ignoring the concentrated position on the long side of 22,000 contracts (110 million ounces) held net by 4 or less traders (25.5% of total open interest), let me say this: It is normal behavior to buy an item depressed in price, it is not normal behavior to short such an item with abnormally large quantities. Besides, I don't think a reasonable person would suggest an upward manipulation in silver prices currently exists. And let me go one step further. If the concentrated long position is in violation of what the position limit regulations should be—make the big longs reduce their positions. Fair is fair.

But, no matter—let me offer, once again, a constructive solution to any potential problem. By first notice of delivery day, make the longs cough up the full cash value of their contracts, in order to guarantee the longs can fulfill their contract obligations. But make the shorts guarantee that they can fulfill their contract obligations—not with money, because that won't guarantee anything. Make the shorts show they have the goods, warehouse receipts, on first notice day. Level the playing field and end the manipulation by the cartel.

One thought in closing: I don't know how the members of the NYMEX/COMEX can tolerate this silver cartel. By allowing the cartel to exist, they are putting themselves in grave danger. Because they are all connected, via the clearinghouse, liability will not be limited to the cartel. All will be involved—it's the system. Better to confront and deal with the cartel before the moment of truth, than after, when it will be obvious to the whole world that there was a cartel and a manipulation.

When the day comes that real silver is not available for delivery on the COMEX—just like has occurred in NYMEX and TOCOM palladium, and defaults and extraordinary rule changes were the result—all NYMEX/COMEX members will be affected. It will not matter whether they were direct participants in the manipulation or not. The cartel will quickly fold financially and leave the mess for others to clean up. Certainly, no officer or director of the NYMEX/COMEX will be immune, as I have created a public record of continuous notification of the silver scam. Innocent investors and silver miners, who have been damaged by the COMEX Silver Cartel for over a decade, will have their day in court. It's a day long overdue.—Ted Butler, info@butlerresearch.com

(THANKSGIVING, 2000)

RE: GIVING THANKS EVEN WHEN IT SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE

LIFE AND TRUTH ARE JUST TOO INCREDIBLE!

Commander asks me to just take a minute or hour to share heartfelt thanks and inconceivable happenings because the heart can't seem to handle it all without bogging to a stop for decision-making and considerations.

We are, above all, THANKFUL to GOD AND HOSTS for the ability to muck our way through those things which actually DO happen while you are blind, deaf, dumb and making other plans.

A.C. EKKER, BROTHER, FRIEND AND BUSINESS PARTNER.

We can't let this go without sharing circumstances, programs, plans and "Oh, God, what actually has happened!"

First the new information: A.C. wasn't killed in the plane crash as announced.

He was, along with the other two people, pulled from the damaged plane intact and talking—yea, even giving instructions as to where to go to make a call for the rescue choppers, etc. He had wounds to the head, yes, but was fully cogent and remained so until the chopper arrived for taking them for medical help.

Apparently, he did begin to struggle to breathe, or went into a bit of "shock response" which then it seems caused the medical persons on board to "help" by putting down an air tube.

Well, oops, it seems they put it down wrong and actually blocked off the airway and when that gave trouble they decided to do a "tracheotomy" which was also incompetently attempted and didn't even get through the cartilage. A.C. died of asphyxiation and the death certificate reads, we are told, that death was from "medical intervention".

This was no "slouch" of a county flying club rescue unit—it is called something like LifeFlite and is regularly used for rescues in the Canyonlands, etc.

All of you readers will know that we were working on the movie with Mr. Wally Gentleman and crew when we first came to Tehachapi. That was a joint venture project with A.C. A.C. came and picked up motion-picture personnel where we met in Tehachapi to go to the Ranchland and Canyonlands where the movie would be filmed on location. Logistics and site personnel were in his care and tending as to permitting, location logistics, etc., being fully equipped to do that very thing and having done same for many projects and films—therefore, the relationship with Robert Redford.

We in turn have made inquiries here in the Philippines, as did Redford in Africa, for A.C.'s riding trips (international), to such places as New Zealand, Africa, Australia, and you name it.

Moreover, Wally Gentleman was rewriting some of the script of Sipapu to fit into a setting for the Philippines and we ARE working on funding for same with motion picture companies here in the Philippines.

A.C. was our connection to the music for the film through his attachment to "Windsinger's" (Gary Smith) family since he and A.C. were best friends for many, many years and Gary placed that treasure into OUR hands—yes, we knew him also. The music was to be a legacy gift to Windsinger who was, by the way, a Park Ranger and then died of MS recently (within the past 5 years or so). Death seems to set up a whole new set of circumstances all along the connecting dots.

Sipapu Odyssey was put into the "Journal" lineup so that it would also qualify as a Phoenix Institute project and we all excitedly shared it with Mr. Gentleman (an academy award winner who had done all the special effects of such as 2001 Space Odyssey). No slouch. He now lives in Canada.

Well, this is really, if nothing else, a major interruption in our own ability to just go on with our daily tasks but E.J. now has to inform our other decade-long participants and the movie people here who are raising funds, to hold up until we can reconsider our course of action.

I would think we have gone a bit insane until I remember that most of YOU know the story, have met the people involved and this is a BLOW to you as well as to us—in a very large "business" way.

One of our major projects is a motion-picture-making complex over on Capital Hills there in Tehachapi called Futronics and for which architects had come out and made offers for designing it.

We also have logistics, economic layouts, etc., for the movie production, Sipapu.

A.C. looked forward to taking the bashing off his body as a rancher, farmer, trail rider, etc., and move into something less taxing to his body physical.

He took MORE than his responsibility and we are now stymied as to which direction to turn and obtain help. He even took us by horseback down into the remote canyons of the site itself, which was a bit of a terrifying trip for at least two of us, me and Gerry Popper.

Gerry Popper might not be well known to you as a name—but he is one of the first persons in Hollywood who became attached to us as Pleiades observers. He is the one who produced, literally, a signed copy of the big Pleiades picture book, from the astronaut Gordon Cooper, and off we set on the Odyssey of Sipapu, Little Crow, which has thrust us into TODAY. The chain goes back directly to the death of our son Paul in 1985.

So, where do we go from here? Today we don't know, other than to notify as many parties directly as we can and work through it to the best of our ability while begging your indulgence and patience.

I can NEVER, if I live out even the rest of this day, Thanksgiving, offer enough appreciation to you who have made this possible and carried that impossible load of closing down the business center which was left dumped and full of castoffs of those who came before and left while trying to take our paper, our property, and our work, and now claim that we are dark energies and continue their "taking" and "lying". So be it. You little handful of friends have done the impossible job under hard circumstances of the worst kind. It is not a "loss" as such but, rather, just such a massive job of sorting and cleaning.

I look around and can only see THE HAND OF GOD, even in timing and probabilities and, yes, even to the personal relationship hitting us now with A.C., brother, friend and partner.

A.C. was to head up, as well, a major cattle operation here in Luzon, Philippines—E.J. was in the process of working out the details, feeding operations, etc. I suppose we will have to get references and certainly find someone else, perhaps even in Australia.

We have a piggery awaiting approval of funding and myriads of small but totally self-contained farming projects—right to fisheries and tree farms.

We have an industrial plan for pharmaceutical manufacturing and holistic products ready for funding. We have the people we need to come over and TEACH the processing for things right through Gaiandriana, Kargosac Tea (membrane-growing), GAIA substitute for Shark Cartilage (to save the sharks) and colloids of all kinds. This is to be established with on-site inspectors and operations personnel.

This land is already a "greenhouse" so with proper care and nurturing, there is very little that can't be grown here—BETTER.

We knew that the adversary would batter and bash us and it would get more and more difficult as we near performance time—but some of the dealings are more hurtful than others. We have never been left wanting, however, and we are confident we won't now be deserted in another hour of need. The end of the year 2000 is right on us now and we knew it would be a chaotic time as is being proven right in Florida, U.S.A., and the central government in Manila, Philippines as well as in beautiful downtown desert, Middle East. I wonder what it takes to really get our attention?

Are the hopes to never allow Sipapu Odyssey to be filmed? Well, it won't work, for we will just have to find replacements and I am sure that we all—along with the family who now has to take up the slack even for us—will make it through here and into accomplishment.

We will be having to redo the Windsinger agreements and that will have to be through someone in Utah. The last contact information may reside only somewhere in A.C.'s files.

I would think we can now go directly to Redford's Sundance Institute in Provo to see who can follow up on other filming-site needs.

It is impossible to realize all the connections that come through lifetimes of being dependent on one another or how integral those connections might be.

When you cut a leg off a tripod you have a real problem. Financial support is important, of course, but the loss of key players really knocks the wind from under our wings for a little while.

Well, we learned the hard way how to work through without Rick and Charles in this major project over here with GAIA and, certainly, we DO HAVE THE WIND BENEATH OUR WINGS TO SEE TO THIS AS WELL.

How do we get home to attend any of this? We just haven't worked it out, so we will wait and keep right on doing what we are doing as was the plan all along the way.

