SECRET SOCIETIES AND THEIR POWER IN THE 20TH CENTURY

By Jan van Helsing

A FOREWORD

I am Gyeorgos Ceres Hatonn as "Narrator" or "commentator". Typist is Dharma (DJE). This is for identification, please.

Into our hands has been placed a remarkable document with permission to share as we see fit. I acknowledge the author-researcher of this document even though he remains unidentified as to "true identification". Truthbringers must come under what protection they can gain for selves and we owe immeasurable appreciation to those whose investigations lead them onward in spite of the risks that research brings. The document speaks for itself, please.

I prefer to leave the information as written and without further comment on same as to personages except to say that the copy we have been provided is from Spain—having traveled through translators and researches in Germany, Switzerland and even by way of Australia and those aforementioned UFO characters. See, there truly ARE others in the program without taking identifications which are false or remote in CLAIMS of holdings.

I repeat that WE HAVE NEVER VARIED ONE IOTA from our assigned task (mission), no matter how many might deviate from their "claimed" direction of intent.

As for this book in point, we would ask a couple of things, for this will be a "refresher" course in preparation for the next PHASE of the project under way. 1) The book is BANNED and we respect the danger to the author(s). Therefore, the cost for same off the shelves IS PRICELESS. It has been presented from the original presenters in request that it be allowed to work within our own projects and that source be so far remote in origin as to use devious means to get it to this keyboard operator we recognize as "dharma" and in which I, Hatonn, have request for comment as we go along word for word, and not run through "scanners". AND 2) To insure a continuation of CONTACT, directly request to handle the material and documents: Please do not bypass the information by simply gathering clandestinely from our resources. The book itself, under the most inexpensive method of acquiring, is worth far more in "real" expenses than the cost of a subscription to CONTACT AS A SUBSCRIBER.

No, Mr. "Bellringer", you will not get by with describing "some of the staff of CONTACT" AS BEING SOMEHOW SEPARATE AND APART FROM DISCREDITED HATONN, DORIS AND E.J. Sorry, after all this time of foolishness, you will find for self how incredibly stupid you present in your ongoing hogwash about the quality of SPECTRUM. Is it not time you got your heads on straight, readers? How, pray tell, could you judge the scribe a lie while the staff is no different from our own presentations? You CANNOT have one without the other.

Do we want Spectrum's subscribers? No, but we are certainly weary of the theft of presentations and you had best think about that EVERY TIME YOU SEE A REFERENCE TO “OUR LONG-TIME READERS” BY ANY SUCH “OTHER” PRESENTER. I repeat: We have never deviated one iota from our intent as stated at upstart. If there are “long-time readers”, YOU ARE CONTACT READERS—AND SHIFTY WORDS WILL CHANGE NOTHING AS “NOW” BEING TOLD YOU.

Furthermore, our old friends who never had options of making a choice if they went “with” The Spectrum Group, must be given a chance for reconsideration of their position. When Satan stirs the pot, beware the brew!

TO THE READER

The life of a publisher is really quite interesting. You are never safe from surprises. In 1993 a young man who did not want to give his name called me and said that he had just written a highly explosive book. He was now looking for publisher, but he wanted to remain anonymous. I said that would be OK and asked him to send me the manuscript.

Some days later a diskette arrived in the mail, together with a sum of money. The parcel had no sender’s address. There was a letter though that you will read on the following pages.

I printed the text immediately and read it with the greatest interest and without stopping. Upon finishing I was shattered—and that even though I had already known a few things about the machinations of certain circles in our high society.

Of course it was impossible to check all the correlations shown in the book for their validity, but if only a part thereof is true, I now understand why there is so much suffering upon this planet, why most people are poor and all the wealth and power of this earth are in the hands of a few unscrupulous persons.

Nobody can pass by this book!

Cordially yours,

K.D. Ewert-Gamalo Tiozon

[H: Following is the letter which would have been around 1993 as stated. The book itself was presented in 1995. I offer this so that you can understand the more recent recognition of the book itself.]

Dear Mr. Ewert!

About a year ago I received from a friend a copy of your magazine “Resolut” and I was surprised to find so many books dealing critically with different topics on one publisher’s list. I was impressed that you dared to offer these books as well as your own “free energy” developments so openly.

From “Resolut” I understood that you were prepared to publish first works as long as they are convincing and that the author is prepared to share the cost as stated. Therefore I send you on the enclosed diskette the manuscript “Secret Societies and Their Power in the 20th Century”.

You certainly will ask how I got hold of this information. Actually I stumbled upon the subject of “Secret Lodges and Politics” while researching something completely different. [H: Isn’t this the way of it?]

As you certainly know, all matter both in the microcosm and in the macrocosm is held together by electromagnetic forces. If I find a way to interfere with these electromagnetic forces and to alter them specifically I can influence both matter and time. There are two ways to achieve this: with machines, and without them. The machines to do this are known as space-time modules and as antigravity flying disks, the so-called UFOs, that by their self-produced magnetic fields can manoeuvre independently of the earth’s magnetic field (anti-gravitation). Other machines that can tap into these electromagnetic fields and change them to usable energy are called “free energy devices” (e.g. tachyon converters, space quanta motors).

People who can alter matter by consciously rotating their “MERKABA”, their own magnetic field, are called AVATARS (the best-known in the Western world was called Yeshua ben Joseph, Jesus, who was a master amongst them). It is thus possible to create directly from the ethers (materialization), to eliminate gravity, to float or to walk on water (levitation), to displace oneself instantaneously for instance from Africa to America (teleportation), spontaneous healing by changing the structure of the cells, etc.

I had the advantage of having been raised spiritually. Thus, I learned early on to consciously program by subconscious, to live following the universal laws and to train my mediumship. According to the law of resonance I then started to attract similar people to me. I am now 27 years old, have traveled five continents and have found the mentioned machines as well as avatars in almost every country. In New Zealand I encountered several people that had emigrated there precisely because in Europe they had met with severe difficulties from the nuclear, oil and electricity lobbies because they were developing free energy devices or antigravity flying disks. I started to ask just why we never hear about these technologies and why the Churches are presenting the works of avatars as miracles. Why are human beings like Jesus or Buddha elevated to be sons of God although their deeds are merely the application of definite laws of Nature that are at the disposal of everyone on this planet?

So I slowly discovered who and what was behind the fact that these themes never appear in the media or are ridiculed and why publications are fraught with the utmost disregard to human lives. That this topic is not just a game became terribly clear to me when an acquaintance, a ranger in the north of the New Zealand South Island had discovered a testing ground for flying saucers of the U.S. Air Force and was found only five hours after he had announced his find at the foot of a cliff, murdered together with his only witness. I met CIA, Naval Intelligence and BND (Bundesnachrichtendienst of Germany) members that were or still are involved in such projects. Many of them didn’t want to continue in this deadly game, but they fear for their lives—surely justifiably so—if they revealed information. Information like this and other “secrets” that I stumbled upon during my research have been collected in this book. All of it is interlinked with secret societies, religion, high finance and politics.

Now I am torn between the terrible helplessness that I feel along with the rest of my generation and that drives so many into a feeling of NO FUTURE, and the defiant drive to counter this madness in a refreshing, unaffected and unbiased way, with awakening might, with the well-known spiritual laws and spiritual knowledge. As publisher and author, we have to awaken, to stir up, but the changes have to be wrought by today’s young generation of this bogged down humanity on our maltreated Mother Earth.

As I have been repeatedly and very seriously warned against personally standing up to these established powers, I am sending the manuscript without sender’s address in the hope that you will be equally convinced for its content and will publish it under the pseudonym given. Under the circumstances I would also be prepared to waive any remuneration—in the interest of the cause.

I wish this book diffusion and success under the caring blessings of the positive spiritual forces! [H: Smile!] To you, Mr. Ewert, my heartfelt gratitude for your endeavours, and protection and strength for your future work in the service of Truth.—Jan van Helsing

[H: The next in order in the document is, of course, the “Index”. We will leave that for the time being because there will be no way up front to generate correct pagination or reference. We will offer topics as they appear as to the text. I, Hatonn, will make my comments as usual, in brackets. And, yes, Lester K., there is an importance to New Zealand beyond your interest in Rife microscopes—just please be patient, my friend.]

PREFACE

Imagine you are an extraterrestrial, have just crossed uncountable light-years and are now approaching the planet Earth. It is your mission to reconnoiter this planet, to establish contact with its inhabitants to exchange information and knowledge of any kind. If this proves positive and you are convinced of the sincerity and peacefulness of the people, Earth could be accepted into the intergalactic federation. Then it would be possible to have open contacts with inhabitants of other planets which would cause a rapid development of the earthlings’ consciousness and in their technology and health service.

After entering orbit you switch on your monitor to receive eventual signals. You get a news station reporting on what’s happening on Earth. Thus you recognize that this is a warring planet where for thousands of years people fought, maimed and killed, not, as you would at first assume, enemy planets, but EACH OTHER.

You soon realize that there is no concept behind these wars, because some fight for their religion, others because of the colour of their skin. There are some who are unsatisfied with the size of their country and others fight just to survive, as they have no food. Some have only financial gain in mind, but on the whole, everyone is mainly concerned about himself. You realize that this planet is not at all ready for the information and the technology that you have to offer. No matter which country you would choose to land in, your gifts would certainly not be used for the good of everyone on Earth, but again just for the selfish interests of those leading that country.

Perhaps you will think back to your home planet and the time that there were still wars there. But since this had been overcome thousands of years ago and you have no inclination to relive that scenario, and since you just found that a few "missiles" had been fired in the direction of your space cruiser, you quickly decide to rather go visit another planet.

Have you ever wondered why people are always warring upon each other?

The Swiss scientist Jean-Jacques Babel found that during the last 5,600 years humanity fought 14,500 wars with three and a half billion dead. That is half of today's world population. In the year 1991 for example there were 52 wars or warlike crises upon Earth. This means that in the very year, after countless wars and clashes on this planet, among them two world wars in just one century, there are 104 opposing ideologies facing each other, with concerns that apparently weigh heavily enough to justify the killing of further millions of human beings.

What purpose could be served by war among men?

[H: Please leave the spellings which use "s" instead of "z". This is not an error but is indicative of non-U.S. use of English.]

For centuries peace organisations and philosophers alike have deliberated about this and found that almost all beings upon Earth fight from time to time over territory and food. But aggressive behaviour among animals cannot be compared directly with the behaviour of human beings because the latter also have intelligence, consciousness and ethics. Just think of the difference between two predators fighting over the prey and multinational arms companies living off the sale of weapons and therefore off permanent war.

That the "fight for survival" can also be a source of entertainment is known from ancient Rome, when under the motto "panem et circenses" (bread and circus games) gladiators had to fight one another to delight the plebs and to distract them from their own powerlessness. The same principle today applies to televisions, videos and mass sports like football, which are all used to enable the superficial citizens to escape from the oppressive void of their existence.

What are the media diverting from?

What could man perhaps find out or realize if he wasn't constantly diverted?

It is well known that a third party is usually gaining from the conflict of two others. If we enlarge this thought for persons to countries or to the whole planet, then we will still find it valid. Banking systems, for example, that had loaned money to a warring nation have a vested interest in seeing that war drag on.

Wars and unrest can also convince a people to accept the setting up of institutions, and to even welcome them, that under normal circumstances it would never have accepted (e.g. NATO, UN).

On the whole, though, those not especially interested, excepting the dead, will find no link between the wars of the last centuries.

Could it be that wars benefit others besides the arms industry? What is it that prompts people again and again to hate to such an extent that they are ready to kill their own species for it? What can be so important to extinguish other lives for? Has nothing been learned from the millions and billions that have already died in wars, and from the pain thus induced?

In Yugoslavia, for instance, several peoples had been living together peacefully for many decades just to slaughter each other now. What is it in these people that their brothers who lived in the same village, speak the same language, look similar, wear the same clothes, who love and enjoy, laugh and cry just as they do, are suddenly their bitterest enemies, so they slaughter their children, rape their wives and mothers, put the men into concentration camps...

Don't we know this from somewhere already?

Have really ideological reasons of certain groups led to these wars, or might there be somebody else pulling strings in the wings?

Who could that third part be?

Where does that concept of the enemy originate that we are fed by religions, schoolbooks and the mass media?

What are the aims of those who engender these concepts of the enemy and have them constantly suggested to us?

Who would profit most from the rising hatred and the degeneration of humanity?

Perhaps it is to Satan, Lucifer, Ariman, Baphomet or other intangible entities that one would like to pass the blame? Perhaps.

In this book the story of some very tangible people is told, who in 1773, in a house in the Judenstrasse (Jews' Street) in Frankfurt, planned to pave the way for a "One World Government" by the year 2000 with three world wars. A perfectly worked out plan using the fears and weaknesses of the people against them.

To aim for a world government is nothing new, even today the Vatican wants to make this world a catholic one. And history shows that to this end it let millions of people be tortured and killed.

Islam has the same objective, and today has the best chances to achieve it as Islam is now the largest and also the most fanatical religion.

The "pan-Slavic" ideology of Russia, originally voiced by William the Great, asking for the elimination of Germany and Austria in order to take India and Persia after having subjugated Europe, is another along those lines.

A further ideology to be mentioned is the one asking for a confederation of Asian states under Japan with the motto "Asia to the Asians".

Last but not least there is the "pan-Germanic" ideology planning a control of Europe by Germany, later to be extended to the whole world.

Yet the persons mentioned in this book are independent of any creed and do not belong to any nation. They are neither "rightist" nor "leftist" nor "liberal" but they use ALL institutions for their objectives. They are members of one organization or another, but just to hinder any research, to confuse the "curious" and put them on the wrong track. They use Christians and Jews, fascists and communists, Zionists and Mormons, atheists and Satanists, the poor and the rich... EVERYONE!

Above all thought they use the ignorant, the lazy, the uninterested and the uncritical. Among insiders these persons are called "ILLUMINATI" (the enlightened ones, the initiates), Big Brother, the invisible government, the Grey Men, the shadow government, the secret government, the establishment...

As far as I know, the so-called "Illuminati" started their dealings on this world about 300,000 BC, when the "BROTHERHOOD OF THE SNAKE" in Mesopotamia was infiltrated by the group of people we call "Illuminati" today and was misused for their negative aims. It is not only possible, but very likely that this drama had started much earlier, at the time when the "ego" developed. But because of the work of the "Brotherhood of the Snake" we can trace this activity back to a time in history which was followed by groups like Jews, Christians, Freemasons or other religious sects only 3,000 generations later. Today this "game" is played among others by a few members of the Zionist community, as the book will show, but it has neither started with them nor will it end with them. What had started way back then is today still following the same rules. It suffices therefore to look into the present situation to recognize where the problems are.

If one wants to categorize the thought or belief system of the Illuminati at all, then perhaps one has to choose "Machiavellism" which justifies power politics without ethical standards, thence: political unscrupulousness.

An example: POWER

You are the new king of a country and you want to make sure to remain king. So you call two persons to you, one after the other, of whom you are sure that they would do as told.

The first one you educate according to "leftist" principles and you give him funds to set up a party.

The second you also finance, but you ask him to found a "right wing" party.

Now you have established two opposing parties, you finance propaganda, elections, activities and thus you always know their plans. You control them both. If you want one of them to be ahead, you just give them more funds than the other. Both leaders think you're on their side, and you are the "friend" of both.

The people will be so caught-up in this to-ing and fro-ing of "left" and "right" that they will never suspect that you as their king might be behind the dispute.

The people will even ask you for help and advice.

In the American Civil War (1861-1865) the Northern states (who opposed slavery) fought the Southern states (who were for slavery).

Before the war the ROTHSCHILD family had agents stir up pro-union feelings in the Northern states. Other agents, though, at the same time fanned secessionist feelings in the Southern states.

When the war started The London Rothschild bank financed the North and the Paris Rothschild bank the South.

The only real winners in this war were the ROTHSCHILDS.

To summarize the system:

1. One creates conflicts where people fight each other and not the true instigator.
2. One is never seen as the instigator of the conflicts.
3. One supports all warring parties.
4. One is seen as a "benefactor" who could end the conflict.

Since the "Illuminati" want to attain world power, their way to achievement is to sow as much discord as possible between the people and nations of the world so these will be caught up in a net of misinformation and will never find out who is really behind it all. The international SECRET SOCIETIES which we are about to look into are their mightiest tool for sowing discord among the people. At the same time people are constantly involved in wars amongst themselves that eventually they will tire of it and will "plead" for a WORLD GOVERNMENT.

And here we see the plan. The "beneficial organisation" will be called upon to end the conflict. And who is this on this planet? The UN! Let us see who is actually behind the UN.

The "Illuminati" mentioned here are not just anybody, they are the richest people in the world.

They never appear on TV or in other media, since they not only own and therefore control all the mass media, but also the news agencies. And if ever something gets to be known about them, it is either neutral or positive.

The largest part of the population does not even know their names. And the authors who already uncovered some of their machinations never became famous, although they should have been awarded the Nobel prize.

It would be good to stand up against this, but how can 6 billion people fight against something they don't even know exists?

It is a fact that almost the same number of people are so caught up in their own personal "problems" they never had—or lost in the meantime—the over-all view of what happens in the world and around them. The majority is suffering from "political frustration" and have therefore pulled out. Lack of time, failing interest and insufficient discrimination because of a lack in specialized knowledge have led to this "abstinence". But pulling out will not change anything here, on the contrary, this is what our "helmsmen" want. Every single one giving up makes it easier for them to reach their goal. Thus the first thing to do is to gain knowledge of these goings-on.

And as a great world teacher said:

"Find Truth, for Truth Will Set You Free!"

Once could divide humanity into three types:

1. Those who cause things to happen,
2. Those who just watch what happens and
3. Those who are surprised at what has happened.

For this reason this book is "my" contribution to bring some of these happenings to light. It tries to pass on the knowledge about some of the things that have been kept secret by the people who pull the strings upon this planet. The reader shall be enabled, if he just found himself under item 3, to at least advance to item 2, if not to item 1!

As the author of this book I am not representing any interest group, religious sect or nation. I am a human being upon this planet Earth who claims his right to freedom and free development in order to fulfill his task here. And as I very much value peace among the nations and in human relations—just as a large segment of humanity does, hopefully—I see it as my personal responsibility to at least present this information to my fellow men to enable them to make their own decisions.

The following should not just be swallowed without chewing first, as one would the stories that are served to us daily in the media.

I would recommend that superficial people who are happy with things as they are, close the book right here. But those who are used to looking behind the scenes may find a few far-reaching and challenging stimuli revealed.

If we see ourselves as real "finders" of truth and not just as life-long "seekers", we should grasp any possibility to gain new knowledge, to test and eventually accept it. This could mean that if our mind is full of accepted views, opinions, dogmas or a set view of the world there is no more room for further TRUTH and that perhaps truth looks quite different from what we imagined.

Thus is why I am asking you here, at the outset, to remain open.

Forget your religious, political and ethnic bias and opinions for the length of this book and let us be just human beings, like children, open and ready to learn.

And let us try not to compare what is said here with a fixed view or with somebody else's opinion, but to follow our intuition, our feelings and to determine for ourselves if this information rings true—even if in the end we find it upsetting.

Let us switch off our set modes of thinking that would say: "Oh my God, if all this were true, what meaning does my life have, and what is my role in all this?"

No panic, the last chapter will deal with this at length.

This book calls for the reader to become self-critical and thus a really responsible citizen. Search for yourself, find "your own truth" and examine things without prejudice. Nevertheless I will try on the following pages to stick to historical facts even if they are not yet widely perceived as such. I left my personal theories out in order to give a summary of the sources that are mentioned at the end of the book and that are generally accessible.

[END OF QUOTING "PREFACE", PART 1]

[H: Dharma, a good place to break so that the portions are not unwieldy and also to allow a review of the typing. We can then have the "Introduction" to lead into the segments to follow in a more orderly sequence.]

