After the above SERIOUS WARNING comes the description of the paper. This is heady stuff for the layman.

"Calling full attention to the special note above, in this paper we present a high-level overview of the novel electromagnetic nature of mind operations, mind and body coupling, and intent—the induction of physical 3-space EM energy changes into the brain and nervous system, and into every cell of the body, from the mind's time-like coherent operations. We summarize the time-polarized electrodynamics used to engineer and affect mind operations and the mind-body coupling loop. Transduction mechanisms whereby different EM wave polarization can be transformed one-into-the-other are presented.”—Bearden

I will leave it to the technically astute to try to understand the mechanisms of operation which are described in scientific language. But there are tidbits for the layman. Here he speaks of the difficulty Western scientists have in opening up to the “immaterial” (longitudinal wave) nature of the human mind.

WESTERN SCIENCE REMAINS LARGELY MATERIALISTIC

“Ironically, most Western scientists are materialists and consider ‘mind’ as a mystical and nonscientific concept. They tend to consider mind operations and functions either to be simply ‘meat computer’ operations and functions, or at best to be very weak ordinary transverse-wave EM operations and functions in the brain and nervous system. This serious self-limitation exists because in the body we measure only weak TW [transverse wave] EM operations and functions correlated to biological behavior and brain operations. We simply do not know how to measure ‘mind operations’ directly.

“With no mind measurements possible and no instruments, it is understandable that Western science considers only the physical side of the mind-matter interface.

“Presently our scientists do not measure the longitudinally-polarized EM wave operations and functions in the body and around it in nature. Few of them are aware that a maelstrom of such LW [longitudinal wave] functions exist in the body and in all of Nature in general.”—Bearden

Western methods of influencing the mind with EM waves have only used transverse waves, not the longitudinal waves of the vacuum. If only transverse waves are used, one pretty well has to hit the target mind with a sledgehammer of waves.

WESTERN SCIENCE KNOWS ONLY TRANSVERSE EM WAVES

BRUTE FORCING TIME FUNCTIONS VERSUS FINE CONTROL METHODS

“Ironically, Western mind-control researchers using transverse EM waves for mind-control research, are using a brute force method of evoking and using vacuum engines (spacetime curvature engines) and a special form of general relativity, although they do not appear to realize it.

“While KGB scientists also use TW EM “brute force” TW waves when necessary, they do ‘imprint’ or ‘activate’ those waves with the desired internal LW and time-polarized EM wave and photon structures required to directly perform the mind engineering desired...

“These ‘fitted brute-force models’ certainly can be very powerful, and certainly can produce the exact results shown in the experimental verifications of the fittings. However, they do not of themselves allow sophisticated design for example of the necessary time-polarized wave assemblies for engineering the entire human collective unconscious simultaneously [H: That SHOULD read, “SUBCONSCIOUS”. You may very well do things “unconsciously” but that in itself is due to the activities and instructions of the “subconscious” mind.], or for engineering the entire collective unconscious of all species on Earth (i.e., Gaia’s collective unconscious), or even for precisely engineering the memory and knowledge base of an individual.”—Bearden

The seemingly magical operations of psychoenergetics, sometimes called “psychotronics”, cannot be achieved with ordinary transverse EM wave energy. But they are possible with longitudinal scalar waves because the mind itself is scalar in nature.

“We note that all mind operations are time-like, i.e., they are comprised as scalar EM PHOTON functions and scalar EM wave functions. Thus the mind is a very special kind of electromagnetic system, existing in the time domain...”—Bearden

The engineering of the mind can only be accomplished with the waves of time.

[H: I would comment on this statement, please. There is nothing like the hypnotic control gained over a “victim”—like the repetitious programming (especially FROM one who is considered an authority or expert). This is used constantly on you as trigger phrases, codewords, etc., are played constantly to your subconscious mind. The subconscious mind will BELIEVE ANYTHING IT IS PROGRAMMED TO BELIEVE—CORRECT OR INCORRECT; RIGHT OR WRONG. This is why it is thusly used over and over again: “Weapons of mass destruction”. Finally the conscious mind will “turn off” to the input and accept the term with its intended meaning every time it is repeated. You are simply and purely victims of mind-control in a hypnotic form. Finally, you will get so hypnotized that you will BELIEVE THE LIE—EVERY TIME! This is not the opportune time to enlighten you all, again, on “hypnosis” but you must, before we go much further down this pathway to “mind-warp”, address the simplistic methodology in SIMPLE HYPNOSIS TECHNIQUES AND MIND CONNECTIONS FOR HEALING, REALIZING POTENTIAL AND TO ALLOW UNDERSTANDING OF WHAT IS PERPETRATED UPON YOU CONSTANTLY. IT IS THE GAME OF THE DAY, READERS!]

The course of psychoenergetics development necessitates the building of a vast database of settings and patterns which bring about given mental and/or emotional states. A kind of “genome” of the psyche. Bearden describes the process of the decoding of this “genome”.

“Now the scientists would perform many phenomenology experiments, making one little change at a time and profusely recording the data. Each time, they would establish the physical change(s) that occur in the body and/or the mental and emotional changes that occur in the mind for each spectral reinsertion back through the ‘ship’s portholes’. They would simply but painstakingly (over some years) build up an extensive database of those individual correlates.

“In these experiments, the experimenters will eventually be able to provoke any body or mind change they wish. Strong emotion. Intense pain. Intense pleasure. Painful thoughts, Images, Memories, Perceptions, Dreams, Visions, Memory losses, Memory changes, Personality changes, etc. The ‘delta’ in the emission spectrum (the changes from zero reference spectrum) represent the precise totality of all mental, physical, organic, chemical, etc., changes and interactions. ...

“A second stage in the research would be to test the correlates and porthole insertions upon a statistically significant cross section of ordinary people, and/or specialized populations (such as toughened soldiers). The program would evolve a highly complex, very effective, ever-improving science and technology of mind and behavior control and engineering mechanisms, complete with finished database and developed applications equipment.”—Bearden

Summing up his paper Bearden speculates on what the actual situation the science of psychoenergetics probably is. The intense secrecy with which this knowledge has been kept from the public has led to the current farce of the “government” pretending it all does not exist—and this secrecy may have now put us at great risk.

“The implication is that in the West one or more highly classified, sustained, heavily funded developments in advanced mind-control programs probably exists and probably has existed for some time. Due to loose formation of rogue groups inside such programs, they may have dual or triple purposes, may not operate under very much legitimate government control at all, and may operate specifically for the purposes of the rogue group or groups that have gained control.

“In a nutshell, that’s what may be going on in the clandestine mind-control projects in several Western governments. The involvement of at least some rogue groups, some being ‘cowboys’ who operate well outside all laws and ethics, could also result in such things as assassinations, clandestine testing on individuals without their consent, etc. In short, it could account for what seems to be actually occurring. As also is ‘usual’ in such a mess, one or more of the rogue groups eventually may become very powerful because their secret weapons are very powerful. They may become confident, thinking they have the ‘best in the world’. They may actually believe they are ahead of the Russians. ...

“Remember that, in every large and powerful human organization, the basis for rogue groups is power and secrecy. They are always seeking to increase their power, control, influence, prestige, etc. Nothing else. Patriotism and mission are—to rogue groups—often just idle words. They have their own agendas. And being rogue groups, they may well bring in unethical, immoral TRICKS: assassination, bribery, entrapment, disinformation, plausible deniability, etc.

A certain percentage of a highly secret rogue group will wind up using all these things and more. It's a human characteristic, the old primate dominance game. Only now disguised and hidden under deep classification."

"The Russians, with their additional knowledge of the actual mechanisms in the transforms, will be much more advanced than the West [H: NOT ANY LONGER!], because their fundamental psychoenergetics science is far more advanced, so long as we continue to use the old U(1) electrodynamics. Further, the Russians have decades of use of longitudinal interferometry beams to reach right through the Earth and ocean and produce stringent EM effects at a distance. So they will also be able to do the same things here in 'mind control' with LW interferometers, through intervening mass."—Bearden

Bearden cites two examples where he believes the Russian KGB tested the psychoenergetics capabilities of the scalar interferometers. One was the case of Captain Button in his A-10 "Warthog" aircraft on April 2, 1997.

"Over Arizona, Captain Button was thrown into a hypnogogic state, and his perceptions instantly altered and controlled. In his instant 'dream-waking' state, everything seemed perfectly normal. His sense of direction was altered a bit more than 90 degrees, so he simply corrected and turned and "flew toward the range", actually flying off course by more than 90 degrees and ignoring radio contracts. He flew right on out of Arizona.

"At one point he circled, probably thinking he was over the range, and he probably dropped his ordnance there. Then he 'flew on back toward home', as he thought in his waking dream state, until his fuel ran out and he crashed and died in the explosion—dream-thinking until he died that everything was normal. All the while, his sense of the passage of time was altered. To him, in his dream-thinking, dream-acting state, everything was normal and nothing untoward had happened. So the distant KGB transmitters and associated psychoenergetics team controlled him for over an hour.

