RE: GLOBAL MESS FROM ECONOMICS TO POLITICAL WARS

WEEKEND IN MANILA

Hatonn—Don't want to hear about Manila? Well, students of history, geography, anthropology, theology and cosmology, look around!

While you are at it, look at the attacks on our people just doing all they can to bring some honorable and HONEST reality to systems gone nuts.

Dr. Mahathir, of Malaysia, stood before the nation and his Party to resign. He wept and said he would not reconsider as he stated over and over again: "I have decided—I have decided""I have had enough—I have had enough."

Then his friends and party members rallied and caused him to relent and agree to stay on in service until next year after a more slowly accomplished transfer could be accomplished so that continuity of government and economic stability could be maintained. Malaysia is the ONLY stable, economically-viable country in Asia. This might well be stated as "Internationally".

Well, readers, we have no Party nor do we have leadership of any nation and though our people have "had enough" the alternatives are continue or "toss it".

"Under God"??? Why, Students of world evolution, you in the U.S. just ruled the phrase "One Nation Under God", OUT OF YOUR ALLEGIANCE PLEDGE.

Interestingly enough, the reaction around the globe is of great humor, since there are no nations or people left who thought the U.S. ever served "Under God" but only used the term to fool the world and gain control—global control. ASK YOUR NATIVE AMERICANS! Even the U.S. "Constitution" was stolen and copied from the Native American TRIBAL COUNCILS, while the Native Americans were left totally OUT of the Constitution and the Blacks were considered, at the most, HALF citizens. THIS IS WHY, READERS, THERE ARE SOVEREIGN NATIVE NATIONS WHICH ARE CALLED "RESERVATIONS". Today, the entire livelihood of the Apache nation is GONE WITH THE FIRES OF ARIZONA. If nothing else happened, it would take a century to regrow trees for lumbering and simply surviving for the people. Now, do you wish to reconsider the POSSIBLE CAUSE of such fires when this is one of the "Nations" fighting for rights within the U.S.? DO YOU ACTUALLY THINK, OR THOUGHT, SATAN WOULD GO DOWN EASILY?

IMF/WB

In the Philippines it is true that the controllers, which include the IMF/WB manipulators, are in a life-death struggle for survival. The political stupidities are evidence without even further discussion (in this place). However, the news getting to the rest of the world is so absurd and so lacking that it appears there is a solid bond between, say, the U.S. and the Philippine Islands. THERE IS NO REST, NO BOND AND THE PEOPLE ARE WAKING UP AND CRYING FOR TRUTH AND HELP.

Millions of citizens claim publicly to WANT OUT of here, to migrate ANYWHERE. They, of course, THINK they want to go to the U.S. (number one) where the corrupt Elite go to save and spend their fortunes made from graft, corruption and coalition with the U.S. itself.

However, nearly a hundred Filipinos were returned (deported) to the Philippines from the U.S. just yesterday—in handcuffs yet. This was due to “immigration violations” of one kind or another. You can, however, guess that among them were NO politically affixed persons. THIS IS PART OF THE “WAR ON TERROR” AND “NOTHING PERSONAL”. It reminds us of the seizing of Ekkers’ property while shouting as the thieving was taking place: “It is nothing personal, just good business.” And YES, those are exactly the words used. Now, one of the major precipitators is living IN THE HOUSE free of charge and surely enough—just good business!

These same people work feverishly to stop anything we are accomplishing even to presenting false information to the Federal Court. Will it be produced in court? Perhaps not today or next week—but indeed, in its proper sequence and time. It may well have to come to “CIVIL” confrontation, for the Federal Courts have limited guidelines for the citizens caught in a trap laid out by the liars, cheats and actual criminal thieves.

Even as to “Diane’s plight”, she has forgotten a VERY IMPORTANT THING regarding the ONLY charge considered against her: THE NOTE SENT BY THE PRODUCT INFORMATION WRITER(S) AS TO THE LIST SENT FORTH TO THE PUBLIC TO NOT FURTHER USE THEIR INPUTTED INFORMATION. THAT DIRECTIVE, READERS, PROVES THE FACT THAT DIANE DID NOT DO CATALOGUES AND, RIGHT UP TO THE “SPLIT” AWAY THROUGH THEFT BY THE “SPECTRUM” people, Moorhead was IN FULL CHARGE OF THE BOOKS—and the product lists were created by parties other than Diane who was, AT MOST, an office manager of a small DISTRIBUTING company which was not even the CORPORATION in point. Diane was not even a part nor parcel of the businesses themselves. And no, Doris did NOT make products, including colloids nor did Ekkers own a farm or any other claimed assets. So WHY was there no better legal counsel given?

BECAUSE THE CASE WAS NEVER PRESENTED AS OTHER THAN AN AIRTIGHT CASE PROVING THAT DIANE SOMEHOW MISREPRESENTED PRODUCTS AS TO THEIR QUALITIES OR MANUFACTURE.

IF YOU “MANAGED” A LITTLE OUTLET FOR VITAMINS AND HEALTH PRODUCTS—BUT HAD NO INPUT TO SAME—WHAT WOULD “YOU” DO?

Now, WHY then would an attorney not give her better advice than to sign a plea bargain which was changed downward after the original debacle of not going for a trial? Because he was more frightened of the system than was the victim.

So, the final “charge”? Addressing envelopes with a brochure inside and affixing the stamps which actually mailed the information to public citizens. So, there you have it, but now with chaos introduced and the terror and hype have come down hard. The fact that Diane didn’t even know what the brochure actually stated has no bearing on the case, it seems, for “ignorance of the law” (if there actually were laws involved) is “no excuse”. Well it is in trial which at first included a charge (dropped) of “fraud”.

We can even have sympathy for the poor Judge in this case. But no, not very much.

DISTRACTIONS

While the courts and attorneys for the Federal system are occupied playing these games against little people just trying to survive and attend a family—the system is in collapse from graft, corruption and outright criminal activities of accounting firms and big business with FATAL OUTCOME TO THE NATION ITSELF.

LITTLE DEVILS VS. BIG SATAN

Just today it comes out that Enron is just a beginning spark of the massive fire throughout the business world as Corporate America and Global World might recognize it, for all the companies involved are INTERNATIONALLY BIG BUSINESS.

Today Xerox is added to the list and breaking news of this morning in Manila adds “DISNEY”. You know, “Just a few math errors in the accounting...”, like into the BILLIONS of dollars. (Must be bad computers.)

The BEAST, however, is so out of control that you now have to have MAJOR WARS to distract and economically survive. Depression ahead? Like none you have ever experienced before. And did you actually believe that the ONLY terror would be in set-up dive-bombing of business towers (where the top dogs don’t even get their tails nipped?). The trail goes all the way up the ladder to the President but didn’t start with this poor bloke—it began so long ago and has spread exponentially into the entire global system.

BACK TO THE PHILIPPINES

What is going on, then, with our program? Nothing very visible but other things have joined the program and the battle is on it seems.

The court rulings of year-after-year decisions and orders are again in the new throes of efforts to get injunctions, more restraining orders, etc., to have a last gasp at holding that which was STOLEN from the people.

Are there solutions? Oh my goodness, YES. We have the answers and the security to see it abundantly through the maze of antics. However, it never ceases as to the pressures—for which there seems to be rather general impressions—that are somehow Ekkers’ or mine as to responsibilities even for the daily operations of CONTACT the paper.

So we come all the way around the loop and back to “I’ve had enough!” But no, enough may well be enough but we will not “toss it”. We are not imminently expecting return but we are even expecting it, myself, in a very short passage of what you call “time”.

Big? We don’t want BIG, chelas. Have we not had enough of the badgering, harassments and actual assaults to last a lifetime? We want success and “BIG” only has meaning in facilitating that success. And THAT with transparent and accurate ACCOUNTING—not “creative bookkeeping”. YOU CANNOT BASE TRUTH ON THE PILE OF LIES NOW SHIFTING IN THE WINDS OF DISCLOSURE.

Furthermore: If you thought we could reverse a world in chaos into order and stability in 15 minutes, then you certainly do NEED to take your phrase “Under God” out of your pledge of allegiance—for God makes miracles THROUGH YOU, not magic through tricks, mirrors and smoke. GOD DID NOT START THE FIRES IN ANY HUMAN PLACE—PERIOD. LOOK ELSEWHERE FOR THE ARSONISTS.

How will it, then, evolve? Exactly as it evolves! Aho!

Do WE have the only game in town? Goodness NO, we simply have about the only SOLUTION to the problems abounding in one segment of living expression. The numbers of games in town seem to be without limits and seem to range from stupid, silly, ridiculous, criminal and absurd to stupid, silly, ridiculous, criminal and absurd. Moreover YOU can pick the “town”.

Here in the Philippines, even where you have some advantage as to ownership rights under the LAW, you have the nonsensical focus on who gets to be the King. In fact, the one recognized by the court as the Administrator of the King’s (“s” all of them) does not even claim to be other than the Administrator regardless of what might be his own, or his Father’s title. It is amazing how many people shoot off both feet and even themselves to death because of total ignorance and refusal to cut the ego traps of a skirmish when they COULD avoid the WAR.

My suggestion to all of you who have served and feel this moment that you simply can’t go further without breaking or risking something personal: LOOK AGAIN. I suggest you turn the attitude into “having had enough” into the direction: “then let’s fix it”. You CAN keep this program together for another few weeks or months if necessary. But that is up TO YOU. This Manila team CANNOT do it FOR anyone—and the local Manila team has actually grown quite impressively large.

Help, which was to have come forth on Monday last, obviously didn’t. Was that because of deception or what? Well, you have to wait for the unfolding to know for sure—but the parties involved now claim it WILL come forth—“In July”. We do not hold our breath—we work on every opportunity presented.

Don’t blame the Filipinos for their fabricated and distracting dramas conjured from whatever soil they spring forth—they learned it from the best teachers around: THOSE WHO CAME BEFORE, INCLUDING THE UNITED STATES MANIPULATORS AND GLOBAL PAY-LORDS.

The most dramatic debacle novella of the moment is the fabricated absurdity of the “killing of Sabaya” of the Abu Syyaf of Mindanao. IT DIDN’T HAPPEN. The entire presentation was a farce and even the little Abu who got paid off by the President blew it in slapstick style. He was taking a bounty payment before God and everybody and stepped forward and smartly saluted Ms. Arroyo—“bringing down the house”. Only a “soldier” would have responded in that manner. The old saying “Only in the Philippines (OIP)” is even being “put aside” because this is so blatant and absurd in this show-time that even the Filipinos won’t abide it. It turns out that this Sabaya is a trained operative of the U.S. and CIA.

It has been recognized that former President Ramos was put in charge of CHANGE. However, he seems to be missing from the puppet-master chair after having been recognized as one of the major culprits of the energy debacle.

Ah, but you might say: “Well, the Philippines is but a little Banana Republic and what the heck, who cares?”

No, it is NOT “just a Banana Republic” without importance. It is the MOST IMPORTANT ONE LOCATION ON THE GLOBE. The U.S. is fully aware of its location and the needs to control it. Furthermore, it was developed to serve in the major money-laundering circles of the Elite network of manipulators.

Meanwhile the public, as in citizen, sits on a dissolving ice shelf without boat or even ability to swim.

The power problems in the Philippines are directly hooked to the power-energy debacle in the U.S. (same companies involved, including Enron). But what happens? Well, the black hole caught up with the diggers—and people are having to keep children out of school to pay the electric bill for power they are NOT using and, in some instances, not even being produced.

Ah but, meanwhile back with the Queen, who DOES have the “power” in her paws to stop the nonsense, yea even the billings themselves, she does what? Oh, in the midst of trying to look good in spite of the eruption in her own ranks, she vows to the nice slaves: that she will “squeeze blood from stones” to lower the “exorbitant power rates”.

Is this sort of like squeezing blood from turnips or cucumbers? There is no blood in stones OR cucumbers and all the squeezing of them will produce NOTHING but foolishness.

Ah BUT, let us look at the headlines of the article above this referenced “squeezing” promise.

The power companies and MAJOR other corporations in the Philippines have been holdings of a family named Lopez. Things have always been really good in this game for the Lopez family. Oops, however, again today the sad FACTS are hitting the shan. They have a flagship company called Benpres Holdings Corp. It is the Lopez flagship corporation and it is now in default “anew” on 340 million pesos IN INTERESTS alone. Overall a rough estimate of owed payments exceeds some $596 MILLION.

Now, readers who probably don’t give a whiff, this is inclusive of a little company called the WATER COMPANY, Maynilad Water Services Inc.

By golly Miss Molly, the debts are to some of the biggest INTERNATIONAL banks on the globe, so what might this hint to you nice people as to the outcome of all this “probable foreclosure” activity?

Oh well, it is said that somehow out of a hat of some kind and rescheduling of some other kind that by next year they can restructure and cover $600 million to restore good health. But darn it, there is another debt in eurobonds worth a total of $150 million falling due in December and $2 BILLION in Long Term Commercial Paper (LTCP) due next year.

Is it not interesting that so much of the debt is due the very institutions who are ALSO in first line to get (buy) the foreclosed property? Will squeezing stones ACTUALLY help?

Now, this very morning on the U.S. CNN news a broker actually said, about the business debacles having happened, that the investors are really quite uninformed and don’t know how to handle market investments. The inference was that, actually, the investors deserved to somehow lose their shirts to the manipulating criminal corporations. You have come a LONG WAY DOWN, readers.

This is in the face of what we offer which actually brings stability and prosperity to everyone, including those nonsensical corporations in trouble. However, note we are accused of crime, theft, fraud and deception of one kind or another. Do we possibly bear one of those proverbial crowns of thorns while the adversary flaps red capes before the angry blind bulls in an effort to stop any remedy for the death-sentence?

Do we get credit for the efforts? Mostly all that is returned is more hacking and battering from the very ones who simply want to do damage in revenge for PERCEIVED wrongs which are only their OWN FOOLISHNESS. We aren’t even in competition with such as the IMF “or”, much the less, V.K. Durham of some kind of “non”-holding illusion. She, like they, would be as the Black Widow and devour her own mate (or literally, the one she has lied about having been a married mate).

Unless you CHANGE THE GAME you will only entangle more firmly within the bonds of the web itself. If you have no money or potential—you cannot even remotely consider “borrowing your way OUT OF DEBT”!

Just this week the Philippines hit the top of the list for the ASEAN circle as being the most corrupt and the worst possible nation for bringing in investments. It remains on the list for the most dangerous, even to its own citizens, and the one nation from which all would like to flee.

The people accusing the Ekkers of “fleeing to the Philippines” certainly have no concept of living places. The Philippines, without a purpose of major intent, is about the least desirable place to which to flee on the globe today. Please note, however, that strangely enough—SORTING has been accomplished to a great degree. More will go before there is rest and comfort—but it is of itself and certainly it is hard to hold blame when the blamed parties and the accused are thousands of miles distant and the nasties have happened in the absence thereof. Facts are that in this little focus, the wheel has turned its full cycle and some parties find themselves in terrible predicaments of being “caught” in their own traps.

This also is happening with nations and no, a world war will NOT solve anything. It will make everything worse beyond belief but it will solve nothing—not even the financial burdens of the rich and famous.

Now, as I leave, I want to leave you with a reminder about the information carried in the envelopes sealed and stamped by Diane and the ONE CHARGE in Federal Court against her that remotely stands forth. She did NOT do the brochures (products of which she stands accused of offering cures, etc.). SHE DID NOT DO THEM, FRIENDS. She has the proof of same right in her files where the party who was one of the presenters of information holds medical degrees of at least two licensure and one of the producers and/or manufacturers of one or two of the products themselves—wrote a letter to demand removal of themselves (herself) from all use. This was AFTER the miscreants informed her of what they had done as to “get Diane” in an effort to get Ekkers somehow indicted for something of which there obviously was no basis in fact.

This, we are confident, is WHY one of the “raider” investigators referred, in person, to this whole affair as being a debacle. Of course he now denies he said it even though several witnesses were directly present. You can even understand his position—he is the one who personally, with another agent, interviewed the accusers and the fact that their stories don’t bear Truth is even worse for his position NOW.

Regardless of what comes down next, Diane will get though it because that is life, readers, you go through whatever is before you when confronted with it, and wishing things were different makes NO DIFFERENCE. This moment will pass exactly as all moments pass. What you do with your moments is all that matters in the afterglow of thought and processing those perceptions. The man with the gun always wins the moment but that “moment” is not all there is, even in a police state.

It is now proven in the case of prominent cases such as O.J. Simpson that, no matter what, a court verdict, even in a criminal case, holds no protection from a Civil suit. Diane and Ekkers will have at least 18 (the number of named parties by Ence to the Federal investigators) PLUS any number more who participated in the local area and were not named in 1999 but repeated actions again and again ever since to name in causes of action. Perhaps this is the sugar that will make the medicine more easily “go down”. Because of this court action all statutes of limitation protecting these accusers will start all over again! JUST Kathy Ward being in the Ekker “house” tells it all as to her activities of theft while an administrative secretary and office manager in a grand conspiracy FOR PERSONAL GAIN. THE RECORDS ARE THERE—SO NEVER MIND THE PRATTLING AND DENIALS.

This may well not ease Diane for the moment—but it opens the floodgates for Civil recourse after this current insanity is moved into retrospection instead of fearful anticipation.

Mark, please call Diane and/or Jack and remind them of these words, for they are too busy to read these long writings every day and the pressures are too great to hold attention through the whole of the writings. People are very much the same everywhere in that unless reference is directly personal, information is not attended. That is why I ask, specifically, for Mark—he studies, of necessity, all we send.