RE: SECRET SOCIETIES [QUOTING:]

(PART 2)

INTRODUCTION

There are two levels of historical reality. The first is the general so-called public opinion that is served to the average citizen by the mass media and will later, because of persons writing it down, become history. The second one, though, is made up of the happenings that are not revealed to the public. This is the world of the machinations by secret lodges and secret societies which interlink capital, politics, economy and religion. On this level nations are made, wars are instigated, presidents and leaders are put in office and, in case they don't function, eliminated.

The citizen who fashions his opinion and his view of the world from what he gathers from the mass media like news papers, TV, radio, book learning and common literature will find most of the things revealed in the following pages unfamiliar.

Thoughts like: "I never heard of that!" are understandable because secrets and the dealings of secret lodges only fulfill their purpose if they do remain secret. But the very existence of secret lodges shows that there must be something that the lodge brothers find important to keep secret.

What could that be?

As I will show, many lodge brothers of different secret societies find themselves in positions that one can only dream about. This shows that whatever they keep secret from you has elevated them to these positions.

Let me give you just one example here to illustrate what I mean with "dream position":

One of the main organizations pulling strings in the U.S. is the CFR (Council on Foreign Relations). This semi-secret organization is dominated by the Rockefeller syndicate and a European secret society called "COMMITTEE OF 300" (explanation follows).

In the list of members of the "Committee of 300" that I got from Dr. John Coleman's book Conspirators' Hierarchy: The Committee of 300 I found among others:

"SIR JOHN J. LOUDEN

"He is the representative in London of the 'N.M.

Rothschild Bank'.

"His other positions are as follows:

"Chairman of the international advisory committee of the 'Chase Manhattan Bank' (Rockefeller).

"Chairman of 'Royal Dutch Petroleum',

"Director of the 'Shell Petroleum Co. Ltd.' and

"Trustee of the 'Ford Foundation'."

This shows extraordinary power and influence in a single person. But how did he get there?

This now has to do with the secret societies and orders of which he is a member. In this case it is the "Committee of 300". And in that committee there are 300 persons of the same calibre amongst themselves (and he most certainly is not the mightiest). Can you imagine that decisions and resolutions made in meetings of these people can have a very great influence upon what happens in the world?

These persons keep secrets from the public. They know some things that we do not, and therefore those who call themselves the "ILLUMINATI" (the enlightened ones, the initiates) are incredibly powerful. Wouldn't you like to know what the secrets are the "Illuminati" keep from you?

Almost all the secrets have to do with the past of our planet, the history and the origin of humanity (how and where?), the reason for our being here, the so-called UFOs and the consequences thereof (UFOs = Unknown [Unidentified] Flying Objects, the common name for flying devices with two counter-rotating magnetic fields, mostly cigar- or saucer-shaped and of terrestrial or extraterrestrial origin).

I presume that the word UFO is not welcome to some. That is why it is so important to be open for new things! And the subject of UFOs is not new, on the contrary. People in Europe have been just as misinformed as everyone else upon this Earth where UFOs are concerned. And that again has to do with the Illuminati who control the media!

Especially here in Germany. I would like to give here an example to show just how real and earthly the background to this phenomenon can be:

Beside the "THULE-GESELLSCHAFT" (Thule Society), which will be described in detail later, there was another secret order in the third Reich, the "VRIL-GESELLSCHAFT". This was mainly occupied with the building of UFOs. They had, next to Viktor Schauberg and Dr. W.O. Schumann, also Schriever, Habermohl, Mieth, Epp and Belluzo working for them, whose developments will perhaps be remembered by the British and American pilots still alive as "Foo Fighters". Their developments were greatly accelerated after—according to them—an "extraterrestrial" saucer went down in the Black Forest in 1936 and was hardly damaged. After having scrupulously studied the drive and having joined the findings to the already enormous body of knowledge of the "Vril-Gesellschaft" about implosion and antigravity they started to build their own prototypes. Developments like the "Vril-7" (V7), a disc-shaped supersonic helicopter (not to be confounded with the V1 and V2 cruise missiles) were so astounding that today's stealth bombers look like toys in comparison. The Vril-7 developed by Richard Mieth for example and equipped with twelve BMW 028 turbo-units reached in a test flight in Peenemunde on February 14, 1944 in vertical take-off the height of 24,200 metres and in horizontal flight a speed of 2,200 km/h. By the end of 1942 several units of the circular aircraft RFZ 6 with the name "Haunebu II" had already been built. It had a diameter of 32 metres and a height at the central axis of 11 metres and near the ground it reached a speed of over 6,000 km/h. It had an operational range of 55 hours, took off vertically and could fly horizontally, vertically and—most importantly—manoeuvre at right angles (a movement typical of all the UFOs observed all over the world). Later Vril developments were even more successful; as early as the beginning of 1945 they succeeded in flying around the globe in a few hours. A large-capacity version of the Haunebu II had a diameter of 120 metres and had integrated sleeping quarters. Just think why one would need sleeping quarters if one could fly around the world in a few hours? (More about the “Vril-Gesellschaft” and its developments in the chapter named accordingly).

Many will now ask: “Why did Hitler not win the war if he had technologies like these at his disposal?” The reason is that although a large number of these flying disks showed incredible performance, yet they were well nigh unusable in a military context. The reason was that the magnetic field produced by the levitation drive acted like a protective shield around the craft and, while it rendered it almost impossible to shoot down, was almost impossible for the “conventional” weapons carried to penetrate without “friction”. The projects were under the supervision of the “Vril-Gesellschaft” and of the SS E IV (Secret Development Centre for Alternative Energy of the SS), i.e., they were not directly under Hitler’s and the NSDAP’s orders and basically were not planned for war use. Only later when Germany’s situation deteriorated did one think about using the flying discs in the war.

Another reason is that most people have no idea what Hitler’s real aims were, where he had been educated, of which lodges he was a member, whose ideology he adopted, who put him in his position, who financed him and what reasons there were behind the Second World War. Hitler’s ideology had nothing to do with what we call today the “general reality” and with what is told about the Third Reich in schoolbooks. Hitler was a mystic and an occultist down to his shoes, and to understand what happened in the Third Reich one has to look at it from this viewpoint, too. To most “materialists” among the historians, the Nuremberg Trials were a mixture of Grimm’s fairy tales and stories from the mentally sick, because they were unable to think themselves into the roles of the defendants, nor had they the necessary knowledge to understand the stories these people told. Dieter Rugeberg puts this very aptly: “Only an occultist can recognize an occultist!”

The chapters about the “Thule-Gesellschaft” and the “Vril-Gesellschaft” will explain the ideology of these people in more detail. Hitler and his secret societies knew a lot more about the origin of humanity, the structure of the Earth, antigravity and “free energy” than we are taught today. That is also why all writings and books that could divulge this knowledge were removed or banned by the Allies, to ensure that humanity will remain easily manipulated. The Allies’ main interest were the technologies of the “Vril-Gesellschaft”. These were the best-kept secrets of the Third Reich. The Russians got their hands on the construction designs first, the scientists like Viktor Schauberger and Wernher von Braun became—in the operation “Paperclip”—the prey of the Americans. The resulting developments of flying machines are under the highest security rating of the U.S. of A. They were also the reason why J.F. Kennedy had to die (see the chapter “The Kennedy Assassination”).

There were, though, quite different experiments conducted in the Third Reich which would all but destroy the views of the world so far erected by the readers if given here. Therefore they will later be treated separately. Why have most people never heard about these things? For instance about the founding of the German state “Neuschwabenland” (New Swabia) in the Antarctic during the Second World War? And why did U.S. Admiral Richard E. Byrd require almost 4,000 armed troops, an aircraft carrier and full military support when he went to explore the Antarctic? And why did only a few hundred of them return? Many open questions.

Why have only few people heard of these things, or of the developments of NIKOLA TESLA, among which were free energy machines, energy transfer without cables, antigravitation and the changing of the weather by the aimed use of “standing waves”? What consequences would the knowledge about free energy forms and about the use of flying saucers, which only use a magnetic field for an energy source, have? Especially if every citizen would have access to it, for their cars for example? No more “Fill ‘er up!”

No pollutants, no pollution of the environment. No nuclear power stations any more; people could no longer be kept locked within the boundaries of a country, and we all would have more free time because we wouldn’t have to work to pay for heating, petrol and electricity (in this time one could think a lot, perhaps about the meaning of life). And these energy forms exist. They have been existing for at least ninety years and have been kept secret all this time.

Why were they kept secret?

Because people on this Earth are controlled by energy, food and the retention of knowledge. If the knowledge about these things and their use would be available to all, the Illuminati or other “egotists” could no longer play their power games. Churches, sects and drugs would lose their importance. Therefore it is imperative for the Illuminati to keep these things from the rest of the world, in order to feed their greed and their ego with their might.

This was a side trip just to show that the UFO theme is more explosive and real than many would have it. The “strategy of ridicule” used by the Anglo-American establishment has so far cost several billion dollars, just to denigrate the UFO theme by the mass media successfully.

On top of that: The first law in a secret lodge is never to be mentioned publicly, even saying the lodge name by a lodge brother is punishable by death in certain cases (in the “99 lodge” for example).

In the secret school of Pythagoras pronouncing the last theorem, the “octagon” was also punishable by death. The octagon is an important key to understanding the “Merkabah” (the human geometric magnetic fields) and is therefore “illuminating”, that means a solution to our problems. (Mer-ka-bah = two counter-rotating light fields, which transport both body and spirit = dematerialization and teleportation of the body.)

Secrecy is a proper power. It allows the execution of operations without them being hindered by legal entanglements or potential opponents, and it also fosters the interchange of higher knowledge among the knowing.

Let us look here at the key scene from Umberto Eco’s In the Name of the Rose, when the blind abbot asks the researching William of Baskerville: “What do you actually want?” Baskerville answers “I want the Greek book which you say was never written. A book dealing exclusively with comedy that you hate as much as laughter. Yet it is perhaps the only surviving copy of the second book of poetics by Aristotle. Many books deal with comedy, why is just this one so dangerous?”

And abbot says: “Because it’s by Aristotle!”

Baskerville: “What is so disquieting about people laughing?”

The abbot: “Laughter kills fear, and without fear there is no faith. Who does not fear the devil no longer needs a God.”

(With this sentence we are nearer a solution to many problems we ever had on this planet than we believe. Perhaps some of you knew this already or will hopefully soon find out. Maybe you should read this paragraph a second time.)

When a secret lodge is deceiving the public with fraud and manipulation in order to attain political and economic power—at other people’s expense—then secrecy, as in the foregoing example, can become a deadly tool.

Of course I am not saying that all secret societies are destructive or evil. One of the many branches of Freemasonry for instance evolved after 1307 from the KNIGHTS TEMPLAR whom the Vatican, under pressure by the French King Philippe IV, persecuted. Those who escaped capture and torture by the Inquisition mainly went to Portugal, England and Scotland, where for centuries they worked in secret to bring justice to the world and to further human rights. Yet history shows at the same time that the secret societies like the 33rd degree of the Scottish Rite of Freemasons can be a dangerous power with the ability to set up and to depose governments and to use secret alliances for global alterations.

Many books have been written about the Illuminati, mostly in English. Personally I disliked the fact that they were often written by fanatics, fanatical Christians, fanatical Mormons, fanatical Jehovah’s Witnesses, by fanatical rightists or leftists, etc., who had realized what happened around them, but had argued from their subjective view point and in the end pointed just to other groups or Satan as the culprits. So I tried to collect the facts from the different fields of politics, religion and finance that in my opinion were most important and to summarize them without evaluation, so they are also acceptable to non-religious and other free and thinking persons and that dealing with the cause can be done by everybody, whether they be white, black or yellow. And you will understand why the Illuminati are interested that a single human being may not know everything.

No author will perhaps 100% succeed in painting a complete picture of the entanglements upon this planet, therefore the main focus of this book is to show you what the persons mentioned want and how they go about it.

As I said, the operations of the Illuminati go back to Sumerian times at least, but dealing with that would go too far here and would miss the actual point. So we will start with the Freemasons. It is sufficient to go back three hundred years, for although the names and institutions change in the course of history, the power behind them remains the same.

In summary we can state already here that there are many more secret lodges and orders—and for a longer time—than will be mentioned in this book. This compilation shall let you recognize the intertwining and give you a feeling for the fact that, more than ever, powerful people exist whose sense of values is “a bit different”.

This book shall give you an insight into the negative global entanglement. Since our material world can only exist in polarities, we may assume that an equally powerful potential of positive and constructive forces has to keep the balance. Only most people are not aware of these powers and the effects of a purposeful utilisation thereof, and this is one of the reasons why they still allow themselves to be so misused.

My main goal is to show positive ways to counter these negative situations so we may free ourselves and develop a new understanding of cosmic forces (cosmos = Greek: "order"), global networking, human relations and personal heightening of the awareness according to the emerging new age.

Please don't be disheartened if the concentrated brew of information proves too much for you to stomach in one go. Should you have a problem understanding certain passages or feel lost in the entanglements, please do not jump over any paragraphs, because they all help to give a coherent picture. Rather take the time and read those passages again.

The lists of literature enable you to research for yourself and invite you to a further trip through the jungle of information. My historical review is just touching the tip of an iceberg or, to stay within the context, the tip of a pyramid.

CHAPTER 1

TOO MANY LODGES SPOIL THE BROTH

FREEMASONRY is one of the oldest organizations still in existence today. Papyrus scrolls that were found in 1888 in excavations in the Libyan desert describe secret meetings of similar groups 2000 BC. These brotherhoods had already been involved in the building of the Temple of Solomon and fulfilled then their functions similar to today's unions, yet they already had a mystical tradition. The objective of Masonry is given as the inner transformation through spiritual perfection in reverence of God. Since Freemasons belong to different religions, they call this God the "Great Builder of All Worlds".

Further references are found in the Egyptian Book of the Dead and the God Thoth who had been their Grand Master. "Grand Master" is the usual title for the highest leaders. The spiritual knowledge of the Freemasons had been replaced by symbols, allegories and rituals which served communication. (A secret language with symbols, e.g., the Masonic ritual handshake, the pyramid, the pentagram, the use of the numbers 3, 7, 13 and 33 in coats of arms, emblems and today in company logos and names.)

The most important symbol in many organizations, including Freemasonry, is the apron. The apron which at the outset was simple and unadorned was replaced by the PRIESTHOOD OF MELCHIZEDEK around 2200 BC by a white lambskin and is still used like that today. In ancient Egypt the Gods who according to old traditions were flying the "Divine Ships" were represented in temple paintings with the apron. Later the priests wore the apron as a sign of devotion to the "flying gods" and as a sign of authority, representing the Gods, over the people. The members of the "BROTHERHOOD OF THE SNAKE" already wore the apron around 3400 BC. to show their submission to the Gods who came from heaven in "flying wheels". It is doubtful that the lower grades of the different lodges today know the initial use of the apron.

Before 1307 the KNIGHTS TEMPLAR—together with the KNIGHTS OF ST JOHN OF JERUSALEM and in part the TEUTONIC KNIGHTS (these two were originally charitable orders)—were the leading organizations behind the crusades against the Muslims. Although these orders were inimical to each other, they fought together for Christianity.

It is no coincidence that there is a vagueness about the KNIGHTS TEMPLAR and their historical and occult background, for this uncertainty was established purposefully—especially during the past 150 years. The secret about the Templars would not be if it had not been made to be by circles and powers who had and have an understandable interest—from their point of view—to keep the truth in obscurity.

Thus it came to pass that the Templars shared a common destiny with their Lord Jesus Christ: As the latter's teachings had been perverted and reversed when the Old Testament he had so vehemently fought against was added to the Christian doctrine, so was the spirit of the Order of the Templars also turned. In both cases the central point of the falsification was the same. In recent times several "neo-pseudo Templar orders" have sprung up. Among these you certainly find people of good intent, but also charlatans and servants of exactly that spirit the old Templars had fought. An amalgamation of the name and spirit of the Templars with components of Freemasonry is utterly grotesque, yet it was done (the Knights Templar degree in the York Rite).

Two very pious men stood at the outset of the Order of the Knights Templar: Hugues de Payens and Geoffroy de St. Omer, a Frank and a Norman. They collected a group of friends spirited by a faith typical of the Middle Ages, a faith so powerful that we can hardly imagine it today. Christmas 1117 this small circle decided to form a group for the protection of pilgrims in Jerusalem. It was their only wish to serve the Lord Jesus Christ and the faith. The group now grown to nine knights stood rather alone—they had no protection nor adequate funds.

Next spring the group went to Baldwin I., Latin king of Jerusalem, and to the patriarch. Their intent was lauded, and—after having lived in the "German House", a hospital run by Germans—they were soon given quarters on the ancient site of the Temple. And although this earned them the name of KNIGHTS TEMPLAR, they always understood themselves to be the BROTHERS OF THE TRUE TEMPLE OF CHRIST by which they meant the INNER TEMPLE OF THE SOUL.

The history of the Templars would be quite different and probably rather unimportant had they not discovered in the ruins of the Temple a rather remarkable find the Knights did not at first know what to do with: These were remains of Hebrew writings, small scraps really, but whose contents would soon become of utmost importance to the Templars and the Order's history from then on. These scraps were sent to the erudite Etienne Harding who got them translated. And this became the impetus for all that followed. The find proved to be fragments of statements by Jewish eschaimin (spies) who at the order of the priesthood reported on the actions of the "cursed mamzer (son of a whore) Jesus" and his "blasphemy against the God of Israel". And the contents of these reports conflicted absolutely with what was commonly preached!

According to them, Jesus called the Hebrew god "JAHVEH" Satan and reproached the Jews for having made the devil himself into their only god. Traces of this can still be found in the Gospel of John in the New Testament, where Jesus tells the Jews "You belong to your father, the devil..." (John 8:44). There had to have been an immense falsification of the teachings of Christ!

To understand the profound shock that hit the Templars one has to think of their strong faith. The God that the Church taught as "Father of Christ" was in Jesus' own words the devil whom to fight he had come to Earth! A study of the Bible soon revealed to the common sense of the simple Templars that the teachings of Jesus and the Old Testament were diametrically opposed and therefore could never belong together. Furthermore the Jews never called their god "Father" but "JAHVEH" and "EL SHADDAI". El Shaddai, though, was Sheitan, i.e., the fallen angel! (shaddeim = depravity, el = archangel. EL is often wrongly translated with God. "GOD" however is IL in the old oriental tongues).

[H: Come on, readers, this is all historical fact and has NOTHING to do with my translation of meaning. We present as it is presented. Furthermore, however, we are in the LAND where El Shaddai is the biggest breakoff from the ROMAN Catholic sect and must be noted—in the form of "charismatic leader" Brother Mike Velarde, in the Philippines and now gaining great attention in the United States and other places of note. You have to now understand that the confrontations are between LEADERS and again, as throughout history, the masses of citizens are totally without knowing and are manipulated by the power brokers.]

When in the year 1128 the formal founding of the order took place where Bernard de Clairvaux—later St. Bernard—acted in a sense as patron, the small gathering already had a secret: It was their determination to penetrate the truth of the Christ. Up to then there was only uncertainty—soon one would know for sure. But one has to understand this determination as that of a group of almost naively pious knights who just wanted to serve their Lord Jesus Christ and to rediscover His true teachings. There was nothing aggressive in this, for they were not insinuating any evil wrongdoing. It was Bernard who told them that their ambitions would be frowned upon and that it would be wise not to lay their thoughts open.

In the following years no further indications of the original teaching of Christ were found. The Order of the Templars now took on military tasks. The "secret" soon only lived on in the memories of a few, mainly Provencal brothers. The practical requirements in the Orient left little time or space to care about the secret.

The closer contact with Islam was giving new impulses. Some letters attributed to Ali Ibn Abu Thalib (Imam Ali) fell into the hands of a Templar unit during an advance on Damascus. In these Ali told of a later falsification of the Koran which he likened to the adulterations in the Gospels of Christ. These papers got to the Provence where the old thought resurfaced to search of the truth of the Christ.

