Another Look At Worldwide Chemtrails

11/3/01—#1 (15-079)

RE: WHERE ARE THE BODIES? STOP THE NONSENSE. THE LATEST ON CHEMTRAILS

TOADS AND PRINCES

Hatonn—This is a pretty good focus being it is still a weekend to honor and create more dead bodies.

Is death during Christmas or Ramadan something more or less special for the 100%-dead being? Moreover, how DO you count the dead? Even in the World Trade Center there is massive hanky-panky taking place as we find that MOST who were thought to be dead are actually hardly interrupted in their work from NEW OFFICES already set up for the purpose with the same old computers and data bases and generally just a new address THE VERY NEXT DAY.

It is now reported that most of the dead were illegal immigrants who are undocumented.

Well, isn't that nifty—and, selective deadening?

Where are the bodies?

It is public press knowledge that there is great concern and consternation that now that death certificates are being issued for "missing" people in the World Trade Center debacle that "... Surprisingly, very few people are asking for them...". It seems that gold can be found after passing through areas where people should be piled very deep indeed, so bodies should be found—and where are all the cars? A few squashed, and some relatively undamaged, cars have been pulled out of the rubble—but bodies remain scarce indeed. FOLLOW THE MONEY AND PERHAPS MORE INFORMATION MIGHT SPRING INTO YOUR CONSCIOUSNESS. Also note what you are NOT allowed to present or question "... to preserve the feelings of victims' families, firefighters and police, who gave their ALL...", on that fateful day of nothing BUT questions. The rituals and routines are always the same, aren't they?

And question the "charities" and how they handle the massive funds collected for the survivors and victims' families—and you meet the most convoluted tales of all.

It seems that out of over $350 million, only some $50 million has been paid out—while the other $300 is being set up for "long-term" assistance, college funds and you name it. Most funds are running through newly created fragments under something like "United Way"—but, accounting has become as scarce as those proverbial "hens' teeth".

BUT TODAY: GOLD VS. BODIES

Look at today, chelas, in New York. The firemen who were heroes are now marching and fighting. Why? Because that new "SIR" mayor of New York called off the firemen searching and recovering bodies in favor of getting them out of the area while the gold and other unearthed wealth is gathered. It is called a "gold vs. people" rebellion. I too have to wonder exactly WHERE are the loyalties and goodness.

And the immigration debacle taking place? Well, people, it may well seem to be over New York and the outcome thereof of terrorist games—but, no, it will reflect itself throughout the nations. This is going to cause some of our very own old friends to possibly reconsider their positions against brothers. But then again, perhaps places like the United States may not be so desirable to “go to” for freedom and good living. Some are very definitely more equal than others.

But readers, that terrorist World Trade Center “thing” just gets stranger and stranger by the day as in: Where ARE those bodies?

COLLOIDS, SILVER AND OTHERWISE

We are now up against another prattling attack in that because I write on colloids that somehow I am “still in business”. “I” was never in business and Diane never was anything in any corporation but those covering the tale in tattle DID and/or STILL DO.

I write on every topic around, and silver colloids is a very favorite of mine—just as is an unjust judicial system, GAIA, Spiritual Truth, and any other news items relative to the lies people tell.

I am accused of simply writing in “code”. CODE? I mostly use things already fully covered—BY THE ONES COMPLAINING. We even wait a while to make very sure we are not “scooping” someone’s news. The Silver Colloid material was taken DIRECTLY from Spectrum newspaper, so surely there cannot be complaint? Ah but—indeed there certainly IS.

Frankly, we would be writing more on an apparatus called PAP IMI except that “your” best friends would work diligently to shut down the places of use. This wouldn’t be on turning “A” person a gray-tinged hue but it’s uselessness.

Frankly, unless you can get some legal, positively-charged particulate INTO the body, I can’t see a completion of a perfect loop being achieved with any apparatus. Furthermore, it requires a while to achieve ongoing enhancement of the immune system. Remember, even ANTHRAX attacks the IMMUNE SYSTEM. Once established as a disease working in the body, note that it is all but impossible to have a patient recover.

Therefore, I remain strong in my suggestion that you keep that body in as good health as possible even if through “Willard Water” which is simply ionized (positively-charged) water, or something which disallows the entry of the “bugs” in the first place—if you are disallowed anything save killer drugs.

It is said today that you can bet on flu being present, not anthrax, if your nose is running. Well, good sign perhaps, BUT that wet nose is a prime growing medium for just about everything including anthrax.

Do Ekkers use colloids? Yes indeed—but they are in the Philippines where it is fine, remains fully legal and they never even try to get it elsewhere—they make it. Also, surprisingly enough, the distilled water here in Manila is better than almost any brand in the United States. You just never know, do you?

Ekkers spray it on the exposed areas of the body especially when moving around among people, always apply it to abrasions or wounds, especially around the nails where cuticles might be damaged, and always on any abrasions or cracks to the feet, etc. They brush teeth with hydrogen peroxide wash and finish with a swish of silver colloid. Wow, no blue. In fact it is true that Dharma had purple nails and lips FROM LACK OF OXYGEN and, with attention, that has gone away except in heavy exercise where oxygen is depleted. Remember, please, that Dharma was in serious upper respiratory failure in the months before this trip to Manila.

I note also that the people and mayor of Howey, Florida are getting the old raspberries and finger-signals for the stand taken on available silver colloids for everyone. My notice is not particularly scientific but NOTE PLEASE: NOBODY IN HOWEY HAS ANTHRAX! Sometimes a picture or an example is far more valuable than all the snickering talk around. Neither is there the level of TERROR in Howey as elsewhere over possibilities. Perhaps they are just being more “careful”. Well, anything that grabs you, reader.

This above notation about health amongst the crew is rather remarkable, since those of the Spectrum groupie assured everyone that Dharma was really in trouble with something like consumption and E.J. had Alzheimer’s. I really can’t know anyone else who has done what these two have accomplished in these short months and yes, there are still very bad health days—mostly from fatigue and a load of stress beyond measure. But as Dharma reminds me, for a hundred and three, they are waddling along pretty well—and the alternative is quite unacceptable if they wish to get their job (purpose) finished. How many will even FIND their “purpose” much the less finish it?

So, yes, they can use their tools for attending disease contamination, even to the regular bouts of tainted food—noted for travelers into places of poor refrigeration. Sometimes in tight circumstances, they treat the table water a bit more than necessary and it takes care of possible food spoilage intake. This includes, especially, where meat is questioned—which it always SHOULD BE.

I absolutely advocate EVERY TIME IN EVERY WAY—KEEPING WITHIN THE LAW. However, I also insist that there are shelters to help you achieve that when intentionally-presented damages are used ON YOU. THE ENEMY IS ALWAYS READY AND ABLE TO BE IN YOUR FACE OR ON YOUR BACK AND WILL ALWAYS BE THE PAID INFORMERS.

Ignorance of the law is said to be of no defense. That is NOT so, for a jury has to consider INTENT TO BREAK THE LAW. It happens to be within the CONSTITUTION. That is the big charge against Diane: “Intentional...”. If it has been poked in by the Federal prosecutors along with other threats presented while the “rights” are barely presented—KNOW IT IS WORTHY OF A LOT OF ATTENTION.

Liquid oxygen is the big NEW thing in the health stores in Manila as presented through conversion of hydrogen peroxide. However, the end product is ionized water, for the conversion takes place and the OUTPUT PRODUCT is no longer consistent with the starting elements.

Let us say that EVERY ELEMENT is an atomic product. However, every element doesn’t produce an atomic bomb. White willow bark is basically “aspirin” but aspirin can kill if misused and certainly can offer ulceration of the stomach, poor clotting of the blood, etc. I doubt you would remain healthy if you ate an atomic bomb OR a thousand aspirin tablets.

WE OFFER NO “CURE” UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES. ONLY AN INDIVIDUAL CAN PRODUCE A “CURE” IN ANY CIRCUMSTANCE AT ANY TIME. AT BEST THE VERY MOST ACCEPTED ANTIBIOTICS ARE BUT TOOLS TO ASSIST, IF POSSIBLE, RECOVERY FROM AN ATTACK OF ONE KIND OR ANOTHER IN THE MICROBE FAMILY OF INVADERS.

PLEASE USE YOUR HEADS, REASON, LOGIC AND KEEP TO THE LAW AT ALL TIMES! THAT IS THE VERY THRUST OF OUR ENTIRE PRESENTATION IN ANY EVENT OR SITUATION. AND IF YOU HAVE AN INNER NEED FOR REVENGE AGAINST ANYONE—PLEASE THINK FOUR OR FIVE TIMES OF CONSEQUENCES—AFTER YOU THINK TWICE. THE DAMAGE YOU SEND FORTH SHALL COME BACK, FOR IT IS UNIVERSAL LAW. IT IS ALSO CALLED “CAUSE” AND “EFFECT”.

CHEMTRAILS

I would ordinarily ask to wait a bit to run anything further on this topic—but the crucial information AS TO POSSIBILITIES is simply too great to be negligent when that “stitch in time” might well save your whole wardrobe.

So much, including from us, has been written on chemtrails, airborne spraying for crops and otherwise and frankly, now, airborne microbes as in bio- or chemical weapons, as to keep on top of the focus if nothing else than to cause attention.

Top-secret projects and programs MUST always be noted, for if they are top-secret, you can KNOW that the program is dangerous in one form or another to YOU.

This may well be a current and recent article which we will reprint here for your attention and to give further recognition to the topic by a bit wider distribution—but the subject is not new and the ramifications are OLD. This is now old-hat technology—and research projects by the dozen have been carried out at your expense in health damage and massive funding costs.

How can these bottomless pits of funding be available? Because there is no value basing any currency. So, whatever the Elite tell you is available and what is the decided “value”—you have infinite funds available for greed and corruption if desirable, and none for you-the-people. Some has been provided right out of that infamous Bush Superfund you are going to hear more about as time moves forward. Black ops is another bottomless pot. You see, if money is based on NOTHING, you can have as much as you want until the game folds. When the game folds, all the government has to do is “Oh well...”.

Just from the United States, Israel gets bunches of money in aid. Also Israel gets $3 BILLION “in cash” from the U.S. annually. They can reinvest that money immediately in the highest-return investments as they choose and/or demand it in gold. That is the way the laws read. A U.S. citizen can now BUY gold but you cannot demand payment in gold unless you have some VALID debt of the Government prior to the Federal Reserve Act of 1913. If you have something prior to that date, however, with the Treasury Department, it is due-and-owing, in gold—guaranteed by the Federal Reserve. But oh indeed, getting it paid is quite another boondoggle and stonewall process of plausible denial and you name the game in play at any given time. Outright denial is not suitable because instruments have already been utilized for the benefit of the Elite controllers. Any DENIAL in writing is then subject to possible backlash. Patience often pays dividends. In fact, just keep on moving ahead and build the mountain higher than the one “they” have placed to stop you. Tunnel right on through and pick up as many players as you can for your team—along the way.

Just know something, readers: Those chemtrails are NOT from Osama bin Laden.

CHEMTRAILS
COVERT CLIMATE CONTROL?

Under the banner of some top-secret scientific agenda, the U.S. military continues to weave chemical-laden contrails in the skies, causing health problems for unprotected people on the ground.

For nearly three years, chemtrail observers have hoped an official would step forward to explain the origin and purpose of broad white plumes criss-crossing the skies above a dozen allied nations. Their wait is over....

It was nearly noon when S.T. Brendt awoke and entered the kitchen of her country home in Parsonsfield, Maine. As she poured her first cup of coffee, the late night reporter for WMWV radio could not have guessed that her life was minutes away from drastic change.

Her partner Lou Aubuchont was already up, puzzling over what he had seen in the sky a half-hour before. The fat puffy plumes arching up over the horizon were unlike any contrail he had ever seen, even during his hitch in the Navy.

Like breath exhaled on a winter's day, the contrails he was used to seeing would flare briefly in the stratosphere as hot moist engine exhaust flash-freezes into a stream of ice-crystals. These pencil-thin condensation trails are pretty to watch but short-lived, subliming into invisibility as exhaust gases cool quickly to the surrounding air temperature.

But in late 1997, Aubuchont started observing thicker trails extending from horizon to horizon. Hanging in the sky long after their creators had flown from view, these expanding white ribbons would invariably be interwoven by more thick lines left by unmarked jets, Air Force white or silver in colour.

On this March 12th morning in 2001, Lou did not mention his sighting as S.T. indulged in caffeine. Sipping gratefully, she glanced out the window. It looked like another gorgeous, cloudless day.

But not quite. Brendt balked at several chalk marks scrawled across the crystalline blue sky. "Contrails or chemtrails?" she jokingly remarked.

Lou got up and looked. What kind of clouds run exactly side by side in a straight line? he wondered. It's just too perfect to happen naturally. When he said he wasn't sure, S.T. stopped smiling and went outside.

[H: Well, they come up with all sorts of "lame-duck excuses" for such cloud formations. There are even some really technical names for those that look exactly like "space-ships" and hang around all day or days—while they are supposed to have been formed by high winds, which do blow clouds right on by, viewers.]

Looking up towards the southeast over West Pond, she spotted the first jet. A second jet was laying billowing white banners to the north. Both aircraft appeared to be at over 30,000 feet. Turning her gaze due west, Brendt saw two more lines extending over the horizon. She called Lou. Within 45 minutes the couple counted 30 jets.

This isn't right, S.T. thought. We just don't have that kind of air traffic here. While Lou kept counting, she went inside and started calling airports. One official she reached was guarded but friendly. He had relatives in West Pond.

The Air Traffic Control manager told Brendt her sighting was "unusual". His radars showed nine commercial jets during the same 45-minute span. From her location, he said, she should have been able to see one plane.

And the other twenty-nine? The FAA official confided off the record that he had been ordered "by higher civil authority" to re-route inbound European airliners away from a "military exercise" in the area. "Of course, they wouldn't give me any of the particulars and I don't ask," he explained. "I just do my job."

Excited and puzzled by this information, S.T. and Lou got into their car and headed down Route 160. Looking in any direction they could see five or six jets flying at over 30,000 feet. Never in the dozen years they'd lived in rural Maine had they seen so much aerial activity.

A former U.S. Navy Intelligence courier, Aubuchont was used to large-scale military exercises. But he told S.T. he had never seen anything this big. "It looked like an invasion," he later recounted.

Another driver almost went off the road as he leaned over his dashboard trying to look up. As they passed, he acknowledged them with a nod.

As far as they could see stretched line after line. Two giant grids were especially blatant. Instead of dissipating like normal contrails, these sky trails grew wider and wider and began to merge. Looking towards the Sun, Aubuchont saw what appeared like "an oil and water mixture" reflecting a prismatic band of colours. He couldn't call it a rainbow. Rainbows aren't sinister.

As Lou and S.T. completed their errands, the jets kept them company, leaving lines and even circles that resembled smoke rings. Even living near Kennedy, LaGuardia and Newark jetports, Aubuchont had never seen so many big jets performing identical manoeuvres in the same sky. Then they returned to Parsonsfield around four, the lines were starting to merge into a dingy haze.

Richard Dean called back. After receiving S.T.'s message, the assistant WMWV news director had gone outside with other news staff and counted 370 lines in skies usually devoid of aerial activity.

Brendt put in another call to the FAA official. He had never heard of chemtrails. In their first face-to-face interview, the chain-smoking controller responsible for air traffic over the northeastern seaboard repeated his earlier statements on tape. Similar military activities were ongoing in other regions, he added. On his 'scopes' he could track the tankers flying north into Canadian airspace.

Speaking before witnesses at WMWV on condition of strict anonymity, our "Deep Sky" source answered a series of yes/no questions I helped Brendt prepare when she contacted me.

After nearly three years on this case, I wanted to corroborate extremely high levels of aluminum [aluminium] powder found in samples of rainwater falling through thick sky plumes over Espanola, Ontario, in the spring of 1998.

The Espanola lab tests were conducted after residents began complaining to the provincial environment ministry. Severe headaches, chronic joint pain, dizziness, sudden extreme fatigue, acute asthma attacks and feverless "flu-like" symptoms over a 50-square-mile area coincided with what they termed "months of 'spraying'" by photo-identified U.S. Air Force tanker planes.

Another Espanola resident told me that mental confusion and short-term memory loss were so prevalent that forgetting where their cars were parked had become "a standing joke" in the tiny town.

On November 18, 1998, the people of Espanola petitioned Parliament. Addressing the Canadian government on their behalf, defense critic Gordon Earle explained:

"Over 500 residents of the Espanola area have signed a petition raising concern over possible government involvement in what appears to be aircraft emitting visible aerosols. They have found high traces of aluminum and quartz in particulate and rainwater samples.

"These concerns combined with associated respiratory ailments have led these Canadians to take action and seek clear answers from this government. The petitioners call upon Parliament to repeal any law that would permit the dispersal of military chaff or of any cloud-seeding substance whatsoever by domestic or foreign military aircraft without the informed consent of the citizens of Canada thus affected."

The Ministry of Defense eventually replies: "It's not us."

Which was true. While the U.S. Air Force counts 650 four-engine KC-135 Stratotankers and 50 KC-10 Extenders in its active inventory, Canadian Forces do not fly armadas of tankers. But they do operate the biggest radar installation in Canada at CFB Comox on Vancouver Island, easily capable of tracking the American formations coming up from the south.

"Was the classified operation a radar experiment?" we wanted to know. The barium spread in exercises conducted out of Wright-Patterson Air Force Base acts as an electrolyte, enhancing conductivity of radar and radio waves. "Wright Pat" has also long been deeply engaged in HAARP's electromagnetic warfare program.

A SKY SHIELD

TO COMBAT GLOBAL WARMING?

The puzzle pieces fell into place with Deep Sky's revelation that ATC radars were being "degraded" by tanker-released particles showing up as a "haze" on their screens. This radar characteristic matched the high concentrations of aluminum powder found along with a preponderance of quartz particles in Espanola's chemical-contaminated rainwater.

The tankers' aluminum powder emissions also matched the Welsbach patent. Issued in 1994 to the Hughes aerospace giant "for Reduction of Global Warming", the sky shield blueprint calls for dispensing microscopic particles of aluminum oxide and other reflective materials into the upper atmosphere to reflect one or two percent of incoming sunlight. Computer simulations by Ken Caldeira at Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory calculated that this would be enough to stop warming over 85 percent of the planet, despite an anticipated doubling of carbon in the atmosphere within the next 50 years.

[H: Ah yes, but indeed, harmless colloidal silver which CAN'T turn anyone blue (at best ONLY silver salts might have limited ability to do so)—is called "possibly dangerous" to your health! My goodness, there is not an inch of the United States or populated Canada that has missed being sprayed in chemtrails clouding. And yes indeed, it IS dangerous to your health: physical and mental.]

Lawrence Livermore priced the aerial spray program at U.S.$1 BILLION a year—a cheap fix to maintain massive petroleum profits in the face of Kyoto's internationally agreed carbon cutbacks.