"Indeed, that was the exact purpose of the test: demonstrate control (at a great distance) of a skilled person performing highly skilled tasks."

[H: I do wish Bearden, et al., would stop blaming the Russians—for long since has the U.S. manipulated and reprogrammed people to perpetrate terrorists acts and other incredible acts right on target to cause mass manipulation mind control on you-the-people. IT PUTS A MAGNIFICENTLY DIFFERENT CONCEPT POSSIBILITY AND POTENTIAL REGARDING THE 9-11-01 WORLD TRADE CENTER DEBACLE, DOESN'T IT? WELL, YOU HAD BETTER TAKE A BETTER LOOK BECAUSE IT IS "YOU" IN THE NOOSE, MY GOOD FRIENDS.]

The paper Mind Control and EM Wave Polarization Transductions ends with the most chilling and frightening possibility of all: THE PSYCHOENERGETIC ENGINEERING OF THE HUMAN SPECIES AS A WHOLE.

THE ANT WORLD

The Final Race for Direct Mind Control of the Entire Human Species

"The KGB psychoenergetics weapons scientists—because of their direct measurements and detections (and use) of t-polarized waves and LWs for decades—also understand that Jung's collective unconscious mind (of the entire human species) also has its own time-like operations and correlates, which one measures also when using t-polarization measurements and sorting it all out. The collective unconscious mind operations are buried several levels deeper inside the recursive Whittaker structuring inside the EM fields, waves and potentials.

"The KGB scientists also know that something very like Gaia—a collective unconscious mind for all species on Earth—also exists, and they are striving to be able to sort out and measure that one as well. The Gaia operations are buried even deeper in the recursive structuring inside the EM fields, waves, and potentials.

"Actually, from day one, the Russian mind-control scientists have had their eventual goal set upon this 'deeper area of mind and possible mind control' of the entire human species.

"I am convinced that the KGB psychoenergetics scientists understand this deeper area. If they can learn to directly engineer the collective human species unconscious, they can then convert the human species easily into a sort of 'ant' society, modeled along ideal Communism lines, except of course with an excluded 'hierarchy at the top' running everything. The 'ant society'—communist style—is still a variation of feudalism (all systems tend to feudalism or some form thereof). [MM: Sincere evocation of ATON'S plasmic energy shield of Lighted protection (referenced in Phoenix Journal #14, Chapter 3, page 24 or CONTACT of 9/25/02, page 12) will negate the aforementioned scalar EM mind-control techniques.]

"The KGB psychoenergetics weapon scientists are seriously pressing on toward that very goal. In my opinion they are not very far from it right now. ...

"Some versions of Russian mind-control devices were used on Russian soldiers in the Afghan War to condition them for performance of merciless acts." [H: Now please, try that on for the U.S. in the "Gulf War" and all wars since BEFORE Vietnam!]

Whether it is the Russians planning an "ant world" society or rogue U.S. black-ops groups withholding a great boon from the human race, the secrecy on all sides around has allowed largely criminal elements to take over this technology while leaving the civilized elements in the dark. Openness and the spreading of this knowledge among good and decent people is essential—and for that we will have to OVERCOME our frightened DENIALS.

"Meanwhile, rogue groups amongst Western clandestine mind-control researchers will probably arise if they have not already done so. They will likely seek to increase their personal control and further isolate the programs from orthodox government review and from government and legislative control. They may even divert the research into highly illegal and unethical means, because it furthers their own rogue agendas. That is how clandestine U.S. government research can sometimes go sour, unless great care is exercised by the oversight committee in the House and the Senate. [H: Too late, the House and the Senate are already under total control themselves—right on target. Wake up, students, YOU ARE PEOPLE OF THE LIE AND THAT INCLUDES YOUR SO-CALLED REPRESENTATIVES IN CONGRESS AND THE SUB-MANIPULATORS BY THE TOP MANIPULATORS.]

"Sometimes when rogue groups do gain control and total secrecy of a given new technological area, then what appears to be 'U.S. government operations' do start to encompass criminal and unethical operations, hidden usually beneath the deep veil of high classification. Also, if it's "scientific", no one is ever brought to justice, even if the 'evil science actions' are uncovered and publicly revealed."—Bearden

Like the huge energy of the Tesla howitzers, the ability to engineer the mind with longitudinal waveforms is a seeming "magical" thing which can be used for good or ill. Bearden envisions that further developments will allow something like the "downloading" of knowledge via scalar interferometry. Everyone could be highly educated, and quickly and easily.

In the conclusion of the paper "Mind Control and EM Wave Polarization Transductions" Bearden makes a plea to the nations of the world regarding the use of psychoenergetic engineering.

"Let us hope this great new area, already off to a bad start, can be bridled and steered in the direction of helping and healing people, rather than killing or abusing them. The excesses in its bad use are a potent threat to all nations on Earth.

"Yet it can revolutionize medical science, education, communications and psychology. We foresee the day—perhaps 30 years hence—when education will be accomplished by directly loading the software into the mind. [H: This is already perfected technology.] Then in three weeks one will 'load' a doctorate, say, in physics. In three more weeks one will also load a doctorate in chemistry. Another three weeks, in electrical engineering. Another three weeks, an M.D. and so on. When that happens then truly everyone on Earth can be educated. Freedom from ignorance may well be another great freedom that is legally recognized. There will be no impoverished large groups lacking the education to find decent, productive jobs.

[H: My goodness, Mr. Bearden is certainly in fantasy-dream world now, isn't he? The thought is exceptionally positive but the facts are that the entire process is being utilized to "dumb-down" all of humanity until you finally are totally enslaved and back to the dark ages.]

"We urge all nations to use the principles involved: not for human abuse, but for healing, educating, uplifting, and life-expanding of every person on Earth. If we do, we shall all have a far brighter future. Then we shall check what has started out to be the Sword of Damocles and turn it into the golden Millennium."—Bearden

[END OF QUOTING]

I actually do not wish to make many comments on the presentation of this information. I take great exception to the continual dumping of a load on, say, the Russians when even the original “out-front” scientists in the “first place” were NOT “Russians”. They were “Soviets” and mostly under the governmental CONTROL of the Zionist Khazarian Jewish elements. Every high leader in the “Communist” government literally even changed their NAMES in order to hide their identities. Therefore it behooves everyone to get the REAL picture lest you end up the FOOL.

The manipulations have come from use and abuse by the Western (as labeled) elements of those SAME brain-warped power-players. STOP fooling yourselves, for it continually sucks you more and more deeply into the muck of the lies. This is fact from your governments to your religions. STOP IT!

The SOVIETS were a long way out front at one time and perhaps you will remember topics we carefully and often covered long ago on the topics of mind control in the Soviet Union as well as in PSYCHOPOLITICS. There remains such a tendency to toss the blame onto someone else as to boggle my sensitivities to TRUTH.

This is old-hat information, readers, so don't go jump into the deep end lest you again appear the fool. I suggest you all go right back and read TRANSCFORMATION OF AMERICA by Phillips and O'Brien [call 1-800-800-5565 for ordering information]. Mind control has been around for a long time and do not think that the most controlled of all are NOT your great congressmen controllers and manipulators—for they are but the end product of the higher manipulators, greed and corruption at its highest level. There IS a cabal in charge and they serve “you know who” and YOU must change things and not the “YOU KNOW WHATS”.

We need to leave this now, please. However, I want to ask you, now that the Evangelists are into the nasty circumstances to their eyeballs—to have discernment, for you are being fed erroneous (LIES) information constantly and that from your most “respected” preachers (manipulators). Garbage IN—garbage OUT! Certainly it is factual in the recognition that RELIGION IS THE OPIATE OF THE MASSES. Do NOT confuse spirituality in Truth with Religious doctrine and dogma. You are born KNOWING basic “right” from “wrong” and all the lying to self regarding the guidelines will not change an iota of that FACT. AND, BY THE WAY, “ISLAM” IS MORE CHRISTIAN THAN CHRISTIANITY. SO, YOU HAVE BEEN FOOLED AGAIN, IN A VERY BIG WAY. BREAKING THE LAWS HAS NO BEARING ON THE FACT OF THE TEACHINGS.

SO WHILE THE EVANGELISTS DENOUNCE THE ISLAMIC PEOPLE AS BEING EVIL (WHILE ALSO PROCLAIMING THEIR LACK OF KNOWLEDGE ABOUT SAME), I SUGGEST YOU PAY ATTENTION, FOR THE SCALAR WOLVES ARE BARKING AND HUFFING AT YOUR DOOR!

Prophet Mohammad (anyway you want to spell it) was exactly that: a recognized prophet. He neither claimed to be God nor a Christ. This, frankly, is EXACTLY where the MAN, “Jesus”, fits into the picture. So what else can you conjure to facilitate and make war some kind of acceptable game of the day?