Friends, we are experiencing in the most exciting and important segment of ALL-TIME as you would recognize it. Don’t waste it—for the gift is so great as you watch the changing of the guard OF A PLANET AND THE SPECIES UPON HER. You pleaded for this opportunity, so please don’t miss it. (GCH)

Plea Bargaining: Notorious Trap

6/27/02—#1 (15-315)

RE: BEHOLD A PALE HORSE; TYRANNY IN THE COURTS—EVERYWHERE; HOLISTIC OR NATURAL HEALTH CARE (YOU CAN'T)

While we are totally frustrated with different equipment and time-consuming error upon error, let us remember that it is through errors that the most learning is brought forth in the correction and experience of such adventures. This is true of a computer program or a LIFE program.

You might want to ask why we would give attention to Bill Cooper's output? Because he has assembled in Behold A Pale Horse a good index for many of the things we have written about since before to the turn of the '90s decade, i.e., Protocols, "Silent weapons...", and several other topics. He has used different reference documents but the result is the same.

It is good to be able, readers, to refer to a source of information which allows for easy reference to keep check on "where you are" in the realization of that which has come to pass.

This is especially interesting to keep a list of "accomplishments" according to the Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion. Further, keep foremost the knowledge of the pronouncements of these very groups, by whatever the names might be that they CLAIM FOR THEMSELVES, to be in service to LUCIFER.

Lucifer is considered to be an alternative WORD for "Satan" (in the English language translation). This also REPRESENTS the "opposite" meaning of "God of Light" (goodness). This, in turn, is a simple definition to consider when making an effort to reduce the confusion of players.

I do not "CLAIM" to be anyone or anything—for I AM just as YOU ARE. I am in the service of "GOD" (of Creator Light) and therefore my "adversary" of necessity of meaning is Lucifer or Satan (the representation of darkness or, at the least, "evil" intent or practice). I AM JUDGING "NO ONE"! This is simply "IS" without trying to do Clinton's "what is is".

Example: Is it wrong to try to gain control through cornering gold? On the bare face of it, perhaps you might, from experience, say "Yes". Ah, but is it? NO, for there are key words here involved: "wrong", "try", "gain", "corner", "gold" and in fact each word needs definition in the point at issue and above, there is no point. SO, BE QUITE CAREFUL BEFORE CASTING ASPERSIONS ON ANYONE WHEN IT IS USUALLY "YOUR" PERCEPTION OR PERSPECTIVE WHICH IS IN FAULT.

Most people present evil without the least intention of doing so. Furthermore, to present good or "right" is totally without notice, for goodness presents balanced action in every instance. This does not mean that "good" won't be attacked—but it does mean that goodness will stand, ULTIMATELY, AS TRUTH. Today there is a massive controlling effort to manipulate and manage through force and within the LIE. Example: False testimony or declaration can be utilized against an innocent party simply by the non-rebuttal opportunity for the innocent to present TRUTH.

This is especially true in the judicial system as a rule by force is replacing the rule through honorable LAWS or Constitutional fundamentals. This is constantly being proven every day, everywhere, through plea bargaining and lack of credible representation.

A "jury" is of no longer much consequence, for a Judge can render whatever verdict desired through very careful "instruction" which simply reflects back the desired outcome. In Banana Republics (of which the Philippines is proving, every day that passes, to be) there is not even a jury with which to begin deliberations of "merit" of any "case".

Actually, it is no different ANYWHERE and most especially in the United States of America where you expect it to be otherwise.

Is this terrible, good, wrong, right...? Readers: It simply IS and that is attached to any definition appropriate to the "is" in point or on whose side you align self. The definition will be changed to suit the purpose of the ONE IN CONTROL.

BACK TO THE BASIC MESSAGE

I have no intention of starting again at pre-school and building from there, for THAT is not our purpose. We must function in our task with all that information necessary for the education to reach this point in the journey toward accomplishment of our goals. We have shared EVERYTHING—it is there for your taking. Because of that sharing we are now holding that which is necessary to accomplish our greater goals and THAT is particularly directed to the actual participants involved and now are on the front line of offering some ability to create "a better way", for living, than has come to exist in the narrow world of master and slave. Every action is considered as "good" or "bad" when the actual concept might better be "right" or "wrong" as an outcome which can also be considered as "positive" or "negative".

Example: TODAY there is movement in Africa to move out the White farmers from the lands. The nations are in famine already but guess what: The changeover comes before the harvest of the existing crops which will result in total loss of crops which are now, some of them, ready for harvest. Is this right, wrong, good, bad, positive or negative? IT CERTAINLY DEPENDS ON PERSPECTIVE AND PERCEPTION AND ON WHICH SIDE YOU ALIGN SELF. Moreover, most people elsewhere (out of Africa) couldn't care less because they have no knowledge, usually, of the events taking place.

A train wreck has little meaning to you personally unless YOU are on the train or someone dear to you is on it or it is blocking the way of something else pertaining directly TO YOU. However, it is on this very basis that an elite few CAN gain total control over the entire population of the globe itself.

A very good example of interesting dramas is underway in the Philippines. In this example it is said a leader of a terrorist group (also appointed as such through political declaration) is dead. Moreover, rewards (bounty) have been given—WITHOUT EVEN PRODUCING THE BODY. Well, there is a very good reason for this activity in which the local President Arroyo has called off any further search or reference to the matter. I can ask that you be given the reality which is also in print but shushed to the point of not interfering with the ongoing "take control" plans for the entire area. And, you can know, it is all tangled up with the U.S. AND THE CIA. CIA? Oh indeed.

The press, of course, is filled with the clown debacle, so it is easy to choose up one presentation from a long-time respected columnist as to the most valid content vs. just interesting dialogue.

To example:

[QUOTING The Philippine STAR, "Here's the Score", by Teodoro C. Benigno, Wed., June 26, 2002:]

PRODUCE THE CORPSE/
ECLEO, A HOMICIDAL NUT

Abu Sabaya is dead. So swear President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, the military, Defense Secretary Angelo Reyes, National Security Adviser Roilo Golez and, by gum, even U.S. President George W. Bush. Abu Sabaya is NOT dead. If he is, produce the body. So exclaim the multitudes of Filipinos who suspect—rightly or wrongly—they are being jobbed and taken for a roller-coaster ride. This columnist will go along with the multitudes of Filipinos. Until I see the corpse of Abu Sabaya with my very own eyes, I shall keep my counsel.

Dead or alive, Abu Sabaya was always a mystery to me.

Like Harry Houdini constantly cheating death's door, Abu Sabaya always eluded capture. Countless times there were when he was cornered—or so the military swore—or killed or fatally wounded, or fatally ill and on the verge of death. Or disappeared. Or consigned to oblivion, only to reappear again and again with that knavish half-smile on his face, tight black bonnet on his head, his trademark sunglasses, and a rogue's bearing that was the symbol of his leadership of Abu Sayyaf—half-human, half-snake, the very swashbuckler of evil.

And so myth and legend wrapped him in a cocoon that Abu Sabaya cultivated with methodical care. Stories cropped up that he was a mole actually of the military, perhaps of the CIA, and always, always that he was a double agent, working for Osama bin Laden and Uncle Sam. Wasn't it America that whipped up the Taliban to reality, armed it to the teeth, so it could fight and eventually repel the Soviet invasion? Wasn't bin Laden himself a spin-off of the Cold War, initially an ally of America? And then again, how could Abu Sayyaf ever escape that Lamitan hospital cordon many months ago when the military had the hospital surrounded, every escape route blocked?

I wish I could believe Brig. Gen. Donald Wurster, commander of the U.S. forces taking part in the Balikatan military exercises. I don't know how the general got into the act. Wurster was certainly not in the scene of battle June 21. He was far away. Nonetheless, he said, "I'll bet my month's paycheck on that" in defense of our military swearing to the high heavens Abu Sabaya is dead.

General, I would advise you to keep your mouth shut. Leave us Filipinos alone to decide whether this infamous bandit is really corpus delicti or not. This is none of your business. You and your U.S. combat soldiers had all the chances to nail Abu Sabaya—what with your over ballyhooed state-of-the-art weapons technology—but you didn't. You suffered losses, yes, but those were your Green Berets who died during the Chinook helicopter crash while Okinawa-bound. You came here to fight terrorism, but you haven't fought in a single actual battle until today. I find that singularly odd. And this writer too has a word for NSC's Roilo Golez who also shoots his mouth off quite often, and is an Annapolis (Navy) graduate. Pray tell me, sir, how come the Philippine Navy team that overwhelmed the pump boat of Abu Sayyaf in that sea siege June 21 didn't have any frogmen? They could have dived too with all their equipment to recover the body of Abu Sabaya. [H: Or at the least the OTHER TWO bodies supposedly overboard while all are still missing.]

That, I suppose, is the supreme irony.

In life, and perhaps in death, Abu Sabaya continues to mock us. If indeed he died, Fate intervened to deprive us of what the entire citizenry had relished, had salivated for. That his remains be brought to the public plaza of Lamitan, of Davao, any public plaza for that matter, better still to a catafalque at the Luneta. At his sight we would rage and scream, ball our fists, swear and rend the air with insults, curses and expletives, condemn Abu Sabaya to a journey to the Hades borne by giant black bats and winged baboons, black as his heart was black, pelt him with stones and insults, screech our heart's delight that at last this vermin, this unspeakable criminal, this big and bloated fart, was dead.

That is what the military cannot understand, the Angie Reyeses, the Roilo Golezes, yes the Donald Wusters. We need to be shown.

We spent years going after Abu Sayyaf, Abu Sabaya and before him Ghalib Andang (Cdr. Robot). They were years of clammy fear and frustration, the ASG holding the nation hostage to the whole world. They kidnapped for high ransom and killed. They beheaded hostages, crucified the innocent. They leered and spat at all of us. They became rich, stinking millionaires, some of them. They spurned the Koran for power and money. As Muslims, they were an unmitigated shame. And disgrace. Hell, I might as well disclose what I've known for a long time. They raped nurse Edilborah Yap, serially, raped her again and again, with either Abu Sabaya looking on in sadistic ecstasy or doing it himself, or for that matter was the chief rapist. [H: Sorry readers, but this is absolutely true and this is a reason she had to be murdered so that her tales would NEVER be told.]

And now without producing his dead body, Malacañang and the military would have us believe Abu Sabaya died from a fire, from bullets fired by the military? Oh, no, you can't get away that easy. Dredge that portion of the sea where reportedly he dived. Dredge it night and day, whatever the cost. And if you cannot find that body, or the shark that swallowed or devoured his body, then you cannot blame the multitudes for doubting your story. We want that body.

Only when we see Abu Sabaya's body can the nation exorcise its demons.

[END QUOTING]

I need not further comment on this matter except to say what are the following insults of today.

"Sabaya is dead because we say he is dead...!" "It is now time to celebrate 'this kill' and renew our commitment to blotting out terror." Ah, and so go the edicts handed DOWN to the people. "After all, even the U.S. has pronounced him dead." And again, kidding you not—THESE ARE THE EXACT WORDS. No matter where the man might be, it is a fact that the U.S. President has pronounced him "dead". Of course, he is still on the payroll, taxpayers. Remember that these prime and trained troublemaker leaders are protected at almost any cost and just as with bin Laden—the use is endless.

The whole of the drama is beyond our ability in time or space to share here and is also of little interest as remoteness dilution sets in as in: who cares? How much attention do you suppose the daily broker in New York pays to some remote little puppet in Siberia? YOU ARE A "GLOBAL COMMUNITY" WITHOUT ANY SUCH THING AS COMMUNITY AND BEYOND THAT FACT, THERE IS NO INTEREST WHATSOEVER REGARDING AS MUCH.

Most people in the US don't even give a rat's assets as to the impending CLOSURE of your NATIONAL PASSENGER RAILWAY.

Behold Hell in Arizona and ask yourselves how long you can have worse and worse year after year and still survive? Build again and again? After a while, with WHAT?

You keep waiting for a bridge or other buildings to go down to fit the terrorist's mode of terror? Who started those fires? YOU have forgotten how to even THINK! The fire season in the U.S. has not yet even gotten underway. What will you do when "it" is ALL gone?

I would like to turn to another topic now and that focus is at the request of our Daystar friends of LONG standing. The Bretons of West Virginia have given so much of themselves and shared unstintingly their information through "Healthwatchers Newsletter".

They have sent a special report (letter) along with their greetings with a note appended which reads: "We feel this is so important to get out in public. Is it the thing to note in CONTACT?"

It is the very type of thing upon which to focus. It is, however, difficult as our OWN beloved ones are coming under the jurisdiction of these courts which will be noted—even as we write. Worse in our case, the very cause of the complaints are through LIES FROM AND BY OUR PRIOR "PARTNERS". No, I do not take liberties in accusations—the reports are in and the investigators have published the interviews all the way over to the Ences now in Utah. Interesting? Oh yes indeed.

I would tell you, however, that young attorneys get eager to get "kills" on their belts and people become of no importance—only the scalp. However, in many instances, the Judges still act in some wisdom—especially when they see a VERY EXPENSIVE case pending with only expensive outgo and little way to HONORABLY railroad the victim. The point is that your judicial system is totally run amok and there is very little you can do about it when fallen victim to the frame-ups and set-ups.

The following is a grand example so I ask you to please pay careful attention, for THIS is to what level you have slipped, my friends.

[QUOTING a letter to Greta Van Susteren of Fox News. Offered in Media Bypass, June 2002. "Law":]

An open letter to Greta Van Susteren of Fox News' "On the Record"
(By Pamela Gaston)

[Pamela Gaston. A Voice For Children, Fifth Amendment Coalition of Oregon.

P.O. Box 132, Mt. Angel, Oregon 97362]

Dear Greta Van Susteren,

Rep. Traficant did not get a fair trial because there are no courts of constitutional judicial due process any more. He went into the court like normal humans think—that if you are reasonable, you will get through to a jury, that your facts will come out, you will be able to make your case, and you live in America so things will go right. You know you have been victimized, you know corrupted processes are being used against you, and you can prove it, once the pattern is seen by the jury.

Wrong.

As Traficant found out, you don't get your witnesses, you don't get to tell your side to the jury, you are tricked and threatened into self-incrimination, then in the end the judge instructs the jury anyway, so there is no way they can say "not guilty". Juries will do EXACTLY as they are instructed by the judge.

Thank you for giving a voice to this core issue that focuses on the process being used to destroy countless more people every day. Everything that is taken from people happens in a court. Wars and presidents end up before judges, more recently now international courts being formed, involving the U.S. directly and more than most people are aware. They are seizing our children, property, rights, allodial titles, inheritances, posterity—our very substance without "due process", in violation of the Fifth Amendment of the Bill of Rights.

The biggest problem is that the state is never forced to uphold its burden of proof. [H: In plea bargain, prior to any indictment, a "victim" is never allowed to even see the evidence against them or who accused them. Then the terrorizing starts with "charged by information". There is no cross investigation, OR ANY INVESTIGATION, of the accusing parties and that can only come in TRIAL. If there is no trial—a victim NEVER is allowed to see the evidence, the interviews or in any way rebut ANY INFORMATION. With “Diane”, however, the card house collapsed on the “insiders” and the facts were revealed and the cats are out of the proverbial bags which will, at the least, allow Diane to later go in Civil charges against the assassins. LIES WILL EVENTUALLY OUT, MY FRIENDS.] People can never get them to admit or acknowledge, much less allow redress, that they have acted unlawfully against us. Attorneys do not get them to admit, usually plea bargains involve no admission of guilt, no prosecutions against the state or the court, and they go on to violate the next person. When caught, just like the pedophile priests in the news right now, they just move them and cover up the liability.

There is a case right now about to go to trial against two parents who “repossessed” their children from an out-of-control agency. The only important point in the whole case is that the state has never been forced to prove they took the children lawfully, and there has never been a trial on why the children were taken because the evidence is such fraud. But with attorneys, this will all never come out, compromises will be made, and no attorney is allowed to—is disbarred for/cannot/will not—confront the statutes in a courtroom, are bound by statutes in these administrative tribunals, and will not risk their careers to defend the peoples’ constitutional rights.

We have seen the Attorney General opinion here in Oregon that says a juvenile court, once they take the children in, say, “a quasi judicial administrative proceeding”; “judge” Fred Avera in 1999 said, “You are in a juvenile court—there are no charges, there are no defendants, there is no jury.”

We have watched an agenda over the last 10 years in Oregon being federally implemented, a corporate socialist legislative scheme that is overriding our constitutional protections. The courts now are administrative, only about money “interest”, and not about human rights anymore. There is no standard of evidence, hearsay is allowed, no burden of proof is placed upon the state. Absolute lies are upheld, and you are denied the ability to dispute them.

Traficant tried to plead an affirmative defense, as is his absolute right, but was blocked by the judge. We successfully pled an affirmative defense in April 1998, whereby we proved that the judges, attorneys, caseworkers, officials, etc., in Oregon are guilty of racketeering and conspiracy, black-market child-selling, pedophilia and pornography from within their state agency and protecting their network in the courts. There is a lot more on this case at our Website www.avoiceforchildren.com.

Ever since we successfully supported our burden of proof in that affirmative defense, the courts have retaliated and not allowed us anything but fraud, rushed judgments and instructed verdicts.

Suffice it to say, though, We the People are surprised to learn that we do not have constitutional courts; the Bar and the government are fully knowing over the past 100 years, and especially the past 10 years, what they were setting up. Oregon has been called the Pioneer Police State since 1989. This new bar/legislatively created court system is called Justice 2020, courts of arbitration and mediation.