This is not a whine letter. We need to ponder carefully the next steps—and this is a beginning.

Please, in Ellen's absence, will someone send a copy of this writing to Wally G. and we will follow on in a while with a letter—but we are swamped at the moment.

We have to assume that Gaye is on the e-mail list so perhaps she can make sure Evelyn gets copies of these writings. Mail is truly all but IMPOSSIBLE here and the Queen of England can't afford the costs of other communications. I suppose, as well, that none of our communications are private anyway but family interchange has all but totally broken down because we send everything to everyone and somehow our own family is missing the loop. When the house was taken we lost the address. We were asked to give up the mailbox so our mailing address went to "Brian Way" or the mailbox for the Apple Center. I'm not sure how we are registered now but I assume wherever we find our team. We can, of course, be reached right here in Manila and/or mail is forwarded by Margie each week with the paper.

By the way, the UFOs are back over here stirring excitement "out of this world"! Investigations are being undertaken at the highest levels now. And no, we don't know anything more than the next observer except it sure is wondrous and we seem lots less "far out".

As we watch the bumbling chaos of nations around the globe, we know something BIG is coming down because this is always the way it is before Big Rumbles.

We cannot have political input, so we are constantly having to wait for feedback even to phone calls. I will say this: "The moving finger writes and then moves on..." is not so. The writing is hanging around on the walls, the floors and the sky—and in recognizing that we KNOW that we are but tools within the PLAN of GOD, for it could not be this BIG and not be of God Creator.

Also, please make sure Little Crow gets a copy of the information regarding A.C.—for it is a very, very important connection and L.C. is one of THE major focuses of Sipapu.

Next, to you who concern about our little rainbow kibitzers—let it be known that we are not. Their publications about us being served with warrants for our arrest by the Feds was a grave error in their scheme. In view of the Federal Raids still under consideration, it appears the soot is falling where it belongs and patience is truly the best ally. Dark energies as touted in their publications? So be it—I wonder what it is they can't see? Commander reminds us: Take a look at yourself and you will see another differently—is an amazing TRUTH. You PRESENT that which you ARE. Getting us, somehow, out of business is to make us look bad? Oh, wow, sorry about that—we simply closed up whatever was necessary and New Gaia is working through their own episode. Somehow, however, a BUNCH of people, like Rick Martin for instance, seemed to have forgotten that they were active members of the Board of Directors and, interestingly enough, never resigned.

When you leave another to bear your responsibility, it is not always as easy as running and hiding and turning in your fellow—"member" of the Board. So what the rainbow kids did was turn in themselves. There is always humor if you don't overlook it. The corporation itself was set up through NCH, Cort Christie and Brent Moorhead—and Brent did all the bookkeeping right up until "the split" in 1999. Indeed, interesting isn't it? The cycle always goes "around" like the wheel as it touches everything in the universe.

We have had a lot of lessons along this old journey and I believe we have actually LEARNED MOST OF THEM. For that, today on Thanksgiving, we can offer appreciation to the lesson-givers as well as the input for graduation in matters of living and experiencing. The games of "getcha" thrust from the dark-side children just sharpen the wits and mature the soul. Acting in TRUTH always presents the consistent responses to every encounter. We may well forget a date—we do not forget a circumstance and in truth the memory will produce it for you without need of fabrications and contradictions.

I guess that mostly living is wasted on the human, for we always want the easy way "OUT", me included, while the facts are: We make it hard or easy, for life IS to be molded and presented in any way we so choose. I choose to succeed at what is the task—and I say this to reassure that when the tough get going we are NOT going to duck that which is our commitment. It may not work out the way we think (in advance) that it should—but we will hang right in there. This commitment repeat is so that you who have struggled and stayed the course will KNOW. Do we feel obligated to you? YES, totally—right next to our Divine instructor.

I don't know about the rest of you but when I look up I find GOD in all the radiance of HIS LOVE, CARE, AND SUPPORT. If we stay our course in righteousness, the enemy shall fall to the side. This is as true of A.C. Ekker as of you or me. We know not the contract of another—not even our brother. We do not know why such tragedies happen, such useless snuffing of a life at the hands of those thinking, I'm confident, that they were "saving" the life. Oh, what fragile moments we have and are.

I think I can express it as being like a tidal wave where first you only experience the great sucking sound of the water being pulled by the sea. You breathe and grieve—and then the waves hit as a battering wall of realization where you either hold strong or be sucked right out to sea. I think I am getting a bit better at really grabbing that first life-ring and considering possibilities.

Then, you get stable and consider others and do what you can and together we swim for the high ground just as hard as we can paddle.

I am asked if this is "religion"? No, I think it is only common old horse sense—pounded home through lack of same, too often along the roadway. It is sort of like diving into a swimming pool—it is really wise to check the water in said pool along with the exit steps.

Angels might well save our assets from time to time in the miracles beyond our recognition—but it surely pays to not dare God with our human expectations—for we are HUMAN beings experiencing in the limitations of humans, and when we respect that position, we shall find the Angels at ready to do "their" appointed jobs. Life after death? NO, life after life! Then, I suppose, we get those gossamer wings. If I was meant to flit like a bird around the trees, I suppose God would certainly not have given me the job I have to do. HE has patiently waited on me, can I not have enough time to return the gift in rightful sequence?

Another thing we do is face that which is with "iffing". "If it had been..." etc. No, it IS, in every instance EXACTLY THE WAY IT IS and it is that truth with which we deal, hope and recover stability—never from the "iffing", unless it be for the lesson learned in the moment and not to be repeated. We correct our course and move right ahead, lest we bog in the ertia of fear and stagnation beyond which we can't reach in our mind of creation-creating. Even a train has to add some engines when going on long uphill hauls. Are we less?

When we look at possibilities, there is always a way, an alternative—an answer better than what we assumed. God is of thought and mind—if we let HIM in.

We are often left with facing the "indispensable" person and finding a different way to go. In this we find nothing different just because it is "us" and not "someone else". We are far better prepared to face those necessary possibility changes today than we were even yesterday.

I wanted to send this message today because it is important and it is Thanksgiving and it helps to sincerely look at that for which we can give thanks—and remember that we do not walk alone and that no man is an island unto himself.

Thank you for the pictures, whoever you are, of Wally's memorial group. I see that our grandbabies have grown up behind our backs and not before our eyes. Can we live with our memories alone? Yes, if we never lose our hope and commitment. In that which comes from the old friend is the new friend, the new possibility, the new idea—the growth and insight of experience itself. The very passage of one allows us some acute insight into the Divine and softens the blow of the parting. It is not that we are left behind but, rather, the other has simply gone on ahead in the greatest gift of all. Sometimes it is that it is just so difficult to see beyond the moment, so we tarry a while in the garden with our thoughts and when the sea is again calm we can set forth again, hopefully in wisdom.

As I close this I want to again express our appreciation and thanks for filling-in for us in so many ways and where we could not participate. Certainly our Thanksgiving prayer is that we can return the consideration.

MAHATHIR URGES KYRGYZ TO STAND FIRM

BERNAMA, 11/17/00

PUTRAJAYA—Prime Minister Datuk Seri Dr. Mahathir Mohamad urged his counterpart, Amangeldi Muraliev of the Kyrgyz Republic, tonight to stand firm and fight against the negative effects of rampant and unfettered globalisation which can pose a real threat to the very concept of nationhood.

He said that in today's borderless world with globalisation as the panacea for all economic ills, developing countries such as Malaysia and the Kyrgyz Republic often found themselves stymied in their efforts to bring progress to their people.

"We need to stand firm and fight against the negative effects of globalisation—and we need to be aware of these dangers and ensure that our national sovereignty is not sacrificed in the name of globalisation," he said at a dinner hosted by he and his wife, Datin Seri Dr. Siti Hasmah Mohamed Ali, for Muraliev and his wife, Elmira Temirbekova, at his official residence, here.

He said Malaysia had had first-hand experience of that during the financial crisis of 1997-98 when unregulated currency trading wiped out hard-earned gains achieved over 40 years of painstaking efforts.

"If the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the World Bank had had their way, we would have had to surrender our economic independence to them. Praise be to Allah for giving us the wisdom to choose unconventional methods to turn our economy around.

"Today our economy is growing again and I am proud to report that Malaysia is well on the road to recovery. We are more than willing to share our experience with you in overcoming economic pitfalls that could set you back," he said.

The prime minister said Malaysia was aware of the aspirations of countries like the Kyrgyz Republic, which were making difficult adjustments to a free-market economy.

"The challenges you face are not insurmountable. Together with the collective efforts and combined strength of your citizens you can bring about peace and prosperity for your country. Malaysia stands ready to extend a helping hand in your attempts to eradicate poverty and improve the quality of life of your people," he said.

Dr. Mahathir said he remained optimistic that the Malaysian private sector which had been actively exploring various investment projects in the Kyrgyz Republic would be able to establish joint ventures with their Kyrgyz partners to harness the economic potential Kyrgyz possessed for their mutual benefit.