Please think on these things, for your very lives depend on sanity and reason in logical flow of sequence of events.

Good morning and please, make a good and positive day.—GCH

RE: TRANSPARENCY INTERNATIONAL (TI) RANKS PHILIPPINES; MALAYSIA PUSHES FOR GOLD DINAR—GOLD-VALUED “EXCHANGE CURRENCY”

*****E.J., please. This is to address the question from W.C. (AFP) re: gold and shipments.

Hatonn—I certainly have no objection to everyone having the information although I believe if it is used, it should be better placed and with little attention. In other words, not on the front page—we are endeavoring to have a low profile (NO profile preferred) and editors tend to want to make big headlines of this type of “sensational” press. This message is more for our paper than any “other”. It is simply a topic of interest where we happen to know the basic story and are quite happy to share it as it attains interest.

No, almost NONE of the gold being hauled out of the Philippines in these daily grab-it-and-run escapades can be equated to the “Yamashita” “treasure” (which mostly “is not” under any circumstances).

That “Yamashita Gold” was and remains simply a recognized “code-type” of reference. The shipping out of gold is from the prior stashes more recently identified by satellite mapping systems. This means, however, that there will always be St. Romano-Marcos fingerprints on large portions of the gold because Marcos got a massive sum in gold as legal counsel in the whole “holdings” of this amazing wealth. The wealth itself belongs to the Philippine “Royal Family” but has been raided and stolen to the extent of major international theft and intrigue.

Since change is coming as we move forward in our own activities it is pulling more and more attention to the frauds and phony holders. Therefore, a massive amount of commodity is being handled clandestinely BEFORE the major recognition of the thefts is brought public.

National Geographic documentaries are like the Federal Reserve documentary regarding GOLD—total hogwash.

There is, however, plenty of gold remaining in this area to back a global currency value system. The problem is that politics is so corrupt and so powerful in a massive global network that it is reaching into the “impossible”.

The Central Bank (CB) is SUPPOSED to have major holdings of gold in reserve just to cover the “treasure” allocated to the Royal OWNERS of the islands but it is KNOWN that all of the accounted CB gold has been shipped out for use in the international TRADING PROGRAMS (96% if memory serves and as published by the CB Governor).

There has been a demand to bring that back but the IMF-WB is FIRST IN LINE to get any funds from such a recall to be applied against the debts incurred by the Philippines.

Gen. Yamashita himself did not have time or inclination to do a lot of “gold stashing” or much “treasure burying” although much gold taken by the Japanese was brought for security to the Philippines.

Marcos had to make a statement about his holdings and from where he got so much wealth and it was a convenient thing to simply say, “Yamashita’s gold”. Most of those stashes which are still around are booby-trapped or mined and many “carriers-hiders” were sealed into the caves, dead or alive.

As stashes were identified it is interesting to note that “buildings”, etc., are fraudulently built on lands which have erroneous titles—to hold the gold in storage. The Ayala lands, for instance, sit atop the areas which provided the monetary funds to build the whole of the construction. The same with the argued-over Ft. Bonifacio development. The problem is that the Bonifacio development is stalled out.

When the going got tight the “tight” got busy and many vacant places are being held until PROPER digging can be undertaken as in more modern construction with underground parking facilities with infrastructure suitable to high-rises where units can be SOLD to disperse the ownership and detract from the fraudulent land holdings and false titles. Unfortunately, with satellite mapping, it is impossible to hide these stashes.

A lot of CHURCHES have indeed been put atop some of the hidden tunnel vaults. After all, good Christian churches wouldn't LIE, would they?

Land purchased RIGHT NOW through our own realization of the PROPER LAND TITLES will pay off exponentially to some of the “dealers” and yes, certainly they do know “why”. However, until you can get away from the “crab mentality” it seems destined that some of the opportunities will simply be lost to the grabbers and kibitzers.

Would THAT happen in a beautiful Christian community? Oh yes indeed, especially when the original association was structured by the dealers and FOR THE VERY PURPOSE BEING SERVED. Moreover, some of those “associations” will move right back to the doorstep of the St. Romanos and Marcos people.

General Yamashita is simply a good drama-myth which served a most convenient need for covering what came later in the big global manipulation of total economic destabilization, Marcos' abduction, and hiding of the assets which were stashed around the globe for structuring economies based on gold values (even to having pre-printed currency) with accompanying gold.

Most “authors” giving their “investigative” tales were paid off to offer the cover and misdirection/disinformation to BUY TIME. Mr. McDougald is a prominent and well-known author who was, in fact, solicited and paid to write disinformation in the Cory Aquino administration.

The documentaries will make every effort to pooh-pooh the Yamashita tale into intrigue and drama only—but yes, indeed, it was real (if only code-named for convenience). It covered a multitude of sins and crimes.

Therefore, yes and no, as to the “hauling away” of the treasures: It would be recognized as part of “that” treasure but sorry to say, it is full-blown bullion which is also, as we write, being “processed” to be able to infiltrate the global “legal” exchange. The “ops” are as clandestine as is the processing of dope while the payoff is in like commodity allowed sidetracking by “handlers” instead of “laundered” funds which becomes a necessity in handling dope. Gold sells anywhere and anytime—somewhere. All it needs is melting and a new hallmark which can say “anything” and preferably on THAT market never an “accounting” hallmark.

Fortunately, gold is VERY HEAVY and even ships have limits beyond which the weight will sink the vessel. But, remember, that ships deliberately sunk off the “deep” are in as safe a storage place as in a subterranean tunnel.

This is a major and recognized CIA-controlled operation.

I would rather not go more deeply into this topic because it is such a dangerous subject and we have no reason to cause any unnecessary rifts. To get to the bottom of the dramas you must backtrack through the Marcos activities and on back to the original corruption of the actual ownership and treasure holdings of both the owners and the pre-existing treasures set forth against THIS very evolvement of global possibilities.

For personal interest of those who follow along and are in holding of assets (commodity) it is time to utilize it, for the plans are to simply identify (especially in Mindanao) (with military and police presence) the confiscation (nationalizing) of ALL SUCH HOLDINGS. It is time to get that converted and secured while it has any value on any market at all. Yes, it CAN have great value and can be placed into security—but not much longer. This is just a word to the wise, for the window is quickly being closed if the controllers are not stopped with their insanity.

Can “they” do it? Of course—the United States of America is a prime EXAMPLE of exactly that deed of taking the gold from the people. There are numerous parties to whom I would like this reminder SHARED.

Thank you for attending this message.

INTERESTING NOTES WHILE THE MICE PLAY AND THE TOP-CATS AWAY TO THE MOST EXCLUSIVE RESORT AREA OF MEXICO FOR APEC TO HIDE THE SECRET AGREEMENTS.

Note who is NOT attending APEC: Putin and Dr. Mahathir. Just for a “pay attention”!

While the President is away on her swing through Eliteville it should be noted that the Philippines is in the worst disastrous state yet. The military is again calling for a “coup” because of absurd intentions to move the military headquarters to remote Mindanao “to be closer to the problems of law and order and bring terrorists under control”. No, it is to be down where the U.S. has already established bases. That, however, is not our focus for this morning.

The entire Congress and Cabinet are “under investigation” (☺) as the political scene heats to boil-over. However, the control is STILL resting in the hands of the global manipulators and International Banking Cartel (IBC)—to bring every nation to its knees. Will it work? Has so far!

While the headlines scream: “Gov’t incurs P2.7-T debt by end-August” another remarkable headline reads: “DBM broke, no funds released”. Oh my, the DBM is the Department of Budget and Management and all resources are GONE and that means a shutdown for pay for all the teachers, school maintenance and constructions and YOU NAME IT. It is the department that handles the MONEY. Worse yet, the U.S. CUT its promised “assistance” by more than half of that promised even as far back as Clinton. Seems Bush’s little puppet Gloria isn’t doing enough bowing and groveling. We are confident, however, that she will come into line in Cabo San Lucas or as referred to: Los Cabos, Mexico.

The peso is dropping in value daily now and therefore there is even MORE “not” being paid to mandatory parties so that the very basic societal needs can be met to “keep rolling”.

The World Bank is upset, as is the IMF, and refuse to “promise” (much the less pay) any more grand debts unless EVERYTHING is sold off—and where does that leave next year’s debt and credit potential? You can’t borrow your way out of debt unless you have potential of pulling in some very large currency fish. And yes, indeed, we certainly do have both the potentiality and the ability—when the confounded games close for the season.

These two organizations mentioned above are in REALLY SAD STATES in Papua New Guinea. The new Prime Minister has shut down ALL privatization plans, even those under ongoing conclusion.