Livermore's founder, Edward Teller, lobbied hard for another chance to play with planetary processes. At the 1998 International Seminar on Planetary Emergencies, the Father of the H-bomb presented his Next Big Idea. Having earlier pressed for detonating nuclear bombs to carve new harbours out of American coastlines, Teller now called for reflective chemicals to be spread like mirror-shades over the Earth. Or at least over allies who could agree in secret for this unprecedented geoengineering experiment to be carried out over their unsuspecting constituents.

In a draft report leaked to me soon after it appeared for peer review in May 2000, an expert panel chosen among 3,000 atmospheric scientists looked at Caldeira's computer simulations and agreed that Teller's scheme might work. But the IPCC warned against unpredictable upsets of the atmosphere, as well as against angry populaces reacting to "the associated whitening of the visual appearance of the sky".

Caldeira was so concerned he went public, warning that deflecting sunlight would further cool the stratosphere, concentrating icy clouds of ozone-gobbling CFCs that could destroy Earth's solar radiation shield.

Was the sky shield experiment already underway? Deep Sky hinted that it was.

Were the tankers involved in weather modification? Our FAA source hesitated before responding. "That approximates what I was told."

For the third interview we rephrased our key question. Were the tankers repeatedly observed on ATC radars involved in climate modification? I caught my breath as Deep Sky confirmed that this is what he was told was the object of the mission.

Here at last was our "smoking nuke" admission. After years of "airliner" double-speak, we could now corroborate Deep Sky's report of military aircraft dispensing reflective materials with an earlier report by a Canadian aviation official.

On December 8, 2000, Terry Stewart, the Manager for Planning and Environment at the Victoria International Airport, had broken this story wide open when he responded to a caller's complaint the previous day of Xs, circles and grids being woven over the British Columbia capitol. Leaving a message on an answering machine tape, later heard by more than 15 million radio listeners, the public servant explained: "It's a military exercise, U.S. and Canadian Air Force exercise that's going on. They wouldn't give me any specifics on it."

Stewart added that he found the incident—one of hundreds reported over Canada's West Coast since the fall of 1998—"very odd".

Tasked with defending Canadian airspace in the region, CFB Comox chose instead to defend a classified collaboration. "No military operation is taking place," the base information officer tersely told me when I called for details. But Stewart later told the Vancouver Courier that his information had come directly from CFB Comox.

CONTRAILS vs. CHEMTRAILS

Across the strait from the island air base, a concerned mother of three children was noticing that people in Gibsons were coming down with ailments that coincided with constant chemtrail activity. Suzanne Smart's husband contracted asthma; their children were always sniffing and coughing. Smart ended up in the small coastal town's Emergency unit with a sore throat, "super-stiff" neck, pounding headache and ears "ringing like crazy". Even her teeth hurt.

It was all very nerve-wracking. Smart contacted a Transport Canada investigator who had noticed the jet trails too and was convinced it was normal contrail activity. Why he took special notice of normal contrails was not explained. But the TC official told Smart he hoped the Canadian equivalent of the FAA would be notified of any military exercises taking place.

On June 17, 2001, after photographing massive plumes over Gibsons, Smart checked with aviation authorities and found that no airline flight plans had been filed for that airspace at that time. Official weather data showed that when her photos of multiple white plumes were taken, the 30 percent humidity at 30,000 and 35,000 feet was less than half that needed for contrails to form.

As NOAA meteorologist Thomas Schlatter explains, for even short-lived condensation trails to form, "We're talking temperatures lower than about minus 76 degrees Fahrenheit, and humidity at jet altitudes of 70 percent or more".

Smart sent her findings to Transport Canada with a request for an explanation of how contrails could form when they couldn't. "It is my understanding," she wrote, "that the only way to form jet trails at yesterday's low humidity is to introduce very fine particulates into the atmosphere."

Smart's homework hit like hardball. According to the National Center for Atmospheric Research in Boulder, Colorado, the only way to form artificial clouds in warm dry air is to introduce enough particulates into the atmosphere to attract and accrete all available moisture into visible vapour. If repeated often enough, the resulting rainless haze can lead to drought.

Following standard procedure to ignore all evidence contradicting the official line, Transport Canada's Rany Phillips responded by advising Smart to check out the "urban legends" Website ridiculing chemtrails.

Col. Walter Washbaugh, Chief of the Congressional Inquiry Division for the Secretary of the Air Force in Washington, D.C., also calls chemtrails "a hoax". In an April 20, 2001, letter to a U.S. senator, Washbaugh blamed the increased number of contrails on "significant civil aviation growth in the past decade. [H: Wow, next they will blame the "aliens"!]

He was right. A National Science Foundation study has found that, in certain heavy traffic corridors, artificial cloud cover has increased by as much as 20 percent since the jet age took off. Dr. Patrick Minnis, a CERES [H: Now there's a good name for you.] atmospheric researcher and ardent chemtrails critic at NASA's Langley Research Center, reports that cirrus cloud cover over the United States is up five percent overall because particulates in engine exhaust are acting as cloud-forming nuclei. As the number of flights currently exceeds 15 million annually worldwide, the NSF, NASA and EPA predict artificial clouds will intensify as air travel continues climbing sharply.

What about chemtrails? Colonel Washbaugh ascribed widely reported grid patterns to overlapping aircraft flying north-south, east-west airways. The only thing wrong with this explanation, an air traffic controller told me in Texas, is that U.S. airways do not run north-south.

The biggest laugh came when the Colonel told the senator: "The Air Force is not conducting any weather modification and has no plans to do so in the future."

In fact, attempts to steer hurricanes by spraying heat-robbing chemicals in their paths began in the 1950s. The recipe for creating "cirrus shields" was outlined in an unusually arrogant U.S. Air Force study. Subtitled "Owning the Weather by 2025", the 1996 report explained how "weather force specialists" were dispersing chemicals behind high-flying tanker aircraft in a process the Air Force calls "aerial obscuration". [H: Aerial obscuration? (???)]

Official denials reached new altitudes of absurdity when another colonel claimed: "The U.S. Air Force does not conduct spraying operations over populated areas." USAF spokeswoman Margaret Gidding told a Spokane newspaper: "The Air Force doesn't do anything that emits anything other than a normal contrail, which is vapor."

So were their replies. Apparently Anderson and Gidding had forgotten how U.S. Air Force spray planes crippled a country and a culture by dispensing over Vietnam thousands of tons of "Agent Orange" defoliants containing dioxin toxins as hazardous as plutonium.

SEEING IS BELIEVING?

In the end, it has proved impossible to continue skywriting giant billboards advertising government duplicity, while insisting they are not there. By the summer of 2001, the controversy entered a new phase. Pictures of contrails were being distributed to newspapers by the Associated Press, and "chemtrails" could be overheard in coffee shop conversations across an entire continent.

When it comes to chemtrails, seeing is disbelieving official disinformation. As public awareness grows, people like war veteran David Oglesby are looking up. The 11 fat plumes fanning out over his Coarsgold, California home did it for Oglesby last June.

"The trails formed a grid pattern," he told WorldNetDaily News. "Some stretched from horizon to horizon. Some began abruptly—and others ended abruptly. They hung in the air for an extended period of time and gradually widened into wispy clouds resembling spider webs."

A retired U.S. Air Force radar tech named Shimera called a colonel responsible for all military operations in central California. "What would you say if I said there are three aircraft up there right now?" Shimera asked. "Are they there?"

"No," the colonel replied. "They are not there."

The Houston study is not so easily dismissed. Mark Steadham was looking for contrails when he started observing the skies over this busy Texas hub last winter. Using FAA tracking software called Flight Explorer to identify each aircraft, Steadham clocked contrails trailing from Boeing, McDonnell-Douglas and Airbus airliners. All but two of these condensation trails sublimed into invisibility with five to 20 seconds; the only exception persisted for two hours and 25 minutes. (?)

Flight Explorer does not show altitudes for military jets, but according to the FAA, tankers and transports usually transit continental airspace at around 30,000 feet to ensure safe separation from airliners flying between 35,000 and 39,000 feet. Military "heavies" flying below 30,000 feet should not have contrails at all. Major-General Gregory Bartow confirms that Air Force tankers do not perform refueling missions at contrail-forming altitudes.

But Steadham found just the opposite in his study. While observing air traffic for 63 days, the Houston skywatcher found that thick white plumes laid by similar-sized military aircraft—at the same time, in the same airspace as 20-second airliner contrails—lingered for four to eight hours.

GLOBAL CHEMTRAIL REPORTS

Sightings of oddly lingering plumes sometimes resembling rocket trails are not confined to North American skies.

While on leave in Italy in the summer of 1999, the U.S. Navy's Kitty Chastain sat on her hotel balcony and watched aerial grids being laid all day just offshore over the Bay of Naples. "People were coughing all over Naples," she wrote. On the bus ride in from the base, Chastain explained chemtrails to many sailors with hacking coughs.

On October 12 that same year, a Paris correspondent reported "... heavy activity from all directions, X upon X. The pilots here seem to like to play chicken; they fly right at each other and then one will swerve, their trails forming pitchforks and Xs." No contrails were being left by "normal planes" in the same skies. But the next day, planes flying over Paris "from all directions" obscured the sky with more Xs that continued into the evening.

In Spain on April 27, 2000, American tourist John Hendricks dashed off a quick e-mail from El Cafe de Internet: "Were we surprised to see that the chemtrails are as bad here as they are anywhere, both in Mallorca and in Barcelona." He and his wife "took plenty of pictures" before noticing a postcard they'd bought captured a perfect chemtrail.

"Add Sweden to the list," a Swedish resident wrote after spotting eight to 10 parallel trails and contracting flu for the first time in years. Weather conditions at the time were not conducive to contrail formation. "I know the commercial routes, and we have a bunch of them, but not where these trails were."

Chemtrail activity has been reported in at least 14 allied nations including Australia, Belgium, Britain, Canada, France, Germany, Holland, Ireland, Italy, New Zealand, Scotland, Sweden and the United States. Croatian chemtrails began the day after that country joined NATO.

ATMOSPHERIC ORGANISMS

Many chemtrails observers note that chemtrails are often laid down at the leading edge of approaching frontal systems. While rare "sundogs" form ice-crystal circles around the Sun in advance of strong winds, much more common "chemdogs" create prismatic solar halos during stable weather.

More and more observers, like this Vancouver resident, wonder why "on the days of heavy spraying you will notice a rainbow around the Sun". Many more people who have been healthy all their lives wonder why they keep getting desperately sick whenever the chemplanes appear.

Unlike the refined aluminum in cooking utensils that is tenuously linked to Alzheimer's disease, aluminum oxide is as inert as sand and is not considered toxic.

But in a story headlined "Tiny particles can kill", the August 5, 2000 edition of New Scientist reported that "city-dwellers in Europe and the U.S. are dying young because of microscopic particles in the air."

Looking at byproducts of hydrocarbon burning, a Harvard School of Public Health team determined particulates with a diameter less than 10 microns as being a serious threat to public health. (A human hair is about 100 microns across.) In 1987, U.S. environmental regulations limited airborne concentrations of particles less than 10 microns in diameter.

But air pollution has grown worse. On April 21, 2000, the New York Times warned: "These microscopic motes are able to infiltrate the tiniest compartments in the lungs and pass readily into the bloodstream, and have been most strongly tied to illness and early death, particularly in people who are already susceptible to respiratory problems."

David Hawkins, a lawyer for the Natural Resources Defense Council, speaks for "about a quarter-million Americans who have died prematurely as a result of fine-particle exposure".

That number may be boosted sharply by chemtrail spraying. On December 14, 2000, the New England Journal of Medicine reported that inhaling particulate matter of a size 10 microns or smaller leads to "a 5% increased death rate within 24 hours".

Teller's sunscreen calls for spraying 10 million tons of talcum-fine reflective particulates of 10 to 100 micron sizes.

Allergic reactions to airborne fallout do not explain the entire syndrome of chemtrail-related illness. Falling blood temperatures accompanying symptoms of intense yet feverless "flu" is a classic sign of chronic fungal infection. Blamed for a host of auto-immune dysfunction, from chronic fatigue to fibromyalgia and multiple sclerosis, the fungus within us also signals its presence in sharp joint pain, sudden extreme fatigue, sudden dizziness, mental confusion and short-term memory loss.

After nearly three years of intense investigation, I have found no proof that chemtrails constitute a deliberate biological attack. Research for my books on the Gulf biowar and earlier germ warfare experiments (Bringing the War Home; Scorched Earth) show that bio-attacks are conducted at low levels and never in daylight, in order to avoid ultraviolet sterilisation of toxins.

The biohazards in chemtrails may be bad LUC. The "Law of Unintended Consequences" states that every human intervention creates unpredictable consequences. Chemtrails can cause drought by soaking up all available moisture, and dropping chemical curtains fall through vast colonies of UV-mutated bacteria, viruses and fungi living in the upper atmosphere. Could these malevolent micro-organisms be piggy backing on the plumes?

A series of balloon flights made in the U.S. during the 1960s collected startling stratospheric samples swarming with bacteria and fungi as well as viruses bigger than any known at the time.

If viruses fall from the sky, most would land in the sea. Dipping their beakers into coastal seawater, scientists found as many as 10 million large virus-like particles per quart. As one researcher said: "No one knows where they come from or what they do. Their size and shape match the virus-like particles found in the upper atmosphere."

Other life-forms, even tinier than bacteria, are also thriving in our atmosphere. The discoverer of nanobacteria, Dr. Robert Folk, describes the most populous organisms on Earth as "dwarf forms of bacteria, about one-tenth the diameter and 1/1000th the volume of ordinary bacteria".

The Professor Emeritus at the University of Texas figures that these ultra-tiny bugs are "possibly an order of magnitude more abundant" than normal bacteria that swarm everywhere.

Since chemtrails are commonly spread over populated areas where temperature differentials are greatest and solar shading most needed, it is probable that particulate-laden plumes are precipitating airborne viruses, bacteria and fungi down into human lungs and respiratory systems unable to recognise or resist the alien invaders.

This possibility was further strengthened when Dr. Folk chose a lightweight metal as a matrix to grow bugs too small to be seen by optical microscopes. Folk viewed under electronic magnification entire ecologies of swarming nanobac. The bacteria were feasting on (he called it "metabolising") aluminum.

PUBLIC CONCERN SPREADS

Are we worried yet? An August 2001 WorldNetDaily poll asked Americans: "Do you think 'chemtrails' are anything to worry about?" Forty-three percent answered "Yes"; another 30 percent wanted more information on chemtrails—a total 73 percent of U.S. respondents are concerned about chemtrails.

As lawyers across the U.S. discuss filing the "Mother of All Lawsuits" against Boeing, Bush and the U.S. Air Force, their case now appears tight enough to force further disclosures. The last glaring evidential gap—photos of ground-based chemtrail operations—may soon be forthcoming.

What to do?

A British campaigner involved in another bid to reclaim individual sovereignty and local autonomy held out the best hope for change when she told a CBC radio interviewer:

"The only way to get government to do anything is if enough people stand up and shout, 'This is ridiculous!'"

Stay tuned. With chemtrails confirmed as a military operation aimed at climate modification, the biggest trial is about to begin—in the court of public opinion.

I think I need to close this while Fingers is still able to walk; there was a power failure of some kind and much of this lengthy script had to be retyped.

I am asked if I know and would tell what those chemtrails are all about? Yes and no. Yes in that none of the guesses so far hit the nail on target and no, it certainly is not wise to our program to scatter more information. It is not what is projected to fool you—and yes it is desperation afoot as changes are at hand. You are little people playing frightening games—and no, this will not keep the aliens OUT. "They" are already "in".

There is no way, readers, we can keep up with it all and get on with that which must come in the daily business arena. Please keep your eyes on the other paper writings and especially the News Desk. We are truly limited by the number of pages to which we make an effort to adhere.

Thank you for your constant prayers and good-wishes support—for those are the feathers which allow flight. Wings are nothing but arms with feathers. So be it.—GCH

De Beers' Jewish Control Of The Diamond Business

11/4/01—#1 (15-080)

RE: DIAMONDS AND BEST FRIENDS, UNCOVERING THE GUILTY AND WHAT IS NEW IN WONDERLAND

Hatonn—THANK YOU FOR THE INPUT REGARDING CRIMINAL LAW IN FEDERAL U.S.

Thank you for digging out the “lessons” on criminal law in the U.S. and especially as deals with Grand Juries.

Now, if the Feds want to go through the expense to “the people”, I think you will find the experience interesting even if not pleasant. THE CONSTITUTION STILL OFFERS A LOT OF PROTECTION FOR CITIZENS WRONGFULLY ACCUSED—IF YOU JUST FIND IT AND STAND SQUARELY ON IT AND BEHIND IT.

As it is written in the law, it only requires ONE juror to “doubt” to bring down “no indictment” and without an indictment there is NO case. Why should ANY innocent person ever plea bargain when yes, if handled properly, truth can be heard. Furthermore, in a Grand Jury setting ignorance of the law (new ones which have been dumped as a cause) will have bearing on the proving of INTENT to do wrong. THERE MUST BE “INTENT” TO DEFRAUD AND IN THE CASE OF DIANE, AS THE EXAMPLE, THERE WAS NO SUCH INTENT AND THEREFORE “NO CASE”.

What IS shown here is that YOU had better know more LAW than the ones out to kill you. And, moreover, anyone with a lawyer who suggests plea bargains when innocence is present, must be brought to answer for the reasons for such suggested signing of such bargains in the first place.

With a court-appointed legal counsel you can demand even more time and effort regarding your case if YOU are up on your own rights.

So, you are an inept businessperson—is that a crime of some sort? No, it is NOT. And, intent is ALWAYS a consideration—even in murder circumstances where the guilty party is present and said he/she “did it”.

The best part of demanding a grand jury hearing is that in so doing, the guilty informers must be made public to the “accused”.

Most cases do not even make it before the bench, readers, when an accused stands forth and DEMANDS rights under the law—especially that one that requires that the accused has every right under the law to CONFRONT the accuser(s). Wow, that usually knocks the case right out of the program.

Ed Young has stated in International publication that there is a Grand Jury supposedly taking place about or somehow including the Ekkers. He says everyone should just wait for whatever is handed down.

Well, no one in the legal world can find such a case and since it has proven IN COURT over and over again THAT THERE IS NOTHING ON WHICH TO BASE A CASE, we all look forward to any opportunity to bringing a bit of TRUTH into the circumstances.

The only time a case even NEARLY involved Ekkers there were accusations in the Federal court that NEVER EVEN MADE IT TO HEARING. The first call to the bench was to PUT IN HOLDING some Journals. That took place without any reference to the information involved. In fact, Ekkers' attorney HAD NOT EVEN OPENED THE BOOKS AND DIDN'T EVEN KNOW DHARMA WAS A WRITER. He based his case on freedom of speech which had NOTHING to with the case in the first or last point.