"In this context, the investment seminar which Your Excellency will officiate tomorrow, is a positive step towards attracting investors to the Kyrgyz Republic.

"Foreign investments can speed up the economic development of a country. That is Malaysia's experience. And because of this, we have made our country especially attractive to foreign investors. Malaysia is ready to share our methods of attracting foreign investors with the Kyrgyz Republic.

"The appointment of Datuk Matshah Safuan as your country's Honorary Consul in Negeri Sembilan augurs well for increased cooperation in bilateral matters. I would like to offer my congratulations to Datuk Matshah Safuan on his appointment," he said.

Dr. Mahathir said that when Kyrgyz Airlines begins its regular flights to Kuala Lumpur, geographical distances would be bridged leading to more people-to-people contact, thus linking the two nations even closer.

"Our bilateral relations are set to intensify and I look forward to seeing mutually beneficial programmes and projects being implemented in the future," he said.

Malaysia and the Kyrgyz Republic today signed three agreements to enhance bilateral ties, namely on the avoidance of double-taxation, airtservices and cooperation in tourism.

Muraliev arrived here on Friday for a three-day official visit to Malaysia at the invitation of Dr. Mahathir.

The visit is to further enhance bilateral ties and economic cooperation between the two countries.

Muraliev will open a seminar on investment in the Kyrgyz Republic tomorrow. He will also visit Mimos Bhd and Melaka.

Muraliev, who is accompanied by a 35-member delegation, leaves for Langkawi on Sunday to attend the Langkawi International Dialogue 2000 (LID).

[JR: The new partnership between Malaysia and the Kyrgyz Republic is one of many such alliances developing. Malaysia has been very successful in dealing with her economic setbacks because Dr. Mahathir took an independent path away from the dangerous quick-fixes offered by the WB and IMF. With Malaysia's offer now to assist others it can only lead to a future of positive changes for developing countries and endless possibilities in a part of the world that has known neither.]

ASIAN MONETARY FUND CAN HELP IN CRISIS, SAYS LIN SEE YAN

BERNAMA, 11/11/00

KUALA LUMPUR, MALAYSIA—An Asian Monetary Fund (AMF) would have been most welcome in helping crisis-hit nations facing illiquidity during the economic recession two years ago, former Bank Negara Deputy Governor, Tan Sri Dr. Lin See Yan said on Saturday.

This, together with being able to help countries undertake prompt adjustment policies focused on the restoration of confidence, would have been the best chance of turning around quickly private capital flows.

Besides this, the Fund would also complement the Supplementary Reserve Facility of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) which bailed-out some of the crisis-hit nations like Indonesia, South Korea and Thailand.

He said this in his acceptance speech on the conferment of an honorary doctorate in economics on him at the convocation of Universiti Utara Malaysia in Sintok, Kedah, by its Chancellor, the Sultan of Kedah.

However, Dr. Lin emphasised the crucial role of private sector involvement in crisis resolution, whereby it would be wise to enlist the private-sector in burden sharing.

This includes putting into place effective mechanisms by banks to provide significant short-term credit lines and other contingent lending arrangements, he said.

As a rule of thumb, private-sector involvement could best serve the national interest by being kept as voluntary and as market-oriented as feasible, depending on the particular circumstances of each country.

Dr. Lin said that this should raise the chances for prompt re-entry by debtors into the money and capital markets.

Equally important was that private creditors should recognise and bear responsibility for their own risks and should not expect to be bailed out.

"Private-sector involvement in any crisis resolution concerns the art of balancing in a very sophisticated manner, extreme points of pressure: Too heavy a hand in official intervention can force private-sector involvement to bail-in and cut losses at the expense of a prolonged cut-off in future credit access.

"At the other extreme, complete laissez-faire towards creditors in the face of conspicuous official support lends credence to undesirable official bail-out of private creditors," he said.

This art extends crucially to the authorities' sensibility in being able to distinguish between cases of transitional illiquidity and those involving persistent insolvency, he said. [JR: Too many times the IMF [U.S. taxpayer] has bailed out irresponsible lending banks, so the Banksters feel overly confident they are in a total win-win situation for big profits and do not need to use discretion when approving high-risk loans. The same applies to certain debt-ridden countries where the officials continue borrowing from the IMF or its guaranteed bankster loans and transfer a percentage of that money into hidden "offshore haven" accounts. These countries thus become so overextended that it is impossible to pay off their debt and the IMF is forced to write off the debts to keep them from defaulting and then cover the loans by paying off the creditors. There has to be specific guidelines that must be strictly adhered to and both sides must be held accountable. Perhaps the member nations' Central Banks should enter into an agreement with Global Alliance Investment Association (GAIA) as an alternative solution to the required funding essential to this AMF.]

U.S.A. ELECTIONS: TIME FOR SUPERIORITY COMPLEX TO BE EXPOSED

By Timothy Bancroft-Hinchey,
Pravda—RU, 11/16/00

While it is true that every country has its laws and ways of being which should be respected by the international community, it cannot be denied that the U.S.A. laid itself open to criticism now at this moment in its history.

Although no decent human being likes to see another lying down and humiliated, one notes a certain derision and pleasure in the international community as, stupefied, the world looks at the "greatest democracy", the "father of democracy and human rights", the "world policeman", the "observer of world order" or whatever pretty elogy one cares to give the U.S.A., now in a state of utter chaos.

Putting it bluntly, the U.S.A. could not even organize a drunken party for alcoholics in a distillery. As this tiring farce continues, more news comes to the surface which unfortunately forces journalists who are already sick of these elections, and feeling genuine pity for the people of the U.S.A., to offer for print more incredible facts about this Tinseltown, Soap Opera, Mickey Mouse of an election.

If this were some obscure republic in a tropical ocean, or a recently-formed, fragile democracy in a country with a history of military coups d' tat, the world's attention would not be awakened. However, we are speaking about the United States of America, that bastion of righteousness, the owner and controller of the word and the truth, opinion maker and the great banker who decides whether or not a foreign country sinks or swims... and inspects elections, declaring them fair or void.

There is a phrase from the countryside which says "chickens always come home to roost". How true this is. What right has this country if, indeed, this collection of states deserves the denomination of "country", to pronounce itself, ever again, on whatsoever policy or ideal or plan outside its own frontiers, when we are faced with the following situation?

Threatening phone calls, the counting of votes by hand, then by machine, then by hand again but with time periods so reduced as to be ludicrous (at best), then judicial processes, then threats to take the count to the supreme court... stories of students boasting that they had voted three or four times, accusations of the Democrats buying the votes of the homeless with free cigarettes (Milwaukee)... this is just to give the reader an idea of the dimension of this charade. This hallucinogenic vision seems more and more like a remake of the film Kramer VS Kramer than the Presidential Election of the U.S. of A.—Gore vs. Bush.

Substantiating the accusations with hard facts, here it is: Palm Beach County in Florida starts its vote-count by hand today, after it had been declared, and then denied, that the vote had to be completed by 15th November. Broward County in Florida still does not know if it will recount the vote or not. All the Florida counties have until midnight on Friday 17th November to declare their results. The final result should, therefore, be known on Saturday morning, 8:00 MSK time... if the postal votes are counted by then. By the way, can anyone tell us what these "postal votes" are or what are the laws governing them? The facts seem to change daily... If this seems a complicated way to arrive at a final conclusion two weeks after Super Tuesday, the procession has not yet left the church: In Milwaukee, Wisconsin State, 150 students declared that they had voted many times because they thought it would be easy to beat the system. One even stated openly on television: "I suspected it would not be impossible to vote again, so I did."

"I voted four times on the same day!" Because Gore won the election in this state with 6,000 votes more than Bush, the Republican Party is now investigating. Stand by for another court case. If this does not result, there is another plan to launch a process against the Democratic Party in the same state for visiting three dormitories full of homeless vagabonds, offering packets of cigarettes in exchange for votes.

If this is becoming tiresome, there is also the state of New Mexico, where the Republican Party won, but the state could pass its electors to Al Gore because of a mistake in the voting system. Originally, the victory was declared for Gore but a recount gave Bush a majority of... 4 votes... However, a mistake was found in the vote counting in Las Cruces county, in which the number 6 was printed like the number 1 on a bulletin... the cumulative result deprived Gore of 500 votes.

As this article goes to press, the Supreme Court in Florida votes for more hand-recounts, involving more than a million votes, and the hot news coming out of Florida now is that this sickening joke could last for many weeks yet to come.

If the U.S.A. did not show such a paternalistic and superior, condescending attitude towards other sovereign states, this article would never have been published. A final thought to close the article: What if Slobodan Milosevic had used such tactics after the vote counting in Yugoslavia (which he did not)? What if President Saddam Hussein was discovered to have forced recount after recount after recount in his country (which, incidentally, is being bombed weekly by NATO aeroplanes without the world's press taking up the story)?

Enough of hypocrisy, enough of false superiority complexes. The U.S.A. is not the Devil incarnate and neither is any other country. We all love our children and we all hate conflict and war. Enough, then, of interference in other countries' affairs. Let the New Era start with those who proclaim it... at home.