People have been to visit and this next week one high-ranking “participant” will be coming back to Manila and plans to take our Mr. Genewa back to sort and present, plan and set into motion some daring activities. Patience in the face of the WORLD BEASTS is the name of the “success game”, my dear colleagues. By the way, it turns out that Taipan Lucio Tan owns a big whack of PNG. It also is interesting that Mr. Struck is planning to meet with and work with a project with Mr. Tan’s highest-level attorneys. That of course, is on land and a project. You just can never know from where the potential realizations will move into the picture and provide possibilities not yet considered in time frame of a “moment”. You chelas always have a tendency to want to stop the game and run away—while the ball is yet even in the air. There is no problem on the Earth or in Heaven that can’t be solved and abundantly solved—there is only a lack of possibility THINKING AND ACTING. Well, our people have motivation to accomplish this “mission” and so be it—it will, therefore, be accomplished. Usually that WILL PRESENT in unexpected ways through unexpected “means” but will be that which will offer protection, security and forward movement.

Will it come to pass that positive events take place? Well, if and when they do, it probably will be as silent as an owl in flight. The smarter and more honorably shrewd the business parties—the more discrete shall be the interchanges. In other words, they don’t advertise the strategies nor do they bother to float great lies and misinformation to the extent of political careerists. These experienced and truly successful persons don’t play games; they just want what they agree on and expect production; not talk and blarney.

How will it work out for us? Very well indeed in spite of the efforts to hassle, harass and stop our progress. This usually hits in the form of PERSONAL “impossibilities” to be followed by many points of attack of one kind or another. So, just “hold that line”, go with the flow of the current as to shifts, moves and holding stability. This too shall all pass and it WILL BE BETTER. Most will cry out: “I can’t do this again.” But, you CAN and you will, for that is the price of success and wondrous contribution to purpose and a better direction. We do NOT stop when the going gets sticky, my friends. In order to move forward you often have to “move”—literally. Expect better and then “make it so”.

Most of you will recognize that we speak of our personal interchanges. That is BECAUSE that IS what we are “about”, friends. We are about “us” and positive change and accomplishment—even in the face of total adversity if that be necessary. TODAY seems like total adversity in this spot on the map—but it is only a “passage” into that which will change the “scene” a bit and with as little confusion and disruption as would ever be possible—for these two teammates.

Until this hotel actually closes its doors our team is welcomed to use facilities here for ongoing meetings without disruption and in most instances “callers” will never even know the difference. Further, since the new place is only “next door” (literally) and the buildings happen to be owned by the same parties—there will be gracious shifting of mail and packages to facilitate ease of change.

Rumors are, now that agreements are signed and concluded, that there will be an extension of some kind allowing for more time for operation of the hotel itself.

The hotel was ordered by the city to be demolished by 2003-05. Lots of safety problems and sagging infrastructure. It is, however, time to move to be ready for other business needs in the near future. It becomes almost impossible to even consider the actual physical necessities of a move while also doing what life presents on its constant overfilled schedules.

Once again it all must be accomplished on the proverbial “frazzled shoe string”—but this too shall pass one way or another IF we keep right on without interruption of the “important” things ongoing; and THAT is not properly packing—it is conveniently shifting in any haphazard way necessary.

Remember something important, readers: WE GET OUR WORK DONE WHILE THE ADVERSARY IS MAKING OTHER PLANS. A challenge? Oh yes indeed.

TURNING TO OTHER TOPICS OF UTMOST IMPORTANCE

TRANSPARENCY INTERNATIONAL (TI)

I have two columnists’ offerings which I ask be presented here in CONTACT. Both are excellent while addressing the current presentation by Transparency International (TI) placing the Philippines in the category of being the 10th-11th most corrupt nation on the globe. Actually, other “major economic and criminal investigative organizations” have placed it NUMBER ONE!

The REASON I ask to use these is to remind you that we wrote on this very topic of “TI” long ago and told you all about who started it and what was and is its purpose. Finally, after years it is being recognized for the trap it is—along with that other Elite octopus afoot planning to gain the world and destroy what they do not want. I certainly do not need further comment. I do ask Dharma to attend the copy work, however, so that it gets into the records. Thank you, it really does beat packing books.

TRANSPARENCY INTERNATIONAL—
CORRUPTION INC.

[QUOTING No. 1: an “Analysis” observation by Erick San Juan, 10/24/02:]

The latest survey by Transparency International (TI), showing the Philippines as the “11th most corrupt nation on the planet”, could not have come at a worse time, when mysterious bombings have rocked the country, when the peso has dropped to an all-time low, when exports are virtually nil, when stockbrokers have gone to the extent of unloading whatever shares they have in their possession just to give a semblance of activity, and, most of all, when the nation’s ship-of-state is perceived to be flying on auto-pilot. But then again, what can one expect from this global non-governmental organization (NGO) founded by Prince Philip, “to destabilize any country which refuses to submit to the fascist conditionalities of the World Bank-IMF”.

What makes TI’s activities doubly significant is the fact that this World Bank project which masquerades as an independent impartial NGO, passing judgment on both government and corporate sectors resisting free trade, privatization, and the deregulation dictates of globalization predators, is that it spearheads “regime changes”, due to heavy support coming from the National Endowment for Democracy (NED), which is notorious for carrying out dirty tricks against anyone who bucked the austerity policies of the IMF.

Some of the foundations that fund the NED include (1) The Carthage Foundation headed by Richard Mellon Scaife, (2) Ford Foundation, the premier foundation of the Wall St. establishment [H: This is certainly NOT your Father Henry’s organization.], (3) Open Society Institute of New York, sister organization of Lindesmit Center, (4) Soros Foundation, (5) Rockefeller Brothers Fund, which also funds the Trilateral Commission (TC) and the all-powerful Bilderberg Society, (6) Smith Richardson, which passes through for money coming from the CIA, and (7) Westminster Foundation for Democracy.

Supporting NED’s program of cooperation with TI are the so-called “Core Grant Institutes”, composed of (1) International Republican Institute, headed by General Sir Brent Scowcroft of the Forum for International Policy [H: More importantly, Brent Scowcroft is the manipulator who keeps the Mormon Church in the loop of high-rollers and worked very closely in the globalization and banking operations of one, George Herbert Walker Bush’s administration.], (2) National Democratic Institute for International Affairs, the Democratic Party’s IRI, and (4) American Center for International Labor Solidarity.

All these are allowed to meddle in the international affairs of other nations in the name of democracy. This is why astute political observers in the country are of the opinion that PGMA (President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo) no longer is in good standing with the money powers. This being so, many are no longer looking at 2004 but are now speculating on PGMA’s “immediate replacement”.

It’s time for PGMA to listen to her loyal advisers—if she wants to remain in power until 2004. As Lord Bryce aptly stated in his 1921 masterpiece entitled MODERN DEMOCRACIES, “Democracy has no more persistent or insidious foe than the money power. ... That enemy is formidable because he works secretly, by persuasion or deceit, rather than by force, and so takes men unawares. He is a danger to good government anywhere.”

Already, there is news coming from usually reliable sources that U.S. President George W. Bush is “getting pissed” with PGMA’s latest round of blunders, on top of having a wimpish foreign policy. Should Bush avoid her like a deadly virus during the coming APEC summit in Mexico, PGMA may be out of a job, just like her predecessor.

[END QUOTING]

Now, please, let us turn to the next:

[QUOTING THE DAILY TRIBUNE, Friday, Oct. 25, 2002, “Diehard III” by Herman Tiu Laurel (Manila, Philippines):]

CORRUPTION INC.

The Arroyo administration was tagged by Transparency International (TI) as the world’s 10th most corrupt country. We did not need the TI to tell us what is so obvious, but TI insists on issuing periodic “assessments” using its “corruption perception index (CPI)” in its “anti-corruption” crusade. Anti-corruption is a motherhood statement that nobody disagrees with it, but TI leaves out the gravest corruption of our times: The financial exploitation and usury by the global financial oligarchy through the floating exchange rate and interest rate system.

The TI, an international non-government organization ostensibly crusading against corruption, actually champions the destruction of Third World nation-states and is not the knight-in-shining-armor it wants the world to think. It is a sinister instrument of subversion against nation-states of the Third World that the TI’s principals were trapped in the debt debacle in the 1970s and 1980s. The debt trap was set when the global financial system was uncoupled from the Gold Standard by U.S. President Nixon in 1971 followed by President Jimmy Carter’s floating interest rates in 1980 that institutionalized usury.

Michele Steinberg of the Executive Intelligence Review writes: “TI operatives use the atmosphere created by the economic depression, underemployment, poverty and insecurity, to direct the fear and rage of the population at targets defined by London... This neatly prevents people from identifying the real cause of their problems: The usury of the Anglo-American financial oligarchy and with the help of controlled media, makes sure that rage hits political leaders who are an obstacle to the global financial oligarchy’s destruction of the nation-state.”