The only confrontation with the court came in a

CONTEMPT hearing “against the judge’s ruling”. THE CASE WAS NEVER EVEN BROUGHT TO THE COURT.

This is, however, interesting because the opposing counsel wanted the Judge to “show cause” why this “contempt” shouldn’t be a “criminal-felony contempt charge”. The Judge gave quite a pointed and interesting reason why it might not be wise. He noted that these particular people being charged would require counsel appointed and the case would go into infinity. He suggested wisdom and since he was the Judge involved he would make his own consideration. THE LEGAL GAMES ARE ENDLESS, CITIZENS, AND THE PROSECUTORS ARE ALLOWED THROUGH TRAINED LAWYERS TO DO HEINOUS CRIMES AGAINST YOU-THE-PEOPLE.

PRIVATE LAWYERS END UP TERRIFIED FOR “THEMSELVES” TO CONFRONT THOSE PREYING MANTII.

In the very instance above, both Ekkers were allowed to speak to the Judge and a very big LOT got said and indeed, the Judge listened and allowed without interruption even when he wanted to do so.

They all realized that if there ever was enough to get a trial, that the minute Doris hit that stand and under oath, seated, old Dad would be there before the next word would be spoken. I don’t think anyone wanted a “multiple personality” trial on their hands, although WE look forward to that day. No one is going to want to miss that show. Why, we even had one lawyer experience my input and at the deposition to follow he specifically asked if I would please not take the chair because it would be too much for anyone to handle.

I had pulled his two-year-old out of the home swimming pool, dead for a while—and he revived nicely after some hours on life support but was again fine by the following day, asking for his favorite ice cream. Coincidence? Surely! He came back even brighter than he went into the water. Yes, I do agree that it was quite unusual.

One way you KNOW that I do not even play with Ed Young or the SPECTRUM group is that nobody can cause any of them to present “Commander”—and everybody else KNOWS that Commander Hatonn is a very talkative “ham” who is likely to go on stage anywhere at any time with ANYONE present. I guess I am just a total enigma-perplexity. What has happened to Ekkers and associates is major damage to reputations, loss of property and international slander through deliberate LIES. It would certainly be wondrous fun and “gain” to get to the bottom of all such accusations and note the accusers in open COURT.

And THAT, readers, is just about to happen in the Philippines as the people demand that which is theirs—as evolved THROUGH US. NONE of our work or lessons shall have been wasted—NOT ONE IOTA.

Now I want to share something with you that ALL of you can recognize at some level as “I knew that...”:

DIAMOND CARTEL AND HIGHEST-CAUSE

My goodness, wait a day and another thing springs from the bushes—all kinds of bush, Bush, bush and shrubs in the quicksand.

It isn’t enough that you are beginning to see the “gold” and wealth stashes in the worst presentation in the face of the Firemen heroes of New York—but now you are going to witness another plank in the platform shield protecting the Elite Cartels—DIAMONDS and “bin Laden” complaints.

Now people, you KNOW that nobody plays with the De Beers' Jewish control of the diamond business—but NOBODY.

This is, in fact such a Jewish industry that insiders even have a code for concluding sales and deals—it is through the agreement where the word Mazal (phonetically spelled here) is the “signature” on which no Jew will renege. This has been the story of dozens of public programs about the industry itself. A full story ran within this two-week period right on international Discovery Channel and prior to that on National Geographic.

So what else could possibly cause trouble in Afghanistan, inclusive of course of oil, pipelines, drugs and what else? Indeed: DIAMONDS.

[QUOTING Reuters, The Philippine STAR, (“World News”, Sunday, November 4, 2001:)]

BIN LADEN NETWORK PROFITED FROM DIAMOND TRADE

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—Saudi-born militant Osama bin Laden’s al-Qaida network has collected millions of dollars in the past three years from the illicit sale of diamonds mined by rebels in Sierra Leone [Africa], The Washington Post reported.

Quoting unnamed U.S. and European intelligence officials and two sources with direct knowledge of the diamond sales, the Post described an operation that has helped finance al-Qaida.

The paper said diamond dealers working with men identified by the FBI as important al-Qaida figures bought rebel diamonds at below-market prices and sold them for big profits in Europe.

The Post quoted unnamed sources [H: I’m sure of that unnamed part.] as saying that since July, these diamond dealers have bought far more diamonds than usual, paying premium prices for them.

The rebel Revolutionary United Front (RUF) hit back, saying the report was “malicious, diabolical and sinister” and denying any link with the group blamed by Washington for the Sept. 11 suicide attacks on the United States.

“The RUF has no business with any terrorist organization. Nor has it done any business transaction with terrorists,” said a statement in the Sierra Leone capital Freetown from the group, which has condemned the September attacks.

The Post said investigators believe the increased purchases suggest that al-Qaida, perhaps anticipating its accounts would be frozen after Sept. 11, strove to protect its money by sinking it into diamonds, which can be hidden easily, hold their value and are hard to trace.

“I now believe that to cut off al-Qaida funds and laundering activities you have to cut off the diamond pipeline,” the Post quoted an unnamed [H: There you go again...!] European investigator as saying, “We are talking about millions and maybe tens of millions of dollars in profits and laundering.”

The diamonds were mined by RUF rebels, known from Sierra Leone’s decade-long civil war for hacking off the limbs of civilians and abducting children and forcing them onto the battlefield, the Post said. [H: Probably had a holocaust as well.]

The country’s main diamond fields have been under RUF control for four years, but UN peacekeepers have deployed there in recent months and disarmed thousands of rebels under a peace plan.

Quoting sources, the Post reported that small packets of diamonds are transported across the Liberian border to Monrovia by senior RUF commanders.

At a Monrovia safe house protected by the Liberian government, the diamonds are then exchanged for briefcases filled with cash brought by diamond dealers who travel several times monthly from Belgium to Monrovia, the Post said.

[END OF QUOTING]

My goodness, that bin Laden character got around a lot—like to EVERYWHERE while in the “cave” at the same time.

But not to worry, terrorized people, in the same paper is Dubya Bush pointing directly at YOU saying and vowing: “We’re going to get bin Laden, followers.”

Well, over a full month of insanity, nobody has even FOUND the man in point. Oh well!

Meanwhile the heads of the financial cartel of the Philippines are meeting with the head of the World Bank, Wolfenson, IN THE U.S. YET. My goodness, none of the Government people stay home and away from the U.S. long enough to do any national business—OR ARE THEY ALL PAID OFF BY THE U.S.?

Fine with me, even Erap who is the ex-President now in jail (in a suite in the hospital for comfort and security) is asking to go to the U.S. for medical treatment. He is stressed out and his eyes are getting weaker. Kiss justice goodbye, fellow travelers. Well, President GMA tried to get him out of the Philippines right up front so guess it is as good a plan as is possible since it looks like the case is going nowhere thanks to very deliberately BAD LEGAL WORK.

What about Erap? Well, who knows? It is all in one’s perception. He was right up front with GAIA—40% for himself and you have a deal of sorts. Of course that is 40% for him PERSONALLY on EVERYTHING.

Poor dear didn’t even get to dicker much, for he was immediately impeached and had used up his alias names through the nifty disloyalty of his associates who squealed on him. 40% was just a tad too greedy for even me who has patience with almost anyone. It simply did not leave enough to do a project AND secure the program and would have negated the “transparency” which WE MUST HAVE AT ALL TIMES.

Give things enough time to make their circle, friends, and the mysteries are solved as to “why” this or that happens—and the waiting “patiently” seems infinite. That is because lessons take time, structure takes time, and therefore patience IS infinite.

NEW TERRORISTS

We can also note that Mr. Bush has added 28 new groups to his international “kill the terrorists” list. They just keep popping up at the drop of his whim.

Meanwhile poor Indonesia is suffering as citizens continue to demand an end to U.S. bombing. Perhaps someday someone will listen to that wee small voice from the wilderness. GOD IS GOING TO DO A LOT OF SPEAKING THIS MONTH AND PEOPLE MIGHT WELL BE ADVISED TO HEED THE ADVICE OFFERED.

I am always hard-put to know how to refer to nations, for a Nation is NOTHING but a conglomerate of individual PERSONS. So, it becomes easier to say, i.e., “Indonesia says...” instead of “the people of Indonesia say...” and yet, one is NOT the same as the other. We of the feathers have the same problems as you when it comes to speaking in any language. It is purely bewildering and it is not surprising that you grow up unable to UNDERSTAND anything. We also note that the language and word-meanings change, as well, just as need for disinformation appears for protection of their guilty beings. This does not require “judgment”, only discernment and probability considerations.

Having given enough load for the day—before we sat to write—I think I might well be advised to take leave and let you get on with follow-through on the other tasks requested.

Thank you and may our team again pull strong.—Gyeorgos Ceres Hatonn

“Intelligence” Elusive To The Human Species

11/8/01—#1 (15-084)

RE: TAKES TWO TO TANGO, ARGUE, FIGHT OR WAR; IT SEEMS HUMANS CAN’T BRING THEMSELVES TO DECLINE A BLOODY CONFRONTATION ON ALMOST ANY FRONT CHOSEN.

WHO SAID “DON’T GET ANGRY”?
WHO SAID “FORGIVE AND FORGET”?

Hatonn—A lot of people repeat and repeat these aphorisms—and you will find it is usually after some dastardly act which SHOULD bring anger in the very first place. It is not “anger” that must be confronted, chelas, it is what you DO with that anger. Do you seek revenge and destruction of the ones you perceive wronged YOU? Oh yes, it is ALWAYS that way.

IT IS ALWAYS RIGHT BACK TO WHAT YOU PERCEIVE.

All the would-be gurus lined up side by side to the Moon will not change it. SHOULD you forget anything? Not if you want to make an impact of goodly cause within your life-stream.

Well, surprise: GOD DID NOT SAY ANY OF THESE THINGS! MAN WROTE THE RULES TO SUIT HIS OWN DRUTHERS. RATHER THAN FACE YOUR PAST ERRORS AND CORRECTING THEM, IT IS QUITE USUAL FOR THE GREAT SPEAKINGS OF “ANCIENT GODS” TO TELL YOU TO NEVER MIND, JUST FORGIVE AND FORGET AND, OF COURSE, DO NOT GET ANGRY. I would predict that these three prattlings make GOD angrier than all the honest mistakes perpetrated. And does “I’m sorry” always merit some kind of capitulation? No, and it is a foolish man or woman who allows such foolishness.

When a child pokes out the other kid for doing something and YOU make child number one march up and say, “I’m sorry,” YOU HAVE JUST PERPETUATED THE LIE(S). Child number one may well wish he hadn’t quite poked the other out—but NOT because he is sorry.

Now for that “forgiveness” deliverance hogwash. Example: “Forgive me Hillary...” “Oh of course, my darling, I have already forgotten it...”. Both are total hogswill. God gets quite angry just watching you lie to selves and others.

Of course Dubya Bush is against abortions. Well, what exactly is different with killing thousands of innocent people in Afghanistan? Isn’t it simply the mode of killing that differs?

Do you actually think that EITHER referred-to above party gives a damn about killing one way or another? Hey kids, it isn’t even OK to have robots running around killing things. SOMEBODY programmed the computer robot! (!!!)

You can do all the killing you will and all the aborting you will and it makes no iota of difference except to YOU and your attitude (intention) about it. Souls are immortal, so that gets back to Creator either way.

Now, consider New York and the World Trade Center along with what took place there. Now, consider that you have a war in which YOU are now considered THE KILLERS. WHO ARE THE TERRORISTS? Do you actually want me to serve these evil intents? Evil is my adversary no matter WHO might be presenting that evil. But as hatred grows, EVIL GROWS.

Another question: “Why would I bless any form of evil—just to make YOU happy?” You are given that rare gift of choosing that which you will. You have freedom to do or be that which you choose.

Moreover, God’s love is absolute—not without conditions of behaviors or intentions. Confuse the two and you have NOT learned Truth.

By the way, dropping bombs on another nation is NOT defending your own. Presenting more and bigger evil is not bringing peace and goodness—it is growing a cancer which will ultimately destroy the life-forms themselves.

May I ask another question, please? Which or what IS “your” nation? And furthermore: EXACTLY WHAT ALL IS IT THAT YOU WANT GOD TO DO “FOR” YOU? Mostly you don’t even recognize God’s position in any way, shape or form—except to ask HIM to fix everything according to YOUR personal wishes.

(POWER FAILURE) [This will follow the “TWO TO TANGO...” if recovered.]

Things are definitely not good at this very minute in River City. I also use the term River City as being quite appropriate for the activities taking place on the “weather” front.

The storm has hit with torrential downpour, electricity failed, computer lost entire morning’s work and on generator power the flow of electricity is too weak to even turn on the lamp to see the keyboard. It does, however, give lessons on the topic at hand where anger doesn’t count but frustration might well be considered as the state of emotional status.

E.J. is off to negotiate with clients so our treasure will remain, “if it was saved in the soul of the computer”, a mystery until more attention can be given to apparatus rather than seeming reality of persons meeting.

Which is REAL? Is it the thoughts typed into a hard drive or the people meeting to exchange information, etc.? Well, obviously it is BOTH and NEITHER.

The meetings would be far more interesting to everyone, since it mostly deals with, LITERALLY, the El Dorado and quite a bit of treasure stashed in the Sierra Madre mountains HERE.

Well, is this REAL or MORE GAMES? Oh, BOTH and NEITHER/EITHER. The “treasure” is REAL; the games are yet to be determined as to authority to reach agreements for future transaction possibilities OR “who can make a deal?”

The “dancing” is always part of the ongoing program while every separate participant wishes to insure his/her position while presenting that he/she is THE authority. No, the real parties behind the holdings are rarely the direct “dealers” while the true holders remain comfortably hidden away—WAITING.

Here is exactly where the “it takes two to tango” comes into the picture. If you don’t accept the dance invitation, the tango is OFF. Just know, team, that there IS commodity and the brokers are vying for the “deal” of the eon. YOU DO NOT PLAY, DO NOT DANCE, AND CERTAINLY DO NOT EVEN CONSIDER PAYING FOR TANGO LESSONS. BY THE WAY, FISHING LESSONS CAN BE VERY EXPENSIVE AS WELL.

Certainly it is that if agreements can be reached and the parties involved tip the Central Bank off its dime, we can move rather rapidly with the Program. If not, then we may well need more work on the immediate project itself. Just know that we have a superb program and the games are going to stop shortly—and that means that you have to call them to a halt.

Respect comes with setting the expectations to understanding without compromise and only very few negotiations are justifiable. We present our program and they produce or go, the foolishness is old now, and we will NOT be a party to further diversions once the tales conflict as the entourage grows. Deal with the holder/true representative and recognize the pitch from the brokers wanting to secure their positions in the plot.

And no, please, I do not want you hardened to the extent of locking doors before they are even opened. Word of mouth is our very best testimony to truth.

IN THE PHILIPPINES AND EVERYWHERE ELSE

People are fearful of everything from witchcraft to hiway thieves. Both are REAL here in Paradise.

Only in the Philippines? Perhaps moreso than some other places but most surely NOT “OIP”.

And no, this does not yet have anything to do with GAIA as we continue to plough and plant the fields. We have the horse to the water, the water in the tank and things are unfolding beautifully—when the horse decides he is ready for his own responsibility to swallow.

It is fun, I would guess, for you to participate to the point of keeping up with the happenings even if they be frustrating and a trial to patience levels.

It turns out that three years ago the Central Bank here owns up that the program was valid and good BUT THAT THE IMF WOULD NOT APPROVE USE. Oh fine...!

Well, we knew that, as well, all along. But now, finally, it is in writing as to the bank's stand in that so many have pounded on the bank that some HAD to have a response. Ah, but—that just concerned paper without ability to have power to confront. NOW, IT CONCERNS HARD YELLOW METAL RESTING RIGHT UP FRONT AND AS WELL, UNDERNEATH ALL THAT SILLY PAPER. The question: Can the IMF handle REALITY?

I remind all of you and especially the teams hanging on every word or minute that passes, that you certainly can handle the stress, be it goodly or quite badly.

Why do you have to face the circumstances and experiences? Because it is you in the position of manifest actor on the human stage—and reality only seems to be acceptable in that format. And readers, YOU have done this to selves. You have reached a place in historical evolvement where no one can believe another and there is rarely ability to TRUST anyone, even that one claiming to be your BEST AND ENDURING friend. It is, by the way, THAT realization of illusion that is most painful and where the feeling of loss is greatest.

SERIOUS TROUBLE IN PARADISE

Things are going well in Southern Mindanao, Philippines, readers. The Muslims are not happy campers and yes indeed, Elly Pamatong is on stage every day now with pictures and focus on his position in the fray.

Do “we” agree with his position? No, but we defend his right to have said opinion and position. He feels there is a lot of trouble in that New York City and the statement made by banging up and bringing down the Twin Towers is far more than meets the eye and certainly made a big statement about the Muslims, Arabs and what is coming down (or apart) in the world as you know it.

Now remember, Elly is a lawyer and is from New York and just came back to the Philippines from New York.

I believe you have to recognize that he has a first-hand showing of how bad it can get in Paradise on the Pacific. And just where will things be when the Sun sets today? Nowhere, for the Sun DOES NOT SET—IT JUST IS while the world turns spinning around on its magnetic axis.

To put things in a bit LARGER perspective, you are but microbes on the LIVING EARTH'S body. You have capability of CONSCIOUSNESS but “intelligence” is still quite elusive to your species. And yes indeed, YOU CAN FALL to things so tiny as are you in the universe—the microscopic life-forms which run on crystalline energy. Has your greater intelligence brought you closer or farther from extinction? Oh no, readers, this IS a point to ponder.

Did God REALLY give human “dominion” over the Earth? NO, you were to be the CARETAKERS AND CREATORS with and of the Earth. You were to also be your bother's keeper so that all could walk together in the glory of accomplishment and joy. So, some really have blown it badly. Yes, I would observe that to be so. How many times must you evolve from the caves without learning how to live in harmony and balance? Power, control, greed and avarice are the mark of the beast which has been placed on you while you slept. It is now too late to remove the vestiges of that fact. You now have to build up through in such a way as to allow for a better way in the midst of the chaos. Yes you can do it!

AS THE DAY BECOMES SOMEWHAT ENDLESS

Time seems to move so quickly, I note you complain. But this day has become endless with the troubles and nonsense taking place along with the power failures and program losses.

For another day, the problems didn't get ironed out and therefore all have gone to swim in different directions with no conclusions on the business of the day. The Sierra Madre mountains of Luzon are very large indeed and the brokers many. We will get there.

I would simply close this as there are so many interruptions as to be difficult to stay focused and yet sometimes we just need a visit.

In loving respect, I Am, Dad

Israeli War Machine Financed With Americans' Tax Dollars

11/7/01—#1 (15-083)

FROM WHERE OH WHERE DOES THE ANTHRAX COME?