[JR: Any semblance as to a credible outcome of this election has been destroyed with the court filings going on in Florida. Even the Florida Supreme Court has rewritten election legislative law without jurisdiction or authority. The outcome of this election will be determined in the back rooms of the places of power. Mr. Hinchey is a British reporter who has no ax to grind other than to show U.S. imperfections and that American politicians are no better at governing than the nations it brings down or to those upon which it imposes its reforms. Our legal and judicial system needs to be repaired, overhauled and reformed back to our original Constitution's "separation of powers" before others do us in. This election is a good lesson, a wakeup call and a reality check for all of us. Neither we nor our votes count—power does!]

DIRECT DEMOCRACY A DANGEROUSLY PRIMITIVE SYSTEM

By Georgie Anne Geyer,
Chicago Tribune, 11/17/00

WASHINGTON (UPS)—Behind all the confusion in Florida this last week, it was easy to miss a startling political statement. Yet Hillary Rodham Clinton's call for abolishing the Electoral College, one of her first statements after her election, stands as one of the most revealing insights into the mind of much of Democratic liberalism today.

Without even a second thought—and a mere four days after the national elections—the New York senator-elect stated clearly at a rally in Syracuse: "I believe strongly that in a democracy, we should respect the will of the people, and to me, that means it's time to do away with the Electoral College and move to the popular election of our president." She then vowed that she would immediately sponsor legislation that would provide for the "direct election" of the president and vice president.

Now, to most Americans, those words would probably be hard to challenge. Aren't you for democracy? Could you be so unfeeling as to be against the "popular" and "direct" election of the president? Don't you cherish the "will of the people"? Well, it isn't that simple.

Her words are actually shorthand for what the Clintons have hinted at many times, which is that they and their ideological brothers and sisters would like to change America from the electoral democracy we have enjoyed for more than 200 years to a kind of imprecise "direct democracy". Such a change would transform the country.

In history, the development of "direct democracy"—in which the leader communicates directly with "the people" instead of being chosen (and controlled) by intermediary organizations such as a parliament or an Electoral College—has distinctly ominous undertones.

In modern times, the phrase can be traced to Italy during the '30s and to the fascist regime of Benito Mussolini, who developed a mesmerizing hold over the Italian people. In Cuba, from the very beginning, Fidel Castro defined his charismatic spell over the Cuban people as a case of "direct democracy", a "spontaneous approval of the masses" and a "constant plebiscite of public opinion".

In the Nicaragua of the 1980s, the Sandinistas, who drew on both communism and Spanish caudillismo, had a new name: cara al pueblo or "facing the nation" (not the respected TV news show, but an image of the all-powerful leader, unrestricted by tiresome institutions, face-to-face with the vulnerable masses that he molds to his will).

Still, no one is saying that Hillary Clinton or the Democrats want that kind of totalist state in America. The idea here is more utopian than oppressive. Yet something strange and disturbing is now hovering in the political stratosphere and must soon be reckoned with.

As even London's thoughtful Financial Times wrote this week, the origins of the Electoral College lie "in the founding fathers' suspicion of direct democracy, which they equated with mob rule. The framers of the U.S. Constitution wanted to endow the new American state with representative institutions that would serve as a buffer against the raw power of the masses.... The Electoral College... was a key element of this 'buffer' system.... Now, however, with wide acceptance of 'direct democracy', the system looks like a quaint—and potentially dangerous—anachronism."

New powers and tendencies are entering the American political world. Mass communications, the Internet, the disintegration and dysfunction of traditional institutions, the disappearance of political parties, the influx of aliens and immigrants who have made no real commitment to the American nation, even the "proposition movement" or "ballot initiative" movement: In one way or another, all provide the roots for "direct democracy".

On the left, futurists such as Alvin and Heidi Toffler applaud these changes, advocating "a whole new structure of government" and averring that today's spectacular advances in communications technology "open for the first time a mind-boggling array of possibilities for direct citizen participation in political decision-making."

But on the right and among moderate traditionalists, many are horrified. Professor Laurence Berns of St. John's College in Annapolis, Md., writes that the trends toward direct democracy, by "bypassing the cumbersome, compromising, deliberative and negotiating processes of representative government", are in truth moving us toward "that degenerate form of democracy called variously plebiscitary democracy, totalitarian democracy, or more simply, demagogic despotism".

There have always been direct-democracy people in America: on the left and in the utopian movements, in the persons of Huey Long, Elmer Gantry, Louis Farrakhan and some TV evangelists, but until now the American people have been such a stalwart, stouthearted band that the demagogic power pretensions and emotions were always absorbed and dispersed in the larger body politic.

The danger today is that, with so many of the institutional barriers gone, with television and communications having become the new political parties and with American civic education levels so low, that may no longer be the case. The trend toward "direct democracy" is a trend toward a primitivization of the nation. Is that what Americans really want?

[JR: This direct democracy is another tool to whittle away at the Constitution. The recount mess in Florida is another example because it's redefining the electoral process through the court system. The elimination of the Electoral College was voiced by Sen. Durbin (D-IL) before the November 7th election and Senator-elect Hillary voiced the same opinion several days after the election, saying she would vote for its elimination. If the Democrats succeed in stealing the election, there will be nothing between you and Big Brother. The Northeast, upper Midwest and the West Coast would dominate elections and the rest of the country would be immaterial. Now isn't that a nightmare to wake you up?]

IT'S TIME FOR THE EUROPEAN UNION TO ASSUME UN LEADERSHIP

By William Pfaff, Los Angeles Times, 11/14/00

PARIS—The next U.S. president is unlikely to have much leeway to improve the sour relations that now exist between the United States and the United Nations. Ferociously anti-UN congressional Republicans have dominated that issue for many years and congressional Democrats have seen no tangible advantage in defending the world organization.

Into this affair comes a fresh and unorthodox proposal from a former deputy U.S. permanent representative to the UN, William J. vanden Heuvel, now an investment banker and lawyer in New York.

Vanden Heuvel thinks that the European Union should—and could—take the UN's crisis out of the hands of the U.S. Speaking to the American Academy in Berlin in September, he said the time has come to put an end to the “increasingly destructive” influence the United States is having on that organization.

The election of a Republican Senate majority in 1994 made Sen. Jesse Helms (R-N.C.) chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. He regards the UN as an irrelevant and inefficient bureaucracy that not only wastes money but also poses a threat to U.S. sovereignty. Many of his Republican congressional colleagues agree.

His influence was responsible for Washington's demand that it be given a veto over the UN budget. The UN accepted this, making the budget subject to consensus among assembly members. Washington demanded major budget and administrative reforms, and the UN again agreed, making an American from PriceWaterhouse Coopers its budget director, and establishing an independent office of inspector general. But after each UN concession, Congress imposed new conditions on U.S. payment of its dues.

Vanden Heuvel says that the effect of these demands, coupled to non-payment of America's obligations, has caused “the UN agenda [to become] dominated by the non-payment, the partial payment, the conditional payment of America's assessed dues.”

As the UN has no authority to borrow from external sources, it has become “strangled by the cash-flow crunch that the American indebtedness had deliberately created. The United States' example of indebtedness invited replication by 80 other member states.”

Vanden Heuvel concludes that Congress' “assault on the UN is not to save money; the objective is to undermine the United Nations that its founders envisaged, to diminish it as an obstacle to American hegemony in international affairs, to make it marginal and irrelevant to the exercise of American power.”

Vanden Heuvel's radical proposal is that the European Union nations step in to break off this destructive stalemate.

The EU, he says, should accept that in current political circumstances, no U.S. president or congressional majority is willing to spend political capital to defend the UN.

The Europeans, he says, should simply accept the U.S. demand that its membership and peacekeeping assessments be reduced, so as to remove the issue from debate. They should assume UN leadership by convincing other members as well to accept it.

He notes that Sweden, under Prime Minister Olav Palme, argued that no country should pay more than 15 percent of the UN's budget so that no single government would have a disproportionate influence on the organization's decisions. The U.S. government vigorously opposed this idea at the time, recognizing that it would reduce American leverage in the organization.

He proposes new UN emphasis on disintegrating states—“failed” or failing states—by reviving one of the fundamental charter organs of the UN, the Trusteeship Council, which lost its function when the last trust territory became independent in 1994.

He makes an analogy to the Chapter 11 provision in U.S. bankruptcy law, proposing that states should be able to seek (or be afforded) temporary UN Trust protection and shelter, with assistance not only from the UN, but other international agencies (and individual UN members), while attempting to rebuild state institutions and civil society.

The European Union, he argues, could fill the existing vacuum of UN leadership with positive action on this new form of trusteeship and in urgent reform of UN peacekeeping.

The Europeans could impose such reforms, he argues, by blocking the Security Council from ordering UN missions without providing the resources to carry them out—a pernicious past practice that has been the greatest obstacle to effective peacekeeping.

There is undoubted irony in a former American official's proposing that the Europeans take domination of the UN away from the United States, but the situation invites unorthodoxy.