Dr. Mahathir Mohammad (Malaysia) used exchange and capital control in the 1997 Asian financial crisis to defend his country. The TI attacked Mahathir on corruption, aided by Time, Newsweek and the Asian Wall Street “Urinal”. The International Monetary Fund-World Bank (IMF-WB) foisted Anwar Ibrahim, whom Mahathir demolished by bringing out Anwar’s crony contracts. The same TI gang, not yet by that name, demonized Marcos and sainted Cory Aquino but Marcos accrued only $900 million in debt each year in power while Cory added $2.5 billion a year for seven years.

Steinberg’s brief history of the TI says the inspiration came from Prince Philip around 1984, in meetings organized for spiritualism, environmentalism and the attacks on the nation-state idea. By 1993, Prince Philip and close collaborators like Sir James Wolfensohn hit on using the issue of corruption as the “sledgehammer” against governments troublesome to the international financial powers, branded as corrupt and replaced in a coup d’etat they supported. Al Gore (Mahathir’s nemesis and Anwar’s ally) catapulted TI by sharing the podium with Jeremy Pope, TI managing director.

The CPI was drawn up to use as basis for denying a country IMF and WB loans, or targeted for boycotts, sanctions and even invasion. TI’s dissolute and sinister character becomes crystal clear when one learns who runs it from behind and funds it:

Robert “body count” McNamara, the Vietnam War adviser and WB president, who allowed the war carnage to go on even after realizing it was wrong and unwinnable; Crown Agents (managing director Peter Berry) a logistical, technical and arms provider to the British Special Air Services and commando forces and the British Commonwealth since the British opium trade and John Brademas, head of the Third World destabilizer National Endowment for Democracy.

There’s more: The Open Society Institute of mega-finance speculator and drug legalization crusader George Soros; Rio Tinto, the British mineral cartel and plunderer of Africa; and the last but not least, the Ford Foundation which, among its lesser known “contributions”, pioneered U.S. domestic counterinsurgency and covertly financed the 1960’s U.S. terrorist group Weather Underground.

TI director Jeremy Pope bragged they have brought down governments. Like Benazir Bhutto who was replaced by Nawar Sharif. Sharif, later, was deposed for corruption by semi-dictator President Pervez Musharraf. But CNN is now reviving Benazir Bhutto to taunt Musharraf. Pope also bragged they made TI advisor council member Gen. Olusegun Obasanjo president of Nigeria, but Obasanjo is also under threat of impeachment now due to corruption. President Obasanjo once threatened to impose currency and capital controls, which brought on corruption “perceptions”.

While the latest TI report on Arroyo’s corruption is absolutely accurate, the TI’s agenda is to help solve the problem but to keep Arroyo on needles and pins. The same CPI will be used to browbeat future Philippine governments to toe the IMF-WB line. I don’t want FPJ, Ping Lacson or any legitimate future president to be victimized by this “perception” manipulation. The TI must be exposed for what it is—Transgressions International.

[END QUOTING]

By the way, to you inquiring minds who might just think the old Marcos age is dead and gone with the man—forget it. There is great strength in former allies of the “strongman” as well as his family who have never taken back-seats to anyone and remain ever popular and fully able to regain stature.

It often takes a long and longer time to bring things around full-cycle to be able to expose the lies and represent Truth in FACT. But, given effort and “time” the wrongs will be discovered and disclosed.

Where and when possible we are most happy to serve and sometimes the very person you need will be found on the other side of the wall or the hallway—or even just down the street. It always pays to be a good neighbor.

I would like to close this now, for we truly are buried in myriads of other needs of the moment.

GCH (Journalist at Large [or is that “Large Journalist”?]) Either way we are grateful to you readers who stay tuned).

PHOENIX JOURNAL #14 (1990)

CHAPTER 14

REC #2 HATONN

MON., APRIL 30, 1990 9:30 A.M. YEAR 3 DAY 257

Hatonn present in truth and radiance. Good morning.

Today we shall outline the Guyana incident. It is placed within this Journal because, on the surface of it, it appears to be a “religious” incident. It was not!

I have not decided as to whether or not we shall cover, in depth, other religious incidents and personalities to any great extent, for so much has already been written about those evangelists’ inappropriate activities and it only consumes time of the readers who are in need of that which is not openly known.

As with Jim Bakker, I would like to point out some of his open protestations regarding his actions, so that you ones can place your own actions into relative discernment.

Bakker compared himself to Christ—“Why does everyone want to nail Jim Bakker to the cross?” he asked, and blames Christ for his problems, “Jesus, how could you let me make such dumb mistakes?” God will always let you make stupid and dumb mistakes—every time! [MM: Doesn’t the Spectrum Cult come to mind?!] In the physical plane YOU have the reins, my friends. The really troubling aspect of the PTL story is the complete inability of the Bakkers to question themselves. I suppose Jim might have a bit more time now to reflect on these matters—like a 45-year sentence for fraud and conspiracy. However, do not expect him to serve 45 years. He became one of the “big boys” and when it is again appropriate, they will set him free to feast upon the unsuspecting—again. And worse, you who will turn the other cheek “in Godness” will be the prey.

The great optimism preached by PTL became its downfall. The assumption was that if God didn’t approve, “they” wouldn’t have so much—now apply that to the other TV evangelists and all hierarchy “preachers”.

They simply marched, and march, triumphantly—and totally transparently—onward and the masses feed the greed and enhance the plague of lies, praising the Lord and never doubting for a second that they are doing anything but the clearly revealed will of the Almighty. While, all the interim, they are preaching the list of man-made laws and commandments and re-writing the scriptures in interpretation to suit their own actions. They wrap it all up in a neat bundle by proclaiming that all actions of any kind are already paid for by the blood of Jesus—and therefore, whatever you have done or will do, is forgiven in total, with no repercussions based on that spilled blood from Calvary. Do you not see the foolishness? The real mystery herein, is how ones such as the Falwells, Bakkers, Swaggarts and Crouch’s TBN and PTL could fool so many for so long!

THE BAPTISTS

The Southern Baptist Convention is your nation’s largest Protestant denomination with a view toward evangelization. But Southern Baptists have been rocked by internal disputes over the Bible content and interpretation, abortion and the role of women in the churches. They are now losing more active members than they are gaining and contributions have dropped, forcing some cutbacks. The above is a direct quote from a news-press release and then it is followed by an article which I will not bother to print.

This group became totally merged at the top levels with Reagan politics and a push to carry their doctrine unto “every person in the world by the year 2000”. Not, you will note, the word of Truth of God and the Laws of God and Creation—but rather, the re-interpreted commandments according to the Baptists. If ones of the staffs of these churches didn’t agree—they were promptly purged. Well, who pushed such a thing?—(sic, sic) shame on you ones! Two workers within the Cartel fringes, seeking to get into the hierarchy of the Cartel—Paul Pressler, a Texas state judge, and his ideological partner, Paige Patterson.

WHAT DO POPEYE AND THE QUAKERS HAVE IN COMMON?

This one is amusing indeed, Popeye the Sailor Man has hit some rough seas, it appears. For the new Quaker Oats man is none other than Popeye.

The Friends, a traditional peace denomination, don’t think their Quaker faith is being respected. Would companies use “Popeye, the Catholic Man” or “Popeye, the Jewish man” ads to hawk their products? Well, once again—no mention of God or Christ! So be it.

HOW ABOUT JEWS, GREEKS, CHRISTIANS AND JERUSALEM?

Strange indeed! The Greek people detest and deplore the Jewish Israelites. And yet a Greek arrangement was what opened the Jewish settlement in the Christian Quarter of Jerusalem; an arrangement with the Israeli government.

Now, after the settlers are in and all but total war has broken forth, the Orthodox Church will set forth a protest in solidarity with churches in Jerusalem.

The really strange point is that the Holy places were closed for the first time in over 800 years—for one day. My, my, we must not interrupt that tourist money by making a point in truth. Besides, everyone there knows that those are “appointed” shrines. All know that the

Jesus Christ is not buried in that sepulcher as projected on the touring public. You also know that Jerusalem must come back into enough control of the Israel Zionists to get that temple built in a timely manner. But what of God and Christ? No mention what-so-ever!

ECOLOGIST SNAGS RELIGION AWARD— NOBEL PRIZE!

Religion’s “Nobel Prize” goes to an ecologist, Charles Birch, an Australian “eco-philosopher” (I knew all of you knew that!). He is a co-winner of one of the world’s biggest cash prizes: the Templeton Prize for Progress in Religion.

To save the planet, says Professor Birch, people’s perception of God and creation need to change.

“There’s something wrong about the way we’re operating in the world. Industrialization is despoiling the planet. We’re annihilating 1,000 species a year. When you ask what is wrong, it comes down to there’s something wrong about our values.”

As a maverick biologist, Birch was an early prophet of environmental degradation. His pioneer work, The Distribution and Abundance of Animals, outlined in 1954 the implications of unfettered population growth.