Hatonn—Well, check it out and indeed weep, dear hearts. A LOT of it came directly from bio-weapons used in South Africa. No offence intended. HOWEVER, note that there was also the thrust during those turbulent times just BEFORE AIDS entered the picture that Anthrax didn't seem to catch on well enough but small pox did. Therefore, the WHO (World Health Organization) went forth in mass inoculations against small pox while merrily spreading AIDS to just about everyone they touched.

Then the dispersion of choice came in the gay community in New York as the WHO and U.S. Departments of Health, spread AIDS even further through Hepatitis “shots”. Then, by getting it started it was easy to have it spread through drug users.

Now, you may miss it if we don't hang you up long enough to take note because the topic will hit the news and die its intended death in the media.

The culprits in South Africa were even putting ANTHRAX into mint-chocolates and handing them out. “They” said it was OK, “... because, after all, it was war and everything is fine in war...”. The old anthrax in Iraq came directly from the United States.

Remember, dear ones, ONE WORLD ORDER had its birthing in those cartel controllers OUT OF AFRICA. This has nothing to do with Redford and Streep as the beautiful picture Out of Africa flows.

You see, chelas, you do not need “REVELATIONS” to KNOW what is taking place, but other than searching back through that which we have given you, I don't know how you can keep it all straight and what is actually connected to what. And no, we cannot offer it all again and again and again—because running a paper is NOT even our priority of things to do.

It is, however, imperative that when you get pieces and then confirmation, that it be shared and of course “our” resource for that is CONTACT.

CONTACT is our mode of communication and recognition of “understandings” of a public notice mode of information exchange which does go beyond the immediate “happenings” of the day in the New World Order. This is because “EVERYTHING” the NWO touches is “top secret” “anonymous” and done through intelligence resources where no one will even begin to offer a name or accept a responsibility.

Can we work with that? Yes indeed. Our agreement over BIG-TICKET ITEMS is to run “our understanding” as a public notice and that becomes legally binding as far as courts are concerned. It is our “agreement” and certainly it is recognized.

We note right here in the Philippines that the IMF has such a strangle hold on the Central Bank that the Central Bank has blundered regarding our program.

We certainly had a lot of feedback that somehow the Central Bank was basically telling everyone who called on them that the GAIA program would be ignored.

THEY FINALLY PUT IT INTO WRITING even though they were very CAREFUL to not “DENY”, only state that it was (and I won't give away the case by using the rather unique word chosen for use)...

It is recognized by lawyers all over the place here that the very document itself expresses libel, slander and yet, it hardly even refers to the program itself. THIS DOES MEAN, HOWEVER, THAT THE COUNTERING IBC NEGOTIATORS HAVE BROKEN THE FINAL AGREEMENT WITH ME AND WITH OUR PROGRAM. WE DO NOT LEGALLY OR LAWFULLY HAVE TO ABIDE WITH ANY AGREEMENT OR CONTRACT MADE PRIOR TO THAT LETTER “TO A CLIENT” AND A “CLIENT WITH GOLD FOR COLLATERAL” AT THAT.

This indicates that the IBC/NWO plans to simply come down tightly on the people and when appropriate and SAFE for them to move, they will simply confiscate the holdings wherever they are and no matter to whom the holdings belong.

Will we break the agreements? We don't need to do so, for our commitment is to not break the bank at Monte Carlo's casino, but to lay a base for secure economies. We already have plenty to establish that feat and thus the reason the Central Bank is required to take such a stand in foolishness.

We now have enough commodity committed to cause the CB some heavy indigestion—for it has NOTHING to do with cashing out or in any “documents”. What do you do with the REAL THING? Even V.K. Durham has no way to argue with our program, really, for we only deal WITH THE REAL THING.

By the way, you who were so distressed over the fact that V.K. made public claims in the same letters regarding INTERPOL that she had spoken with Mr. Elley Pamatong, you might find it interesting that he's back in the Philippines and is working directly with Nur Misuari in Mindanao.

So, the only thing V.K. Durham COULD HAVE DONE is make it very, very obvious that we work “from” truth in original cause of the old certificate itself which she claims to own. It has NO VALUE whatsoever, however, having been changed out into a recognized ownership of identifiable reference. So, do we simply appreciate V.K.? Well, I wouldn't choose that word but we will leave it lay where it falls.

As for Pamatong? Well, it isn't “fabrication” to speak on this topic—there he is on television and in the papers, pictures and all.

It may well not mean much to “you” as a given reader, but it does mean something to Doris “Sweetie Phoo” (as V.K. refers to her in a most obnoxious and disgusting manner). You want confirmations? Well, they are hitting every day now! WITH GOD, FRIENDS, EVERY STORM WILL MOST CERTAINLY HAVE A SILVER LINING (INCLUDING SILVER COLLOIDS). You want me to inform you in detail about every intention and every revelation in writing? No, I do that and every time we pay dearly at “home base” as misinterpretation intentionally takes the focus.

Let us take that old/new “get the citizens” substance called Silver Colloid. The stuff is as old as history—period. It is so harmless that a simple solution of silver nitrate was THE solution put in newborn infant's eyes as antiseptic. Yes, indeed, it is very weak as a solution and totally HARMLESS as used.

However, silver salts were always EASIER to use and became more useable—for electrical colloidalization was not very efficient until EVERYBODY had access to some kind of low-amperage equipment to PROPERLY produce a better solution with particulate in suspension.

I do not even recommend “salts” of any metallic substance. It is only the properly QUALIFIED colloidal solutions that I even speak about because they are the only HARMLESS solutions available.

It is not JUST the colloids under attack, readers; as you should have noted, so too are chelation therapies, vitamin therapies, frequency and light therapies—and ANYTHING THAT WILL WORK.

I repeat, with all these things: WE DO NOT CLAIM “CURE”! IF YOU WANT “CURE”—IT IS A DO-IT-YOURSELF PROJECT.

There ARE some things that respond to one thing or another in spite of the “you connection” and that is that in the consciousness of a virus, as example, there is no decision on its part if something taken knocks out its neck connector which is quite mechanical in practice. We note, however, that with some of the man-tampered “disease” microbes, there has been an increasing strengthening of the neck “molecule”. That is mostly through changing to a higher (stronger) elemental molecule in order to prevent disruption. That is when the higher-frequency workers would be brought into play. THIS IS CALLED, BY THE CONTROLLERS, GENETICALLY-TAMPERED OR ALTERED (MUTATED) BACTERIA, VIRUS OR SIMPLY, MICROBIC LIFE-FORMS.

Example: If you are driving a Volkswagen on the freeway and hit an 18-wheeler head-on—WHO WILL DIE? Ah ha, BUT, if you are in the same position but are in a triple engine locomotive—you certainly DO have a somewhat better chance of surviving. It is simply PHYSICS and certainly has no great or overwhelming revelation for consideration.

WE ARE “NOT”, IN ANY CIRCUMSTANCE, IN COMPETITION WITH ANYONE. WE SIMPLY “ARE” AND WE OWE NO ONE ANYTHING. WE “OFFER” WHAT WE HAVE TO SHARE AND THE SAME “OFFER” GOES TO ALL, AS IS GOD’S WAY. SO, IF IT IS GOD’S WAY TO OFFER UNTO ALL AND YOU HAVE THOSE WHO HOLD AND USE EVERYTHING THEY CAN AGAINST YOU—WHO MIGHT “THEY” BE?

Note, readers, when the Government SHUTS DOWN YOUR RIGHT TO HAVE A THING (FOR YOUR OWN GOOD), IT IS THAT THE STUFF WORKS AND THEY HAVE TO GET IT OUT OF YOUR GRASP. When you KNOW this, then you work up from there and can find a safe and legal conduit through which to find your way. I will NOT give you directions other than in simple suggesting of possibilities—it is up to you to catch the cloud-drift. We cannot spell-out everything for each reader and that is the way it works out to be in almost all instances.

IN ALL OF LITERATURE THERE HAS NOT BEEN ISSUED ANY INSTANCE OF NEGATIVE SIDE EFFECTS FROM SILVER COLLOIDS—OR ANY OTHER COLLOID FOR THAT MATTER. WHY? BECAUSE IN COLLOIDALIZING PROPERLY YOU ARE RENDERING THE SUBSTANCE TOTALLY HARMLESS, FOR IT MOVES INSIDE CELLS AND MOLECULES IN SUCH TINY IONIZED FORM AS TO HAVE NO ABILITY TO DAMAGE ANYTHING—EXCEPT THE MICROBES TINY ENOUGH TO GET IN THERE WITH IT OR VICE VERSA. AND “THAT” IS WHY IT IS EFFECTIVE.

If, in addition, anyone who turned blue from taking anything and nothing else can be found except some “silver” something—then the person must not have an active dis-ease or the blue would not be THE point in the tale. At best, that trouble of blue hue is of some cause other than qualified COLLOID.

A colloidal solution presents a charged ionic cellular state whereby the “substance” or “element” carried within the molecules is accepted by the body or discarded—without stockpiling. This gives the system plenty of time to utilize it throughout the system and then discard whatever is left over, including the toxic substances released from any “die-off” of those nasty visitors.

This is, readers, not revelation—it is simply knowledge, available to any who will just go look it up in the library.

You have been eating and drugging selves with chemicals and synthetics to the point that death is readily available from what you take for the diseases that probably wouldn't kill you if left alone. And you will kill your neighbor to get what “they” will tell you will protect you, i.e. “Cipro”. Cipro has severe possible side effects and obviously is not CURING or protecting people because, of the only three or four known cases—all but one has DIED.

How many of you who take your decided-upon colloidal silver have anthrax? Well, no, do not assume it is because there isn't any anthrax around you—anthrax is almost EVERYWHERE. It, along with many other diseases recognized, can be sustained in the dried form of the life-form indefinitely—even into the tombs you like to rob. Soak up those dried particles in nice, warm lung mucous and you have DISEASE.

Didn't Daddy Bush tell you this? Oh gollee, and he has a farm with animals susceptible to these things, to cowboy-“boot” as well.

But you claim “the government wouldn't do this to us...”. Oh yes they would, have and do. They have been giving anthrax vaccines to your troops for a very long time and, people, ANTHRAX VACCINE CAN BE DEADLY. So be it.

May we turn our attention to the confirmation section of today's “pay attention” and get your backup.

Let us just try right off, the front page of October 29th American Free Press;

[QUOTING “SOME GOT RICH OFF TRAGEDY”, front page, American Free Press, Oct. 29, 2001, by Christopher Bollyn:]

A Select Few Seem to Have Profited from Advance Knowledge of the Terror Attacks on America. Sept. 11 marked a devastating loss for the nation, but shrewd financial speculators with ties to the highest levels of the CIA appear to have profited from the disaster, raising questions about exactly who had prior knowledge of the terrible tragedy.

The day two passenger planes crashed into the World Trade Center ended differently for different people. For some 10,000 children it meant the loss of a mother or father. For millions of Americans it marked the end of normality. For a select group of financial speculators it meant increased profits.

[H: And this doesn't even take into consideration the numbers GAME played on all of you.]

There have been numerous reports of unusual activity in financial markets around the world suggesting prior knowledge of the Sept. 11 attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon.

In Chicago, home of the Chicago Board Options Exchange (CBOE), the largest of the five options exchanges in the nation, brokers and speculators known as options traders wage bets daily about what a stock price will do. In options trades there are winners and losers regardless of the outcome.

The catastrophic events of Sept. 11 were no different; the devastation at the World Trade Center resulted in some speculators winning millions of dollars from options purchased at the CBOE—while others lost their lives.

A $2.5 million winning that resulted when the United Airlines share price fell after two of its planes crashed remains unclaimed more than six weeks after the tragedy.

Investigations into the unusually high number of “put” options, betting that the price of United Airlines (UAL) and American Airlines shares would fall, have revealed that Alex Brown Inc., an investment banking firm, purchased many of these option contracts.

Alex Brown Inc. was, until 1998, managed by the man who is now the executive director of the Central Intelligence Agency, A.B. “Buzzy” Krongard.

Krongard, 64, former head of Baltimore-based Alex Brown, America's oldest investment bank, joined the CIA three years ago as a counselor to Director of Central Intelligence George Tenet.

Krongard switched careers shortly after helping engineer the $2.5 billion merger of Alex Brown and Bankers Trust New York Corp., gaining $71 million in Bankers Trust stock in the process.

President Bush appointed Krongard executive director of the Central Intelligence Agency on March 26. From February 1998 until March 2001, Krongard served as COUNSELOR TO THE DIRECTOR OF CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE. Until 1997 Krongard was chairman of the investment bank A. B. Brown, having previously worked in various capacities of Alex Brown.

Krongard was quoted on the relationship between Wall Street and the CIA in an article by The Washington Post, “The whole OSS was really nothing but Wall Street Bankers and lawyers.”

OPTIONS SPIKES

Between Sept. 6 and 7, the CBOE saw a dramatic spike in the purchases of “put” options on United Airlines stock compared to “call” options.

A “put” option increases in value when the stock price falls, while a “call” option increases if the share price rises. The ratio of “put” options to “call” options was 12 to 1, with 2,372 “put” options purchased, betting that UAL stock would fall compared with 198 “call” options. The winners on these options deals walked away with untold millions of dollars in profits.

On Sept. 10, speculators in Chicago purchased “put” options on American Airlines, the other airline involved in the hijackings, at a ratio of 6 to 1 against “call” options. Traders bought 2,258 “put” options as compared with 374 “call” options the day before the crashes.

There were similar spikes in “put” option contracts on the shares of the investment firms of Morgan Stanley Dean Witter & Co. and Merrill Lynch & Co., major tenants of the World Trade Center, occupying 22 floors each, who were both devastated by the terror attacks.

[H: Ah, but WITHIN LAST WEEK we found that specifically Merrill Lynch claims it was not devastated at all and income is even better than before the attacks. The tale went further in that Merrill Lynch offices were already open elsewhere—and they didn't even suffer losses of regular staff personnel. Is there something wrong with this picture, reader?]

In the three days of trading prior to Sept. 11, Morgan Stanley “put” options spiked dramatically.

According to figures provided by Options Clearing Corp. of Chicago, during the two trading days before the attacks the total number of “put” options jumped to 7,647 compared with a daily average of 2,384 during the month of August. Morgan Stanley’s shares fell from $48.96 to $42.50 in the aftermath of the attacks.

Likewise, Merrill Lynch “put” options jumped to 64,445 in the three days before the attacks. On Sept. 10, 28,960 “put” options were purchased on Merrill Lynch compared with a daily average of 5,430 during the month of August. Merrill’s shares fell from $46.88 to $41.50.

[H: And what do you think of those apples, readers? I can tell a little bit of an ancient tale regarding that Chicago exchange. It is referred to, by even the Jewish traders, as the “Hebe exchange”. My, they just got into everything from “puts” and “calls” to windmills (literally), so we have met these movers and shakers long before now. I am again reminded of the “Dennis” cartoon where Dennis and his friend were playing some game and Dennis won. He quickly stated that anybody can win who is the only one who knows the rules. However, it looks like anti-Christ knows all the rules, makes them, breaks them and doesn’t give a damn who gets killed in the processing. The ONE person, however, making the most of the deal on Sept. 11 is THE MAN who built those towers and will pick up about 5-6 BILLION DOLLARS “extra” because of that incident.

So, who are the terrorists and gamblers, friends?]

[END OF QUOTING]

Let us move across the front page now and offer you some update information on Israel and the U.S. contribution to her welfare.

[QUOTING American Free Press, October 29, 2001:]

$10 BILLION YEARLY TO ISRAEL

By James P. Tucker Jr.

You read about Israel receiving $3.5 billion in foreign aid each year from the United States but there is much more—hidden in the budget.

American taxpayers give Israel at least $10 billion each year, nearly three times the publicly acknowledged $3.5 billion.

The precise amount cannot be determined; the funds are hidden in different programs in different federal agencies.

Hidden subsidies are frequently listed under innocuous budget titles in a “budgetary sleight of hand,” said a report by William D. Harting of the World Policy Institute.

Congress routinely approves about $3 billion in foreign aid to Israel.

Next year’s Foreign Operations FY 2002 Appropriations legislation (H.R. 2506), which passed the House, 381-46, on July 24 and the Senate, 50 to 46, on Oct. 15, publicly details a portion of the economic and military assistance—called “grants”—slated to be given Israel.

In the section of the appropriations bill, titled “Foreign Military Financing,” Congress provides:

[H: In the article this is quoted in inset smaller print. I ask, please, that we capitalize it, bold it and italicize it:]

...NOT LESS THAN $2,040,000,000 SHALL BE AVAILABLE FOR GRANTS ONLY FOR ISRAEL, AND NOT LESS THAN $1,300,000,000 SHALL BE MADE AVAILABLE FOR GRANTS ONLY FOR EGYPT; PROVIDED FURTHER, THAT THE FUNDS APPROPRIATED BY THIS PARAGRAPH FOR ISRAEL SHALL BE DISBURSED WITHIN 30 DAYS OF THE ENACTMENT OF THIS ACT OR BY OCTOBER 31, 2001, WHICHEVER IS LATER: PROVIDED FURTHER, THAT TO THE EXTENT THAT THE GOVERNMENT OF ISRAEL REQUESTS THAT FUNDS BE USED FOR SUCH PURPOSES, GRANTS MADE AVAILABLE FOR

ISRAEL BY THIS PARAGRAPH SHALL, AS AGREED BY ISRAEL AND THE UNITED STATES, BE AVAILABLE FOR ADVANCED WEAPONS SYSTEMS, OF WHICH NOT LESS THAN $535,000,000 SHALL BE AVAILABLE FOR THE PROCUREMENT IN ISRAEL OF DEFENSE ARTICLES AND DEFENSE SERVICES, INCLUDING RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT...

The money is placed into bank accounts, which Israel can draw upon to purchase equipment. Meanwhile, bankers garner huge profits from interest on the “grant money” at the expense of U.S. taxpayers.

However, another $2.5 billion “loan” is often made so Israel can purchase additional arms from American companies. This “loan” is quietly forgiven in an amendment to an obscure piece of legislation each year.

“Forgiveness” legislation is a popular foreign policy weapon. The other giveaways are carefully hidden from the public and many of the legislators who vote for the $15.6 billion foreign aid package and other legislation that transfers tax dollars to Israel.

Many more billions are given away by selling “surplus” modern military technology at steep discounts. Some such “surpluses” are discounted by 85 percent of market value.

A 1996 report by the Arms Sales Monitoring Project of the Federation of American Scientists found that the United States gave away or sold at a steep discount weaponry that cost taxpayers $8.7 billion.

So taxpayers paid twice: once for the forgone proceeds from the sale of still-useful weaponry to foreign nations and again for the cost of replacement items.

