Government-Sponsored Terrorism: Innocent Are Always Casualties

9/13/01—#1 (15-028)

RE: U.S. TRADE CENTER; TERRORISM; LOOK AT THE PLAYERS INVOLVED AND ACCUSED. YOU ARE WELCOME TO YOUR OPINIONS—DO NOT CLAIM THEM FOR HATONN OR OUR PROGRAM

RARELY ARE THINGS AS THEY APPEAR

Hatonn—Before I even start discussions from this vantage point I want you at the paper to know that I would far rather you publish as much on the Trade Center matters as you can gather as is the FTW SPECIAL ALERT [MM: see below] as Ron K. sent from Teri for sharing. We are going to depend on you as “staff” to get these things published, please. If you want to sort all of this, stay with the alternate press and these writers who recognize what is actually taking place. I repeat: IT IS NOT WHAT IT APPEARS TO BE.

FTW SPECIAL ALERT 09-11-2001

U.S. ECONOMY MAY BE TURNED UPSIDE DOWN AS A RESULT OF ATTACKS. ALL PRECIOUS METAL

EXCHANGES DESTROYED WITH THE COMEX AT WORLD TRADE CENTER.

©COPYRIGHT 2001—FTW PUBLICATIONS
(WWW.COPVCIA.COM)

The most immediate results of the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon may be felt throughout the U.S. economy within the next 3-5 days and certainly in the next three weeks. As FTW has been noting in special subscriber bulletins within the last week, the eve of the terrorist attacks was marked by incredible instability in U.S. financial markets including the DOW. FTW had clearly predicted a highly unstable economic situation marked by long-term, artificially suppressed gold prices and a $30 trillion derivatives bubble on the verge of exploding as the DOW was poised for a simultaneous epochal implosion.

Initial indicators show that the London gold price rose by more than 5% in just the first two hours after the bombings before the London markets closed. FTW predicts that trading will be suspended on the NYSE for the immediate future and that a run on U.S. banks is a distinct possibility. Limited martial law is virtually a certainty and, if coupled with a run on the banks, might produce even more severe restrictions of civil liberties.

It is important to avoid speculation at present but one of the least understood immediate effects of these attacks will be on the U.S. economy. The COMEX, the centralized trading floor for all precious metals—along with NY representative offices for every major foreign national bank—was destroyed as the World Trade Center collapsed. So were all the records of gold pricing and sales.

Investor confidence and world confidence in U.S. markets and the U.S. economy will inevitably be impacted negatively. We must leave aside speculation about motive for the moment. But if Osama bin Laden is officially named as the culprit, a host of unpleasant questions will dog the U.S. government. Not the least of these is how the CIA will explain that bin Laden was and is a CIA creation from the Afghan conflict of the 1980s. FTW reported major holes in the government's official position vis a vis bin Laden in 1998.

The logistical and financial infrastructure required for this attack was, in my opinion, far beyond any known capability of any known terrorist organization. I immediately rule out the Palestinians as suspects because it would be a suicidal move on their part. As politicians like Kissinger and McCain call this “an act of war” one glaring inconsistency jumps out: Who is the enemy and where are they? Henry Kissinger was talking about retaliatory attacks even before there is ANY idea of where or whom to attack.

With such a mentality the only place to attack is against the American people by restricting civil liberties.

At this point FTW advises against panic and against a run on banks or food stores. The most important thing we can do is to sit down with paper, pen and computers and document every news report on every news agency, especially those overseas. We already know that the major media cannot be relied upon to tell us the whole truth. Perspectives from both the left and the right have given us a multitude of past stories where the truth has been hidden rather than told.

The most important thing to watch now is the world economy and to rely on our own ability to research, document, record and think for ourselves.—Mike Ruppert, Publisher/Editor: From The Wilderness; www.copvicia.com

I suggest you all be alert and find out how many of the MAJOR players were present at their offices when those planes hit. I'm sure, that just as with the Oklahoma City debacle, there will be revealing evidence by just checking who was at their desk on Tuesday morning.

I ask that everyone who shares in our hopes will realize that again I state emphatically and CLEARLY: We are NOT in any way, shape, or form practicing politics or into medicine or handling ANY KIND of "DRUGS", medicines or other things being discussed by anyone and shared with our readers. Spelt is a better grain than wheat, especially refined wheat and thus and so. It is an ancient grain and because it first was known in the Ancient Iraq area does NOT make it a political grain. It was Sumarian in recognition and scattered all over everywhere, even into Southeast Asia.

The same holds true with the colloids—these are ancient things used effectively and are totally HARMLESS. If they are considered as "medicines" or "drugs", then why do YOU NOT HAVE THEM AVAILABLE TO YOU?

I have never suggested that anything cures anything—that is for the individual in point. Is it now going to be unlawful to wash your hands under water even if you use no soap? Moreover, the people who wrote about any product, even Dr. Young and Mr. Martin, were actively participating in New Gaia (and, yes, Dr. Young WAS involved, for he was paid and expected to be paid from that resource—every week).

Someone—and, yes we do know who all—gave affidavits stating: "I have knowledge that these computers have been used to distribute 'drugs'..." And, yes, if it goes to direct court, those parties are on the line. So far the Feds are obligated to protect their "sources" but they let too much information slip through. Now, anyone who can claim to have direct access to computers is someone who works with those computers—right?

When we look at other things, we do find, however, that even though there was an effort to remove things from the CONTACT computers, there was enough left on them to be most interesting indeed and certainly full information as to who and why a few of the "inside" people would be out to "get" New Gaia.

I would add that the "collusion" then reached over to Nevada Corporate Headquarters, with staff. Well, things do come around, my friends, as NCH bought into NADN and now there is a major suit against them and since Cort Christie is NADN CEO, it is a difficult time even if nothing comes from it. Truly, readers, it is a hard time on Planet Earth.

Yes, I know that our readers could always, back in the U.S. when life was far different, expect an immediate meeting with "me", some doughnuts to soothe the body, and tapes to be played later to soothe the nerves. So, at the Trade Center, New York City, those incredible terrorist activities fit the mold of proper importance but my speaker is thousands of miles distant in a foreign land and can't run over to somewhere else to share. We can't even put it to tape because the audiotapes are intercepted even though there is nothing to "intercept". WE DO NOTHING TO EVEN BRING ATTENTION TO ANYTHING. WE CAN, HOWEVER, SHARE A LOT OF THINGS, RUMORS, ARTICLES AND SOME SPECULATION ALREADY RUNNING ABOUT, ON THESE TOPICS AT HAND AND AT THE LEAST SHARE OBSERVATIONS.

This is why I ask that you pay attention to the money circumstances around the globe AND PAY CAREFUL ATTENTION TO THE METALS MARKETS—a lot of records BIT THE DUST (OR ASHES AS THE CASE IS).

Regarding the terrorism, let us just share the paper "Banner Line" today: "Bin Laden group planned plane attacks 6 years ago. (Story on page 4)"

Now, when you get to page 4 it is a full-face jab. It was planned and worked out in the Philippines—6 years ago. Just a bit different, same players, however, and it is NOT lost on Filipinos that the Abu Sayyaf terrorists, along with BIN LADEN—WERE TRAINED BY THE CIA AND MOSSAD FOR AFGHANISTAN. SO GUESS WHERE YOU END UP TODAY?

Bad as it may be for the U.S. to believe, it is generally thought, and the babble is, that the "Jews" pulled this as an inside job. This one act covers the financial debacles, gains sympathy against the Arabs and Palestinians while overnight the Israelis moved tanks, etc., into Palestine.

Possible? Well, we can offer some instances where it has happened in the past to gain advantage. One of the more evident episodes was the ship USS LIBERTY and which we were again reminded by The American Free Press, not only happened but finally, after years, fully admitted by participants that it was truly an Israeli attack. And, yes, we can share that with you but, again, I am not going to do revelations and accusations because that is not our task at hand.

Could I share openly? Yes, but the moment that I do so the enemies move into action AGAINST us. I write on things like liquid oxygen and immediately the information is passed on and the harangues hit. Things that have no claim to medicine of any kind are twisted and cause great pain and problems for everyone.

I will no longer give any cause to further hurt my team—period.

It has been a few very bad days over in our camp also, friends. The U.S. Embassy is in seclusion under heavy guard. All U.S. citizens are again told not to go anywhere. But worse, all flights to the U.S. are on hold and the wonderment is "say what?"

The banks all over Southeast Asia are in total confusion and some, Malaysia specifically, have closed their banks because of the incident in New York. Smart move.

Why? Because the rumors ARE that the whole incident to the center of the World capitalism market is to cover the collapse of the dollar and the markets. More likely, dear readers, is to get rid of the information from the Metals Global exchanges, holders and records.

Note that the WHOLE of the buildings were deliberately set in detonation as to make very sure the whole of both would be totally destroyed and no half-baked scheme to tell-tale. YOU SAW IT RIGHT IN FRONT OF YOU, CITIZENS. THOSE BUILDINGS WERE BROUGHT DOWN EXACTLY LIKE ANY OTHER BUILDING DEMOLITION—ACCORDING TO PLAN—AND EXACTLY LIKE THE FEDERAL BUILDING IN OKLAHOMA CITY WAS SUPPOSED TO HAVE WORKED.

Are any of you awake yet? We certainly do not need to nor wish to confuse you or cause you lack of realization—right to the showing of a few Palestine villagers and children thinking it great sport that someone took on the big bad wolf called the U.S./Israel. And, no, there is no joke here. We are talking Talmudic Zionists and Goyim—and remember that everyone who is not a Talmudic Zionist IS A GOYIM. This just got well clarified in Africa via the United Nations this week!

Can you go back to sleep, Global citizens? I certainly wouldn't expect it to be wise to do so, unless you are ready to simply stay asleep for a very long time.

I would offer some interesting MAJOR networking information being passed around on the text systems: "In the City of York there will be a great collapse, twin brothers torn apart by chaos. While the fortress falls, the great leader will succumb. The third big war will begin when the big city is burning." (Nostradamus) (??)

Even the Filipinos are pretty confident, it seems, about what that might mean.

The Filipino underground (the masa) is in fear today and it is projected through the television news as they also have constant and uninterrupted playing over and over of the tragedy by CNN. The Filipinos are ACTUALLY IN FEAR that the United States will take control of them (the Philippines) as a "staging point" for "their" war.

Go back to the NOW KNOWN FACTS of the local Abu Sayyaf and the ridiculous nonsense taking place in Mindanao. One of the Congressional hearings taking place in Manila is that the top Philippine military leaders in Mindanao were "paid off" by elements in the Abu Sayyaf, handsomely, to keep the Abu Sayyaf safe and free. Now where would such money come from, friends? That bunch is also armed to their teeth with weapons brought directly through the CIA from ISRAEL. THIS IS COMMON KNOWLEDGE HERE.

I do ask that the WASHINGTON POST articles be run in the paper and see if you still think some bankrupt Arab could pull off this kind of mass-murder.

Washington's Backing of Afghan Terrorists:
Deliberate Policy

From www.tenc.net [Emperor's Clothes]

Introductory note: In the Times of India article reprinted on Emperor's Clothes under the title "CIA worked with Pakistan to create Taliban", analyst Selig Harrison is quoted as follows:

"The CIA made a historic mistake in encouraging Islamic groups from all over the world to come to Afghanistan.' The U.S. provided $3 billion for building up these Islamic groups, and it accepted Pakistan's demand that they should decide how this money should be spent, Harrison said."

I disagree. The creation of Islamist terrorist organizations by the CIA has been a key part of U.S. policy, first in attacking the Soviet Union, and since then in an on-going war against Russia and the countries of the former Soviet Union and against Yugoslavia.

As the following article from the Washington Post shows, Washington was no distant financier of the Afghan terrorists, unaware of how its money was being spent. Rather, it controlled the action. Today, Washington publicly condemns Islamist terrorism but this is two-faced, for at the same time Washington and its partners continue to create, support and manage Islamist terrorist and related groups (for instance, the 'Kosovo Liberation Army' terrorists). For Washington, organized terror is a weapon of Empire.—Jared Israel.

Anatomy of a Victory: CIA's Covert Afghan War
By Steve Coll, Washington Post, July 19, 1992

A specially equipped C-141 Starlifter transport carrying William Casey touched down at a military air base south of Islamabad in October 1984 for a secret visit by the CIA director to plan strategy for the war against Soviet forces in Afghanistan. Helicopters lifted Casey to three secret training camps near the Afghan border, where he watched mujaheddin rebels fire heavy weapons and learn to make bombs with CIA-supplied plastic explosives and detonators.

During the visit, Casey startled his Pakistani hosts by proposing that they take the Afghan war into enemy territory—into the Soviet Union itself. Casey wanted to ship subversive propaganda through Afghanistan to the Soviet Union’s predominantly Muslim southern republics. The Pakistanis agreed, and the CIA soon supplied thousands of Korans, as well as books on Soviet atrocities in Uzbekistan and tracts on historical heroes of Uzbek nationalism, according to Pakistani and Western officials.

“We can do a lot of damage to the Soviet Union,” Casey said, according to Mohammed Yousaf, a Pakistani general who attended the meeting.

Casey’s visit was a prelude to a secret Reagan administration decision in March 1985, reflected in National Security Decision Directive 166, to sharply escalate U.S. covert action in Afghanistan, according to Western officials. Abandoning a policy of simple harassment of Soviet occupiers, the Reagan team decided secretly to let loose on the Afghan battlefield an array of U.S. high technology and military expertise in an effort to hit and demoralize Soviet commanders and soldiers. Casey saw it as a prime opportunity to strike at an overextended, potentially vulnerable Soviet empire.

Eight years after Casey’s visit to Pakistan, the Soviet Union is no more. Afghanistan has fallen to the heavily armed, fratricidal mujaheddin rebels. The Afghans themselves did the fighting and dying—and ultimately won their war against the Soviets—and not all of them laud the CIA’s role in their victory. But even some sharp critics of the CIA agree that in military terms, its secret 1985 escalation of covert support to the mujaheddin made a major difference in Afghanistan, the last battlefield of the long Cold War.

How the Reagan administration decided to go for victory in the Afghan war between 1984 and 1988 has been shrouded in secrecy and clouded by the sharply divergent political agendas of those involved. But with the triumph of the mujaheddin rebels over Afghanistan’s leftist government in April and the demise of the Soviet Union, some intelligence officials involved have decided to reveal how the covert escalation was carried out.

The most prominent of these former intelligence officers is Yousaf, the Pakistani general who supervised the covert war between 1983 and 1987 and who last month published in Europe and Pakistan a detailed account of his role and that of the CIA, titled “The Bear Trap”.

This article and another to follow are based on extensive interviews with Yousaf as well as with more than a dozen senior Western officials who confirmed Yousaf’s disclosures and elaborated on them.

U.S. officials worried about what might happen if aspects of their stepped-up covert action were exposed—or if the program succeeded too well and provoked the Soviets to react in hot anger. The escalation that began in 1985 “was directed at killing Russian military officers,” one Western official said. “That caused a lot of nervousness.”

One source of jitters was that Pakistani intelligence officers—partly inspired by Casey—began independently to train Afghans and funnel CIA supplies for scattered strikes against military installations, factories and storage depots within Soviet territory.

The attacks later alarmed U.S. officials in Washington, who saw military raids on Soviet territory as “an incredible escalation”, according to Graham Fuller, then a senior U.S. intelligence official who counseled against any such raids. Fearing a large-scale Soviet response and the fallout of such attacks on U.S.-Soviet diplomacy, the Reagan administration blocked the transfer to Pakistan of detailed satellite photographs of military targets inside the Soviet Union, other U.S. officials said.

To Yousaf, who managed the Koran-smuggling program and the guerrilla raids inside Soviet territory, the United States ultimately “chickened out” on the question of taking the secret Afghan war onto Soviet soil. Nonetheless, Yousaf recalled, Casey was “ruthless in his approach, and he had a built-in hatred for the Soviets.”

An intelligence coup in 1984 and 1985 triggered the Reagan administration’s decision to escalate the covert program in Afghanistan, according to Western officials. The United States received highly specific, sensitive information about Kremlin politics and new Soviet war plans in Afghanistan. Already under pressure from Congress and conservative activists to expand its support to the mujaheddin, the Reagan administration moved in response to this intelligence to open up its high-technology arsenal to aid the Afghan rebels.

Beginning in 1985, the CIA supplied mujaheddin rebels with extensive satellite reconnaissance data of Soviet targets on the Afghan battlefield, plans for military operations based on the satellite intelligence, intercepts of Soviet communications, secret communications networks for the rebels, delayed timing devices for tons of C-4 plastic explosives for urban sabotage and sophisticated guerrilla attacks, long-range sniper rifles, a targeting device for mortars that was linked to a U.S. Navy satellite, wire-guided anti-tank missiles, and other equipment.

The move to upgrade aid to the mujaheddin roughly coincided with the well-known decision in 1986 to provide the mujaheddin with sophisticated, U.S.-made Stinger anti-aircraft missiles. Before the missiles arrived, however, those involved in the covert war wrestled with a wide-ranging and at times divisive debate over how far they should go in challenging the Soviet Union in Afghanistan.

Roots of the Rebellion

In 1980, not long after Soviet forces invaded Afghanistan to prop up a sympathetic leftist government, President Jimmy Carter signed the first—and for many years the only—presidential “finding” on Afghanistan, the classified directive required by U.S. law to begin covert operations, according to several Western sources familiar with the Carter document.

The Carter finding sought to aid Afghan rebels in “harassment” of Soviet occupying forces in Afghanistan through secret supplies of light weapons and other assistance. The finding did not talk of driving Soviet forces out of Afghanistan or defeating them militarily, goals few considered possible at the time, these sources said.

The cornerstone of the program was that the United States, through the CIA, would provide funds, some weapons and general supervision of support for the mujaheddin rebels, but day-to-day operations and direct contact with the mujaheddin would be left to the Pakistani Inter-Services Intelligence agency, or ISI. The hands-off U.S. role contrasted with CIA operations in Nicaragua and Angola.

Saudi Arabia agreed to match U.S. financial contributions to the mujaheddin and distributed funds directly to ISI. China sold weapons to the CIA and donated a smaller number directly to Pakistan, but the extent of China’s role has been one of the secret war’s most closely guarded secrets.

In all, the United States funneled more than $2 billion in guns and money to the mujaheddin during the 1980s, according to U.S. officials. It was the largest covert action program since World War II.

In the first years after the Reagan administration inherited the Carter program, the covert Afghan war “tended to be handled out of Casey’s back pocket”, recalled Ronald Spiers, a former U.S. ambassador to Pakistan, the base of the Afghan rebels. Mainly from China’s government, the CIA purchased assault rifles, grenade launchers, mines and SA-7 light anti-aircraft weapons, and then arranged for shipment to Pakistan. Most of the weapons dated to the Korean War or earlier. The amounts were significant—10,000 tons of arms and ammunition in 1983, according to Yousaf—but a fraction of what they would be in just a few years.

Beginning in 1984, Soviet forces in Afghanistan began to experiment with new and more aggressive tactics against the mujaheddin, based on the use of Soviet special forces, called the Spetsnaz, in helicopter-borne assaults on Afghan rebel supply lines. As these tactics succeeded, Soviet commanders pursued them increasingly, to the point where some U.S. congressmen who traveled with the mujaheddin—including Rep. Charles Wilson (D-Tex.) and Sen. Gordon Humphrey (R-N.H.)—believed that the war might turn against the rebels.

The new Soviet tactics reflected a perception in the Kremlin that the Red Army was in danger of becoming bogged down in Afghanistan and needed to take decisive steps to win the war, according to sensitive intelligence that reached the Reagan administration in 1984 and 1985, Western officials said. The intelligence came from the upper reaches of the Soviet Defense Ministry and indicated that Soviet hard-liners were pushing a plan to attempt to win the Afghan war within two years, sources said.

The new war plan was to be implemented by Gen. Mikhail Zaitsev, who was transferred from the prestigious command of Soviet forces in Germany to run the Soviet war in Afghanistan in the spring of 1985, just as Mikhail Gorbachev was battling hard-line rivals to take power in a Kremlin succession struggle.

Cracking the Kremlin’s Strategy

The intelligence about Soviet war plans in Afghanistan was highly specific, according to Western sources. The Soviets intended to deploy one-third of their total Spetsnaz forces in Afghanistan—nearly 2,000 “highly trained and motivated” paratroops, according to Yousaf. In addition, the Soviets intended to dispatch a stronger KGB presence to assist the special forces and regular troops, and they intended to deploy some of the Soviet Union’s most sophisticated battlefield communications equipment, referred to by some as the “Omsk vans”—mobile, integrated communications centers that would permit interception of mujaheddin battlefield communications and rapid, coordinated aerial attacks on rebel targets, such as the kind that were demoralizing the rebels by 1984.

At the Pentagon, U.S. military officers pored over the intelligence, considering plans to thwart the Soviet escalation, officials said. The answers they came up with, said a Western official, were to provide “secure communications [for the Afghan rebels], kill the gunships and the fighter cover, better routes for [mujaheddin] infiltration, and get to work on [Soviet] targets” in Afghanistan, including the Omsk vans, through the use of satellite reconnaissance and increased, specialized guerrilla training.

“There was a demand from my friends [in the CIA] to capture a vehicle intact with this sort of communications,” recalled Yousaf, referring to the newly introduced mobile Soviet facilities. Unfortunately, despite much effort, Yousaf said, “we never succeeded in that.”

“Spetsnaz was key,” said Vincent Cannistraro, a CIA operations officer who was posted at the time as director of intelligence programs at the National Security Council. Not only did communications improve, but the Spetsnaz forces were willing to fight aggressively and at night. The problem, Cannistraro said, was that as the Soviets moved to escalate, the U.S. aid was “just enough to get a very brave people killed” because it encouraged the mujaheddin to fight but did not provide them with the means to win.

Conservatives in the Reagan administration and especially in Congress saw the CIA as part of the problem. Humphrey, the former senator and a leading conservative supporter of the mujaheddin, found the CIA “really, really reluctant” to increase the quality of support for the Afghan rebels to meet Soviet escalation. For their part, CIA officers felt the war was not going as badly as some skeptics thought, and they worried that it might not be possible to preserve secrecy in the midst of a major escalation. A sympathetic U.S. official said the agency’s key decision-makers “did not question the wisdom” of the escalation, but were “simply careful”.

In March 1985, President Reagan signed National Security Decision Directive 166, and national security adviser Robert D. McFarlane signed an extensive annex, augmenting the original Carter intelligence finding that focused on “harassment” of Soviet occupying forces, according to several sources. Although it covered diplomatic and humanitarian objectives as well, the new, detailed Reagan directive used bold language to authorize stepped-up covert military aid to the mujaheddin, and it made clear that the secret Afghan war had a new goal: to defeat Soviet troops in Afghanistan through covert action and encourage a Soviet withdrawal.

New Covert U.S. Aid

The new covert U.S. assistance began with a dramatic increase in arms supplies—a steady rise to 65,000 tons annually by 1987, according to Yousaf—as well as what he called a “ceaseless stream” of CIA and Pentagon specialists who traveled to the secret headquarters of Pakistan’s ISI on the main road near Rawalpindi, Pakistan.

There the CIA specialists met with Pakistani intelligence officers to help plan operations for the Afghan rebels. At any one time during the Afghan fighting season, as many as 11 ISI teams trained and supplied by the CIA accompanied the mujaheddin across the border to supervise attacks, according to Yousaf and Western sources. The teams attacked airports, railroads, fuel depots, electricity pylons, bridges and roads, the sources said.

CIA and Pentagon specialists offered detailed satellite photographs and ink maps of Soviet targets around Afghanistan. The CIA station chief in Islamabad ferried U.S. intercepts of Soviet battlefield communications.