We have been through two jury trials in the last two months in Oregon that were so criminal in deprivation of rights as to be the Mad Hatters Tea Party.

Here are some bare facts from those two most recent trials and the level of fraud that is being conducted openly now:

- * You don’t get any of your witnesses.
- * You don’t get to ask the questions you need to of the state witnesses. Often, if they appear at all, they sit silent and the District Attorney objects to every question and no questions are answered at all—the judge upholds this.
- * No questions of public right to know are allowed of public officials and officers.
- * Your subpoenas are all quashed, necessary adverse witnesses for you to have credible testimony on the record of your facts.
- * You are denied all exhibits to go before the jury.
- * You are denied all relevant testimony heard before the jury.
- * You are arrested for asking if the judge had a constitutional oath.
- * You are arrested for insisting on speaking when outright lies are being put in the record by the other side.
- * You are blocked from arguing the affirmative defense, to bring in the motive and intent.
- * You are blocked from showing the jury anything of the retaliation and how many events of many actors and officers go together so they can see it.
- * The state brings in stacks of documents before the jury that no one has seen, have not been verified, and you have no idea what they are.
- * You don’t get to know when you ask and you don’t get to ask the District Attorney under oath to verify anything he is saying or doing.
- * You are convicted on the testimony of ONE person and NO evidence.
- * You are thrown out of your own jury trial, put in a separate room, where the trial continues and the jury cannot hear you. You are not present and cannot object—you are held in a room with six sheriffs and none of your supporters are allowed to come in.
- * You are convicted on the instructions of the judge using blatantly forged judicial orders, fraudulent and manufactured “evidence”, all attorney façade and color of law, unlawful process.
- * The state does not even have to prove that papers were served and they steal your home.
- * The state and multi agency and courts set up phony arrests and jury trials to get you out of your house and the state steals your home while you are in court and arrested in court to further insure you are not at the house when the SWAT team moved on it.
- * You don’t get to tell the jury anything or show them any evidence of the fraud and crimes of the state.
- * You challenge the false oath of the judge and he lies and says he has the lawful oath—you bring in the very false oath and file it—he convicts you anyway.
- * The state refuses to say you are in a constitutional court, nor will any judge disclose what jurisdiction you are in. (China? El Salvador? Afghanistan? World Court? In Oregon they call these “non-constitutional small world courts.”)
- * You are restricted in the courtroom by “motions in Limine”, filed by the state saying you cannot speak of certain things in the courtroom or will be found in contempt.

* Your counterclaims are dismissed without hearings and the court gives itself huge money judgments against you.

* You are thrown out of your own jury trial and the jury never meets you—the state manipulates the trial and the jury awards a confessed child pornographer a $500,000 judgment against you for printing the pornographers’ confessions in your newspaper and charging her in court for her crimes, the same facts that the jury in 1998 affirmed.

* You appeal and the court transcriber writes you and says your whole testimony is missing from the record because the tape machine was not operating properly.

* You are denied the video record of the trial by the same judge who for four years has maliciously attacked you and now has stolen your home.

* You find out they stole your car and destroyed your belongings too.

* Your appeal is dismissed without hearing.

* You are told you have to pay thousands of dollars for a transcript, then the court denies your waiver of fee, so the appeal cannot be heard and the court dismisses your appeal.

* Every writ to the legislature and Supreme court is dismissed without hearing.

* Federal court dismisses same facts without hearing—no injunctive relief.

* You find out in truth, there is not one human who will be accountable; all protect the corporate state/court interests only.

* You discover politicians play up the media are “tough on crime” knowing that the courts are not due process, and that people are not getting fair trials but railroaded automatically in a prison industry, all that exploit all they “help”.

This could go on, but that is plenty. We have personally lived every fact I just stated. When you are in a courtroom and these things happen, you and your court watchers are dumbfounded at the blatant fraud being conducted, yet you cannot do anything to stop it.

We have videotape records of a lot of this, four years of undisputed court records affirming every word. Please focus the intense heat of public scrutiny on these core issues, as the lies are not believed once they are seen in the light.

We have all been extremely deceived; this is a total paradigm shift for most people. They encounter a state worker or attorney or court for any reason and down into the rendering machine they go.

We have been A Voice For Children since 1997 and frequently we are called from any of the 50 states with identical scenarios—they are parents or grandparents, they have had some encounter with the child services, and family “courts”, they have trusted state attorneys or have paid attorneys from $60,000 to more than $100,000 and never got their kids back.

They have just been raped in a courtroom by something that “couldn’t have happened” but did—and that is when they hear about us. So that is where we meet them: in the pit of hell and the nightmare of their lives, which we are personally living as well.

We have written a book called Sui Juris: The Truth in the Record; A Process for the People to Access the Courts—IT TEACHES PEOPLE

ABOUT THEIR RIGHTS IN LAYMAN'S TERMS AND HOW TO MANEUVER IN THESE CORRUPTED PROCESSES. Mr. Traficant needs this book! Moreso, we all need to do as Traficant has done; we go in without attorneys as reasonable humans and insist on our protections in that court. It is all in the process, and they know most people do not understand this.

At this time, as Traficant found out, these protections are not in place. When enough of us know, and are outraged once we see it, we will start becoming reasonable again and holding corrupted people accountable.

Our main issue is the double standard, where the state and bar are held above the "law". No one is above the law. We have to take off their masks and sue them in their personal capacities, as humans, for their acts. The pretense that corporate fictions can own things, prosecute people and make claims against people is over.

We are paying a heavy price in Oregon but insisting on restoration of our Republic and People's Courts of Justice and constitutional judicial due process—the Law.

Thank you again for exposing this fraud.

Signed, Pamela Gaston

[END QUOTING]

I suppose you want my comments but I think it best to NOT make comments, for I might as well make enemies of prior friends. There are ways to handle these circumstances and causing total upset to the court is NOT ONE OF THEM. Moreover, once you make the court your enemy—YOU ARE GOING TO LOSE FOREVER AFTER. I also would trust that the book suggested has better information than was practiced by this particular party in the courtroom. You do better to confront and curse God, my good readers, than a Court Justice.

A little aside story: Doris was once in the courtroom and yea, before the bench waiting with an attorney. Something happened and the lawyer shushed her saying, "Shuhh, this is God." Doris VERY quietly whispered back, "No, this is NOT God; he is an elected servant of the people." THAT judge has worked for the next 13 years to make her pay for that error in judgment on her part and the cost has been dear indeed. Sometimes it is WISE to let the stupid King presume he is clothed though he be quite naked. How valuable can your work be if ye be in prison? Remember: GOD NEEDS PEOPLE TO LIVE, NOT DIE, FOR GOODNESS AND JUSTICE. MARTYRS ARE EXACTLY THAT: USUALLY QUITE DEAD.

You must recognize what has come to pass and then use wisdom in your actions so that you further a good cause instead of putting more barricades in the pathway.

Thank you and may we all grow in strength through wisdom and careful evaluation of our actions lest they come back to haunt us with great damage and remorseful regret for the moments of impulsive revenge for perceived wrongs. A black ego will usually best present as the brightest light you have ever witnessed and it will BLIND you to the moment.

RE: WHY DOES GOD LET BAD THINGS HAPPEN TO GOOD PEOPLE? TAKE A CLOSER LOOK, YOU MISS THE BEST PART WITH YOUR NARROW VISION

TAKE ANOTHER LOOK AT DIANE'S COURT CIRCUMSTANCES

Hatonn—Hearts may well be heavy today as inconvenience looms ahead for Diane and Jack—BUT COULD IT BE WORSE?

Yes, infinitely worse. Remember, you who have kept up with the YEARS of harassment, the charges started off to be "Felony" crimes as "theoretically" charged. THERE WERE NEVER "CHARGES" MADE, THERE WAS NO INDICTMENT OR EVEN PROPOSAL OF WRONGDOING. THERE WERE NO GRAND JURY HEARINGS—THERE WAS NO CASE!

Diane pled guilty to putting a brochure into an envelope, sealing it, addressing it and licking the stamps for mailing. It is unknown as to whether or not she actually dropped the envelopes into the mail. This caused a reduction in the possible "bargain" arrangement to even drop the charges to minor misdemeanor and MINIMUM consequences. This minimum was to have been NO FINE, NO DETENTION, AND PERHAPS A PERIOD OF A YEAR OF PROBATION TO ENSURE THAT THERE WOULD BE NO FURTHER OFFERING OF ANYTHING WHICH COULD REMOTELY BE INTERPRETED AS "NEW MEDICINES" AND NO CLAIMS OF CURES, ETC.

Then "fate" took over as the days of finalizing paperwork took place. The questions asked and which were required answering were presented. Diane couldn't get the attorney to return her calls and had to interpret the questions to which she honestly responded. BAD DEAL. The Federal lawyers had to cover their assets and the "threats" got heavier and heavier until Diane finally decided to just ask for a trial and a public defender. Ah but that is not good either, in the courts of oppression.

I suggest right here those people who gave spurious interviews might well get very nervous, for they are now guilty of offering false information, speculation and hearsay, and very definitely are in the spotlight of actually being involved in their own shady dealings. Interesting that Diane might well have received a sentence on Monday but the ones accusing will come under criminal investigation for lying to Federal agents. However, after looking at the circumstances and discussing alternatives, it was decided the better part of intelligence was to follow through with the plea-bargain and eventually pay $10,000 in fines than over a $100,000 in legal costs. NO, I JEST NOT. The going demand UP TOP for counsel was another retainer of $40,000 (down from $50,000) plus costs of the litigation itself.

Why? Because the probation investigator had decided that even though she had not even considered food for the children—that Diane would NOT qualify for a court-appointed counsel. So, even that too would have to be confronted in court to well more and in access of $10,000. IT IS NOT A NICE WORLD, READERS.

Obviously, the best way to go for an individual in such circumstances is hold and wait until this all shakes out clearly and pursue CIVIL causes of action against the perpetrators [MM: A gleeful prospect, indeed!!!] who stand guilty of presenting FALSE INFORMATION.

By accepting the closure of this segment of the court problem, but because of the plea bungle, the information was, of necessity, PRESENTED BY THE COURT.

THIS IS THE SYSTEM, CITIZENS.

YES, WE WILL TAKE UP A FULL DISCUSSION AT SOME TIME BUT OUR TIME DOES NOT ALLOW FOR THAT AT THIS MOMENT. WE HAVE COME AGAINST HAVING TO CONFRONT THE ENTIRE JUDICIAL "SYSTEM" HERE IN THIS DOORYARD.

This refers NO reference to our program called GAIA or "Global" but the fact that because of the rulings of years of court decisions that lands have been used without clear titles, the nation is basically, UNDER THE LAWS, incredibly entangled in such a mass of tangled knots as to astound even the Satanic elves.

No matter what is now required it is better than what was planned by the miscreants manipulating EVEN THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE with their conjured lies and disinformation. AH BUT: NOW WE KNOW WHO, WHAT AND CERTAINLY SOME OF THE "WHY'S" OF THE GAME PLAYERS. You would NOT have gotten that information had the court program not gone EXACTLY as it is.

Interestingly enough, the very report of the agents themselves is included while in an actual court case all the rest can be demanded and must be provided in deposition or at trial. It is ever so much the better way to proceed.

KNOWING is half the battle, readers. It does not make it easier on the heart but it certainly gives foundation for future considerations.

Moreover, Rick Martin and Gail Irwin being in the courtroom to witness the so-expected “end of Diane” only proves their full involvement and conspiratorial participation in the “railroading” job—along with their associates.

In fact, the “Martin-Cortright” duo was really quite lucky that Diane chose to go with the plea. Otherwise, she could have turned about in front of the judge and named personally the people in the courtroom and they would have been HELD by the court for investigation—BOTH OF THEM. I’m sure, however, Diane would rather give them opportunity to spread the slander around sufficiently to enhance her own personal case against the perpetrators.

IF DIANE HAD CHANGED HER PLEA AND GONE TO TRIAL

If things had been different at upstart (which was kept totally secret), there could have been rebuttal which would have shut down the case. That, however, had to happen on its own—but the next lies that were sent in as “affidavits” from “someone???” with full access to computers did their lies and deceit FOR PERSONAL REASONS OF THEIR OWN.

Many of the circumstances, even in personal relationships, have changed and some “couples” have even become estranged and are now fighting against one another—as in the Bilger situation where there is war between Mr. and Ms. over custody of the jointly-parented child. However, ALL of the parties can now be brought in to have depositions, witness testimony and certainly naming, in any civil actions—even though they have moved away to “safer” fields.

For instance, even in the long interview, by agents, with Martin who claimed to have come to Tehachapi because of “Ekkers”, there was a total absence of the FACT that Rick was office manager for years for George Green and did, in fact, receive the Overton gold packages which he turned over to Green. Is this also the controlling manipulation of Ekkers? Doris Ekker did not set foot in Green’s offices more than two to three times.

The “report” says that Rick came from “Senora” Arizona. Has anyone even heard of a “Senora” Arizona? This is especially interesting since Rick was in Sedona as was his Mother. Rick was a gardener at a group’s “headquarters” under Sister Thedra of something called A.S.S.K. It is assumed this is not longer a functioning group since Sister is deceased—however, that may well not be so. That was recognized even at the time as a “cult” of the Order of Melchezidec of “some” Emerald Cross in association with Sananda and Sanat Kumara. (The golden ray and the silver ray). You can check these out through Dr. Young and Mr. Latona of SPECTRUM.

I suggest, however, that they are so little informed as to even give you a response. Dr. Young files his correspondence in the “round file” unless it praises his level of intelligence as pleases him.

What is STRANGE, readers, is that Rick just “sort of” left all important information out of his interview. I would suggest that everyone consider the bones buried in the closets and which were never expected to see the light of day—NOW WAITING IN FEDERAL REPORTS WHICH WILL BE CLARIFIED.

What would be FOUND about Ekkers? Nothing that has not been beat to death—there is nothing hidden or even private nor has there been for some 15 years. THAT IS THE ASSET OF SHARING EVERYTHING RIGHT IN PUBLIC FORUM.

The interviewees were assured that their information would be kept secret along with their identities. Proves you just can’t trust your government when the chips are down. It would seem that there might just be a bit of reluctance to pay off the informants for a conviction in this case—because it dwindled to NOTHING without guilty “victims” of the liars.

No indeed, Diane did NOT LOSE on Monday but it will take a while for that realization to overtake her or for them to be able to pay the bills from this incredible seek-and-destroy game. And yes, this IS called a “CONSPIRACY” to damage.

Now, when you consider the problems confronting one, Kathy Ward, it gets far more serious—for it is now KNOWN that much was literally “thieved” from the office and it now stands to reasonable acceptance that that included money in cash as well as through bookkeeping manipulations. Kathy received loans which were assumed repaid. There was an incident where she actually forged Cort Christi’s signature on checks from Mr. Christi’s account and which, in turn, caused inability for her to do further business with that bank. Now, she claims she “tried to leave for five years” her employment with Ekkers? That is quite doubtful but I suggest that she be sent a bill for the return of five years of funds she received. We can identify the bill as “educational” loans and we will agree NOT TO ENTER CHARGES. How does that sound to everyone with inquiring minds?

Since Kathy was working only two mornings a week, if there were not other emergencies which took at least an average of one morning a week, at $500 per week that would be about $120,000. I would suggest that even if we let her off from additional charges for taking documents and entering false testimony that amount would still cover bills.

Since Kathy now has residency in the house in point from which she took the information, funds, etc., we can surmise that she is quite a fundamental functioning conspirator in this case.

We should add to that the damages and thefts of the “group” (conspirators) of major property from that location along with the loan taken of some $50,000 from Millers which went to pay funds to that same group personally and to which Millers demanded a “note” to be personally guaranteed by Ekkers. No thank you, although they did get a note.

It is also stated in those interviews that people were threatened and were written about in the paper should anyone “try to leave”. Say what? Repeated here: “We couldn’t get people to leave” and since there was no group, even called “cult”, this bears demand for full explanation regarding false information.

Even Ence came through George Green and that was more costly to everyone than Green himself, as Mr. Ence ALSO left out the real information regarding himself and the farm. What selective memory?!

It is certainly quite obvious why this brood of vulture chicks would declare that one of the Ekkers had Alzheimer’s and the other Multiple Sclerosis (or something worse). Sorry, memory is retained and to suggest that Kathy, for example, tried to leave for some five years is a bit much. The money borrowed from Millers was primarily to make sure Kathy didn’t miss a paycheck.

Do we write about these things? YES INDEED. How else are YOU going to get information YOU NEED in order to be discerning and have information? A LOT OF PEOPLE HAVE VESTED INTERESTS IN OUR SUCCESS, SO STOP PRETENDING TO NOT BE INTERESTED. IF YOU ARE A SUBSCRIBER, YOU MUST BE INTERESTED! THE HOPE OF THE MISCREANTS IS THAT WE WILL NOT SHARE AND HIDE THEIR LITTLE SECRETS. WELL, READERS, THESE SAME PEOPLE HAVE ALL BUT DESTROYED YOUR INTERESTS AS RELATED TO ANYTHING WE HAVE OFFERED OR PRESENTED AS WELL AS THAT WHICH IS COMING INTO BEING THROUGH OUR CONSTANT AND CONTINUING LABORS.

Wouldn’t Satan be happy if these delinquents would have caused us to just roll over and be dead? IT ISN’T GOING TO HAPPEN!

Why do I keep reminding you of this fact?