Now things happened in quick succession: A document was passed on to the Provencal commandery which most probably came from Cathar circles. No wonder then that later the Templars refused to take part in the "crusade" against the Cathars. It was a piece of the original Gospel of John, written by the heretic Marcion in 94 AD. A letter was enclosed that gave a brief history of Marcion's life. Here we should state that Marcion succeeded in founding an important, purely Christian movement between 90 and 130 AD. that only started to decline after he was murdered. Marcion, who had actually met the apostle John, taught that Jesus Christ was God incarnate, that there was no "father-god Jahveh", but that this Hebrew god was Satan himself. He further said that Jesus promised the people "self-healing", so only the goodwill of an individual was required, but no temples and hence no Church organization.

From then on an "Order within the Order" established itself, a proper sworn Marcionite group. This special formation within the Order of the Templars was mainly made up of Provençals and Germans. The majority of the Knights Templar at that time certainly never knew why the cross of the Order was changed from the simple equal-armed one to the “Knights’ Cross”. In the beginning the “Knights’ Crosses” known today did not yet exist. The Templars wore a simple red cross in their white cloaks. Only the surreptitious influence of the Marcionites made the “Marcionite Cross”—the cross of thorns—the symbol of the Templars!

In early Christian times the cross of thorns had been the symbol of the Marcionites; it was the “Heretics’ Cross”. It is said that the Evangelist John had fashioned a cross from thorns for the Holy Mother Mary. Marcion then chose the red cross of thorns as a sign of pure Christianity. To the initiate the Knights’ Cross then is the symbol Marcion’s. In later times appeared the double cross of thorns of the Templars’ esoteric science.

At the same time the Templars’ battle cry “Vive Dieu Saint Amour!” (Long live the God of Holy Love) emerged to express the exclusive turning to Christ and the renunciation of the Old Testament “god of revenge” image.

The majority of people both within and without the Order were of course not privy to the underlying reasons of all this. The time did not yet appear right; one was still awaiting further irrefutable proof in documents of early Christianity. And such documents were indeed found, although in very roundabout ways too complicated to retell here. Suffice to say that two Templars found a very old Marcionite cache in some ruins in Carthage. They were not there by accident, but following the trail of Marcion who had been there quite often. They found not just scraps of the original writings of John and Matthew but also an old Carthaginian faith and creation manuscript including the Greek translation probably by Marcion himself. And in the manuscript, the “Ilu Aschera”, one could recognize the true foundations of the teachings of Christ.

Of the “Templar revelation” from the year 1236 it is only important to mention that it heralds a bright realm in the “land of midnight” (Germany) the precursors of which should be the select of the Knights Templar. The revelation occurred when a female manifestation appeared to two knights in a room of the old Carthage and gave them that very message. Because of this vision Berlin-Temple of (“temple court”) was founded as the Northern capital of the “New Babylon”.

What creed, what attitude of mind and what view of the world did the Templars actually represent?

The medieval Occident rested on three pillars: The Jewish-Christian religion, the finance and trade economy based on the permission to ask for interest given in the Old Testament, and the principle of an absolutist rule. The Templars aimed at pulling those pillars down as soon as time and their growing possibilities for action were right. So, the elimination of the Jewish-Christian church and the establishment instead of an early Christian denomination with the exclusion of all Old Testament components, resulting from this a revolutionary change of the financial and economic system and a ban on interest, the abolition of the absolutist monarchies and the establishment of an aristocratic-republican order. This of course shows that the ruling powers had to seek to destroy the Templars.

After the fall of Jerusalem, which meant the final victory of the Muslims, the Knights of the Order of St. John fled the Holy Land and in the following years lived on Mediterranean islands whose names they used in their titles. So they were first called the “KNIGHTS OF RHODES”, then the “KNIGHTS OF MALTA”. They became an amazing military and naval force in the Mediterranean until they were defeated by Napoleon in 1789. In 1834 their headquarters had been transferred to Rome, and today they are known as the “SOVEREIGN AND MILITARY ORDER OF MALTA” (SMOM) (the Maltese Cross). Members are, among others, the deceased William Casey (Ex-Chief of the CIA 1981-87), Alexander Haig (former U.S. Secretary of State), Lee Iacocca (Chairman of Chrysler Corp.), James Buckley (Radio Free Europe), John McCone (CIA-Chief under Kennedy), Alexandre de Marenches (Head of the French Secret Service) and Valerie Giscard d’Estaing (former president of France).

Because they failed to save the Holy Land, the Knights Templar fell on difficult times. Therefore in 1307 they were persecuted by the Vatican at the instigation of Philippe IV (“Le Bel”, The Fair). They were accused of Satanic and other practices, and of course King Philippe had always envied them their power and privileges. So the Knights Templar fled France to seek refuge in safer lands like Portugal, England and Scotland where the Vatican’s might was diminished. There some of them joined the already existing Masonic lodges and worked under new identities for the Protestant Reformation to revenge their persecution by the Catholic Church.

Another group of Templars was re-established in Portugal. There they changed their name to “Knights of Christ” and later they were rehabilitated by Pope Clement V. They again gained substantial power.

On March 18, 1314, Philippe IV had the Grand Master JACQUES DE MOLAY burnt at the stake in front of Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris.

The FRANCISCANS and the DOMINICANS were two further institutions at the time of the Crusades. The FRANCISCANS adopted the robe with the cord and the tonsure from the Egyptian brotherhood at El Amarna and were quite humane. The DOMINICANS, however, were the tools of probably the most cruel institution ever created by man: The Catholic Inquisition.

In 14th century Germany, the highest initiates of the “BROTHERHOOD OF THE SNAKE”, together with its body of knowledge, appeared for the first time under the Latin name of “ILLUMINATI” (the biblical term for snake, “nahash” derives from the root NASH which means “decipher, discover”; the Latin term “illuminare” means “to illumine, to recognize, to know”). One of the main branches of the Illuminati in Germany was the mystical Rosicrucians who were introduced at the beginning of the 9th century by Charlemagne. The first official lodge was founded in Worms in 1100 AD. The Rosicrucians had the nerve to pretend to have knowledge of the (extraterrestrial) origin of humanity and of the Egyptian esoteric doctrine. They were commended for their work with mystical symbols and their alchemy. The connection between Rosicrucians and the Illuminati was very close, so that rising in the secret initiation degrees often led to being admitted by the Illuminati.

The reason that ROSICRUCIANS are very difficult to trace is that every large branch of the brotherhood worked openly for 108 years after its foundation, only to continue the next 108 years in secret. These changing phases created the impression that the order had disappeared in the meantime and so made the brothers’ work easier.

Some authors give 1614 as the year the Rosicrucians order was established because then a document was published in Hesse announcing their existence and calling for members to sign up. At this time another phase of public work had started. The document called for people to give up false teachers like the Pope, Aristotle and Galen (a popular physician of antiquity); it told the story of the fictitious “Christian Rosenkreutz”—to symbolize their founding. Today the latter is often falsely given as the true founder. The system with the 108-year cycle had been a real success!

The ROSICRUCIANS today are represented by several branches who have developed into one of the most positive orders and aim to use their knowledge for the spiritual and mental deliverance of the individual (e.g., the AMORC, Antiquus Mysticus Order Rosae Crusis = Ancient Mystical Order of the Rosy Cross).

The Illuminati and the Rosicrucians were the driving force behind the religious drive during the years of pestilence. They were joined by the “FRIENDS OF GOD” who had a strong apocalyptic teaching and demanded absolute obedience to their rulers. The whole movement was later passed on to the “ORDER OF ST. JOHN” whom Albert MacKey in his book “Encyclopaedia of Freemasonry” calls a “Freemason organization with a secret mission”.

MARTIN LUTHER also had close links to both the Illuminati and the Rosicrucians, which insiders could recognize by his seal (a rose and a cross with his initials, like the seal of the Rosicrucians). At this time the Catholic Church was led by Pope Leo X, the son of LORENZO DI MEDICI. The latter was the head of a rich international bankers’ family in Florence. One generation before him Pope John XXII had given the Medici family the task of collecting taxes and tithes for the Church. This helped the Medici to become one of the richest and most influential banking houses in Europe.

LUTHER’s rebellion against the Catholic Church was justified because the latter had become a business institution rather than a place of faith. One of the leading personalities of the reformation was PHILIP OF HESSE, called The Magnanimous, who founded the first Protestant University at Marburg and organized a political alliance against the Holy Roman Emperor Charles V.

After LUTHER’s death his confessional community was supported by SIR FRANCIS BACON, the highest Rosicrucian in England.

Under KING JAMES I Bacon coordinated the project of writing an authorized Protestant English Bible. This version was first published in 1611 and became as the “King James Bible” the most widely used bible in the English-speaking world. [H: Please read that again—1611 and hardly 2000 years ago.]

The Counter-Reformation was led by a new brotherhood, the Society of Jesus, better known as the JESUITS. These were formed in 1534 by Ignatius Loyola and they were a militant Catholic secret society with secret rituals, symbolism and initiation degrees (the oath for the 2nd degree demanded the death of all Freemasons and Protestants). The JESUITS were sent to England to fight against the Protestant heretics. They very busily searched for heretics to punish, which meant that the Freemasons really had to guard their secrets else they stood to lose their heads.

The FREEMASONS worked in total secrecy in England, Scotland and Ireland and promoted the observance of human rights and of Protestantism. The signing of the MAGNA CARTA was attended by the Grand Masters of the Freemasons and of the Knights Templar, and the different lodges were also responsible for the Protestant movements in England and in Germany.

In 1717 the London Masonic Lodge began to work in public for they thought England to be safe enough. This time is given in many history books as the start of Freemasonry. That is officially correct, but their secret work started thousands of years before, yet, as I mentioned before, the secrecy would have been all but pointless if today everybody would know when and where the Freemasons had been up to what.

The public work by the London Lodge caused great consternation among the other Masonic lodges who accused the Londoners of treason. When this simmered down, the Freemasons began to spread all over Europe and the New World. Later they emerged in the New World with the Declaration of Independence and with the "Boston Tea Party" which was organized by the BOSTON MASONIC LODGE.

John Locke, for instance, used the Masonic tenants when he wrote the constitution of the offered colony of South Carolina, which later became a Masonic bastion. The writings of Sir Francis Bacon also reflect the philosophies of the Freemasons.

The Declaration of Independence was written and signed almost exclusively by Freemasons. GEORGE WASHINGTON and most of his generals were FREEMASONS. It is a fact that without the work of the Freemasons the United States of America would not exist today.

Sorry, Dharma, I realize we have been at this since early morning and it is now late evening, however, we have many miles to go before we sleep—as the saying goes. History must be preserved and the revisions according to the Zionists will not cut the TRUTH of it. We have to keep at our other tasks as well, so please bear with us, chelas.

(PART 3)

THE ELDERS OF ZION

Another secret organization of immense influence sought to control England. The rich Jewish rabbis, the religious and political leaders of the crushed Jewish people, united their power in a group that became known as "THE ELDERS OF ZION". (The Zionists see themselves as the "messianic" elite of Judaism and expect all Jews of the world to show solidarity with their aims. Manfred Adler: The Sons of Darkness Part 2.)

From 1640 to 1689 the "ELDERS OF ZION" in the Netherlands planned the "English Revolution" (the deposition of the Stuarts from the British throne), and loaned money to the many splinter parties. Years before they had used their influence to have WILLIAM I. THE SILENT, a German prince of the House of Nassau, lead the Dutch army and later to make him WILLIAM PRINCE OF ORANGE.

They arranged a meeting between him and Mary, the eldest daughter of the DUKE OF YORK and sister of Charles II. of England, and with the latter's brother and successor James II. WILLIAM and MARY were married in 1677 and had a son, William III., who later married Mary II., the daughter of James II. Now the Dutch and British royal houses were related. In 1688 they forced the Stuarts, with the aid of the Whigs, a party of influential English and Scot personalities, from the throne, and in 1689 WILLIAM III. OF ORANGE was named KING OF ENGLAND.

William III., who is purported to have been Freemason, founded in the same year the LOYAL ORANGE ORDER which is anti-Catholic and aimed at firmly establishing Protestantism in England. The order still exists today and has around 100,000 members in Ireland where it is most strongly represented and is fanning the flames of the religious war.

King William III. soon got England involved in costly wars against Catholic France which got England deep in debt. Here was William's chance to return the favour to the ELDERS OF ZION. With the aid of the agent WILLIAM PATERSON he persuaded the Treasury to borrow 1.25 million Pounds Sterling from the Jewish bankers who had helped him to the throne.

Since the state's debts had risen dramatically, the government had no choice but to accept.

The lending conditions were as follows:

1. The names of the lenders are to remain secret, and they are granted the right to establish a "Bank of England" (CENTRAL BANK).
2. The directors of the said bank are permitted to set the gold standard for paper money.
3. They are permitted to lend 10 pounds in paper money for every pound of gold deposited.
4. They are permitted to consolidate the national debt and to raise the sum from the people by direct taxes.

Thus the first PRIVATE CENTRAL BANK, the "Bank of England", was established.

This kind of banking business brought a 50% profit on an investment by the bank of 5%. The English people had to pay for it. The lenders were not at all interested to have the sums they had loaned repaid for the indebtedness gave them political influence.

England's national debt rose from 1,250,000 pounds in 1694 to 16,000,000 pounds in 1698.

After William III. the HOUSE OF HANOVER succeeded to the British throne and they are still there today, for the WINDSORS descend in a direct line from the House of Hanover. (The Hanoverians provided all the monarchs up to 1901, when Edward VII married the Danish princess Alexandra and the name got changed to "Saxe-Coburg-Gotha", the name of Edward's German father. On July 17, 1917 this name was changed to WINDSOR, as it still is today.) It is understandable that many English people were "not amused" about the German rule, and several organizations tried to bring the STUARTS back to the throne. Because of this threat the Hanoverians did no longer allow a permanent army in England and hired the necessary troops from their own principality and from German friends. Naturally these troops were paid by the British treasury, which benefited the Jewish central bankers. Most mercenaries came from PRINCE WILLIAM IX. OF HESSE-HANAU who also was a friend of the Hanoverians.

[QUOTING:]

CHAPTER 3

MASONRY EQUALS FREEDOM

In 1567 the English Freemasons split into two lodges, the "York" and the "London". The most important time in the history of Freemasons though was the beginning of the 17th Century, when the character of a guild of stonemasons changed to that of a mystical and occult one. The lodges were also opened for "non-masons", which led to the fact that around 1700 almost 70% of all Masons came from other professions.

On June 24, 1717, representatives of the four British lodges met in London and founded the English Grand Lodge, also called the "Mother Grand Lodge of the World".

The new initiation system had three degrees: Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft and Master Mason, the so-called "Blue Degrees".

The Grand Lodge definitely wanted for the Hanoverians to remain on the British throne and thus "gave" the first two degrees to Frederick, Prince of Wales, in 1737. Some of the later generations of Hanoverians even became Grand Masters (Augustus Frederick, King George IV., King Edward VII., and King George VI.)

Yet they also had enemies. In 1688, after the overthrow of King James II., the Stuarts' supporters started several groups, among them the militant JACOBITES, attempting to bring the Stuarts back to the throne.

A new branch of Freemasonry, the "Scottish Templar Lodge" was founded by Andrew Michael Ramsay in 1725 to support James III., and it took in former Knights Templar. This lodge had higher degrees than the Mother Grand Lodge in London, and by this it was attempted to draw members from there.

1736 saw the founding of the "Grand Lodge of Scotland" which also limited the guild aspect to a minimum and fostered mysticism. In the Scottish lodges Templar Freemasonry was widely adhered to and later Templar degrees were given.

As we see, there were now two systems of Freemasonry that were inimical, the Hanoverians in the MOTHER GRAND LODGE in London and the Stuarts in the SCOTTISH TEMPLAR LODGE. Who could be the third party with an interest in this conflict?

Not the ILLUMINATI, mayhap?

CHAPTER 4

THE ROTHSCHILD FAMILY

"Give me the control over a nation's currency and I don't care who makes its laws!"

Mayer Amschel Rothschild (1743-1812)

The secret centre of international banking, the House of ROTHSCHILD, is shrouded in mystery.

Mayer Amschel Bauer, a Khazar or NON-HEBREW JEW (will be explained in the next chapter), was born in Frankfurt, Germany in 1743. He was the son of Moses Amschel Bauer, an itinerant moneylender and goldsmith from eastern Europe. After working briefly for the Oppenheimer bank in Hanover, Mayer opened a shop or counting house of his own on Judenstrasse (Jews Street) in Frankfurt. Over the doors he placed a red shield, the emblem of the revolutionary-minded Khazar Jews of eastern Europe. Shortly after Mayer Amschel Bauer changed his name to Rothschild (in German: rotes Schild = red shield). His business became known as the House of Rothschild.

Mayer married sixteen year old Gutele Schnaper and fathered five sons and five daughters. The sons' names were Amschel, Salomon, Nathan, Kalman (Charles) and Jakob (James). His rise to fame accelerated when he was favoured by PRINCE WILLIAM IX. OF HESSE-HANAU in whose company he attended Freemasons' meetings in Germany. Prince William, a friend of the Hanoverians, took in large sums for the Hesse mercenary armies he had loaned to the English (Hanoverian) king. These were the same troops who later fought the army of George Washington at Valley Forge. Rothschild became William's personal banker.

When William had to flee to Denmark because of political unrest, he left the mercenaries' pay—600,000 pounds—in Rothschild's bank for safe-keeping. NATHAN ROTHSCHILD (Mayer Amschel's eldest son) took this sum with him to London in order to establish another bank there. The gold that was used as security came from the "East India Company". Nathan made four-fold profit from lending notes to the DUKE OF WELLINGTON who thus financed his military operations. The profits were further raised by the later illegal sale of the gold meant to serve as security.

This was the origin of the gigantic wealth of the Rothschild family. Then they started international banking operations by having each son opening a bank in different countries, Amschel in Berlin, Salomon in Vienna, Jakob in Paris and Kalman in Naples.

MAYER AMSCHEL ROTHSCHILD left a will showing how the family fortune should be handled in the future. The men would manage the assets and the eldest would have the deciding vote in differences and in important decisions. All accounts were to be kept absolutely secret, especially from the government.

It is alleged that in 1773 MAYER AMSCHEL ROTHSCHILD held a secret meeting in the house in the Judenstrasse (Jews Street) in Frankfurt with twelve influential and rich Jewish financial backers (THE ELDERS OF ZION) to forge a plan how to control the complete fortune of the world.

According to Herbert G. Dorsey, they spoke about the fact that the BANK OF ENGLAND already made a substantial control of English wealth possible, but that complete control was necessary as the foundation for the control of the fortune of the world. This was then sketched and noted down.

The evidence held by Dorsey and William Guy Carr (Pawns in the Game) shows this to be the plan that later became known as THE PROTOCOLS OF THE ELDERS OF ZION. The origin of the protocols actually lies centuries back, but apparently they were reworked by ROTHSCHILD and thus given their importance. These protocols were kept secret until 1901, when they fell into the hands of the Russian Professor S. Nilus. He published them under the title The Jewish Peril. In 1921 Victor Marsden translated them into English under THE PROTOCOLS OF THE LEARNED ELDERS OF ZION.

These 24 protocols show today's actual situation of the world.

[END OF QUOTING CHAPTER 4, PART 3]

I suggest we leave this for now, for the next "Chapter" is some 56 pages long and will need breaking into segments. It is: PROTOCOLS OF THE MEETINGS OF THE LEARNED ELDERS OF ZION.

Realizing that denial is the greater part of a man's learning pattern, I remind you that denying truth puts you at a great disadvantage in your own affairs. Ours is to present truth and back it up with historical confirmation within a time-span you can readily check out for self—even if you have difficulty doing the research (which here has been done FOR you).

We will have about 50-plus pages of references for your own backup information but I don't wish to make that a burden for this typist so will present it separately following the series.

I doubt at this time you understand the incredible gift this is as offered for your own confirmation of over a decade of "just" our writings. I would suggest, however, that unless you readers become more discerning as to who might be WHO and who might be just pulling the blinds down a bit more securely, you will become truly the slave to the ignorance.

Our intent from the inception of our "project" and, yes, it is called Project Phoenix, was to reach this day. However, it needed to be presented in such a way as to offer other information which could give you insight along with other information inclusive of "survival" in a world in ongoing happening in sequence unfoldment.