Another conduit of American tax dollars to Israel is the “economic support funds” administered by the Agency for International Development. It is funded by the “international affairs” budget. In fiscal year 1999, Israel received $1 billion from this source, which is typical. Next year Israel will receive $750 million.

HOW ABOUT AMERICA?

Another means of secret funds for Israel was reported by David P. Yohanna of Chicago in March 1993. He wrote in the Chicago Tribune:

“The true total aid to Israel in 1993 is as follows: on budget, $3 billion; off-budget, $1.2 billion; interest paid by U.S. on above, $50 million; U.S. loan guarantees to Israel, $2 billion; compound interest on previous grants. (1951-1992), $5 BILLION. [H: And you doubt the GAIA interest growth?]

“Total 1993 grants, interest, loan guarantees and compound interest: $11.3 billion,” Yohanna wrote.

This accounting does not take into consideration Israeli bonds that are widely sold, not only to supporters but to unsuspecting taxpayers in every state.

American Free Press has no detailed studies but it appears that 40 years ago most states outlawed state purchases of securities from outside the country. But apparently such laws were repealed or are being ignored in all 50 states, benefiting Israel by even more billions.

But much of the disguised funds for Israel come from “petty cash” operations that go undetected. For example, during fiscal year 1997, the Pentagon gave Israel $68 million worth of weaponry under something it calls the “excess defense articles program”.

Obviously, $10 billion a year, if spent at home instead of going to fuel Israel’s war machine, could benefit Americans handsomely. Two examples:

* Only a fraction of the $10 billion could offset the $300 million in annual “savings” the administration wants to accomplish by reducing much-needed benefits given to disabled veterans and families of those killed in war by 10 percent.

* A modern transportation system, with fast, on-time trains, efficient airline service and unclogged highways could quickly emerge if funded by $10 billion a year.

[END OF QUOTING]

So, readers, when you watch what happens to the Palestinians and they complain about “you Americans”, stop a minute and take a good hard look: It is that the Israeli war machine is financed with American tax dollars. It is American planes that bomb Palestinian villages. It is American-financed tanks and bulldozers that level Palestinian homes. And it U.S.-financed guns and rockets that kill civilians.

Now, hold your breath: IT IS YOU TAXPAYERS WHO PAID FOR THE TERRORISTS TO BOMB THOSE TRADE CENTER TOWERS—TO COVER THE ALREADY STAGED AIRLINER CRASHES AND THEN DETONATED THE INSIDE BOMBS THAT BROUGHT THEM DOWN. YOU CAN’T FIND THE BODIES BECAUSE THEY ARE NOT THERE.

The war machine of the World Order Banksters simply has facilities in the “Holy Land” to be that other BASE for the wars so that hopefully, the out-of-control war would be kept outside the business sections of the “CITIES” of NEW York and City of London (don’t confuse either).

Why is Blair so active these days in doing his runs about the Muslim territories? Because Great Britain is half the plot, good people of the slave quarters.

All of you had best go beg or borrow-BACK your copy of Conspirators’ Hierarchy, The Committee of 300 OR IN ADDITION, DIG OUT SECRET SOCIETIES WHICH WE OFFERED IN SERIES IN CONTACT.

There is NO trouble between Israel and the U.S.—so don’t bite on the nonsense. The game is going EXACTLY as planned and on schedule.

Moreover, it is easily seen who is doing what to whom and YOU PLAY RIGHT ALONG, CRUCIFYING THE WRONG PARTY—EVERY TIME.

Meanwhile back “at the ranch” you allow, under this guise of foolishness, the lies to prevail and you now fall under the War Powers Act wherein ALL LAWS can be discarded and the Constitution is rendered useless—except for little things which do not particularly impact the Big Boys.

When I say little things, I refer to cases such as Diane with the Feds trying to get her to sign Felony Criminal charges. That will NOT look good while the Constitution is being tossed. The Elite are far better at hidden games than that would cause to be noted. But somebody has to take a stand. You can’t even have a voice as long as everyone plays their game of terrorized and terrorizer.

While you sleep and attend the circus by the media, you are losing everything even unto your very lives.

Now, please listen up. You will find a deluge of those who desire to go to revolution in an open fashion of passion on the loose. No, that simply gets people killed and makes it harder for anyone to be able to learn truth and act WISELY.

What YOU do is up to you but rash actions will get even more rash consequences.

Diane can only, as example, respond THROUGH THE STANDING LAWS and yes, they ARE sufficient unto the needs but are expensive in financial and emotional harassment. BUT, THERE IS ALSO A LAW THAT SAYS A CITIZEN CHARGED HAS TO BE ASSIGNED AN ATTORNEY TO DEFEND. THAT THEN BECOMES AN EXPENSE TO THE STATE [taxpayers] AND VERY FREQUENTLY ENDS THE CHARGE ON THE SPOT—ESPECIALLY IF THE FEEDBACK FROM PUBLIC INTERESTS IS WORTHY OF NOTE IN A NEGATIVE MANNER TO THE STATE OR FEDS THEMSELVES.

BEING A MARTYR IS NOT WORTHY OF NOTE; THAT OLD SAW IS EXACTLY THAT: TO GET YOU TO DO STUPID THINGS.

Now please, go forth and MAKE yourself a worthy day.—Gyeorgos Ceres Hatonn

SKULL AND BONES,
AMERICA'S SECRET ESTABLISHMENT

In order to adequately give comparison to the plight you are in today and that which came upon your world prior to now, you must realize the similarity of the “Order” which is set up to control you by its various facets. I shall quote a portion from a book: AMERICA'S SECRET ESTABLISHMENT: An Introduction to the Order of Skull & Bones.

[QUOTE:]

MODUS OPERANDI OF THE ORDER:

The activities of The Order are directed towards changing our society, changing the world, to bring about a New World Order. This will be a planned order with heavily restricted individual freedom, without Constitutional protection, without national boundaries or cultural distinction.

We deduce this objective by examining and then summing up the actions of individual members: There has been a consistent pattern of activity over one hundred years. Part of this activity has been in cooperation with The Group, with its parallel and recorded objectives.

Now if, for example, we found that the dominant interest of members was raising ducks, that they wrote articles about ducks, bred ducks, sold ducks, formed duck-studying councils, developed a philosophy of ducks, then it would be reasonable to conclude that they had an objective concerning ducks, that this is not mere random activity.

Historically, operations of The Order have concentrated on society, how to change society in a specific manner towards a specific goal: a New World Order. We know the elements in society that will have to be changed in order to bring about this New World Order, we can then examine The Order's actions in this context.

More or less these elements would have to be:

EDUCATION—how the population will behave,

MONEY—the means of holding wealth and exchanging goods,

LAW—the authority to enforce the will of the State, a world law and a world court is needed for a world state,

POLITICS—the direction of the State,

ECONOMY—the creation of wealth,

HISTORY—what people believe happened in the past,

PSYCHOLOGY—the means of controlling how people think,

PHILANTHROPY—so that people think well of the controllers,

MEDICINE—the power over health, life and death,

RELIGION—people's spiritual beliefs, the spur to action for many,

MEDIA—what people know and learn about current events,

CONTINUITY—the power to appoint who follows in your footsteps.

Daniel Coit Gilman, President of Johns Hopkins University, imported Wundt psychological methods from Germany, then welded education and psychology in the U.S., established laboratories, brought these educational laboratories into major Universities and generated hundreds of Ph.D.s to teach the new educational conditioning system. One of the first of these Johns Hopkins doctorates was John Dewey. The result we well know. The educational morass of the '80s where most kids—not all—can't spell, read or write, yet can be programmed into mass behavior channels.

The Order's next move was to control the Foundations. They got all the big ones—Carnegie, Ford, Peabody, Slater, Russell Sage and so on. That's the topic of another volume. As in education, the modus operandi of The Order was to get in FIRST and set the stage for the future. The initial objective was to establish a direction in an organization. Selection of managers, intuitive or amoral enough to catch on to the direction, kept the momentum going. In the case of Foundations, The Order has usually maintained a continuing presence over decades.

When it comes to activities by individual members, at first sight the pattern is confusing and superficially inconsistent. Let's give some examples:

* Andrew Carnegie profited from war through his vast steel holdings, but under the guidance of member Daniel Coit Gilman, Carnegie was also an enthusiastic president and financial backer of the American Peace Society. This is seemingly inconsistent. Could Carnegie be for war and peace at the same time?

* The League to Enforce the Peace, founded by members William H. Taft and Theodore Marburg, was promoting peace, yet active in urging U.S. participation in World War One. How could the League be for war and peace at the same time?

* In the 1920s, W. Averill Harriman was a prime supporter of the Soviets with finance and diplomatic assistance, at a time when such aid was against State Department regulations. Harriman participated in RUSKOMBANK, the first Soviet commercial bank. Vice-President Max May of Guaranty Trust, dominated by the Harriman-Morgan interests, became the FIRST Vice-President of RUSKOMBANK in charge of its foreign operations. In brief, an American banker under guidance of a member of The Order had a key post in a Soviet bank! But we also find that Averill Harriman, his brother Roland Harriman, and members E.S. James and Knight Woolley, through the Union Bank (in which they held a major interest) were prime financial backers of Hitler.

Now our textbooks tell us the Nazis and Soviets were bitter enemies and their systems are opposites. How could a rational man support Soviets and Nazis at the same time? Is Harriman irrational or is the inconsistency explainable?

* The Bundy family gives us another example of seeming inconsistency. William Bundy was with the Central Intelligence Agency for a decade. McGeorge Bundy was National Security Assistant to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson. So the Bundys presumably support U.S.-European policy which is pro-NATO. Yet the Bundys have been linked to activities and organizations which are anti-NATO and, indeed, pro-Marxist—for example, the Institute for Policy Studies. Are the Bundys inconsistent?

* Among individual members of The Order we find a wide variety of publicly proclaimed beliefs, ideologies and politics. William Buckley periodically chews out the Soviets. On the other hand, member John Burt has been a member of a dozen communist front groups. Member William S. Coffin, Jr. spent three years with CIA and then became a leader of anti-Vietnam War activity through the National Conference for a New Politics and Clergy and Laymen Concerned about Vietnam. In fact, Coffin was one of the Boston Five charged and indicted for conspiracy to violate Federal laws. And, of course, W. Averill Harriman is elder statesman of the Democratic Party.

Quite a mixture of beliefs and activities. Do they reflect inconsistent philosophies? How can The Order have a consistent objective with this potpourri of individual actions?

The answer is, they are not at all inconsistent: because the objective of The Order is above and beyond these actions and in fact needs these seeming contradictions.

THE STATE IS ABSOLUTE

How can there exist a common objective when members are apparently acting in opposition to one another?

Probably the most difficult task in this work will be to get across to the reader what is really an elementary observation: that the objective of The Order is neither “left” nor “right”. “Left” and “right” are artificial devices to bring about change, and the extremes of political left and political right are vital elements in a process of controlled change.

The answer to this seeming political puzzle lies in Hegelian logic. Remember that both Marx and Hitler, the extremes of “left” and “right” presented as textbook enemies, evolved out of the same philosophical system: Hegelianism. That brings screams of intellectual anguish from Marxists and Nazis, but is well known to any student of political systems.

The dialectical process did not originate with Marx as Marxists claim, but with Fichte and Hegel in late 18th- and early 19th-Century Germany. In the dialectical process a clash of opposites brings about a synthesis. For example, a clash of political left and political right brings about another political system, a synthesis of the two, neither left nor right. This conflict of opposites is essential to bring about change. Today this process can be identified in the literature of the Trilateral Commission where “change” is promoted and “conflict management” is termed the means to bring about this change.

In the Hegelian system conflict is essential. Furthermore, for Hegel and systems based on Hegel, the State is absolute. The State requires complete obedience from the individual citizen. An individual does not exist for himself in these so-called organic systems but only to perform a role in the operation of the State. He finds freedom only in obedience to the State. There was no freedom in Hitler’s Germany, there is no freedom for the individual under Marxism, neither will there be in the New World Order. And if it sounds like George Orwell’s 1984—it is.

In brief, the State is supreme and conflict is used to bring about the ideal society. Individuals find freedom in obedience to the rulers.

So who or what is the State? Obviously it’s a self-appointed Elite. It is interesting that Fichte, who developed these ideas before Hegel, was a Freemason, almost certainly Illuminati, and certainly was promoted by the Illuminati. For example, Johann Wolfgang Goethe (Abaris in the Illuminati code) pushed Fichte for an appointment at Jena University.

Furthermore, the Illuminati principle that the end justifies the means, a principle that Quigley scores as immoral and used by both The Group and The Order, is rooted in Hegel. Even the anonymous Yale student who wrote the verse in Memorandum Three observed this principle at work on the Yale campus.

This, then, is a vital part of our explanation of The Order. When its co-founder, William Russell, was in Germany in 1831-2, there was no way he could have avoided Hegelian theory and discussion.

It was the talk of the campus. It swept intellectual Germany like a Pac Man craze. Most Americans haven’t heard of it. And those who have don’t want to hear any more about it. Why? Because its assumptions are completely at variance with our sense of individual freedom and Constitutional guarantees. Most of us believe the State exists to serve the individual, not vice versa.

The Order believes the opposite to most of us. That is crucial to understanding what they are about. So any discussion between left and right, while essential to promote change, is never allowed to develop into a discussion along the lines of Jeffersonian democracy, i.e., the best government is least government. The discussion and the funding is always towards more state power, use of state power and away from individual rights. So it doesn’t matter from the viewpoint of The Order whether it is termed left, right, Democratic, Republican, secular or religious—so long as the discussion is kept within the framework of the State and the power of the State.

This is the common feature between the seemingly dissimilar positions taken by members—they have a higher common objective in which clash of ideas is essential. So long as rights of the individual are not introduced into the discussion, the clash of ideas generates the conflict necessary for change.

As the objective is also global control, an emphasis is placed on global thinking, i.e., internationalism. This is done through world organizations and world law. The great contribution of the Tafts to The Order was on the world court system and world law—to the internationalist aspect of the New World Order.

[END QUOTE]

We have previously gone into detail as to how The Order relates to the Council On Foreign Relations, Trilateral Commission and similar organizations, so I will spare the repetition at this time. However—you do remember of course—GEORGE [H.W.] BUSH IS A MEMBER OF EVERYTHING AND SO ARE HIS CHIEF ADVISORS. SO BE IT—HOLD IT IN YOUR HEARTS.

EMERGENCY BANKING REGULATION

As put forth by Robert B. Anderson, Secretary of the Treasury, in part:

[QUOTE:]

(a) As used in this Regulation, the term “banking institution” shall include the following banking and financial institutions: every commercial bank, trust company, private bank, savings bank, savings and loan association, building and loan association, cooperative bank, homestead association, credit union, and United States Postal Savings depository office authorized under the laws of the United States or of any State to transact business in the United States or any place subject to its jurisdiction, or any receiver or conservator for any of the foregoing.

(b) As used in this Regulation, “operations and functions” shall include the paying Chapter, all Federal Reserve Banks, branches of Federal Reserve Banks, Federal Home Loan in any manner or by any device whatsoever; the receipt or paying out of deposits; the receipt of payments into share or savings accounts or the repurchase of or payments on withdrawals from share or savings accounts; the making of loans or discounts; transfers of credit; the performance of fiduciary, custodial or agency functions; the purchase or sale. (Ed. Note: this is an accurate quote.)

Section 1. Temporary Curtailment of Operations and Functions. Any Federal Reserve Bank, Federal Home Loan Bank, banking institution, or branch may temporarily curtail, place of business separate and apart from the head office of a Federal Reserve Bank, Federal Home Loan Bank, or banking institution in which any of its operations and functions are carried out.

CHAPTER V: RESTRICTIONS ON CASH WITHDRAWALS AND TRANSFERS OF CREDIT

Section 1. Cash Withdrawals. (a) Withdrawals in the form of cash whether by the cashing of checks or drafts, the making of loans in cash, or any other form of cash disbursement are prohibited except for those purposes, and not in excess of those amounts, for which cash is customarily used.

(b) Banking institutions are further authorized to restrict and ration cash withdrawals to the extent necessary in the event a sufficient amount of cash should not be available.

(c) Banking institutions shall prohibit withdrawals of cash in any case where there is reason to believe that such withdrawal is sought for the purpose of hoarding.

Section 2. Transfers of Credit. (a) No depositor or share or savings account owner may transfer in any manner or by any device whatsoever any balance to his credit on the date on which this Regulation becomes effective, except for the payment of (i) expenses or reconstruction costs vital to the war effort, (ii) essential living costs, (iii) taxes, (iv) payrolls, or (v) obligations incurred before the date on which this Regulation becomes effective, to the end that the best interests of the war effort and the public will be served.

(b) Banking institutions shall prohibit the transfer of credit in any case where there is reason to believe that such transfer is sought for any unauthorized purpose.

(c) After this Regulation becomes effective, banking institutions shall retain until released by Federal authority the original or a photographic copy (face and reverse sides) of each check and other evidence of transfer of credit in the amount of $1,000 or more.

Section 3. Exceptions to Restrictions. (a) Balances in deposit or share or savings accounts may be transferred from one banking institution to a deposit or share or savings account of the same owner in another banking institution.

(b) The restrictions of Section 2 of this Chapter shall not apply to any check or draft negotiated for value prior to the time this Regulation becomes effective.

(c) The limitations and restrictions of this Chapter shall not apply to the United States, any State or any political subdivision thereof, nor to their respective agencies and authorities.

(d) The limitations and restrictions of this Chapter shall not apply to transactions between Federal Reserve Banks, Federal Home Loan Banks, banking institutions, and branches thereof.

(e) The provisions of Section 2 of this Chapter do not alter the right of any banking institution to invoke restrictions on withdrawals or deposits or repurchases of or payments on withdrawals from share or savings accounts provided for under contract or agreement with depositors or share or savings account owners or by reason of law or the provisions of its charter or bylaws.

CHAPTER VI:

LENDING AND EXTENDING CREDIT

Section 11 (original printing error). Making Loans and Extending Credit. No banking institution may make any loan, extend any credit, or discount or purchase any obligation or evidence of debt, unless it is established and certified in writing by the borrower and a banking institution that the purpose is to pay (i) expenses or reconstruction costs vital to the war effort, (ii) essential living costs, (iii) taxes, or (iv) payrolls, to the end that the best interests of the war effort and the public will be served.

Section 2. Exceptions to Restrictions. (a) The restrictions contained in Section 1 of this Chapter do not prohibit the renewal, recasting, or extension of any loan or credit outstanding prior to the effective date of this Regulation, if in the judgment of the management of the banking institution such action is in the best interest of the war effort. The cancelled original evidence of debt shall be attached to the instrument renewing, recasting, or extending such obligations.

(b) Section 1 of this Chapter shall not apply to loans or extensions of credit to the United States, to any State or any political subdivision thereof, nor to their respective agencies and authorities, nor to loans or extensions of credit between banking institutions.