Because YOU who are involved are interested and do have a right and reason to KNOW everything there is to be shared about this job. YOU are involved and should Ekkers have to quit for any reason, it would be all but impossible to make up the lost work—BUT, it no longer would be actually impossible, just a major cost in time and assets to take up the slack while new parties take over the helm.

But how can you find the missing accusers?

Through the court when the time is appropriate. Kathy, of course, is easy to find for she is in the house that is still LEGALLY Ekkers’ address. Life just gets more and more interesting doesn’t it? Just try 21512 Adam Drive, Tehachapi, CA 93561.

And, how IS your day?

By the way, readers, as some of you ask why we would write these things and upset the “opposition”. Why the question? I would suppose, in a real and right world, those particular people would not get this paper nor would they be reading it! Don’t YOU find that even more interesting in that we use our own paper to INFORM our opposition? They sneak the paper but read it far more carefully than any subscriber anywhere.

Therefore, you can consider this an open letter to those who have chosen to present as being our “enemies”.

Doris Ekker has been accused and blamed for everything from colloidalizing to making punch. NO, Doris Ekker manufactured NO PRODUCT, sold

NOTHING and received no income or payment for anything, including products OR writings. How does that make you feel for a seeming lifetime of work only to be accused of actual criminal activities?

So, friends, it is a hard few days while we look at what is happening, for what goes on at the most tiny circle is that which is devouring and taking-over your world. We have not shared the full documentation on this “Diane” case to all readers because it was ongoing. We can get around to it now that it has reached a “sort-of” conclusion at least to the sentencing. “That” case is over but ties Diane to no rights as a citizen for some five years as she is ordered to be available for search, seizure of property, search and seizure without warrants of her home and any vehicle or her person.

She can go right back to work in a distributing capacity but must know ALL of the regulations as to questionable product and frankly, it just isn’t worth it.

The “land of the free”? Forget it. Home of the brave? Yes indeed, for it certainly does require bravery just to survive—and that only includes your friends and partners.

We, frankly, have no problems with the NEW WORLD ORDER and neither do we have problems with the ones EXPECTED to be our adversaries. Our attacks have been from the very greedy parasites who have fed off our very bodies and production. THAT, people, is what will destroy you while you think it to be the Big Bad Boys. No, you destroy yourselves from within. THIS is the “shame” of mankind. And oh yes, GOD ALLOWS—while HE also allows the return unto sender of actions against another. So be it. Remember, please, that the opposite of “pride” is not “humility” but rather, it is “shame”. Ego feeds not on righteousness but on that which presents as pleasing unto itself. If you take “pride” and joy in the misery of another, especially if YOU HAVE PRESENTED THAT MISERY—shame is doubled.

More important to this point is that if you have been damaged and yet find no hate or wish for vengeance upon the offender’s in return—YOU HAVE ARRIVED AT GOODNESS. You have not just “grown”; you have “become”. Then, if you can look upon that adversary without any hate or malice, you have rendered the culprit totally helpless. In other words: “who cares?”

The point is for God’s adversary to stop this particular mission at ALL COSTS to any of the adversary’s team players and servants. When they are no longer useful, they will be thrown aside as into the garbage heap. Each individual does the sorting of self and that has ever been so. Moreover, the debris is being cleared out of our pathway, friends, and the circle remaining is getting very much larger while pulling in remarkable allies and assets. The sorting had to be accomplished and hurtful as it may seem, it is much like your consideration of a cancer lump—it MUST be excised and YOU will learn to release that which is negative to your being and especially that which oppresses and offends in the putting-down of goodness. LET IT GO! LET IT

FEED UPON ITSELF. CUT OFF THE BLOOD IT SUCKS AND CALL ITS EVERY LIE WHEN IT PRESENTS. YOU SHALL NOT BE ALLOWED TO LONGER GIVE GOD’S GIFTS UNTO THE BEAST. THE BEAST OF DARKNESS CANNOT ABIDE THE LIGHT AND THEREIN LAYS THE WHOLE OF IT. THE VERY LIES COMPEL YOU TO WITHER FROM WITHIN.

A good rule of thumb to remember is that GOD creates and what HE creates is good. Satan is the master counterfeiter.

GOD WINS, FRIENDS, SO YOU CAN REALIZE YOU SIMPLY AREN’T YET TO THE END OF THE GAME—ARE YOU? MOREOVER, YOU CAN’T ALWAYS MEASURE THE WIN FOR THE BLINDING MISPERCEPTIONS THAT SOMEHOW THINGS ARE NOT SEEMING TO GO WELL (OR, AS YOU PREFER IT TO PRESENT). LEAVE THE OUTCOME IN GOD’S HANDS AND IT SHALL ALWAYS CONCLUDE IN THE PERFECTION ENTRUSTED UNTO HIM.

When you are ready it will come to pass that you will recognize your position and CREATE that outcome desired in positive growth. Until this realization becomes your reality you will dance with the counterfeit fabrications. It is called the experience of human unfolding. By the way, it is fine to ask “why?” Where you get bogged in the swamp is feeling, somehow, that you must blame God for your circumstance if you perceive it to be negative to self. Asking “why” often brings resolution if you ask expecting to get an answer. The call compels an answer. Usually, however, the answer is not what you expect and therefore goes unnoticed.

You have to ASK the questions, students of life, or you get no answers from your speculations and assumed wounds. Meanwhile, allow the tempest to quiet. Next, look at the “cards” dealt you and check out possibilities—starting with the blessings—and you may well find you have a far better “hand” than you at first realized. Look at the worst and then go LIVE the “best”. Give opportunity to each experience and you will find diamonds in your pathway where and when least expected. You will find that which changes lives while, except for “that experience” mandated by life itself in all its mysteries, you would have missed. THAT is why I always remind you to be patient and live each experience, each introduction, each opportunity AND YES, EACH POSSIBILITY—FOR IT IS “YOU” WHO WILL REALIZE “YOUR” TRUTH. It cannot be otherwise.

Life is a moving, passing collage of perceptions. The wonderful moments pass, as do the terrible moments. I remind you that I certainly do know that the wonderful moments pass ever so much more quickly than those painful encounters. But, likewise in consideration, the MOST IS LEARNED FROM THE STRUGGLES THROUGH THE TOUGHER TIMES. It is from those “tough times” that “tough people” surpass their own expectations of strength and experience. It is also from those moments that we confront that which we really ARE. Can you look upon your enemy and feel compassion or pity?

It is a wondrous thing to realize that the answer is, comfortably, “yes”. In that moment you have rendered your enemy defeated. You may well not even feel you have “won”, but you have. It is not necessarily the circumstances confronted that shapes a person—it is HOW YOU HANDLE CIRCUMSTANCE AS THEY PRESENT AND HOW THEY PRESENT.

Do I mean by this that you should have some silly Pollyanna approach to everything in life? NO, NO AND NO. The point is to recognize the “wrongs”; confront them and MOVE ON.

Sometimes, readers, it is good for self to ignore a thing or a thrust. Example: If you know a nasty article is being written and published about you—DON’T READ IT. Or, read it, toss it and when asked about it your reply is “I didn’t see it”, OR, try “What a bag of trash.” The POINT of the hit is to HURT YOU. Why play games? A gift or a trick is only of reality IF you accept it. Otherwise there is nothing.

There are always lessons in every event or encounter. Sometimes it simply causes realization that caution is the better wisdom. Live your life in such a way that the deepest secret CAN be told—for surely enough, more often than not, it shall.

Thank you for allowing some sharing time, for distance often requires an inability to link hands in support of one another. Therefore, we link hearts and thoughts and share burdens which, in turn, gives strength to the whole of the chain. WHAT WE ARE EXPERIENCING WITH THE WITHDRAWAL OF FORMER “FRIENDS”, OR BETTER PUT, ASSOCIATES, IS A CLEARING OUT OF THE WEAKEST LINKS IN THE CHAIN ITSELF.

If you would be pulling a wagon with a chain and you have to remove weak links, do you weep and wail or do you repair, replace or simply shorten the chain and go on? You will either lose the wagon along with its load or you WILL go on, for those are your alternative choices. We are going to get our harvest to destination and that means we need those wagons which bear the products. How we reach that destination is the only real problem in point. There are MANY possibilities and therefore, sometimes we have to consider some rather interesting things along the way. “Quitting” is not an option we have accepted. Therefore, MIND in greater service, SHALL find the proper way to accomplishment.

I would like to give you a thought to ponder as I take leave: You cannot move about and remain on the top rung of a ladder if it be a simple ladder you lean against a wall. To move it you have to come back DOWN the ladder to progress the ladder itself. The point is to never be content to remain at the bottom of the ladder when the progression must be made from the top. Or, find those who will move the ladder while allowing self or others to stay the top. You cannot get a new roof built by self if all you do is stay on the ground. Take what IS and make it better.

God loves you, chelas, ABSOLUTELY. In that knowing, conditions are more than acceptable.

Hosts Of Heaven Are On The Way

(PART 4)

SKELETONS IN THE CLOSET

PHOENIX JOURNAL #13 (1990)

CHAPTER 5

REC #1 HATONN

FRI., MAR. 9, 1990 7:15 A.M. YEAR 3 DAY 205

WHAT YOU ARE AFRAID TO DO IS A CLEAR INDICATOR OF THE NEXT THING YOU NEED TO DO!

Hatonn present in the Light of the Radiant One. Let us pull the cloak of Light about us, for we are going to embark on subjects which are all but totally hidden from the masses. However, if you stick your head in the sand, one thing is for sure, you'll get your rear kicked.

Ones kick and pick and say, “God and His Hosts would not speak of these things!” What would God speak of? You ask for help in a sickened world—would you simply have Him speak of how it will be in the sweet by-and-by while your very existence collapses upon you? You see, things are not what they seem—they are what they are and excuses are your lack of faith in your own power. Ones form up attitudes and too often want justice—“just for me”. I would like to place a thought in your minds as you decide whether or not to step over the threshold and participate—some people try to softly tip-toe through life so that they can arrive at death safely! But, when it becomes more difficult to suffer than change—you will change! Life is what is coming and not that which has been—and it is, further, that which happens to you while you make other plans. So be it and let us discuss some of the wondrous things “man” has laid out for your journey in the coming segments you call time.

THE PHOENIX FALLS AND RISES

The current world society has been on the decline long enough to create an irrevocable worldwide situation. So, again, the Great Bird is in the process of immolation (to offer in sacrifice). This time, however, it will be quite different. This time after the awful retching and death within the fires, there will be no “Keeper of the Sun” to stir the descendants of survivors into starting wars, building cities and amassing wealth. This time the weeding out will be more thorough, and those surviving the purge will be a unique kind.

And where will you as a people be when it all comes down and you find that you have been duped? Would you not have instructions and truth? Though rendered impotent, remaining will be those who still cling to false gods. But the Remnant will have a King. He will be the Mighty Messiah, brothers—for that is what this journey is all about! He will guard and guide His people; wars, the vehicle by which tremendous fortunes are made and the kind of progress leading to decay and eventual doom, will have ceased, never again to blight and destroy.

And with no impingement nor attack intended upon any one, we must discuss that which is coming forth in difference and opposition unto that which we are laying forth for your consideration.

CAN YOU “SIDE-STEP”?

Again, I must name labels, for there are the ones going about on lecture circuits pronouncing great knowledge and erroneous conclusions. Attempting to avert that which their queasy guts tell them is inevitable, top minions of Earth's heathen gods flail about in a sea of confusion, indecision and calamitous situations. Wittingly or unwittingly, men/women like Cooper, Lear, Stevens, Friedman, Girard, DeMar, Oribello, and “Commander X” as well as Crockett and Beckley, Howe and Goodman and so forth, conceal the fact that drawing attention from exploding events, mingled with enough truth to create credibility, their story clearly points to the cupidity and cleverness of the plotters. What could you do about it if all these half-century-old tales are true? Some are truth! Well, the conspirators depend on these ones to sell you on the idea of doing nothing to change of your plight.

Just as it behooved the occult leaders of the great new American nation to rid themselves of the inscrutable Redman as quickly as possible—and by any means necessary—so do the facets of the Conspiracy need to get rid of all “thinking” men of all colors and creeds.

The binding thread of their culture, the presence of the well-concealed portals and much of the mystery of the fearsome world beneath and within your Mother planet has been known by Indians throughout North America and into and about all of the Americas—actually, throughout the “uncivilized” world—“civilized”, of course, by the barbarians called the Elite.

Strange indeed, considering the urgency of the time and the need to know, it turns out to be Caucasians of European descent revealing truths known by the Redman for unnumbered generations. Lying propoganda has turned the Redman against the Whiteman, yet the feeling of the average White for the Indian is one of admiration and awe, understanding and sympathy—but this is lost in the burial by the Conspiracy. If you think the “Fairskined” has not also been abused and disenfranchised—you had better look again. Well, shake in your boots a little more—the Redman is ready to write the truth of it—SOON!

PIG IRON AND GOLD!

Ed DeMar made great, great sport of Oberli and what he called the “Pig Iron Fiasco”. That story is too ridiculous to even be discussed; however, there is a subject right here and now which will be discussed.

There is a lot of gold and other metals of far more value floating about and everyone wants it—and will stop at nothing to get it. It is the treasure of Atlantis which they covet. They have no idea what it is they really want and as is usually true in the greedy aspect of human—the point is missed and the more valuable of the various substances is missed in the ever continuing desire to grab the gold.

In the mid-70s a very large amount of gold somehow came into the hands of a tainted bunch of scoundrels—billions and billions of dollars in value. This was a portion of the Atlantis cache stored underground prior to the sinking of the continent. The information was wheedled out of the Indians and the tunnel system was penetrated (and this was just in the Ozark mountain range—small compared to other placements).

Today's conspirators want the gold of Atlantis, for it is the world's number one conductor of electricity; therefore its value as the agent best able to make the most sophisticated electronic inventions tick, outstrips even its value as a medium of exchange.

It is quite well known by all the Elite conspirators that Earth planet is indeed, doomed—the leaders of the world are fully aware of that status—'tis only you the people who are lied to about it. So, what is their point regarding the gold? It has nothing to do with Earth but everything to do with other planets in your system, such as the Moon, Mercury, Mars, Venus—where they have been hauling gold off Earth for years.

Well, what of these little “tenders” of the gold? The “little greys” and the “little Moon-eyes” that the Indians knew at least 10,000 years ago? Well, surprise, little Earthian friends, they are guardians of the sacred treasures from the elder continents and keepers of the sacred speakings. At least most of them are and those that are not are equally ill-used. The plan is to spread terror among the populace and cause great confusion and then make an effort to “bomb them out of existence”. You can bet that your “MJ-12” revealers and projectors of a planted scenario have the guardians isolated and penned and are at war with these strange creatures whose scientific skills exceed man's most ambitious dreams. Well, most of them are “saints” from the cosmic spaces and let it be recognized—the Hosts of Heaven are on the way from deep space and the Elect need have no fear of these beings—WE ARE ON YOUR SIDE!

It is for this reason that so much underground testing is done of weapons which can be destructive at great depths into the Earth.

HONOR TO C.B. BAKER— ET HIS WRITINGS

I greatly honor Mr. Baker and I urge you to get his information. He publishes a review report prepared for Youth Action News. P.O. Box 312, Alexandria, Virginia 22313. Please make sure delivery information is placed in the Appendix of this Journal.

YOU THE PEOPLE

Before discussing the military impact of the covert “beam” systems, I want to lay a heavy load upon you as “you the people”. I have spoken on this subject in depth verbally and in prior Journals, but you must now pay great attention, for these are the weapons of choice set up to “take you out”.

I have previously suggested you might wish to obtain ELECTRIC POWER LINES AND CANCER, a compilation of research reports which can be gotten through Dr. Sutton’s FTIR. Also, THE BODY ELECTRIC, by Robert O. Becker, M.D. and Gary Selden who describe the effects of ELF (Extra Low Frequency) fields.

Now, I am not going to give you “lab results” to toy with—get the material and check it out—I am going to tell you how it IS!

Let us speak first of a simple 1-gauss magnetic field, which is the strength found near high-voltage power lines. In this field the memory and ability to do simple arithmetic declines. There is a substantial interruption of thought flow through the synapses within the brain. There is almost always hyperactivity and disturbed sleep patterns found in persons within these fields. The first perception is that of upgraded feeling of well-being and even euphoria. Even mild pulsed beams of this low frequency change brain cell “firing” rates. For relative measurement, that would be about the influence of a light bulb at 10-foot distance. This is most specifically the basis of Confusion Beam Weaponry.

The Soviets developed such Confusion Beam Systems and are now utilizing them in satellites and spy ships to influence the behavior of military personnel and airline crews while in flight. This ability, coupled with Cosmospheres (I will discuss later), can sink any ship or pull down any aircraft.

These fields are also found around underground power lines which are also related to increased suicide incidents. These weapons are widely used against submarine crews, surface ship crews and airline crews to induce slowed mental and motor reaction times and other “unalert” behavior experienced by your own U.S. sailors and officers. We shall speak of the U.S. Naval accident rate in 1989.

Microwave weapons are also widely in use. These are similar to the type utilized by the Soviets against the American Embassy in Moscow and can cause Microwave Sickness. The manifestations are chronic excitation of the sympathetic nervous system which is called “stress syndrome” and high blood pressure. This would also include headache, dizziness, eye pain, sleeplessness, irritability, anxiety, stomach distress, nervous tension and INABILITY TO CONCENTRATE!