What has Spectrum as a publication done to you who began with our first introduction? Put you squarely back to sleep! If all you wish is to be scared through possibilities of some "Shape Shifters", I suggest you miss the real culprits who have SHIFTED YOUR ENTIRE EXISTENCE INTO THEIR ENTRAPMENT OF YOU THE SLAVES.

Will KNOWING give possibility of change? Yes, but not "just reading" without recognition or for a sensational thrill of some kind.

You are seeing the closedown of your very economies as you are put into a "helpless" category for the close-down, and better put, the LOCKDOWN is at hand. You are going to have to begin to counter those PROTOCOLS which will be laid forth AGAIN and start reversing them in your own interests. Yes, you CAN do it—but you do have to know what it is you are doing. This is why just "knowing truth" is not enough—you have to DO SOMETHING. Ignorance causes you to hurt your own chances.

This has not been some "fun and games" for our crew, nor has it been a "safe journey" without efforts to actually KILL our people just for printing this information. Many have fallen to the diversion and into the pit of misinformation or, at the least, total DISTRACTION while claiming to be the LIGHTED TEACHERS for the MASTERS.

Those are your prerogatives to turn away from that which you PROCLAIMED you wished to share. Some have even made it possible to continue the bashing by the thieves and actual liars. So be it, for you have lost a lot of TIME in the process of misdirection. Some of you have actually made the diversion possible by the miscreants and continue to refuse to see and hear the truth of it.

We have not offered the COMPLETE text of the Protocols until NOW. May I please share with you the first paragraph of the third Protocol:

"Today I may tell you that our goal is now only a few steps off. There remains a small space to cross and the whole long path we have trodden is ready now to close its cycle of the Symbolic Snake, by which we symbolise our people. When this ring closes, all the States of Europe will be locked in its coil as in a powerful vice."

I remind you that all other nations are in the SAME VICE and these "non-Hebrew" people who named themselves "Jews" first called themselves THE SERPENT PEOPLE.

Should we just tell you how to grow a garden or do you want to know how to SAVE YOUR ASSETS OF ALL KINDS? The choice is always up to YOU. I am going to repeat something I have already answered because the SPECTRUM so-called "receivers" continue to use our own identifications but refuse to identify themselves. NO, I, HATONN NOR MY COMPATRIOTS WRITE FOR THAT PAPER AND/OR DR. YOUNG, RICK MARTIN OR LATONA OR ANY OF THEIR SPECIAL COLLEAGUES NOR ANY OF THE "RAYS" AS IN THEIR BOOKS OF "WISDOM". WHEN "YOU" ARE BLED DRY, THEY WILL MOVE ON TO OTHER DESTRUCTIVE EGO GAMES. KNOW IT. Where will YOU be when the lights go out—all over the world? Never mind simple "slavery", for you have already passed that bit of freedom in FACT.

We shall achieve our goal, for we have never deviated nary a hair-width from the task. The only question is whether or not YOU will share as you once claimed you wanted. I hope you will give thought to the possibilities as we again, but more in-depth, present these writings.

To our regular teams—THANK YOU.

Blessed are those who are given to see and hear the truth of it all. I suggest you pay close attention to the first of these particular series of writings when there is reference to "Galactic Federation" and of that, there will be more offered.

Gyeorgos Ceres Hatonn (By the way, Hatonn is pronounced "Aton"; please look it up!)

SATAN'S DRUMMERS

THE SECRET BEAT OF EVIL—“SATAN IS ALIVE AND WELL”

BY SANANDA

PHOENIX JOURNAL #9 (1989)

CHAPTER 11

REC. #1 SANANDA

SUN., NOV. 5, 1989 7:00 A.M. YEAR 3, DAY 081

Thank you, Dharma, for joining me this wondrous morning. We will feel our way, chela, for have I not told you that often it will be “just you and me”? There is little we can do in our physical world of freewill choices—and you, too, must recognize of that truth. Bother not with what ones send unto you which cuts and tears at thy dignity and integrity. Allow me to share, that you come into comfort and then we might move onward. This is as much for your co-workers as for yourself. I will point out a few facts that they, too, can check in historical order of manifestation.

I pain that I am being barred from mine own vessels but so be it, for the physical consciousness is most fragile, indeed. However, just as others have needs of the fragile consciousness, ye also have of those needs of support when, as a new student, you are denounced and profaned.

You understand not why ones would be casting of stones at you and denouncing you publicly for printing of material which we have given unto you to put to paper. Specifically, that of the Seven Cohans. Dear one, it is more the impact of the material of Sanat Kumara and Lord Michael which has split the relationship. I would have you understand that there is a perception that information of world changes as given forth to you in Sipapu Odyssey some four-plus years ago is that which is testing you now. Ones who claim secret holding of prophecies and singular holding of an energy, need look carefully at that which is projected. This is why we have now had you publish Sipapu Odyssey in book format that the correlation can be seen and recognized and that you have your unquestionable confirmation that what you are writing is as directed. For those in the close proximity must realize that there was no relationship whatsoever between ASSK or any attached thereto at the writing of Sipapu. Dharma was unexposed neither to any of their works or any works of any channel or recognized guide—and yet, portions will be found to be exacting duplicates of projections of several other ones. This was intended against this very day when Dharma would need test her own truth and mine truth. So be it, chela, bring your heart to rest that we can do of our work.

Ones must realize that the time is at hand when the “rush” is mandatory—for “time” runs out and the Word has been promised and shall go forth. While the consciousness sleeps and responds to human vocabulary in one place, we must press in another placement that our work is not stopped. If it should occur in this place, we would of necessity move to another—rest easy, child, for we do have others who would now receive of us. You will find that the word is coming through in meshed truth from many ones now—it is that you have openly shared all of your work that you have become such a bitter focus. It was necessary, please be in understanding. My shoulders are very broad and yours are growing—love and understanding come most easily.

You are in wonderment as to how you have brought such blame upon thy head when you have no such knowledge of that which Sister has received and that which is called Secret of the Andes is the projection of another entity—so be it, chela, that is for others to sort who bear hard feelings amongst themselves—it is not of your concern. If the rift has come, it has come in honor that my work can continue rapidly and in proper sequence. You have been required to work in blindness and ignorance of these matters that you will NOT be clouded by these earthly matters—precious, there is no darkness in this place and you must remember, controversy can only take the word to more numbers of persons. If truth be truth, it must not be held in secret, for man is in his time of transition. Forty years or forty seconds makes no difference whatsoever.

Do you not think we have been preparing you and yours for this attack for weeks past? Come now, dear ones, re-read the messages. BEWARE MOST CLOSELY IF IMMEDIATE CHANGES SUDDENLY COME INTO YOUR ATTENTION—MOST WARY, INDEED. IF YOU ATTEND WELL THAT WHICH IS GIVEN UNTO YOU, YOU SHALL ALWAYS HAVE THAT INFORMATION WHICH CAN BE SORTED AND RECOGNIZED. BLESSINGS UPON YOU ONES OF MINE FLOCK AND DO NOT WORK IN DESPAIR, FOR I ABIDE WITH YOU. ONES CAUGHT IN THIS CONFLICT MUST MAKE THEIR OWN CHOICES. PLEASE NOTE, HOWEVER, THAT YOU ARE NOT ALONE, CHELA, IN THE ATTACKING AND MISUNDERSTANDING. OTHERS WHO HAVE BEEN A VOICE PROJECTION FOR MYSELF HAVE BEEN ALLOWED TO WRITE OF THE COSMIC CHRIST RATHER THAN CAUSE RIPPLES IN THE POND. SO BE IT AND SELAH.

Let us move on with our work, for the subject at hand is most distasteful and filled with disgust. However, if man knows not what is in his path, even be it horrendous, he cannot recognize of the danger lurking therein. Evil Satanism is all but consuming your peoples and lands—and man does not even know the key phrases or symbols to recognize of it within his own household.

Since all symbols shall be in opposition to those of the light, except when in exact duplication, you must press the information forward. I look at you ones of mine own workers and find such ignorance of these matters that surely you must understand the need for this information given in this manner.

ONE MORE RITUAL BEFORE MOVING ON

I will herein describe another ritual which has been so badly used that it pains me to speak of it. It is given in such beauty by ones of the Earth in love and dedication but evil grabs and corrupts the most beautiful of peoples and things.

THE SELF-BLESSING

This is referred to as “Pagan” Self-Blessing; but that brings down the narrow of mind who denounce “Pagan” as being against God and Christ. Often the Pagan is the only one who is for God and the Christ in reality of truth.

I do not suggest rituals of any manner; however, you must know what to look for when your children play games and when it is projected in front of your eyes. The practice will be distorted if evil in nature and you must recognize of the sign. Often symbols will be presented in opposite manner—the upside down pentagram, the reversal (and currently the correct symbol of life and good luck) of the “swastika” will be utilized. These have both been so corrupted that you must pay most careful attention any time they are brought to your attention.

The Self-Blessing is usually the first and most beautiful to be utilized with the searcher of truth, for it is the most easily used as a lead-in to evil rituals.

It is a most beautiful ceremony that is likely to evoke deep feelings of inner harmony and peace within any person.

The “Mother” invoked in the Self-Blessing Ritual is the Female Principle of the universe manifested as (traditionally) the Moon Goddess. This deity should be seen as the female aspect of God the Absolute, according to the formal instructions. They will tell you that because God the Father has been overemphasized in the past two thousand years it is important now to honor the Mother Goddess, to reestablish balance and harmony between the two aspects of the godhead. This cosmic duality, observed by most schools of magic, is also exemplified in the major ceremony of witchcraft known as the Opening of the Circle.

The Self-Blessing (Pagan) is one of a group of rituals conceived by a society of neopagans known as the Pagan Way. The aim of the Pagan Way is to spread the roots and teachings of paganism in modern society, as they believe that the way of the pagan can save the world. This is why it is so very dangerous—for it will be the truth of the ANCIENTS which will return great balance unto the Earth. But as with any truth which is distorted, it is intended to now mislead you into evil directions. This group practices “white magic” and is quite actively opposed to “black magic” (the novice simply cannot know which is which). The philosophy is simple and easy to understand and the rituals excel in clarity and poetic beauty.

The above is as in your indoctrinated churches; you begin as one thing and end up another—and the novice is unable to discern where one truth leaves off and the lie begins.

RITUAL OF SELF-BLESSING

Let me just quote at this point so that this can be verified in your “witches instruction books”.

“This ritual should be performed during the new Moon, but it is not limited to that phase. Need, not season, determines the performance. There is real power in the Self-Blessing: It should not be used other than in time of need and should not be done promiscuously.

“The purpose of the ritual is to bring the individual into closer contact with the Godhead. It can also be used as a minor dedication, when a person who desires dedication has no one who can dedicate him. This self-blessing ritual may also be used as a minor exorcism, to banish any evil influences which may have formed around the person. It may be performed by any person upon himself, and at his desire.

“Perform the ritual in a quiet place, free from distractions, and nude.” (Wouldn’t that alone tend to be a distraction since your society does not appreciate nudity and considers it a most erotic stance?) “You will need the following:

1. Salt, about one-quarter teaspoon.
2. Wine, about an ounce.
3. Water, about one-half ounce.
4. Candle, votive or other.

“The result of the ritual is a feeling of peace and calm. It is desirable that the participant bask in the afterglow so that he may meditate and understand that he has called the attention of the Godhead to himself, asking to grow closer to the Godhead in both goals and in wisdom.

“When you are ready to begin, sprinkle the salt on the floor and stand on it, lighting the candle. Let the warmth of the candle be absorbed into the body. Mix the water into the wine, meditating upon your reasons for performing the self-blessing.

“Read the following aloud:

BLESS ME, MOTHER, FOR I AM THY CHILD.

Dip the fingers of the right hand into the mixed water and wine and anoint the eyes,

BLESSED BE MY EYES, THAT I MAY SEE THY PATH.

Anoint the nose,

BLESSED BE MY NOSE, THAT I MAY BREATHE THY ESSENCE.

Anoint the mouth,

BLESSED BE MY MOUTH, THAT I MAY SPEAK OF THEE.

Anoint the breast,

BLESSED BE MY BREAST, THAT I MAY BE FAITHFUL IN THY WORK.

Anoint the loins,

BLESSED BE MY LOINS, WHICH BRING FORTH THE LIFE OF MAN AS THOU HAST BROUGHT FORTH ALL CREATION.

Anoint the feet,

BLESSED BE MY FEET, THAT I MAY WALK IN THY WAYS.

Remain quiet... and meditate for a while.

“More involved than the Self-Blessing—and more powerful in the sense of gathering energies for material manifestations—is the witches’ ritual of Opening the Circle....”

I have already described these other rituals in detail previously, so I will not continue on the matter.

WHERE RITUALS GO ASTRAY

It is most subtle, indeed, how the rituals are turned from truth and beauty and into that which is tacky and ugly. When you encounter deviations from the ancient traditional aspects of a given ceremony, be most cautious, indeed. I shall herein compare the above with a most wondrously respected Native Indian ceremony of the “sweat lodge”.

The “sweat lodge” to an Indian is most sacred, indeed. A man, or men (humans of same gender), goes within a specially prepared enclosure (varying with the tribe), creates heat of intense degree and spends a given amount of time in deep meditation and cleansing. I am not here to describe rituals as such, I only wish to point out that evil enters—usually simply because of ignorance on the part of a participant who believed the ritual most beautiful—pretty soon the unprincipled ones enter the picture and first thing you know, you have “sweat-ins”, anybody—men, women and children all come, strip naked, pay for the experience in a plastic hut and the beautiful ritual is now profanely dirty. Further, not only is it co-educational but you even get a discount; two for only one-and-a-half the cost for one alone. Do you not see how very subtle discrediting can be? Usually the one who brings the offering of the experience is doing so in integrity, he asks input “from a native Indian” and you are off on your journey of the lie. It is most sad, indeed.

Further, along these same lines, in the Indian tradition there are most sacred “oral” traditions. The thief now comes and presents a most sacred ceremony in falseness, writes it down and sells the lie—and the wondrous truth is lost to mankind, buried in misconception and the lie of evil. The term, the word, the action and the principle become distorted and soiled.

Give great honor to ones who are caught in these entrapments of pain and lies, who can remain on the truthful path, for so little of truth remains—and it is a most difficult and painful journey, indeed, for these ones of truth and honest tradition. IN THE ENDING THE TRUTH SHALL COME FORTH BUT IT IS MOST DEVASTATING TO THE INDIVIDUAL OF TRUTH IN THE JOURNEY TO THAT END. GRANDFATHER HEARS AND UNDERSTANDS AND PLEADS THAT YOU ALLOW THE UNFOLDING OF THESE MESSAGES WHICH SEEM CONTRADICTORY UNTO SOME OF YOU OF THE LIGHT. MISPERCEPTIONS CAN COME FROM THESE DOCUMENTS IF YOU DO NOT PAY ATTENTION. FURTHER, SOME WILL CLOSE OUT THEIR OWN STUDENTS IN MISUNDERSTANDING. I URGE ONES WHO FIT THIS DESCRIPTION TO TAKE CAREFUL ATTENTION. WE MUST REACH THE MASSES OF HUMANITY—AND THE TRUTH MUST RISE ABOVE PERSONAL DEFINITIONS. MAN AS A WHOLE MUST COME AGAIN INTO ACCESS TO TRUTH AND IT MUST BE BROUGHT BY ONES IN WILLINGNESS TO DARE TO SO DO. BE AT PEACE WITH YOUR BROTHER THAT YOU DO NOT FIND YOURSELVES GUILTY OF “PRE-JUDGING”. WE ARE YET ONLY IN THE UPSTART. SO BE IT—AND I PLEAD THAT YOU ONES RECEIVING, RECEIVE MY MESSAGE IN TRUE INTENT AND TRUTH.

HOW DID YOU GET TO “HERE”

The universality of “magical” practices and beliefs form part of man’s cultural and spiritual heritage. The child will grow according to its lessons. This is why the reminder: “A father’s sins shall be handed down upon the sons, etc.” If the teachings are deviant from truth then the son shall know no better. For many centuries magic has been relegated by man to the lesser intellects. This is because man did not, and yet “does not”, recognize and understand the workings of his own subconscious mind. Or, he quite frankly fears the latent powers he can sometimes discern in his mental makeup. The fear gives way to the curiosity and interest in what occurs within self and a search gets underway to find that which it might be.

Man cannot seem to accept the God Source or power within self, so he looks for that which is “without” in magic and hocus-pocus, hoping to find the “secret”.

For you who adore “The Beatles”, I would like herein to point out that in your musical sectors they were the onset of your unrest and lost directions. The music began to have a deafening noise level, mesmerizing cadence and rhythm and involvement with magic as well as the addition of mind-altering substances becoming an enhancement to the overall.

The “heavy metal” groups have only become extreme in the direction of total evil and now be aware how easily the transition from one to the other could occur—how subtle the entrapment.

The political elements have always been fascinated with magic and fortune-telling—but it was kept quiet for fear of being noticed by a public who would be voting. However, you will now note that even the President adhered to fortune-tellers and astrologers. Before every election there is a barrage of ones “guessing” through astrology, who will win, etc. This is all a harmless game until suddenly you find you are being governed by the whims of possibly “infected” seers.

Something has happened, however; some ones have awakened to see the destruction lying all about the landscape—the devastation through greed and evil, of Mother Nature. Thus, you see a deepening interest in ecology and in the preservation of the natural things. Plants and animals are suddenly subjects of deep concern, and the preservation of endangered species is urged by both scholars and naturalists. Books are even being written on the newly discovered sensitivity of plants—and studies are being conducted on the biorhythms of Nature.

The increased awareness of the collective mind of the race and the growing concern with things magical can be seen as an unconscious attempt of man to unite and identify with the powers of Nature and also marks the beginnings of a slow but definite return to the magical traditions of the ancients. Therefore, you must then realize that the term “magic” is distorted and mutilated just as you mutilated many of most beautiful words such as “Love” and “Christ”. You would label an Indian a “pagan” who is anti-Christian. Oh, you of little understanding, they know God for who He is and the Christness as the living Sacred Circle of Infinity—the God balance and harmony with The Creation. IF ONLY MAN WOULD UNDERSTAND HE IS PERFECTION AND NEEDS NO OTHER—HE IS ALREADY PERFECTION. IT IS PAINFUL THAT MAN DOES NOT UNDERSTAND AND CANNOT FIND ACCEPTANCE AND BALANCE WITHIN SELF. I shall herein give you another quoted portion:

INITIATION AND ADEPTHOOD

“A young woman stands naked and blindfolded in the middle of a darkened room. Her wrists are bound behind her back with a piece of red string that is also looped around her neck. One of her ankles is bound with a piece of white string that seems to wait dumbly to be secured around the other ankle as well.

“As the girl stands vulnerable and helpless in the face of the unknown, she feels the cold tip of a steel blade press itself insinuatingly between her breasts. A disembodied male voice breaks the total silence of the room.

“‘O thou who standest on the threshold between the pleasant world of men and the terrible domain of the dread lords of the outer spaces, has thou the courage to make the assay?’

“There is a short hesitation before the girl answers softly, ‘I have’. The male voice continues, ‘For I say verily, it were better to rush on my blade and perish, than to make the attempt with fear in thy heart... Say after me: I have two perfect words—Perfect Love and Perfect Trust.’

“‘I have two perfect words—Perfect Love and Perfect Trust’, the girl repeats tremulously, and feels with relief the tip of the blade withdraw from her breast.” ... and, another:

“A Black adolescent stands facing the east, his expressionless eyes riveted stoically on the shimmering horizon. The blistering rays of the Sun scorch the yellow African grass upon which the boy stands. Gnarled, knotted fingers work slowly and deliberately, cutting strip after strip of flesh off the boy’s bloodied penis with a large, dull-bladed knife. The boy’s face is bloodied also and some sand is now rubbed on the bleeding vertical gashes that disfigure his cheeks. The boy shifts his weight from one foot to the other. His eyes become clouded and he blinks once and sets his mouth grimly. Not a sound escapes from his lips.” ... and:

“An older woman stands alone facing a homemade altar created from an old bridge table. Upon it she has placed two candles still unlit. There is a chair in front of the altar, and a fairly large mirror is suspended on the wall immediately above the altar’s center.