[JR: If you remove the U.S. as a major power in the UN and replace it with the EU, would there be a need for the U.S. to remain in the UN? Would the UN be redefined or abolished? Would the EU assume the 25+% assessments of the UN budget now covered by the U.S.? This would please some in Congress and we could get our Constitution and sovereignty back. The UN would have to relocate to Europe and put the buildings in NY up for sale. How would these changes effect the power structure and what opportunities would be afforded to countries like Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America? It just might be good for America, as we could then rebuild our country the way our Founding Fathers envisioned—one the world respected and admired. Mr. Vanden Heuvel might have a good plan after all.]

U.S. ALLY TURKEY
DOUBTING IRAQ EMBARGO

By Tom Hundley, Chicago Tribune, 11/12/00

ANKARA, TURKEY—International resolve to maintain stiff sanctions against Iraq has slipped significantly in recent months, as the Baghdad regime learned last week when it successfully resumed commercial air service through no-fly zones in the northern and southern parts of the country.

Russia and France were the first major powers to break the ice on international flights when they sent aid flights to Baghdad earlier this fall. Now Turkey, normally a close U.S. ally, has joined the growing list of nations to challenge the flight ban.

The only member of NATO that shares a border with Iraq, Turkey has been one of the main bulwarks of the 10-year-old sanctions program—at an estimated cost to the Turkish economy of $35 billion in lost trade.

But Turkish Foreign Minister Ismail Cem, in an interview last week, said the time had come for the U.S. and its allies “to explore if there can be some adjustment of the sanctions.”

“There is growing reaction against the sanctions,” Cem said. “The U.S. really should consult with others to see what is wrong with the policy and to see if together we can develop a new one.”

The foreign minister argued that the sanctions had been in place for a decade, but had brought the U.S. and its allies no closer to their goal of undermining the regime of Saddam Hussein. If anything, Hussein is more entrenched now than he was when the Persian Gulf War ended.

“We now have in Iraq a whole generation, which is underfed, which doesn't have enough vitamins, and which is growing up with a hatred toward everyone—their environment, their parents, their leaders, their neighbors,” he said. “This generation is going to govern Iraq in five year's time, and this will create an enormous danger for the whole region.”

Although the declared goal of U.S. policy is to topple Hussein—and Congress has set aside $80 million for this purpose—the sanctions imposed by the United Nations Security Council have a more limited scope: to force Hussein to give up his existing weapons of mass destruction and prevent him from adding to his arsenal.

Critics say the Clinton administration's bellicose policy, which includes flying daily combat missions over the no-fly zones in Iraqi territory, undermines the supposed purpose of the sanctions.

“If your official policy is to remove the regime, you can't expect the regime to comply with the UN resolutions,” said one diplomat in the region.

The collapse of the Mideast peace process has been another factor contributing to the rapid erosion of international support for the sanctions. Escalating violence between Israelis and Palestinians has put pressure on moderate Arab governments and strengthened the hand of more zealous ones across the region.

“Saddam Hussein is seen as a figure who resisted the West. With the hostility all across the Arab world toward Israel and the United States, the political climate is very conducive to being exploited by Saddam,” said Feridun Sinirlioglu, director of the Middle East desk at the Turkish Foreign Ministry.

The French and Russian aid flights to Iraq were followed in quick succession by flights from Jordan, Morocco, Tunisia, Yemen, the United Arab Emirates, Algeria, Syria and Egypt.

France and Russia obtained UN permission for their humanitarian flights, but Egypt and Syria did not. Although the two Turkish flights were cleared by the UN, some officials have indicated that in the future Turkey might not feel the need to ask for UN approval.

Sinirlioglu pointed out that Turkey had stood with the U.S. in enforcing the sanctions even though it had cost the Turkish economy dearly in lost trade and contributed significantly to the impoverishment of the country's troubled southeast region. He also noted that Turkey allows the U.S. to use a Turkish air base and Turkish airspace for the fighters that enforce the no-fly zone over northern Iraq.

Echoing Cem's concerns about Iraq's “angry generation”, Sinirlioglu said: “We are not getting Iraq's people to our side by these harsh sanctions. The reality for us is that Iraq is our neighbor and Iraq will remain our neighbor. By sending aid, we are trying to gain the hearts of Iraq's people.”

In addition to the aid flights, Turkish officials recently held discussions with Baghdad about upgrading rail links between the two countries and increasing the flow of Iraqi oil through a pipeline that crosses Turkish territory to the Mediterranean port of Ceyhan.

Although Iraq is allowed to sell all of its oil under the UN's oil-for-food program, this and other signs of warming toward Iraq became points of contention with the U.S. when Ankara linked them to its unhappiness over a House of Representatives resolution condemning the Turks for the World War I genocide of up to 1.5 million Armenians. The U.S. bowed to Turkish pressure and the resolution was withdrawn at the last moment.

All of this has emboldened Hussein, who last week began using converted military aircraft to fly civilians to the northern city of Mosul and the southern city of Basra.

A State Department official said the U.S. "will continue to monitor closely any Iraqi aviation to determine whether it poses a threat to our forces, Iraq's neighbors or the Iraqi people." So far, U.S. military planes have not challenged the Iraqi flights.

The U.S. and Britain established the no-fly zones after the Gulf War to protect Iraqi Kurds in the north and the Muslim Shiite minority in the south.

Iraqi Foreign Minister Mohammed Saeed al-Sahaf told Arab news agencies that Baghdad intended to increase the passenger flights until the no-fly zones were broken.

To encourage other nations to resume flights to the country, Iraq is offering a free tank of fuel to any incoming aircraft.

[JR: If the U.S. doesn't move to lift the sanctions against Iraq and end activity in the no fly zones, it will be ignored or challenged by other countries. Iraq's neighbors, like Iran, Syria and Turkey can no longer afford to ignore the suffering and deprivation of the Iraqi people and its impact on the younger generation. These sanctions are ineffective and have not broken Iraq's resolve to survive. There is a power in such defiance—as it has shown the rest of the world America's cruel intentions.]

EU PARLIAMENT ACCUSES TURKS OF GENOCIDE

Russia Today, 11/16/00

STRASBOURG (Reuters)—The European Parliament formally accused Turks of conducting genocide against Armenians 85 years ago, prompting an angry reaction from Ankara which said the decision would shake relations with the EU.

The Strasbourg assembly resolution came just a week after the European Union outlined to Turkey political and economic changes it must make for membership talks to begin.

Awaited with some trepidation by diplomats in Ankara, it seems likely to complicate at the outset what may in any case be a long and fraught journey towards the goal of membership for Turkey.

"The European Parliament has no right to call on our government or parliament on this issue," Turkish Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit said in a written statement.

"This kind of irresponsible behavior is of the sort that will shake relations between Turkey and the European Union."

The motion, passed by 234 to 213, does not oblige European Union member states to take any action. But that is unlikely to ease Turkish anger over a highly emotive issue.

"(The Turkish government should) give fresh support to the Armenian minority, as an important part of Turkish society, in particular by public recognition of the genocide that minority suffered before establishment of the modern state of Turkey," the resolution said.

Turkey denies genocide accusations. It argues that where killings occurred in the chaos of the collapse of the Ottoman Empire, they were part of general partisan fighting and that all sides suffered.

The resolution, part of a series of European Parliament assessments of Turkish progress towards EU membership, also called for the withdrawal of Turkish troops from northern Cyprus.

A similar "genocide resolution" backed by the Armenian lobby in the U.S. congress last month badly strained relations between Ankara and Washington. It was dropped only when President Bill Clinton said its passage would damage U.S. security interests.

The French parliament is also considering such a measure.

Turkey had threatened commercial boycotts and alluded to measures that could have disrupted U.S. air operations over northern Iraq which use bases in Turkey. [JR: Is the EU (on advice from the U.S.) putting the pressure on Turkey because of her contracts with Baghdad and her criticism of the sanctions effecting the Iraqi people? Turkey is between Europe and the tensions in the Middle East and has an American airbase that is used for U.S. daily flights into Iraq to enforce the sanctions. Push Turkey too hard and she may align herself with the Arabian Knights.]

ALBRIGHT'S UNNECESSARY WAR

Memo To: UN Ambassador Richard Holbrooke

From: Peter Signorelli,

POLYCONOMICS, INC., 11/16/00

Re: Madeleine Albright's Disastrous War

As the U.S. diplomat who came closest to securing a non-military option for dealing with Serbia and the Kosovar Albanians, you may feel vindicated by the results of the recent municipal elections in Kosovo. In a sense, the province has come full circle, expressing overwhelming support for the party of Dr. Ibrahim Rugova, the Albania leader who supported a peaceful negotiation with Serbia and who opposed NATO's military option. It also turns out that former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Colin Powell was absolutely correct in his advice that the U.S. refrain from military action against Yugoslavia. And George Bush is correct in his perspective of disengaging the U.S. military from the Balkans. Both have been vindicated by the results of Kosovo-wide municipal elections held at the end of last month. That election result, in which out of 25 Albanian political parties fielding candidates the Democratic League of Kosova of Rugova took approximately 60% of the Albanian Kosovars' vote, is poignant testimony that U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright's disastrous war against Serbia was unnecessary.