U.S.S.R. MIND-CONTROL DEVICES

The KGB runs a mind-control program which is given unlimited funding. They have some of the world’s best minds to perfect a new ability to subdue and control the Western world. People in your sector simply are not prepared to think about these things, but you are already victims of widespread mind control—for you see, your government also has this ability.

However, the Soviets are a long way out in front of you and the techniques are already in functioning ability and use.

A person’s thinking processes can be scrambled and fear and confusion implanted at will. The thinking process can be “jammed” in the same manner that signals coming in from a radio transmitter can be jammed. By scrambling a targeted victim’s thinking, you can make the enemy commander do something totally contrary to his training and his loyalty to his own country. A patriot can easily and instantly be turned into a traitor—IT IS THE ULTIMATE IN THE PENETRATION OF A WESTERN GOVERNMENT BY A COMMUNIST POWER.

You ask, “Why haven’t we been told of these things?” You have! Back in Nikola’s (Tesla) time, he told you of these things and had an operational beam system. That warning has been continually updated to the point that the “tellers” are called crackpots and radicals. Therefore, few are aware of recent research establishing that brainwaves and other biological functions can be entrained from a distance, by magnetic waves of critical frequencies.

The psychotronic patterns/effects can be modulated onto electromagnetic signals, even of very low intensity, and still affect living systems because of the kindling effect; i.e. the psychotronic virtual state modulations are stripped off by a living system in the acupuncture points near the surface of the skin and introduced onto the human nervous system where they begin to superpose coherently as time passes. Such collections eventually reach the quantum threshold and observable physical changes result. Then, by modulating psychotronic signals onto electromagnetic carriers, visible light squelching can be overcome. The psychotronic modulations are then delivered to the biological targets through the light. Light photons pass through other photons without interaction except in the most extreme cases—and activate the acupuncture points. Acupuncture points form plexuses or groupings that are frequency-sensitive. Further, these plexuses are co-ordinated with and to specific body locations. By choice of frequency, one can therefore determine what part of the target’s body is affected. A Czech engineer, Robert Pavlita, has been perfecting psychotronic weapons for over thirty years and has developed two quite specific ones: One is effective at any distance and one is extremely and instantly effective for 320 kilometers. These weapons are capable of causing anything from powerful and uncontrolled emotional seizures to paralysis and death. Pavlita is still in the service of the Soviets!

COVERT ATTACKS ON WESTERN PERSONNEL

NASA engineers are a prime target of Soviet KGB zapping weapons. Recall a couple of years past, twenty-eight to thirty-five-year-old engineers at NASA were dropping dead for no apparent reason—at two-and-a-half times the sudden-death rate for the rest of Florida.

Over 22 researchers working in NATO countries on the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI)—which has long been a prime Soviet target for destruction—have met mysterious deaths, many of which offer evidence of Soviet mind-zapping weapons. These KGB zapping weapons have a very wide variety of application—from inducing cancer and sudden heart attacks in victims, to creating thoughts of depression and suicide. The alleged causes of some of these deaths include: “Death leap, decapitation, suffocation, asphyxiation, drug overdose, asphyxiation, auto accident, suffocation, auto accident, heart attack, electrocution, death leap, electrocution, electrocution, asphyxiation, auto accident, respectively—as reported in sequence.” Although it was recognized that some of these deaths were obviously the work of old-fashioned KGB/SS mobster methods, others are clearly the work of brain disorientation brought on by sophisticated mind-control/confusion devices. Even your U.S. Defense Department (FINALLY), is reviewing this amazing series of deaths.

And what will come out of the recent revolutions in Europe? The cancer deaths of Romanian exiles employed by Radio Free Europe are now under investigation by your FBI because informants have given information that this was the work of agents of the Communist Bucharest government—by directed beam waves! They were killed with a radiation device designed by Romania’s DIE intelligence service, with help from the Soviet KGB and sanctioned by the Global Conspiracy, also funded by same.

The radiation weapons were employed to prevent tracking. DIE has clandestinely killed dissidents for several years. The weapons are designed to kill its victims by simulating natural causes. The radiation dosage generates lethal forms of cancer—and what think you of your “cancer clusters”?

There is a radiation gun that kills people by giving them cancer and other diseases. The gun fires a burst of radiation that causes cellular mutations in the body. Sometimes these mutations lead to the development of cancer within weeks... shades of Mr. Casey? What of the Shah? And how about Marcos? Which do you think “they” will use on Noriega? In some instances, the cancer may not show up for several years. That little toy gun is widely used on prisoners and an entire citizenry in Afghanistan.

The human brain has various rhythmic waves which represent what is called envelope pulsations of the entire electrical system. It is not, however, the electromagnetic force fields represented by these pulsations which are important: It is the summed-zero (prana, and now called scalar) patterning of the entire complex of neuron firings, which represents the real activity of the brain, and represents its thoughts and emotions. Dr. Tesla has already covered quite a bit of this very pertinent information in a prior Journal.

The human brain rhythms are riding along relatively entrained resonance waves of the natural resonance of the Earth’s magnetic field. All the patterning of the brain is grouped together into giant overall orders, and one or more of these is normally synchronized to your natural environment.

If a varying magnetic signal of extremely low frequency (ELF), of say 10 hertz, bombards the brain with greater power than the Earth’s magnetic field, it is possible for the brain’s rhythm to be “forcibly entrained” to synchronize with that signal, rather than with the normal resonance. Scientists on your placement refer to this as “Shumann resonance”. If a large number of brains are forcibly entrained to such a signal—and the signal is artificial—then a master coherent phasing of all the brains to the transmitted signal has been accomplished.

That can be utilized, and is utilized, by anyone in control of the system. A lot of to-do about the Woodpecker signals (a Tesla system) is taking place and rightfully so. It is utilized widely by the Soviet Union presently—more so than by your own Conspirators at this time. These Woodpecker signals have frequently been detected with up to 16 carriers, each with a 10-Hertz modulation, and with all the 10-Hertz modulations in phase. At times, the system signals have shown 16 carrier frequencies which contain the same 10-Hertz modulation, and which are all kept coherently sync-locked. If those signals and the modulations are strong enough, the brains in the targeted area demodulate the 10-Hertz signal and phase-lock to it.

The genetic code of the human brain has been broken and now exists the ability to implant thoughts, emotions, visions, etc. The proper signals can now simply be recorded and utilized for specific thought transformation from “human guinea pigs”, using scalar technology and instrumentation. They can then be tailored onto the carriers, such as the Woodpecker system, and used as a means to affect specific areas and functions of the brain—the targets can be specific indeed.

Understand this: The brain has a most unique characteristic. If a signal arises from inside itself, it interprets that it, itself, originated the signal. Thus, actions can be engendered in masses of human beings.

The Soviets frequently broadcast pulses at 6.66 PULSES PER SECOND (HERTZ) WHICH IS THE PRECISE FREQUENCY THAT IMPARTS A BOUYANT FEELING IN SENSITIVE RECIPIENTS. AN EXCESS DOSE OF 6.66 PULSES PER SECOND WILL GIVE RISE TO A SLOWING HEART BEAT, NAUSEA, HEART ARRHYTHMIAS AND CARDIAC ARREST.

You might well pay attention, for this is a prime signal of the “ending times” as predicted in Revelation 13. 666 is the Mark of the Beast that is to be implanted on the hands or in the forehead. That little beastie that came up out of the Earth had two horns like a lamb and he spake like a dragon—etc. Well, the Woodpecker signals have two separate components, the high frequency part goes into the ionosphere and is reflected off of the Earth-ionosphere cavity and bounces back to Earth—from the direction of heaven. The second part of the transmissions involve ELF signals that go down through the ground and then come up out of the Earth at the targeted area. The little beastie “maketh fire to come down from heaven on Earth in the sight of men”.

Your human electromagnetic nervous systems also have your own software. It has special storage media contained in its brain, its cells, and its genetic material, and within its actual nucleons. All of these storage media are continually telecommunicating via electromagnetic means. You are what each of you is, and is largely what you have experienced, felt, thought, and performed through action. Your whole functioning conscious system has been evolved by your experience, and it continues to be “you” by means of continual reference to the record base. Well, the record base can now be altered via electromagnetic manipulation and means. BROTHERS, A TOTALLY NEW, AND ULTIMATE, FORM OF SLAVERY HAS EMERGED AND IS BEING STRUCTURED RIGHT NOW IN A MASSIVE PLAN FOR UTILIZATION.

The electromagnetic fields act directly on the central nervous system, bypassing the known sense organs. There are already identified five separate resonating systems in the human body: in the heart and aorta, the skull, the third and lateral ventricles, the sensory cortex and in each hemisphere of the brain, WHERE PULSATING MAGNETIC FIELDS OF OPPOSITE POLARITIES ARE SET UP, THESE BEING VERY SENSITIVE TO ENVIRONMENTAL FIELDS and providing a mechanism by which the brain picks up information from the environment through resonant feedback—simple indeed to impact those resonating systems. With deliberately constructed electromagnetic energy, any or all of the conscious/subconscious portions of the mind can be available for engineering and control and/or change. So be it.

Dharma, allow us to pause for respite.

Hatonn to stand-by, thank you.

CHAPTER 6

REC #1 SANANDA

SUN., MAR. 11, 1990 8:00 A.M. YEAR 3 DAY 207

Esu Sananda to visit with you ones for a while. The path is filled with confusion and you are not given to see. It is to insure your security that causes you ones of my faculty to be kept in the “semi-knowing”. You shall prevail in the challenge, for man, armed with truth, can come into his own inheritance and march unto his goal. You ones who are in the writing and printing of the Word are experiencing the efforts to stop you—even unto the most absurd of manners. This is not of psychic fortune-telling—ye will make of your own fortunes and ye can be in the fore-knowing if ye will but face what it is ye seek and do. No more and no less.

Ones who have been in communication with astral beings are finding, very often, that the beings were not truly of the Lighted Realms but rather, perpetuators of the false myths. These ones are compelled to do all in their power to dissuade you from your work. As the example with the dear ones from New Mexico. It does not work well to simply denounce—that has proven to gain even more attention to the truth—so, let us stop the writer, is the next (as well as the first) thrust.

As in the instance with the effort at rest and separation from the resource of truth—i.e., sever communications for fourteen days at the advice of some “unknown” entity who calls himself a Master. These energies already know you receive from God and THE Master Teacher, so who would have authority to require you to speak not with us? The hope is to pull down confidence within your conscious selves that your contacts are not valid. The facts are, however, that if anyone suggests such a thing—you can be quite positive that your resources are indeed truth and valid—and the thrust is to cause you to turn away in doubts.

As the truth becomes more similar to super science fiction, you ones will become more questioning of your own sense of disbelief—therefore, you must have come into your foundation of stability upon the rock, which I am, that you do not break in the confrontation of truth.

I am most humbly grateful for the participation of ones who share the beginning journey with resources upon which the foundation of our work can be begun. I give great appreciation unto one who has allowed the setting up of the institute which can be the heartcell of our work and the receiving placement of the Journal's rewards to be distributed in ever widening circles. It will allow ones who hold the “keys” of knowledge regarding apparatus to begin to function again, in properness.

The projects already planned shall find fruition, for it must come to be in its proper sequence—for we plan no communes for ones to sit and twiddle and indulge selfish “me-ness”. Rewards shall be great and sharing shall be the central focus but not as other “communes” have structured the socio-political systems. We are about our Father’s work and the system must function in a most human physical world. To mentally dwell with God is indeed fine—but you ones tend to forget—God dwells within thee! That means that as long as you dwell in the human format—God must also function in the physical format, for that is His chosen experience.

You need not concern yourselves with the building of anything in the etheric realms—there are billions of energies who construct in perfection in the etheric planes. Why would you appoint yourselves in the density of physical format to presume to build in realms of your total ignorance? You must build and perform in action to impact and requalify the truth of your own experience—in a most physical manifestation. It is through your works upon your own placement that determines your progress through the schools of perceived passage of soul journey.

Beware of those who preach “mystery schools” and “having keys to the magic or mystery realms”—God is no secret and God does not give keys unto a selected few—he gives forth and those, who are willing, pick up of the key and open the locks. You have mastered life when the “how-tos” are irrelevant. You will move forward and the “how” will become evident, but you must be in motion lest the goal be too big or too distant.

Beware of all “secret” so-called truths, given only unto the few—for you must realize, chelas, that the “few” have given their own wishes and desires unto self that they might hold of their lofty positions as self-proclaimed. This is why you do not know of this scribe—there are no secrets and she holds them not unto herself but pens the words and they can then go forth unclouded by need for physical ego hoarding. All ones must come into balance with that which we give forth, for you have been trained by human ego projections upon you to be tended and ordered about, governed and manipulated by ones who have “assumed” their placement of power—for they have convinced you that you are not capable. Therefore, you do not study nor even object as your very “knowledge” and education capabilities are removed from you—you sit and wait for “them” to tell you what you must do—at the point of a gun. You forget that if you do not start of a journey, it is certain that you shall not arrive. Yes, making “no” decision is already having made a decision. And, giving your decision into the hands of another will not be an accepted “reason” at the point of “judgment” of YOUR journey. Excuses will not count when confronting thine own

God within on passage day! You will always get exactly that which you expect—good or bad, consciously or unconsciously. OTHERS CAN STOP YOU TEMPORARILY, ONLY YOU CAN DO OF IT PERMANENTLY! It is, however, indeed truth that most ones are willing to work, only if they can start at the top and work up! Little do they realize that from the willingness to start at the very bottom—they are already in achievement of the top.

Heed not those who try and try and try—trying and “effort at”, are not the same. Trying provides two excuses—an excuse for not doing and an excuse for not having. There are actually only two things which you have in life—“reasons” or “results”—reasons are most often excuses and therefore reasons are not counted in the ending—only the results; and you have no way to measure your success or failure according to the rule stick of God. If you hold back because somehow you feel constantly misled or mistreated, you must know that you are fully cooperating with the treatment and have given over control unto another to do that which they will with you. Further, if you worry constantly about that which might be and wonder and worry over that which might have been—you will ignore that which IS. To break out of your prison, you must first realize that you are incarcerated. The latter is the purpose of the Journals thus far—to show unto you that you are indeed, incarcerated, and begin to allow you to understand that you have the power to escape the bindings.

You can worry until the ending trumpet but you will have missed the point of experience—worry comes directly from the belief that you are powerless instead of all-powerful. If you grow into maturity, then you will have come into the realization that you are no longer being deceived nor taken in by one’s self. You will come into honesty with self for the sake and morality of honesty and not because honesty is the “best policy”, for if you base honesty upon being the best policy—then your honesty is corrupt. If you worship at another’s truth, then you shall always be separated from the glory of self wherein God dwells. Harken unto the ones who share truth and show the way—pay not heed to those who tell you it IS the way through anything other than the glorious self. The Laws of God and The Creation are perfection; therefore, if you abide by those laws, ye shall have perfection, for God is within—not without—and therefore truth is brought into balance from within—not without! Listen to teachings always from within thine own heartcell, for another’s truth is his—only that which is yours—is yours! YOU ARE THE ONLY TEACHER YOU WILL EVER HAVE—PONDER THE TRUTH OF IT. If you do not know what direction to take, you have not acknowledged where you are!

Since YOU are the cause of everything that happens to you—be most careful of that which you cause, for in fact, there is no actual right or wrong—only consequences. You can have everything in life that you want—if you will help enough other people get that which they want. At any time in your journey that you care not for the games people play—turn away and make up thine own games—for the winning or losing will be yours to hold, not another’s. Strange things occur during a journey of truth unto balanced passage; one is to realize that you have no choice but to feel what you are feeling—the choice comes in changing the mind regarding it. If you have lived to simply make yourself important—notice how unimportant you have actually become!

If your life is not working the way you perceive you want it to be—look carefully and you will see that you are lying. There are but three kinds of people in the ending; those who make things happen, those who simply watch things happen—and the ones who haven’t the slightest idea what is happening. Learn that which is truly happening and you can change of it. As you go about thine searching be cautious indeed, for if you think something outside of yourself is the cause of your problems, you will err in looking outside of yourself for the answers. Dear ones, in the physical life journey you will never “have it all”—that would be like trying to eat once and for all. Can you not realize that all unhappiness is caused by perception and comparison? Ye can only be that which ye perceive yourself to be. Your success is measured only by your ability to complete things and the more clear you are on that which you want, the more power you will have and you must hold uppermost in all thy senses—GOD DOES NOT MAKE FAULTY PRODUCTS. If you have problems, so what, solve them so that they no longer annoy you—confront them in truth, sanity and reason and solve them—they, too, shall pass. Hold my hand and walk with me, for I am sent as the wayshower to heal of thine life through showing you the way of truth. I come again as Sananda—healing life-source, that you can be lifted up and walk in wholeness and perfection—you dawdle in the mud puddles when you could traverse the heavens to touch of the stars. Can ye not accept of your perfection?

This scribe nor these bringers of the Word of Truth set not themselves above or beyond any other—they simply are the couriers of ATON Creator to remind you of your perfection. Ye need of no interpreters nor mediators—your soul knows of that which is truth if ye will but harken. Share of the truth of the word and your heart will blossom into glory, for thine brother knows he is sick and weary. You who turn to substances to change and shroud of the mind—when you find that life is destroyed and you can no longer face the addictions or the drugs which you depend upon to hide you from yourself—you will change back into “reality” and remove yourself from the ranks of the walking dead. There is a fine solution and a “bad” solution to every problem—you just don’t keep enough reserves of good solutions in your larder. The choice is always yours! What kind of choices do you make?