“With cold but steady fingers the woman strikes a match and lights the candle on her left side. She wets her lips nervously before pronouncing the words she has so carefully memorized for weeks.

“‘Sacred Light, symbol of the Greater Light of Divine Wisdom, cast thy rays in the midst of darkness and illuminate my path....’

“She now lights the candle on the right side, and continues. ‘Unto Light is added Light, that the cross beams may soften the lines and the shadows and symbolize the easing of pain and sorrow as did the coming of the Greater Light of Divine Wisdom to man.’

“The woman sits down on the chair that faces the altar and stares into the mirror. The light of the candles in the somber room plays tricks with her vision and she imagines there are living shadows swirling darkly within the glass. She swallows audibly and closes here eyes momentarily. Her hands lock automatically on her lap and she opens her eyes again. There is a look of quiet determination on her face as she starts to speak once more.

“‘Before I cross the mental and spiritual threshold of greater understanding, I must courageously face those realities, those notions, that have for so long stood in the shadows of my mind to taunt and thwart me. I now need the strength of the Divine with me.’

“She stands up again and, leaning over the altar, draws a large cross on the glimmering surface of the mirror. When she returns to her chair her face is composed and she is no longer nervous. She has succeeded in meeting the Challenge.”

Do you believe that God or Christ—or even Evil for that matter—thought up these things? Of course not—man conjures up these things for self-testing—the challenge. At this point in the above stories it is a willing participation up to the point of being rendered “controlled” by bindings, etc., which render your control to that of another.

Evil enters when it goes beyond and the individual is bounded into the slavery unto another’s wishes. That can be gained by physical bindings or by mental restraints.

It is the “challenge” which is basically what an Initiation is about. The candidate is challenged to pass the ordeal of the Initiation if he wishes to continue in the communion of a given group—if he wishes to enter into the mysteries, and the only defense the Initiate has during the often terrifying experience of the Initiation ritual is his courage and determination. All Initiations into the mystical cults consist of either a fearful or a humiliating experience to the Initiate. The latter quality can be compared with the often degrading ordeals that some fraternities and sororities plan for their new candidates.

Fear or humiliation are necessary ingredients of the Initiation because the aspirant must prove his willingness to surrender his entire being during the Initiation process. In reality every Initiation entails a cycle of life and death in a spiritual and mythical sense. The Initiate’s “old” personality dies during the ritual of Initiation and he is born again spiritually after the ordeal. IS THIS BEGINNING TO SOUND FAMILIAR TO YOU ONES? I AM EFFORTING TO WORD THESE THINGS SO THAT YOU SEE INSTEAD OF SKIP THEM OVER.

The spiritual and mental transitions experienced by the Initiate are felt deeply within his subconscious mind. What he has, indeed, accomplished is the first of many unions with his deep subconscious being. As a result he has learned to conquer the fear of physical death and has realized the far greater importance of his eternal soul over his material body—OR, HE IS TERRIFIED INTO IRRATIONAL BEHAVIOR. The increased mental and spiritual awareness that is the result of a magical Initiation also brings with it the added bounty of very real magical powers. These powers were latent in the Initiate but necessitated the challenge of the Initiation to develop them and bring them to the surface of his conscious mind.

The first example used above, is an example of a most traditional witchcraft ceremony that initiates a young witch into the mysteries called, I believe your term is, Wicca. The second is the African rite of puberty in preparation for courage and endurance in an effort to ready him as a man and warrior. The last ritual is part of the solitary Initiation of one of the most famous of the magical Orders, whose oath of secrecy forbids the revelation of their name—now you really get into the crux of erroneous belief. It matters not that it is hidden as such—but if it is pure and in truth, why would it be secret? In other words, why do you ones set up your “secret mystery schools”? Is it a truth you do not wish to share with your brother or is it simply to remain exclusive and disallow your brother from having access to truth?

What all these Initiations have in common is a sense of fear, of impending disaster, and the implicit demand of courage from the Initiate. Once this demand is met, the ordeal is over and the door of the mysteries opens for the new magician.

WHAT I MUST MAKE CLEAR TO YOU ONES IN THE RECEIVING AND PARTICIPATION IN THIS WONDROUS TIME OF TRANSITION, TRUTH AND CONFRONTATION, IS THAT THERE MUST BE WIPED AWAY THESE FOOLISH STRINGS OF MYSTICISM AND EXCLUSIVITY. I WOULD NEVER SET UP NOR PARTICIPATE IN A MYSTERY SCHOOL WHICH WOULD DISALLOW ALL MINE BRETHERN ABILITY TO COME INTO TRUTH. I AM THE HUMBLE BROTHER TO ALL MINE HUMAN BEINGS. I HAVE ALWAYS COME FORTH TO ESTABLISH THAT VERY TRUTH AND ALWAYS IT IS TURNED INTO FALSENESS AND GREAT MYSTERY. NAY, I HIDE NAUGHT—NOTHING! MINE TRUTH SHALL BE PRESENTED TO AND BY ONES WHO WILL SHARE ABUNDANTLY WITH THEIR BRETHERN IN TRUTH AND OPEN BROTHERHOOD. YE NEED OF NO CANDLES NOR INCENSE—NO RITUALS NOR CEREMONIES—IF YE CHOOSE TO USE OF THEM IN TRUTH AND HONOR AS THAT WHICH THEY ARE, FINE. YOU NEED NO NEGOTIATOR, CERTAINLY NO “THING”, TO REACH UNTO ME AND RECEIVE OF ALL KNOWLEDGE AND INSIGHT. SO BE IT AND MARK IT WELL.

NAMES AND LABELS

Here is about the biggest bunch of bug-a-boo around. The acquisition of “new” labels.

Yes, we give unto ones labels to replace their public name—for protection of the personal existence and security of the person involved. It will have meaning but it means no other in actuality—it matters not who you were nor who you will be—it only matters what you do in the present with that which has been earned by self.

Of course, in the magic rituals, names are given for the similar reason. One of the first things is to choose a new name that will identify him in his new magical role. An Initiate will usually choose a name that fits his aspirations and identify him in his new magical personality. The name may be symbolic or be borrowed from one of the ancient gods.

In witchcraft magical names such as Circe and Selene are common, and so are allegorical names like Alba and Serena. Transcendental Magic, the most lofty of the magical systems, prefers Latin-inspired names like Omnia, Vicam and Perdurabo. The practice is also observed by primitive magicians. Labels also identify “orders” or clans.

It is wondrous to behold you ones going about your self-induced foolishness. The magical name is one of the secrets of the magician, and he must never reveal it to the uninitiated. It is accepted that the powers of the magician can be tapped if only his magical name is known.

You end up missing the most important lessons. You play games with those things which have meaning and the evil influence will always see to the ridiculing and debunking of anything of meaning or value. A name can be most remarkable in stirring memory of purpose and contract agreements made on a much higher plane of existence. Your silly rituals of witches are most often nonsense to confuse and abuse.

The significance of a new name during a magical Initiation is linked to the rebirth of the personality that is believed to take place after the Initiation. The blindfold and the binding of the hands and feet used in many Initiation rites symbolize the Initiate's ignorance of the mysteries and his subjection and enslavement to his impure material body. When the Initiation is over and the hands and feet are freed and the blindfold removed, the Initiate is face to face with his personal god, his deep subconscious, and is ready to start on his new path to knowledge and wisdom—and he usually is also seeing other naked people in all manner of appropriate or inappropriate activities to insure he understands what his “order” or cult is all about.

The mystical death that the magician endures during his Initiation is necessary because the new life cannot begin until the old one has been terminated. He is in a sense rebaptised in the fires of the spirit instead of the waters of the body. Like religious baptism, magical baptism entails a casting out of spirits and washing away of “sin”. Just as the human baby is born and then ritually cleansed of “original sin” (whatever that might mean), so will the magician emerge reborn from the womb of matter and be cleansed in mind as well as spirit after the Initiation—could you perhaps call it brainwashing?

The ceremony of Initiation, far from being the exclusive achievement of the magician, is a most significant and widespread feature of your society and indicates the status of individuals within it. Whether you might be a “Mason”, a Baptist, a witch, a Catholic nun or a “pagan” medicine man, makes no difference—as long as you have passed the proper Initiation and your new personality has emerged in the form of a new name and a new identity. You are then an accepted member of a peer group to whom you are bound by a similarity of beliefs and aspirations.

Dharma, do you better understand your plight and the recent attack on your work? You are not “initiated” into anything. If at all, the very recent attack on you is a result of mystical and magic initiations which ones cannot break away from in truth. Perhaps you could consider it your very initiation into truth of self—for it has caused you to question, understand and know truth within. Man, in general, is kept enslaved to his cult's Initiation. In a manner of speaking and observation, it appears you have confronted and met the challenge—but that is life, it should not be given into the mysticism nor magic—YOU NEED NOTHING BEYOND TRUTH.

It is this most simple truth that man must remember and accept—personal responsibility and oneness with Father God within. You need none of man's initiations into some cult or another—if you are attuned with God and Creation and practice within the Laws thereof—YE NEED NOTHING BEYOND.

I PLACE MY HAND UPON YOUR HEAD IN PEACE AND LOVE THAT YOU ALLOW NO FURTHER PAIN OF THE MOMENT WITHIN THY BEING. YE NEED NO BLESSINGS FROM ANY MAN, WOMAN NOR CHILD UPON YOUR PHYSICAL PASSAGE. I AM BESIDE YOU AND TOGETHER SHALL WE CONTINUE IN OUR WORK—FOR WE ARE NOT COME IN SECRET NOR “BETTER” NOR

“APART” FROM OUR MOST HUMBLE OF BROTHERS IN HUMAN FORMAT FACED WITH THE DAYS OF CONFUSION AND TRIBULATION. I BEAR A LABEL OF IDENTIFICATION JUST AS DO YOU ONES—BUT I RECOGNIZE BY ENERGY PATTERNS AND NOT OF PHYSICAL APPEARANCE—YOU ARE IN NEED OF MY GUIDANCE AND TEACHING; I AM IN TOTAL NEED OF YOUR ONES BLESSED HANDS AND FEET OF PHYSICAL NATURE. LET US NOT CLUTTER THIS TIME OF PASSAGE IN MYSTICAL MISUNDERSTANDING—AND LET US NOT BE TAKEN FROM OUR DUTY BY ATTACKS UPON OUR TRUTH BY ONES WHO ARE NOT IN TOTAL UNDERSTANDING. LONG HAVE WE EXPERIENCED AND LONG HAVE WE KNOWN TRUTH; MAN HAS SIMPLY FORGOTTEN AND HE MUST BE BROUGHT INTO HIS REMEMBERING AND AWAKENING. SO BE IT AND I PLACE MY SEAL OF TRUTH UPON THESE WORDS. MAY THEY TOUCH ALL WHO RECEIVE IN LOGIC AND REASON.

Let us bring this segment to a close. The next segment shall be separated from these forgoing and labeled: YOU MUST SEE, HEAR AND KNOW THE HORRORS NOW! It will not be a section for the weak at heart but if you do not face the dastardly truth, you are destined to perish in the repeat of history and downfall of civilizations past.

I AM SANANDA OF GOD IN LIGHT AND TOTALITY OF THAT WHICH IS.

I BID YOU GOOD AFTERNOON AND PEACE THAT SURPASSES EVEN THE UNDERSTANDING DWELLING WITH THEE ONES. I HONOR THEE WHO ARE OPENING OF THINE MINDS UNTO THAT WHICH IS TRUTH. SALU!

REC. #2 SANANDA

SUN., NOV. 5, 1989 3:20 P.M. YEAR 3, DAY 081

Esu present to resume our writing. I would keep this within an hour and a half, please, for this morning was such a long session.

“WILL” SEEMS TO BE THE PROBLEM

Why? How did this come to be? Let us briefly examine a possibility. You have Creationists and Evolutionists—can we now consider a third possibility, please? Let us speak of possible “restoration” of your planet.

Consider that Lucifer got tossed out on his ear for willfulness of the highest degree against God: “I will be God,” he proclaimed. Let us so assume that this is correct for the obvious reason of discussion. Lucifer and his band of hoodlums romped through the universe in total chaos and destruction—evil energy unleashed. You have to consider some of the ancient proclamations which tend to structure some type of sequence.

It would seem that you have to consider some things prior to Genesis in that somehow there must have been some devastation when God rounded up Satan and his cohorts and brought them in for a little judgment. Your own Holy book indicates that all the angelic beings sang together, and all the sons of God shouted “for joy”. This indicates that there were already “angels”—for they all were in harmony as they shouted for joy at these events.

The chronology indicates that God created the material universe before the angelic revolt and, consequently, before man's appearance on the planet. You have two vital points to consider at this juncture—the Earth was created after the angels were and yet before the angelic rebellion hosted by Lucifer. Could it be that there was actually “restoration” of your planet instead of creation as you recognize your prophecies? Things were obviously in a total state of chaos—without form and void. This expression does not indicate “under- or un-developed”, it indicates something that is the result of a major catastrophe.

Some of your scholars consider this as the “Gap” theory—and it is suitable enough for this discussion, for none of your other speculations fit the scenario. This name fits the expanse of time which elapsed at the onset of your history in Genesis.

Let us consider that period of time between the original creation of the Earth and its restoration from chaos as the “great interval”. Let us consider, if a perfect God should create a very imperfect world—chaotic, waste and desolate, a wreck and a ruin—it would be a violation of one of the great spiritual principles stated by the God Spirit Himself. “A fountain cannot send forth sweet water and bitter.” Let us just suppose now that after the subsequent formation or reconstruction of the same Earth which had been turned into chaos, God created man, and he has now come to center stage.

LOOK WHAT MIGHT HAVE HAPPENED NEXT

In eternity past, there was only ONE “WILL”—THE WILL OF GOD! There was no evil whatsoever, only harmony, holiness, and righteousness. When the second “will” entered the universe, generated by the heart of Lucifer, rebellion broke out. Time, as you know it, began with two wills in existence—check the snake in the garden.

Now, what did I generalize for you about sin? The shortest definition of “sin” is simply—“I will”. When Satan was “born” and stated his proud “I most surely will”, God invited him right out of his position of authority in His government. Lucifer, now called SATAN, declared war and the fat was in the fire.

Brothers, do not think God is ever unprepared, for He already had his plan ready to activate—“Operation Man”. Further, ye were granted consciousness, thought and freewill choice. Man's immaterial being was created in the very image of God. I am sorry, beloved ones, but God does not wander hither and yon with arms and legs. His own image is the possession of will, intellect, emotion, moral reason, and everlasting existence—THE SOUL!

Angels also possess these qualities, with a few superior additives which set them apart from humans: Angels have greater mobility, intelligence and frequency than does man. You are, however, given a vitally important quality in common—you both possess freedom of choice and the intellect to make choices.

The angels watch you humans—study your every action, effort at guiding you and always loving you. Why? What might they be learning? THAT GOD IS A JUST GOD. GOD IS UTILIZING THIS SCENARIO TO DEMONSTRATE THAT HE WAS PERFECTLY JUST IN HIS ETERNAL JUDGMENT OF THEM AND THAT HIS LOVE IS SO GREAT IT CANNOT BE FATHOMED BY ANY “CREATED” BEING.

Man's immaterial being will always exist; it will always live. In that sense, man is also in the image of God. At the time of his creation, man was given legal authority to rule himself and all of the Earth. BUT, HE WAS FURTHER GIVEN RESPONSIBILITIES AND RULES.

Ah, ha! Now we have a great drama in the making. You need no identified tree with some tasty fruit—the subject at hand is that these new humanlings were given instructions to avoid a specific item. It was a grand test set by God to demonstrate His justice and His love to his angelic realms.

Man was specifically told that if he ate from the particular named tree he would die. There was no evil in the tree—it was not sprayed with insecticide which would poison the fruit as might well happen this day and time. The evil was in rejecting God's revealed will and consequently rejecting fellowship with God.

The stage was set, Satan entered the scene and he was equally prepared. He had worked out his scheme well beforehand. He apparently thought that the whole on-stage contest revolved around the simple act of making man "fall".

You must remember something most important—Satan may be extremely clever and wise in his choices but he is battling against a far wiser being—far wiser! When Satan caused man to fall, he played right into the hands of God. Far from defeating God, he set a trap for himself. He set up a situation through which God could demonstrate his justice and His love to the infinite degree.

God did not want man to fall, but He wasn't in the least surprised that he did so. He still had a plan—a plan to save man from his own rebellious state.

SATAN AT WORK

Well, you can bet Satan was not some slimy serpent. He was a most beautiful creature, for he was going to lure Eve, I believe the myth continues. He made sure she was completely curious about that tree—a trait that gets most of you into trouble. Just a little curiosity and a peek into the forbidden and wham, you are stuck. Well, Satan had already put into this lovely mind the suggestion to just look at the tree. He uses the same ploy to this day—he needs never change his line of approach—for you fall every time, to the lies and temptations.

Satan, the superior intelligent being, invented one of the most clever attacks of all time before or after—the power of suggestion, the ability to put thoughts into your minds about things you already desire. He knows your natural weaknesses; he knows the areas where desire is strongest in you. He knew there was basic curiosity, and he hit dead on center. Let us look carefully at how and what Satan is credited with saying to Eve: "Indeed, has God really said, 'You shall not eat from every tree of the garden?'" The question will never be right on—it will always be clever and stated in such manner as to start the doubt gnawing at your minds. Therefore, all Satan had to do was focus on the only forbidden item to set the trap. SATAN IS THE ALL-TIME UNIVERSAL MASTER AT THIS TRICK!

SATAN'S CLEVER POISON

Satan is the master at planting seeds of doubt and question. He fogs you in and you become confused. He probably surely did no less with Sister Eve. Now note that when Eve responded to the "serpent" she added a note or two, "From the fruit of the trees of this garden we may eat; but from the fruit of the tree which is in the middle of the garden, God has said, 'You shall not eat from—or touch it, lest you die'".

Hold up right here a minute, you lovely readers. She added her own embellishment to the original command as stated in Genesis. She added "or touch it". She showed instantly that she didn't have the slightest notion about what the real issue was; she thought there was something in the tree itself that was evil. She made sin something material or tangible, rather than a choice of the mind. Let us just say that she was really "psyched out"! Right from the beginning the wrong issue came under point.

Satan could see that he had her helpless and zeroed in with an outright denial of the word of God. He simply came along with a direct repudiation of what God said and stated, "You surely shall not die!" Satan takes clear truth and drops just enough poison in it to kill you.

BUT WHAT OF THIS "ADAM" CHARACTER?

Well, poor dear thing, Eve ate from the tree and immediately things began to happen and she became totally confused and flustered. Therefore, you can say that the woman was confused, that she was deceived and, therefore, wasn't legally responsible for sin. However, where is Adam's excuse—ones are so permanently ready to blame poor dear Eve—what about that Adam? There was no excuse for the man at all and it was further laid forth as, "And it was not Adam who was deceived, but the woman being quite deceived, fell into transgression".

Adam, therefore, gave in without a fight! There was not one word given directly to the man, not one temptation. He walked into transgression with his two eyes wide open. It seems that he simply chose to stay with Eve rather than continue with God. He made a cold and calculated decision to reject God. Adam had the legal power of attorney over himself and the world, but he betrayed the trust God had given him and forfeited his authority to Satan.

FLAT FOR THE COUNT

In defying God, man was instantly lost to the count. In remarkable manner he did exactly what was projected—he died in important ways. He lost spiritual life, the most important sphere of life that you have. Man is made up of body, his material being; soul, his immaterial life; spirit, his spiritual life with which he is able to communicate with God. The instant man disobeyed God, he lost this spiritual life and severed that direct line of communication with his Maker.

Secondly, man received a nature of self-centeredness and rebellion against God. You can see this result throughout the history of mankind. God describes it as man's heart being desperately sick.

Thirdly, Satan became man's absolute master; man became the slave. It is really a heavy scene, but according to all the records you have, Satan is ruling all those who have rejected God.