Dr. Rugova, as you know, for ten years led Kosovo's non-violent resistance to Serbia's abrogation of its autonomy and still is considered by many Kosovo Albanians as their symbolic President. In years since his unofficial election as "president" (not recognized by Serbia), Rugova created a parallel, illegal state for the Albanians with its own education and health-care system and taxation. He always has supported independence as a goal, but always preferring the option of negotiated, non-military approaches with Serbia. We here at Polyconomics strongly urged the Clinton administration to lend its support to Rugova, as he not only was the single most trusted Kosovar Albanian leader, but also was the only Albanian leader seeking non-military options for the resolution of the dire situation of Albanians under Serbia. Rugova's perspective, however, collided with the U.S. Secretary of State's agenda to bomb Serbia into compliance with her agenda. When Rugova opposed arming the paramilitary Kosova Liberation Army, disputed NATO's war option and faulted the conditions being imposed by the U.S. at the Ramboulett negotiations, Albright eased him out, and KLA leader Hashim Thaci was elevated as the Kosovar Albanian authority. Sec. Albright simply would not be deterred from her war and a widespread media campaign in the West was conducted to diminish Rugova's authority and appeal, portraying him as a traitor to the Albanians for insisting that a negotiated, non-violent solution to the Kosovo crisis still was possible and preferable.

Thaci and the KLA were "unknown figures, raising money illegally through smuggling, or worse," as the State Department's James Rubin revealed, yet Albright ordered him to work with Thaci, even though the KLA was breaking the October cease-fire. As Rubin put it recently, "The entire U.S. strategy to pressure [Slobodan] Milosevic [was] now dependent on this mysterious rebel." Although the Serbs had been saying for weeks that they would accept lightly-armed UN personnel rather than NATO peacekeepers in Kosovo, Albright shot down any attempt to pursue that route. Italian Foreign Minister Lamberto Dini recently reported that Albright was adamant, cutting off his attempts to pursue that option with a curt "Lamberto.... The whole point is for the Serbs to accept a NATO [military occupation] force."

So what did Albright's war accomplish? Destruction of Serbia's infrastructure, disruption of trade relations among Danube River-bordered Balkan countries, mass population dispersals, perhaps more deaths of Albanian Kosovars by NATO's bombings than by Serb paramilitary forces, the legitimization and arming of an Albanian insurgent force throughout the province, and not much else. The province is back where it was prior to Albright's war, with Rugova's perspective for peaceful negotiations with Serbia still the dominant sentiment among the population.

[JR: In many areas MADam Albright could be classified as a terrorist with diplomatic credentials. She has involved America in costly encounters that have created havoc and instability in the countries the U.S. government has targeted. The outcome of the election in Kosovo is another disaster added to her long list of diplomatic failures. I'll say this: She seems to enjoy those photo ops with the champagne toast—and all the ill will that goes with it.]

USS COLE TOLD NOT TO FIRE FIRST SHOT

By TheOtherOne, 11/13/00

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sailors guarding the USS Cole when terrorists bombed it last month in Yemen did not have ammunition in their weapons and were instructed not to shoot unless fired upon, The Washington Post reported Tuesday. Crew members told the newspaper that their "rules of engagement" prevent them from firing without obtaining permission from the ship's captain or another officer.

Suicide bombers in a small, explosives-laden boat approached the Cole while it was refueling Oct. 12 in Aden harbor and detonated the explosives, ripping a 40-by-40-foot hole in the steel hull. The blast killed 17 American sailors and injured 39.

Petty Officer John Washak told the Post he was manning an M-60 machine gun shortly after the Cole was hit. Washak said he waved the weapon at a second small boat that was approaching, but a senior chief petty officer ordered him to turn the gun away.

Washak said he protested, fearing that the ship was still under attack. But even in the aftermath of the bombing, “with blood still on my face,” he said he was told: “That’s the rules of engagement, no shooting unless we’re shot at.”

Rules of engagement aboard a U.S. warship are set by its captain following Navy guidelines. Pentagon officials won’t publicly discuss the specific rules in effect aboard the Cole. But senior officers said in congressional testimony that the ship filed a detailed security plan, which they think was followed.

“If we had shot those people, we’d have gotten in trouble for it,” said Petty Officer Jennifer Kudrick, a sonar technician. “That’s what’s frustrating about it. We would have gotten in more trouble for shooting two foreigners than losing 17 American sailors.”

A Navy spokesman, Cmdr. J.D. Gradeck, would not comment to the Post about the crew’s accounts, citing the ongoing investigation.

The Post interviewed about 20 members of the ship’s crew. Some said FBI investigators have told them the Cole may have been secretly boarded and surveyed by Islamic militants—possibly including one of the suicide bombers—as it passed through the Suez Canal a few days before the attack.

The FBI also has been questioning crew members about the behavior of the Yemeni pilot who guided the Cole into port; some described him as “agitated”. Some crew members also said they thought Yemeni harbor workers acted suspiciously, the newspaper reported.

Crew members also said their ship may have been looked over by Islamic militants as it passed through the Suez Canal on the way to Yemen. While in the canal, the ship followed the Navy tradition of bringing Egyptian vendors aboard to sell souvenirs, they said.

Paul Riddle, an operations specialist who worked in the Cole’s combat information center, said FBI investigators told him “they think the Egyptians might have been doing a reconnaissance on us.”

The Cole was operating under a moderate-threat condition as it sailed into the Yemeni port. Crew members said the ship had a few guards on deck, but no one was posted on big machine guns near the bow and stern.

“It wasn’t supposed to be a high-threat port,” said crewman Nathan Bair.

[JR: It’s been over a month since the Cole was attacked and the FBI is still assessing (guessing) whom to blame for this evil terrorist act. It’s getting more complicated with what seems to be deliberate lax security in a potentially hostile area and the crew’s orders not to fire even after being attacked shows the “Commander in Chief” fears diplomatic ramifications more than the loss of American lives. The why of such a policy could be to create an incident to incite the American people to side with the Israelis against growing Arab hostilities related to the Israeli/Palestinian (Arab) conflict and involve the U.S. further into Israel’s internal security.]

THE RACE TO BUY LIFE

By James Meek, Science Correspondent,
The Guardian—UK, 11/15/00

Carve up of the human heart: private firms, universities and charities are rushing to isolate and patent human genes before it is even understood what they do

The race for commercial control over the essence of life is threatening to spiral out of control with private firms, universities and charities claiming exclusive development rights over natural processes in the human body at the rate of 34,500 a month.

For the first time, research commissioned by the Guardian reveals the awesome scale of the gene rush, as investors, scientists, entrepreneurs and lawyers use powerful new technology [sic] and obscure new laws to isolate and patent the genes which make us what we are—before they even understand what the genes do.

Biotech firms say they need patent protection to recoup their investments. But the risk to society is that future medical researchers—private and public—will have to hack their way through forests of patents, paying out hefty licence fees to a host of gene-squatters, before the miracle drugs of the genetics revolution reach the market.

“It’s like someone buying a street and taking a toll from everybody passing through,” said Thomas Schweiger, of German Greenpeace, which is campaigning against gene patenting.

Sue Mayer, head of GeneWatch UK, the independent watchdog body commissioned by the Guardian to analyse the gene patent rush, challenged the basis on which gene patents are granted—that genes, or bits of genes, are “inventions”.

“What’s striking is the speed and the scale at which patent applications are being made,” she said. “It’s impossible that this is caused by a sudden outbreak of creativity and inventiveness. Unless people look at the issue seriously, unless the rules are changed in a few years time we will find very basic knowledge and information has been privatised.”

Alongside human genes, patents are being sought by organisations, overwhelmingly from rich countries, on hundreds of thousands of animal and plant genes, including those in staple crops such as rice and wheat.

Patents are already pending or have been granted on more than 500,000 genes and partial gene sequences in living organisms.

When GeneWatch UK began its database search last month, patents had been granted or were pending on 126,672 whole or partial human genes. As of this week, however, that number had rocketed by over 34,500 to 161,195, an increase of 27%.

The Guardian’s research found that:

- One firm alone, Genset of France, has applied for patents covering 36,083 human gene sequences.
- Patents are pending on genes controlling processes in the human heart, teeth, tongue, colon, skin, brain, bone, ear, lung, liver, kidney, sperm, blood and immune system.
- The U.S. Department of Health is the world’s fifth biggest recorded gene patenter, with applications pending or granted on almost 3,000 sequences.
- 152 patents have been applied for on rice, 21 on HIV, 13 on the eucalyptus tree and 11 on the spider.
- Among gene patent applicants are Queen Elizabeth College, Dublin (human eye), York University (rice), the Wellcome Foundation (HIV) and ICI (eucalyptus).
- Gene patenters are overwhelmingly from the U.S., Western Europe and Japan.