Other CIA specialists and military officers supplied secure communications gear and trained Pakistani instructors on how to use it. Experts on psychological warfare brought propaganda and books. Demolitions experts gave instructions on the explosives needed to destroy key targets such as bridges, tunnels and fuel depots. They also supplied chemical and electronic timing devices and remote control switches for delayed bombs and rockets that could be shot without a mujaheddin rebel present at the firing site.

The new efforts focused on strategic targets such as the Termez Bridge between Afghanistan and the Soviet Union. “We got the information like current speed of the water, current depth of the water, the width of the pillars, which would be the best way to demolish,” Yousaf said. In Washington, CIA lawyers debated whether it was legal to blow up pylons on the Soviet side of the bridge as opposed to the Afghan side, in keeping with the decision not to support military action across the Soviet border, a Western official said.

Despite several attempts, Afghan rebels trained in the new program never brought the Termez Bridge down, though they did damage and destroy other targets, such as pipelines and depots, in the sensitive border area, Western and Pakistani sources said.

The most valuable intelligence provided by the Americans was the satellite reconnaissance, Yousaf said. Soon the wall of Yousaf’s office was covered with detailed maps of Soviet targets in Afghanistan such as airfields, armories and military buildings. The maps came with CIA assessments of how best to approach the target, possible routes of withdrawal, and analysis of how Soviet troops might respond to an attack. “They would say there are the vehicles, and there is the [riverbank], and there is the tank,” Yousaf said.

CIA operations officers helped Pakistani trainers establish schools for the mujaheddin in secure communications, guerrilla warfare, urban sabotage and heavy weapons, Yousaf and Western officials said.

The first anti-aircraft systems used by the mujaheddin were the Swiss-made Oerlikon heavy gun and the British-made Blowpipe missile, according to Yousaf and Western sources. When these proved ineffective, the United States sent the Stinger. Pakistani officers traveled to the United States for training on the Stinger in June 1986 and then set up a secret mujaheddin Stinger training facility in Rawalpindi, complete with an electronic simulator made in the United States. The simulator allowed mujaheddin trainees to aim and fire at a large screen without actually shooting off expensive missiles, Yousaf said. The screen marked the missile’s track and calculated whether the trainee would have hit his airborne target.

Ultimately, the effectiveness of such training and battlefield intelligence depended on the mujaheddin themselves; their performance and willingness to employ disciplined tactics varied greatly. Yousaf considered the aid highly valuable, although persistently marred by supplies of weapons such as the Blowpipe that failed miserably on the battlefield.

At the least, the escalation on the U.S. side initiated with Reagan’s 1985 National Security Directive helped to change the character of the Afghan war, intensifying the struggle and raising the stakes for both sides. This change led U.S. officials to confront a difficult question that had legal, military, foreign policy and even moral implications: In taking the Afghan covert operation more directly to the Soviet enemy, how far should the United States be prepared to go?

The other hearings are revolving around who is responsible for drug traffic and a real standoff by one, Col. Corpus who accused the past administration and specifically Gen. Ping Lacson, now Senator, former head of the Philippine National Police of money laundering, drugs, graft, corruption, murder and you name it. Funny thing is that this Col. Corpus was formerly with the Communist Party and spent a lot of time in prison—but came out of prison in fine fettle, changed his allegiance and was again put into the Philippine Military.

Strangely enough Col. Corpus works for the current administration who seems to have authorized his very unusual intelligence-gathering methods—in hand with leaked information from the FBI and Intelligence services just about everywhere there are establishment banks to either fabricate accounts or prattle about same. Corpus is head of the military “intelligence” group here and was, it is said by him, ordered to do the investigation—by the President (GMA). Is this true?

I will tell you, again: The minute “recess” came Lacson headed to Hong Kong in route to the U.S. Simultaneously one of the named drug lords also headed to Hong Kong and parts unknown, although he claims to have nothing to do with drugs.

Ah, but: So too did Col. Corpus head for Hong Kong—IN ROUTE TO ISRAEL.

I also suggest that young Bush check out his Father’s enemies before he goes off on a flying vacation. It is now stated that his plane was one of the targets in this bigger-than-life escapade.

Of course, it isn’t over—this is the blast off, people.

However, friends, be patient with us, for this is a massive impact to us—as people are afraid we are going to leave them without hope or possibilities. No, we will keep right on, for everything we do can be open to all the surveillance anyone wishes to focus on our humble beings.

I will say that it is now recognized that the technology available today puts their holdings in jeopardy of being stolen by confiscation and frankly the Philippine people believe it will be and is orchestrated by the Great Satan, the United States of America.

In view of other things making it very difficult to attend this job, Dharma again resigned having had enough already. She actually wanted to just go home and attend her family and forget she ever heard of me or any such thing as hoped-for freedom, peace or security.

Pay attention, readers, Bin Laden does not wear a blue turban or flag—but guess who does!

The Israelis, we see by the news of course, have already moved tanks into the Palestine areas nearby. You will also note the views of Saddam Hussein shaking his guns, etc. Bite on it, chelas, and you are headed for trouble beyond your dreams. You haven’t even started on the missiles, biological agents or chemicals. Moreover, the good kids in the Fed and the FDA are NOT going to let you have anything which might give you a fighting chance.

I have recently reminded you that you might actually need a few emergency supplies, first aid kits and a secure place to put your bodies. I suggest you refresh your possibilities.

Another headline from TODAY: “Asian stocks plunge after terrorists attack U.S. cities.”

And, oh, my, the IMF is shutting down its upcoming meeting of this week? There really ARE troubles in “River City”.

Now let’s look back six years ago as suggested in today’s paper:

PLANNED PLANE ATTACKS 6 YEARS AGO

Article by Jaime Laude

The use of hijacked commercial planes to attack key structures in the U.S. was hatched in the Philippines by the men of Saudi terrorist Osama bin Laden in 1994. [H: Wow, they start off right there, don’t they? The only thing missing is that the bin Laden “group” is/was fully set forth and trained by the CIA-Mossad and have been under that control ever since its formation.]

Sources in the local intelligence community disclosed this yesterday as the government announced it is stepping up efforts to hunt down Mohammad Jafal Khalifa, a brother-in-law of Bin Laden, the prime suspect in Tuesday’s terrorist attacks on the U.S.

The Armed Forces Southern Command has also tightened security measures over the country’s so-called “backdoor”, which leads to Malaysia and Indonesia, in the wake of the terrorist attacks in the U.S.

The plane attack, code named Project Bojinka, was hatched by Bin Laden’s men Ramzie Yousef, Abudul Hakim Murad and Wali Khan, who were convicted in the U.S. for the first bombing of the World Trade Center in New York in 1993.

Under Project Bojinka, Bin Laden’s group would hijack U.S.-bound commercial aircraft from the Philippines, South Korea, Japan, Thailand, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Singapore and crash them into key structures in the U.S.

The authorities learned of Project Bojinka from diskettes that were seized along with bomb paraphernalia from suspected terrorists during a raid on their hideout on Jan. 7, 1995.

The suspects were holed up at Room 603 Josefa Apartment on Quirino Avenue in Malate, Manila and were awaiting the scheduled arrival of Pope John Paul II, whom they were supposed to assassinate.

Murad, among the suspects arrested by local law enforcers, admitted during questioning that they had been frequenting the Philippines to establish a cell for their group.

He also told U.S. and Philippine authorities that he had been taking flying lessons in the country in preparation for the attacks they were planning on the headquarters of the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation and Central Intelligence Agency.

Murad was subsequently extradited to the U.S. along with Yousef, who was caught in Pakistan, and Khan, who was arrested in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

The three terrorists were convicted by a New York district court for the February 1993 World Trade Center bombing which killed six people and wounded 1,000 others.

Among the witnesses who testified against them was Superintendent Alex Monteagudo of the Philippine National Police Intelligence Group (PNP-IG).

HUNT ON FOR BIN LADEN’S IN-LAW

Meanwhile, Presidential Spokesman Rigoberto Tiglao said yesterday security forces have stepped up efforts to find Khalifa since Abu Sayyaf bandits swooped down on a Palawan resort and kidnapped 21 people on May 27.

“They have been under surveillance. There are attempts to really monitor their movements the past two to three months. There have been reports (of terrorist plots) because the brother-in-law of bin Laden set up a foundation in Cotabato City but it’s been operating in Basilan,” Tiglao said.

Khalifa, through his foundation, has allegedly been supplying arms and other logistics to Abu Sayyaf bandits, some of whom also claim to have been trained in bin Laden’s terrorist camps in Afghanistan.

Khalifa supposedly runs the International Islamic Relief Organization which was organized in the country in 1991 as the “social arm” of the Muslim World League, which is based in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia.

Khalifa registered the IIRO with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) on Sept. 20, 1998 with its principal office allegedly located in Marawi City.

The IIRO is supposed to undertake relief and financial assistance to Filipino Muslims in terms of scholarships, construction of mosques, hospitals and orphanages.

But authorities suspect that the organization has also been involved in sending Filipino rebels along with fundamentalist rebels FROM MALAYSIA AND INDONESIA, TO BIN LADEN’S TERRORIST TRAINING CAMPS IN AFGHANISTAN.

Marine Col. Frank Gudani, deputy commander of the Armed Forces Southern Command, said Abu Sayyaf founder Abduradjak Janjalani himself confirmed they had trained abroad with bin Laden’s financial support.

“They (the Abu Sayyaf) think of themselves as being under the umbrella of bin Laden,” Gudani said.

But Eid Kabalu, spokesman for the separatist Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF), told radio station dzMM yesterday morning that bin Laden could not have been responsible for the World Trade Center bombing because the Saudi billionaire was already allegedly bankrupt. [H: So, who is left around that has enough money, even empty, valueless money, to afford such operations? By the way, all the banks, including the Fed, say they can furnish all the liquidity needed to get through this terrorism attack. What happens next?]

According to a Pakistan newspaper, Bin Laden himself denied involvement in the plane attacks on Tuesday. “I have nothing to do with it,” the Pakistani newspaper quoted the terrorist as saying. [H: Believe it because when you have this type of person with this magnificent show-and-tell—they will take credit IF THEY DID IT.]

Bin Laden, long wanted by authorities for international terrorism, is also known to have visited Mindanao through the backdoor, Gudani said.

Gudani said the Southcom is tightening its watch over the backdoor even as Southcom chief Lt. Gen. Gregorio Camiling ordered the strengthening of the securities in all strategic facilities, especially airports, in Western Mindanao. (With contributions by Marichu Villanueva, Roel Pareno.)

[END OF QUOTING]

No, I don’t have much comment other than to hope you see how easy it is to focus an entire global population onto erroneous information and how rumors and outright lies can fester and when told enough become accepted.

I remember that it was published by Rick Martin, no less, that around Ekkers’ desk were CIA-looking documents. Now, I ask YOU: What exactly do CIA-looking documents look like? And, would Rick really know? How might he know? WHY might he know? Not only that but certainly Mr. Bellringer scattered that around the planet from Fantasia land.

And now Grandma V.K. has opened her own can of worms (maggots?) and I don’t believe it is we in Manila who might have visitors queuing at the door. INTERPOL yet? She certainly is most welcome to her old ancient Gold Certificates. Don’t we all wonder what V.K. promised Bellringer? How about the Spectrum boys? And by the way, chelas, somebody look up the “SPECTRUM PROJECT”.

For you who do not yet get The American Free Press let us just share their first article with you:

HEROES VINDICATED!

ESTABLISHMENT FINALLY ADMITS TRUTH ABOUT USS LIBERTY

Exclusive to American Free Press, by Christopher Bollyn

The suppressed story of a brutal attack on a U.S. surveillance ship by Israeli jetfighters and torpedo boats aired on the History Channel to the applause of survivors.

The horrific details of the assault on the American surveillance ship, USS Liberty, in which 34 sailors were killed and 171 injured, was the subject of a recent History Channel program, Cover Up: Attack On The USS Liberty.

The program presented an unflinching account of the “sneak attack” by unmarked Israeli jets and torpedo boats on the Liberty during the 1967 Israeli-Arab war.

The History Channel program, which was applauded by survivors of the attack as “excellent”, was jointly produced with CBS news as part of History Channel’s “History Undercover” series.

The year of the attack, Liberty Lobby was the only national voice of consequence to report on this attack by “our strategic ally”.

The assault on Liberty began in broad daylight, shortly after lunch on June 8, with an air assault by “at least 12 jets” that dropped napalm and left 870 rocket and cannon holes in the intelligence vessel.

Petty Officer Phil Tourney, who was on the ship at the time, told American Free Press that the initial attack was meant to “soften us up” and “prepare the ship to be sunk” by an imminent torpedo boat attack.

During the attack, the Israeli jets jammed the ship’s radar and knocked out the communications antennae. The pilots targeted the lifeboats and watertight doors so as to ensure that the torpedo attack sank the vessel, with “all hands lost”, according to Tourney.

Only one SOS message reached the 6th Fleet’s Saratoga, which launched aircraft to defend the Liberty. However, for some unknown reason these planes were called back by President Lyndon B. Johnson, and the defenseless Liberty was left to fend for herself.

Experts have speculated that the attack was intended to prevent the government from knowing about the imminent Israeli move to conquer the Golan Heights of Syria, or the massacre of more than 1,000 captured Egyptian soldiers in El Arish, within eyesight of sailors on the Liberty.

According to eyewitnesses of the film footage, the initial air attack lasted about 30 minutes, during which time the vessel was clearly flying an oversized American flag. According to survivors, the ship had been overflown by 13 Israeli reconnaissance sorties during the morning.

The air assault was followed by an attack by three Israeli torpedo boats that fired 5 torpedoes. Any one of the torpedoes would have sent Liberty to the bottom had it not been for the action of Petty Officer Francis Brown, from Troy, New York, who took the helm, and under the command of the badly wounded captain, maneuvered the ship to avoid 4 of the 5 torpedoes. One torpedo hit the ship leaving a 40-foot hole, but fortunately struck an I-beam, which prevented it from sinking the ship.

Tourney said that Brown “deserves the Congressional Medal of Honor” for his heroic action that saved hundreds of lives.

[H: And you are going to find that on this past Tuesday there was a handful of brave men who prevented the downed aircraft in Pennsylvania from hitting its intended target. Oh, there were heroes you have yet to learn about on Tuesday, September 11 in the United States of America.]

“Francis didn’t flinch,” Tourney said. “The bridge was full of blood; it was pure hell up there—I was fighting the napalm fire. A 50-caliber round went right through the back of his neck. He died with his hands on the wheel.

“They tried to murder us all,” Tourney said, “and send the ship to the bottom.”

Israel has always maintained that the attack was an accident despite a great deal of evidence to the contrary, including testimony from two of the Israeli pilots involved in the air assault, that the attack was intentional.

The spokesman for the Israeli Embassy, Mark Regev, told American Free Press that there is “no evidence” that the attack was intentional.

Fifteen years after the incident, the senior Israeli lead pilot, named Amon Even-Tov, approached Liberty survivors and former Congressman Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey about his role in the attack, according to James M. Ennes Jr., author of Assault on the Liberty.

Even-Tov told McCloskey that he had immediately recognized the Liberty as an American vessel and radioed that information to his headquarters, but was told to ignore the American flag and continue his attack. He refused to do so and returned to base, where he was arrested.

Later, a dual-national, American-Israeli major told the survivors that he was in an Israeli war room where he heard Even-Tov’s radio report. The attacking pilots (two of whom are reportedly dual-national Americans) and everyone in the Israeli war room knew that they were attacking an American ship, the major said. He later recanted the statement after receiving threatening phone calls from Israel.

“The Israelis definitely identified the ship as American and friendly,” Tourney said, “Our radios picked that up.”

Radio monitors as far away as Spain, Germany, and the U.S. Embassy in Lebanon picked up this transmission, which then-U.S. Ambassador to Lebanon Dwight Porter had confirmed. Unfortunately, the U.S. government has shown no interest in hearing these first-person accounts.

The pilot’s protests about the vessel being an American ship were also picked up by a National Security Agency (NSA) surveillance plane flying high overhead during the attack, according to James Bamford, author of a recent book on the NSA, Body of Secrets.

A forthcoming film, Loss of Liberty, produced by Tito Howard, is expected to be completed by mid-September and will be noticed in AFP. It focuses on the undisclosed dirty details of the attack on the Liberty.

[END OF QUOTING]

I would share a couple of picture captions: “On June 8, 1967, the Israeli armed forces, in jets and torpedo boats, launched a full scale attack against the USS Liberty, an intelligence gathering ship—even after Israeli reconnaissance aircraft clearly identified the ship as American. The vicious attack left 34 U.S. Marines and sailors dead and 171 injured—the attack ostensibly carried out to silence America’s knowledge of Israeli operational plans. Lifeboats lowered over the side awaiting survivors were machine-gunned from Israeli torpedo boats. At the time of the attack the Liberty had been flying a brand new 5-foot-by-8-foot American flag. The assault on the Liberty lasted several hours. An attack like this by any other nation would have resulted in a declaration of war.”

I suggest every one of you readers get the story (we have published it several times) and you will see that the story gets worse than this little teaser. The men who finally survived in spite of everything the U.S. could do to aid and abet their demise were finally ordered to secrecy and to never speak about the incident.

You have come a long way down that road to Hell, my friends, perhaps you should start trying a bit harder at looking at TRUTH.

So, friends, if you think it is impossible to suggest clandestine conspiracies—THINK AGAIN. IT IS YOUR LIFE, HUMANS!

Think hard on these things.

RE: DENTAL FOCUS: RON CARLSON, SPELT TID-BIT; LEONARD RIDZON AND MORE ON ADDICTIONS, DISEASE AND DEPENDENCY. BEWARE THE CODEPENDENCY CONSPIRACY, FOR IT CAN BE MORE DESTRUCTIVE THAN THE SHADOW GOVERNMENT

*****REQUEST PLEASE*****

Hatonn—Please run Dr. Ron's dental lecture [MM: see below] as soon as space can be found. Bad teeth are, without your realizing it, the single worst cause of chronic infections which are systemic in presentation. Bad teeth go hand in hand with gross poverty and worse yet, the dental techniques prevailing today may well make for a nice smile but the problems are simply covered and have to drain into the system.

Why the non-progression of better care? Money, of course! We will again be giving a forum for better health and care.

We are extremely glad and blessed to have Dr. Ron Carlson back in his capacity as a dental pioneer.

Health-Destroying Root Canals

By Dr. Ron Carlson, September 5, 2001

Times have changed! In the thirty-five years I have been allowed to practice this honorable profession of dental surgery, I have witnessed the primary focus of the profession shift from attaining advanced skills in dental arts and sciences—thus being a better practitioner who is better equipped to assist the patient, to how to build a million-dollar practice. The focus has changed. Look at what is available in the continuing-education field for dentists, the professional dental journal focusing on Looking Good, the eternal quest for a youthful white smile, the current trends in our society to amass material wealth at the cost of one's integrity; and one may readily confirm this observation. I believe, however, this too will change.

A corollary, and equally shocking matter, is that of obscenely high costs of dental care. When I graduated from the University of Michigan in 1969, the cost of a full crown—a covering of the entire tooth that protects it from damage—was $85.00. That was a fair amount at that time. Today the cost in Honolulu ranges from $1000.00 to $2000.00 per tooth for a crown; and, a fixed dental bridge replacing a missing front tooth may cost as high as $6,000.00, since this prosthesis (a device that replaces a missing part of the body such as a tooth) consists of two crowns and a false tooth fused in between the support teeth (3 x $2,000 = $6,000).

Yet some things have not changed. The method of cutting a tooth into a little peg so a crown or bridge may be placed on top is still used, despite the availability of new composite materials and adhesives. (Composites are a class of ceramic materials very like the tooth structures' enamel and dentine.) Unfortunately, as your dentist removes most, if not all, of the outer covering—enamel—of your tooth, cutting deep into the living layer known as dentine, in preparation for that individual crown or a support tooth for your bridge, the long-term result shall be quite contrary to what you may expect. An analogous situation to that of your tooth's reduction is that of stripping off the bark of a tree. The outer layer of a tree, the bark, is there for a reason, as is the enamel of your teeth. The bark protects the underlying cambium layer from external assaults such as weather, insects, bacteria, fungus and viruses, and keeps the fluids within the living tissues of the tree, maintaining its vitality.

The enamel of your teeth has an analogous reason for its existence much like the bark of a tree. The enamel covers the living portion of the dental organ (tooth) known as the dentine, keeping the external environment out of where it was not meant to be. Taking this analogy one further step, the dentine of the tooth is the equivalent of the soft tissue under the skin of your body. This layer below the skin is identified as the dermis, that which is within the epidermis, or skin. Remove the skin and one loses fluids and is subject to infection, the entrance of parasites within the core of the body. The skin, or epidermis, and enamel, a specialized structure of the skin, is the largest organ in the human body. Most do not think of the skin-system as an organ, but it is so classified. It has the vital function of protection of the internal mechanisms of the human body from external agents.

Important to note, this methodology of cutting away the healthy enamel (outer layer of a tooth) was established at the beginning of the 20th Century, circa 1905. This approach has been, and is, the method used today by the vast majority of dentists in the United States, approximately 144,000. Yet since 1980, materials have been available that could reduce this invasive approach for tooth protection and tooth replacement.

In this short article I shall offer a new method of tooth protection and tooth replacement that does not require the extensive cutting of the dental organ, what is commonly known as a tooth. Important for clarity is the fact that each dental organ, all 32 in the human being's mouth, has its own 1) blood supply, arteries and veins; 2) nerve supply, both internal and external; 3) lymphatic system; 4) other living tissue known as connective tissue within and without the identified tooth form; and, finally, 5) the odontoblasts, the living cellular elements of the pulp chamber extending their cellular protoplasm into the dentine. The dental organ is a hydraulic (water) system as is our entire body. As water is withdrawn, the body will wither and die. As one "reduces" a dental organ, or cuts it, the tooth will wither and die. Rather than reduction, one may augment a tooth and obtain results far superior to that of the old way of doing things.

As we look together at the photographs presented we see, for example, a tooth that, having had a root-canal filling, a dead tooth having lost its hydration (water), must be removed due to the bone infection (Photo A) [MM: Photos A-E not available]. The next photo shows the missing tooth and its surrounding teeth that will become the support for the false tooth, or pontic as it is known technically (Photo B).

In Photo E, one may see an example of a tooth that has been prepared in the orthodox manner for a bridge support. It literally looks like a pencil that has been sharpened to a point, does it not? With our new innovation, however, this need not be done!

Unlike the traditional preparation of a tooth (Photo E), all, or most all the natural tooth enamel is left undisturbed (Photo C), while layers of composite are placed over the stent hiding the wound site, and adhered, or fused, to the support teeth. In about a half hour's time from this point, the false tooth (pontic) is built up, contoured, shaped, given the appropriate natural tooth color, and adjusted to its natural contours, reflecting as closely as possible an ideal replacement (Photo D).

This newly finished, long-term, fixed composite bridge may be easily changed or repaired in the future. Unlike the traditional dental bridges composed of metal and ceramics that have been constructed in a dental laboratory under heat as high as 2100 °F, a very gentle blue light is used to fuse the composite in place. The blue light causes no harm to the teeth, and simply generates the photon energy to cause the composite to harden.

The possibility just presented is not generally known in the profession or within the public. In fact, the fixed replacement of a missing tooth without tooth reduction of its supporting associates, at the time of an extraction, is unheard of in the profession.

However, step by step the work is being communicated so that people realize that there is an alternative to the normal invasive crown or bridge approach. Besides avoiding the invasive nature of the so-called normal bridge construction, there are many other advantages. As you review this Web page we encourage you to keep asking the question, What is least damaging to my teeth and body?

ADVANTAGES OF NOT CUTTING YOUR TEETH

One major advantage is one needs only one appointment to build a bridge with the new approach. If there are other appointments necessary, they are brief and not involved with the regular fitting and adjusting procedures that the old methods require.