He is touted as one of the two or three most distinguished ecologists in the world. He is the son of a Methodist minister and has a less-trumpeted reputation as a radical Christian theologian. For almost as long as he has been a scientist, Birch has engaged in the “adventurous reflection”, of questions relating to God and biological science. Oh my, no wonder you people have problems.

Humanity’s “flawed” values stem from a general view of the Earth as a material stage filled with objects created for man’s comfort and advancement, is his projection, and so good so far. “Ever since the rise of science in the 17th Century, the model of the universe that people have tended to support is a very materialistic, mechanical model.” The universe is seen as “an object made in the past, out of material building blocks, now running itself”, with God outside it.

“But modern science is starting to see that it can’t reproduce our world with a building-block model, there’s something mental in existence—in our life—which we let slip through our fingers in the past. From protons to people, you have to look at them more as subjects rather than objects. Then you can see much more easily the relationship of God, not just human beings, but to all of Creation. That is because God can be incarnate in life, but God cannot be incarnate in machinery.”

This perspective, it would seem, gives all life forms, not mankind alone, inherent worth. And while Birch welcomes the recent upsurge in public awareness of environmental issues, he chastens conservationists for continuing to campaign on the anthropocentric ethic: “Look after Nature, then Nature will look after us.”

“I want them to be concerned for animals whether or not they’re useful to us. They are subjects, not just objects.

“The $64,000 question is: ‘Where did subjectivity begin in the whole of cosmic evolution?’ Most biologist would say, ‘Oh somewhere below mammals. Birds, maybe. Certainly not frogs...!’ There’s a big problem in that approach, because you’re saying mind and consciousness and all the characteristics of life have come out of something which is totally non-living, totally non-mental. The alternative approach is to say in some form or another the mental or the sentient was right there from the beginning. That’s a different perspective.”

I suppose it is a start and I will leave it with you for further consideration.

* * *

Well, let us just go back to the native Indian tradition and all will be well and we will abandon corruption and political manipulations. SOMETHING TO PONDER: IF THE EVIL INVADERS BOUGHT THE AMERICAS WITH A FEW BEADS AND TRINKETS, DOES IT NOT THEREFORE STAND TO LOGICAL CONCLUSION THAT SOMEONE SOLD IT TO THE INVADERS FOR A HANDFUL OF BEADS AND TRINKETS? AH SO! We had best just return to that which will work—a return to the Laws and Balance of God Creator and Creation.

WILL THE 'REAL' GUYANA STORY
PLEASE STAND UP!

In your year 1976 the United States and Russia became embroiled in top-secret hostilities in preparation for World War III/Nuclear War I. It began in earnest during the summer of 1976 when the still secret Underwater Missile Crisis erupted. It then expanded into wholesale nuclear sabotage of the United States with weapons now planted at literally thousands of locations nationwide. (We shall discuss this at a separate writing.) These weapons ranged from mammoth hydrogen bombs ready to destroy your largest dams and reservoirs down to tiny nuclear devices called 'micronukes' by the Russians.

For some time the Russians had been detonating micronukes in a steady drumbeat of explosions all over America. Still feel safe and cozy and unwilling to 'rock the boat'?

In September of 1977 the secret war took a decisive new turn. In the still secret Battle of the Harvest Moon in space, America's Secret Rulers lost their supposed ace in the hole for the coming planned war. In a shocking upset, Russia knocked out America's secret Moon beam-weapons base in Copernicus Crater (oh yes, there was one!). Since that time Russia had seized the dominant position militarily in space. Now let's review a little arithmetic—from 1975 or so, to 1990—hummmmm, about fifteen years maybe? What do you think they might have been doing all this while?

We will cover all these subjects most carefully but this Guyana was set up in a religious setting and it fits into this Journal without distraction.

Prior to this incident there were drastic changes taking place in the leadership of both Russia and the United States. In Russia the original ruling factions after 1917, the atheistic Bolshevik Zionists, had been overthrown after a progressive struggle for over six decades. The Kremlin was now under the absolute control of a tough band of native Russians, a Christian sect who considered the Bolsheviks to be evil incarnate. As a result, the Bolsheviks were being expelled from Russia and they were flocking mostly to the United States. They were joining the many Bolsheviks already in powerful positions in the U.S. in a sophisticated new Bolshevik revolution. In the process, they were gradually preempting much of the power that was once exercised by their Secret Allies, the third-generation Rockefeller brothers. As Bolshevik power became ever greater and greater in the United States, the Satanic fruits of that power were and are becoming increasingly visible.

In April 1978, the lives of over one hundred unsuspecting civilians were deliberately put in great danger for the sake of an intelligence mission.

This was the case of Korean Airlines Flight 902 which invaded supersensitive Russian air space and was shot down. There was nothing accidental about the Korean airliner episode, and the threat of death to all the innocent passengers was the key ingredient in the episode. It would have been far easier for the Russian fighters to blow the Boeing 707 out of the air in a ball of flame than to force it down with only a few casualties, as was done.

As the time passed the Bolshevik grip grew steadily greater in its hold on the United States—and human life was growing cheaper by the day. This time it would not be a hundred but nearly a thousand civilian lives, and this time it would be that they would die because nothing would be left to chance.

The gruesome tragedy at Jonestown, Guyana, is only a pale shadow of what lies ahead for the entire United States if the cancer of Bolshevism, along with a few other Cartels, is not stopped. Those who are seized by the Bolshevik way of thinking are quite schizophrenic and Satanic and unable to tell right from wrong—or at least practice in the guise of "right". When these tendencies are allowed to go unchecked and the Bolsheviks acquire power, the consequences for society as a whole are tragic indeed.

Both murderous and suicidal actions take place on a scale beyond comprehension. It happened seventy-five years ago in Russia as the Bolsheviks took over there; and now, as the Bolsheviks are efforting to take over in your territory, it is happening—right in the good old U.S. of A.

MILITARY PURPOSE OF JONESTOWN

Yes, I said "military". And a bit later, I shall show you how Leo J. Ryan, Congressman, was utilized. The set-up for the Guyana tragedy was staged as early as 1974, with the revealing of the presence of a Guyana missile base in that place. It made radio news all across America but was promptly covered and snuffed. This was in June. In October it was again brought to public attention by daring speakers and again snuffed along with threats to cease-and-desist with such news items—"or else".

The news items ran something like the following: that according to reliable intelligence sources on the matter, the Republic of Guyana (next to Venezuela in South America) had been turned into another Cuba with Atomic Missiles aimed at the Gatun Locks of the Panama Canal and at your cities in the United States.

Of course your government, which dances to a tune called "Dynasty", refused to even investigate the charges—actually, why would they? They set it up!

The warnings were frequently re-presented and some of the public citizens did in fact effort to gather information which inquiries were met with stone-wall silence or double-talk and denials. Many simply discounted the whole story but some more insightful patrons came to realize that you couldn't believe your Government. Well, guess who was right?

MUST GO BACK TO 1965 TO LAY THE PLOT

The developments which were destined to culminate in tragedy at Jonestown began in 1965. Guyana was a newly independent country, the former British colony of British Guiana.

At that time the secret Rockefeller/Soviet alliance was in full swing, and the long-range joint plans for a controlled Nuclear War were moving right along. Both sides were looking ahead toward an eventual double-cross, but that still lay far in the future at that time. The deliberate strengthening of Russia at America's expense was part of their joint plan for World Government and conquest. The Cuban Missile Crisis of 1962 threw a temporary monkey wrench into the program when President John F. Kennedy intervened personally and stopped the nuclear arming of Cuba; and for doing that, and other humane "indiscretions", he lost his life in Dallas barely a year later.

Kennedy's successor, Lyndon Johnson, made sure that he followed the script more carefully. In the wake of the Cuban crisis, the Russians needed a new forward base in the Caribbean area for strategic purposes until the heat was off in Cuba. To accommodate Russia, Guyana was selected for this purpose, and David Rockefeller saw to it that a Marxist named Forbes Burnham became Prime Minister. In return, the Chase Manhattan Bank became fiscal agent for Guyana, giving Rockefeller access to the gold produced in Guyana; and as a key factor in all this, then-President Lyndon Johnson in 1965 turned over the American Air Base, Atkinson Field, to Guyana.

America's right to retain control over the Base for several more decades was simply thrown away without any excuses offered. Atkinson Field, which was then renamed Temehri Airfield, is south of Georgetown, the capital city. This is the airfield to which American helicopters carried bodies to be airlifted to America after the Jonestown disaster.

When Johnson gave the Temehri Airfield to Marxist Guyana, he handed Russia a very large plum indeed. The Temehri Airfield is the largest in all of Latin America, larger even than New York's largest airport, the John F. Kennedy Airport; and its location makes it ideal for ferrying Cuban troops and supplies to Africa.