If you cling unto the security that you perceive you have, if it be not of God-ness—then ye shall doubtlessly miss the journey into abundance and success—ye shall simply remain clinging to that which might have been, for from the cradle unto the grave of physical man—THERE IS NOT SECURITY SAVE THAT WHICH IS OF THE SOUL DESTINATION. ALL ELSE IS BUT A FLEETING MOMENT OF PERCEPTION OF CHANCE AND YOU MUST MAKE OF YOUR CHANCES.

I do not plan to speak in riddles—I do plan to speak in thoughtful truth. I am come to bring my Father’s people home unto him—are you one of mine family or not? The eleventh hour approaches—what is your “happiness” level of measure this day? If it be not full and filled with peace, I suggest you give the Lighted path a chance—what possible loss could you sustain therefrom? Perhaps ye shall gain of the Kingdom!

Beware the secret orders, for they are filled with people who lay the rules and limits and then keep the rules from you by their own pronouncements. You need no priests, ministers, lawyers, judges nor go-between interpreters to be with truth and God—YOU CAN HAVE NO GO-BETWEEN BETWEEN SELF AND SELF—PONDER IT! YOU HAVE BECOME PEOPLE OF THE LIE AND ’TIS TIME YOU COME INTO THE TRUTH OF THE WAY IT IS AND NOT AS YOU ARE TOLD IT MUST BE!

Your journey will be as good or as bad as you make of it, for God Creator has granted that reasoning free-will gift unto you—thy measure of the journey is what ye have done with the gift. If ye send out bigotry—ye shall reap of bigotry against thine self. If you send out love and giving—it shall flow a hundred fold back unto self—it is the law of the universe. If ye plant of corn—ye will reap of corn, sow peace and ye must reap of peace—ye have been about sowing of the lie and now comes the harvest thereof—but it can be of the last crop of thistles if ye refuse to further plant of the beast’s seeds. The harvest is at hand—YE CAN CHANGE OF THE CROP. But first, you must recognize of that which has been planted in your fields—did you plant it? Did you allow use of your fields and allow another to plant his own crops in your garden? Perhaps you need to take control of the planting within your own fields lest there be naught to reap at harvest but abundant weeds. Look unto thy European neighbors this day—the larders are bare and half a planet is in starvation of body and soul—what is that YOU sow in your fields—or, do you wait for another to tend of it for you? If you deny truth, then you are thereby denying thine own talents—no decision is having made a decision—unfortunately! So be it—will ye miss of the lifeboat whilst ye await the helicopter? ’Tis not likely thine salvation will come from the ones who have perpetrated the slavery upon you. The slavemaster and trader are not likely to set the slaves free! So be it and selah for the Word of God is the sword of freedom—I AM THE WORD AND THE WORD SHALL GO FORTH UPON THE WINDS AND WATERS OF THE PLANET THAT MAN CAN CHOOSE!

I release now, this scribe, that she might have rest. I bring the benediction of the Totality of God that you ones might find clarity and sort away the confusion—ask and ye shall receive—seek unto me and ye shall find of the way, for I am the Way, The Truth and The Light!

I AM SANANDA, ONE WITH GOD, ATON OF LIGHT, MOTHER/FATHER CREATOR/ CREATION. WHO MIGHT YE BE?

BUSH DEMANDS ARAFAT OUSTER

By Jeff Zeleny, Washington Bureau. 06/25/02

WASHINGTON—President Bush issued a new ultimatum Monday in the quest for peace in the Middle East, demanding that Palestinians vote Yasser Arafat out of power as the key step to creating a democratic Palestinian state within three years. ...

In the sweeping Middle East proposal, the most aggressive and detailed Mideast proposal of his presidency, Bush outlined an approach that set some conditions on the Israelis. But he placed the lion's share of the burden on the Palestinian people to swiftly reform their government. Bush demanded features more common in Western democracies than Middle Eastern nations, such as an independent legislature, separation of powers, new economic institutions and a string of other reforms. ...

The speech drew mixed reactions from Palestinian leaders, while Israelis generally applauded the address. ...

The implications of the demand for Arafat's removal were not clear, however, as Bush also called for free elections, and a great majority of Palestinians and Arab leaders appear to support Arafat.

Even as Bush spoke, events in the Middle East appeared to work against his peacemaking efforts. The Israeli army expanded its incursion into the West Bank in the aftermath of deadly Palestinian suicide bombings and shootings.

Despite Bush's stern words for the Palestinians, Arafat, commenting briefly after the speech, said the president's proposal was a "serious contribution" to the peace process, and appeared to welcome his call for international involvement in the Middle East conflict. Arafat called for "direct and bilateral meetings with the American administration" in addition to talks with the European Union, Russia and the United Nations.

The reaction from other Palestinian officials was less measured, with Saeb Erekat, the chief Palestinian negotiator, saying Bush's call for new leadership was unacceptable.

"Palestinian leaders don't come from parachutes from Washington or from anywhere else," Erekat told CNN. "Palestinian leaders are elected directly by the Palestinian people. President Yasser Arafat was directly elected in a free and fair election."

The White House speech came hours after the Palestinian leadership sent a detailed reform plan to U.S. and European envoys, the first concrete outline of how the Palestinian Authority would be revamped to fall in line with democratic principles.

Some Palestinian officials expressed dismay that Bush did not seem to recognize the Palestinian Authority's reform efforts so far.

"I have difficulty accepting that the president did not understand the very serious effort put into this plan," said Ghassan Khatib, the newly appointed labor minister. "I think [President Bush] is making this a personal problem with Arafat and is not looking beyond that."

Others in the Arab world found the Bush plan heavy on demands for Palestinian reform and light on a detailed timetable.

"You cannot put his speech down on the negotiating table and make a plan out of it—we will implement this tomorrow and this the next day," Jamal Khashoggi, an editor at The Arab News in Saudi Arabia, told the New York Times. "He just completely adopted the Israeli analysis of the situation, that it is terror forcing them to maintain the occupation, not that occupation is leading to terrorism."

Few in the Arab world believed Bush's speech went far enough in offering the kind of incentives needed to stem the rising violence and death toll on both sides. ...

The Bush administration said if Palestinians meet conditions outlined in the plan, an interim state could be created first and a fully independent state could be achieved in three years—after the completion of Bush's term.

In a far less demanding tone, Bush also urged Israel to abide by the United Nations resolution that calls for Israel to withdraw from territories it occupied during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, including the Gaza Strip, the West Bank and East Jerusalem. Israel's only path to peace, he added, is through a stable, democratic Palestinian state. ...

[JR: Pres. Bush is parroting Sharon's demands and not the U.S. in his proposals for a peace settlement. It will take years for the Palestinians to fulfill the conditions of the Bush administration and Bush knows this. Sharon is buying time for his Palestinian land grab and to build his walls around his new settlements. In the meantime he will be busy orchestrating acts that will provoke and incite further violent reactions from his captives. Bush has never attempted to meet with Arafat so for him to demand his removal shows that his intentions are dishonest and deceitful. The reasons for the Palestinian acts of violence have not been addressed or been a part of our deliberations or discussions. We have given Israel much latitude and have not demanded accountability as to her own acts of violence. Unless the EU, Russia or the UN takes a strong position to bypass the U.S. proposals it will be a sellout of all the Arab/ Muslim people of the Middle East as the Zionists mean to gain all even if it means a holocaust. Better the world is sacrificed than to have one false Jew deprived of his false heritage.]

PRESIDENT BUSH THE MARTYR

By Sam Bahour (Palestinian-American);
Michael Dahan (Israeli-American),
Arabic Media Internet Network, 06/25/02

Last night's long-awaited speech by President Bush was to set the pace for the Palestinians and Israelis to step back from the vicious and bloody cycle of violence that has gripped them for nearly two years. Instead, President Bush and his administration have publicly adopted the Israeli agenda of battering the Palestinians into submission. President Bush's illusion that the Palestinian-Israeli conflict may be 'talked away' in a series of speeches is not only a poor example of leadership but seriously places U.S. interests in the region at high risk.

President Bush's administration has utterly failed to comprehend the Palestinian-Israeli conflict and in particular the Palestinian predicament today which is an Israeli re-occupation of the small parcels of land that were transferred to the Palestinian Authority under the Oslo Peace Accords. To add insult to injury, President Bush continues to mismanage U.S. policy with unprecedented unaccountability to the U.S. Congress or the world community. Bush's chronological attempts to address the crisis are as follows: ignore the conflict—failed; send Powell to the region—failed; the Mitchell Report—failed; the Tenet Plan—failed;

Bush's UN speech—failed; Secretary of State Powell's policy speech in Kentucky—failed; send General Zinni on multiple missions—failed; and the most recent call for an international conference (completely ignored in Bush's latest speech)—failed. If the creativity applied to avoiding real U.S. action were used to put an implementation mechanism in place to end the Israeli occupation, the region would be well out of the conflict by now.

To a naive audience President Bush's speech may have sounded like a sensible framework for progress, but for anyone with any understanding at all of the Middle East, it was clearly a shallow attempt in diplomacy that amounts to U.S. surrender of its Middle East foreign policy to the ranks of Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon and Israel's lobby in the U.S. Indeed, the speech was praised by Israel's right, which has rejected Palestinian statehood outright.

President Bush continues to be blinded by the events of 9-11 and refuses (or deceitfully avoids) to see the Palestinian issue outside the framework of the yet undefined phenomena of "terrorism". Palestinians were stripped of their national, civil and human rights decades before the word terrorism became a buzzword. By placing the Palestinian struggle for freedom and independence in a 9-11 mold, the U.S. is only prolonging a solution and feeding the bloodshed, exactly as Israel has been doing for 36 consecutive years now. Today the U.S. is ideally positioned to finally take real action and use its global leverage to end Israeli occupation, instead it has succumb to an extremist Israeli government that views the fate of illegal Israeli settlements the same as it views the fate of Tel Aviv.

By reducing the entire conflict in the region to the existence of an individual Palestinian leader, or set of leaders, the Bush Administration has fallen for the red herring that was designed, produced and marketed by Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon. President Bush needs to remember that Former President Carter was part of the international election monitoring team that gave the Palestinian Presidential elections a stamp of approval. Furthermore, the Palestinians are fully aware of the weaknesses in their leadership and have been working to correct it for many years now. Instead of supporting Palestinian reformists the U.S. has chosen to make their efforts more difficult by making them look as if they are aligned to an Israeli strategy of reform before freedom. A U.S.-led international campaign to meddle in internal Palestinian politics will only set back the efforts of those Palestinians that have already started making concrete steps for change.

To craft U.S. policy in an entire region around new elections for an already expired Palestinian Authority is yet another display of Israeli setting of U.S. policy. More frightening is President Bush's criteria for the new leadership to be "not compromised by terror". We can only assume that this will be translated by way of Jerusalem to mean that only those Palestinians who have not been involved in resistance against occupation would be accepted. This is a clever way to say that no Palestinian is eligible for acceptance into this U.S. policy and thus give Israel more time to destroy Palestinian communities and any hope for co-existence.

Israeli Prime Minister Sharon, President Bush's advisors, the powerful pro-Israel lobby in the U.S. and the U.S. Congress have clearly provoked President Bush to become a martyr in the name of continued Israeli military occupation of Palestinians. As with most martyrs who fail to see how their emotionally charged act will negatively reflect on the real issues at hand, President Bush stands proud and tall in support of Israel while the U.S. economy, U.S. allies in the region, U.S. homeland security and the U.S. global leadership position all take the brunt of his misaligned and ill advised policy, if it can even be considered “policy”.

The authors of this article have written throughout the last two years on every one of the issues the President spoke about in his speech. We predicted each failed U.S. step. Every time we have advised the U.S. on the way out of the crisis—to put forth action, not words, in ending the Israeli occupation. We still strongly believe that as long as Israeli occupation is permitted to survive, the U.S. can revisit the issue in 10 days or 10 months or 10 years and would face the same—Palestinians, stripped of their rights, dignity, land and freedom will continue to struggle, with Arafat or without, to end their predicament, and Israelis will continue to suffer.

It is time—past time, to use Secretary of State Powell’s words—for the U.S. to put actions behind its policies. Until then we await the next speech by President Bush and brace ourselves for the next series of bombings.

[JR: The United States cannot be the broker of a peace to end the Israeli/Palestinian conflict. Israel knows this but she uses the power and influence of the U.S. as a shield so that she can continue to move forward with her plans to build her Zionist Israel minus all Palestinians. Our Middle East policies are going to weaken our position as a world power. We have chosen to be as intractable in our negotiations as our false ally Israel when it comes to dealing fairly with the Arab/Muslim people.]

FLASHING YELLOW ON ASSET-BACKED DEBT

By Janet Kidd Stewart, Tribune—Business, 06/16/02

Seeking shelter from balance sheet “perfect storms”, skittish investors have been flocking to companies with lots of visible assets and regular revenue streams. Just don’t get too comfortable under the umbrella.

Like so many cash-strapped consumers who take payday loans or hock the Rolex for cash, companies are loading up on debt backed by future sales and hard assets. Now at record levels, these asset-backed securities ratchet up risk levels for investors, some observers are warning.

U.S. companies in the first quarter had a record $1.3 trillion in outstanding debt backed by specific assets like receivables, loans owed to them and inventory, according to the Bond Market Association. The total has more than quadrupled since 1995.

In some respects, asset-backed borrowing has been a good thing.

Unlike the egregious fees of consumer payday loans, the debt is cheaper for companies because it is guaranteed with huge, specific assets. The guarantee also means a generally higher credit rating than unsecured bonds, a big plus for institutional investors like pension and mutual funds that buy them. With several companies imploding swiftly into bankruptcy in the last year, investments that are at the front of the payout line and insulated from the bankruptcy process have obvious attractions.

But it also means that as investors seek safety in the brick and mortar of the old economy, those companies are surrendering ownership of what would seem to be their bedrock assets.

Just two local examples: Sears, Roebuck and Co. put up nearly a third of its customers’ credit card debt as collateral for asset-backed securities. UAL Corp., parent of United Airlines, has more than half of its 243 company-owned airplanes obligated—with a book value of $5.5 billion.

As more companies securitize a greater portion of their assets, overall credit quality declines, say some market observers and bond buyers. That decline affects bond investors of all types, and stock buyers to some degree, as share prices in recent months have been shaken by credit-quality concerns. And it moves everybody down the priority line in the event of bankruptcy.

bondholders, and when companies book gains from securitization on the balance sheet, it takes away from the quality of earnings,” said John Vail, chief strategist for Mizuho Securities’ Chicago office.

And as corporate profits remain squeezed, and regulators wrestle with Enron Corp.-inspired reporting changes intended to make the obscure financial instruments more transparent, some fear even their cost advantages will shrink.

Already, credit downgrades in the sector—usually rare events compared with unsecured bonds—are on the rise, a serious issue for the sector, said Ray Kennedy, a bond expert with Pacific Investment Management Co., known as Pimco....

Asset-backed securities are different from traditional bonds in that they are backed by a specific set of assets, such as inventory, home mortgages, auto loans, credit card receivables and even future revenue streams from tobacco litigation settlements and feature films. In the event of default, those pledged assets are off-limits to traditional creditors such as bondholders and shareholders.

The instruments have come under scrutiny in Enron’s aftermath because the energy trading company was a heavy user of special-purpose entities, which are financial vehicles set up to hold instruments like asset-backed securities. Enron utilized the special-purpose entities to mask massive credit risk in off-balance-sheet deals....

Amid the noise, some market experts worry that even legitimate uses of the securities pose a serious risk for investors.

As credit card delinquencies rise, for example, companies must boost reserves for them, a difficult feat in a downturn.

The complex financial products aren’t new, but their use exploded in the latter 1990s as a relatively cheap source of capital for growing companies—cheap, because investors were willing to take lower interest rates in exchange for the guarantee of the assets.

In 1991, total volume of outstanding asset-backed debt amounted to $50.6 billion. A decade later, it had soared to $1.3 trillion....

“Market sentiment on weaker credits has deteriorated quickly following the Enron bankruptcy and suspected fraud issues,” Morgan analyst Emmanuel Weyd wrote. “Poor disclosure often prevents us from quantifying these risks properly and leads market participants to assume the worst for any suspect credit.”...

Still, said Weyd, increased securitization itself poses a danger, even while it adds liquidity to run companies.

“For companies that use this excessively, they are taking assets out of the balance sheet to get cash. For existing creditors, it weakens their protections,” he said.

Banks and other financial institutions are the biggest issuers of the complex asset-backed instruments, but many other types of companies now use them as a relatively cheap source of credit.

U.S. companies have sold 313 of the financial instruments this year for a total of nearly $160 billion, according to Thomson Financial.

Local companies Navistar International Corp. and Sears, Roebuck and Co. were two of the first non-financial concerns to create securities out of their balance-sheet assets.

Sears, the first U.S. mass-market retailer to become active in this market back in 1988, was the nation’s 20th-largest issuer in the first five months of this year, selling more than $2.1 billion worth, according to Thomson Financial.

Sears’ $1.9 billion purchase of cataloger Land’s End was partly financed with debt drawn from Sears’ credit card receivables, or future customer payments.

In recent years, Sears has loaded up on $9.5 billion in outstanding securities that are backed by its $28 billion in credit card receivables, and that doesn’t count traditional corporate bonds and other debt.

Asset-backed borrowing is cheaper than traditional loans, said Sears’ treasurer, Larry Raymond. He said that 62 percent of Sears’ private-label credit card accounts are more than 5 years old, indicating a fairly stable portfolio, and its asset-backed securities account for a third of total receivables, compared with much higher percentages for other issuers.