For example, beyond the first appointment using the old method, requiring the cutting of the bridge support teeth (See Photo E as an example of the end result of the first appointment), there is a second lengthy try-in appointment in which the metal frame is set on the cut teeth and inspected as to its fit. If problems are encountered at this try-in, new impressions must be taken and a third appointment set for another go at seeing if the metal frame fits properly. In any case, the old method of bridging often will take a minimum of two weeks, and often six to eight weeks before the completion of the project.

Other difficulties with the old way may also be encountered. By multiple fitting appointments, repeated injections, removing and replacing the temporary bridge frequently, trauma is induced to the remaining stubs of the tooth, or teeth, increasing the likelihood of permanent irreversible damage that will lead to death of the tooth. If this should occur under a conventional bridge, a hole must be drilled in the back of the bridge to solve the problem with root canal therapy. This is like going from the frying pan into the fire. Let me explain.

A physician friend of mine has labeled what you know as a "root canal", the end product of "root canal therapy", as a "root cadaver". Shocking? Yes, because that is what a dead tooth really is! The death of a tooth, slowly or quickly, is due to loss of blood supply to the internal aspect of the dental organ and infection with parasites such as bacteria or other vermin. And this, by medical definition is gangrene, clearly and simply put. The technical name of a condition giving rise to a dead dental organ is—gangrenous pulpitis. The latter process is due to some kind of trauma to the dental organ, and in this case, due to the removal of all the enamel from the underlying living tissue, dentine.

It is conservatively estimated today that 50% of all teeth that are reduced to a pencil shape will succumb to gangrenous pulpitis, pulpal death of the tooth. As you may see, the odds are not on your side, are they? In my experience of many years, most teeth I have been called to remove are those that first had been cut radically for a crown or a bridge support, then root canalled; and, then, possibly, further surgery performed at the root tip to treat the chronic infection known as abscess, finally to be condemned as hopeless and extracted. This scenario is repeated millions of times daily in our modern and advanced technological society. An interesting question I have posed is, how many systemic conditions are either directly or indirectly related to this so-called modern approach to saving teeth? How often do we save the tooth at all costs, only to bankrupt the patient and drive them into an early grave?

Ahhhh. The argument is brought before us: Where, Dr. Carlson, is your evidence supporting this allegation? Beyond my own research, which I shall offer in another form at a later date in its fullness, I direct each reader to the recent book offered by a specialist in the field of endodontics, Dr. Meinig, ROOT CANAL COVERUP EXPOSED, 1998, ST. MARTIN PRESS. Using the research of Dr. Weston Price regarding the toxic nature of dead teeth, the subsequent blood poisoning thereof by same, Dr. Meinig gives a compelling argument for the systemic impact of keeping dead teeth in the mouth.

A second and less well known researcher who pointed to and verified the systemic impact of infected teeth and gums was a physician who gave the commencement address to the graduating class of McGill University Medical School in 1911. His paper was so compelling that it was published in the British Medical Journal, 1912. He distinguished the concept Oral Sepsis which has been the albatross about the neck of the dental practitioner since. It was this one term, and its application to dentistry, that blocked the retention of dead teeth by the dentist until the 1940s and 1950s.

Dr. Hunter was the physician in charge of the London Fever Hospital. In his work with patients, he found remarkable improvements in the condition of people if only the teeth and gums were cleansed each day with carboxylic acid, a very mild solution, which brought oxygen to the dead tissue of the mouth. He very vociferously advocated the extraction of dead teeth, roots, bone, and gum tissue; and, demonstrated with his documentation the immediate improvement, if not outright cure of conditions such as colitis, esophageal reflux, gastritis, general gastro-intestinal upsets, urinary tract infections, lung congestion, sinus infections, blurring of the eyes due to mucous discharge, rashes of the face, neck, thorax abdomen and lower extremities, among others. His paper is available in medical libraries for your further review.

Another fact that is now being acknowledge by our medical doctors is that of the implications of dental infections in the systemic conditions known as blood vascular diseases. In May of this year, 2001, SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN reported that in about 72% of the hardened arteries of patients with arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries that leads to stroke and heart attacks, among other congestive challenges), the bacteria present in the arterial wall that was damaged were from the mouth. Strange, I had been told repeatedly in dental school 35 years ago, and even now by the dental/medical experts in our trade organization, such as the ADA and AMA, and our Public Health Departments, there is no relationship of the teeth to the general health of human beings. Could this be the old Blood-Poisoning Theory revisited, now that we have the tools today revealing actual facts pointed to long ago regarding the Focal Theory of Infection, prevalent in the early 1900s? Could it be that the disconnected theory—or as I like to call it, the Disconnect Theory of Infection, being taught for the past sixty or seventy years was based on misperceptions of The Authorities? Could it be that a diffuse, non-specific source of infection, an entity that could not be pinned down and eradicated such as a focalized root canal tooth, or for that matter any other focal nidus of infection in the body, would lend itself more readily to the exponential growth of the new pharmaceutical industry emerging post World War II?

What is so strange, then, with finding bacteria in the walls of our arteries, say in our kidneys, lungs, or legs for that matter? To begin with, bacteria, viruses, and fungus within the human body are termed infection. An infection is: out-of-place vermin. If one has bacteria culturing in the abdominal cavity around the intestines, one has peritonitis, a very dangerous condition, that if not treated successfully leads to death.

Well then, what is so dangerous about having a root canal (remember, root cadaver) done? Simply, the dead tooth is a perfect nesting site for vermin (bacteria, virus, fungus, and toxic chemicals), for one cannot sterilize a dead tooth no matter how hard one tries or how hard one tries to avoid the topic! And, this now leads me to my own experience for the past 20 years.

My dental research records go back to about 1983 when I first heard of these issues about dead teeth and dental gum infections being implicated with general body health problems. In school we had been taught, as I have said before, that there was no relationship between the two, the teeth and body. I knew that concept was probably not true, but did not have the disposition to do the independent research on the subject, clarifying the issue. Frankly, I was chasing the golden egg, having fun in the Sun, and growing a family during the years just after dental school, the 1970s.

So, the research I started in the 1980s was structured as follows: After the extraction of a tooth, be it normal or root-canalled, I would send it to the Medical Pathology Laboratory here in Honolulu for a look-see, or more technically, histo-pathology study by medical doctors called pathologists. I have hundreds of case studies upon which to draw, but I'll only focus on the past year to date in this manuscript.

In this short time span, January 2001 until September 2001, I have removed about 20 teeth which had been treated with modern endodontic therapy, or, root-canalled. In most cases there were no clear local clinical problems such as swelling or pain in the mouth, the prime standards for what the profession calls success. But, most all patients had general systemic problems such as cancer, dermatitis, lumps in the neck, urinary tract infections, pain in remote areas such as the shoulder, upper back, or lower back pain—typical I feel of blood poisoning, since the kidney is the master filtration organ, and general systemic tiredness. One chap had bad breath, and had been sent by his wife, who had three infected root-canal teeth removed in early 1998.

In all cases the reports from the hospital pathology (the study of the way of disease) laboratory revealed the presence of pathology: abscess, granuloma, fibrosis, cyst formation, reactive bone changes to inflammation, dead bone, osteitis, chronic osteomyelitis and, the presence of actinomyces, the bacterium directly implicated with lumpy jaw or dental abscess. Remember now, the tissue at the tip of the tooth's root, deep inside the bone, is bathed by the lymph and blood of the body. This same blood that nourishes the dead or living tooth also nourishes the brain, lungs, heart, liver, kidney, eyes, ears and other body parts.

SUMMATION: ROOT CANAL REPORTS FROM HAWAII PATHOLOGIST LAB

1) Male, age 52, lung cancer: tooth #3 had a) Inflamed granulation tissue, b) Fibrosis, c) Reactive bone changes to infection, d) Chronic inflammation, e) Actinomyces bacteria.

2) Female, age 31, urinary tract infections: Tooth #10 had a) Granuloma, b) Cyst, c) Marked acute and chronic inflammation, d) Actinomyces bacteria.

3) Male, age 58, cancer: Tooth #18 had a) Abscess, b) Granuloma, c) Reactive bone changes to the infection, d) Marked acute and chronic inflammation.

4) Female, age 58, mobile arthritic pain and tiredness: Tooth #9 had a) Granuloma, b) Necrotic (dead) bone, c) Actinomyces bacteria, d) Marked acute and chronic inflammation.

5) Female, age 58, mobile arthritic pain and tiredness :Tooth #7 had a) Granuloma, b) Necrotic (dead) bone, c) Marked acute and chronic inflammation.

6) Female, age 56, chronic urinary tract inflammation and infection: Tooth #9 had a) Granuloma, b) Partially Devitalized Bone (dead bone), c) Actinomyces bacteria, and d) Chronic inflammation.

7) Male, age 51, overweight and chronically fatigued: Tooth #4 had a) Granuloma, b) Cyst, c) Actinomyces bacteria, d) Chronic inflammation.

8) Female, age 31, abnormal menstrual cycles, could not get pregnant: Tooth #14 had a) Granuloma, b) Reactive bone changes to the infection, c) Chronic inflammation.

9) Female, age 47, general tiredness and urinary tract problems: Tooth #5 had a) Granuloma, b) Fibrosis, c) Marked acute and chronic inflammation.

10) Female, age 54, cancer of the lung: Tooth #19 had a) Granuloma, b) Scar, c) Marked acute and chronic inflammation.

11) Female, age 53, severe facial and cervical skin disorder: #13 had a) Granuloma, b) Cyst, c) Fibrosis, d) Marked acute and chronic inflammation, e) Actinomyces bacteria.

12) Female, age 53, severe facial and cervical skin disorder: #4 had a) Abscess (Granuloma and Abscess are essentially the same!), b) Granuloma, c) Marked acute and chronic inflammation, d) Actinomyces bacteria.

13) Female, age 50, severe sinusitis and ear drainage: #29 had a) Necrotic (dead) bone, b) inflamed granulation tissue, c) Fibroses.

13) Female, age 50, severe sinusitis and ear drainage: #3 had a) Periapical granuloma, b) Cyst, c) Actinomyces bacteria.

14) Female, age 50, severe sinusitis and ear drainage: #4 had a) Periapical granuloma, b) Cyst, c) Actinomyces bacteria.

15) Female, age 78, migraine headaches and general tiredness: #4 had a) Periapical granuloma, b) Cyst, c) Necrotic (dead) bone, d) Actinomyces bacteria.

16) Female, age 54, breast cancer: #14 had a) Inflamed granulation tissue, b) dead bone.

17) Male, age 62, Bad breath according to wife: #18 had a) Periapical granuloma, b) reactive bone changes due to infection, c) Actinomyces bacteria.

The sample given is isolated to teeth that had been treated with modern endodontics, each patient having been refereed by an attending physician to remove dental foci (dental infections). The teeth had not given the patients any particular problems such that one would have sought out dental care. But, upon removal of the dead teeth, direct confirmation was established concerning the infected nature of the teeth.

The disconnect theory enters at this point, being heretofore unresolved, and begs for clarity. And, in further corroboration of the systemic impact of periodontitis as acknowledged in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN reference cited earlier, I offer another authoritative piece from THE COLGATE ORAL CARE REPORT, issued July, 2001. Within this summary journal of advances in dentistry and oral health care as it is presented to the dental professional, we find a growing trend among medical people to acknowledge the reciprocal impact of dental infection upon the body, and organ maladies upon the dental health picture. This growing awareness among professionals is amazing and most welcome. Two years ago this information was not available for the consumption of the traditional doctors, M.D.s and DDSs but only for consumption of the medical fringe, the “quack” doctors as they were identified by the traditionals.

Let me quote from this article: “The Oral Disease-Systemic Disease Link...”: “The fact that systemic diseases are reflected in the oral cavity is well established. For example, we know that HIV/AIDS and many other conditions can be manifested in the oral tissues. The more important and complex issue we are now trying to clarify, however, is the reverse—whether oral disease can lead to systemic pathology.”

Curious! The well documented oral-systemic relationship between invasive dental procedures and extractions of teeth with bacterial endocarditis, a severe and mortal condition brought on by those with a weakened heart valve, is not arguable in the professions. Every dentist is taught again and again about the need to use antibiotics systemically for those patients who will receive invasive oral surgery procedures, so that they may be protected from bacteria in the blood colonizing upon the heart valves. This condition most often leads to the demise of the patient, we are told. This is old-hat for the dentists.

But new-hat is the emergence of new findings, which are quite old in fact, but have gained new ears and eyes. Further in this journal we have spelled out for us the reciprocal links between periodontal disease, infection about the ligament of the tooth, and diabetes. The traditionals have become bold enough to state: “The interrelationship between periodontitis and diabetes is a significant one, and dental professionals should be familiar with the symptoms and treatment of diabetes as there are yet many undiagnosed patients.” Good for us!

A final note from the authority of the authorities, the Journal of ENDODONTICS & DENTAL TRAUMATOLOGY, Volume 16, Number 2, April 2000. In this scientific study the authors were dealing with the long-standing controversy regarding the presence of bacteria in the root-canal filled tooth, the surrounding tissue known as the perio-(around) dental-(tooth) tissue, and the deeper jaw tissues connecting like super highways to the entire human body.

Their statement of Background and Purpose is quite revealing in light of their specific findings. To quote the BACKGROUND AND PURPOSE:

The presence of microbial activity within Periapical tissue affected by apical periodontitis has been debated. Micro-biological sampling has been routinely performed to determine if microorganisms can be recovered from the Periapical lesion following ineffective endodontic treatment of apical periodontitis. Although several studies have suggested that bacteria maintains a presence in asymptomatic Periapical lesions, this theory has not been universally accepted... (They surely don’t!).

So, above is their statement, but here follows their results:

“A total of 30 patients were referred for surgical endodontic treatment of teeth with apical periodontitis. The participants were asymptomatic and participation was limited to patients who did not demonstrate the presence of sinus tracts or lesions that required endodontic or periodontal treatment. In Group 1... 73% (11 of 15 patients) demonstrated bacterial growth within the Periapical lesion... in Group 2... 10 samples (67%) of the Periapical lesions evaluated demonstrated bacterial contamination.”

Seems quite clear to me. About 3 out of 4 demonstrated bacteria in the underlying bone and tissues of the root-filled teeth. In my study, surprisingly, the results show similarity. Eleven of seventeen dead teeth showed presence of bacteria in the bone and granulomas under the teeth, which is 65%. But, beyond this, there were 7 out of 17, or 41% that had dead bone. This should be enough to convince anyone of the infectious nature of the root-canal-filled teeth, or root cadavers!

The only conclusion I shall draw is to let you choose for yourself. What may be modern may not be so modern; and what may be common sensical, logical and reasonable, may be the better wisdom in this issue. If I were permitted to leave you with one parting thought, the thought I would impart is what I offer those of my patients seeking the truth about the issue of root-filled teeth, and that is:

IF IT IS DEAD, IT SHOULD BE OUT OF YOUR HEAD!!

Thank you for your time and listening.

May God protect and bless you in Light.—Dr. Ronald S. Carlson, Honolulu, Hawaii

There should be enough “others” to struggle against unlawful income taxes but aren’t we grateful today that you can experiment and not have any income to tax. If you plough more than you make back into your businesses, BOTH DO BETTER, quite lawfully.

I also ask that we don’t let papers go by without at least some small ad for Nevada Corporations. The tips need to be updated and rerun frequently.

We also need to get back into the paper, resources information for products. These things are necessary even if we have to leave out some of our writings, please.

Thank you, Rex, for the two updates from Leonard Ridzon.

SPELT

Leonard reminds us that overcooking of foods lessens the nutrient values so also reminds us that minimum cooking is the best approach to whole Spelt use. He suggests that you soak the grain overnight and then a very brief boil in the A.M. is sufficient for whole grain cereal.

I suggest that if you have available a thermos of appropriate size that you simply put your washed grain in the bottle with a bit of salt and some honey and put the appropriate amount of boiling water in with the grain and leave until morning. I also suggest a suitable sized slow-cooker set on low overnight.

Leonard tells us he has given a name to the original common spelt he furnishes. He calls it “GEM” to give less confusion.

I recognize that most of the Spelt available now is from the “new and so-called improved” varieties. However, any toxicity is offset by the good gained from use.

He further reminds us that the common Spelt doesn’t grow under trees as does the other varieties. That is something to take into consideration, I suppose, but certainly is not a problem in an open field in cultivation. That can also be neutralized by proper addition of appropriate microbes. Let us not borrow those “problems” before we even get food on the tables while people still have teeth to chew it.

MELLOREAM

Leonard also says he has several tons of Melloream (a whey drink). It is extremely nutritious, keeps in the dehydrated form indefinitely and is a tasty drink that children like, very often, more than milk.

Much of the milk on the market is contaminated with hormones, feed additives and antibiotics. This means that almost all people are allergic to the typical milk on the market in one way or another.

Furthermore, because of pasteurization, you need to offer a regular supply of the milk bacteria which are necessary to the body.

And, yes, you DO need to be reminded of why things were a good idea in the first place.

KISSING FROGS AND SEEMINGLY ENDLESS TRAILS STATUS IN THE PHILIPPINES

I won’t speak of this in detail but rather just tell you that it is moving just fine. I will not tell you HOW, for frankly, I am not going to give information to the INTERNET through Bellringer or V.K. Durham. THERE IS NOTHING OF EITHER OF THEIR WRITINGS WHICH HOLDS TRUTH. IF YOU CANNOT ACCEPT THAT FACT, THEN I CANNOT CONVINCE YOU FURTHER.

Her “certificate” is NO GOOD. It was changed out in 1989 to a contract. AND THERE IS NO GOLD LEFT HANGING AROUND TO BE SNATCHED BACK UNTIL SOMEBODY DOES SOMETHING OUTSIDE THE LOOP TO BE ABLE TO ENFORCE SOME CALL “BACK” TO RECOVERY.

Your natural enemies, the NEW WORLD ORDER and the International Banking Cartel, have sufficient ammunition to blow the globe away—they are not going to hand over all the gold in the world—to V.K. Durham. Not in this lifetime or any other. Moreover, they certainly CAN cause that event or non-event to be quite LEGAL. If you have the power to enforce global control, you must know by now that anything the big boys decide is legal IS LEGAL—even if totally and morally wrong and/or unconstitutional.

CLUES TO RECOGNITION

I am again asked about my writing for SPECTRUM? No—and, yes, there is a big clue to even the placement of “my” writings in the paper itself. Note, please, that in the last edition of August, “my” presented writing ended along side the advertisement for “Reptilians”. Still no identification except the FALSE identification of Gyeorgos Ceres Hatonn and NO IDENTIFICATION OF ANY RECEIVER. Yes, indeed, Evil wears a clue and usually far more than one.

Why do I bother to continue to comment on these things? Because YOU continue to inquire and demand answers. Remember that Bellringer's diatripe (new Hatonnese) just hit the Internet and people doing business with us, or trying to do so, are hit by the garbage. This team is in a place where kidnapping is the career of the day and dirty money is laundered for the drug cartel(S), both the U.S. syndicate AND THE CHINESE TRIAD, now also infiltrated into the U.S. There is even a "second" Central Bank here in the Philippines to distribute and cover transactions.

We are NOT at war; we have a good program and a perfect way to do business—and just to make it convenient for someone here or there, is not going to happen. Delays are NOT denials—they are often very WISE intelligence.

I will tell you that one of the major agricultural potentials has just spent time with E.J. as he searches for backup funding for major development. This is WHY I am dealing with product, crops and potentials.

Therefore, I am very pleased to hear that Leonard Ridzon will be available as source and resource.

PAPUA NEW GUINEA

Mr. Genewa is due back this week along with the head of the Natural Gas Corporation in PNG.

It was found that the gold secured in the PNG BANK was shifted off several years ago to accounts in Australia. That is not very good, people. It has happened all over your globe and nobody seems to be able to say how, when or why it was STOLEN.

So, at least in PNG the push to obtain the banking system is not to capture the loot but to hide the thefts already accomplished. You have come a long way DOWN, chelas.

There is plenty to back new programs the minute the outsider thieves are separated from the source and PNG is working on it as fast as they can but it is like children playing in the sandbox where all they find is kitty-poop.

Now I would like to spend time by turning again to our topic on "self" and codependency conspiracies.

BEHAVIOR AS A DISEASE

I don't like the use of such a term as in this heading but it is a necessary reference. A "dis-ease" is anything that puts you at dis-ease.

An addiction is ANYTHING you are not willing to give up. Therefore, all addictions are neither disease nor negative. Anything that becomes a total compulsion is negative because it indicates lack of control of self and, at the least, lack of moderation so that the compulsion removes ability to function in a balanced way in your environment or circumstance.

You will find that there are groups set forth for those who simply drink too much cola drink as in "hooked on Coca-Cola". Now people, if you can't stop drinking Coca-Cola and at the least shift off to some other beverage, you have problems but they are not with an addiction—it is total lack of self control.

Moreover, you will usually join a groupie to confront these nasty habits and find that you are trained there that you are never cured of the disease and will revert to the shackles of the addiction the minute you take another drink of such as Coca-Cola.

WHAT YOU HAVE THEN, FRIENDS, IS AN ADDICTION TO GROUPS AND ADDICTIONS.

I can promise you that in the tribal jungle of PNG, as a for instance, addiction to Coca-Cola or Fritos is NOT a problem. Getting a few beetles for dinner is the problem.

HYSTERIA

There is no hysteria quite like the addiction focus. Moreover, the vast network of self-help groups have expanded in the last quarter century to include everything from critical problems such as alcoholism and child abuse to annoying habits such as junk collecting, shopping and handwashing.

The next step, of course, is to create the image of calling in special gods to assist you, along with programs for retraining and, of course, the sharing of stories to assist one another to survival.

A program which STOPS the activities which are debilitating is often the only RECOGNIZED approach but be careful that you do not simply reinforce your "helplessness" and turn the addiction over to something else equally as detrimental to your health and well-being. FIRST, HOWEVER, GET HELP, STOP THE PAIN AND OFTEN, THE SUICIDING, AND GET SOME BALANCE.

I can only suggest that you consider "disease" before you blunder into consideration of habits as being the same thing.

Why is this important? Because people seem to get to the point that if their problem is a disease of some kind, then they have no control over the ailment.

I will give you an example of something to think about. Just as in diseases such as cancer, AIDS, etc., you have immune-system deficiencies in ongoing levels of enhancement, but more often, deterioration.

This causes the body to crave "something" to ease the dysfunction and if something makes you feel better, even if it is only the addition of a bit of sugar or a release of hormones, the body reacts and the mind says, "OK, this is great" and let's have some more.

This is, however, WHY there is no disease process present at upstart but certainly progresses to dysfunctional states which are falsely classified. Dysfunction and disease are two quite separate states of being.

You may well need to get a cure or help for a physical disease but mental health is decidedly something quite different.

Frankly, BOTH can be helped by such as hypnotherapy with a good therapist but the systemic response is decidedly different in each case. One has to have a rallying of systemic ability to confront literal invaders and the other needs attitude adjustments. The latter "dis-ease" is most often treated with substance abuse of some kind. Then when the body is at risk and vulnerable, "disease" microbes are able to get a foothold.

Children can easily pick up diseases but have to be in some environment of malfunction to pick up mental "dis-ease".

Furthermore, a child who can't learn or progress is called "retarded" while an adult who is drunk is called a "drunk". Can you see that the treatment of one or the other is IMPOSSIBLE in the state of said condition. You cannot reason with, or treat, a drunken person and all the treating of the brain-damaged "retarded" child is equally impossible.

Group sharing may well help BOTH—but that is for coping, not for actual healing. You have to get a drunk or druggie SOBER first and THEN confront the problem. And, yes, indeed, the confrontation has to recognize the WHY there is a problem in the first place. And surely in the sharing of mutual problems, help is offered and received, for there is understanding and support.

First, let us look at this usual misdirection of terms because unless you have a HEALTHY realization of the problem, you cannot move toward true LIVING but rather just making it through the experience to DYING. EVERYONE IS DYING, FRIENDS, SO LET US GET "REAL" AS TO YOUR PERSPECTIVE.