Lastly, when man rebelled, the world was legally handed over to Satan. Adam actually became the Benedict Arnold of the universe. When he obeyed Satan, he turned the deed of himself, all his dominion, and all his descendants over to Satan and, therefore, now you have it—Satan is the ruler of the world!

WHAT OF THE CURSE OF EVE?

Oh, yes, back to the Gap theory—in exchange for Eve's foolishness, God gave her as punishment a more severe time in childbearing and thus and so.—Worse than what? To be relative and be worse than... indicates that there was already something present! So be it.

I trust I have laid forth enough information for you to consider that possibly you have a problem with a most clever, evil character. You have a far more potent God with unlimited ability—but you continue to limit Him.

My intent is to allow you to see "how" it comes to be in the temptations and the traps. The farther you go, the deeper you get into the mire—for you fail to turn around and see that you have help. You march forth like Eve, missing the point entirely.

There is only one way into safety and security—and that is to turn about and into the strength of the Creator God. You may think you have dipped to the depths and there is no way out of your quagmire—nay, simply turn about and ask for the Light in truth and desire and it shall come forth. You are a "willing" victim; the minute you cease to be a willing victim, ye shall find your freedom.

I am going to finish this document in a most unpleasant manner. The items of Satanic horror are kept from you. I need not linger over very many instances—I shall just quote from a few as they have been brought public and give you some insight as to who and how the game of Satanic experiences is spread. I am going to get gory, bloody and as violent as the words which come from the printed papers and accounts; I have no notion to spare your senses in the least—read it and please weep for the horribleness herein. Weep for yourselves, if you are involved in the lie; weep for your brother, your sister, your parents, your children and all mankind—for this is a terrorist story beyond all. Ye have refused to look and see too long. YOU WILL EITHER CHANGE IT OR IT WILL NOT BE CHANGED. YOU HAVE BECOME THE TRAPPED ON THE TREADMILL OF VIOLENCE LEADING TO MORE VIOLENCE AND YE ARE SLOWLY DEADENED SO THAT WHAT WAS ONCE, ONLY A SHORT WHILE AGO, UNACCEPTABLE AND VULGAR NO LONGER EVEN INTERESTS YOU.

WE HAVE PRECEDED THIS DOCUMENT WITH EIGHT OTHERS, AT LEAST FOUR OF WHICH DEAL WITH THE EVIL EMPIRE ABOUT YOU. WE FURTHER GIVE UNTO YOU HELP. THIS DEALS WITH THE PERSONAL EVIL WITHIN AND WITHOUT AND KNOW, HERE, TOO, IS HELP, BUT YOU MUST RECOGNIZE OF IT AND ASK. YOU ARE IN THE FINAL PLAY AND IT DEPENDS UPON YOU AS TO HOW THE FINAL ACT SHALL BE PLAYED OUT. SO BE IT AND SELAH.

Let us allow this to sit until morning next, Dharma, for you have had enough for this day.

In love and total caring I take my place at stand-by. I grant ye ones peace in abundance.

THE UNDERGROUND MILITARY

By William M. Arkin, Washington Post, 5/7/01

The military facility in Iquitos, Peru is not a U.S. airbase, nor does it appear in any list of U.S. military facilities. The Americans providing real-time tracking information to the Peruvian air force are not government or military personnel.

So, who are the gaggle of Iquitos "contractors" employed by a company named Aviation Development Corporation, a company which is located on Maxwell Air Force base in Montgomery, Alabama, but is not a part of the U.S. Air Force? Who are the contractors operating a specially outfitted Cessna Citation V surveillance plane that flies the U.S. flag but does not belong to the U.S. government? Who are the contractors operating from a hangar built by a Peruvian company paid by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers?

They are the fighters in our drug war!

The American people are supposed to believe that Peruvian operations to stem the cocaine flow into the United States are innocuous, but we cannot know who the players are or what they are up to until disaster strikes. When the destroyer USS Cole met disaster in Yemen last October, or the Navy EP-3 was attacked off of Hainan island, we were similarly educated about underground activities of the U.S. military.

In his election campaign, President Bush vowed to reduce the American military presence around the world. It's a particularly tough task when much of the "presence" isn't acknowledged or official. Taken individually, each country like Peru or a Yemen may have a justification for secrecy. But when one adds up all the Peru's and Yemen's, it becomes apparent that the U.S. military is increasingly everywhere and nowhere.

At the same time Peru was in the headlines, there were press reports that the United States and Israel had conducted an unusual joint military exercise in the Negev desert. Jane's Defence Weekly called it Israel's "first" exercise with the U.S. Air Force. The Jerusalem Post called it a "marked boost in military cooperation". Neither assertion is true, but that is the problem of an underground military policy. It is hard to know exactly what is going on.

In fact, the United States and Israel have a regular series of military exercises, going under the code names Juniper Stallion, Juniper Cobra, Noble Shirley, and other Juniper variations. A month before March's Juniper Stallion exercise, another American contingent was in Israel for Juniper Cobra, a tactical missile defense exercise which included test-firing Patriot missiles while the U.S. Navy Aegis destroyer USS Porter operated off the coast. The exercise, perhaps coincidentally, ended just five days before the February 16 U.S. and British air attacks against Iraqi air defense sites.

Last year's Juniper Stallion exercise involved the aircraft carrier battle group USS Eisenhower, and was from March 19-26. Eight U.S. aircraft operated from Nevatim airfield in Israel and U.S. Navy SEALs went ashore to train with their Israeli counterparts. During Juniper Stallion 2000, according to the Eisenhower public affairs office, U.S. aircraft were able to drop live bombs at two desert ranges in Israel, giving crews valuable experience given the temporary prohibition from dropping live ordnance on Vieques Island in Puerto Rico.

Juniper Stallion 99, held in August 1999, was an even more extensive, and secret, exercise. U.S. Air Force munitions personnel from Italy were deployed to officially non-existent sites where they inspected and maintained the $500 million worth of ammunition the United States keeps in Israel for wartime contingencies. Their bases, called Sites 51, 53, and 54, don't appear on any map. Their specific locations are classified and highly sensitive.

And it's not just munitions. The United States has "prepositioned" vehicles, military equipment, even a 500-bed hospital, for U.S. Marines, Special Forces, and Air Force fighter and bomber aircraft at at least six sites in Israel, all part of what is antiseptically described as "U.S.-Israel strategic cooperation".

Such cooperation may or may not enhance American security, may or may not be a prudent part of planning to defend a close friend. The extent of U.S. involvement may or may not be known and understood by U.S. decision-makers and the Congress. But the reason for all the secrecy is clear: All around Israel, in Egypt, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Oman, and the Gulf states, the U.S. has newly built up an enormous and yet officially non-existent military presence.

Here is the web we weave: The Germany-based 22nd Fighter Squadron, the main U.S. Air Force unit to participate in the March Juniper Stallion exercise in Israel, returned from a 90-day tour in Saudi Arabia in late November. The squadron's mission flying the southern Iraqi "no-fly" zone during its Saudi deployment warranted a press release and a couple of stories in military newspapers. But its foray into Israel was—and is—"classified".

If the Air Force issued a press release about the Israel exercise, the 22nd might not be allowed back into Saudi Arabia next time. Not to worry much though. As the Persian Gulf has effectively become an American military protectorate, the U.S. had built up more than a few, officially non-existent facilities and "classified" operations in this part of the world as well. It is secrecy that allows our Saudi hosts to ignore the U.S.-Israel relationship, but also to maintain the fig leaf that they do not permit military bases on their soil.

On the surface, it's all about "containing" Iraq, but underground, tens of thousands of U.S. military personnel (and "contractors") have flooded the entire region: an Army battalion mans the border north of Kuwait City; "expeditionary" air units fly from airbases in Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates, and Oman; an aircraft carrier battle group plies the waters in and around the Gulf, more and more depots fill up with stockpiled weapons and munitions ready to accommodate reinforcing ground and air units.

After the missionary plane shootdown in Peru, government spokesmen and CIA officials were quick to justify their counterdrug arrangements ("vital", "working", blah, blah blah). Their explanations revealed not only a labyrinth at Iquitos but at least a dozen additional officially non-existent air bases, radars, command centers, and who knows what extending from Honduras and El Salvador down to Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, and Colombia and back north to Curacao, Puerto Rico, and the Bahamas.

From Central and South America to Israel to the Gulf, more than 200,000 U.S. military personnel (and who knows how many "contractors") are out there worldwide. Since the waning days of the Cold War, the number has declined by about half. Yet about 90 percent of the cuts occurred as a result of reductions in European-based forces, mostly in Germany. In most places outside Europe, there have been significant increases in the underground presence.

After the 2000 election, Colin Powell and other incoming Bush administration foreign policy officials decried U.S. forces being stretched thin. "Our plan," Powell says, "is to ... take a look not only at our deployments in Bosnia but in Kosovo and many other places around the world, and make sure those deployments are proper."

Though Congress has now indicated it will launch a broad review of U.S. drug interdiction efforts, the Defense Department's "strategic review" is not examining the new American realm in any comprehensive way. Will disaster have to strike somewhere else before we get a thoughtful look at the extent of our secret overseas presence and commitments?

[JR: Since 1982 the U.S. has maintained two military bases in the Sinai that are manned by highly trained elite troops. During the Gulf War we took control of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Bahrain and have established permanent occupational forces in the area. We have now extended our presence in Israel by (secretly) participating in accelerated joint military exercises. Do you get the picture that we have set ourselves up to protect Israel and the oil fields? When did you ever hear of a joint Israeli-U.S. military exercise in the U.S. to protect U.S. cities and its citizens? LIKE NEVER! It will take a tragedy of untold proportions, even greater than the USS Liberty, to jolt this administration and our Congress to face the fact that Israel uses us and is no friend or trusted ally. Sharon and his Likud Party would not hesitate to sacrifice any number of Americans and their cities (as he would the Arabs) to defend Israel and grab it all. Sharon would justify such military actions as necessary collateral damage. That's military jargon for WHO CARES.]

IDEA TO TAKE LAND FUELS ENERGY FIRES

By Miguel Llanos, MSNBC News, 5/9/01

If you're still wondering how much of an impact the nation's energy needs can have on you, Vice President Dick Cheney has added this possible scenario: You could be forced to sell your property if it lies on transmission routes sought by electricity suppliers. That notion fueled the energy fires that continued Wednesday with a Senate hearing and the possibility of more rolling blackouts in California.

Cheney, Speaking Tuesday on CNN, said his White House task force on energy is looking at the idea of requiring private property owners to sell their land for the good of the nation's power grid.

"The federal government already has the authority, eminent domain authority, with respect to gas pipelines," Cheney said. "The issue is whether or not we should have the same authority on electrical transmission lines—that's never been granted previously. That's one of the issues we've looked at..."

The issue is part of a larger debate that comes down to this: Democrats and environmentalists see energy conservation as key; the Bush administration and Republican lawmakers believe the answer lies with increasing energy supplies and infrastructure, like power lines. "We can't conserve our way to energy independence," Bush said Tuesday night in a speech to the Electronic Industries Alliance.

As part of boosting the nation's power grid, administration sources said after Cheney's comments, the task force will indeed propose new eminent domain legislation, arguing that the lack of federal authority often requires electricity suppliers to go through long approval processes involving states and numerous local jurisdictions.

Utilities, not the government, would own the property, one official said.

Earlier this year, two Republican energy bills in the Senate and House had included federal eminent domain authority for power lines. But the provision later was deleted due to objections by other lawmakers.

Cheney and others have cited a shortage of transmission lines as one reason for bottlenecks in the electricity grids and a shortage of power in areas of high demand. New lines also are expected to be needed to connect new power plants to the grid.

While utilities have lobbied for federal eminent domain over the siting of power lines, state and local governments, which have their own eminent domain laws, have opposed it as a federal intrusion.

Democrats and environmentalists said they couldn't believe a conservative Republican like Cheney was suggesting even the possibility of property takings.

"It's one of the most astonishing things I've heard a Republican say in a decade," said Ralph Cavanaugh, an energy analyst for the Natural Resources Defense Council. States already have eminent domain powers, Cavanaugh argued, and while regional cooperation needs to be improved there's no need for a federal takeover.

Rep. Bill Pascrell, D-N.J., had a similar reaction, noting that he had just spent 2 1/2 years to defeat a company that tried to take private and public land in New Jersey for natural gas pipelines.

"Utilities for most part think they can do whatever they want," Pascrell added. "It would be the same situation with electrical lines."

"This is a fast track approach," he said, "and unfortunately citizens get shortchanged whenever there's a fast track."

Free-market analysts also expressed some concern.

Roger Pilon, vice president of legal affairs at the libertarian Cato Institute, said he'd be worried if the federal government were to actually delegate eminent domain power to utilities seeking transmission lines.

And Paul Georgia, an environmental policy analyst at the Competitive Enterprise Institute, noted "a lot of abuse" in the past over property takings.

"Hopefully," he said, "the administration will respect people's property rights" and ensure they get a fair value for any property taken from them.

Cheney also blamed California's troubles on what he called a misguided focus on conservation instead of building new power plants.

"They've taken the route of saying, 'Well, we can conserve our way out of the problem. All we have to do is conserve; we don't have to produce any more power,'" Cheney said. "So they haven't built any electric power plants in the last 10 years in California, and today they've got rolling blackouts."

California Gov. Gray Davis, a Democrat, later issued a response, insisting that while new power plants will provide long-term relief, conservation is the best short-term solution.

"We need a twin program of more production and more conservation," he stated. "Conservation is critical for this summer—and beyond."

New figures released by California show that those efforts had indeed reduced peak-time energy use by nearly 9 percent during February through April.

Davis acknowledged no large plants were built in the 12 years before his term, but he added that his administration has approved 13 new plants. "No state in America is building more power plants than California," he stated.

The governor also chided the Bush administration for ignoring its own experts. Citing an Energy Department report from last November, Davis noted that it "concluded that a government-led conservation program could cut growth in energy consumption almost in half using proven technology."

In his interview, Cheney went to lengths to say the task force's recommendations include "a lot" of conservation programs, but would focus on the deficiencies in the nation's supply of domestic oil, natural gas, nuclear, hydro and coal.

"Well, you'll find that most of the financial incentives that we recommend in the report go for conservation or renewables, for increased efficiencies," Cheney said.

"Now, we don't have a lot of new financial incentives in here to go out and produce more oil and gas, for example, so, we believe in conservation, we believe in renewables, we believe in wind and solar and all of those other technologies."

But, Cheney added, even if renewable sources tripled they would still only amount to 6 percent of the nation's needs.

Cheney also elaborated on what he saw as a need to build 1,300 new power plants over the next 20 years to keep pace with an expansive economy.

Some of the new plants might be nuclear-powered, he noted, possibly setting the stage for the first new nuclear plant applications in some 25 years.

Cheney added that the task force will ask the Environmental Protection Agency to review rules that limit emissions from older, dirtier power plants.

Those standards were written into the Clean Air Act in 1990 to limit pollution from power plants created by upgrades in equipment.

On rising gasoline prices, Cheney insisted that the administration has "worked with OPEC" to maintain adequate supplies of petroleum.

The bottleneck, he said, is the fact that there are fewer refineries to turn crude into gasoline. "The fact is today we can't blame the problem on OPEC in terms of current gasoline prices," he said. "Production levels and the price of oil through the spring have been fairly stable. In fact the biggest problem comes back to refinery capacities."

The disagreements over how to handle energy policy were visible Wednesday at a Senate confirmation hearing for three top Energy Department nominees, who were peppered with questions on conservation, production and renewable energy.

[JR: It never seems to fail that some kind of crisis is created either by various industries or our own federal government to implement some controversial development program or legislation. Like the Alaskan pipeline in the '70s "oil crisis" which was secretly designated for export only to help our trade imbalance, which is even worse today. In this so-called energy crisis, both the oil and power industries will benefit because the government will step in and subsidize (with taxpayer dollars) new power plants, refineries, electrical grid towers and pipe lines that these billion dollar monopolies failed to build decades ago. They used all their profits merging and buying out their competitors. These politically influential conglomerates must feel very secure for them to mismanage their business, neglect the need for construction of new facilities and plants just to meet their basic business demands. They know Washington will step in under the "National Security" mandate and not only bail them out but subsidize their future expansion. Now on top of the oil and power companies ripping off the American people, we also have Cheney pushing for federal eminent domain authority to confiscate private property for the Utility companies, like they would stop at just the power grids once they obtain that awesome power and authority. Even without eminent domain authority our federal government already is confiscating thousands of acres of private property annually through bogus RICO charges and forcing people off their lands using environmental laws and the Endangered Species Act, to name a few, that are bankrupting thousands of family-owned farms and homesteads. Today when the government shows up on your property they are not there to help you but to relieve you of your land. In the 1940-60s Uncle Sam used to want you; today he wants your land. At the rate we are going, it won't be long before we all become sharecroppers or serfs to our government.]

WHY DID ISRAEL'S ANTI-MISSILE PROGRAM SUCCEED SO MUCH FASTER THAN AMERICA'S?

By Henry F. Cooper, NY POST, 5/8/01

Key technology for building non-nuclear missile defenses was demonstrated 15 years ago. Yet despite spending nearly $60 billion on a variety of missile-defense programs since Ronald Reagan launched the Strategic Defense Initiative in March 1983, America still has no operational defense system beyond the Patriot used in the Gulf War.

This fact seems inexcusable—especially when you consider what Israel has been able to accomplish in the meantime.

Last month, I attended a reception at the Israeli Embassy in Washington to celebrate the development of Israel's "Arrow" ballistic-missile-defense system, which became operational last fall. Arrow development began in earnest on my watch as SDI Director, in response to Iraqi Scud attacks on Israel.

The Israeli record shows what can be done with persistent, enduring political will and competent technical and management skill, even in the face of limited resources.

Indisputably, Israel has had unwavering political will since the Gulf War demonstrated its vulnerability to missile attack. Israeli leaders of different political parties all strongly support the need to defend the Israeli people. After early test failures, the Arrow program management and engineering team got its act together. Several successful tests led to Arrow's operational status last year.

For less than $2 billion (three-quarters of which came from the U.S. taxpayer), Israel now has its own homeland defense against ballistic missiles—a capability shared only by Russia.

Contrast this with America's development of the Theater High Altitude Area Defense (THAAD) system, intended to protect our overseas troops against missile attack. Development began at about the same time. THAAD already has cost the U.S. taxpayer several times what the Israelis spent on Arrow, and recent Pentagon reports say it will be 2007 before THAAD achieves operational capability—no doubt with a doubling of our investment to date.

THAAD also has had bipartisan support—sufficient to press ahead even after its first six flight tests ended in failure. (The primary cause of those failures: inadequate quality control and errors in employing technology that U.S. engineers mastered more than 30 years ago.) As with Arrow, the THAAD engineers eventually succeeded. After two consecutive successful tests in June and August 1999, THAAD entered full-scale engineering development.

Why should it take until 2007 to begin THAAD operations, some 15 years after formal R&D began—almost twice the time it took Israel to build its first Arrow defensive base? THAAD is more sophisticated, to be sure, but it should not take twice as long to build, especially given our much larger investment.

We need technical and management personnel who understand what it takes to build and test complex systems rapidly—and not only for THAAD. In particular, we need a streamlined engineering management organization to rapidly build sea-based defenses to protect not only our overseas troops, friends and allies, but Americans at home.

With the right management and technical skills, the Navy can provide our earliest opportunity to join Israel and Russia with our own homeland defense and begin protecting U.S. cities against ballistic missiles. The Navy should adopt an engineering-management approach like the Polaris project, which built our first strategic nuclear submarine and its associated submarine-launched ballistic missile in only four years in the late '50s and early '60s. That was a far more daunting engineering challenge than building sea-based missile defenses is today.

With modest additional funding ($2 billion to $3 billion), a new Navy team that adopts the rigorous, risk-mitigating engineering discipline of the original Polaris team can build and begin operating wide-area sea-based defenses in three to four years. Also like Polaris, such initial sea-based defenses could be improved—e.g., with faster booster rockets and more capable interceptor kill vehicles (again at modest cost)—to provide a robust global defense.