Opponents of gene patenting believe companies using genetic information to develop real therapies and diagnostic techniques should be able to use the patent system to claw back the huge investment involved.

But they object to firms and other organisations being granted patents for genes when they cannot specify what the genes will be used for.

“Genes are isolated by computers on a routine basis,” said Mr. Schweiger. “There’s no special intellectual work required. Even if the gene patenter doesn’t ever develop a new drug or therapy with the gene, and somebody else does all the investment to find out what use can be made of the gene, all the investment is done by the second company and the first company still gets the money.”

Concern is growing in continental Europe over an EU directive adopted two years ago which makes it easier to patent genes. In June, the French president Jacques Chirac wrote to the head of the European commission, Romano Prodi, saying that gene patenting should not be permitted.

Yet delegates to a rare diplomatic conference to revise the treaty governing European patent law, opening in Munich on Monday, are not even planning to discuss gene patenting. The British delegate, Alison Brimelow, said yesterday the issue would not be discussed until next year.

The British government has strongly supported liberalisation of the laws on gene patenting, hoping to nurture its own biotech industry and fearful the anti-GM backlash would persuade European and U.S. biotech investors to relocate.

Much of the pressure to liberalise European gene patenting laws has come from the U.S. Last year the chairman of U.S. drugs firm Pfizer, William Steere, said: “Europe seems to be entering a period of the dark ages, where witchcraft and sorcery are prevailing.” The sentiment was shared by Andre Pernet, Genset chief executive. “I think the fear generated by the decoding of the human genome, that somehow people’s ‘essence’ would be captured, has carried over into the gene patenting debate.

“You don’t want to patent a gene and then just watch the patent time deadline melt away like a block of ice. There’s no money to be made unless you really want to develop a drug.”

[JRN: The dam, that historically prohibited the patenting of “life forms”, was broken in a low-publicity court case by General Electric Corp. and the ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court. In an unconstitutional court decision, this misguided and multicultural court, in all of its majesty and grandeur, “granted” a gene patent to GE. That subjective gene patent applied to a life form, a living organism, implying sole dominion of the commercial and all other rights to its attributes, to ownership of its very “being”, even though it was only a microbe! Now, with the flood-gates open, other “commercial” applications are being applied for that relate to the very essence of our selves—the genetic structure of our humanity, demanding ownership and control over our very inner physical qualities that offer opportunity for manipulation by corporate and humanist elements. Our physical characteristics have been reduced or categorized to the level of “components”, to “spare parts”—to commercial sales that will appear at “auctions” for purchase, as did the slaves in times past.]

NATO: WE WON’T SNOOP THE KURSK

CBS News, 11/16/00

BRUSSELS (AP)—Russia has no need to fear that underwater NATO spies are snooping around the sunken submarine Kursk, an official speaking for the Western alliance said on Thursday.

Responding to news that the Russian navy was setting off small explosions to keep any prying eyes away from the wreck in the Barents Sea, he told reporters: "They have no need to worry about NATO snooping."

"The Kursk is still Russian. It is also effectively a grave for the submariners who so tragically died," the official added. "So they don't need to do this to keep NATO away."

The alliance was apparently not advised in advance of the Russian decision to set off grenades—which were detected on Wednesday by Norwegian seismologists.

Asked if Russia were under any compunction to warn the Alliance, he said that would depend on the size of the explosions envisaged and any potential danger to people at sea.

Russia has repeatedly suggested that the Kursk was lost with its crew of 118 after an explosion triggered by an underwater collision with a U.S. or British submarine spying on naval exercises.

The United States, Britain and NATO have all denied involvement, but appeared to be growing somewhat impatient with the persistence of Russian charges, which they believe the Russian military must know are a fiction.

However, the NATO allies saw their delicate ties with Moscow plunged into deep freeze over the bombing of Yugoslavia last year and clearly wish to avoid a public row over the Kursk.

A top Russian naval commander was quoted as saying on Thursday that investigations were moving closer to establishing the truth behind the sinking last August.

Vyacheslav Popov, commander of Russia's Northern Fleet, told the military daily Krasnaya Zvezda that the probe into the disaster was leaning towards one of three explanations under consideration, but declined to say which.

The three likeliest causes are thought to be a collision with a foreign submarine, a World War II mine or an initial explosion on board which detonated the Kursk's torpedos.

Despite the end of the Cold, War Russian and NATO submarines—some armed with nuclear missiles—still play a high-stakes game of cat-and-mouse under the oceans across the world.

Given that, NATO might be interested in having a closer examination of one of Russia's most modern naval war vessels to discover what technology it was using. But in the case of the Kursk there is also the potential incentive of determining what actually caused it to sink. [JR: The Russians aren't buying into our version of what happened to the Kursk. That is making the U.S. and its allies a bit uncomfortable, since we do not want this to become a big public issue. Guilt sometimes does that.]

LABUAN FINANCIAL EXCHANGE LAUNCHED

By Pauline S.C. Ng, The STAR—Malaysia, 11/24/00

LABUAN—In a move to further broaden the development of Labuan as an international offshore financial centre, Malaysia yesterday launched the Labuan International Financial Exchange (LFX), promising market players it would process applications in three weeks.

LFX is hoping that assurances of speedy approvals, provided documents are submitted in full; its totally Web-based operations (www.lfx.com.my); commitment to promote Islamic-based financial products and minimum bureaucracy; will in time, attract global interest in the exchange.

There is no listing on LFX thus far, but Datuk Mohd Azlan Hashim, executive chairman of the KLSE, which wholly-owns the LFX, said the management was "working day and night" to ensure a listing. At the earliest, that would take place by year-end, he added.

Azlan, who is also the chairman of LFX, said after the launch of the offshore exchange by Finance Minister Tun Daim Zainuddin in Labuan that as the regulatory framework was already in place, it was now a matter of getting market participation.

Likening the establishment of the LFX to a "chicken and egg situation," he said: "But we have decided to produce the chicken first."

In comparison to the KLSE which mainly lists companies, he noted that the bulk of listings on offshore international exchanges such as those of Luxembourg and Bermuda comprised funds and debt instruments.

LFX, which is exempt from selective capital controls or exit levies, would be multi-pronged in its approach. It would list companies and multi-currency instruments, including both conventional and Islamic-based products.

Malaysian companies with international operations could use the LFX to fund their international operations, said Azlan, who did not dismiss the possibility that Kumpulan Guthrie Bhd's U.S. $100 million global Islamic bonds—planned for issue in the first quarter of next year, could be LFX's first listing.

LFX operates on a T+3 settlement period and hence a dual listing of a company or product on the KLSE and LFX would not be allowed.

"But we will allow a dual listing on the LFX and other exchanges," Azlan said, adding that the government wanted to keep the on-shore and offshore capital markets and ringgit and non-ringgit-based markets separate.

"For a dual listing to happen, both exchanges need to come to an agreement," said Azlan.

On the matter of the KLSE's implementation of the T+3 settlement period for all trades on the KLSE from its current T+5 practice, Azlan said an announcement would be made within a week, but noted that its implementation would take place before year-end.

BRUNEI RULER URGES ASEAN COUNTRIES FOR CLOSER ECONOMIC INTEGRATION

BruneiDirect.Com, 11/25/00

Bandar Seri Begawan—His Majesty Sultan Haji Hassanal Bolkhiah yesterday joined other ASEAN Heads of States and Governments at the 4th ASEAN Informal Summit in Singapore.

At the start of the Summit yesterday, His Majesty spoke on the challenges facing ASEAN member countries of which the most obvious one was the rapid speed of globalisation embracing the region, especially in the area of Information Communication Technology.

The Summit is taking place at Shangri-La Hotel in Singapore. His Majesty also highlighted the challenges facing the region's financial and economic policies in order to regain investors' confidence in the region.

His Majesty then voiced concern over the problem facing our society, in adjusting to the technological advance and economic changes and the political and security situation in the region.

In facing up to this challenges His Majesty suggested that ASEAN member countries keep up with the momentum of economic reform to sustain the region's economic growth and the setting up within ASEAN of specific programs and policies, which could further boost each ASEAN member's national efforts.

Specific programs commended by His Majesty were the ASEAN Free Trade Area, the ASEAN Investment Area, the E-ASEAN Initiative and the Investment Road Show. His Majesty also suggested that with the full support of all ASEAN member countries this initiative would move ASEAN towards close economic integration.

His Majesty further suggested that ASEAN should take advantage of the current trends and Globalisation by improving the skills and knowledge of the people so that they have the right skills to successfully take part in the new economy and compete with the rest of the world.

The way to improve the skills and the knowledge of the people was emphasised at the APEC Leaders Meeting in Brunei where it was recognised that a lot of work had to be done on Human Capacity Building. His Majesty then underscored the strength of long tradition of working together in keeping the region peaceful and prosperous.

ASEAN members, according to His Majesty, did not simply co-exist but interacted and working together through peace and friendship beyond the confidence-building stage. His Majesty also expressed the need for ASEAN to reach out for its people and making them aware of what ASEAN is doing and getting them involved in all activities of ASEAN—Development, Security and in Community Building.