As a result, Johnson's action on behalf of Rockefellers robbed the United States of an important logistic connection to Africa while opening the door for Cuban troops. Your later trouble with Cuban troops in Angola and elsewhere in Africa were partly the result.

For a number of years, Russian military activity in Guyana was heavily concentrated around the vicinity of the Temehri Airfield. In 1974, they emplaced missiles in sites that ringed the airfield. Then the missiles were pulled out from those locations and moved to a separate missile complex west of Georgetown, over the following two years.

In that new complex, the missiles were deployed at sites scattered over an area some 30 miles in diameter. In the approximate center was a command-and-control installation commanded by Russian personnel. And the plot began to thicken considerably.

After the missile base relocation was completed, the missile complex was centered at a point about 70 miles northwest of Temehri Airfield; and roughly another 70 miles to the northwest lay the Jonestown People's Temple complex, an Israeli-type kibbutz. So the missile base ended up about midway between the Jonestown commune and Temehri Airfield. It was no accident, my friends, that the People's Temple kibbutz was located so close to the missile base.

ORIGINS OF THE PEOPLE'S TEMPLE

The origins of the People's Temple in the 1950s had nothing to do with government intrigues. It was not until about 1970 that certain elements of the United States Intelligence community began to infiltrate and subvert the People's Temple. The Rockefeller brothers have always had a standard practice of supporting not only the faction in power but also spies and opponents to that faction—and who doesn't want a little "free" funding and support money? In this manner they are always in a position, at least theoretically, to cut down anyone who tries to break free of their control. Heed this lesson well lest ye be tempted by their guiles in our own work.

In the case of Guyana, the Rockefellers wanted to have such a tool in Guyana as a check on Forbes Burnham, the Prime Minister, whom they had put in power with use of their money. Certain elements within the United States Intelligence community under general coordination by the CIA were given the task of finding ways of accomplishing this.

In the course of evaluating various options, it was concluded that the People's Temple would prove ideal. The psychological profile of the leader, Jim Jones, indicated that he could be converted into a powerful tool of the Unseen Rulers. Contrary to reports in the controlled major media, Jim Jones was born a Jew (oops), and he already exhibited tendencies toward kibbutz-style organization that could be channeled into useful directions. This would be brought about through a combination of both conscious and unconscious factors.

At the conscious level, money and powerful political support would be channeled in his direction; at the unconscious level, the technique of psychological programming, which we will discuss in more detail elsewhere, would be employed.

Gradually, Jim Jones would lose control of his own personality and become what your Unseen Rulers wanted him to be. The process would inevitably create tremendous internal conflicts and turn Jim Jones into a troubled and dangerous man and that, dear ones, is exactly that which came to pass.

CHANGES IN BEHAVIOR

By 1973 changes in Jones' behavior began to be noticed by his friends and followers. His conversion into a semi-conscious agent of death and intrigue was underway in earnest by that time. That same year the mushrooming funds of the People's Temple were used to launch the agricultural kibbutz at Jonestown, Guyana, though only a few people went there at that time.

Guyana was a rigid Marxist police state, and no one could have launched a new enterprise like the Commune without its approval by Forbes Burnham; but David Rockefeller agents made sure that Burnham received all the assurances he needed that the Jones compound would fit neatly into the Marxist environment of Guyana.

At the same time, Forbes Burnham had begun double-crossing David Rockefeller, exactly as had been feared. He was now playing ball politically but he was hiding much of Guyana's gold production in caves in the mountains. David Rockefeller found this out sometime later, but by then the much bigger problem was developing from a double-cross by Russia, so Burnham was left untouched in order to make way for bigger things.

By summer 1974, the Rockefeller brothers were still soundly in bed with the Kremlin, and there were already ominous signs that something was happening in Russia which they did not understand; but they simply could not imagine that their old Kremlin allies, the Bolsheviks, were being overthrown.

And so it goes; just as any mention of possible threat from Russia goes totally denied this day, so went denied the public warnings about Guyana missiles—and the Government spokesmen went right on lying and ridiculing those who dared speak out. The planned and programmed Nuclear War was being blueprinted for the late 1970s and they did not want the plan to be spoiled by public awareness; but two years later Russia's all-out military double-cross of America began with the Underwater Missile Crisis of 1976.

Most of you know about that crisis, which the Government kept silent about, but we shall talk about it again, later. Your Unseen Rulers were badly shaken by that surprise and initially tried to reinstate their secret alliance with the Kremlin rulers. After all, they had succeeded in doing so once before after President Kennedy broke the rules and made an issue of the Cuban missiles; but meanwhile they also began setting in motion contingency plans to gear up their possible real war.

Dharma, this is enough for this portion, since we had so many personal matters this morning. Please take a short rest and then we can continue. Thank you, chela. I shall move to stand-by and be prepared to resume when you are ready.

MON., APRIL 30, 1990 1:30 P.M. YEAR 3 DAY 257

MAJOR TARGET

The Guyana missile base was one of the major targets of the revised planning. When this planning began more than two years prior, the Space Battle of the Harvest Moon still lay in the future. It seemed quite inconceivable that America could lose its secret beam-weapons base which was soon to be operational on the Moon; and so long as they had this Moon Base to depend on, your Unseen Rulers thought they could not lose. But in light of the Underwater Missile double-cross, they wanted to be able to pull as many of Russia's military teeth as possible. In this way, their destruction of Russia would be even more complete than originally planned.

The planners of Operation Guyana were given a difficult problem to solve. The objective was to wipe out the Russian missile base in Guyana thereby removing the threat it posed to the Panama Canal and southern American cities; but this was to be a pre-war operation carried out covertly and with complete surprise. It had to be covert, because neither the United States nor Russia could afford to have it known that the base ever existed; and the surprise had to be complete, because with even the briefest warning the base could be reinforced and defended by Cuban troops.

From these requirements it was concluded that a commando-style raid would be necessary, something like the Israeli raid at Entebbe Airport in Uganda in July 1976. Are the similarities and implications becoming a bit more clear to you readers? Any other kind of attack would have required your leaders to do what President Kennedy did in 1962, and that is: Tell the American people what was afoot and ask for your support. At all cost, the one thing your Unseen Rulers were determined not to do was to tell you anything. The problem then arose—how to get the joint attacking forces into Guyana in a force large enough and fast enough to do the job.

Wiping out a base like that one in Guyana, after all, is no small task and it takes experience. It was then concluded that somehow some very sudden, massive, compelling excuse would have to be provided in order to enable the secret joint military forces to enter Guyana temporarily. The excuse, whatever it was, would have to be so visible as to tie Russian's hands so that Russia could not retaliate in Guyana without giving away what she had been up to there; and the excuse, whatever it was, would have to appear non-military yet require military expertise. Furthermore, some provision would have to be made for ALL casualties in the missile-base attack to be removed from Guyana after the raid, otherwise their presence in Guyana could have been made the basis of an international incident trumped up around some different story unrelated to the secret missile base.

For example, the government of Guyana, following Russian dictates, might have publicly displayed the bodies of the joint military forces killed in the attack and said they were killed in an attempted coup d'etat against Forbes Burnham. It was a very big order, but the Jonestown kibbutz proved to be the answer. All that was necessary was to arrange for many hundreds of American citizens to die suddenly in Guyana and under conditions guaranteeing instant massive publicity.

The sheer enormity of the tragedy would require military involvement, and the location of Jonestown was made to order. Helicopters commuting between the Temehri Airfield and Jonestown would naturally fly over the missile complex—whose details were known in spite of expert camouflage. This meant that joint special armed forces could be set down near the perimeters of the missile base and later recovered, along with casualties, with relative ease. And as the reporters at the Temehri Airfield watched helicopters leaving to the northwest and return from the same direction, they were led to assume that all were going to and from Jonestown some 150 miles away. They had no way of knowing that many of the flights were to and from the Russian missile base, which lay in the same direction but only half as far distant.

IN THE BEGINNING OF THE SCHEME

When it was decided to use mass deaths at Jonestown as a cover for the missile-base attack, Jonestown was functioning only as an outpost of the People's Temple. There were not enough people there to provide a sufficiently major incident to serve the intended purpose, and so, through both direct and indirect means, Jim Jones was persuaded to go to the Guyana kibbutz himself, taking as many of his flock as would follow him. That turned out to be about 25% to 30%, and by following him they automatically identified themselves as the group most highly dependent upon Jones personally. They were also most susceptible to the combined influences of exhaustion, intimidation, and isolation from outside help—in other words, just right for thorough brainwashing.

Ever since the days of the Korean War it had been known conclusively that brainwashing techniques can cause many people to do all kinds of things. Even hardened American GIs in Korea fell victim to brainwashing in surprising numbers because they did not understand what they were up against. But, of course, the Jonestown victims were anything but hardened soldiers.