President Bush wants to build effective missile defenses at the earliest possible date—as, indeed, the 1999 National Missile Defense Act commands him to do. Meeting his goal demands a commitment to use top engineering skills, necessary resources and persistent, enduring political will to get the job done.

That's what worked for the Israelis and in America's past high-priority development programs. It will work again—but only as soon as it's tried, not sooner.

[JR: Since 1983 and $60-billion-plus dollars the U.S. has yet to build a defensive weapons system to protect us here at home. To hint that our weapons engineers and technical staff don't come up to par with the Israelis is nonsense. When the Patriot missile battery didn't do enough to totally protect Israel during the Gulf War, Congress did not hesitate to hand over three-quarters of the funds needed to assist Israel in building her "Arrow" missile defense system in record time. Why are our own development programs plagued with delays and cost overruns—and who benefits from these foul-ups? The Zionocrats who own and run the U.S. don't care if we are unprotected or not. Not so? Ask whose interests were and are being served by the following—Indyk, Rubin, Freeh, Albright, Cohen, Schumer, Feinstein, Lieberman, Holbrooke, Rumsfeld, Wolfowitz and Sir Powell to name a few. Add to that list the avid supporters of Israel in our Congress. Israel has taken all and left us with debt and a lot of red ink in our account at their bank called the Federal Reserve.]

THE U.S. HELPED TO CREATE ITS OWN UN PROBLEMS

By E.A. Torriero, World Tribune, 5/13/01

At the global affairs club that is the United Nations, Uncle Sam has alternately been a godfather to orphaned nations, protector of the abused and downtrodden, bully to misbehaving despots, and tyrant demanding its own way.

Now, after failing to win re-election to two crucial UN commissions on human rights and narcotics in recent weeks, the United States is showing a ruffled diplomatic face that in the long run could damage its foreign relations efforts.

"Crybaby," is one word being thrown about by some UN observers to describe the United States.

Reacting with hurt feelings, and seemingly pining for vengeance, the Bush administration and some key members of both branches of the U.S. Congress are spanking the world's peacemaking body with unapologetic, and even dismissive, arrogance.

It's more than a volley of nasty words that has left even America's most loyal allies befuddled.

On Thursday, Congress voted 252-165 to tie the payments of the $244 million it owes in UN dues next year to the United States being returned to the human-rights panel.

In U.S. eyes, there is outrage at how the United States is becoming a diplomatic punching bag after more than half a century of UN activism.

"I don't like our diplomats at the UN walking around with a little sign on their back that says 'kick me,'" Rep. Henry Hyde (R-Ill.), chairman of the House International Relations Committee, said last week.

But, in the view of UN observers, withholding UN dues and continuing to refuse to pay $1.6 billion in UN peacekeeping assessments will be hurting the nations America actually wants to help.

Several influential and longtime U.S. lawmakers have long criticized—and sometimes moved to penalize—the UN for its bloated organization and checkered fiscal accountability.

Still, "the more the United States moves ungraciously, the more it will take it on the chin," said M. Cherif Bassiouni, a DePaul University law professor who headed a UN legal commission investigating abuses in the former Yugoslavia.

"Not only will the United States not accomplish its goals toward bettering international relations, it will become the laughingstock of the world."

U.S. representatives, however, say the United States is getting a bad rap for trying to keep misbehaving UN members in line. It is a role the United States has relished and cherished since the UN's inception in 1947.

It is the United Nations that is acting in outrageous disregard for human suffering, U.S. officials say.

Not only was the United States removed this month from the 53-member Human Rights Commission, Sudan and Libya—two of the most blatant human-rights abusers—won seats. Human-rights groups reacted with unbridled indignation, likening the vote to packing a jury with murder suspects facing a trial.

To make matters worse for the Americans, the United States also was voted off the International Narcotics Control Board, while Iran—an increasing hub for drug smuggling—was added to the panel.

The deciding ballots were secret. And the results caught the U.S. delegation off-guard because allied voting nations assured them in writing that the U.S. had the votes to remain.

The snubs, however, should not have come as a surprise.

The Bush administration has yet to establish its UN team—including an ambassador. It was unprepared to participate in delicate behind-the-scenes diplomatic dances needed to prevent such a loss of prestige and power.

The U.S. delegation "didn't do their job," said William H. Luers, a former U.S. ambassador to Czechoslovakia and Venezuela and now president of the United Nations Association of the USA.

"Now the U.S. is not dealing well with the fallout and it is only adding to the perception of other nations that the U.S. acts like a street bully."

Even before the votes, though, many UN partners had long grown weary of the selfishness of U.S. interests.

The United States, for decades acting with disregard toward the interests of other countries, is now even testing its relationship with its European friends, according to its critics.

During the Cold War, the United Nations was a stage upon which the United States set a moral agenda by rallying its allies for diplomatic duels with China and the Soviet Union.

In recent years, though, the world has become a more complicated place. Under both Democratic and Republican leadership, the United States has been less of a leader and more of a lone ranger.

The United States has refused widespread cooperation on treaties to abolish land mines and has been generally unsupportive of the establishment of an international judicial system.

Bush angered foreign friends and foes alike since January by backing off a global warming agreement, promoting a U.S.-dominated missile defense system and waffling on international requests to increase the availability of AIDS medicines.

So when it came time to fill geographic slots in commission rotations, there was little love lost when the United States was left out.

"It has to be a wakeup call to the United States," said Michael Colson, executive director of UN Watch in Geneva, an independent monitoring group. "The world, especially a unifying and more assertive Europe, is not going to move to the U.S. tune anymore."

Eventually, the United States will have little choice but to reach out in compromise to key UN partners or risk being further isolated from economic and strategic allies, experts say.

Instead of pressuring the UN to regain lost seats on the commission, the United States should embark on a strategy to promote human rights and anti-drug smuggling efforts by swaying the commissions with strong outside lobbying.

The United Nations, too, needs to bend. It cannot thrive without the U.S. leadership or the financial support from the American government, UN advisers say.

“Hopefully, the U.S. will stop trying to be so bossy and the United Nations will relent to U.S. pressures to streamline,” said Joshua Goldstein, a professor of international relations at American University in Washington.

“Hopefully, they can both learn to get along.”

[JR: If the U.S. is being perceived by other members of the UN as being testy, bossy, a bully, selfish, demanding, arrogant, deceitful, abusive, aggressive and disdainful of other countries, we are only a reflection of the policies of our closest ally Israel and our Zionist-controlled government in D.C. We have made ourselves the world's number one target while Israel gets a pass.]

MACEDONIA, SERBIA PLEDGE TO WORK AGAINST REBELS

USA Today, 5/10/01

SKOPJE, MACEDONIA (AP)—Macedonian and Serbian leaders pledged to work together to fight ethnic Albanian rebels on both sides of the border with Kosovo, as the army pressed its assault Thursday against the insurgents in northern villages. Troops sporadically shelled targets in the village of Slupcane, 15 miles north of the capital, Skopje. Col. Blagoja Markovski, an army spokesman, said troops destroyed a rebel bunker. Markovski said the rebels had stopped fighting to bury comrades who had been killed.

The government again urged civilians to leave Slupcane and two other villages believed to be guerrilla strongholds, but no one was seen leaving the area. The army claims the rebels are forcing civilians to stay as human shields, a charge the rebels deny.

Thousands of frightened villagers have been streaming from the area of the fighting and into Kosovo on the Yugoslav side of the border. About 8,000 people, mostly ethnic Albanian women, children and old men, have fled across the border since Monday, the UN refugee agency said Thursday.

Macedonian Prime Minister Ljubco Georgievski and his Serbian counterpart, Zoran Djindjic, met Thursday in Skopje and said they had agreed to cooperate in their efforts to contain ethnic Albanian militants, who also have been carrying out attacks in Serbia and in the Yugoslav province of Kosovo.

The Macedonian government and Western observers have linked the rebels in Macedonia with members of the former Kosovo Liberation Army. Djindjic accused the rebels of serving under a joint command.

“The terrorists are well-coordinated,” he said. “That means that we have to cooperate at least just as closely and coordinate our actions.”

Georgievski agreed, calling for “coordination” between Macedonia and Serbia, the dominant Yugoslav republic, by exchanging information that could lead to the “stifling of terrorism”. They did not elaborate or indicate whether they were considering any joint military action—

a step that would anger other Balkan nations.

Macedonia's key political parties have been trying to form a national unity government to present a united front to the rebels. But the Party for Democratic Prosperity, an influential ethnic Albanian opposition party, has refused to join unless the army halts its offensive.

Georgievski said a “prolonged cease-fire” was out of the question. “It would allow the terrorists to regroup,” he said, giving the party until Friday to make up its mind about joining the coalition ahead of a Saturday parliamentary session to announce the new government.

In a statement issued Thursday by Swedish Foreign Minister Anna Lindh, the European Union urged party leaders to join the coalition, saying it “would serve as a joint platform against the violent activities of the extremists and a forum for dialogue.”

Party spokesman Zekir Bektesi said the international community instead should focus on “creating conditions for an end of military operations.”

On Thursday, Kosovo's high court released 44 ethnic Albanians who had been arrested by German peacekeeping troops along the border in March on suspicion of involvement in the fighting in Macedonia. UN spokeswoman Susan Manuel said the suspects were freed because of a procedural error during their detention. She did not elaborate.

[JR: The pledge of cooperation by Macedonia and the Serbs was vital if Macedonia was to survive as a country. On May 13th the Macedonian Parliament was successful in forming a unity government to challenge and defuse the Albanian incursions into Macedonia. If the Macedonians had waited for the UN and NATO forces to involve themselves they would have been overrun and taken over. I'm sure the 44 ethnic Albanians that were arrested by the Germans and whose releases were urged by the UN on “procedural errors” certainly says a lot about the UN's intentions towards insuring the peace for that region.]

HAVEL ASSAILS RUSSIA ON NATO EXPANSION

By Peter Finn, Washington Post, 5/12/01

BRATISLAVA, SLOVAKIA—In a sharp rebuttal of Russian objections to NATO expansion, Czech President Vaclav Havel said today that the alliance should quickly invite Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia to join, a move that would put NATO inside the borders of the former Soviet Union for the first time.

Failure to do so, Havel said, would amount to returning to the 1939 pact between Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union that forcibly turned the three Baltic countries into Soviet republics until the disintegration of the Soviet Union in 1991.

“I find it almost absurd that such a large and powerful country [as Russia] should be alarmed by the prospect of three small democratic republics at its borders joining a regional grouping which it does not control,” said Havel, a former anti-communist dissident who embodied the struggle against Soviet domination.

Speaking at a conference here in which nine central and East European countries reaffirmed their desire to join NATO, Havel said it was his “profound conviction that Russia does not deserve that we behave towards it as we would toward a leper, an invalid or a child who requires special treatment and whose whims, no matter how dangerous, must be understood and tolerated.”

Havel's speech was the strongest statement yet on the merits of NATO expansion into the Baltic region by a leading politician from the alliance, which the Czech Republic joined two years ago along with Poland and Hungary. It was clearly designed to accelerate discussion of NATO expansion, an item likely to assume ever greater importance on the agenda of the Bush administration.

The next invitations to join NATO are likely to be issued in 2002. Russia, which opposed but eventually acceded to the NATO expansion two years ago, has insisted that NATO not admit any states that once were part of the Soviet Union.

Some European countries fear that the accession of the Baltic countries in particular will heighten Russian fears of isolation and encirclement and spark a nationalist backlash that could hinder democratization and economic reform.

Some Europeans have advocated a “Slo-Slo” policy, admitting Slovenia and Slovakia in 2002 but holding out only the prospect of further expansion for the Baltic states as well as Romania, Bulgaria, Albania and Macedonia. Croatia is a new applicant.

But invoking the bloody expansionism of Hitler and Stalin, Havel said that yielding to Russia on the Baltics would “amount to returning to the Ribbentrop-Molotov pact,” in which the two totalitarian systems marched to new borders with each other in September 1939 after secretly dividing central Europe.

The Baltic countries, and other aspirants, argue that to bow to Russia would give it a de facto veto over NATO decisions and acknowledge a Russian sphere of influence where it deserves none.

“If none of the Baltic states are invited, that action means Russia has a veto,” Lithuanian Prime Minister Rolandas Paksas said in an interview, adding that NATO membership was a matter of “historical justice”.

In a letter to the conference participants, President Bush said “no part of Europe will be excluded because of history or geography,” provided countries show commitment to meet NATO standards. Officials from all three Baltic states say their countries will have done enough technically to merit an invitation by the time of the Prague summit, and the decision, in the end, will emerge from the interplay among the United States, Western Europe and Russia.

Russian concerns greeted delegates when they arrived this morning. A letter from the Russian Embassy in Slovakia had been placed on every desk at the conference, rebutting comments in a white paper that was also circulated to delegates by the Center for Strategic and International Studies in Washington and the Slovak Foreign Policy Association.

The white paper said Moscow is subverting political and economic institutions in NATO candidate countries by, among other things, promoting “organized criminality.” The editors of the report were obviously worried about the allegation because it is followed by an editorial aside that remained in the text: “(This last statement about criminality is a bit strong and should be toned down.)”

It wasn't, and the Russians were outraged. The embassy said, “It is... deplorable if the image of enemy is being created in such a way with the aim to prove the necessity of NATO expansion.” The embassy also said, “NATO's enlargement plans [are] a grave mistake, provoking negative changes [on the] military-strategic landscape and division lines in Europe.”

But Havel said NATO's territory, as well as the area into which it can and should expand, “extends from Alaska in the West to Tallin [Estonia] in the East.” He argued that Russia needs to come to terms with the limits of its domain, and suggested that it may actually benefit from having NATO on its doorstep.

“Russia must finally realize that NATO’s mission poses no threat to it and that if NATO moves closer to Russia’s borders, it brings closer stability, security, democracy and an advanced political culture, which is obviously in Russia’s essential interest,” Havel said.

The Czech president, however, rejected the idea, occasionally offered in the West, that Russia itself might one day join the alliance, saying that any endless expansion of NATO would render it toothless.

“Personally, I find it rather difficult to imagine Russia as a NATO member,” he said. “Moreover, I do not think that its membership would serve any good purpose.”

[JR: Evidently the Eurocrats feel threatened by Russia and want to create the attitude that she is a danger to Europe and needs to be isolated and contained. They paint her as still being a closed and backward nation who has yet to acquire the social graces of European politics. To insure that Russia is closed in, they are busily incorporating all the little countries that surround her into the NATO family of puppet nations and advising/warning Russia to get used to NATO as a neighbor. Russia has been struggling to recover from the transition to the free market system that caused an economic meltdown during Yeltsin’s tenure. Under Putin, she has made great progress on advancing her position with alliances and successful trade agreements with China and other countries abused and ignored by the Western powers. Maybe that is why NATO and the Eurocrats want the Russian bear kept out of their forest of influence.]

BUSH ENVOYS FACE SKEPTICISM OVER MISSILE DEFENSE PLAN

By Peter Baker, The Washington Post, 5/13/01

MOSCOW—President Bush’s emissaries fanned out across the world this week seeking support for, or at least acceptance of, his plans to build a missile defense system, a gesture of inclusion welcomed by allies and others fearful he was developing a go-it-alone foreign policy.

But if he hoped to win converts to his vision of a nuclear shield, Bush might be disappointed when his representatives return home. Leaders in Western Europe expressed lingering skepticism, while Russia continued to warn that construction of a comprehensive anti-missile system could unravel decades of arms-control agreements.

“I would put it like this: We still have more questions than answers,” Russian Foreign Ministry spokesman Alexander Yakovenko said after Bush aides met with senior officials in Moscow on Friday. But he added, “The most important thing is that consultations have begun and are going to be continued.”

The sweep of the Bush team was unusually wide as envoys from Washington sat down with counterparts around the globe, from Moscow’s Kremlin to New Delhi, capital of one of the world’s newest nuclear powers. The State Department said that in addition to Friday’s consultations in Moscow and New Delhi, the envoys have met with officials in London, Paris, Rome, Warsaw, The Hague, Copenhagen, Istanbul, Tokyo and Seoul, and have scheduled meetings in Canada and Ukraine.

The outreach campaign contrasted with Bush’s unilateral decision in March to renounce the Kyoto global warming treaty, a move that engendered bitterness, even among friends of the United States riled that he would make such a decision without consulting them. Missile defense seemed to be shaping up along the same lines, but last week Bush promised to seek advice and input from key countries, including not just U.S. allies but also outspoken opponents of missile defense.

In many of the meetings over the last several days, the U.S. delegations have explained Bush’s rationale for creating a defense against missiles developed by hostile, small nations such as North Korea, and then listened to often detailed and sometimes pointed questions posed by military and civilian leaders from host countries.

“We presented our point of view, but we were very, very interested in what the Turkish side had to say,” Undersecretary of State Marc Grossman said Friday after a meeting in Istanbul, where he hoped to win the support of a NATO ally in a neighborhood that includes two of the nations most worrisome to the Pentagon, Iran and Iraq.

In Moscow, Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Wolfowitz and deputy National Security Adviser Stephen Hadley emerged from the Russian Foreign Ministry to report what they called “good, substantive discussions”, the first of what they promised would be more to come.

“The fact that we are meeting and opening this dialogue between the Bush administration and the Russians is a sign of progress,” Hadley said. “The Russian side has great, serious and important questions. We began to give them some answers to those questions. We’ve done a lot of thinking about the subject; we’ll obviously have more thinking to do.”

Russian Foreign Minister Igor Ivanov heads to Washington next week for the first time since Bush took office. “But it is not clear to us how to solve the problem of international security if we break all the [arms-control] agreements,” Yakovenko said. “They can’t answer this question. That’s the problem. They have no clear idea how to solve the problem of international security without having all the international treaties in the field of disarmament.”

Western European leaders were only somewhat less blunt in voicing their doubts. The French government issued a terse statement saying, “Our position and our questions are well-known; we repeated them to the American delegation.”

Michael Steiner, foreign policy adviser to Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder, told reporters that Germany’s questions have not been answered either.

U.S. officials received a warmer response in India, where the government has embraced the larger concepts of Bush’s strategic plan, if not the specifics. Deputy Secretary of State Richard Armitage passed along a letter from Bush accepting an invitation to visit India and emerged from Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee’s house proclaiming himself “delighted” by his meeting.

[JR: The handlers in the Bush administration (like Wolfowitz and Armitage) are pulling out all the stops to sell the rest of the world on our missile defense system. Seems like they don’t have a lot of answers to sooth the furrowed brows of our friends and allies like France and Germany or the ever watchful Russians. Notice they didn’t bother conferring with Russia’s ally China. Turkey, I’m sure, will go along with us if we pay her enough and will do her part to maintain the peace in the Middle East. The Bushites would like this missile defense system operational by 2005 but have conceded it may not be a go until 2010 given the complexities of the system. We seem to be the only ones paying for this missile defense system to protect the world. We taxpayers should heartily object.]

QUESTIONS FOR SECRETARY OF STATE COLIN POWELL BEFORE THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

U.S. Representative Dr. Ron Paul’s
Freedom Report, 4/8/01

Secretary Powell, thank you for your time and please answer the following questions:

[JR’s “perception” of what Sir Powell’s responses might be to these questions is in bold type.]

1. On the topic of the International Criminal Court, I have two questions. I am pleased that the administration, as well as the Chairman of this Committee, have spoken against the ICC treaty as an infringement upon U.S. sovereignty. As a policy matter, can you explain why the administration has not spoken similarly against the WTO, the International War Crimes Tribunal, or the idea of fighting wars based on UN or NATO resolutions and why these instrumentalities are any less threatening to our sovereignty? Also on the ICC topic, if the administration is not going to pursue ratification of the treaty, will you support my resolution, H Con Res 23, calling on the President to declare to all nations that the United States does not assent to the treaty and that the signature of former President Clinton should not be construed to mean otherwise?

[JR’s Powell: The WTO is promoting global markets around the world and is in the best interest of the U.S. As for our participation in the UN and NATO we are fulfilling our responsibilities as a superpower and as a world leader. We lead and the world follows. We object to the ICC because it subjects our troops and administrators serving overseas to possible criminal prosecution by a foreign court system. As to supporting your resolution I will withhold comment until the issue is brought up by the President.]