[AND SO FORTH]... [END QUOTE]

* * * * *

If you are not in a current state of shock, I advise you to go back and read this again—because if you are not in a state of shock, you either do not understand what you just read or you are out of the banking circles in all manner!!

Emergency status is called by the President, Mr. G.H.W. Bush, who is a full-fledged member of all of the Global 2000 Plan Conspirators. It is further advisable to have a war in order to invoke the Regulations and confiscate your money—and obviously you have to have the banks under the Regulations in order to tamper with the money.

You will also note that the U.S. government, its “rulers” and the States, as well as the cartel banks have no restrictions what-so-ever!

I suggest a rest, Dharma, while everyone goes back and reads today’s writings, both of them, and gets into a state of panic and shock. What is upon your place and coming down, is far beyond any “little grey aliens” under New Mexico in cahoots with anybody!

I trust you can see the “fix” you are in as a world citizen, in just this one tiny facet of your life. You have just about been “hamstrung”.

When we return to the writing we shall get back onto the subject of UFOs at the time of WW-II. Oh blessed children of the lie, I beg of you to open your minds, eyes and ears and let us walk together and not in adversity, one against another—you truly do have enough enemies to your freedom and you can use a little Godly help. So be it. I move to stand-by. Salu. Hatonn to clear.

CHAPTER 9

REC #3 HATONN

THUR., MAR. 15, 1990 6:30 P.M.

YEAR 3 DAY 211

SECRET SOCIETY

When we speak of Hitler, we must remember that he was trained through his individual experiences just as are all. He was deeply involved in a most secret society called Thule. This society stood for racial segregation with the Arian White race as masters of all. It included the Nordic culture and the society was interested in areas such as Greenland, the Arctic and Antarctic. The Thule Society emblem consisted of the swastika, a downward-pointing sword and a wreath of oak leaves—all symbols later used in Nazi Germany—remember that the swastika is a symbol of “life” in the Native Indian culture.

Nazi Germany was years ahead of the rest of the world in many technological areas. It is internationally recognized that if Germany had had a greater supply of natural resources and manpower, then the war would have undoubtedly had a much different ending.

Germany produced many super weapons including the first jet fighter aircraft, the first missile system and various others which were almost in the realm of science fiction.

THE WIND CANNON

The wind cannon was produced by Germany late into the war. This fired compressed air. There was also the sun cannon which reflected the Sun and burned its target. They also had rocket packs worn by individuals that were jet powered. This rocket enabled persons to make jumps of up to a distance of some fifty to sixty yards. They also produced B1 and B2 rockets. Germany introduced the forerunner to the intercontinental ballistic missile. This was produced in 1942 and was capable of striking the United States. No reason was found for its never having been used. In 1940 a vertical takeoff aircraft was invented and only in recent years have the Western countries managed to produce such aircraft.

Let us speak of the “sound cannon”. This was first produced for use in about 1943. It consisted basically of a combustion chamber with a barrel and worked by methane and oxygen. It was the resulting explosion which created the damage. Animals could be killed instantly within a hundred yards and troops could be paralyzed for hours at a range of 200 yards. By April 1945 Germany had in production 150 different types of missiles and rockets on the drawing board with diagrams and even models along with aircraft of all sizes.

Among these diagrams was one which eventually became the Boeing Corporation’s 747 Jumbo Jet. Incredibly enough—among the technology was the Flying Disc. As early as 1940 these were being produced. There is photographic proof of such craft but no material proof was ever captured by wartime allies.

According to your own records, there were as many as five major scientists working on the “UFO” projects. They developed a disc-shaped machine with a 65-foot diameter. Involved were Bellonzo, Schriever, Miethe and, of course, Victor Schauburger. His disc or “Flying Hat” was electro-magnetically powered and if you look at photographs of the Schauburger disc, you will note that it looks exactly like discs photographed over the United States. These discs attained great speed with silent take-off. There were also designs called flying wheels and craft with inflatable airbags for landing cushions. They had some quite fine prototypes but no, they were not Pleiadian design. They were more on the technology of Saturnians and some Reticulum craft.

The final model was referred to as the Bellonzo-Schriever-Miethe Diskus. This version was produced in various sizes, some as large as 135 feet and even 225 feet in diameter. Actual speeds recorded were over 2000 km/hour. Conventional rocket motor speeds of up to 4000 km/hour were anticipated. Interestingly enough, no German technicians who worked on those advanced machines have volunteered their knowledge.

More interesting is the fact that many scientists were taken by the allies and yet no UFO scientists were located. As a matter of fact, installations for work on the craft were often underground or in hillside cave dugouts. All facilities were dismantled and vanished without leaving so much as a detail. Now where do you think everyone went?

LOOK AT THE EVIDENCE

Now, dear ones, we are not speaking of sloppy workmanship. In 1945 a disc could attain an altitude of 40,000 feet in less than three minutes, reaching a speed of 1,300 mph. You need to also remember that Germany was the first to fly what you now call Delta Wing craft. As a matter of fact, the advanced technology was comparable to much of your public-attentioned aircraft of the current day—i.e., the Stealth, etc. This, of course, is a cover for what is actually going on but I need not spoil the story.

These discs were manufactured in many various areas and all were well hidden even from the local population. As the craft would be finished, they were immediately dismantled and shipped in pieces out of the country—usually along with the pilots. Orders for dismantling always came directly from Adolf Hitler himself. The major scientists involved simply vanished.

Many German scientists went to America after the war and they were all interrogated about the UFO works; however, it has never been made public to you ones as to whether or not the major technology was ever revealed. And yet you got the nuclear bomb—in fact, it was said that the bomb itself was built in Germany!

Many reports were made by pilots over Germany, about UFOs. The strange thing is that no one was ever injured by them, although they certainly unnerved many air crews. Then following the surrender of Germany, the same type objects were observed over the Japanese areas.

NEW METAL

Probably the most unique thing that came out of that period of technological spurt was a new type of metal. This metal is harder than diamonds. This metal glows alternatively in colors of the rainbow when heated to a high degree. It was first used commercially in 1936. Strangely enough no record was made of this metal in the indexes of metals.

THE A-BOMB

Hitler issued an order on September 26, 1936. A Dr. Esau was put in control of the project. With the capture of Norway there was available to Germany a source of heavy water which had previously been lacking. One tanker full of heavy water has not been accounted for to this day.

Thus it can be seen that Germany was a very advanced country—the mystery is, what happened to all the technology?

To start with, let us examine one of the biggest mysteries of your 20th Century. Did Adolf Hitler commit suicide or did he not? Popular accounts are that on April 30, 1945, Hitler shot himself. His body was said to have then been cremated. The most important witnesses and the men closest to Hitler have never been found, e.g. Bormann, Stumpfegger, Günsche, et al.

Here you will find a most interesting situation, only two eyewitnesses were found who claimed Hitler committed suicide—all other witnesses were never found or could not answer. Hitler's body was never found. Also, the bloodstains found on the furniture where Hitler supposedly committed suicide was not of Hitler's blood type. There is absolutely no concrete evidence, therefore, that Hitler died.

Further, Hitler was not a coward nor did he believe in "giving-in". Suicide is completely out of character, for after he had heard of the suicide of the Mayor of Leipzig and his family, he had condemned suicide as cowardly and unbecoming to a National Socialist.

Hitler's personal pilot stated that on the first of May, 1945 he flew Hitler and Bormann to an airfield in Norway. I truly doubt that this would represent a resurrection. There they transferred to another aircraft and flew on to another place along the Norwegian coast. Later the pilot retracted the statement and backed the suicide statement after having been made aware of the incident.

Now, very strange things happened when the allies got to Greenland. Norway had held out longer than all other defense positions for the Germans but when the allies reached Greenland they found two direct opposites—sites which were totally abandoned and dismantled and other places where the defense was so total that in the end even the defenders could not be found and were never found—they just vanished.

AH HA! THE ANTARCTIC

At the beginning of the war, long-range plans were put into operation to prepare bases in the Antarctic should relocation be necessary. Strange perhaps, but most effective indeed. Stranger yet, in February 1945 in Hitler's last speech he said, "Germany will still win the war and the last bastion will be ours!"

Officially, the Second World War was never officially ended. The German army surrendered on May 7, 1945 and Japan followed on September 2, 1945—no formal peace treaty was ever signed. Your own General Eisenhower stated, just before he became President, "The Second World War has not yet ended."

Stranger yet—during the war Germany had 1,162 U-boats (submarines). Of these, 783 were lost in action. Of the 379 remaining, 215 were supposedly scuttled by the German navy itself and about 154 were captured by the allies—the rest were never found. Statistics are rough, however, and several U-boats of the latest design arrived in Japan with war materials some three weeks after the defeat in Europe. These submarines subsequently sailed and were never again seen.

Later, some two months after Germany's surrender, a German submarine gave itself up to Argentine authorities after all scientific instruments and weapons on board had been destroyed. The U-boat had calmly slipped into the harbor of Rio de la Plata. The Commander's name was Otto Wermoutt. The world was stunned and electrified! What was a German submarine doing all the way down there in South America? And, why had they not surrendered earlier?

The crew was turned over to the U.S.

military after long demand but no results were ever publicized. Funny thing—the crew was 54 men. The usual German crew size was only 18 men. There were also large food stocks on board. However, the real surprise was 540 large tin cans or barrels, all hermetically sealed and upon opening were found to contain nothing but cigarettes. Now what would a submarine be doing cruising around South America almost three months after the war with a triple strength crew; carrying a cargo of nothing but cigarettes? The average age of those 54 men turned out to be less than 25 years, with the exception of the machinist who was 32 years old. The commander himself was only 25—and the second officer an incredible 22 years young.

Later, in checking, it was never found that there was a Captain by the name of Otto Wermoutt, the one given as that of the commander of the U-boat. All the crew had similar mysterious surroundings—no relatives, all alone, etc.

Five weeks later, another sensational submarine surrender took place and again at Rio de la Plata. A German U-boat, U-977 under Commander H. Schaffer gave itself up to the Argentinian authorities, and this, three months after the end of the war. There was a crew of 32 men—still fourteen above the regular crew. It was soon learned, however, that there had been another 16 men, all of them married and with families in Germany, and had been dropped off "on orders", on the Norwegian coast. It is obvious that the operation was completely in control and the men were dropped off at the exact same spot where earlier reports stated the Fuhrer had been taken after his departure from Berlin. This U-boat was inspected thoroughly in search of Hitler—it was obvious that all on the "inside" knew that Hitler was still alive.

Still more U-boats appeared off the coast of South America. Well, we will look at possibilities at the next sitting. I don't want to belabor this subject—because it is well known that there is a German base in the Antarctic and the story gets most boring indeed. It is necessary for those of you who come newly into this knowledge not be left completely outside the story but it can get most lengthy and has little bearing on UFOs as far as the transfer to the base.

Dharma, it is late and it has been a very long day. Let us close for this portion. Thank you for your long hours. I will move to stand-by and allow you to close. Good evening.

Hatonn to clear, please. Thank you.

IN DEFENSE OF THE NORTHERN ALLIANCE

By Anne Applebaum, London Sunday Telegraph, 11/4/01

Here is what we know about the Northern Alliance, the main military opposition to the Taliban in Afghanistan: Its soldiers are mostly Tajiks and Uzbeks, though other ethnic groups have joined the alliance as well. The military unit has a motley collection of weapons. Its soldiers are famously brave and famously unreliable. The alliance has been funded by the Russians, the Uzbeks and Iran. Ex-members of the Clinton administration say the alliance helped the CIA try to kill Osama bin Laden.

Here is what we don't know: Is the Northern Alliance our ally in Afghanistan? Should it be?

Just before the bombardment of Afghanistan, Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld made it sound as if he was already in contact with the group. They "know the land," he said at one point about alliance soldiers. "They can be a lot of help."

As the bombing campaign began, however, our new friendship with the alliance lost its bloom. In the early days, American planes did not bomb Taliban frontlines, apparently on the grounds that the administration did not trust the alliance and did not want its commanders to march into Kabul too quickly. The press changed its tone as well. Salon, among others, accused the alliance's leaders of "shocking human-rights records, thievery and sheer governing incompetence." A more recent Washington Post report described the alliance as "tired, hungry and ill-equipped to face the Taliban."

Recently, however, we seem to have returned to Square 1: The most optimistic scenarios for the war have been abandoned. Weeks have passed but we haven't found bin Laden and haven't forced the Taliban leaders to make mistakes. Fewer Taliban soldiers have defected than expected. Perhaps this explains why we have begun to bombard Taliban artillery that threatens the alliance. Like it or not, the Northern Alliance is the only serious fighting force in the country. Like it or not, it still is our only potential friend in Afghanistan.

For many, this will seem like bad news: The Afghan conflict has been extremely brutal and there have indeed been abuses, thuggery and theft on all sides. No Northern Alliance faction is exempt from criticism. In this conflict, there are no men in white hats.

There is, however, some good news. Here are a few reasons to feel a sliver of optimism:

*They aren't fanatics. While many of the Northern Alliance are devout and even orthodox Muslims, its members have a very different reputation from the Taliban. When the Northern Alliance leader Ishmael Khan was in charge of Herat, girls went to school. When the Taliban took over, the girls were sent home. Generally speaking, the alliance culture is the culture of pre-Soviet-invasion Afghanistan: easygoing, relatively liberal. The alliance has never had any ambition to export Islam.

*Contrary to some reports, not all of the Northern Alliance's commanders are semiliterate, drug-dealing, cave-dwelling guerrillas. While this may be an accurate description of some of their soldiers, the Northern Alliance still is the only Afghan government widely recognized around the world. Its foreign minister, Abdullah Abdullah, is well-spoken, well-regarded and well-traveled (particularly of late). These are people that the West has dealt with before.

They are meritocrats. By this, I mean that Tajik military commanders have become military commanders on the grounds of military ability, not on the grounds of their tribal or clan position. During the war against the Soviet Union, not all ethnic groups followed this rule. A great deal of mysterious infighting still takes place among alliance factions but faction members do seem to be capable of making some compromises and following leaders of other ethnicities.

They are adaptable. In the 1980s, the Northern Alliance fought the Russians. Now Russia has changed, the war has changed and the Northern Alliance seems happy to accept Russian support. This is a small point but it does reveal something about the alliance's mentality. Unlike bin Laden, who hates all Americans—bankers, postmen, politicians—the Northern Alliance can distinguish between Russia and the Soviet Union. This speaks well for the ability of its leaders to work with us.

More important, the Northern Alliance has been our ally before. Many of its commanders did fight, successfully, with the U.S. against the Soviet Union. The alliance's murdered leader, Ahmed Shah Masoud, perhaps tragically, was not the main recipient of U.S. aid during the Afghan-Soviet war—that was in part because the U.S., relying on the advice of the ISI, the Pakistani secret service, had been talked into backing more fanatical groups. We shouldn't allow the ISI, which deeply opposes the Northern Alliance, to mislead us on Afghanistan again.

Even more important, we haven't got a choice. There simply isn't another large, organized, native military force that is prepared to fight the Taliban on the ground in Afghanistan and it would be madness for us to consider fighting the Taliban in any other way. As things stand right now, the alliance may not be the best ally but it's the only one we've got.

[JR: Note here that the majority of soldiers came from the independent Republics of Uzbekistan and Tajikistan where we now have established bases. The facts presented here do not match up to what is being offered on the TV picture news regarding our Northern Alliance. Come to think of it...there is no real in depth reporting on the picture news. All the analysts are retired military or ex-government officials who have become "instant" terrorist experts. Take it all with a grain...no, a ton of salt.]

REBELS ILL-EQUIPPED FOR BATTLE, POORLY TRAINED AND ARMED, THEY AWAIT U.S. HELP

By Stephen Franklin and Paul Salopek, Tribune, 11/4/01

KURUK, AFGHANISTAN—Commander Daoulad didn't have enough fingers to tick off the wish list of gear he said he needed to finally counterattack his old enemy, the Taliban.

Crouched with his tattered band of Northern Alliance fighters in a muddy trench only 170 yards from Taliban frontline positions, he ignored the racket of nearby gunfire to list everything from more bullets to new shoes, from fresh mortar rounds to unbroken tea glasses, from heavy machine guns to bottles of cooking oil.

"America needs to help more," insisted Daoulad, who like many Afghans uses one name. "So far they have done nothing for us."

Even the previous day's ferocious B-52 strikes on the Taliban lines facing him did not change his view. "Unless there is more," he said, surrounded by freshly dug graves marked with handfuls of rocks, "I wait..."

Pentagon officials promised to supply the troops the gear they need, while Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld on Saturday sought more assistance from Tajikistan and Uzbekistan that would help supply

Northern Alliance-held areas along their borders.

President Bush defended the progress of the U.S.-led bombing campaign, which now is four weeks old, saying that it's a "different kind of war".

But it seems very familiar to the Northern Alliance, an army that does not appear ready to risk a dangerous step forward.

Badly trained, badly armed, badly equipped, the Northern Alliance seems to be no challenge for the Taliban today and perhaps for months to come. Its formal name is the United Front, but that is a misnomer. Its forces are an amalgam of warlord militias and troops loyal to the exiled Afghan government. The independent-minded warlords pretty much do what they like.

Until U.S. bombs began raining down on the Taliban on Oct. 7, the Northern Alliance was squirreled away in one-tenth of Afghanistan, desperately trying to hold on to a mostly mountainous, poverty-stricken stretch of land.

"We were not attacking, we were defending," said Commander Hasan, a widely respected leader of one of the militias in northern Afghanistan.

Some analysts suggest that if the U.S. is not cautious, it could end up making decisions in Afghanistan similar to those it made during the Afghan uprising against the Soviet Union in the 1980s. During that conflict, Washington decided to support Gulbuddin Hekmatyar, a radical Afghan freedom fighter whose movement attracted a young Saudi exile named Osama bin Laden. The result was the flowering of militant Islam worldwide and the birth of bin Laden's al-Qaida network.

The Northern Alliance's problems are many. To begin with, the rebels lack almost everything an army needs to fight.

"If we get some ammunition, some weapons, some wheat, some shoes, some oil and gas, then we can fight," said Gen. Mohiballah Khan, one of the exiled government's commanders in northern Afghanistan, repeating a refrain heard among opposition military leaders.

Despite loud appeals to the world, leaders of the Northern Alliance complain that few nations have come to their rescue. "The Russians gave us meat, milk and wheat and some ammunition. That is all," Commander Hasan said.

Although Moscow promised to send heavy equipment to match that of the Taliban, nothing has shown up, said Bariyola Khan, deputy minister of defense.

Except for coordinating their own bombing runs, the U.S. military has offered little help, said Gen. Khan. As for Washington's promise to send U.S. Special Forces personnel to provide technical assistance on the ground, Khan said none has shown up in northern Afghanistan, where the Northern Alliance has been talking about launching an attack.

"If [Americans] are here, I have not seen them," he said.