The facts are, unfortunately, that most people just want the easiest way to make it through the third-dimensional expression until they die and move on. It is reflected in such as a slang saying on a coffee mug or T-shirt: "Life is sh.. and then you die." So, what can you get other than a chuckle from such reinforcement everytime you take a sip of whatever is in that mug? And, readers, the "sayings" are getting far worse.

It is generally recognized that there are two categories of diseases and let us look at them.

Physical ailments or sicknesses are identified by symptoms such as rashes, fever, or other specific physical effects on the appearance and functioning of the body, and by the microbes, bacteria, or viruses that cause these effects. The disease model used by the self-help movement mimics this medical concept of disease as a condition caused by microbes, or agents beyond the infected person's direct control. In the self-help model, the disease has little or no relationship to the affected individual's personal values or beliefs. The diseased person is cast as a VICTIM of the infectious agents, a person who is powerless over his or her disease and has no responsibility for its onset. The sickness is not viewed as a consequence of choices or actions but as something that has happened to the affected individual. While this model does accurately describe many physical ailments, it does not apply equally to mental and behavioral problems, which generally evolve in direct response to individual beliefs and values, actions, and choices.

As long as this attitude exists, especially in the judicial system, you have problems. Why? Because someone who has accidents, murders, maims, abuses, etc., when drunk is GOING to repeat the episode as long as the substance abuse is probable. You certainly DO have to heal the problem or expect a repeat of the dysfunction. That is simple deduction, Dr. Watson.

The self-help conception of disease as a progressive condition does not even fit all medical illnesses. Some physical diseases, such as cancer, AIDS, and diabetes, are clear examples of progressive disease. Unless arrested through treatment, they will usually progress to death. But other disease, such as polio and tetanus, CAN be prevented through immunizations—and, therefore, ALL immunizations are not BAD. Others yet, including many childhood diseases and common cold viruses, are pretty much self-limited. If you have healthy individuals, they rarely require treatment of any kind, and once they have run their course, many will never recur. Note, please, that all diseases are not progressive diseases but instead often build immunities against additional attacks.

At any rate, this is briefly a defining of physical ailments or sicknesses.

MENTAL OR EMOTIONAL DISORDERS are identified by abnormal behaviors, thoughts, and feelings that interfere with an individual's ability to function. There are hundreds of different diagnoses listed in the psychiatric manuals, but the one common denominator to all serious mental disorders is that they are outside the range of USUAL HUMAN EXPERIENCE. The disagreeable and often painful feelings of anger, sadness, frustration, and regret that all feel when faced with difficult situations should not be confused with disease.

Let us look a bit at presentation differences from actual disease. Some mental disorders, such as retardation, schizophrenia, Alzheimer's disease, and some forms of depression, DO have a physiological component, which may be genetic or stress-related, and, in this regard, are quite comparable to physical disease.

Other mental disorders may well stem from emotional trauma or abnormal conditioning (being raised in a war zone, for example, or in social isolation). However, it is extremely difficult and frequently impossible to pinpoint the causes of mental disorders. Sometimes the condition is caused by a combination of factors, and sometimes there simply is no identifiable cause. Also, the same circumstances that appear to prompt depression or anxiety in one person may cause no ill effects in another. Given the extreme variability of these nonphysiological disorders, it makes no sense to lump them together under a single diagnostic label or to apply the same treatment program to all of them.

It certainly becomes important at some point to come to realize what caused the addiction in the first case. This then becomes a matter of confronting the problem as best you can and often there is a full realization that there is no longer a NEED to continue such habits, be they substance abuse or mere twitches and tics. This often truly requires going back to the causative episode or experience and looking at it for what it is—unnecessary.

To change the addiction you MUST CHANGE THE MIND!

The subconscious mind will hold a “belief” until it is replaced with another. It does not matter whether the original belief has any merit or not—it is simply a reactive circumstance.

This is why “brainwashing” and “programming” are most often accompanied with drugs, alcohol, abuse or anything that causes the mind to want to escape the reality of the moment.

This is also why you must even confront GOD as a totally sane state of recognition and not something out of fantasyland.

Without this sane, reasoned and logical recognition of GOD, you will move off into organized cults and religions which will offer you, at best, only further control of your expectations and cause you to do dysfunctional things called “crazy” or “nuts”.

This is exactly why there is an effort to connect any recognition of possible cosmic beings, God or otherwise, as being quite kooky and then insuring that the actions of such groups are quite kooky. Then the organized press/media work it over into that which is NOT, and yet confound the public even further. You will find this happening constantly to anyone or group of people simply trying to make some measure of impact toward freedom and lack of the shackles of said religious rituals and doctrines. Religions are the most controlling of all groups.

In other words: Do not simply substitute one addiction for another which can be more mentally damaging than the original.

Never lose sight of these differences and we can better see what happens in “recovery” processing which considers mental addictions to be the same as infectious diseases.

Friends, the addict who becomes convinced that he has a disease also becomes convinced that he has no actual responsibility for the condition; it was caused by outside agents—dysfunctional parents, perhaps, or poverty, or the pushers down the block or the spouse that drinks. Therefore, since he had no control over the agents that caused his disease, what control does he have in quitting his addiction? Very little. Like a cancer patient, he will more likely rely on a treatment program that focuses on his “disease” than on his own self-determination and competence.

Positive thinking and motivation are vital for a cancer patient, but, are far more critical for an addict. Unless he has a sense of personal responsibility and commitment to self-reliance, no treatment program can guide him to complete recovery. Yet in accepting his addiction as simply a “disease”, he often sacrifices these very strengths.

NOW FOR A BIGGIE:

MEDICAL DISEASES ARE NOT THE SAME AS ADDICTIONS—AND ADDICTIONS ARE NOT THE SAME THING AS PROBLEM BEHAVIORS.

I'm going to eliminate two assumptions that have been presented: One is that all addictions are progressive and irreversible and they inevitably will worsen unless actively treated and second, any addiction will kill you if it progresses to its logical end.

Both of these perceptions are proven false by the millions of people who simply decide to stop their problem behavior and do so WITHOUT treatment. Look at the statistics, friends, MOST people who stop behavioral problems do so WITHOUT treatment programs.

This is IN NO WAY to put down treatment programs, for some simply have not the ability to STOP their behaviors without support, separation from the cause of the problem and ability to restructure.

Let's look at the “binge-purge” disorder. Almost all of these types of disorders return to a normal state once “adulthood” is achieved.

We have to look at addictions very carefully, readers, because people usually OUTGROW the very habits which are recognized to others as total addictions. If you have addiction problems such as alcoholism which present problematic episodes, then you certainly need to attend the matter. A good rule of thumb is that as you pass that approximate 35-year birthday you had better take a long and hard look at self and habits. Usually by then you will have a spouse who is very willing to tell you where the symptoms are and what is the outcome. By the way, getting rid of the spouse is often the solution CHOSEN but it is more often the worst solution you can conjure. However, when respect leaves the circumstance, you HAVE a real problem. You see, sobering up presents clear eyes and certainly offers more reasonable thinking. And right here is where one spouse will most often OUTGROW the other.

Here is where codependency rears its most ugly head and bites as the viper.

It may well be that people don't realize the REAL problems that present with continuous addiction. That is what happens in the assumed category of side-effects.

Eating disorders can literally KILL because of the lack of body balance and frankly, total malnutrition.

Smoking destroys the lungs and if the lung itself is not damaged the effects of the tar in the product will cause mutation of cells and such a decrease in the immune system as to have no ability for proper lung function.

In alcoholism you have several things merging such as malnutrition, heart malfunction and remarkable DAMAGE TO THE BRAIN. Alcohol KILLS (destroys) brain tissue itself and totally disrupts the flow of brain impulses while also destroying some of the synapses and connectors for the nervous system. These can be improved in bypass function but once gone—GONE. Alcohol and some drugs are DEADLY to the actual function and ability to think processing of the brain itself and all sorts of other things are produced—from joint pain to INABILITY TO THINK CLEARLY OR RAPIDLY.

I guess if I would leave you with a thought about disease vs. bad behavior or dysfunction, I would truly ask you if that next cigarette is really necessary or is that “first” drink truly necessary. If it is NOT necessary, then do not take it. If it IS, then you have a problem. But, you had best look hard at the “problem” because it IS very important to ME, if to no one else around you—if you share my ship crew. I cannot use a dead or deadened brain. We are about HEALING and not drifting in a fog of some kind. KNOW IT, PLEASE.

It may seem a bit contradictory here, however, for me to say that I am very serious about these things but to accept that there is little help of a good kind available, is erroneous in discerning what I write here. Sometimes, readers, the very lacking element is FRIENDSHIP and ACCEPTANCE and it is sad to note that most often there must be some self-help group to fill that NEED. And yet, no one but self can fill the emptiness which can only come from SELF. Therefore, I really support, most of all, the self-esteem building programs beyond the simple addiction groups, for one keeps the person IN the perception of crutches—while the other tosses the crutches in honor of SELF.

YOU CAN DO AND BE ANYTHING YOU SO CHOOSE—KNOW IT. Furthermore, you need to find the ones on the same trail headed to that realization and goal—and you will NOT find it in a syringe, a puff of smoke OR IN A GLASS.

Let us, however, see if we can isolate the dysfunction or malfunction and stop the false assumptions and/or the ongoing life processes ahead. YOU “SHOULD NOT” BE CONTENT “IN THE GUTTER”. YOU ARE GOD'S MOST IMPRESSIVE CREATION.

When we have come to understand, we will make incredible strides toward achievement of self and our goals. The addiction toward greed and power, are, however, the most remarkably difficult to bring under control—for the ego refuses to realize there is a dysfunction. This is another REASON, however, that every lie or error needs correcting when noted.

In every confrontation there is an assumption that at least one party is truthful. NO, in more recent days if there are only two involved in a standoff, one or both may well be presenting intentionally wrong information. That can either be by failure to get correct information or the use of totally deliberate misinformation. YOU must find truth, for I can tell you this: Truth will be so EVERY TIME in its concept and presentation in general array. The more distant the event or placement, the more is lost to memory but is easily recalled. That is called remoteness dilution—BUT, it is often that more documentation is found to get at truth. We need to move ever diligently to self-responsibility.

Remember that insight can only come as you learn and know. It is realization with intelligence and wisdom. Truth is always available if you simply look and investigate—all sides of an issue. So be it.

PHOENIX JOURNAL #13 (1990)

CHAPTER 4

REC #1 HATONN

WED., MAR. 7, 1990 7:15 A.M. YEAR 3 DAY 203

PERSPECTIVE: FACE IT!

Hatonn in Radiance, Dharma. We will take one step at a time, chela, one step at a time. This first portion is personal for this date but it needs to be shared with all receivers of these Journals and Express literature.

We plead “human overload” and petition for “patience” as we sort how best to be able to respond in a timely manner to ALL, for we cherish ALL and will respond to ALL!

George, with the next mailings, please enclose a simple check-off form with room for suggestions, please. Let us ask the recipients how best we can be of more service in an orderly manner. And, herein, let me respond to one or two petitions to which I shall more extensively respond a bit later on a personal basis.

We invite correspondence, for so many of the more pertinent queries are covered and they are usually inclusive of information that all are asking in one way or another. Would you please designate if a separate small journal on a regular basis containing “correspondence” material, would be desired? Some of the material will be placed in the Journals themselves and/or bits and pieces in the Express—but we are inundated and Dharma has only 24 hours per day and, therefore, human restrictions apply. Perhaps if I outline our problems as they currently exist, it would help you dear ones to understand.

Request after request comes forth for the material to be put to audio tape. We realize that it would be most advantageous for many ones have vision problems and messages can now easily be listened to during other activities—worse, a poll was done in the U.S. within the month showing that well above 60% of the people in the U.S. do not read books. Still worse, the educational system is out to deprive your population of basic abilities such as the ability to read, write and handle mathematics.

We can only beg indulgence with the taping, for we simply have no time at present—and ones who have volunteered to assist have no means of support and must, therefore, be paid for the service. Further, to produce the sets of tapes is financially out of the question until such time as the publication expenses are balanced. It would help greatly to have a response from you ones in that we might consider the best and most expedient route to take. It has simply come to the point where we must have feedback regarding your desires. Great appreciation to C.M. of Brasstown, N.C.—and I shall make a personal response a bit later. I accept your intent and we are most grateful, indeed, but we are forced by circumstances to take one step at a time. These dear ones are being threatened daily with lawsuits and business problems—and we must place our thrust where it can reach the most persons. We will also need translators into other languages as early on as possible. These ones are not interested in “doing it all” but rather, there is no further funding available in this location for these services. So be it, for all shall come forth in its time. In behalf of my “team” on this side, I humbly thank you for your willing offers. As it can be afforded there must be a press and readers—all the component personnel to further the Word in every manner—in the interim, we shall do that which we can and ask that you ones share statistics which will allow us to serve in the best manner possible. I bless you for your unselfish considerations.

In the clash of events and denouncements of ones who had originally been receivers, some of our most beloved contacts have been too filled with fear to continue. So be it. Blessings unto them—and we thank them for their services unto this point. It is terrifying when not only the CIA and government, but the religious community and now, the Satanists threaten and badger.

For over three years now, Dharma and Oberli have devoted 100% of their time and all assets unto this mission while struggling against all odds to simply remain in their dwelling. The formatter of the writings has given every cent he has and/or will have along with 100% of his time to this information dispersion. We have one young lady, Elizabeth, who has given 100% of her time but now must take outside employment, for her reserves have been exhausted. We have another two who have assisted greatly in any manner of service within their ability to share as well as family members who have basically supported these parents.

The publisher has found this to be greater than he and his wife’s ability to cover the load—for the two of them handle publication, as well as distribution, from the central source while expending thousands upon thousands of dollars in publishing expenses. Thus far, brethren, there has been not one cent from this information which has not been turned right back into the very printing and disbursement expenses. Those ones who taunt and shout “riches” are foolish, indeed. Further, foundations are being established to allocate monies into research projects to perfect apparatus for specific purposes. Please be gentle when ye hear of them being denounced and battered. KNOW those are the responses of our enemies who know of the truth of these documents—and be patient with our inability to respond instantly to your requests and input. We shall effort to not allow more than a week to pass without personal response. Blessings unto you who are so willing to assist and, as we move along, ye shall begin to see of thy place within the plan, for we shall need ones from every walk of life, including the retired who wish security and service—age is only an asset of knowledge and your children are begging for a return to knowledge and “how to”. Your children cannot survive with the information being given unto them—they cannot cook of their food without microwaves and they vegetate in front of a TV which gives them poison. Ah, even an infirm body does not hamper the mind—the mind only grows insufficient because it has nothing upon which to feed in thy old ages, for the body wearies of the journey of nothingness. However, income must be built into the system so that all can survive, hopefully in comfort and fulfillment of needs—for there will ultimately be no help from a government in collapse and turmoil.

Therefore, we must build a foundation of business whereby income can be garnered or barter established. It becomes more difficult because your reserve food supplies have been emptied and given unto your enemies—your silos are all but empty. To some of your questions as to what to do and how to manage—there will be no answers. We are not magicians nor mystics—there simply will be no wondrous answers but we will do all we can to inform you as to the probabilities of the best route to take as we discern it. We can do no more, beloved ones, and remember, our input must be asked—for God nor the Universal Laws allow intervention or force.

SEEMS HOPELESS?

It would appear, therefore, that God has the lesser stick, for Satan seems to have it all. Well, he cannot use force either—he works directly through humans and plays to the earthly greed, terror and all manner of physical desires. God allows, for man must turn unto God and come again into righteousness, lest he perish in the void of evil thrusts. We can only show you the way and allow you to see the destruction already upon you and where it is headed if it is not stopped. The probability of stopping the evil marchers upon your placement short of disastrous consequences is slim to minus. That does not mean that God and His Truth shall not prevail—GOD WILL PREVAIL IN GOODNESS AND BALANCE, FOR THE DRAGON SERPENT SHALL ULTIMATELY CONSUME OF ITSELF—YOUR PORTION IS TO ALLOW THE PASSAGE WITHOUT BEING CONSUMED ALONG WITH IT.

The question always arises as to, “How can you see to it that the new businesses and studios and communications centers are not simply confiscated?” WE CAN’T and THEY PROBABLY WILL BE—BUT NOT BEFORE OUR WORK IS LAID AND UNDER WAY. DO NOT EXPECT 6 BILLION PHYSICAL PEOPLE TO REMAIN ON EARTH AND THE WHOLE SYSTEM REVERSE INTO PURITY—READ THY PROPHECIES. IT IS MANDATORY, HOWEVER, THAT SEGMENTS OF PEOPLE SURVIVE THE TRANSITION AND SO SHALL IT BE—NEVER WILL YOU BE TOLD BY ANY OF THE HOSTS OF HEAVEN THAT IT WILL BE EASY NOR WITHOUT PAIN OR DIFFICULTY—IT WILL, HOWEVER, BE ACCOMPLISHED.

Ones come unto us and ask how they can protect all their assets, money, etc. You can do some things to help yourselves—if you are simply trying to hide large sums of wealth so that you don’t lose of it—forget it—the evil plan is too efficient. You can do those things which we point out unto you—and they will help for a period of time but, brothers, you will probably not escape unscathed. Some will, most will not—it depends on how willing you are to act and prepare.

The secret of business will basically be in the allowing of the bankers, etc., to build of the businesses and then when they confiscate them, you can allow of their repossession without great losses. You must operate within the guidelines and laws of the “planners” themselves and it will allow you quite a nice period of time to gain a foundation. It will be THE WORD going forth and the army of awakened humanity that ultimately make the operation successful. Man has been duped for such a long time that he is all but helpless and he only knows to do that which is about him—act in foolish and hurtful demonstrations which only cause the Conspirators to come down very hard on the groups of rioters.

HOPE VS. FALSE HOPE

You will note that we are called doomsayers and gloom bearers. Would you rather us tell you to sit in a circle and hold hands and wait and it will change about? Yes, you would—the facts are it would be a lie. Then when they come to shoot you, we simply say, “Whoops, sorry, we told you that which you wanted to hear—sorry about your life and enslavement—we THOUGHT the chants might work and someone would do of the work—so be it!”

What about those pulse beams out there? What about the list of possible retreat and survival goods? What about a breakdown of the various systems of the Global 2000 One World Conspiracy? Ones before Hatonn have written it down but have ALL partaken of the information?

USE OF INFORMATION

Well, brethren, we come at the request of hundreds of thousands of you people and we will sort and scan all information going forth unto you and give credit unto those who give you valid assistance and will not give of you information in these Journals which is not of valid perspective.

Information and documents we recommend unto you are done so because, at least portions thereof, they are, indeed, credible truth. It will never mean we support ALL THAT AUTHOR’S INFORMATION UNLESS WE DO AND WE SHALL ANNOUNCE THAT LOUDLY OR GIVE UNTO YOU SOME LIMITS OF INPUT. ANY AUTHOR WE RECOMMEND, YOU WOULD DO WELL TO HONOR HIM/HER AND SUPPORT THEIR WORK AND AVAIL YOURSELVES OF THEIR INFORMATION. YOU MUST ALWAYS READ ALL INFORMATION WITH DISCERNMENT IN THE PRESENCE OF GOD INSIGHT AND DO THE PROPER WEEDING FOR SELF—WE WILL NOT DIGEST THE INTAKE FOR YOU. IF WE ERR AND UTILIZE COPYRIGHTED INFORMATION, IT WILL NEVER BE WITH INTENT TO TAKE ANOTHER’S PROPERTY NOR WITH INTENT TO FAIL TO GIVE CREDIT—WE SHALL NEVER GIVE “CREDIT FOR TRUTH” FROM FALSE WRITINGS OR SPEAKINGS. SOME WILL DO WELL TO NOT PUSH FOR RECOGNITION, FOR WE SHALL TELL IT EXACTLY LIKE IT IS!!!! IF ONES COME FORTH STATING THAT THEY WILL DO ALL TO GET THEIR INFORMATION OUT TO THE PUBLIC—ESPECIALLY UTILIZING THE NAME OF GOD OR CHRIST—GOD OR CHRIST ARE GOING TO USE IT, FOR THE INFORMATION WAS THEREBY GIVEN INTO THE HANDS HEREOF. THE PUBLISHER OF THIS MATERIAL AND/OR DHARMA AND OBERLI ARE

REAPING NOTHING BUT HEADACHES FROM THIS WORK AND MATERIAL—SUE ALL YOU LIKE, ENEMY OF THE TRUTH! YOU SHALL GAIN OF NOTHING BUT CONTROVERSY AND DISCREDIT AND BETRAYAL OF SELF AND THOSE WORKING WITH YOU TO PULL GOD DOWN.

Back now, to the writing, Dharma. The most often asked question regarding preparation is a breakdown of items, possible safety measures, etc. We will take time herein to devote the remainder of this chapter to perspectives on preparations. It is not new information but it will give ones an idea of involvement and some ideas of well-thought-out methods, quantities and shelters for adequate survival. As gun control, monetary changes, economic collapse, etc., come upon you, yes, it shall be harder and it is even more difficult for me to tell you one-on-one that which you should do—in the saving of time I can only refer you back unto the Journals on the subject and beg patience until we can enlarge on certain subjects. Remember—first you must know the problem as it confronts you and then, and only then, can you counter and work out solutions. That does not mean you must wait to begin—begin wherein you can, for we have efforted to lay out the Journals in sequence which lays foundations first and then increases with the really hard lumps to swallow.

We shall just lay down some listings herein and will work far more extensively subsequently.

THE PLAN: TOTAL SUBJUGATION

Now, how are they going to accomplish this? Let us define terminology before we go further. Let us call all of these groups of Elite controllers “Conspirators” to simplify writing and so you will know, in general, to whom we refer—most often we will refer to them as “they” and you as “you”, so that we might move right along with this portion. Thank you.

As to personnel the Conspirators will be counting on all those people at the hard core of all the organizations controlled by them. They will count on those in the drug culture, the rock music culture, the motorcycle gangs, the White prisoners in the prisons, and a standing army now recruited and trained for revolution—now this, of course, is more along the lines of the Illuminati, rather than the Bolsheviks and/or Banker’s Cartel. But it will suffice for this purpose and, therefore, this list is mostly organized in such manner as if you only had the Illuminati with which to contend. When you get into the Bolshevik plan for nuclear holocaust and beam destruction and economic devastation of the Bankers Central Elite—there needs be alterations to suit needs and locations.

I refer to “White prisoners” because if you refer to the appendix “letter from Satan”, no. 2, you will understand. This does not mean “ONLY” it means “MAJORITY”.

If the plans for gun control and martial law are voted into law, then they will have all of your nation’s military forces and national guard at their disposal. The plan is most simple. After disarming the citizenry they simply order their revolutionaries to begin mass terror and murder in the streets. When the citizenry objects and cries out to the President, he declares martial law, disbands Congress, mobilizes the National Guard and you have an instant dictatorship with roughly one out of every five people in the population belonging to the military.

Although we do not concede the Illuminati’s plan will work, we do believe the probabilities are excellent that if you counter those, you will be well on your way to positive protection in a physical manner and allow perpetuation of the message of truth. It has been the lesson of history that when deceivers have gained dictatorial control through conspiracy, subversion and then force, that it is not long before the citizenry realizes they have been deceived and are willing to work for a return to a society with moral behavior and principles.

To that end we offer the following material for you to consider as to what you might do to begin to prepare for the highly probable time of riot and revolution.

REFER TO YOUR HOLY BOOKS

What did the Lord’s people do in Bible days during times of riot and revolution? It is instructive to ponder the behavior in manifold times of oppression.

You must pay attention to the help which is given unto you, for the truth has not changed in all the generations.