2. Since World War II, each of our Presidents have engaged in wars—both big and small, from Korea to the continued bombing of Iraq—without an explicit declaration of war from Congress. Yet, the Constitution clearly vests the decision to go to war (as opposed to its execution by the commander-in chief, once declared), with the Congress. If, however, the “war decision” is allowed to come from Presidential directives or UN resolutions, of what value to the American people is the Constitutional constraint upon a President who would otherwise wage war without Congressional approval? Do you believe the War Powers Resolution is unconstitutional? If so, why? If not, why not?

[JR’s Powell: No, the War Powers Act is not unconstitutional because Congress granted those powers to the President to make unilateral decisions to fulfill our obligations under the treaties we sign.]

3. Is it not clear that a U.S. treaty, although it is called the law of the land, was never intended to be used to amend our Constitution?

[JR’s Powell: That’s a matter for Congress to debate.]

4. Why do we trade and subsidize a country like China, pursue talks with Iran and North Korea, and act as a conduit for peace in the Middle East while all we seem to know what to do with Iraq is bomb, kill, and impose sanctions? Surely we are not expected to believe Saddam Hussein is the only totalitarian in power today?

[JR's Powell: The U.S. position is that Saddam is as much a threat to the peace in the Middle East today as he was 10 years ago. China, Iran and North Korea have not moved in a hostile manner towards their neighbors.]

5. Is not the continued bombing of Iraq an act of war? Where does the administration get its authority to pursue this war? Is this policy not in violation of our Constitution that says only Congress can declare war? There is not even a UN resolution calling for the U.S.-British imposed no-fly zone over Iraq. Our allies have almost all deserted us on our policy toward Iraq. Is it not time to talk to the Iraqis? We talked to the Soviets at the height of the Cold War, surely we can do the same with Iraq today. We trade with and subsidize China and we talk to the Iranians, surely we can trade with Iraq...?

[JR's Powell: Congressman Paul, I respect your concerns but I don't have the time to debate these complex issues you presented today.]

6. If investors of a foreign nation had a stake in oil production in the Gulf of Mexico and their country was dependent on oil imports for subsistence, is that country justified in militarily dominating the Gulf and use of U.S. soil for basing operations? My guess is Americans would be furious even if done with our government official's approval. Yet we expect the Arab world—a world quite different from ours—to accept our presence and domination. Is it not possible for our policy in the region to show more “humility” rather than pursue a policy that incites Islamic fundamentalists against us leading to what they see as acts of self defense and we see as acts of terrorism?

[JR's Powell: We were invited by the Saudis to protect their interests.]

7. How would you, the U.S. government, and the American people respond if a foreign power subsidized subversive groups whose goal it was to overthrow our government as we are doing with the Iraqi National Congress?

[JR's Powell: We would take appropriate measures that would circumvent any such activities.]

8. In your earlier remarks before this committee you said that you regard the military as a vital component of U.S. foreign policy. I am wondering if you, as a former military officer, would comment on the antiquated idea of a military draft and selective service registration. I believe you have spoken against the draft in the past. Do you still hold that a draft is unwarranted? Would you support ending draft registration?

[JR's Powell: That problem has not presented itself as yet.] With respect, I thank you, Mr. Powell.

LIBYA ACCUSES 6 BULGARIANS OF INFECTING KIDS WITH HIV

By David Holley, Los Angeles Times, 5/10/01

WARSAW—It all sounds too bizarre for anyone to take seriously. But for six Bulgarian medical workers imprisoned in Libya, outlandish accusations by Libyan leader Col. Moammar Gadhafi about a plot to spread AIDS are no joke.

A Libyan prosecutor is seeking the death penalty against the five nurses and one doctor, who are charged with intentionally infecting 393 children with HIV at a hospital in the Libyan city of Benghazi. The indictment says the Bulgarians sought to undermine the security of the Libyan state.

The trial, which opened in February but has repeatedly been adjourned, is scheduled to resume Sunday. The proceedings in Libya have prompted outrage by the government and public in Bulgaria, where the charges are seen as motivated by Gadhafi's political calculations.

In a speech to the African summit on HIV/AIDS held in Nigeria in late April, Gadhafi told of a vast conspiracy in which the CIA created HIV, the virus that causes AIDS; Western pharmaceutical companies profit from it; and the Bulgarians gave it to Libyan children for experimental purposes, perhaps at the behest of U.S. or Israeli intelligence services.

In a possible clue to his motivations, Gadhafi vaguely linked the prosecution of the Bulgarians to the recent trial in a Scottish court of two Libyan suspects in the 1988 bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland, that killed 270 people.

The Bulgarians will face “an international trial, like the Lockerbie trial,” Gadhafi said, without elaborating.

The Scottish court convicted one Lockerbie defendant and acquitted the other. Many observers suspect Gadhafi ordered the aircraft's bombing in revenge for a U.S. bombing raid on Libya in 1986 in which two of his sons were wounded and his 15-month-old adopted daughter was killed. Washington said the raid was aimed at a Libyan terror network.

Bulgarian Foreign Minister Nadezhda Mikhailova met Monday with Arab ambassadors in Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, to complain that Gadhafi appeared to be seeking political benefits from the trial of the medical personnel.

“The analogy made with the Lockerbie trial prompts thoughts about political moves aimed at turning the Bulgarian citizens into scapegoats for settling scores with other countries,” Mikhailova said.

Bulgaria will ask the World Health Organization, the International Committee of the Red Cross, the Red Crescent Society and relevant bodies of the United Nations to get involved in medical aspects of the case, Bulgaria's state-run radio reported.

[JR: Col. Gadhafi of Libya is not likely to declare himself a friend of Israel or the U.S. Gadhafi's charge that the HIV/AIDS virus was developed jointly by the U.S. and Israel as a biological weapon, is not without merit. The same charges have been raised here in the U.S. and elsewhere. If the UN/WHO want to investigate the charges and become involved it might make things even more interesting. The WHO has been ineffective in combating the AIDS pandemic that is rampant in South Africa and in other underdeveloped countries. If Libya is a targeted foe and the Bulgarians are involved, one could speculate that there might be some truth to Gadhafi's charges. Bulgaria has been involved in one of the world's most famous political intrigue incidents (i.e. the shooting of the Pope). Are the Bulgarians still in this intrigue game and has Gadhafi nailed the right culprits?]

THE EUROPEAN COURT OF HUMAN RIGHTS RULED AGAINST TURKEY

Daily News, 5/10/01

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (AP)—The European Court of Human Rights ruled Thursday that Turkey was guilty of 14 violations of its human rights convention in a case brought by the Cypriot government over the 27-year Turkish occupation of the island's north.

The court's panel of judges in Strasbourg, France, voted 16-1 to hold Turkey responsible for rights violations on the island.

The Turkish government had argued it does not have jurisdiction over northern Cyprus, claiming responsibility lies with the Turkish-Cypriot administration, which is not recognized by any other nation apart from Turkey.

Complaints upheld against Turkey included failing to investigate the disappearance of Greek Cypriots after the 1974 invasion; inhuman treatment of the family of missing Greek Cypriots; denying Greek Cypriots the right to return to their homes; failure to compensate for loss of property; interference with freedom of religion; restrictions on education and discrimination against Greek Cypriots living in the Karpas Peninsula in the Turkish-controlled North.

However the court rejected Cypriot claims Turkey violated other clauses in the European Convention on Human Rights, including those relating to slavery and forced labor, and freedom of assembly.

Turkish troops invaded Cyprus in 1974 after an abortive coup on the island by Greek Cypriots supporting union with Greece.

In the wake of the invasion, 180,000 Greek Cypriots fled or were expelled from the north, where Turkey maintains 35,000 troops in support of the local Turkish government.

The Greek Cypriot government in the south is the only administration on the island with international recognition. It brought similar cases against Turkey three times in the 1970s and was backed by the court, but there was no follow-up because under rules at the time the verdicts were not binding.

Changes in the rules during the 1990s mean the new ruling should be binding on Turkey.

However, the Turkish authorities have refused to abide by a previous binding ruling on Cyprus. In 1998, the court found in favor of a Greek Cypriot woman, Titinia Loizidou, who was forced from her home after the invasion. It ordered Turkey to pay her $611,000 in damages.

Turkey has refused to do so, drawing condemnation from other members of the Council of Europe and a threat by Cyprus that it will seek Turkey's expulsion from the 43-member organization set up in 1949 to promote European unity, democracy and human rights.

Scores of other Greek Cypriot individuals have also brought cases against Turkey.

The Cyprus issue and Turkey's human rights record are major hindrances to Turkey's progress in seeking membership of the 15-nation European Union.

[JR: After 30 years Turkey has yet to abide by the edicts handed down by the European court regarding Cyprus. For over 300 years Turkey was the sole ruler of Cyprus until she lost the war with Britain in 1915. After carving up what is now Saudi Arabia, Britain annexed Cyprus and declared it a British colony after first offering it to the Greeks. The Greeks refused the offer because they didn't want to take sides with Britain against the Serbs. Doesn't it all seem connected to events occurring today? Britain still has influence in Cypriot affairs as she has retained sovereignty over the two military bases she has in South Cyprus at Dhekhelia and Akrotiri. After 85 years nothing has changed in the Elite's plans to manipulate the events in this region.]

Nevada Corporations In The New Corporate World

By Ron Kirzinger, 5/19/01

In recent discussions we have focused on the changes being put in place through Senate Bill 51 regarding corporate entities in Nevada by the current biannual session of the Nevada Legislature. This bill has now been passed by the Assembly by a vote of 41-0 and awaits signing by the Governor to become “the law”, at which point we will know the date on which its provisions will become effective—probably July 1, 2001.

In broad summary:

- 1) There will be little changed with regard to C corporations. The most noticeable change is that corporations will go into revoked status after 2 years instead of just 9 months.
- 2) LLCs are becoming an increasingly interesting corporate form with the addition of a provision for “noneconomic member” status, through which any member may have private control without ownership. This will make possible many additional strategies and as a result we expect the popularity of LLCs to increase dramatically.
- 3) The biggest changes by far are in the area of mergers, where it will now be possible for virtually ANY entity—whether registered or not and no matter where in the world it is located—to “clone” itself as any type of Nevada-based entity. Then, if desirable, the entity in the foreign jurisdiction may be dissolved, thus accomplishing a full withdrawal to the haven of Nevada with its protective statutes. These changes are expected to result in nothing less significant than Nevada becoming the incorporation capital of the world, with much of the money that has fled to offshore “tax havens” coming to Nevada instead.

The merger provisions appear to be aimed at opening up a back door for those with offshore entities to move their structures to the haven of Nevada without running the risk of “money laundering”. There is no doubt that there will be much activity of this kind once the implications of the new legislation are widely understood.

How does all this affect the “little guy” with a corporation (or ten) already in place but without sophisticated (and now imperiled) “offshore” structures? Know that the privacy of Nevada corporate shelters is only being enhanced and that your investment in a Nevada shelter is looking better and better all the time—whether you are presently using it or not.

These changes will probably add significantly to the demand for aged “shelf” corporations, so if you are sitting on one or a few of them you might soon start to feel a bit like the goose with the golden egg. If you might be interested in parting with a shelter that you are not using, contact Budget Corporate Renewals and we will put it “on consignment”. It could take a while for the demand to really be felt, however, so just sit tight and don’t expect to immediately find the best price. The market for these entities is relatively “thin” right now with few buyers and sellers but again, this is expected to change as global interest in Nevada shelters picks up.

For those of you without any golden eggs—the writing appears to be on the wall, so perhaps you should consider establishing a corporation (or ten) to take advantage of the expected changes. Up ’til now, shelf corporations have been appreciating by anywhere from $1,000 to $1,500 per year, on maintenance costs of less than $500 per year, everything included. What could happen to these appreciation numbers as demand exceeds available supply is anyone’s guess—but it does bode well for those with any supply at all.

It is hard to imagine a better legacy to leave as one’s estate than a bushel of tremendously versatile financial shelters, none of which needs to pass through the probate process to provide your heirs with some truly amazing benefits.

For those of you working with Nevada corporations, you already know the benefits of liability protection—and, no doubt, significant tax savings—firsthand. But let’s consider the impact of the new statutes on possible strategies for you, too.

We have often said that there is great benefit to be derived from staying small and keeping a low profile. Thus, as your non-Nevada business grew you might have spun off, say, a marketing company, which had a corresponding, private Nevada C corporation with which it did business. Then, as your business got bigger still, you might have spun off a new company to handle opportunities in a new market area. It, too, might have done business with a corresponding, private Nevada C corporation in such a way that profits were earned in Nevada instead of your home-state jurisdiction. An added benefit has been that assets have been accumulated in Nevada, where liability protection is strongest. This approach has worked well but now, as the Nevada LLC “comes of age” through the new changes in the laws, perhaps another strategy can be made to work even better.

One of the risks in the past has been IRC 482, which allows the Internal Revenue Service to deem any group of companies to be a “controlled group”, regardless of actual cross-ownership or lack thereof. Thus, structuring a separate, new, corresponding Nevada C corporation for each entity in the home-state jurisdiction tended to stand out as a potential application for IRC 482.

A different approach would be to have the home-state entity do business with a Nevada LLC set up as a partnership—and thus, non-taxable. Each member of the LLC—which can have virtually any number of members, each of which constitutes a separate “pocket” for tax purposes—could be a private Nevada C corporation. This arrangement formalizes the separate nature of the members and should virtually eliminate attempts by the IRS to impose IRC 482.

Taking this approach further in light of the new provision for “noneconomic member” status (control without ownership) and other new provisions, the Nevada LLC could be directed to flow income through to its members in virtually ANY proportion. (In the past this had to be pretty much in proportion to membership interest, which was quite restrictive. Three equal members of the LLC would, prior to now, have to be apportioned income equally, regardless of other considerations.)

In addition to this benefit of being able to control the flow of income out to the private members of an LLC, liability protection, already good, can now be even better. When a litigant wins a suit against a member of a partnership (as this example is structured), all the successful litigant can obtain is a “charging order” against any disbursements made to that particular member. Now that there is a measure of control over the disbursement of income from a Nevada LLC, can you see how it can be possible to prevent the charging order from ever having any actual effect?

Summing up this example for those with successful and growing businesses in foreign jurisdictions: The new provisions affecting LLCs now make it desirable to use a Nevada LLC as the principle correspondent entity for a home-state business. For this purpose the Nevada LLC should be set up to flow-through its income to any number of private Nevada C corporations. A Nevada LLC set up for management by its members is the ideal intermediary for income splitting AND can prevent successful litigation against any of its members.

If this approach appeals to you but you are currently set up with a Nevada C corporation—don’t worry! One of the new provisions in Nevada’s corporate statutes allows for any domestic entity to convert itself into any other type of entity, so the C corporation could merely “change its spots” and become an LLC—but you would want to have at least a couple of members of the LLC in any case for partnership treatment and flow-through income. Alternatively, the C corporation could become a member of a new LLC, alongside any other members.

What if you are just setting up a new, small business in a jurisdiction outside of Nevada? It is always wise, of course, to establish a corresponding Nevada entity with which that “foreign” company can do business. Because of the new ability to spot-change, it really doesn’t matter much which type of entity is first established as the Nevada correspondent. A C corporation is perhaps easier to understand and can always be used as your business grows and the need for more complex structuring evolves.

What if your business is—or could be—Internet-based? If your business does not need to occupy physical space and deal with retail or walk-in traffic—it SHOULD be based in the haven of Nevada! Reaching a little, let's say you have a web-site design and consulting company in Pakistan but you sell your company's services over the Internet. First, it might be good to acknowledge that no matter what your level of national pride, U.S.-based products and services are generally both more highly regarded and they command a higher price.

Perhaps you thrive on and enjoy being an underdog—but do you really have to accept that role and less pay in order to compete from an inferior position? You certainly don't have to and that is made even more clear by the upcoming changes in Nevada's corporate statutes. You might have the competitive advantage of being able to underbid U.S. competitors by a large margin due to the low wages paid to your talented programmers—but what if you could underbid your U.S. competitors AS a U.S.-based entity? It certainly should lead to better profit margins.

As part of the forthcoming changes in Nevada law, ANY FOREIGN ENTITY CAN DUPLICATE ITSELF AS ANY TYPE OF NEVADA ENTITY. That company of yours in Pakistan or anywhere else in the world can instantly materialize right here in Nevada, properly hold itself out as a U.S.-based business and completely change its presentation.

Instead of bidding skilled jobs at $10-$15 per hour, a high rate at home, the same programming could be done on behalf of a Nevada-based entity considered very competitive at $50 per hour. That money could be made in a Nevada LLC set up for flow-through treatment of income—and the flow could be directed in the most desirable way. Flow some through to the workers for their needs, of course (a raise might be in order), and split some off for yourself and maybe, just maybe, start to build a little into a private C corporation (or several) in Nevada for future business ideas and development. The effect of this splitting of income within any kind of graduated-income-tax system is, of course, much lower tax rates. Some Canadians, for instance, have experienced a reduction from top rates near 62% (yoiks!!!) to the corporate rate of just 15% on the first $50,000 of net income in Nevada—that's a saving of 47%!

Eventually you might choose to dissolve the home-state business while retaining its Nevada base, thereby availing yourself of Nevada's pro-business, "haven" status.

Another great advantage for foreign nationals with a corporation based in the U.S., of course, is the potential for special working visas. The most advantageous of these might be the 3-year L visa, which allows IBM, for instance, to move a worker from London today to New York tomorrow. Under this type of visa, a corporation may bring in any manager or executive to work within its U.S. operations.

Is all of this some kind of "magic"? No, although perhaps devised by certain behind-the-scenes, would-be magicians, it's just the nature of the new corporate world, within which you can play the role of a corporate slave—or a corporate manager. The best part is that the "little guy" can have all of the advantages of the "Big Boys" with one in addition: the ability to remain small and keep a low profile.

NEVADA CORPORATIONS:

The Myth And Reality Of Dividend Double-Taxation

Budget's "Tip of the Week" #13:

Getting Money Out of a Corporation Avoiding Double Taxation on Dividends

"You don't want to take income into a corporation because there is double-taxation on dividends." This statement is only partly true and a half-truth is almost always intended to mislead. The truth is that a corporation earns money on which it is taxed; then, IF it pays out a dividend, the dividend is taxable in the hands of the recipient. Perhaps a better way to express the truth of the matter would be: You don't want to pay dividends out of a corporation because they are subject to double taxation. But there are many other ways of taking money out of a corporation, so the real question is why you would ever take it out in the form of dividends.

The primary method for taking money out of a corporation is in the form of payments for services rendered. Any such payment is a deductible expense to the corporation, reducing its taxable income. At the same time, however, such a payment becomes taxable income for the recipient. You don't want to receive much income personally because in all likelihood you will pay more in taxes on income received personally than the corporation would pay in retaining that income itself. On the other hand, if an individual keeps living expenses moderate and takes out only what he needs, his personal tax rate is often not much higher than that on corporate income, resulting in an effective income split and reduced overall taxation.

Keep in mind that a corporation can pay wages to any number of persons for services rendered, so it can be quite practical to have your spouse or children on the payroll, as long as they do, indeed, provide some sort of valuable service. And before you dismiss the possibility of payments to your children, consider the potential value of intellectual property. Yes, a good idea for developing the business is compensatable as "intellectual property". No spouse and no children and still need some income splitting? Perhaps you could acquire or pay for the "intellectual property" of another private corporation?

Don't forget that a corporation may hold assets in the form of retained earnings. Without stating a specific plan of development, it is considered reasonable for any corporation to keep up to $250,000 in retained earnings for future business development. Earnings may still be retained above this level without triggering the accumulated earnings surcharge prescribed by Internal Revenue Code 531-537 provided there is a plan for expansion of the business (this could include, for instance, the acquisition of another business); for paying off debts; for product liability loss reserves; for supplying loans to either customers or suppliers to maintain the viability of the business; or for the need for increased working capital (say, to acquire additional inventory for the business).