Navistar had nearly $3 billion in asset-backed receivables as of Oct. 31, according to the company’s most recent filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission. The company pledged portions of its future truck sales as collateral.

Another Chicago-based firm, Bank One Corp., is the 12th-largest manager of asset-backed debt, with $3.5 billion in proceeds issued in the year’s first quarter alone.

[JR: Instead of “flashing yellow” it should be flashing RED! It is most difficult for investors to evaluate companies, even those with lots of visible assets, as most have used those assets as collateral for massive loans and off-balance-sheet deals. In today’s business environment where creative accounting in finance is rampant, companies are cooking the books to make them more attractive to investors, which presents additional risks most small investors can’t afford. Nothing today is what it seems, so if you want to safely secure your personal assets it might be better to simply put your money into hard assets such as gold or silver and get rid of your paper. Not only has the price of gold risen 20% in the past year, it is also a hedge against inflation. As the value of the dollar continues to erode against other currencies, gold remains the only stabilizing factor. Gold will go through the roof when the people realize the physical gold reserves that are supposed to be stored in the world’s Central Banks, such as the Federal Reserve has been loaned out at 1% and cannot logistically or economically be returned or replaced. In other words, the gold is gone and the coffers are empty. Those fiat dollars backed by nothing will ultimately be worth nothing. Go gold!]

DOLLAR SURGES ON INTERVENTION

BBC News, 06/28/02

The dollar has risen in value against the yen and the euro following intervention by the world’s three biggest central banks in the currency markets.

One dollar bought 120.36 yen following the intervention, compared with 118.36 yen before the action. It has since fallen to 119.85. One euro bought 0.987 cents, having previously been as high as 0.999 cents.

The intervention was at the instigation of Japanese authorities who want the yen to weaken to increase the chance of economic recovery there.

Central banks rarely intervene in a co-ordinated fashion in currency markets, preferring to let traders and investors decide the true value of a currency.

Japanese authorities have intervened in the markets before, in an effort to weaken the strengthening yen, amid fears that the weaker yen could hurt Japan’s chances of recovery.

However, the general weakness of the dollar meant that their intervention had little impact.

“We are intervening in the market,” senior Japanese finance ministry official Haruhiko Kuroda confirmed. “The ECB and the Fed are operating on behalf of the BOJ as well.”

The European Central Bank (ECB) confirmed the report but the Federal Reserve has declined to comment.

The U.S. Treasury Secretary, Paul O’Neill, is generally believed to think it would be impossible to try to stabilise the currency markets.

Marc Chandler, chief currency strategist at HSBC, doubts that U.S. co-operation implies approval of the intervention.

"It is proper protocol, because you ask the central bank in an overseas market to act on your behalf," Marc Chandler said.

In the last few weeks, the value of the dollar has weakened substantially on international currency markets, by around 10% against the euro, nearly reaching parity of one euro to one dollar.

International investors have become increasingly wary of buying the dollar, following the recent string of accounting scandals and continued stock market turbulence.

They have chosen instead to put their money into Asia or Europe.

However, there have been concerns that a weak dollar could not only hinder the fragile Japanese recovery, but might also exacerbate the crises in South American countries, such as Brazil.

The financier George Soros has told the BBC that without intervention to prop up the dollar, it could fall by around one third, causing chaos on world currency markets.

[JR: I'm sure the Fed is not only creating e-currency to buy dollars on the open market but is also leasing more of its phantom gold reserves at an annual rate of .7363%, which has a direct effect on the value or strength of the U.S. dollar. By suppressing the value of gold the Fed strengthens the dollar and because most Central Banks hold the fiat U.S. Federal Reserve Notes as their own fiat currency reserves these CBs condone this "intervention". There IS NO FREE MARKET, as EVERYTHING is manipulated.]

HELLRAISER 2.0

By Chris Floyd, Moscow Times, 06/14/02

Terror works. Terror pays. Terror feeds the bulldog. It's the first principle of any violent criminal organization: scare the hell out of the people you're trying to control. Just ask the Mob. Ask bin Laden and his boys.

Or ask the Bush Regime, which has just launched a two-pronged assault in its increasingly desperate bid to deflect attention from revelations about its incredible—some might say incomprehensible—failure to prevent what we now know was the almost-certainly preventable terrorist attack on Sept. 11.

First up: the proposed creation of a new bureaucratic monstrosity, the Department of Homeland Security, which last week George W. Bush proudly hailed as the "greatest reorganization of the federal government since Harry Truman's National Security Act of 1947".

This is not the most comforting of pedigrees. Among many other things, Truman's little jewel created the CIA, ushered in the militarization of the American economy, and secretly committed the United States to endless covert and overt war against Satanic "subversion" in all its forms—including, of course, that subversive document known as the Constitution, with all its pinko eyewash about liberty, legality and individual rights.

The act and its secret codicils spawned a "military-industrial complex" of such sinister potential that its very avatar, General Dwight Eisenhower, warned the nation against it in his last speech as president. To no avail, alas. Already, on his watch, the CIA had subverted democratic governments in Iran and Guatemala—leading to decades of bloodshed and terror—while welcoming a whole cadre of Nazi war criminals into American service.

Greater things were to follow, of course: millions dead in Southeast Asia; a million dead in Indonesia; thousands dead in Pinochet's Chile; tens of thousands murdered and tortured during the Reagan-Bush proxy wars in Central America; and the arming of Islamic extremists, which has led to countless thousands of deaths, including 3,000 on the streets of America—all aided and abetted by Truman's clandestine apparat.

Now Bush seeks to top this class act with his great "security reorganization", which unaccountably leaves out the agencies—like the FBI, the CIA, and the National Security Agency—which failed to protect the security of those expendable saps, the American people. In fact, just last week we learned that the NSA—the Pentagon spy shop—had actually been tracking alleged Sept. 11 ringleader Mohammed Atta in the months before the attack, recording his conversations with al-Qaida honchos, the Miami Herald reports. Trusting souls, the NSA kept this information to itself and let Atta enter the United States, where he lived—and plotted—in perfect safety.

At least they protected his security.

So as Bush begins his upgrade of Truman's travesty, it's worth remembering what Senator Arthur Vandenburg said when he saw Harry's plan for a permanent war machine combining global military reach with unprecedented political repression at home: "You're going to have to scare the hell out of the American people to get all that."

And that's where the second prong comes in. The Regime put on a master class in hell-scaring this week with the story of the alleged thwarting of an alleged al-Qaida attack with radioactive "dirty bombs".

First came a wave of dramatic announcements to grab the headlines: "U.S. Foils Nuclear Attack by bin Laden!" Fortuitous timing for an outfit reamed by weeks of bad press about its criminal dereliction of duty.

But once the main spin was established, the truth—or something like it—began dribbling out. Quietly. Suddenly we're told by top officials that there "was no actual plan"; the suspect didn't have a bomb; he didn't have the materials to build a bomb; he was, at most, carrying out an alleged "reconnaissance" for potential future missions of an unspecified nature.

That's not quite as good a headline, is it? "Chicago Man With Alleged Ties to Al-Qaida Arrested Last Month While Re-Entering the Country With 'No Actual Plan' to Commit Terrorism, Officials Say." Doesn't really sing, does it?

No, terror always trumps the truth. It sings. It pays. Just ask Bush. And look at the headlines.

Last week in these pages, we reported on the admission by an American soldier that he and his comrades had been ordered to kill women and children during "Operation Anaconda" in Afghanistan earlier this year. "We were told specifically that if there were women and children to kill them," Army Private Matt Guckenheimer told the Ithaca Journal last month.

Guckenheimer has since qualified this disturbing revelation. Perhaps shaken at seeing his words in cold print (or shaken by someone who saw his words in cold print), Guckenheimer wrote a letter to the Journal modifying his remarks. He now says the soldiers were ordered to kill only those women and children who showed unspecified manifestations of "hostile intent".

The orders did note that even "very young children" (of unspecified age) were being trained as soldiers by the heathen Mohammedans, and so could not be "just dismissed as noncombatants," said Guckenheimer. "But this does not mean we were ordered to kill noncombatants such as babies."

Well, thank God for that. It is indeed a saving grace that U.S. ground forces were actually not ordered to kill babies. That would be a very serious breach of military protocol—everyone knows the killing of babies and other innocent parties is reserved for the launchers of "smart bombs", "daisy cutters", B-52s, CIA drones and other purveyors of faceless, long-range death.

Glad we could clear that up.

[JR: The propaganda machines have been going non-stop since WWII and have now been turned up to the maximum level since 911. Americans are being trained and conditioned through wars and warnings of imminent attacks to arm and to increase defense spending and that Patriotism requires that restrictions be placed on our rights and our liberties. We are being duped by the game-masters in D.C. with their avalanche of lies, false information, rumors and staged incidents. The Muslims are the latest world threat just like the red communists were in the late '50s and well into the late '80s. The generations born after WW11 have been conditioned to believe that the world is a dangerous and hostile place and the only way to be secure is to arm and to attack before being attacked. With this kind of twisted logic we can look forward to decades of doom and gloom. What the people of the world truly want and pray for are rainbows and sunshine brought about through PEACE. Question is, what do Americans want?]

BUSH PUSHES LAW HELPING INSURERS ON TERRORISM

By Jill Zuckman, Washington Bureau, 06/20/02

WASHINGTON—Although legislation to help insurers pay for terrorist attacks passed the Senate earlier this week, crucial differences remain between the House and Senate versions, and President Bush on Wednesday urged Congress to quickly resolve them and send the legislation to his desk....

The president strongly endorsed a measure in the House version, which unlike the Senate bill would prevent victims from suing companies for punitive damages after terrorist attacks....

The legislation was passed after months of intense lobbying by business and insurance groups. After Sept. 11, businesses began clamoring for government help in obtaining insurance coverage in the event of terrorist attacks. Insurance companies said they could not offer such high-risk coverage without government backing.

On the other side, the Consumer Federation of America objects to the cost, potentially $100 billion, portraying the effort as an unnecessary government bailout of insurance companies and businesses....

The chairman of GMAC, a company that lends money for commercial mortgages, has turned down more than $1 billion in new loans this year because projects were not insured against terrorism, Bush said....

"The bill has got to make sure that the insurance companies remain engaged in covering terrorism losses, that the government will help, but not help all the way," he said.

Under the Senate bill, the government would help insurers by covering 90 percent of claims for the rest of this year after costs to the insurance companies exceed $10 billion. There would be a $100 billion cap for the government's liability.

The treasury secretary could extend the program through 2003. At that point, the government would cover 90 percent of claims after the first $15 billion.

The House bill, on the other hand, would require insurance companies to ultimately repay the federal assistance. Unlike the Senate bill, the House would have the government pay 90 percent of claims from terrorist acts after the first $1 billion in damage.

The House would also prevent victims from suing for punitive damage awards and would cap attorney fees. The Senate bill would not prevent people from suing for punitive damages....

Special-interest groups are not waiting to see what happens. Influential organizations—from the American Insurance Association to the Risk and Insurance Management Society to the Coalition to Insure Against Terrorism—are telling their stories.

Michael Phillipus, vice president for communications and external affairs at the Risk and Insurance Management Society, represents about 84 percent of the Fortune 500 companies. He said his members are facing huge rate increases, severe reductions in coverage and difficulty getting the insurance they need....

But Bob Hunter, the director of insurance for the Consumer Federation of America, said the legislation is a gift to the big insurance companies.

“As Phil Gramm said, it’s a windfall,” Hunter said, referring to the Texas Republican who opposed the Senate bill. “They have already collected premiums based on the assumption they would have to pay out 100 percent of claims. Instead, they’re going to have to pay out 10 percent of claims.”

[JR: The insurance companies are not insuring new construction in cities that are targets such as Washington, Baltimore and New York. I guess that a huge bailout from congress is the only way that the insurance companies can fulfill their responsibilities or so implies Pres. Bush. The money pouring out of the coffers of Washington since 911 for defense and security has been astronomical and yet no one is questioning how all this is going to be paid for. The insurance companies have raised and are continuing to raise insurance premiums on homeowners anywhere from 20% to as much as 65% in some areas. Before congress decides on a handout for these insurance extortionists they need to know the facts as we see them.]

EU LEADERS TIGHTEN BORDER CONTROLS

ABC News, 06/22/02

SEVILLE (AP)—European Union leaders, after watching a string of far-right politicians elected across the continent, agreed Saturday to tighten border controls in an effort to reduce the flow of migrants trying to enter the EU illegally every year.

But leaders backed away from threatening poor countries with sanctions for failing to stop the illegal migration of about half a million people every year.

Instead, EU members agreed to boost border defenses along land frontiers with Eastern Europe and the Balkans and in the Mediterranean Sea near Spain, Italy and Greece. That effort will include strengthened border patrols, joint training and shared intelligence.

“Europe must no longer be the victim of uncontrolled flows of migrants,” French President Jacques Chirac said.

The EU also will accelerate plans to tighten visa regulations, use common rules for handling asylum requests, quicken deportation procedures and toughen sentences on people smugglers, who often exploit immigrants as cheap labor or sex workers.

Immigration topped the summit agenda after a number of election scares or gains by far-right politicians such as France’s Jean-Marie Le Pen and Austria’s Joerg Haider.

“People know there is a serious problem in Europe,” British Prime Minister Tony Blair said. “Moderate people of the center-left or center-right have to tackle this issue or the extremists will exploit it.”

But radical proposals threatening cuts in aid or trade privileges for countries with lax controls on migrants were opposed by France and Sweden, who argued they only would increase the poverty spurring people to emigrate.

The softer approach was welcomed by campaigners concerned about human rights.

“The threat of sanctions highlighted how distorted the EU’s policies were becoming”, said Dick Oosting, director of Amnesty International’s EU Office. “The war against ‘illegal immigration’ had clearly become overheated.”

EU leaders said the sanctions option could be revived if countries persistently failed to help.

“If countries refuse to cooperate, we’ll consider any reasonable option,” Blair warned.

The midyear summit also failed to end a dispute between Greece and Turkey that is holding up EU plans to develop a military wing with 60,000 peacekeepers.

Hopes for a breakthrough rose after Greece lifted its objections to a deal granting the European force access to vital NATO military planning in return for NATO member Turkey receiving the right to veto European military operations in its region.

But then Turkey objected to wording changes meant to placate Greece....

However, they postponed efforts to resolve a bitter internal debate on whether to expand the EU’s $77.6 billion annual aid programs for farmers and poor regions to include Poland, Hungary and the other eight candidates expected to join the EU in January 2004.

The summit was held under tight security. That need was underscored by a series of five explosions around Spain coinciding with the summit. Police said the Basque separatist group ETA claimed responsibility for detonating four car bombs and a package of explosives, injuring a total of 10 people. [JR: European leaders like Chirac and Blair are conceding to the fact they got it all wrong as regards to open immigration and that the populists had it right all along. The populists got a lot of bad press on this issue and so did its leaders like Jean-Marie Le Pen of France and Jörg Haider of Austria. The mass migration of people is part of the Elite’s plan to integrate all countries and redistribute populations. The goal is to do away with ethnicity, language, customs, traditions and history in order to readjust attitudes and the thinking of individuals. Once this is accomplished you will have a people that will fit the globalists’ model for humanity. People, we have and are the power—and not the pampered privileged, postulating poseurs who make up the G7 leadership of Europe.]

YUKOS DISCLOSES WHO OWNS WHAT

By Anna Raff, Moscow Times, 96/20/02

For years, they have stayed in the shadows. They feared for their own lives and those of their children and relatives. In preparation for the day, they have hired security guards, chosen new neighborhoods and moved schools....

They are the core shareholders of Yukos, Russia’s second-largest oil company, which in the course of a few years has gone from corporate renegade to stock market darling.

Group Menatep, a former industrial powerhouse that has kept a low profile since the August 1998 financial crisis, owns 61 percent of Yukos, according to a posting on the company’s web site that lists all shareholders with stakes greater than 5 percent.

Yukos CEO Mikhail Khodorkovsky, whom Forbes magazine named Russia’s richest man for the last two years, owns 36 percent of Yukos. The company’s current market capitalization stands at more than $20 billion, which gives him a net worth of $7.2 billion. In a survey published in January, Forbes valued him at $3.7 billion....

Analysts hailed the move and said it was a landmark event in Russian corporate disclosure.

Yukos is seeking to list on the New York Stock Exchange this fall, and U.S. regulators require publicly traded companies to disclose beneficial ownership. In Russia, many companies hide their ultimate owners by using complicated networks of shell companies in offshore tax havens....

The other 39 percent of Yukos is distributed in the following way: 24 percent is traded on domestic and international markets, 10 percent is held in a trust for the repatriation and support of Yukos retirees and

5 percent is kept as treasury stock....

The shareholders’ decision to reveal themselves shows that they are comfortable with the control they have over their own property, six years after the government literally handed Yukos over in a scandal-ridden privatization.

According to the original loans-for-shares plan, floated in April 1995 by a consortium of Russian banks, share packets in state companies were to be handed over for management by the banks, in exchange for loans to the government.

Menatep took a 45 percent stake in Yukos from the state as part of the controversial “shares-for-loans” privatization auction in December 1995, after a rival bid was thrown out by the government on questionable technical grounds. Menatep paid the government $159 million for the shares. The government never exercised its options to buy the shares back.

Menatep picked up another 33 percent of Yukos from the government in an investment tender held on the same day, and a further 7.1 percent at a cash privatization auction the next month.

Menatep Bank organized both auctions.