Jesus foretold the destruction of Jerusalem. He commanded His disciples to flee to the mountains when they saw Jerusalem encompassed with armies (Luke 21: 20-24). By obeying Christ there was not one Christian killed when Titus launched his second attack against Jerusalem.

Jesus has also foretold a great persecution that will come against His people in the days of the Tribulation. He has also commanded those who are believers in that time to flee for refuge into the mountains. (Matthew 24: 15-22; Mark 13: 14-20).

During the great persecution against the church in apostolic days it is recorded that the Christians found it necessary to flee for the preservation of their lives (Acts 8: 1-3).

Farther back, Nehemiah was the man who led the Jews to rebuild the walls around Jerusalem. The people found it necessary to labor with a trowel in one hand and a sword strapped to their side. BROTHERS, GOD HAS NEVER TOLD YOU TO STAND IDLY BY AND DEFEND NOT THINESELF IF IN FURTHER DEFENSE OF THINE OWN PEOPLES AND LIFE. READ IN PRAYERFUL DISCERNMENT THAT WHICH SHALL ALLOW YOU TO ENDURE DURING THE TIMES THAT SATAN SHALL ATTEMPT TO ANNIHILATE ALL DEFENSELESS PEOPLES OF GOODNESS.

CONSIDER PRIORITIES AS AMERICA FACES RIOT AND REVOLUTION

1. Set your own house in order spiritually and stay right with God constantly.
2. Pray earnestly for revival and the defeat of Satan’s plan.
3. Serve the Lord the most effectively you can in spreading the Word of Truth, edifying God’s people and strengthening His people.
4. Seek to expose the plan of Satan for world takeover in a discreet manner.
5. Resist the political objectives of the Conspirators by seeking to influence state and federal politicians in a way that will work WITH them. Oppose legislation that promotes the Conspirator’s plans.
6. Prepare for civil disorders that will grow in intensity:

(1) Trucker strikes, coal and oil producer strikes, steel strikes, rail strikes and so forth, that will produce food and other shortages.

(2) Terror tactics that will be designed to produce a fear hysteria among the citizenry.

(3) Riots growing in size and intensity.

(4) Revolution.

7. The survival preparations in order of priority are:

(1) A retreat located away from the major cities. In the beginning a rural home of relatives or friends may suffice (but make pre-arrangements and contribute to the resources). At the end, it will require an "armed" camp, if the Conspirators are successful in achieving their goals. A group retreat in which each family is responsible for their own home or shelter, food and arms is by far the best.

(2) Food, water and supplies. Dehydrated food is best. It lasts indefinitely along with well-stored supplements.

(3) This one is going to get harder and harder to accomplish: Sufficient arms to protect your loved ones against those who would maliciously harm them. Killing to protect loved ones and even yourself when life is threatened is the moral thing to do on behalf of your loved ones and on behalf of innocent society whose lives are endangered by a person or persons who would kill and destroy them. There must be live humans to make this transition, beloved ones.

MORALITY OF KILLING TO PROTECT INNOCENT LIFE

When an aggressor attacks an innocent person, he not only threatens that person's life but he and his actions threaten innocent society as a whole.

QUALIFICATIONS

1. The defender (or those he is defending) must be the object of an unjust action. (Killing a properly authorized officer in his duties of arrest would not qualify.)

2. The defender must use only the force necessary to prevent the threatened unjust aggression.

3. The defender's primary intent must be to stop the aggression rather than to kill or injure and all alternatives must be utilized—first.

* What chance does a 115 pound woman or child have against a 250 pound man whose intent is to assault, rape or kill? Practically none short of some form of firearm.

RETREATS

I. LOCATION

A. Ideally—200 miles from any major city and frankly, for you dear Southerners in the case of the Illuminati—get your safety place north of the alleged Mason-Dixon Line.

B. Ideally—30 miles from a major multi-lane highway (freeway). Population density should be less than 10 per square mile unless the population is in cooperation with the retreat.

C. Ideally—the retreat should be located where retreaters can make the trip from home to the retreat in daylight hours of one day.

D. Ideally—the retreat should not be in a nuclear target area or in the wind-fall area of nuclear fall-out.

E. Ideally—the retreat should not be located in an area that would flood should a dam be destroyed or be endangered from any type of hazard such as that.

F. Ideally—it should be located on the highest point of elevation over the immediate surrounding area, or near a summit whereby the backside of the retreat is protected by hillside. A placement of this type with its own water supply is ideal.

II. FACILITIES

A. Housing

There are three basic concepts:

1. An isolated single dwelling

2. A large condominium or apartment-type dwelling with housing on top floor and preferably built "down" instead of "up". Common-purpose quarters should be at a low or underground level.

3. Family dwelling built in the form of groupings with dome-type structuring.

a. Homes should be built in the concept of the "wagon train or snowflake circle" for community as well as defense.

b. A community building can be built in the center of the housing area for meetings and other group needs.

c. Upstairs is for living quarters of daily use; lower "basement" is for storage and more intensive protection periods. This area would have pantries for foods, freezers for frozen foods and allow ample storage of dehydrated foods, water containers, etc.

d. The outward-facing wall of homes should be built so as to be defensible from attack. Concrete or compressed block, small windows (bullet-proof or covered by steel plate). Patio with planter boxes (attached in sequence) a minimum of three feet high and at least two feet in thickness of the same material—preferably compressed "shan-stone" brick. Carefully laid natural rocks can also be utilized.

e. Wood or alternative fuel stoves for heating and cooking must be supplied. If storage facilities are adequate, then butane or propane might be stored, however, be prepared to have ability to convert to natural plant or solar ability. This will be covered at a later date.

f. Cast iron cooking utensils. These are the most efficient and durable if cooking is required on open fires.

g. Lighting should be provided by high-efficiency gas lamps which use fuel oil but fuel oil must then be stored in quantity. Electric lighting may be installed but may fail and, therefore, be prepared with backup generators—these will also require large storage of fuel.

h. High-intensity floodlights should be mounted facing outward from the front of homes.

i. Some type of protective housing should be provided for animals (perhaps community building). This will be covered greatly in the portions planned for sheltering facilities.

B. Grounds

1. Garden area should be located behind house.

2. Front of property should include grass grazing area and a "Safety Zone" of 350 yards cleared completely for defensive purposes.

3. Effort should be made to ensure that traffic on an incoming road should be visible.

III. WEAPONS

A. An arsenal to store weapons, powder, ammunition, etc. should be separate from main structure and buried underground. It should be concealed so as not to be capable of being located by search.

B. Suggested Guns

1. Defense Rifles. Mostly this shall be left up to your discretion. Obviously, you should have at least as good as you can obtain to match that which will be in the hands of the enemy.

.223 Caliber (AR 14; Ruger Mini 14, etc.)

.308 Caliber (MIA: M14; H & K 91)

30.06 Caliber (Surplus Military Rifles)

2. Hunting Rifles

30.06 Caliber (Remington 760 or 700 etc.)

.308 Caliber (Remington 760 or 700 etc.)

30/30 Caliber (Marlin 336 etc.)

.22 Caliber (Any reliable make-semi-automatic)

3. Shotguns

12 guage—Remington 870 Pump with long magazine for extra shells is recommended. This gun can be equipped with different barrels.

4. Pistols

.357 Ruger, Dan Wesson, Colt, etc.

.45 Caliber Colt 1917 Government Model Mark 4 (Accurized if possible)

C. 1000 rounds of ammunition per gun (or more), or equivalent in reloading components

D. Reloading equipment and supplies for your guns

IV. STORABLE FOODS

A. One year's supply of storable food is recommended.

1. The Central Valley of California produces about 25% of the United States food supply and more than 40% of your vegetables. (You can count on a failure of growing seasons if for no other reason than disruption of irrigations facilities.)

2. Canada and U.S. produce 70% of the total food exports in the world.

3. The average home in U.S. has less than one week's food supply.

4. The average U.S. city has a food supply of only 8 days.

5. Should there be crop failure, riots, strikes, etc., that slow or stop food supply to the cities, then food costs would become exorbitant.

6. Should there be revolution there will be no food available from stores.

7. At such a time food would only be available from:

a. supplies previously stocked

b. bartering

c. foraging

d. plundering

e. gardening (and that takes "time")

8. Excess food for bartering and humanitarian purposes is worth much consideration and planning. The investment will ultimately be more valuable than gold.

B. The Method of Stocking Food

1. The easiest method is purchasing a 1-year food supply from one of the manufacturer's suppliers.

2. Buy a sample pack of food from a reliable supplier. Then pick foods that suit your taste.

3. Area suppliers may be located by checking with camping stores, health food stores and sporting goods stores. We also highly recommend the Mormon Church advisors, for they have excellent food storage plans already laid forth. We have also recommended one prior to this but there are many—and if you wish to share the information as you locate good suppliers, we will be most happy to print the information. This holds true for any information you wish to share with your brethren.

4. The Basic Plan

a. Three months supply of “wet pack” (this is Super Market canned food). Record a typical week of food for your use then multiple by 13. This must be dated. It will only be good for about 3 years and should be turned upside down every month.

b. A portable three months supply of freeze-dried foods. This will have a shelf life of about 15 years (unopened).

c. Supply for long time storage should include:

Grains, non-instant powdered milk (100 lbs. per person.), freeze-dried meats and some vegetables (freeze-dried is the most expensive but is necessary for some vegetables).

** Also some TVP (textured vegetable protein) as a supplement. (Air-drying is least expensive and is adequate for many fruits and vegetables.) Air-dried fruits and some vegetables. (Least expensive method)

d. A pure water supply

** If water source is questionable, then a thermos-size PCP from a survival source will handle some 1500 gals.

e. Wheat, flour, sugar, honey, salt, and salad oil—all vacuum packed. Butter powder, shortening powder and peanut butter powder may be mixed with salad oil or shortening to add variety to menus.

f. Sourdough Mix

g. Yogurt Starter

h. Multi-vitamins

i. Vitamin C in large quantity.

j. Seasonings: Pepper, Chili powder, curry powder, allspice, basil, thyme, oregano, cinnamon, paprika and seasoned salt and, of course, plain salt (pref. sea salt).

C. Economical Long Term Food Storage

The basic four foods:

1. 300 pounds of hard Red Winter Wheat

2. 100 pounds of powdered milk (non-inst.)

3. 100 pounds of honey

4. 8 pounds of salt

** These basics plus vitamins B+, C, D, E, and K will sustain one person for one year with 2000 calories per day.

The wheat must be clean and uncracked (to preserve germ) with low moisture and at least a 12% protein content (15% is better).

The milk should be non-fat and non-instant and commercially packed. To enhance flavor get a supply of imitation cream powder.

The other items should be vacuum packed in AN INERT NITROGEN ATMOSPHERE. NEW 5 GALLON CANS MADE OUT OF ENAMELED STEEL WILL WORK. It takes 9 cans for each 300 pounds of wheat.

Directions: Place a fist-size piece of dry ice in the bottom of the can. Fill the can with wheat, grain or beans, put the lid on loosely in place. When the lid stops “burping” tighten the lid quickly so that it seals.

** Purchase a small wheat grinder—hand operated.

** Supplement above diet with fish, fowl, and game taken by fishing, hunting, and trapping or however—you might use barter, and also use additional fruit, vegetables, meats or meat substitutes, liquids, bread or cereal.

D. Water Sources:

1. Swimming pool

2. Water Beds

3. Water stored in containers, cistern, etc.

4. Pure water stream or spring Water purification may be provided by water purifying tabs available at drug stores or:

a. 8 drops (5.25%) of Chlorine Bleach per gal. in stored water will preserve it. Questionable water should receive twice as much and allowed to stand ½ hour. Do not be disturbed over chlorine taste.

b. Tincture of iodine or iodine crystals: 12 drops per gallon normally or 24 drops for questionable water with 30 minute waiting

c. Boiling

d. Silver-ion purifiers

e. Charcoal purifiers

f. PCP purifiers sold commercially

E. Medicines

1. Aspirins

2. First Aid Kits

3. Surgical Kit

4. Medicine required by individual retreaters

5. Extra bandages and bandage materials

6. Alcohol

7. Hydrogen Peroxide

8. Pain relievers without aspirin

9. Other available medicines which would control vomiting, diarrhea, etc., as might be obtainable

V. PROVISIONS

A. Garden Seeds: An adequate supply of grain and vegetable seeds chosen according to retreaters' preference with attention given to a balanced diet. Do not choose hybrid seeds as they deteriorate in quality with each generation and some only produce one time.

B. Garden Tools

C. Ample and Suitable Clothing. * It should be durable and comfortable such as cotton underclothing and woolen outerwear. If flamed, man-made fibers will melt and the heated substance can cause serious burns beyond the flaming. Woolen outerwear is excellent. But utilize what you can obtain because protection from the elements must be first consideration. Get good outdoor work shoes. Warm hats or caps. For storage the clothing can be packed in plastic with an insulation layer of brown paper. Include mothballs and packets of silica jell (for moisture control). The mothballs control pests in the natural fiber cloth.

D. GET AN OLD-FASHIONED TREADLE SEWING MACHINE AND SOME BOLTS OF MATERIAL. YOU WILL PROBABLY BE WITHOUT ELECTRICITY AT SOME TIME. IF THERE ARE SEVERAL FAMILIES—SHARE.

E. A footlocker in the car with survival items provides a measure of instant mobility if necessary and will tide persons over until they can reach the retreat or safety.

F. Communication Equipment:

CBs—Base Unit and mobile unit

Walkie Talkie (Realistic combines quality and economy)

Power Pack—Generator (absolutely mandatory)

G. Canning Equipment

Pressure Cooker

Canning jars, lids and large extra supply seal lids

H. Bible! and other inspirational books as well as “How-to” books. For long periods of time you will enjoy cookbooks geared to camp-style foods, simple carpentry, canning instructions and sewing.

I. Have adequate and extra needles, threads and items of sewing materials for mending, sewing, etc., such as scissors for material, utility.

Miscellaneous supplies—the list is as long as you have time and resources:

Mandatory:

Gasoline and Oil

Batteries

Work Boots

Hatchets and Axes, wedges, etc.

Hunting Knives (good quality) and sharpening stones—quality is mandatory for these.

Survival Books

Compass

Canteens

Topographical maps

Matches

Eating Utensils and pots

Files

Add to your list as you ponder it and keep it handy for inspirational items such as candles, tape, rope, string, etc., etc. I can only give you an idea at this point and basic necessities. For instance, those matches will have to have waterproof containers—you must carefully think of things you would need if you were alone indefinitely. I gave you several good resources for listings and outlines in SURVIVAL, so I shall spare Dharma the further listing in this portion. We can ask ones later to put together a specific guide—several of you who are adept in this subject could assemble a comprehensive guide which we could put forth as a Journal and/or supplement.

I am well aware that this is not sufficient for your needs but there is plenty of available information and as you ones begin to network you will be able to form partnerships for the production of various and specific needs. At this time, if you write in with your talents and desires, we can share the listings for you and you can work by mail, etc. Much can be accomplished even at great distances while there is still a system within which to function and relocations can be accomplished later if necessary or desirable. Use that technology which is available.

If you are willing to share your talents or resources, let us know and we can get connections made as to close locations, etc. We must come into “Community” to succeed—that does not necessarily mean proximity—it means exactly that which it says—COMMUNITY—not commune—COMMUNITY!

Dharma, enough to this section, please. Let us take rest time, please. Thank you, chela. Hatonn to stand-by. Salu.

The GAIA Program Can Alleviate Drug Dominance

9/9/01—#1 (15-024)

RE: ROOT AND PLANT OF EVIL; SOLIVEN OBSERVATIONS ON DRUGS AND PLACES OF DRUG PRODUCTION. PHILIPPINES IN CHAOS AS IT HAS BECOME THE HUB OF DRUG DISTRIBUTION AND MONEY LAUNDERING

Let us first discuss the Philippines—and while we are waiting for the next step down South, let's consider some Congressmen (both houses) while on vacation, ah-er-r, recess.

Hatonn—Several of these Congressmen are staying around town to see what push and politicking they can accomplish. They should be eager to talk possibilities. Go over a few of them with Mr. Bautigas.

You will note that Congress just doesn't think it can work quickly enough to get a Money-Laundering bill through Congress in time for the imposed deadline set forth via the U.S., et al. I wonder why that would be, since the whole thrust of the Congressional hearings also regards massive money laundering, drugs and military treason. By golly-gee-whiz, we may be the only non-laundry users around!

The big point in this "break today" is to allow time for the banks to get their ducks lined up and money shifted in, through and out of accounts up for discussion. Remember that Estrada and his people are trying diligently to get their accounts shifted.

Since every business in the Philippines, except drugs, is at the bottom, something is terribly wrong as the big boys fight over the only viable trade—drugs. That is especially "shabu" trade and manufacture. And, yes, indeed, it all goes back to money, money, who gets the money.

So money remains the root of evil while drugs have become the "plant" which produces the harvest potential. And, no, there is NO honor among thieves or kickback recipients.

The world is watching things coming down in Colombia and it is simply a match for what is now happening in the Philippines.

Another thing you will note is that as things worsen, people "jump the country"—just run away as fast as they can exit. And since Mr. Soliven has done a very good column on this point, let's just use it. That also keeps us nice and secure, for we are but observers and guests in this land of one catastrophe after another.

[QUOTING The Philippine STAR, "BY THE WAY", Max V. Soliven, Publisher and Chairman of the Board. Sunday, Sept. 9, 2001:]

THE CARNAPPER WHO BECAME THE RICHEST DRUG LORD ON EARTH

The Senate has gone on two-week recess. This means no more headline-hugging probes and televised hearings until Sept. 24. This shouldn't mean that an inquiry into Senator Panfilo Lacson's alleged links to drugs, money-laundering and, even murder must be shelved. Now that the crowd's prurient interest has been denied, for half the month anyway, let the probe shift from the limelight and frenzy of teledrama (or telenovela?) to earnest investigation.

[H: That will be the day. Here, lately, even the Catholic nuns are out marching—this time without a notion about why they march. Everybody loves a parade. In fact, there was just yesterday a celebration of Mother Mary's birthday—but so many Mother Saints were honored that nobody could give an answer as to just who was being honored. But the dishonor was a parade of floats down the Pasig River which is so polluted nobody wanted to be either on the floats or wait at the shorelines. The streets of Manila, however, are worse as garbage lines the streets, and as the trash is pulled from the drain canals it is pretty awful.]

Let the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI), the Department of Justice, the National Security Agency and, if a case can be filed, the Ombudsman, sift through the "evidence" and determine whether the former National Chief of Police participated in any of the crimes alluded to him. Should the proof submitted justify and warrant it, the "offender" Lacson must then be arrested. As it is, what we've witnessed over the past few weeks is trial by publicity. There's sex, espionage, double-dealing, scam and scandal, all of these examined by the Senate "in aid of legislation". Now, with the TV cameras and klieg lights turned off, it's time for patient and honest sleuthing.

Nobody wants a "narco-state", or a country plagued by "narco-politics", the connivance of the powerful with the growing wealth and influence of the drug lords. But when you begin taking shortcuts and cutting down "suspects" on mere hearsay, suspicion, or flimsy pieces of paper, when will this kind of self-righteous orgy end?

To frighten us all, the specter of becoming another Colombia is being dangled. That benighted South American country is cited nowadays as the prime example of a nation brought down by vicious and powerful drug cartels and not only their stranglehold on the government, but their collusion with guerilla forces.

In the 1940s and early 1950s, Colombia was one of the most exciting countries "down South" of the United States. Its glittering capital of Bogota, with a population of over a million, was set in a panorama of emerald mountains that steeply plunged, at the city's edge, into a sweeping savanna. Colombia was known, even more than Venezuela today, as the homeland of beauty queens and a handsome, energetic, if selfish "elite".

That was long ago. Now, here's the latest report from the warfront. The article, by Scott Wilson of the Washington Post, was reprinted in last Friday's International Herald Tribune.

Dateline Tame, Colombia, Wilson's dispatch said: "After years as a distant rumor, war has reached this lonely city on Colombia's eastern plains." Since Tame sits near the Venezuelan border, some 320 kilometers northeast of Bogota, this is a bad indicator the La Violencia is spreading.

Contributing to the murder and mayhem is the U.S.$6-billion-per-annum drug industry. What's raging in Colombia is a war among four "armies". First there's the Colombian Army and a 13,000-man pro-government paramilitary force, called the United Self-Defense Forces of Colombia. Ranged against them are two Marxist rebel movements, the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia (FARC), and the National Liberation Army (ELN).

President Andres Pastrana's controversial "peace negotiations" (does that sound familiar?) with the rebels are faltering. Already, two of his peace "negotiators" have been assassinated in the past two weeks. Rightwing "death squads" are the principal suspects in these killings, since Pastrana gave the Leftist FARC a vast "demilitarized" zone in the south, awarding the insurgents total control over a virtual province—in which they grow coca and produce large batches of cocaine, ostensibly to "finance" their revolution. The U.S. has sent Colombia a U.S.$1.3 billion aid package to enable it to combat the drug trade. But the drug lords are financing both Leftist and Rightwing paramilitary movements and, therefore, are often tipped off, it seems, before every raid.

[H: You truly would have to be living in the Philippines to see the similarity of every statement printed here.]

However, equipped with American-donated helicopters and trained by U.S. Special Forces instructors, the Colombian military has been able to hit the guerillas hard, killing 50 of them, for instance, in a two-week air and ground assault. On the other hand, the 18,000-member FARC claims it is growing faster than it can procure arms for its volunteers. [H: Ah, indeed, another market opportunity at hand.]

The FARC and other rebels, when driven from one area, simply start new corn fields in another area. Is the U.S.-backed drive succeeding? Reporter Wilson hands us the grim statistic: "Coca cultivation has doubled here in the past year as the rebels find new places to plant cocaine's key ingredient, far from the aerial spraying campaign in the south."

In the meantime, hits, murders and kidnappings escalate. Killings in Arauca City, not far from Tame, have included 25 "traveling" salesmen shot down (they were perhaps suspected to be an advanced guard or scouting patrol of the paramilitary).

"Last month," Wilson narrates, "in the town of Saravena, a door-to-door salesman, previously wounded, was pulled down from a hospital by rebels and shot 15 times."

Sounds like Ilocos Sur (Philippines) in the Crisolago "wars". [H: Well, it sounds to us like downtown Manila on any day, current.] [END QUOTING]

A recent issue of NEWSWEEK magazine (August 27) ran an equally disquieting story.

It was captioned, "The New Americanos: Fleeing Chaos at Home, Colombians Invade Florida."

Writes correspondent Joseph Contreras: "It wasn't their abduction of his 70-year-old grandmother that led Alberto Peisach to leave Colombia. Nor was it the 1997 murder of his brother-in-law, during a botched kidnap attempt. It was the planned abduction of his 6-year-old son that finally persuaded the Ivy League-educated entrepreneur to pack his bags in less than 24 hours and head to Miami with his wife and kids. Peisach has carved out a niche for himself in south Florida as the head of a $100 million private equity fund.

“A lot of my friends,” Peisach recalls of his flight, “took bets on how soon I’d be back home, but 80 percent of them have left.” Adds Peisach sadly: “The Colombia I grew up in doesn’t exist anymore, and a body who’s had a choice has left.”

God help us if that ever happens to our country yet—dismayingly—we already seem to be perched on the brink of an exodus of the disappointed and, in the case of our wealthier countrymen, the Chinese-Filipinos, the “terrified”.

[QUOTING NEWSWEEK in its piece:]

Alarmed by a slumping economy and the ever-present menace of kidnapping, Colombia’s best and brightest are leaving in droves. Some have settled in Spain and nearby Latin American countries, but nowhere is the exodus quite as visible as in Miami.

The 70,000 Colombians in that Florida city (dubbed by many, “The real Capital of South America”) have overtaken the Nicaraguans as the largest immigrant community after the Cubans.