Daniel Byman, an expert on Afghanistan with the Rand Corp.'s Center for Middle East Public Policy, agreed that the Northern Alliance's troops are unlikely to race soon toward the capital, Kabul. "They need to learn to mobilize for major operations again, and now winter is biting at their heels," he said.

"Bringing in sufficient supplies for a major assault before winter seems pretty unrealistic," Byman said. "Given the tasks before them, I think the Alliance will need the entire winter to get themselves into shape, or maybe even more time than that."

At most, Northern Alliance officials say they can muster about 15,000 armed and trained fighters. They figure the Taliban can call up to 60,000 fighters, at least half from Pakistan, Chechnya, China and the Arab world.

The number of Taliban fighters also appears to be growing as bands of new fighters travel across the high mountain passes linking Pakistan with Afghanistan, according to Northern Alliance officials. Word of these new arrivals last week quickly deflated Alliance leaders, who were counting on the U.S. bombing to weaken the spirit of the Taliban soldiers.

Instead, they believe the fresh soldiers bolstered the Taliban's morale. Now, rather than planning their own attack, some rebel commanders have shifted into thinking about how they can defend themselves.

"It is a very difficult situation," said Commander Hasan. "If we don't do something soon, all of the terrorists in the world will be fighting with the Taliban."

But the chances of the Northern Alliance doing something soon seem slim.

Afghanistan's much-vaunted winter only adds to the opposition's tactical disadvantage. The craggy peaks where the Taliban fighters are based are difficult to assault....

The rebels' supply lines are another weak point inhibiting a full-scale assault on Taliban positions. A single enemy artillery shell could knock out the coalition's sole road link to Tajikistan, a crucial back channel for food and ammunition. A rickety ferry, exposed to Taliban fire, chugs across the border river there, hauling one dilapidated truck at a time.

The first key test of the rebels' military viability, by almost all accounts, will be the battle for Mazar-i-Sharif, a crucial crossroads that dominates much of northern Afghanistan. The Taliban wrenched the city from Northern Alliance troops in bloody fighting in 1998. In recent weeks, opposition forces have tried to take it back but were repelled by powerful Taliban counteroffensives.

If the reactions of civilians in Mazar-i-Sharif are a good indicator of the tides of the war, then the Northern Alliance has reason to worry.

Phone calls last week to inhabitants of the key city revealed few signs of hardship or panic. Stores still were well-stocked with food, and life was orderly, residents said. They added that the city was packed with Taliban reinforcements, many of them Arab and Pakistani volunteers.

"Nobody is leaving the city," said a merchant reached by cellular phone. "Business is still good."

With the news from the fronts so discouraging, opposition warlords increasingly seem to be taking a passive, wait-and-see attitude about greater U.S. military action before committing their own bedraggled troops to further ground operations.

In the meantime, their fighters polish their ancient Russian-made AK-47 Kalashnikovs for the benefit of foreign journalists....

Tank shells slammed into Taliban hillside positions at the rate of one every hour. For miles around there were no lineups of trucks waiting to carry soldiers to the front. At the skimpy military bases, there were no lines of soldiers waiting to receive their weapons and supplies.

Nor had security changed at the last checkpoint on the muddy river of a road leading to Khwaja Bahauddin, the Northern Alliance's military base for the northern region. The checkpoint is manned by a middle-aged, one-eyed soldier and a rifle-toting teenager in sneakers who together hold up a thin blue plastic rope, blocking any suspicious travelers.

[JR: It's one thing to plan an offensive in some war room far from the enemy and quite another to carry out those plans in a war zone. We began the war by carpet bombing the Taliban strongholds and by sending in our Special Ops teams to "access" and evaluate our strategic options. Our next move was to announce we had the crucial support of the groups that made up the Northern Alliance. This mix of Afghan rebels were expected to soften up the Taliban before we would commit our own ground forces into the war. Good strategy except that the warlords failed to take into consideration that our Afghan fighters would need arms, equipment, supplies and training to fight our war. Case in point: a checkpoint is being guarded by "a middle-aged, one-eyed soldier and a rifle-toting teenager in sneakers who together hold up a thin blue plastic rope, blocking any suspicious travelers." Now is it any wonder why Rumsfeld keeps changing the time frame as to how long it will take to win this war against the terrorists and make the world safe for us and the UN.]

DELTA FORCE MET HEAVY TALIBAN RESISTANCE—REPORT

dailynews.yahoo.com, 11/3/01

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—Twelve elite U.S. Delta Force commandos were wounded by Taliban troops in an Oct. 20 raid in southern Afghanistan and some American officers were angered by the Pentagon's film show of a separate parachute strike that night, according to a report released on Saturday.

Despite comments by the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff that resistance to the two raids was light, author Seymour Hersh wrote in The New Yorker magazine the Taliban surprised U.S. forces with a fierce firefight at one target.

Hersh reported in the Nov. 12 issue the fight erupted as members of the elite and secret Delta Force emerged from a house in a compound near Kandahar sometimes used by Taliban leader Mullah Mohammad Omar, who was not there.

"It was like an ambush," he quoted one senior officer as saying. "The Taliban were firing light arms and either RPGs (rocket-propelled grenades) or mortars."

It was "a tactical firefight, and the Taliban had the advantage," the officer told Hersh, who reported that 12 U.S. commandos were wounded, three of them seriously.

Defense officials declined to comment on the Hersh report or discuss further details of last month's raids in response to questions from Reuters.

But Hersh, who earlier was the first to report that the United States was using missile-armed unmanned reconnaissance drones over Afghanistan, said some U.S. officers were furious because the Pentagon showed reporters dramatic films of a separate parachute raid that night by Army Rangers on an airfield near Kandahar.

Some officers and Delta Force troops viewed with disdain showing combat films of the jump and of Rangers on the ground instead of keeping such operations from public view, according to the report.

Hersh said the raids prompted bitter internal debate in the U.S. military and caused the Central Command based in Tampa, Florida, to revisit plans for such strikes in Afghanistan.

Air Force Gen. Richard Myers, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told reporters only hours after the Special Operations forces left Afghanistan last month that the raid was a success.

"There were casualties on the other side," said Myers, who added that there was only "light resistance" from Afghanistan's ruling Taliban military to the raids.

"Special Operations forces including U.S. Army Rangers deployed to Afghanistan. They attacked and destroyed targets associated with terrorist activities and Taliban command and control," Myers said. He refused to say exactly how many troops were involved, but U.S. officials said privately at the time the raids involved well over 100 soldiers.

Although the main purpose of the two raids was to seek intelligence information on the Taliban and al-Qaida network of fugitive Osama bin Laden, defense officials later acknowledged privately that documents and other material seized by the American troops provided little of major intelligence value.

Hersh noted that Britain's Sunday Telegraph reported on the day after the raids the United States had requested the immediate assignment to Afghanistan of the entire regiment of Britain's elite Special Air Service commandos.

Although Britain has openly committed several hundred special forces troops to the region, there has been no indication that such a large contingent might be sent.

One senior U.S. military officer was quoted by Hersh as criticizing the planning for the Oct. 20 attacks as "Special Ops 101".

"I don't know where the adult supervision for these operations is," the officer added.

[JR: The real war where the fighting is heaviest is by those trying to keep this secret war secret. A furious battle is being fought in the back rooms of power to maintain the lines of misinformation and to give these "unnamed sources" enough time to make up a good enough story as they go along. The real winners in this battle of "Enduring Freedom" will be the ones who write the truth and win the hearts and minds of true patriots everywhere. When you hear the bugle sound get ready to charge the liars and the lies.]

U.S. LOSING BATTLE TO DISLODGE TALIBAN

By Liz Sly, Tribune, 11/4/01

PESHAWAR, PAKISTAN—The Taliban is emerging from four weeks of U.S. air strikes with its political control over Afghanistan intact and its stature enhanced, both among ordinary Afghans and beyond Afghanistan's borders among Muslims who opposed the bombing campaign from the very beginning.

Efforts to forge a political alternative to the Taliban regime from the many exiled Afghan opposition leaders and movements have been paralyzed by personal, political and regional rivalries, while hoped-for splits within the Taliban leadership have failed to materialize.

Instead, a U.S. strategy predicated upon hopes that a Taliban force weakened by the bombing would fall prey to internal rifts and rebellion by disgruntled Afghans appears to be having the opposite effect, say Afghan analysts and Pakistani officials.

Mounting reports of civilian casualties and the failure to capture or kill a significant Taliban leader or Osama bin Laden associate are starting to convince many ordinary Afghans that the Taliban is right and that America's war is aimed not at eliminating terrorism but at destroying Afghanistan and Islam.

The Pentagon said Friday that there had been defections from among the Taliban leadership and reports of uprisings involving tribesmen in the south of the country. The U.S. military assault began Oct. 7 after the Taliban refused demands to turn over bin Laden, the alleged mastermind of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks in the United States.

But those monitoring developments inside Afghanistan from the border town of Peshawar are skeptical about news of growing unrest.

"I don't see it," said Pakistan's former charge d'affaires in Kabul in referring to the alleged defections. "If it's happening, I don't know where and I don't know who," said Syed Fida Yunes, who remains in close contact with Afghan officials.

On the contrary, he said, after the initial confusion unleashed by the start of the bombardments, the Taliban has now moved to reassert its control over those provinces considered most likely to rebel. The regime has replaced some local administrators suspected of plotting against it and has won back the loyalties of tribal elders who had considered switching their allegiance.

Afghan refugees arriving in Peshawar to escape the bombing also say support for the Taliban has surged in recent weeks.

"There was some support for America before the bombing started, but since these attacks there is a wave of sympathy for the Taliban," said Ubaid Ullah, 28, who left Kabul last week. "The Americans are crushing the entire Afghan nation for the sake of one man."

The increased level of U.S. military support to the Northern Alliance is bolstering the Taliban's support among ethnic Pashtuns, who dominate the great majority of Afghanistan under Taliban control. Although there are serious doubts about the military capabilities of the opposition, the reports of significant U.S. military aid and boasts that an alliance victory at the strategic town of Mazar-i-Sharif are imminent, fill many Pashtuns with alarm.

Western diplomats say they recognize that a Northern Alliance victory could be counterproductive. They also say there is no intention of allowing opposition forces to take the capital, Kabul, at least not before a political agreement is worked out involving all the rival factions.

Rather, the Northern Alliance force will be used to wear down Taliban defenses and force the regime to divert resources from elsewhere, say the diplomats.

But a political settlement could be weeks, months or even years away. The only alternative option currently under consideration focuses on exiled former King Mohammed Zahir Shah, who lives in Rome, and a proposal to convene a gathering of leaders and elders under his authority.

But Afghan's opposition leaders have been talking about such a gathering for nearly 10 years, without result. There are currently at least six initiatives under way, with each promoter refusing to acknowledge the other's effort.

In the absence of any clear alternative and without any assurances of support from the outside world, there is no appetite to challenge the Taliban even among those who might have otherwise welcomed the regime's downfall.

Pakistani intelligence sources say a fledgling uprising by tribesmen in three provinces along the border fizzled as the bombing campaign got under way and sympathies swung back toward the Taliban.

An uprising cannot be precluded, say opposition leaders and Pakistani officials.

But the longer the bombing continues without dislodging the Taliban or producing signs of progress toward a political alternative, the harder it will be to challenge the current Afghan regime, analysts say.

"It's a race against time," said Yunes. "The greater the damage in Afghanistan, the more support there will be for the Taliban and the longer they will survive."

[JR: Americans are told to be patient and to expect the war on terrorists to last longer than we'd like. The tribes we claim as part of our Northern Alliance are unpredictable and difficult to discipline and control. We will expect them to do the hard fighting but they won't be allowed to take Kabul the capital. Why? Because it will take years before the UN can claim Afghanistan and set up its own puppet government to rule. I guess the Afghan people don't have a say about any of this but then who would hear them with the relentless daily bombing carried out by us and our good buds the Brits.]

U.S. TAXPAYERS SEND BILLIONS TO OUR ENEMIES IN AFGHANISTAN

From Ron Paul's TEXAS STRAIGHT TALK, 11/5/01

Even before September 11th, most Americans were well aware of the hostility that many Middle Eastern nations have for the U.S. Our experiences with Iran, Libya, Iraq, and now Afghanistan have understandably soured many Americans on the entire region. Indeed, the majority of anti-American sentiment in the post-Cold War era originates in the Middle East. What many Americans don't realize, however, is the extent to which their own foreign aid tax dollars are spent funding our current and future enemies in the region.

We should recognize that American tax dollars helped to create the very Taliban government that now wants to destroy us. In the late 1970s and early 80s, the CIA was very involved in the training and funding of various fundamentalist Islamic groups in Afghanistan, some of which later became today's brutal Taliban government. In fact, the U.S. government admits to giving the groups at least $6 billion in military aid and weaponry, a staggering sum that would be even larger in today's dollars.

Bin Laden himself received training and weapons from the CIA, and that agency's military and financial assistance helped the Afghan rebels build a set of encampments around the city of Khost. Tragically, those same camps became terrorist training facilities for bin Laden, who uses some of the same soldiers our military once trained as lieutenants in his sickening terrorist network. Our heroic pilots are now busy bombing the same camps we paid to build, all the while threatened by the same Stinger missiles originally supplied by our CIA. Once again, the stark result of our foreign aid, however well-intentioned, was the arming and training of forces that later become our enemy.

Our foolish funding of Afghan terrorists hardly ended in the 1980s, however. Millions of your tax dollars continue to pour into Afghanistan even today. Our government publicly supported the Taliban right up until September 11. Already in 2001 the U.S. has provided $125 million in so-called humanitarian aid to the country, making us the world's single largest donor to Afghanistan. Rest assured the money went straight to the Taliban, and not to the impoverished, starving residents that make up most of the population. Do we really expect a government as intolerant and anti-west as the Taliban to use our foreign aid for humane purposes? If so, we are incredibly naive; if not, we foolishly have been seeking to influence a government that regards America as an enemy.

Incredibly, in May the U.S. announced that we would reward the Taliban with an additional $43 million in aid for its actions in banning the cultivation of poppy used to produce heroin and opium. Taliban rulers had agreed to assist us in our senseless drug war by declaring opium growing "against the will of God". They weren't serious, of course. Although reliable economic data for Afghanistan is nearly impossible to find (there simply is not much of an economy), the reality is that opium is far and away the most profitable industry in the country. The Taliban was hardly prepared to give up virtually its only source of export revenue, any more than the demand for opium was suddenly going to disappear. If anything, Afghanistan's production of opium is growing. Experts estimate it has doubled since 1999; the relatively small country is now believed to provide the raw material for fully 75% of the world's heroin. How tragic that our government was willing to ignore Taliban brutality in its quest to find "victories" in the failed drug war.

U.S. taxpayers have a right to know exactly what we're getting for our foreign aid dollars. Have we helped bring peace and prosperity to Afghanistan? Have we eased suffering there? Have we added to stability in the region? Have we earned the love or respect of the Afghan people? Have we made an ally of the Taliban government? The answer to all of these entirely reasonable questions is a resounding NO. Afghanistan is in chaos, its people starving, and its government is now an outright enemy of the United States. As we yet again find ourselves at war with forces we once funded and supported, the wisdom of foreign aid must be challenged. Peaceful relations and trade with every nation should be our goals, and the first step in accomplishing both should be to stop sending taxpayer dollars overseas.

ENVOY URGES EXCLUSION OF U.S. IN AFGHAN PEACEKEEPING ROLE

By Brian Murphy, Daily News, 11/6/01

TEHRAN (AP)—The UN should exclude the United States and Afghanistan's neighbors from any possible post-Taliban peacekeeping mission or risk even more instability across central Asia, Iran's foreign minister argued Monday.

Such a position risks increasing friction with Washington, which may seek some continued military oversight in Afghanistan if attacks succeed in toppling the Taliban and ending Osama bin Laden's command of the al-Qaida terrorist group.

However, Foreign Minister Kamal Kharrazi insisted Monday that any U.S. presence on a post-Taliban peacekeeping force "would have a negative impact on the whole region."

"Central Asian countries are always sensitive to the presence of Americans and American soldiers," Kharrazi said, adding that any peacekeeping force "should be composed of countries that do not have any specific interests in Afghanistan."

That also would mean excluding Iran, which shares a porous 450-mile border with Afghanistan.

Kharrazi, who plans to discuss Afghanistan next week as part of a United Nations-backed group that includes the U.S., also warned that Muslim extremism fed by bin Laden and others could lead to a "more dangerous" world if not subdued quickly.

Kharrazi is considered one of the few politicians able to bridge the ideological rifts between Iranian conservatives and moderates seeking Western-style reforms.

He has strong revolutionary credentials, including a key role in the state media during the 1980-88 war against Iraq. Later, he served as Iran's envoy to the UN and is considered close to reformist President Mohammad Khatami.

"We are facing a new chain of developments in the Islamic world, facing a new extremism," Kharrazi said. "If wrong policies are taken, naturally it would be more dangerous and there would be more [of a] gap between the Islamic world and the Western world, and it could lead to clashes."

Iran has attempted to juggle various aims since Sept. 11: It has snubbed the U.S.-led coalition against terrorism and opposed military action, even as it shares the common goal of bringing down the Taliban regime in Afghanistan.

Iran believes the Taliban has warped Islam, and it has helped arm the anti-Taliban opposition in hopes the U.S. air strikes will clear the way for toppling the Taliban.

[JR: It would seem that the comments of Mr. Kharrazi of Iran reflect the position and attitude of most Islamic countries that the U.S. should be excluded from post-war Afghanistan because we are dishonest and cannot be trusted. Gee...wherever did they get that notion? We are the good guys wearing the white hats coming to revenge the wrongs of the world—aren't we?]

dailynews.yahoo.com, 11/3/01

DUBAI (Reuters)—Following is the text of parts of a videotaped statement made by Saudi-born dissident Osama bin Laden and broadcast on Qatar-based al-Jazeera television on Saturday (11/3/01):

"Those who refer our tragedies today to the United Nations for solutions there are hypocrites who are deceiving God, his prophet and the believers. Are any of our tragedies not the making of the United Nations? Who issued the resolution for the division of Palestine in 1947 and surrendered the land of Islam to the Jews? It was the United Nations in its resolution in 1947.

"Those who claim to be Arab leaders and are still (cooperating) with the United Nations are infidels in the eyes of the message of Mohammad—God's blessings and peace be upon him. Those who refer issues to international law (for a solution) have abandoned the law of (Islam's) holy book and the teachings of the prophet.

"We have suffered because of this United Nations, so no Muslim should resort to it under any circumstance. The United Nations is a tool of crime. We (Muslims) are being slaughtered every day and it does not move.

"Our brethren in Kashmir have been, for more than 50 years, subjected to torture. They have been slaughtered, killed and their honor, blood and homes have been violated. And the United Nations does not move.