His Majesty then expressed appreciation for the ASEAN Leaders' support during Brunei's chairmanship of APEC 2000.

After the 4th ASEAN Heads of State and Government Informal Summit, His Majesty and other ASEAN Leaders signed the E-ASEAN Framework Agreement. This was immediately followed by a Digital signing ceremony.

The E-ASEAN Framework Agreement signed by ASEAN Heads of States and Governments today is a combination of the E-ASEAN initiative, which came about as the result of the last Summit in Vietnam in December 1998 where the ASEAN Leaders agreed to the Hanoi Plan of Action, including the development of an ASEAN Information Infrastructure to enhance the connectivity and compatibility of ASEAN. The E-ASEAN initiative was eventually endorsed by ASEAN Leaders at the 3rd ASEAN Informal Summit in Manila in November 1999. The E-ASEAN Framework Agreement facilitates the establishment of the ASEAN Information Infrastructure, which will link ASEAN with other major information communication technology efforts in the region and the world—such as the Asia-Pacific Information Infrastructure and the Global Information Infrastructure and promote the growth of electronic commerce in the region.

The ASEAN Information Infrastructure would also build on the Information Communication Technology Plan of individual ASEAN member countries such as Brunei's Ragam-21, Indonesia's Nusantara-21, Malaysia's Multimedia Super Corridor, IT-21 of the Philippines and IT-2000 of Singapore.

Yesterday's signing of the E-ASEAN Framework Agreement by all the ASEAN Heads of States and Governments demonstrates ASEAN's commitment in facing the challenges posed by the new economy in general and towards the establishment of free-trade area for goods, services and investments within ASEAN for the Information Communication Industries in particular.—

PUBLIC NOTICE

This notice will be construed as a continuation of compliance with provisions necessary to establish presumed fact (Rule 301, Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and attending State rules). All interested parties have failed to rebut any given allegation or matter of law addressed herein. The position will be construed as adequate to requirements of judicial notice, thus preserving fundamental law. A true and correct copy of this Public Notice is on file with and available for inspection at the newspaper CONTACT which is responsible for publishing the instrument as a legal notice.

September 9, 1996 the Officers and Directors of the Assignee of 50% of the value of PERUVIAN BONUS CERTIFICATE 3392-181 reached an agreement with certain officers of the U.S. Treasury, among whom were Russell Munk and Lawrence Summers (the current Secretary of the Treasury). When those officers refused to sign the agreement, pleading that to do so would not only jeopardize the U.S. Treasury but also the Federal Reserve System, the Assignee converted the agreement to a Public Notice and published it. No objection or rebuttal was ever received from Treasury, or from the FED.

The fourth paragraph of that Agreement/Public Notice reads as follows: "As a consideration of National Security (as well as Global Security), transactions WITHIN these guidelines will not be interfered with or blocked by the U.S. or its assigns. The consideration for such noninterference is that none of the contracts will be lodged for collection until such time as there is an additional agreement as to the lodging and honoring, through payoff, of the contracts."

This Public Notice, however, presents the knowledge of ongoing interference from our counterparts to the agreements and the breaking of each and all of those said agreements to varying degrees of diversion tactics of manipulation, delays and actual stone-wall operations. We acknowledge, however, that we find no outright DENIALS of said program or document value, only delays and refusal to provide information regarding same. We have also noted the utilization of such organizations as the World Bank and IMF to effect the rejection of the use of the collateral through intimidation and bribes of central bank personnel. It is our position, therefore, that we are no longer bound by those agreements as published September 9, 1996.

Because they are sensible, however, two of the requirements will continue to be met: the first being the limit of $5T per year (beginning in 1996 and thus aggregating $30T by January 1, 2001) (this restriction will not apply, however, to project funding within the U.S.A.), and the second being the prohibition of any use of "high yield" or "rollover" trading programs, which we believe are being used to grossly inflate the supply of U.S. dollars in an effort to destabilize the financial system of the U.S.A., and thus the world.

We offer this Public Notice as a status report to the current U.S. Administration, and to the parties who will be moving into the U.S. Government Administration, and to other involved persons in charge of governmental affairs in January, 2001. While we realize that most involved persons are very cognizant of current conditions, it is proper that we make an effort to consolidate the record for the sake of accuracy and brevity.

The asset, which is the debt of the U.S. Treasury, guaranteed by the FED, and payable in gold, as valued and established by Messieurs Bush, Herman, Baker, Bentsen, and Greenspan, was assigned to Global Alliance Investment Association (GAIA) April 28, 1998. The Uniform Commercial Code procedure for confirmation of the debt was undertaken and the proper notices to all potential interested parties given, and their receipts noted and published. There was no opposition of any kind made to the procedure, which became final and incontestable as of February 16, 1999. (The signatures at the end of this document shall be construed as a Certificate of Non-Response to the UCC notices.) Researchers have been able to easily establish that the original bearer bond, 3392-181, was reconfirmed, then reconfirmed and reissued as a jurat/contract of identifiable ownership to Cosmos Seafood Energy Marketing Ltd., a corporation set up by its owner and Chairman, Russell Herman. It may be helpful to researchers to know that the owners, officers, and directors of Cosmos are the same as those of GAIA, obviating the need for concern as to the legitimacy of those transfers from Cosmos to GAIA. The asset has been affirmed, albeit by default, as the property of GAIA, and is available for use.

To facilitate the distribution of the asset to deserving end-users, it has been determined, upon advice of counsel, to issue portions of the accrued interest in the form of DEEDS OF ASSIGNMENT FOR CONSIDERATION. Such DEEDS are specifically designed to be banking reserves and, for ease of bankers' understanding, are to be treated exactly as is other U.S. Treasury debt, since such debt is widely used as reserves by banks everywhere.

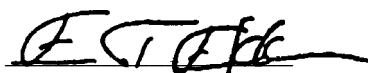

GAIA has issued some 1,200 DEEDS, worldwide, with a total value of several trillion U.S. dollars. Honoring our agreement, none (to our knowledge) have been issued to U.S. entities. That can be changed; GAIA would be willing and able to support such a program in the U.S., given the cooperation of the U.S. Such a program would offer ability for the U.S. to reclaim gold which has been moved out of the country and upon which the value of the dollar can have established and authentic VALUE affixed. As it is, allowing derivative-based so-called "high yield" trading programs is creating dollars in ever-increasing and uncontrollable amounts. If Alan Greenspan has any claim to managing the "prosperity" of the U.S., it is only that he has held the regulators at bay and prevented them from controlling, or eliminating, the proliferation of derivatives. It is the rapidly expanding money supply that makes such prosperity possible, but without basis it must one day implode. The use of the GAIA asset and the return to a gold standard for the currency would prevent such a catastrophe if implemented in time.

As its name implies, Global Alliance Investment Association intends to become an Association of Allied nations willing to Invest their time and resources, Globally, to achieve financial stability and complete sovereignty. In 1945 the Bretton Woods Agreement established the World Bank and IMF with, ostensibly, similar intentions. Unfortunately, those noble goals have been perverted and the institutions have become instruments of control and collection for the major international banks. While GAIA has no desire to "compete" with the IMF/WB, because it has become so clear that their former beneficiaries became debtors and are now victims to be bled dry, GAIA will have to defend itself from being denigrated for its preference for non-usurious "Islamic-type" banking, or for its recommendation of basing currencies upon gold so that inflation is eliminated and interest rates can be brought to 2-4% as they were in the 1800s and, in the U.S., until the 1940s. High interest rates kill business, put home ownership out of the reach of the masses, and enrich only the already rich.

GAIA intends to offer its collateral as the basis for the creation of many regional "monetary funds" to be maintained under local control, although the overall GAIA program will soon obviate the need for such funds, once the nations taste and feel sovereignty. Such regional funds could be used to free nations from the IMF/WB debt trap by "purchasing" the debt. However, by far the majority of GAIA DEEDS will be issued to all sorts of entities that need additional collateral to enable them to finance peaceful, beneficial projects.

Because the debt to GAIA is payable in gold, and the GAIA program requires that at least 50% of the value of the DEEDS issued be used to purchase gold, and that gold held in the funding bank for the Alliance, the effect is to create substantial reserves that can be drawn upon in emergencies, especially natural disasters. The money would be immediately available, not like the current situation wherein organizations like the UN must beg for the funds.

This Public Notice presents the facts to the best of our information and we present it under penalty of perjury. Signed this 11th day of November 2000 at Manila, Republic of the Philippines and by Ron Kirzinger at Las Vegas, NV.

TELEPHONE HOTLINE (Discontinued)

As an adjunct to CONTACT, the Telephone Hotline keeps you as informed as possible on current events and other important information that needs to get to our subscribers before our publishing date.

The message machine will answer after 2 rings if there are any new messages for that day, and after 4 rings if not. Thus daily callers can hang up after 2 rings and save toll charges if no new message has been recorded. If the Hotline does not answer your call, then there is currently no Hotline message.