What’s even more awful is that Colombia has been losing legions of its professionals, its well-educated, its entrepreneurs, its movers and shakers. There are already 470,000 residents of Colombian origin in the U.S., according to official census figures, but observers calculate the actual total to be closer to 600,000.

NEWSWEEK asks: ‘Who can blame them? In a land of anarchy,’ it points out, ‘eight people are kidnapped and nearly 100 are murdered on average every single day.’

We’d better wise up and fight back against robbery, homicide, rape and violence, as well as against the drug threat, kidnapping syndicates, the invading Triads and Yakuza and other forms of organized crime. Who originally financed the burgeoning drug trade, where we’ve now become a major “transshipment point” while manufacturing shabu locally for domestic consumption? My conjecture was it was jueteng and the politicians.

There’s a fascinating and compelling book I’ve just read about how a former petty gangster, car thief, and street extortionist, became the head of a powerful criminal organization that held an entire nation hostage and, at the apex of his cruel career, got himself listed by FORBES magazine as “the seventh richest man in the world”.

The volume by Mark Bowden, author of the bestseller Black Hawk Dawn, is succinctly entitled, Killing Pablo (2001, Atlantic Books, London).

Who was Pablo? He was Pablo Emilio Escobar Gavira, who rose by drug-dealing to chieftainship of the ruthless, murderous, Medellin Cartel. In his city of Medellin, there had been a long tradition of criminal business practices, Bowden points out. The paisa or “hustler” graduates into being a contrabandista or a smuggler. The practitioners of the centuries-old paisa, traditionally used to smuggle gold and emeralds, then they discovered marijuana—and, finally, cocaine. Pablo did not invent the cocaine trade. Drug smuggling was already a roaring business when he dropped out of school in 1966. By the time Pablo Escobar was through, on the other hand, it was an international menace and the root of most violence and crime in his own unfortunate homeland.

Pablo’s method of intimidating and making deals was simple: It became notorious as “plata o plomo”, meaning plata (silver)—or plomo (lead).

The cocaine business made Escobar and his fellow Antioquia crime bosses, the Ochoa brothers, Carlos Lehder, Jose Rodriguez Gacha, and their other associates, rich beyond their wildest dreams. Within a decade of their plunging into it, the Medellin Cartel controlled half of all cocaine shipped to the U.S.—bringing in returns of billions of dollars. [H: You U.S. citizens go back and reread that paragraph. How do you think they pulled off such a massive import business?]

Escobar, flushed with cash, bankrolled the candidacies of mayors, councilors, congressmen—and even Presidents. By the mid-1980s, Escobar owned 19 different mansions in Medellin alone, each with a heliport (for swift comings and goings, as in an escape). He had fleets of boats, aircraft, plenty of land, extensive properties like apartment blocs, housing developments and banks. The flood of cash was eventually too big to handle so some millions were simply buried in the ground. The Departamento Administrativo de Suguridad (DAS), who first went after Pablo and even arrested him just after his wedding, grew increasingly powerless to cope with his widespread depredations.

He cultivated for himself the image of a local Robin Hood, employing thousands, in addition paying the workers in his cocaine labs such high salaries that they could acquire cars and houses. He spent millions on social improvements. In the meantime, his sicarios or “hit men” murdered judges and Supreme Court justices, assassinated Presidential Candidates—sending fear of him and his Medellin enforcers into every heart. He kidnapped editors and sisters of former Presidents, etc. Then he made two mistakes. One of the men he hated most was Liberal Party candidate for President Luis Galan. The charismatic political figure was so popular he was seeded to win in 1990. Galan had vowed to rid Colombia of drug traffickers and promised, if elected, to “extradite” (a term feared by the drug lords) all traffickers off for trial and imprisonment in the U.S. Pablo summoned his most trusted sicarios in the summer of 1989 to a farm owned by one of his fellow czars, Gacha, and they decided to authorize the “hit”.

On August 18, a sicario armed with an Uzi submachine (Israeli-made) shot down Galan while he was delivering a campaign speech in Soacha, southwest of Bogota.

Worse, three months after that, in a move to eliminate Galan’s successor candidate (another anti-drugs candidate named Cesar Gaviria), the assassins planted a bomb aboard an Avianca airliner. Killed in the explosion were 110 passengers, including two Americans.

[H: And, do you still think that it is impossible to plan a take-out of an airliner with Rick and Charles aboard? Come on, naive readers, and that one out of Osaka, Japan? Remember too, a LOT of these kingpins and political leaders take the “friendly skies” to and from the U.S.A. where the headquarters of management is located.]

Wrote Bowden: “Those two atrocities would prove to be fatal mistakes. They made Pablo enemies who were far more powerful than any he had faced before. Downing a commercial airliner was an attack on global civilization. It meant Pablo now posed a direct threat to American citizens, which meant... to some in the Bush administration, that he could legally be targeted for assassination. Killing Galan had made Pablo public enemy number one in Colombia. The Avianca bombing made him public enemy number one in the world.

Being briefly jailed in what later came to be described as his “luxury” prison didn’t deter Escobar. It was on December 2, 1993, that the head of the Cali Cartel who had resumed his drug activities was finally tracked down and killed.

Backed up by agents of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA), a police team, a group called the “Search Bloc”, finally traced the fugitive Escobar to a two-story row of houses in a “poor” district of Medellin. The searchers, when they spotted him trying to get away, recognized him—a fat man with long curly black hair and a full beard. The major who commanded the assault team picked up his radio and exclaimed to his superior Col. Martinez in a voice loud enough for even the men in the street below to hear: “Viva Colombia! We have just killed Pablo Escobar!”

Were American sharpshooters in on the kill? The official line is to deny it absolutely.

The strange phenomenon was that for many in Colombia, especially in Medellin, thousands mourned for Escobar. Thousands marched in his funeral, following his casket and some even “swarmed to get closer, and sometimes mourners opened the lid to stroke his face.” There were chants of “We love you, Pablo!” and “Long live Pablo Escobar”. There were threats against the government and talk of revenge. Wow!

Have the slaying of Drug Lord Escobar and the disruption of the Medellin Cartel halted the drug trade? Not on your life. The rival and equally murderous Cali Cartel, run by the Rodriguez Orjuela brothers—Jorge, Gilberto, and Miguel—is now riding high. The prosperous drug industry is like the many-headed Hydra monster. You chop off one head and another grows in its place. It’s important to stab the beast in the heart.

How can this be accomplished? If we find the answer to that one, we’ll be able to save our country.

[END OF QUOTING]

Well, Mr. Soliven, YOU hold the answer right in your pile of entropy on your desk or in your drawer: GAIA. Rebuild your country on the right foundation and let the lords of darkness do-in themselves.

How long will this job take? As long as it takes.

We note that the very ones who are into most of the business in these “tattle tale” services such as Chavit, and now Rosebud, end up the crowned prince and princess while the people dance to the Cha-Cha. My goodness, this Mata Hari, Rosebud, is now on every talk show, i.e., like Larry King Live from morn to night and is today featured in the “Fashion” section of the prime newspaper, The Philippine STAR, no less. There are movie rights up for grabs and Rosebud can pick her favorite stars to play her role. Well, she will want to do that herself. She is classified as a “little China doll”.

There are even polls for the public to choose which “hearing” they want to see vs. another. Is there something wrong here? This tour of duty is getting to be less and less “fun”—although we are making inroads every day in the IMPORTANT way.

Thank you for staying the course.—GCH

ON ORWELL AND ISREAL

By Doug Collins, cfirc@canadafirst.net, 9/3/01

In South Africa the frenzied cries from our pols and press say that there's nothing racist about Israel and Zionism.

The matter is really puzzling. I, therefore, crave enlightenment. But I don't think I'll get it from Hedy Fry, our multicult minister who has gone to Durban looking for burning crosses.

Take the expression "ethnic cleansing", of which our lot in Ottawa say the Israelis are innocent. It first saw the light during that little war in the Balkans. There was nothing new about it, however. It has been going on since Paleolithic times—and the Israelis are expert at it.

It started in what used to be Palestine the moment Israel was created. Three-quarters of a million Palestinians were chased out—and they and their children have been refugees ever since.

Take terrorism. President Bush apparently blames the dispossessed for it. Perhaps he has never heard of Menachem Begin, who in 1948 filled wells with murdered Palestinians of all ages at a place called Deir Yassin. Begin later became the prime minister. And he had no difficulty in coming to Canada on fund-raising trips.

How about Ariel Sharon? He was the guy who as the Israeli defence minister in 1982 gave the green light to the massacres at the Sabron and Chatilla refugee camps in which at least a thousand Palestinians ended up dead. It caused such a scandal, even in Israel, that he was forced to resign. But I suppose all has been forgiven, since he is now the prime minister. In the U.K., though, a BBC program concluded that Sharon could be put on trial for war crimes. More anti-Semitism!

Begin, Sharon, Yitzak Shamir, and Yitzak Rabin, prime ministers all, have each deserved the title of terrorist. But they are never named as such in our media. That sort of thing is reserved for Yasser Arafat & Co.

You don't get much of the Palestinian side of the story but last year PBS did get around to telling some of it in a documentary called The People and the Land. It showed how the Palestinians are still being thrown out of their homes and land to make room for Jewish settlers. And how Israel takes not the slightest notice of U.N. resolutions condemning such things.

At the time the program was aired, 140,000 Jews had been moved in and thousands of Palestinian homes had been destroyed. They are now, as the commentator put it, 100 percent segregated communities that are in effect dozens of little South Africas. Palestinians are not even allowed to walk in those districts.

Also in Israel, ethnicity is a factor in what sort of numberplate you get for your car. If you are a Jew, it's yellow. If you are a Palestinian, it's white, or blue if you live on the occupied West Bank. That isn't racist, of course. But if it isn't, what is? And what do you call a system in which race and religion determine whether you can go to Israel to live? Any Jew from anywhere in the world can become an Israeli citizen, but Palestinians who have emigrated cannot go back to the country that was once theirs.

In view of all this I was perplexed to read a piece from the Calgary Herald in which the Palestinians were compared to the Nazis. It seems that they are oppressing the Jews, not the other way round. The writer was associate editor Paul Jackson—and at first I thought he was putting his readers on. But then it dawned on me that he was off his rocker. Living in Israel today is like living in Nazi Germany, he wrote. It's open season on the Jewish people and, as in Nazi Germany, the world apparently doesn't care.

In his view, the suicide bombers and other acts of desperation by Palestinians are Nazi-like activities. So, presumably, is the rock-throwing by Palestinian kids against Israelis armed with guns. Pardon me if this gets confusing—and, yes, I know about concentration camps. But I never heard of the Nazis stacking themselves with explosives and blowing themselves up, etc.

Jackson must be looking over his shoulder at Izzy Asper & Co., who own the Herald. He's probably looking for promotion and I'm sure he'll get it—IzzyPress being pro-Zionist to the extent of ordering its minions to run editorials from the Jerusalem Post.

Racism? Of course Israel is a racist state. It's just that no Western leaders want to admit it, there being far more Jewish power in the West than Arab.

Why do you think that at last count the U.S. had given $77 billion in aid to Israel? Which, as that PBS program reported, is seven times as much as it has given to the whole of Black Africa?

As George Orwell put it, two and two make five, war is peace, and freedom is slavery.

—Doug Collins, was a World War II hero—eleven escapes from German POW camps. He has had 55 years of journalistic experience in Canada, with the Calgary Herald, Vancouver Sun, CBC, and most recently as a columnist with the NORTH SHORE NEWS. He was the victim of a B.C. Human Rights Tribunal and was fined for some of his controversial columns. The case is now working its way toward an appeal in the courts. He is being backed in this appeal by the Canadian Association for Free Expression.

WALL STREET PREDICTS MAD COW CRISIS WILL HIT U.S.

By Holman W. Jenkins, Jr.,
Wall Street Journal—(Editorial), 9/3/01

[Note: Though 36 million head are slaughtered a year, the USDA has examined only 12,000 brains since 1990—that's about 1200 cattle checked out of 36 million annually. Former cattle rancher turned vegan, Howard Lyman has no doubt Mad Cow has been here for years... the USDA and the beef industry just aren't looking very hard to find it.—ed.]

Moo Over, Mad Cow Is Coming

"Not a single case of mad cow" has been the proud mantra of the U.S. beef industry since the disease was discovered in Britain 15 years ago.

Not finding a case, though, has been largely a function of not looking especially hard. Since last fall, events have forced European countries to start examining every slaughtered cow over a certain age, a big change from checking for disease only if a wobbly beast ended up on the evening news. It turns out mad cow gets around.

The French, Germans and Swiss have found 100-plus cases so far. Italy just discovered its 23rd, Denmark its second, and Sweden and Greece their first. Two have been found in the Czech Republic. Soon there may be a urine test for the distorted proteins, or "prions", thought to cause the disease. That would mean investigators wouldn't have to rely on dissecting cow brains for late-stage evidence of the slow-acting disease (often called BSE). Testing would become easy and cheap for animals that aren't ready for slaughter.

Looking is often finding, so this would seem to bode a consumer panic and economic disaster if mad cow is as widely spread as many experts believe. The U.S. cattle industry long ago convinced itself that a single case would mean curtains for its $3.6 billion in annual beef exports, not to mention a bruising domestic whack as consumers defect to chicken, pork or—horrors—soy burgers.

But, lo, the pessimists overlook a phenomenon known as desensitization or the "dog-bites-man effect". In Germany beef consumption dropped 40% when the first case was announced, but bounced back 20% by the 101st.

Slowly, painfully, the rest of the world is starting to calm down and accept mad cow as part of reality. Isn't it time we caught up?

The British experience has tended to color all thinking about the disease, but Britain increasingly appears to be sui generis. If the conventional account of mad cow's rise and spread is right, we should be seeing rising numbers of human victims in Britain and beyond. We aren't.

Hundreds of tons of British animal feed, the presumed agent of infection, were exported to 80 countries until 1996, including 12 tons to the U.S. Given its long latency period, mad cow should have insinuated itself in the cattle food chain under the standard scenario before anybody noticed. Americans alone consume 45 million pounds a year of "mechanically recovered meat", which until recently would typically have contained a helping of brain and spinal tissues that are considered infectious agents.

Since the beginning, though, some experts have emphasized a quirkiness of the British, namely their affection for sheep, which looms larger in light of recent discoveries.

In a territory the size of Oregon, British herders keep 42 million sheep and 10 million cows, a ratio not commonly found in industrial countries. The U.S., for example, keeps seven million sheep and 100 million cows. Importantly, the British also slaughter their sheep five times faster, and eat 12 times as much lamb and mutton per capita.

As befits a small, densely-developed country with a great many carcasses to dispose of, the British also have leaned heavily on protein recycling. Greeks raise and eat a great deal of mutton, but most of their beef is imported from France. The French eat as much lamb as the Brits, but two-thirds is imported. Only Britain has bolted its sheep and beef industries firmly together, feeding each on the remains of the other.

The final key may be the unexpected laboratory finding that sheep can get mad-cow disease by eating tiny amounts of BSE-tainted material. That sent investigators digging back through the brains of 3,000 sheep believed to have died of scrapie, a common illness from which mad cow is theorized to have descended. These revisitations have yielded strong indications that some of the sheep actually died of BSE.

Most intriguing of all, infectious material was found in the spleens of BSE-infected sheep, something not found in BSE cows. Scrapie in sheep is known to make its way into many organs.

This raises the possibility of a more complicated pas de deux between the two species. Mad cow may have originated, as the standard theory suggests, from age-old scrapie after British cows fed on infected sheep. But the new possibility is that the BSE variant then passed back into sheep feeding on infected cows, and then to humans who ate mutton, not beef.

Certainly, some such scenario is needed to explain the eccentric cycling up of a British epidemic even as nothing similar has befallen other BSE-infected countries. Mad cow the disease may turn out to have a spotty presence almost everywhere. Mad cow the epidemic, along with its small accompanying retinue of human illness cases, may be a freak product of British husbandry.

The British government has yet to advance an opinion on whether humans can catch mad cow from eating lamb, let alone whether sheep were responsible for transmitting a cow-incubated BSE into the human food chain. But then the idea that humans catch mad cow from eating beef is purely hypothetical too (though often reported as fact).

At this point, it's probably more comforting than alarming that science knows much less about mad cow than most of the public suspects. Steps taken so far have been based on worst-case scenarios and a political demand to be seen "doing something" rather than well-informed estimates of risk. The British Medical Journal recently summed up the current state of ignorance: "There is but one incontestable fact, that Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE) is the cause of variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease."

That's an important and interesting fact, but what does it mean? The human version of mad cow is a horrible disease, but no more horrible than "sporadic"

CJD, which kills several thousand people a year and has been recognized since 1920. As “sporadic” implies, scientists have no idea how the disease picks its victims. For all we know CJD has been passing between humans and animals for millennia.

Washington and the cattle lobby have spent a decade praying mad cow doesn’t show up here, despite knowing it must sooner or later. Though 36 million head are slaughtered a year, the Agriculture Department has examined all of 12,000 brains since 1990. The time has come to gear up a real hunt for our first case, if only to get it over with.—<http://www.purefood.org>

WAL-MART AND THE
RED CHINESE SECRET POLICE, PART 3

By Sherman H. Skolnick, www.skolnicksreport.com, 9/6/01

Wal-Mart and the Reputed Crooked Judges in Chicago.

As owners and operators of the State of Arkansas, the Rockefeller Family have had a two-pronged plan. As agent for the Rockefellers/Red Chinese, Bill Clinton arranged for the Northwest Arkansas Regional Airport to be built. Some critics thought it was an unnecessary facility. Perhaps they did not take into consideration its location close to three Rockefeller-assisted so-called new “fortunes”, started and headquartered nearby and now spread out all over the nation if not the world: Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., and their subsidiaries; Tyson Foods, Inc., also known as Tyson Chickens; and their transportation wing, J.B Hunt Transport Services, Inc.

The oil-soaked, spy-riddled monopoly press seldom mentions the plans of the Rockefellers, always showing them, if at all, smiling, and only rarely mentions them and Arkansas. Like the British in the 19th Century, seeking to subjugate China with opium, the Rockefellers, as the first part of the plan, are seeking to control the common people of the U.S. by flooding the nation with “China White”, high-purity dope from Southwest China. Junkies prefer “China White” because it can be smoked in a pipe and does not require a needle in the arm. In the process, the Rockefellers are assisting Red China in undermining the skilled trades and useful employment in the U.S. by deluging the nation with cheap goods from China and countries dominated by them such as Sri Lanka. Spearheading that effort has been Wal-Mart, capable of underselling most everybody with products made by Chinese and other slave-laborers at camps and factories under the authority of the Secret Police.

And the Red Chinese Gestapo pick healthy dissidents to be arbitrarily imprisoned, awaiting orders for human body parts from major U.S. transplant centers, dominated by the Rockefellers. Upon receiving such an order from a well-off patient, a prisoner is condemned to death, shot in the back of the head, and his liver, kidneys, and such are removed. They are most often sent to the major U.S. transplant center at Rockefeller’s University of Chicago Hospitals. The proceeds from the major “China White” dope trafficking, weapons smuggling, and harvesting of human body parts, and other such, are laundered through the Chicago markets disguised as dealings in currency and soybeans.

[Visit our extensive Website series, “THE RED CHINESE SECRET POLICE IN THE U.S.”]

The second section of the Rockefeller scheme is to relocate all or a substantial portion of Wal-Mart’s headquarters to Chicago. Tyson has already set up in Chicago a major food processing plant that reportedly employs a large number of non-citizen Mexicans more or less induced to infiltrate the U.S. Such workers are subject to being cowed by the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS). And such labor is preferred to local labor which likes to be unionized and receive numerous fringe benefits. After all, Chicago has traditionally been a trade union town.

To make this all work, Wal-Mart needs an arbitrary and corrupt federal judiciary, cowardly lawyers, and a venal see-nothing press who are more like stenographers of official government lies rather than like inquiring reporters. Big corporations prefer to litigate in Chicago’s Federal courts. Why? As one blunt observer aptly stated, “Chicago has the cheapest judicial whores in the nation”.

Notice this example from one of our Website stories. A crusading attorney from Fayetteville, Arkansas, Dan C. Ivy, has been the attorney of choice in Chicago for a storyboard designer suing Coca-Cola and Simon Marketing for copyright damages. Ivy is one of the few attorneys I have observed in 40 years as a court-reformer, that dared to repeatedly confront, to her face, a federal district judge in Chicago who committed a fraud upon her own Court. How? Through judicial perjuries. That is, in plain language, a judge trying to cover up an arbitrary and corrupt ruling by mouthing off straight-out lies from the bench. As a cover-up, Chicago District Judge Blanche M. Manning [(312) 435-7608] did what is forbidden in Anglo-Saxon Law. That is, for a person to sit as a judge in their own case. She ruled that she had not done the judicial lies with which she was charged in some six petitions by Ivy, invoking “fraud upon the court” against her.

A reputed major unpunished gangster and power broker reportedly paid a million dollars for her to have a chair in the U.S. District Court in Chicago. Buying and selling judgeships is a seldom-discussed subject. [Visit our 8-part series “Coca-Cola, the CIA, and the Courts”, also “Open Letter to Coca-Cola Bottlers”, as well as “Buying a Judgeship”.]

An appeal from the Chicago U.S. District Court goes to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 7th Circuit [Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin]. It is the end of the line for most all cases. Why? The U.S. Supreme Court agrees to hear only a handful of cases from the many thousands that petition for Certiorari, a form of “begging” petition, imploring them to please, please allow you to be heard in their tribunal. Just to show they are lazy and indifferent, at the beginning of a recent U.S. Supreme Court term, which starts in October, there were pending 1600 such “begging” petitions. EACH AND EVERY such petition was refused, without explanation, with just one word, “DENIED”. No “merit” to any of them? Really?

Two spark plugs on the 7th Circuit Appeals Court have been Richard A. Posner [(312) 435-5806], for a long time Chief Judge, and his ever-present shadow and side-kick, Frank H. Easterbrook [(312) 435-5808]. [I confirmed by personal observation and reported on my TV Program that Easterbrook is a dope user and in the middle of hearings in his court, giggles and laughs to the ceiling. As a reprisal, Posner/Easterbrook ordered that I and a TV Show associate of mine, Joseph Andreuccetti, be barred FROM ALL THE COURTS in the 7th Circuit. Do not waste my time telling me about my First Amendment rights. The U.S. Supreme Court sent back one word as to our petition, “DENIED”. So our First Amendment rights have been CANCELLED.]

Both Posner and Easterbrook previously were law professors at Rockefeller’s University of Chicago Law School. [So the monopoly press never told you the Rockefellers founded and dominate the University of Chicago? Now you know.] Another fellow law professor was Antonin Scalia who sits on the U.S. Supreme Court. He is so arbitrary and hard-hearted, Scalia could if he were an adult then, have been a functionary in Benito Mussolini’s Fascist government. Study Scalia’s outrageous role in dominating the installation of George W. Bush as “resident” and “occupant” of the White House via the case of Bush versus Gore. The un-inaugurated PRESIDENT, who won the popular vote, was GORE. [Visit our Website stories on the 2000 Election.]

While on the bench, Posner, Easterbrook and Scalia, do not disclose in their mandatory annual financial disclosure forms, that they also represent the billion-dollar stock portfolio of their patrons, Rockefeller’s University of Chicago. Among the stock therein are blocks of stock of Coca-Cola, Wal-Mart and other major corporate pirates. Guess who is favored in their crooked court?

Judge Posner has several specialties. He has written books and articles on the subject of “economic efficiency” in the judiciary. In simple terms, he believes it is NOT economically “efficient” for an underdog to be ALLOWED to sue or bother a large corporation.

In a debate sponsored by the Federal Bar Association’s

Chicago chapter, Judge Posner advanced the view that people who think federal jurists base their legal opinions solely on their interpretation of the law and the Constitution are living in a make-believe world. [As reported in the lawyers’ newspaper, the Chicago Daily Law Bulletin, May 24, 2001.] Posner heckled a law professor who teaches his students to rely on the law and the facts. “But Posner suggested that [Law Professor] Stone was not being realistic about how the courts work,” the article went on to quote Judge Posner, “I don’t understand why constitutional law professors teach fairy tales to their students”.