"Today, without any evidence, the United Nations is pedaling resolutions in support of America, the oppressive despotic tyrannical (country) against the weak who have just emerged from a massive war (waged) by the Soviet Union.

"All the West, with rare exceptions, supports this oppressive campaign, for which no evidence links what happened in the United States to the people of Afghanistan. The people of Afghanistan have nothing to do with this matter but the campaign continues annihilating villagers, women and children, without right."

[JR: Draw from bin Laden's comments your own opinion or conclusions. People of reason should question why the Afghan people are paying the price for our Sept. 11th tragedy.]

DEATH CERTIFICATE REQUESTS SEEM LOW

By Beth J. Harpaz, Daily News, 11/1/01

NEW YORK (AP)—More than a month after the city made it easier for families of World Trade Center victims to obtain death certificates, city attorneys say they are surprised at how few have applied for them.

“They’re not coming in,” said Lorna Goodman, a spokeswoman for the corporation counsel, the city’s legal arm. “It’s an absolute mystery.”

Families with a death certificate can immediately receive life insurance and other benefits, process wills, distribute property and access bank accounts.

Beginning Sept. 26, the city streamlined the process of getting a death certificate without a body, a process that typically takes up to three years. Now only a few days are required.

Paperwork has been submitted for about 1,800 individuals out of the more than 3,900 people city officials believe were killed in the Sept. 11 terrorist attack.

The number of applications could indicate that the city’s tally of the missing is too high, but lawyers involved in the process also suggest other reasons related to human nature: Some families are emotionally unprepared to take the step of declaring their loved one officially dead, especially without physical remains. Others, especially families of immigrants or undocumented workers, may fear dealing with authorities, lack the required paperwork, or be ineligible for benefits such as private insurance and therefore view the process as pointless, the lawyers say.

Anthony Crowell, director of the New York City Law Department’s World Trade Center Unit, has seen many families who just are not ready.

“We have had an instance where the husband has come in to file for his wife and then he’ll call and say, ‘Can you take it back? Can we withdraw the application? Because my wife’s parents just don’t want to go through the process,’” Crowell said.

Several families may be waiting for identifiable physical remains to be found in the debris that can be matched with DNA evidence.

The 1,800 death certificate applications also could be closer to the total number of dead than officials suspect.

Mayor Rudolph Giuliani has defended the city’s count, which recently has been revised from more than 5,000 to 4,492. But an Associated Press tally includes just over 2,500 names.

[JR: None of the reasons given here makes any sense and are not even plausible. Why aren’t the families of the victims not yet ready to deal with the loss of their loved ones or go through the process of settling their affairs? Maybe the government sent them counselors to advise them on the rules pertaining to the National Secrecy Act?]

SECRET NEW YORK CIA OFFICE
DESTROYED IN SEPTEMBER 11 ATTACK

Arabia.com, 11/4/01

WASHINGTON (AFP)—A secret CIA office in the World Trade Center complex that spied on UN diplomats and handled “anti-terrorism” cases was destroyed in the September 11 terror attack, the New York Times reported Sunday, citing government officials.

The Central Intelligence Agency office, which operated behind a false front, was located at 7 World Trade Center, one of the smaller office towers destroyed when the twin towers collapsed after being hit by hijacked passenger planes, officials told the Times.

All agency employees were evacuated safely, the officials said.

A CIA spokesman contacted by AFP declined to comment. “We never confirm the location of CIA offices other than our Virginia headquarters,” the spokesman said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The office also recruited United Nations diplomats, and debriefed friendly U.S. business executives and others after returning from overseas, according to the Times.

Agents at the office also worked with the Federal Bureau of Investigation on “counter-terrorism” efforts in the New York area, the Times reported.

Immediately following the attack the CIA sent a special team to scour the WTC rubble searching for any documents and reports from their office that may have survived the building collapse, officials told the Times.

[JR: Do I detect shades of similarities between the destruction of the NY/WTC towers and the Murrah Federal Building in OKC. Either the FBI/CIA has run into a bad streak on rental properties or destruction follows them wherever they go.]

ISRAEL TRYING TO FOIL
BUSH-ARAFAT MEETING. U.S. CLAIMS

By Aluf Benn, haaretzdaily.com, 11/5/01

The U.S. administration has been critical of Israeli policy in recent days after the meeting between Foreign Minister Shimon Peres and Palestinian Authority Chairman Yasser Arafat at a weekend conference in Spain.

A senior American official complained to an Israeli official in recent days that “Peres meets with Arafat, but every time the administration wants to hold a high-level meeting with the Palestinian leader, Israel complains about it.”

Meanwhile, Palestinian Planning Minister Nabil Sha’ath told reporters in Damascus that Arafat might meet U.S. President George W. Bush on the sidelines of the UN General Assembly later this month. “It is possible,” he said, when asked about prospects for such a meeting. “It has been discussed but I don’t have anything fixed.”

Sha’ath will be visiting Washington next week for meetings with senior officials, including U.S. Secretary of State Colin Powell, to discuss the possibility of such a meeting. He was in Damascus for a regular meeting of Arab foreign ministers to discuss the U.S.-led war on terrorism and reviving the Middle East peace process.

The administration is now deliberating on the issue of a Bush-Arafat meeting in New York. Israel has expressed reservations about such a meeting, preferring that Washington pressure Arafat to fight terror. The administration routinely calls for the PA to crack down on terrorists.

Bush has not met Arafat since his inauguration as U.S. president in January. But Bush, seeking Arab support for Washington’s global coalition against terrorism, has recently voiced support for a Palestinian state and Arab officials have said Washington must do more to secure an end to the bloodshed and a resumption of Palestinian-Israeli peace negotiations.

“Such a meeting will serve the issue and we hope it will take place,” Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud al Faisal said in Damascus. Sha’ath also said Arafat might still visit Damascus for talks with President Bashar Assad. A visit in September, which would have been the first by Arafat in years, was canceled at the last minute in controversial circumstances. Noting that the “misunderstanding” had been resolved, Sha’ath said he hoped a new date would be announced soon.

Peres heads for Brussels today for European-Mediterranean cooperation conference, which Arafat will also be attending. As in Majorca at the weekend, Peres has permission from Prime Minister Ariel Sharon to hold “corridor” meetings with Arafat and, if invited to the same lunch or dinner, to dine with the Palestinian leader. Peres has said that there is no point in holding a working session with Arafat unless it is fully prepared in advance.

The Brussels conference will bring foreign ministers from seven Arab countries—Syria, Lebanon, Egypt, Jordan, Morocco, Tunisia and Algeria—together with foreign ministers from European Union countries.

Peres will meet with his Belgian counterpart to discuss the chill in relations between Brussels and Jerusalem after Belgian prosecutors decided to proceed with the case against Sharon for his involvement in the Sabra and Chatila massacres in Beirut in 1982.

After Brussels, Peres goes to France and Sweden, where he will meet with Palestinian Parliament Speaker Abu Ala, at a meeting of the Socialist International.

[JR: The Socialist International (the meeting Peres is attending) is connected and responsible to the powerful Committee of 300. This group is comprised of the most powerful families who, through the following organizations, control our world. (The old European Black Nobility, the Club of Rome, the Illuminati, CFR, UN, and the Order of the Elders of Zion to name but a few, (pg. 138-9, Dr. Coleman’s book The Conspirators’ Hierarchy: The Committee of 300). The Brussels meeting with the Arab foreign ministers and their European counterparts sounds like the European Masters want to pressure these Arab leaders into falling in line with U.S./UN policies. Everyone seems to be jockeying to get the best deal without tipping their hand or making any worthwhile concessions. It will be interesting what pronouncements will come out of this meeting.]

ISRAEL DISCLOSES ITS NUCLEAR OPTION

Middle East News Line, 11/3/01

TEL AVIV—For the first time, Israel has allowed an open discussion of its nuclear program.

The discussion is contained in a new documentary on Israel’s nuclear capability. It is the first time the government has allowed the production and airing of such a program.

In contrast to previous documentaries on the subject produced abroad, Israeli leaders agreed to be interviewed. Foreign Minister Shimon Peres reviewed the history of Israel’s nuclear program and its cooperation with France in the 1950s and 1960s.

Neither Peres nor any other Israeli official acknowledges that the Jewish state has nuclear weapons. Previous assessments have asserted that Israel has up to 200 nuclear warheads.

The documentary, “A Bomb in the Basement—Israel’s Nuclear Option”, was produced in France, Israel and the United States and quotes former U.S. officials recalling Washington’s opposition to Israel’s nuclear program. The documentary will be aired in Israel on Sunday.

“We thought it was a mistake on Israel’s part to develop nuclear weapons,” Paul Warnke, former chief U.S. arms control negotiator, said.

The screening of the documentary comes amid Israel’s quiet debate on increasing its nuclear deterrence in face of Iran’s development of atomic weapons. Former Israeli Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu has privately urged a change in Israel’s policy of nuclear ambiguity once Iran is assessed at having a nuclear weapon, expected as early as 2004.

France supplied most of the components and technology for Israel’s nuclear program. The French secretly constructed the nuclear reactor in Dimona, which remains off-limits to international inspection. The project was supervised by French Atomic Energy Commission director Francois Perrin.

[JR: How timely... Is this a warning for us all? Israel finally admits to having nuclear capabilities after lying (Kol Nidre) about it for the past fifty years. You’d better believe she will use it in a NY heartbeat against anyone, including the U.S., who challenges her on any issues. Israel is and always has been a law unto herself (Protocols of Zion). If Iran is developing nuclear capabilities to defend herself against Israel, shouldn't both be made accountable by the NCR (inspections) just as is India and Pakistan? The rules are the rules and there should be no exceptions, especially with Israel.]

ISRAEL SHOWS UNITED STATES
HOW NOT TO FIGHT TERRORISM

By Charley Reese, Orlando Sentinel, 10/26/01

Israel prides itself on its fight against terrorism—or at least what it calls terrorism—but in fact, it provides the world with a perfect example of how to do it the wrong way.

This was brought home by the assassination of a Cabinet member, the minister of tourism, who was shot down outside his hotel room in East Jerusalem. The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed credit. Why? Because a few months ago, the Israelis had assassinated the leader of that organization. Get it? Tit for tat. You kill, we kill, we all kill.

Israel has recently assassinated more than two dozen Palestinian political leaders. These murders are not characteristic of a democratic government, much less one that shares American values. The people who share the values of our American forefathers are the Palestinians. The Israelis share the values of the old racist British Empire. But have all of these political murders by the Israelis ended the Palestinian uprising? No.

Israel has been assassinating Palestinian leaders for nearly 50 years. Has it stopped terrorism? No. Israel has been engaging in bloody reprisal attacks, killing many innocents. Has that stopped terrorism? No.

Israelis have been arresting people by the thousands during the past 30 years. Has that stopped terrorism? No. Israel tortures, confiscates people's land, demolishes their homes, bulldozes their olive orchards, places them under curfew, seals them inside their towns. Has that stopped terrorism? No.

One thing Israel hasn't done is honestly address the issues that cause these attacks. Remember, anybody Israel decides to kill is automatically a "terrorist". Israelis are as promiscuous in their use of "terrorist" as the Israeli lobby is in its use of "anti-Semite".

But as to the question of withdrawing from the territory it captured in 1967, Israel has one answer: "No." As to the question of letting refugees return or be compensated for the property the Israeli government stole from them, Israel has had one answer: "No." As for letting UN peacekeepers protect the Palestinians from Israeli violence, the answer is "No." As for obeying more than 60 UN resolutions directing Israel to comply with international law, the answer is "No."

So, will there ever be peace in Palestine? No. The Israelis can continue to murder, imprison, isolate, torture, impoverish, brutalize and harass the Palestinians for the next 50 years, and for the next 50 years Palestinians, generation after generation, will resist the occupation of their land by any means they can.

So, every time an Israeli shows up purporting to be an expert on terrorism, we ought to laugh the person right back home. The Israelis are pretty good terrorists themselves, but as anti-terrorists, they are a bunch of goofs. The only thing America can learn from Israel is how to manufacture a continuing supply of embittered enemies decade after decade.

Neither Israel nor the United States, nor any other government, can ever rationalize an injustice by killing the people who protest the injustice. People will endure a lot, but not an injustice. It's like white phosphorous burning a man's soul.

The best thing for the American people to do is to end all aid to Israel and withdraw the protection of the U.S. veto. If Israel is indeed a viable state, then it can survive without American taxpayers contributing nearly a tenth of its gross domestic product.

[JR: Both the U.S. and Israel are mirror images of each other when it comes to dealing with terrorists. We support Israel because their policies are now our own. Peace through negotiation is the way of idealist and dreamers. We live now in a New World Order where domination through lethal force is the only way to maintain peace.]

SUPERGERMS ARE DARK SIDE OF ADVANCES IN BIOLOGY

By Ronald Kotulak, Tribune science reporter, 11/1/01

Galvanized by the recent anthrax attacks, molecular biologists who had previously sought to distance themselves from bio-weapons as biology's disgrace are warning that genetic engineering has the potential to create even more fearsome germs.

In doing so, they are acknowledging that biotechnology—for all its promise in diagnosing, treating and curing disease—can also be turned to malevolent purposes. Scientists who wish to help cure disease, they say, must consider how their work could be misused and how to fight back with new medicines or other techniques.

There is "an increasing tide of concern, among both the scientific and security communities, that the revolution in biology could be misused in offensive biological weapons programs directed against human beings and their staple crops or livestock," according to a commentary in the latest Nature Genetics journal.

The National Institutes of Health have set up urgent meetings with biologists, drug makers and government officials to begin addressing the bio-weapons threat, and the National Academy of Sciences will hold special forums this month to begin assessing the dangers posed by bio-terrorism.

Scientists warn that technology has made it possible to manipulate the genes of viruses and bacteria to the point where a competent molecular biologist could make supergerms that could be far more lethal and disruptive than naturally occurring pathogens.

"Ironically, the very same technology that can insert good genes and fix you can insert bad genes and hurt you," said Steven Block, a Stanford University molecular biologist. "As we proceed with this technology, there is inevitably a dark side, but it's the white side of biology that's going to save us."

For biologists the attacks have been an agonizing awakening to the reality that science can be misused, raising moral and ethical questions about how far science should go, what kind of research should be permitted and who should be allowed to conduct it.

Scientists paint a scenario that, until a few months ago, seemed more like science fiction—undetectable superbugs; "stealth viruses" that invade a person, lie dormant and are triggered on command to cause infection; "designer diseases" that affect specific organs, such as the brain.

The Soviets were the first to attempt to bioengineer natural pathogens into more virulent ones when, in the 1980s, they secretly produced anthrax spores to be resistant to some antibiotics. They also unsuccessfully tried to combine smallpox with the Ebola virus to make a hardier killer.

These efforts, however, are considered primitive compared with the sophisticated technology available today, which can not only identify all the genes that make up disease-causing germs but also manipulate the genes to give the bugs chilling new properties.

Some biotech companies are developing the technology to take individual genes apart and reassemble them in different ways that give the genes new capabilities. This technology has been hailed as a possible important development in curing genetic diseases, but it is now also seen as a way to make genes with incredibly efficient killing powers.

The genetic blueprints of plague, smallpox, cholera and other pathogens, for example, are already identified and posted on the Internet and in scientific journals for anyone to see.

"Many of the genomes for agents that could be used in biological warfare are now matters of public knowledge. They are available to anybody in the world," said Barry Bloom, dean of the Harvard School of Public Health. "If they want to mutate genes, or splice them and take them out, all they need is a couple of DNA primers, some DNA and a little skill, and that can be done."

In the next two years genetics laboratories around the world are expected to complete the genetic makeup of more than 70 major bacterial, viral, parasitic and fungal germs that infect humans, animals and plants.

"The ever-expanding microbial genome databases now provide a parts list of all potential genes involved in pathogenicity and virulence, adhesion and colonization of host cells, immune-response evasion and antibiotic resistance from which to pick and choose the most lethal combinations," said the Nature Genetics commentary, which was written by Claire M. Fraser, president and director of the Institute for Genomic Research, and Malcolm R. Dando of the department of peace studies at the University of Bradford in Britain.

If a terrorist builds an antibiotic-resistant germ, then science must develop new drugs to overcome the resistance, and a thorough understanding of all disease genes will make it possible to develop faster methods of diagnosing and then disabling them. Harvard researchers, for example, recently found a gene that makes mice resistant to anthrax, a discovery that could lead to better vaccines and drugs.

"The same technology that can bring us these potential weapons of devastation is precisely the technology that we'll need to counter them," Block said.

A greatly expanded offensive against bio-weapons is also expected to pay dividends in improved health. As scientists increase their mastery of germ genes to defeat bio-terrorists, they will also be gaining the knowledge to develop anti-microbials, vaccines and other compounds to tame the infections that are the second-leading cause of death in the world.

The ethical dilemmas in biology recall those that have arisen with other great scientific accomplishments. Most of the physicists who built the first atomic bombs, for instance, opposed their use on population targets, and many became involved in campaigns to ban nuclear weapons.

The first molecular biologists who learned how to transpose genes from one species into another in the mid-'70s called a moratorium on their research until it could be shown that such genetic engineering would not accidentally create dangerous organisms.

"How do you keep new bio-weapons from happening?" Bloom said. "You have to... create a very strong moral culture of scientists that worry about the uses of science."

For universities, that means facing critical issues about bio-terrorism as they train people to do molecular science.

"We need to create a culture where students know what the accepted norms are," Bloom said. "Just as doctors need to know what are the accepted ethical norms for human subjects in research, we need the same for biological knowledge."

[JR: When will science develop a moral conscience that will question and set in place ethical standards to police themselves? Molecular biologists are treading the same dangerous road that the nuclear physicists did when they developed the atomic bomb, hydrogen bomb and the neutron bomb. We have more superbugs today and no vaccines to fight them. Science has gone beyond playing God and it's time we hold scientists accountable who engage in research that is unethical or detrimental to man and his environment. Add to that our governments who fund this type of psycho-scientific weapons research.]

PHOENIX JOURNALS LIST

THESE WORKS ARE A SERIES CALLED THE PHOENIX JOURNALS AND HAVE BEEN WRITTEN TO ASSIST MAN TO BECOME AWARE OF LONG-STANDING DECEPTIONS AND OTHER MATTERS CRITICAL TO HIS SURVIVAL AS A SPECIES AT THIS TIME. SINGLE JOURNALS ARE NOW ON SALE FOR $3.00 (REG. $6.00). (Shipping extra—see right.)

WORDS OF WISDOM FROM HATONN

CONTACT OR SPECTRUM?

I want to briefly respond to a most unusual question from a totally "out of the blue" person: "It appears Spectrum will fail, possibly close, so will you go back to writing for CONTACT or what?"

I have never stopped writing for CONTACT—but I have NOT written, nor have my compatriots written for Spectrum. Tails wag a lot of dogs, my friends. Therefore, "or what" has no meaning.