Shortly after his election in 2000, Putin told a group of oligarchs—the main beneficiaries of the state sell-offs of the mid-1990s—that the government would not revisit post-Soviet privatization deals.

[JR: The Menatep Group [banks] are owned and run by the same oligarchs who grabbed it all during Yeltsin’s tenure. They apparently still enjoy having close ties with government officials and have maintained their influence and control in Moscow. How else could they keep and still own the most lucrative businesses and industries in Russia and enjoy all the wealth they possess today. Mikhail Khodorkovsky is a close ally and partner to Berezovsky who was the mastermind of some of the biggest financial scams and schemes that bankrupt Russia. These oligarchs have ties in the West and may be coming out of the back rooms to legitimize their business dealings in order to compete in world markets. Perhaps these moves are also to shore up a sagging Wall Street. It may be that this openness is the protection they will need in case Putin ever thinks to make a move against them. So far they have managed to keep one step ahead of reforms in the way they conduct business.]

PUTIN SAYS BRING BACK THE BILLIONS

By Valeria Korchagina, Moscow Times, 06/20/02

Looking to find additional resources to boost economic growth, President Vladimir Putin on Wednesday urged Russians to repatriate the billions of dollars they shifted abroad over the past decade....

Putin hinted Wednesday that businessmen and private individuals who wait much longer to admit that they have cash abroad could find it frozen amid international efforts to fight terrorism. Should this happen, the money would only be unblocked after a drawn-out battle in the courts, he said in an address to a congress of the Russian Chamber of Commerce....

“The government must not grab anyone by the sleeve and demand an immediate explanation of where his money came from, especially since in the past it failed to create normal investment conditions in the economy,” Putin said, according to Interfax.

The presidential press service stressed that there were no plans to create a special agency to oversee the repatriation of capital.

Nobody knows for sure how much money has fled the country over the past decade. Experts put the amount at anywhere from $50 billion to $400 billion.

Analysts gave their nod of approval to Putin’s call but cautioned that the devil was in the details....

Alexei Volin, the Cabinet's deputy chief of staff, suggested Tuesday that Russians with up to $100,000 abroad be allowed to legalize it by paying a 13 percent tax on the amount. They would then be allowed to keep up to 75 percent abroad, he told Interfax.

He said the government estimates that $300 billion is tucked away abroad, and it hopes to recover at least $100 billion.

Fenkner poured cold water over the proposal, saying individuals who had ferreted most of the cash abroad had sent amounts much larger than $100,000 and they would not be eager to pay a 13 percent tax.

Furthermore, few wealthy Russians are ready to park even a small amount of their fortunes in a Russian bank, he said.

First deputy Central Bank chairman Oleg Vyugin said that even if the funds were repatriated, trying to invest them into the economy would prove to be unjustifiably difficult....

Vyugin said Russia's current problem is not a lack of money but a lack of good projects.

"[This] is related to how difficult it is to develop a good project due to its dependency not only on macroeconomic factors, which are fairly stable, but hard-to-predict environmental influences such as legal decisions and subsequent interaction with the army of bureaucrats," he said.

He pointed to Kazakhstan as an example of how difficult it is to repatriate cash even when an amnesty is offered.

"Less than $1.5 billion was returned there," he said.

Mikhail Zadornov, deputy head of the State Duma's budget committee, said the laws were not ready for an amnesty.

"Serious changes must be made in the Tax Code to perform this task, but this can only be done after tax reform is completed," Zadornov told Interfax....

[JR: Where have all the rubles gone from the banks and companies doing business in Russia? Well a lot of it is sitting in certain banks in Moscow run by the privileged Elite and in offshore accounts in countries like Switzerland and the U.S. Problem is that during Yeltsin's term many government officials, including the communists and the KGB, became partners in crime with the oligarchs and the speculators operating in the free enterprise system. They, through subterfuge and covert actions, gained control of Russia's most profitable businesses, banks and industries. They all grew rich by paying low prices for Russian products and then selling these products in markets overseas for double or triple the price. Their profits never came back to Russia nor were taxes paid on those profits. The Russian people bore the brunt of the economic collapse brought about by these parasites and exploiters. A whole generation of Russians lost their lifetime savings and the hard times caused the death of an estimated three million people who were not able to survive the hard times. Yeltsin along with the corrupt cabal operating in government effectively destroyed Russia in the late '90s. Putin has a law degree and has held several offices during Yeltsin's Presidency so he has knowledge as to who the insiders were and are. The question is why is Putin taking such a seemingly timid and benign approach to recover the lost billions hidden away and owed to Russia and its people? Maybe it is because too many of these plunderers have dealings in the West so he is adopting the "walk softly and carry a big stick" (behind his back) approach to the problems. Putin is still trying to strengthen his power base before the 2004 elections and to get the economy moving.]

MOST MEXICANS BELIEVE CHUNK OF U.S. BELONGS TO THEM

By Jim Burns, CNSNews.com, 06/13/02

A majority of Mexicans, according to a new Zogby International poll, believe the southwestern part of the United States rightfully belongs to Mexico and that Mexicans should have the right to enter the United States without first obtaining U.S. government permission.

Zogby's poll found that 58 percent of Mexicans agree with the statement "the territory of the United States' Southwest belongs to Mexico." Only 28 percent disagreed while 14 percent were unsure.

Meanwhile, 57 percent agree with the statement "Mexicans should have the right to enter the U.S. without U.S. permission," while 35 percent disagree. Seven percent were unsure.

The poll was conducted among 801 adults chosen at random throughout Mexico and has a margin of error of 3.5 percent.

Americans for Immigration Control (AIC), a group advocating increased restrictions on Mexican immigration, commissioned the poll.

"There is obviously a large and significant gap between the attitudes of Americans and Mexicans," said Robert Goldsborough, AIC president. "While most Americans want immigration reduced, most Mexicans think they don't even need permission to enter our country.

"The poll clearly shows there is less common ground for immigration negotiations between Mexico and the U.S. than the leaders think. Support for a porous border and a loose migration policy occurs only on the Mexican side, not in the U.S.," Goldsborough concluded.

President George W. Bush earlier this year announced that America and Mexico have worked out a "new approach" on border crossings.

"We'll work with the Mexican government to identify individuals who pose threats to North America before they arrive here. We will share technology to inspect traffic on cross-border rail lines and at major ports of entry," Bush said.

But he added that the U.S. would "make sure that people with legitimate business, who travel regularly across the border, can cross easily—so border authorities can focus on greater risks. And we will share information more quickly and efficiently with our Mexican friends.

"America's border with Mexico is a region of tremendous economic vitality, and that must not change. Both our nations benefit from close ties of family and culture and commerce. Our new approach to strengthened border security will preserve that openness, and increase the safety of our country. America will defend ourselves against new threats, at the same time that we build closer relationships with our neighbors," the president concluded.

In another recent poll, Zogby found that many Americans support using the military to guard the U.S.-Mexico border.

68 percent of those surveyed agreed with the statement, "The U.S. should deploy military troops on the border as a temporary measure to help the U.S. Border Patrol curb illegal immigration." Only 28 percent disagreed, while 3 percent were unsure.

Juan Jose Bremer, Mexico's Ambassador to the United States, had no reaction to either poll, according to a spokesman.

[JR: Since when is the security of the U.S. is determined by consensus? We are supposed to be a Republic nation of laws and all laws are supposed to be enforced. Just because certain immigration laws may not be politically correct that does not mean these laws should be ignored. While more "security" laws are passed to infringe on the rights of American citizens, the enforcement of immigration laws are lax, except for the profiling of Middle Eastern men ages 20 to 40 after 911. To get the Hispanic vote, politician and law enforcement officials are turning a blind eye towards illegal immigrants and jeopardizing the security of the American people. Will this lead to another Civil War when So. California, Arizona and Texas file for secession from the Union after the majority population becomes Hispanic? That's what happened when South Carolina seceded from the Union on December 20, 1860 because of the economic tariffs. The "War Between the States" arose out of both the economic and political rivalry between an agrarian South and an industrial North and the issue of the right of states to secede from the Union. The fact is, although the right of secession is in the U.S. Constitution, it wasn't allowed then and it won't be allowed now.]

SAUDI BOYCOTT HITS U.S. GOODS CONSUMERS SHIFT TO OTHER NATIONS' PRODUCTS TO PROTEST U.S. SUPPORT FOR ISRAEL

CNN MONEY, 06/20/02

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates (Reuters)—A boycott of U.S. goods by Saudis angered by Washington's Middle East policies has led to a sharp fall in U.S. exports to Saudi Arabia, diplomats and economists said on Thursday.

Official U.S. figures show exports plunged 33 percent to $2.8 billion between September, the month that terrorist suicide-bombers, most of them Saudis, attacked U.S. cities, and March.

In the first quarter of 2002, exports fell 43 percent to $986 million from $1.74 billion a year earlier.

Many Saudi consumers have shifted to European and Japanese products, encouraged by campaigners wearing Palestinian checkered head scarves who have distributed leaflets at mosques, schools and shopping malls, residents said.

They urge Saudis to boycott U.S. household items, vehicles, food and beverages, fast-food restaurants and tobacco to protest Washington's perceived pro-Israel bias and anti-Saudi campaigns by some U.S. senators and media following the Sept. 11 attacks. ...

Diplomats said although U.S. exports accounted for only a fraction of its global trade, the steep decline appeared to show the depth of anti-U.S. sentiment in the conservative Muslim kingdom, which is a staunch supporter of the Palestinians.

The U.S. embassy in Riyadh said Saudis shunning American products are a worry. But it cited other factors, including the appreciation of the dollar and shrinking defense contracts from U.S. firms, the kingdom's biggest arms suppliers.

"The fact is that the impact of the boycott is very significant...Yes, we are concerned. But exactly how big this impact is very hard to determine without a detailed study," Charley Kestenbaum, the U.S. embassy's commercial officer, said.

"Many U.S. businessmen have put off travel plans to Saudi Arabia since Sept. 11 and some projects have been shelved or cancelled," Kestenbaum said.

He said U.S. firms delivered civilian and military aircraft worth $777 million in 2000, down from $5 billion in 1998.

"Does that mean they are boycotting American aircraft? No. There is no government boycott. There is a popular boycott." ...

"This boycott is quite effective. I don't think the appreciation of the U.S. dollar is the main reason for declining U.S. exports," Ibrahim Foudah, executive director of Saudi Export Association, said.

Japanese diplomats said provisional figures show that exports to Saudi Arabia soared around 20 percent year-to-year during the first quarter from 90.7 billion yen ($731 million).

French exports rose to 535 million during the first four months of 2002, a 12.9 percent rise from a year earlier, Philippe Fouet, commercial officer at the French embassy, said.

[JR: Maybe the Saudi government hasn't reduced its spending for American arms and military aircraft but the people have taken a detour that has put a dent in sales and profits for American businesses. The arms manufacturers and dealers are seeing their profits rising and are benefiting billions in sales because of the increase in world tensions. If Americans can't compete in world's consumer markets Congress will be called upon to act to protect their sagging profit margins.]

SALE OF POWER COMPANIES DEFERRED AFTER PROTESTS

Reuters, 06/20/02

AREQUIPA, PERU—Seeking to defuse the worst crisis to hit President Alejandro Toledo, Peru's government on Wednesday said it would wait for a court ruling before finalizing the sale of two southern power firms that sparked a week of protests by residents fearing job losses.

To the delight of residents, Vice President Raul Diez Canseco announced the 11-month-old government's decision to put the sales of southern electricity companies Egasa and Egesur on hold at the end of two days of sometimes tense talks with local leaders in Peru's second-biggest city, Arequipa.

Toledo, at record lows in polls, this week declared a 30-day state of emergency and curfew and sent 1,700 troops and police to restore order after violent protests in which one man died.

But a joint declaration signed by the government and local leaders said the state of siege could be lifted "48 hours after the signing of this declaration if public order is restored".

Local officials had been insisting that Toledo explain why he backtracked on a written pledge not to sell the companies.

Local authorities in Arequipa had also challenged the sales in court.

[JR: The people have caught on to the government's backroom deals in which assets such as the Peruvian power companies are sold at bargain prices to the privatization parasites. President Toledo cannot explain why he backed off from a written pledge not to sell these companies. The ones who can are the powers behind him... and they aren't talking.]

COURT ASKED TO OK SECRET DEPORTATIONS

By Susan Sachs, New York Times, 06/23/02

U.S. Atty. Gen. John Ashcroft asked the Supreme Court on Friday to permit secret deportation hearings for people arrested after Sept. 11, arguing that national security would be compromised by the disclosure of information about the detainees.

The request presents the court with its first opportunity to review some of the Justice Department's anti-terrorism policies, which have drawn criticism from civil rights groups.

In the petition, Ashcroft and the department's chief immigration judge, Michael Creppy, asked the court to issue a stay of a lower court's ruling in New Jersey, which rejected Creppy's blanket closure of deportation hearings.

A stay, pending the government's appeal of the New Jersey ruling, would keep Creppy's November directive to immigration judges in effect. That order excluded the public, the press and family members from attending hearings for "special interest" detainees who are being deported by the government.

The government's petition on Friday cast the issue in stark terms.

"This is an extraordinary case, touching on the nation's very ability to defend itself against the continuing threat of hostile attack from myriad and unknown sources," the Justice Department said in its request.

The American Civil Liberties Union and several newspapers have challenged the Creppy directive in two federal lawsuits, calling it a violation of the 1st Amendment and of the detainees' rights to due process.

"Notwithstanding the sweeping rhetoric in the government petition, the actual legal issue before the courts is much narrower," said Lee Gelernt, a lawyer with the ACLU.

"The 1st Amendment requires that secret proceedings occur only where there has been a specific individualized showing that closure is necessary in a particular case," he added. "We do not believe the government has demonstrated that traditional 1st Amendment rules should not apply."

The lawsuit that prompted the petition to the Supreme Court was brought before the U.S. District Court in Newark by the ACLU, The New Jersey Law Journal and the North Jersey Media Group, which owns The Herald News of West Paterson and other papers.

Last month, U.S. District Judge John Bissell in Newark ruled against the Justice Department and Ashcroft. The government has appealed the decision to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 3rd Circuit, in Philadelphia, which denied the request for a stay last week.

Federal investigators arrested about 1,200 people in the weeks after the terror attacks. As far as is known, nearly all of them are immigrants from Arab and Muslim countries. Most were charged only with immigration violations and most have been deported.

Only 74 of the original Sept. 11 detainees remain in federal custody, according to the latest Justice Department statement, but it is unclear how many of those people are in deportation proceedings.

[JR: How does having closed court hearings protect and defend this country from attacks from unknown sources? The detainees being held for deportation are not the top al-Qaida or Taliban plotters that have made headlines in our media and press. The Justice Dept. is testing its federal powers to override the 1st Amendment. It is time for a showdown with the Supreme Court on this issue.]

CDC RULES OUT NATIONAL SMALLPOX VACCINE

By Dahleen Glanton, Tribune, 06/21/02

ATLANTA—Concluding that the medical risks of the smallpox vaccine outweigh the threat of a biological attack, an advisory panel for the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention decided Thursday not to recommend reinstating a national immunization program to vaccinate the general public.

As the federal government moves to safeguard the country against a potential smallpox attack, the panel recommended vaccinating up to 20,000 medical workers, such as ambulance drivers, emergency room workers, epidemiologists, law-enforcement personnel and others designated the first to respond to any outbreak....

Smallpox, a highly communicable and deadly disease, has not been detected in the United States since 1949 and was declared eradicated worldwide in 1980. Smallpox kills about 30 percent of its victims, according to doctors.

The vaccinia vaccine, a live virus that is the only inoculation available against smallpox, has not been administered routinely in the U.S. since 1972. The vaccine can cause severe rashes and brain swelling, and is estimated to cause at least one death among every 1 million people vaccinated. The risk is greater among people with skin disorders and immune diseases such as HIV—diseases that make administering the vaccine to the public much riskier than it was 30 years ago, officials said....

The panel did not address the current "ring" strategy of isolating and vaccinating only those closest to the outbreak. Under that plan, a patient diagnosed with smallpox would be isolated while investigators rounded up and vaccinated others who might have been exposed. Such a search-and-contain method was essential in eradicating the disease globally.

According to health officials, the government has begun to expand the stockpile of smallpox vaccine. In addition, research is being conducted on newer vaccines that would pose fewer health risks, officials said....

Health officials are split over whether widespread vaccinations should be restarted. However, there seems to be support among the public for making the vaccine available to those who want it. During two weeks of public hearings across America, medical professionals and others urged the CDC to change its policy and give more people the option of being inoculated....

In case of an outbreak, a stockpile of vaccine could be delivered to the affected area in 12 to 24 hours, the CDC said.

"But once it gets there, the question is how do we get it into the arms of the people who need it? This is the next step," said Dr. Julie Gerberding, the CDC's acting deputy director. "We're hoping that by the end of July every state will have a plan for immunization in place."

[JR: If there are medical risks with the smallpox vaccine, what does that say about all the other vaccines the CDC gives its approval to for the trusting public. As in all decisions, get as much information as you can so that you know what you are getting into before you volunteer for anything... especially when the government recommends that you do so.]

WORDS OF WISDOM FROM HATONN

CONTACT OR SPECTRUM?

I want to briefly respond to a most unusual question from a totally "out of the blue" person: "It appears Spectrum will fail, possibly close, so will you go back to writing for CONTACT or what?"

I have never stopped writing for CONTACT—but I have NOT written, nor have my compatriots written for Spectrum. Tails wag a lot of dogs, my friends. Therefore, "or what" has no meaning.