Judge Posner’s views as a judicial dictator as to the “economic efficiency” of the courts, are set forth in Frontiers of Legal Theory by Richard A. Posner (Harvard University Press, Cambridge, Mass.), as reported in the Chicago Daily Law Bulletin, June 26, 2001.

Another specialty of Judge Posner/Judge Easterbrook is to mouth-off judicial perjuries in their rulings, arbitrarily favoring certain corporate pirates. Also, Judge Posner refuses to disqualify himself even when confronted in an appeal that he is directly, personally involved. Further, Posner formed a business, a litigation service firm, that reportedly engages in the BIG FIX. [See the details in our Website story, at the time Posner was a mediator in the Microsoft Anti-Trust case, “Chief Crook Enters Microsoft Case”.]

What is a JUDICIAL PERJURY? A simple explanation. The undisputed court record shows it is DAY. The lying, corrupt judge proclaims the record shows it is NIGHT. Then, applying prior decisions, called case law, as to NIGHT, the corrupt judge favors those in the case who worked a malign influence on the judge. [Posner/Easterbrook threatened lawyers with punishment who dared complain about the judges’ judicial lies. See our story about Chief Crook.]

In the Rockefeller plan to have Wal-Mart re-locate their headquarters or part of their headquarters to Chicago, Rockefeller-linked Banker-Judges like Posner and most others on the 7th Circuit in Chicago, will protect the Rockefeller-assisted Wal-Mart from any “legal problems”.

An example: While his fight with Wal-Mart was pending in Arkansas, attorney Dan Ivy filed an appeal in Chicago against Coca-Cola. All the federal appeals judges in active service in Chicago—under the domination of gang-leaders Posner/Easterbrook—without explanation or specifics, entered an order REFUSING to allow Ivy to appear as an attorney in their Court, thus seeking to block the appeal. That is one way of dealing with a crusading attorney who also bothers Helen Walton and Wal-Mart. Are Wal-Mart stores major sellers of Coca-Cola, and have ties to McDonald’s? [Visit part 2 of this series. Also, Coca-Cola series, Part 8, dealing with purported embezzlement of McDonald’s.]

Look what happens to more independent-minded commodity and currency traders in Chicago who do NOT go along with the money laundering of the Red Chinese Secret Police through the Chicago markets. That is, the Chicago Board of Trade, the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, and their basement sort of step-sister, Chicago Board Options Exchange.

In January 1989, the day after the inauguration of George Herbert Walker Bush as President, began the federal criminal indictments of 46 Chicago commodity and currency traders. Going back to the time he was Vice President, the Elder Bush instigated these indictments. Involved were mostly five-dollar discrepancies in “front-running” trading, a long-accepted industry practice to which no customer apparently complained.

I was present in 1992 in the courtroom of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago, when some of the cases were heard on oral argument. For example, a group of the defendants known as the “Soybean Ten” were kept in jail and not allowed out on bond, yet they had ostensibly no prior criminal records. I tried, in vain, to point out to their million-dollar-retained lawyer, Alan Dershowitz, there present, the serious conflicts of interest of the 7th Circuit Judges. I had, likewise in vain, informed him of it, prior to the appeal hearing.

For example, heading the three-judge hearing panel was

Federal Appeals Judge Richard D. Cudahy [(312) 435-5825], the richest judge in the U.S. His extensive mandatory annual financial disclosure forms showed he headed the Patrick Cudahy Trust, a massive offshoot of the meatpacking and commodity industries, opponents of the defendants. He should have disqualified himself—and Dershowitz, busy counting the million dollars he got, was too chicken to speak up. Before the hearing, I informed some of the spectators who were relatives of the “Soybean Ten”.

Thinking themselves somehow in the same category as the high-and-mighty judicial dictators, the relatives insulted me. “Who the hell are you, Mr. Skolnick? We are not interested in your so-called details.” I almost blurted out, “Your relatives are going to get what they deserve, since they suck-up to the Establishment so much.” They did not know or want to know that—by not adequately assisting the Red Chinese Secret Police, and their dope/weapons/human-body-parts money laundry, dominating the Chicago markets since at least the early 1980s—the traders were going to be put into Judge Cudahy’s meat-grinder.

So, will the Rockefeller puppet, Wal-Mart, be in a safe and secure place in the Chicago area as their planned new headquarters? Wal-Mart’s reputed crooked federal judicial protectors have given their oath. Secretly, the corruptible judges have sworn to uphold, not the U.S. Constitution, but the plans of the Rockefellers, their oily patrons.

Stay tuned. [For details of the most massive judicial bribery in U.S. history, in related civil cases involving soybeans, Visit our Website story “Marc Rich—Swindles the Pope’s Soybean Company”.]—E-mail: skolnick@ameritech.net

HOLLYWOOD HELPS BATTERED CIA COME IN FROM THE COLD

By Duncan Campbell (Los Angeles),
The Guardian—London, 9/6/01

The CIA hopes that three new television series and five new films in which the agency is featured in a mainly flattering light will help to change its image as a shadowy organisation specialising in dirty tricks and assassinations. So pleased is it with one of the series that it is throwing a red carpet reception for the premiere at its headquarters in Virginia.

The new starring role for the CIA coincides with the agency’s decision to employ a full-time entertainment liaison officer, himself a former CIA officer in Latin America, and to throw open the doors of its headquarters to film-makers. The policy seems to have paid off, with scriptwriters even rewriting history to present an upbeat portrait of the agency. The shows are seen as a way of telling American taxpayers that the CIA provides value for money at a time when security budgets may be tight.

The series with which the CIA is most involved is The Agency, which is being overseen by Wolfgang Peterson, who made Das Boot, Air Force One and The Perfect Storm. “Now that the cold war is over, people are questioning whether we need a CIA and this is a great opportunity to get the word out,” Peterson said of the series. He denied, however, that the show would paint the agency in an entirely heroic light: “If we do a show that would only paint them as straightforward heroes, I think it would not be right.”

Part of the first episode of The Agency was filmed inside the CIA’s headquarters. It stars Gil Bellows, most recently seen in Ally McBeal, Ronny Cox from Beverly Hills Cop, and Gloria Reuben from ER. The villains will include Arab terrorists, Colombian drug dealers, Iraqis and German urban guerrillas. [MM: The stereotypical Khazarian Zionist IBC-NWO scapegoats—including Osama bin Laden.] One episode will show how the CIA foils a terrorist attack on Harrods without informing the British authorities, and another shows how it saves the life of Fidel Castro.

Another show, called ALIAS, will feature a kick-boxing new CIA recruit, played by Jennifer Garner. A third series, 24, on Fox TV, stars Kiefer Sutherland as a “stressed-out spook” leading an elite team who have 24 hours to uncover an assassination plot against a presidential candidate.

Observing the sudden bonanza of CIA-friendly entertainment with satisfaction is Chase Brandon, a CIA officer with 25 years experience in Central and South America who now acts as the agency’s entertainment liaison officer. Until five years ago, CIA policy had been to refuse to comment when approached by the media. As a result, Mr. Brandon said, the agency had watched the military, the FBI and the police establish themselves as heroic, if flawed, characters through countless television programmes, while the CIA appeared as a sinister outfit.

“Any time in the past we would have just said ‘no comment’, but five years ago I started to change all that,” Mr. Brandon said. “It’s my job to inform and educate the public about a secret organisation and yet not divulge any secrets.” Since opening the door, he said, there had been “a tremendous amount of interest”.

The CIA looks at a script before deciding whether to cooperate either through advice or by making facilities available. But “when someone wants to do an asinine representation of us, they’re free to do so, but I’m not going to support that”.

The creator of The Agency, Michael Frost Beckner, spent time with Mr. Brandon at his home and at the Virginia HQ and then came up with a rough draft which he sent to the CIA. “I made some comments and he made some changes,” Mr. Brandon said. He said he was gratified that The Agency had gone out of its way to show “the bravery and decency of the men and women who work here”.

Envious Eye on MI-5

“The taxpaying citizens will have a little better idea of what we do,” he said. “The popular image of us is of some kind of rogue organisation creating mayhem and madness on a whim... We hate to see ugly imagery of us in television and films. [MM: In other words: “We hate the TRUTH!”] It’s patriotism, it’s bravery, it’s honour. We’ve had a bellyful of seeing ourselves miscast.” He added that he had cast an envious eye in the past at the way British spies were portrayed. “MI-5 and MI-6 were always very sophisticated and debonair with John Le Carr and Frederick Forsyth. That was all very good imagery.”

Although he said he is anxious to ensure authenticity, he accepts that two of The Agency’s stories bear little relation to reality: The CIA would never operate in the UK without informing America’s allies, he said. And as for saving Castro when in fact the CIA had tried to have him killed: “I found that one kind of amusing”, but “our efforts to hasten his [Castro’s] departure from office were a direct order from President Kennedy”. All three CIA series could be coming to Britain.

There are also five completed films in which the CIA features and a further two in pre-production. Mr. Brandon hopes that the films will also play a part in redefining the agency. “But we haven’t gone all Hollywood. The mission of the CIA is to protect the country which gives film-makers the freedom to make their films.” What the CIA hopes to avoid are films like Three Days of the Condor, the 1975 epic which showed it in a bad light.

Gloria Reuben, who stars in The Agency, said: “We don’t know about the positive things that have happened, because they can’t talk about it... I wonder if we didn’t have these people, what language we would be speaking right now.”

The veteran CIA-watcher Saul Landau, author of The Dangerous Doctrine: National Security and U.S. Foreign Policy, said: “The CIA have not done very well over the years; they have been in a number of scandals and they’ve murdered people. They certainly need a makeover and who better than Hollywood to do it for them? This is an organisation that was created to fight the Soviet Union and now that it’s gone they have no reason to be.”

ANGRY NEVADANS PACK YUCCA MOUNTAIN HEARING

By Sunny Lewis, Environment News Service, 9/8/01

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA—Nevadans will not accept the nation’s high-level nuclear waste being dumped at Yucca Mountain, 90 miles northwest of Las Vegas. Hundreds of angry people showed up at a Department of Energy (DOE) public hearing in Las Vegas last night to express their objections. Simultaneous hearings were held in Carson City, Elko and Reno.

Led by Governor Kenny Guinn and the entire Nevada Congressional delegation, who testified via satellite hookup from Washington, D.C., speakers continued until well after midnight.

A few expressed support for the construction of the permanent nuclear waste repository—but the overwhelming majority of the crowd was hostile to the Department of Energy (DOE) proposal.

The DOE proposes to haul 77,000 tons of spent nuclear fuel rods and other high-level radioactive waste from 70 storage sites in 46 states by road and rail to Yucca Mountain, the only site being considered for its permanent storage.

Nevada Governor Kenny Guinn, a Democrat, delivered a grim, determined challenge to the Bush administration.

Governor Guinn characterized the outpouring of opposition by the crowd in a positive light. “This is honest, constructive and impassioned public input on an issue that is paramount to the health and safety of every Nevadan, and every American whose home, school or place of business sits along the proposed paths that the deadliest substance on Earth, if DOE has its way, will be brought to Nevada.”

The governor and the overflow crowd expressed anger that the hearing was called with only a few days notice and before an environmental impact statement (EIS) has been filed. The scientific evidence is not complete, Guinn said, yet the DOE has called this meeting to gather public comment on that evidence “prematurely” and over our “reasonable and faithful objections”. He pledged to complain about the process in letters to President George W. Bush and Energy Secretary Spencer Abraham.

“This fight transcends party affiliations, transcends socio-economic class, race or gender and galvanizes all Nevadans from every corner of the state in opposition,” the governor said to a standing ovation. “We in Nevada will not stand for it.”

Senator Harry Reid, a Democrat, called the hearing “unfair from the beginning”. He criticized Abraham for failing to attend the Nevada hearings and charged the Bush administration with rushing Yucca Mountain through by limiting the public comment period to an additional 15 days instead of the 60-day extension requested by the Nevada Congressional delegation. Public comments on the possible recommendation of Yucca Mountain as the nation’s nuclear dump are now due by October 5.

Reid called transportation of the nuclear waste the most difficult issue. “It’s in everybody’s backyard,” he said. “The Department of Energy won’t tell us what railways they’re going to use, what highways they’re going to use because they know they would have to have an environmental impact statement, which I don’t think they can get approved.” Reid said the waste should be left where it is and dealt with in those locations.

Senator John Ensign, a Republican, expressed outrage and said the hearing process “may be technically legal, it is certainly not the morally right way to handle these hearings”.

Ensign pointed out that DOE scientists differ from “outside scientists” on the safety of the Yucca Mountain proposal, and criticized the agency for holding the hearings before an official investigation into a possible conflict of interest on the part of one of its contractors is concluded.

Warning that Yucca Mountain would cost $60 billion dollars, making it the “most expensive construction project in the history of the world”, Ensign said the safest and cheapest way to handle the spent nuclear fuel would be to put it in dry cask storage on the sites where it is currently located.

Dry cask storage is “good for 100 years”, Ensign said—which would give scientists time to explore promising new nuclear waste “recycling” technologies that would reduce the volume of the waste and the length of time it would be radioactive.

Republican Congressman Jim Gibbons called the Yucca Mountain plan “a misguided policy”, and said “disaster is a very real possibility”.

Congresswoman Shelley Berkeley, a Democrat, said the DOE’s scientific evaluation concerning the repository’s ability to safely contain the waste was “incredibly optimistic” and conformed only to the “lowest possible standards”. The government should begin the decommissioning of Yucca Mountain, she said, because “Nevadans don’t want this project.”

Western Shoshone native leader Corbin Harney told the hearing that his people had enjoyed the lands which include Yucca Mountain for hundreds of years until the federal government began atomic-weapons testing on Shoshone lands. He accused the DOE of “telling lies after lies”.

Western Shoshone Leader Corbin Harney: “Yucca Mountain is not a safe place to put any kind of nuclear waste,” Harney said. “It’s not a mountain to begin with, like they’ve been telling us, it’s rolling hill. That’s a moving mountain,” said Harney. “It’s got a snake there, it’s going to continually move.”

“There are seven volcanic buttes there,” Harney warned. “Underneath it is hot water that’s causing a lot of frictions in that tunnel, and today they’re telling you it’s not dangerous. But how come, if it’s not dangerous, many, many of my people have died from cancer caused by radiation.”

The crowd relentlessly heckled Gary Sandquist, a professor of mechanical engineering from the University of Utah who has spent 40 years monitoring nuclear-weapons testing.

During a tense few moments, moderator Barry Lawson, threatened to close the public hearing if the angry shouts did not stop, and some order was restored.

Sandquist tried to convince the hostile audience that in what he called “this energy crisis” Americans need electricity, and that because 20 percent of the nation’s power is generated by nuclear power plants, “we must store the nuclear fuel somewhere”. Yucca Mountain is the best place to store it, he maintained in the face of hisses and boos.

Part of the Standing-Room-Only Crowd

Speaker Bill Vasconi, co-chairman of the non-profit Nevada Nuclear Waste Study Committee, has worked for 17 years at the Nevada Nuclear Test Site. He said Nevada should accept as a fact that Yucca Mountain will be the nation’s nuclear repository and begin extracting financial concessions from the federal government. He envisioned federal funding for nuclear-energy research centers and other educational institutions.

The crowd reserved its loudest cheers for Las Vegas Mayor Oscar Goodman who said he is “the happiest mayor in the world” and wants to stay that way without worrying that a truck on its way to Yucca Mountain is going to turn over in Las Vegas spilling radioactive waste.

Mayor Goodman described his inspection visit to Yucca Mountain in the company of two DOE officials: “After we viewed the site, I said to them, ‘Can you tell me with any kind of certainty that this nuclear repository is safe?’ He quoted one of the officials, Dr. Ritkin, as saying, “No one could ever say that with certainty.”

Las Vegas Mayor Oscar Goodman said he will personally arrest any driver of a nuclear-waste truck in his city.

“Well, if they can’t tell us that we’re safe, how dare they even consider bringing this crap here?” Goodman challenged. “If there is a spill, the driver doesn’t have to worry because he’s wearing a uniform, but the people around here within 42 square miles are having carcinogens put into the air that can give them cancer and kill them—and that’s not going to take place as long as I’m the mayor of Las Vegas.”

Additional hearings will be held on September 12 in Amargosa Valley, adjacent to Yucca Mountain, and on September 13 in Pahrump, Nevada.

NEW LABOR ORGANISATION URGES UNIONS TO ADAPT TO GLOBALIZATION

AFP, 9/9/01

BERLIN—A new global labor organization, the 15.5-million-member Union Network International (UNI), called for minimum rights for workers in the face of globalization as it wrapped up its first congress in Berlin Sunday.

Around 1,000 delegates passed a resolution during their five-day congress that defined a new class of workers, including those in information-related industries who often function internationally and who are not covered by normal “collective bargaining and social dialogue”.

UNI said it wanted to win basic workers’ rights for these people by negotiating minimum standards with employers and guarantees for protection in social rights, benefits and training.

German President Johannes Rau had opened the congress Wednesday with a call for a worldwide response by labor to industrial globalization.

He said globalization represented “a changed reality”, and that is why it was “undeniable” that trade unions had to be international.

“We can’t afford the internationalization of capital (to be matched by) the provincialism of the rights of workers,” Rau said.

UNI president Kurt van Haaren said that in the new world of global financial, labor and product markets “a strong global labor union is forcefully necessary”.

He said “the monstrous power” of international firms and business “calls for control and a counter-power, calls forcefully for a labor union counter-power”.

Van Haaren said the 1,000 delegates gathered at a hotel and convention complex in formerly communist eastern Berlin represented 15 million members from 1,000 trade unions from 150 countries, including branches of major French unions, the huge German union Verdi, Japanese unions and the major U.S. union the AFL-CIO.

The UNI was founded in January 2000 to provide a “social” response to globalization, the organization said in a communiqué.

It calls itself the “skills and services international” and says it is the global union for the new millennium.

It uses on-line technology and other modern communications to build networks with affiliate unions.

The UNI delegates said they wanted unions to oversee pension funds.

They said that $17 billion (18.8 billion euros) in pension money is currently invested in financial markets and that unions should be able to “influence how this capital is used... (according to) ethically and socially defensible principles”.

The UNI said firms, especially ones that are global and escape in many instances control by individual nations, should be held to “principles of good governance”, specifically giving unions the right to consult on the social consequences of mergers and acquisitions.

It said world committees should be set up in international companies, based on the European experience with such committees, to define “minimum norms which multinationals must respect”.

The UNI delegates spoke out for the idea of “global” union actions, mainly in fighting discrimination and racism and for the role of young people and women in society.

Finland’s Maj-Len Remahl, 59, was elected UNI president Sunday for two years, replacing Van Haaren, who has led UNI since its creation in January 2000. Since December 2000 she has headed the Finnish service union PAM, which has 200,000 members.

American Joe Hansen became Sunday the new main UNI vice president. Briton Philip Jennings remains as UNI secretary general.

The next UNI congress is to be held in Chicago, Illinois in 2005.

NICE GUYS GET ILLEGAL IMMIGRANTS

By John Derbyshire, V Dare.com, 9/9/01

There are places that Americans never think about from one year’s end to the next, but whose affairs occasionally shed light on important topics. There is, for example, Australia. You’re going to need an atlas for this one: I shall pause while you pull it down.

Got it? Good. Now fix your eye on Cape York, which is the northern-most point of the Australian mainland—the tip of the “terrier’s ear”, for those who like to fancy they see human and animal images in the shapes of countries. (Britain is a man riding a pig. Italy is a boot. China is a pot-bellied dragon. The U.S.A. doesn’t look like anything.) From Cape York, scan westwards about forty degrees of longitude, to a point in the ocean a couple of hundred miles south of Jakarta, the capital of Indonesia. There you will find a tiny place with a charming name: Christmas Island, so named because the first person who bothered to name it (one Captain William Mynors of the East India Company) arrived there on Christmas Day, 1643. Christmas Island belongs to Australia, and is much in the news down there this past few days.

This story began early Monday morning, August 27th, when a Norwegian cargo ship named the Tampa, on her way from Singapore to Fremantle in Western Australia, picked up a distress call from another ship that was sinking. Tampa went to the rescue, as she was obliged to do, both in humanity and under maritime law. She found an Indonesian ferryboat, the KM Palapa I, in distress, with more than 400 souls on board in peril of their lives. The Tampa, a small vessel with a crew of only 23, took them all aboard, tallying 369 men, 26 women—four of them pregnant—and 43 children. (Subsequent recounts have altered these numbers slightly.) Her next step, under international law, was to take these people to the “nearest feasible disembarkation point”, which would have been any one of three or four Indonesian ports. At this point, politics kicked in.

Those 400-odd people turned out to be “asylum seekers”—a phrase already very familiar to Europeans and Australians, and which will be coming soon to a U.S. entry point near you. Most of them are from Afghanistan, a few from Sri Lanka and other parts of Asia. They are “seeking asylum” because, for one reason or another, life is intolerable to them in their own countries, and they want something better elsewhere. “Elsewhere”, of course, means a country with a high standard of living, a demand for cheap labor, and a mature welfare state. In this particular case, it means Australia. The people the Tampa rescued want to go to Australia. They made this unmistakably plain to the captain, threatening him and his way-outnumbered crew with harm if he did not take them to Australia. In effect, they hijacked his ship—an act of piracy. The captain thereupon headed for Christmas Island, the nearest Australian territory.

The Australian government, once they knew what was happening, refused permission for the Tampa to land its “passengers” on Christmas Island. For one thing, the island is tiny and well-nigh uninhabitable. The current population is 1,500, so the Tampa’s guests would have increased it by thirty percent. In fact, because of its status as Australian territory and its closeness to Indonesia, Christmas Island is a favorite destination for “asylum seekers”—and hundreds have already landed there in recent weeks. Australia has ferried them to the mainland and interned them in camps in the deep outback while their cases are processed. For another thing, the Australians are fed up with “asylum seekers”, who they believe to be economic, not political, refugees. It is known that Indonesian cartels are running huge people-smuggling operations into Australia, with customers from the Middle East, India and China paying $5,000 each to be dumped on Australia’s 16,000 miles of coastline. (That’s a yard-and-a-half of coastline for every man, woman and child in Australia. You see the problem.)

Measures of the fed-upness of Australians are not hard to find. John Howard, the Australian Prime Minister, told a cheering parliament: “It remains our very strong determination not to allow this vessel or its occupants, save in excepting [sic] humanitarian circumstances clearly demonstrated, to land in Australia... We cannot surrender our right as a sovereign country to control our borders. We cannot have a situation where people can come to this country when they choose." Opinion polls show support of Howard's policy in the range 80 to 90 percent. (There is, let me add, an election coming up in Australia.) Newspaper editorials and radio call-in shows reflect this sentiment. When the ship entered Australian waters off Christmas Island, it was boarded by a team of Australian commandos.

Notwithstanding all of which, I hereby predict that the "asylum seekers" on the Tampa will eventually become Australians. Why? Because no one else will have them. The Indonesians have already made their position very plain. They have threatened military action if there is any attempt to land the "asylum seekers" on Indonesian soil. A spokesman for the Indonesian armed forces said: "We will not allow these illegal migrants into the country. The military is ready to take any measures to ensure the government is able to carry out this policy." Nobody thinks he is kidding.

Asian countries have a straightforward approach to boatloads of refugees that appear off their coasts: They refuse them entry, towing them back out to sea if necessary. Sometimes they sink them. In one incident, a boatload of 93 refugees was used as target practice by the Vietnamese navy; only eight survived to tell the tale. The ironclad rule in these situations is: Whichever country is most squeamish about watching kids drown off its shores, ends up by taking in the "asylum seekers".

Or, to put it another way: Nice guys get illegal immigrants.

In any case, the "asylum seekers" do not want to go to Indonesia, and have threatened to jump overboard if the ship heads back there, or even if it just leaves sight of Christmas Island. They want to go to Australia. These people are not, or not only, fleeing from, they are fleeing to. They didn't pay five thousand bucks a head to get to Jakarta. Back in the days of the Vietnam boat people, twenty years ago, several thousand ended up in detention camps in Hong Kong, under fairly unpleasant conditions. Moved by compassion, the Republic of Ireland—this was in the days before the "Celtic Tiger" awoke—offered residence to a certain number of them. There were no takers.

Well, you can follow the rest of the Tampa story on the AP wires. There is a good e-mail in discussion on the BBC News "Talking Point" Website. All I want to do here is to make my point about the inevitability of these people eventually becoming Australians. They will become Australians because Australia is a Christian country with a strong humanitarian tradition, an Anglo-Saxon legal system, and a huge load of White-liberal guilt about poor people in poor countries.

Already the armies of what my Uncle Fred calls "the love-the-world crowd" are mustering. Mary Robinson, the U.N. High Commissioner for Human Rights, and a four-star generalissimo in those armies, has declared that Australia bears "primary responsibility" for the immigrants and should accept them. Just to remind you: Australia is involved because the "asylum seekers" hijacked a Norwegian ship and ordered it to make for Australian waters. This is how, in the mind of Ms. Robinson, you acquire "primary responsibility".

In related news, as we say in the bloviating business, Michael D'Andre, a county legislator here in my own county, is being asked to step down because of remarks he made during a public hearing last Tuesday. The hearing was one of many, many we have been having here in Long Island's Suffolk County on the issue of "day laborers"—illegal immigrants from Central America who gather on certain street corners to get a day's work from local contractors. Mr. D'Andre's own town has not yet been afflicted by this blight. He felt moved to say that if it was: "We'll be up in arms. We'll be out with baseball bats." You can imagine the reaction of the local Mary Robinsons, of whom Suffolk County has a good supply. In the dimly predictable way these things always develop, D'Andre—the 78-year-old son of Italian immigrants, legal immigrants—has issued a grovelling apology, a course of action that will, of course, do nothing to prevent him from being torn to pieces by a howling mob of love-the-worlders.

"Asylum seekers". "Day laborers". "Undocumented aliens". Welcome to the great issue of our times. Just don't expect to hear your legislators talking truthfully about it, much less taking any decisive action. The latest news I have is that Australian Prime Minister John Howard is "seeking a compromise". That's what politicians in Anglo-Saxon countries do. They "seek a compromise". Then they surrender.

TINY MUTATION BROUGHT DEADLIER FLU

SUPPORTING INFORMATION FOR A COUPLE OF OUR RECENT TOPICS:

FLESH-EATING BACTERIA

[QUOTING AP, 9/10/01:]

SINGAPORE: NAVY OXYGEN TANKS
SAVE MAN WITH FLESH-EATING BACTERIA

SINGAPORE (AP)—A man who almost lost his life to so-called flesh-eating bacteria was saved after Singapore Navy doctors used oxygen tanks to cure him, a news report said yesterday. Ahmad Dari, 61, had flesh-eating bacteria in his neck and was close to death before receiving the oxygen therapy that helped kill the bacteria, The New paper reported. Flesh-eating bacteria cause necrotizing fasciitis, a rare disease which can be fatal. Doctors say the bacteria may have ENTERED DARI'S NECK THROUGH AN INFECTED TOOTH. The Republic of Singapore Navy allowed doctors to put Dari in their hyperbaric oxygen chambers and treat him with 100-percent pure oxygen at pressures two to three times the normal atmospheric pressure.

[END OF QUOTING]

OK, readers, to you who wish to discount writings as being "for someone else", I urge you to consider options when something goes wrong.

We have here in this report above an obvious anaerobe infection which will only respond to OXYGEN. You also basically come up with something which is VERY difficult to treat under any circumstances by antibiotics. I simply repeat here that an anaerobic bacteria cannot live in OxySol which could be given directly into the system in either a Dria-enhanced IV apparatus or directly after filtering. This is not even some kind of "heroic" measure but actually one of very conservative and accepted rehydration therapy. A very good and exceptionally effective therapy is to add these items to a general saline solution already in place. A simple saline solution commonly used provides a CARRIER for the oxygen along with the Drias which immediately begin to act as would blood replacement.

Please pay careful attention to Dr. Carlson's article [MM: see page 6] regarding TEETH and how deadly a dead tooth can actually become given the right environment for microbial growth.

And, no, I am NOT saying to get all your teeth out just in case something may be going wrong. I AM telling you to be aware and pay attention to things that might be taking place in your own body.

These diseases are going to be ever more common as man tampers and deliberately mutates microbes—and simple mutations bring forth new strains of old viruses and microbes. An example:

WASHINGTON (AP)—The virus that caused the Hong Kong flu four years ago switched from a mild illness to a deadly disease when changes occurred in just one of its genes, researchers have discovered.

That allowed the flu that had been concentrated in chickens to jump to people, killing six of the 18 people infected.

"What this tells you is that the avian influenza virus can become the virus that causes the disease in humans at any moment," said Yoshihiro Kawaoka, one of the research team at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Authorities were forced to kill more than a million chickens in Hong Kong to block the spread of the newly virulent flu.

The new findings are published in today's issue of the journal SCIENCE.

"We have found that a limited number of very tiny genetic changes in a specific gene, one called PB2, can have a big effect on how potent the influenza virus is," Kawaoka said.

"Because the influenza virus constantly mutates, and because only a few changes can make a nonpathogenic virus highly pathogenic, we should assume that an outbreak of any new strain or subtype is potentially dangerous to humans," he said.

Robert Lamb, professor of biochemistry at Northwestern University, called Kawaoka's study intriguing.

"In many ways it tells us just how complicated understanding the influenza virus is, that a point mutation in one gene can confer virulence," he said. "It also tells us just how dangerous a virus influenza is."

The disease reappeared in Hong Kong this summer, and again more than a million chickens were slaughtered.

[END OF QUOTING]

And, AGAIN PLEASE, do not rush to kill all the fowl of ground and air. Notwithstanding, PAY ATTENTION.

In the new language demanded by such as the FDA on harmless natural products, it has been reported that OxySol, as well as silver colloid—or other colloids, i.e., gold, copper, etc., will give some measure of seemingly better status as in possibly an improvement in health and well being. These items are simple "food supplements" and are not listed among any medical studies as having any proof of "approved therapeutic claims". So, neither does "wash your hands"—A LOT—and even more if handling BIRDS, fowl or anaerobic bacteria.

Yes, indeed, I would possibly consider washing hands and then a tiny spray of OxySol to the clean hands. Moreover, I also think a bit sprayed up the nose and in the mouth might offer some depletion of the nasty bacteria, possibly, and freshen the breath for kissing closeness.

God gave you perfect brains, if they are present, and I simply suggest they are a good “supplement” to your well-being and certainly there is “no therapeutic claim” made herein.

In both Dria solutions, OxySol and colloids—a little goes a very long way, and can be diluted if necessary and it is even recommended in the case of handwash spritzing. And, if there are babies present, ask Mom or Dad to spray off those pacifiers and bottle nipples that hit the floor intentionally or otherwise.

At the least keep hydrogen peroxide available to rinse those most dirty duds. The floor catches everything you have on your dirty shoes, good friends, and even though babies have wonderful immune systems most of the time—there is a full limit to endurance.

Note how many of you pick up the pacifier and simply wipe it off with your hand on your shirt and plunk it right back between the toothless gums!!

You MUST get those immune systems sturdy because it may well be a beautiful world—but it truly is a rather dirty world. And the facts remain that less and less response is coming from “just get some antibiotic shots and the world will be fine.” No, it won’t.

The intentional thrust of the would-be-king conspirators (dirty words) is to destroy resistance to invasion of all kinds, from military lead poisoning to microbial sneak-troops. The target is to seek out and destroy the IMMUNE SYSTEMS of which only YOU can protect and enhance YOURS. All additives are simply tools and, frankly, the accepted antibiotics further debilitate the immune system as it tries to respond to both the microbe AND the antibiotic invaders.

I can write on things in the Philippines and have meaning greater than other areas scattered hither and yon, for we are experiencing it day by day. This is true everywhere. I recall complaints from, yet, the Philippines because we wrote predominantly on the United States and too little on the Asian states. It is all in your immediate perception and perspective.

Well, we have good examples before us in the Philippines which tell great truths and present exceptional parables. Right in the streets of Manila where the garbage is being dumped in the streets you have a new happening of “getting caught”. Some nitty garbage haulers simply dumped their trucks in the street. Ok? What next? Well, good friends, the garbage was HOSPITAL WASTE with needles, bloody materials—and one of the hospitals was a home for AIDS patients. So, right there for everyone were IV tubes, needles and you name it.

This place is now undergoing an epidemic of Dengue Fever and now there has started the other PLAGUES, such as “the plague” and malaria. And so, the garbage is dumped in the street because there are no dumpsites available while incineration is “against the law”. Of course, there is a way to incinerate and create power at the same time—but that is too much to expect of politicians to consider—isn’t it?

Recently, after the big hotel fire here, there was a sweep made of various facilities—and 11 HOSPITALS in the local area were condemned as “should be torn down”. Gilarmi passed the tests, barely, but the Intercontinental Hotel Manila (across the street), didn’t.

I remind all of you: God provides “the way”, HE does not do it FOR you. So be it.

MENTAL ATTITUDES

Here we go again. If you don’t get control of YOURSELF and your mental attitudes, you are in negative territory for healing yourself when under attack from any outside invaders, be they microbial, intentional assaults by others, frequency-wave impact, radio-wave impact or, finally, just staying alive.

Volcanoes erupt; always have and always will—as long as you have a working planet. Earthquakes HAPPEN; always have and always will as long as you have a working planet. Atmospheric phenomena will happen; always have and always will as long as you have a working planet. The same with floods, famines, drought, bugs and other pestilence—including man.

My suggestion? Get prepared, stock up on some things which can see you through an emergency, prepare you for being without medication through the pharmacy or physician care, store some treated water and attend needs for emergency inconvenience. If you are in tornado corridor—either move or dig a shelter hole.

How much attention should you give to such as Gordon Michael Scallion’s non-predictions? Overall in Earth changes, quite a bit of long-term expectations. Almost none as to these short and regular flashes in the pan. At best you can possibly pick up a pattern and that is about all you can expect. CHANGES ARE TAKING PLACE CONSTANTLY. Be informed, stay prepared with some supplies and security facilities and turn your constant attention to changing the changeable—man-tampered and -impacted affairs.

You do not have to go straddle the rift fault in Rift Valley nor the San Andreas Fault in California. You don’t have to drive INTO a tornado nor do you have to sit atop an erupting volcano. Especially, you do not need to build your very dwelling atop any of these Earth faults and you certainly do not need to CHASE storms to, as it is called, DARE GOD. No, friends, you continually “tempt” God to teach you some hard lessons.

I can’t even convince you of that to which you need to take a stand or when or how to “reach out”. The airwaves and papers are full of opportunities but those are not things, seemingly, for your attention.

Yes, we can look at one small article which will mean almost NOTHING to almost all readers:

[QUOTING:]

LIBYAN AID DRAWS CRITICS

ROAD TOWN, BRITISH VIRGIN ISLANDS—[H: How many of you even know the general location stated there?] Anguilla’s chief minister said three accepted promises of assistance after an aid-seeking mission to Libya could see their trip backfire. Osbourne Fleming said the prime ministers of St. Vincent, Grenada and Dominica could LOSE ASSISTANCE from traditional sources such as the United States and Britain. Dominica, Grenada and St. Vincent SECURED PROMISES FOR ABOUT $21.5 MILLION IN LOANS, GRANTS AND DEBT RELIEF FROM LIBYA.

[END OF QUOTING]

Could this actually be in the area of the Caribbean Sea—you know, right there in the dooryard of the U.S.? Oh, goodness, could it be? Moreover, what a nice place for banking outside the typical International Banking Cartel’s (IBC) ordinary operations which rule the world. And, oh, no, people, do not jump to incorrect conclusions: The offshore banks are also largely and predominantly owned and operated by the IBC.

Could these people use a little “living help” called, by definition, GAIA? Oh, indeed, as could Libya. My goodness, has God gone bonkers?

Now, let’s just take a glance at the fiasco and stupidity taking place “over there” in Durban, South Africa over “racism”.

It is recognized that Palestine is “under foreign occupation” and that can remain in the documents as presented. However, all reference and mention of Israel as a racist nation is removed from any documents. But, the politicians (“politics”: many ticks. As in poly ticks.). Well, Armageddon has to happen, DOESN’T IT? And geographically, where is it supposed to happen? Please keep your “eyes on the prize”!

So, why aren’t “we” getting everything done and working? Well, we ARE, friends, in spite of all the barriers and hurdles put in our pathway. I always have to respond to you more angry impatient brothers, however: When are YOU going to get it done?

I realize that each recipient of any message or of any article offered or written, will receive it uniquely to self. Because of this and the totally 100% fact of such uniqueness we must cover a variety of topics which we realize will bore some, intrigue some and actually cause others to turn totally away. We must pursue that which we KNOW already must be attended in order to move on forward.

Berends just sent a nice e-mail to cheer the soul and actually cause a bit of attention to what IS. Sometimes you have to confront the fact that you grow out of the very appreciation of LIVING AND LIFE ITSELF.

Thank you to whomever started the circulation and our notice was beyond the little writing but directed to the e-mail listings—where we noted old and long-missing acquaintances. #### I WISH YOU DANDELIONS!

When I look at a patch of dandelions, I see a bunch of weeds that are going to take over my yard. My kids see flowers for Mom and blowing white fluff you can wish on.

When I look at an old drunk and he smiles at me, I see a smelly, dirty person who probably wants money and I look away. My kids see someone smiling at them and they smile back.

When I hear music I love, I know I can’t carry a tune and don’t have much rhythm, so I sit self-consciously and listen. My kids feel the beat and move to it. They sing out the words. If they don’t know them, they make up their own.

When I feel wind on my face, I brace myself against it. I feel it messing up my hair and pulling me back when I walk. My kids close their eyes, spread their arms and fly with it, until they fall to the ground laughing.

When I pray, I say thee and thou and grant me this, give me that. My kids say, “Hi God! Thanks for my toys and my friends. Please keep the bad dreams away tonight. Sorry, I don’t want to go to heaven yet. I would miss my Mommy and Daddy.”

When I see a mud puddle I step around it. I see muddy shoes and dirty carpets. My kids sit in it. They see dams to build, rivers to cross and worms to play with.

I wonder if we are given kids to teach or to learn from? No wonder God loves the little children! Enjoy the little things in life, for one day you may look back and realize they were the big things.

I wish you BIG MUD PUDDLES and SUNNY YELLOW DANDELIONS.

[END OF QUOTING]

And what do I wish for you? Well, when you have worn shoes, especially the special ones, note the children always wanting to dress up and wear them! Are YOUR shoes worthy of your children’s walking in them?

Ascended Masters Foretell Earth's Glorious Future

[TELOS, Part 2]

P.W.—In 1932 (before the advent of the current level of censorship we are blighted by), the Los Angeles Times carried a prominent half-page article reporting on humanoid entities living below the surface of Mount Shasta, who were even widely observed to have fire-lit ceremonies on the “back side” of the mountain. The reporter/author of the article stressed that these beings were well realized and commonly discussed by residents of the several small towns around Mount Shasta. This 1932 article was probably the high point in mainstream press of the acknowledged presence and reality of these underground dwellers. Since then, censorship has encroached (as well as “civilization” around the mountain), and little publicly heard on this topic. Needless to say, the surface “ceremonials” have long since ceased.

Present-day Mt. Shasta City is the town actually on the way up the mountain to the higher reaches. With probably 200-300 active Lightworkers who are practically all conversant with the TELOS revelation, the Light is well anchored and the spiritual activity hums excitedly with group channelings, guided meditations, healings, and seminar-type gatherings (such as the Wesak Festival in May/Taurus) and well-exemplified by the recent full-Moon-in-Leo Ascending Hearts Conclave which I just attended.

Early this year when the TELOS book/revelation reached me and splendidly confirmed my experience of 25+ years ago, desire started to build for me to be at Shasta by August 4th (full Moon). Augmented by such as relayed input from Master Kuthumi that, as “original contactee”, I should be there; financial support appeared (even from persons unknown to me); probably most of all, Mark’s magnanimous offer (: “Of course you should go—don’t feel rushed to return—I’ll cover [do all your work] for you—I’m as anxious to learn what’s happening at Shasta as you are”, etc.) lit an unquenchable fire in me to go to Shasta. Since motel expenses were totally out of possibility, Louise Jones’ (publisher of the TELOS book) kindly offer to use her home/office as my headquarters put the icing on my decision-cake.

As the moment drew closer and I heard more and more about the Ascending Hearts Conclave (Aug. 3-5th) it became obvious I should attend that—and it was reinforced when I was offered a half-price ticket because of my experience/testimonial.

It is a revealing comment on Shasta City that the Conclave, a truly highly-evolved gathering, was held in a building in the City Park, in a lovely grove of tall mountainside trees. The energy, as I walked around soaking in the shining, vibrant-with-anticipation faces, was strong and sweet even before the opening presentation. These attendees seemed to be expecting a miracle—and they got it. After all, the dawning of the Seventh Golden Age of Enlightenment is here.

The sponsor, Canadian Craig Russel [www.soul-journey.com] had a major surge of inspiration in 1986 on a pilgrimage to the Greek islands and soon began sharing presence with and receiving the angel Akasha. To skip ahead a bit, at Craig’s ending presentation, after hearing all the others, I had internally tapped-in to my deepest emotional wells—I cried so deeply and profoundly with the unspeakable joy of deliverance that, even though I was momentarily concerned I might be disturbing others, the fluid flow of joy wasn’t to be stopped.

Everything about the Conclave was so perfect! The unity (with others as well as The One) was palpably tangible. It was as if the entire group had been shifted into the Fifth dimension, where there is no negative of any sort; there is no denial—because there is nothing negative existent to need denial. (And this is indeed where we are irrevocably headed, chillun.)

The several musicians, inspired by the rarified ambience, lent another fulfilling aspect to the beautiful tapestry we were seeing and hearing. One song, performed by the most prominent Native American (a shaman as well as musician) was introduced as “... this song will bring reminiscence to all of you.” It reached so deeply in my profound memories I cried four separate times as I heard this song. Leonard Eagle Cloud was to make an even more remarkable contribution to my incomparable experience—even after the Conclave.

The various presenters (including John Swanson who sends warm and loving regards to his old friends the Ekkers) were stimulating and profound. We were gifted with hearing messages from Sananda, Lord Michael, St. Germain and Lord Maitreya, who delivered one sentence certainly worth retelling: “The time of suffering on this planet is over!”

Since I haven’t been able to review the tapes of the Conclave (available thru www.soul-journey.com) this must be sort of a paraphrased amalgam of Lord Sananda and Lord Michael:

... the Earth is to become such a showplace it will be a “favorite vacation spot” for the galaxy (or was it for this universe)... it will be like a heavenly retreat, once its surface-dweller culture is merged with the more highly-evolved beings of Light who have now offered (see the TELOS revelation) their help and unimpeachable thrust to “bootstrap” us into the Fifth dimension of All Light.

It is becoming prominently evident that the Planet Earth is key (or “trigger”) to a much larger rising-succession of events even possibly exceeding single-universe scope. (This harks me back to a [ridiculous] statement by a certain former CONTACT editor-in-chief: “Earth is just one little planet going through transition—it has nothing to do with other, larger realms.” ’Nuf said.)

As the 3-day event went on the energy and love-thick-as-honey continued to build. As a comment on the town as well as the Conclave—never have I met and experienced with more people that I could, openly and smilingly full-faced, say “I love you” without any even tiny reservation or holding back. This feeling, experienced by all of the several hundred Conclavers, is what we Earth dwellers (on/in) have in store for ourselves. We have (finally!) earned it. Don’t hold back. Open to it and ALLOW it as God wants us to. We have even now been presented with the procedure and method of our deliverance, in black and white. (See the TELOS revelation.)

The widely-acknowledged “hit” of the Conclave was Patricia Pereira and her presentation of the Arcturians. After a nine-year struggle to find a publisher, she now has available the four-volume set The Arcturian Chronicles, each volume separately titled, the overall sub-title being: Intergalactic Seed Messages For The People Of Planet Earth [Beyond Words Publishing, Inc., 20827 N.W. Cornell Rd., Ste. 500, Hillsboro, Oregon 97124-9808, 503-531-8700, 1-800-284-9673].

Patricia has been receiving the Arcturians for several years, and has now so thoroughly merged with them that she functions as co-author with them. Believe me (and all the attendees) this lady is profoundly capable in this task. After her presentation(s) she sold out of books so fast I was only able to acquire one (#3) volume. I won’t try to elaborate here, except to say, open any of the volumes at any page, read one or two sentences and YOU WILL KNOW the validity of this information presented by these fifth- and sixth-dimensional beings now offering their help. May I suggest you order vol. I—I am confident you will want to experience more of these Arcturian books. As a note, during the America West Publishers period (circa 1990), a book was offered titled We, The Arcturians—and when I read into this 1990 book the Arcturians referred to themselves as fourth- and fifth-dimensional entities: seeming to indicate we are seeing examples of evolution in step-by-step succession. This book also seems entirely valid to me, but why read a 10-year-old book when the new Arcturian Chronicles are presenting at a “speed” humanity needs to come up to. It seems we of Earth are being plainly offered help from entities/groups we were barely (certainly I wasn’t) aware of. Please read the TELOS revelation first, and then you will be wide open to access understandings of these other entities offering tangible help at this very time of our budding ascension.

Spearheaded by Commander Hatonn, the Pleiadians are and have been offering and presenting their help for years. Come to appreciate the crucial, key role Commander Hatonn & company present as their mission—to include financing in tangible, real-time terms—surely a mighty step forward to bridge the spiritual/physical gap and provide critically-needed fuel for our Earth’s progression out of darkness. Open to the realization of true unity represented by the very multi-offering of other entities/groups such as Sirius and many others, from our galaxy and others.

God’s solutions are always the simplest and most efficient. Consider the simple, efficient method of Earth’s being helped, coached and guided to ascension by more-highly-evolved entities already resident (in, or) upon this planet. Of course, Dad wouldn’t have us turn away from any valid offer of assistance in this grand effort to return to the Unity of ONE. Think co-operation. Think open and allowing. Start practicing 5-D thinking: don’t deny—unify!

Dare to begin to contemplate the procession, as all the elements come into focus, of the Earth’s actual healing and its (population included) ascension into the Fifth dimension of All Light. No one can or could deny it, from here on in (or up). Be sure you, as the experiencing individual part of God, are allowing and positively contributing to the preparation and to our ascension. You have earned your right to be at/in this magnificent position. Accept the gift(s) as we, in growing harmony, step into the exhilarating up-draft toward our ascension.

As the Conclave ended, an interesting phenomenon occurred: No one wanted to leave! The lawn outside was crowded with groups, little and big. It was as if the experience was so precious no one wanted to admit it was over. In me, I experienced almost a trace of sadness that this brilliantly-lighted, 3-day moment was over. My feeling was that after such a dizzyingly-high moment my emotions must surely be bound to head a little downhill. Well, Dad’s just full of surprises! Tune in next week to see what happened the next day.

CONTACT OR SPECTRUM?

I want to briefly respond to a most unusual question from a totally "out of the blue" person: "It appears Spectrum will fail, possibly close, so will you go back to writing for CONTACT or what?"

I have never stopped writing for CONTACT—but I have NOT written, nor have my compatriots written for Spectrum. Tails wag a lot of dogs, my friends. Therefore, "or what" has no meaning.