In August 1977 Jim Jones left for Guyana with his large sacrificial flock. That same month, United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young carried a message to Prime Minister Forbes Burnham of Guyana. He said that under certain conditions the United States and the World Bank would increase its aid to Guyana—that is, line Burnham's pocket by a factor of ten times more than previous levels. And so the key disaster of Jonestown was set in motion in a day shortly before the Battle of the Harvest Moon.

POOR LEO RYAN

To trigger the whole tragedy and in a blare of publicity, the interest of late Congressman Leo J. Ryan was developed and programmed.

In a display of courage that is practically unknown today in the U.S. Congress, Ryan went to Guyana knowing that it might be dangerous. But what he did not know, of course, was that he had been lured into making a trip whose tragic outcome was planned well in advance.

Congressman Ryan and those who died with him at Port Kaituma Airport were casualties in the secret war that was leading to Nuclear War One. And so were the hundreds of other American civilians who died in the so-called “mass suicide” at Jonestown, Guyana.

As the time approached for Congressman Ryan to make his anticipated trip to Guyana, other activities were set in motion on the diplomatic and military stage. It was essential that Russia’s attention be diverted away from Guyana until too late to take action to protect the missile base. Russia’s prize in the Western Hemisphere, of course, is Cuba; and so in the final days before the Battle of Guyana on Thanksgiving Day 1978, the trumped-up MIG-23 crisis—does anyone remember that one?—was used to divert Russian attention to Cuba. Oh, we have lots and lots of wondrous secrets to talk about, don’t we? Only too late did the Kremlin discover that the real target was not Cuba but Guyana.

THE BATTLE: THANKSGIVING DAY 1978

Close aides of the late Congressman Leo Ryan have reported publicly that his ill-fated decision to go to Guyana was triggered by a State Department report to him that he found totally unsatisfactory. This reaction of Ryan’s had been correctly predicted and, in fact, deliberately encouraged. With elections coming up, Congressman Ryan decided to schedule the trip after the election during the congressional recess.

This was a quite natural decision, and had also been anticipated by the planners behind the scenes. No politician would miss the opportunity to campaign right up to election day.

As the time approached for his trip, the false issue of the Cuban MIG-23 crisis erupted. The Carter Administration had learned nearly a year prior that the Russians were going to send the MIG-23s to Cuba and decided that it would be a perfect pretext for a fake crisis. The MIG-23 can carry certain types of nuclear weapons as claimed; but even in this role it is a tactical weapon best suited for support of ground or naval forces.

The MIG-23 in and of itself does not threaten America in the same way that the 1962 Cuban missiles did; and so when the United States began playing up the MIG-23s, it was very obvious to the Kremlin that this was a deliberate effort to stir up public tension over Cuba. The questions was: Exactly what was the United States up to? Would the Carter Administration be so crazy as to invade Cuba? Such a thing sounded irrational, but America’s Unseen Rulers were behaving more and more irrationally.

This, too, was partially deliberate and was intended to keep the chess players in the Kremlin off balance, but it was also partly a result of the increasing degree of control over America by those Satanic schizophrenics, the Bolsheviks.

Cuba was, after all, very important to Russia, for Russia was looking ahead to world domination after Nuclear War I; and for that, Cuba is Russia’s main beachhead in the Western Hemisphere. Even more urgently, Cuba was the unadmitted home of Russia’s Caribbean Submarine Fleet, and that fleet had repeatedly moved into attack positions in the Gulf of Mexico over the prior two years and more during periods of tension.

As if that were not enough, there were concentrations of nuclear weapons in at least four land locations in Cuba. One was near the north coast roughly 10 miles inland southeast of Cardenas. This location is 150 miles due south of Cape Sable, Florida. A second site was about 150 miles to the east-southeast of that and about 10 miles inland from the north coast. One hundred twenty-five miles farther to the southeast was a third concentration 15 miles northeast of Martí, well inland. A fourth nuclear site was near the eastern tip of Cuba, 28 miles north-northwest of the United States Naval Base at Guantanamo Bay.

With all this at stake, American publicity over the MIG-23s caused worry in the Kremlin. And in early November the tension increased when the United States began sending SR-71 reconnaissance flights over Cuba—shades of 1962.

In response, massive formations from the Atlantic, Pacific, and Caribbean Submarine Fleets of the Russian Navy began fanning out along America’s east, west, and gulf coasts on November 6. They did not deploy into attack formations but their sheer numbers signaled a clear warning to Washington. At that moment they were still on station, many with neutron weaponry.

Then during the week immediately preceding the tragedies in Guyana the MIG-23 pseudo crisis built to a climax. Beginning on Tuesday, November 14, a huge combined American and British naval Task Force began heading toward Cuba. By midweek, Cuban defense forces were on full alert, and on Thursday, November 16, a group of twelve United States Senators in Moscow—supposedly to discuss the SALT talks—met with Russia’s Kosygin.

There they pressed the alleged issue of the Cuban MIG-23 argument, calling it a “false issue”. As a former test pilot and America’s first astronaut in orbit, Senator Glenn knew what he was talking about, but Kosygin’s anger over the other comments about the MIGs provided the United States Intelligence community with valuable proof that the decoy action toward Cuba was working. The next day, November 17, Russia publicly admitted sending MIG-23s to Cuba, calling them strictly defensive weapons.

The same day an editorial in the Washington Post typified the crescendo of media attention to the Cuban MIG-23s. It was titled: “A New Cuban Missile Crisis?”

The very next day, Saturday, November 18, Congressman Leo Ryan, three newsmen, and a woman seeking to escape from Jonestown were slaughtered at the Port Kaituma Airport. At least a dozen other people were also wounded, but there was no effort to destroy the airplane filled with terrified escapees from Jonestown. Instead, many witnesses were left alive, and a smaller plane managed to take off right after the airport massacre and report the attack in the capital, Georgetown.

Immediately world attention was focused on Guyana, and meanwhile the mass murder at Jonestown—wrongly called a mass suicide—was underway.

At this point, the elaborate decoy action toward Cuba was no longer needed, so the Pentagon announced that a routine naval exercise was in progress which would approach no closer to Cuba than 50 miles. Cuban defense forces relaxed, but the real action was only beginning in Guyana. The methodical executions of Congressman Ryan and three prominent newsmen had guaranteed that Jonestown would shortly be in the glare of publicity. Having guaranteed this publicity, Jim Jones then ordered the mass executions at the Jonestown kibbutz.

DETAILS OF THAT MASSACRE

The complete details of the Jonestown disaster may never be known publicly. I can promise you, however, that very, very few who died there, took their own lives—and that is, after all, what suicide is. Many were tricked, not realizing that the death rites were real. Many more resisted, but they were weak, helpless, and confronted with armed execution squads. So by various means, several hundred people were poisoned with potassium cyanide. However, there were many others who did try to escape and who resisted more effectively. Many of those people were herded off into the jungle and shot without mercy.

Finally when the mass murder was completed, the executionists performed their final task of stage-managing the horrible death scene. In order to achieve the surprise needed in attacking the Russian missile base, it was critically important that the first reports from Jonestown described the scene as a mass suicide. Only in this way could its actual military significance be hidden long enough to fool the Russians.

Therefore, all of the bodies free of gunshot wounds were carefully arranged in neat rows and other groupings, suggesting at first sight that everyone died willingly and deliberately. This was the scene that greeted Guyanese troops late the following day, Sunday, November 19. It was more than 24 hours after the kibbutz victims died and the executioners, including the real Jim Jones, were long gone. I will return to the matter of Jones himself later, for I know you are curious as to why I keep telling you he ended up in Israel.

COUNTERS AFRAID OF DISEASE

The Guyanese troops were afraid of possible disease but counted the bodies as accurately as possible without close handling or moving the bodies. The total they reported was 409 on that Sunday night. The initial impression of a mass suicide was seized upon by the controlled major media of the United States. Without waiting for an investigation, the media drummed away at the suicide image of Jonestown as if it were a proven fact. After a few days a few people did begin to raise questions, but by then the initial image of suicide had served its purpose of opening Guyana’s doors to the United States.

For example, on Tuesday, November 21, Jim Jones’ surviving son, Steven, said in a Georgetown press conference, “There’s no way it could have been mass suicide.” And that same day, according to the Washington Star, a Guyanese source pointed out a serious medical discrepancy in the Jonestown kibbutz death scene. He said, “If you die of cyanide, which seems to have been the poison, your body goes into spasm and contortion death, but at Jonestown everyone looked totally relaxed.”

The reason for this discrepancy was that by the time the Guyanese troops arrived, all the bodies had been rearranged. They were also placed face down for the most part. This was so that the widely publicized news photos would not ruin the desired impression of calm by letting you see the victims’ final expressions of agony.

To continue the nightmare charade to fool the Russians, the United States at first publicly urged Guyana to collect and bury the hundreds of bodies. As arranged, Guyana replied in effect that it was America's problem and that America should take the bodies back to the United States—just as planned. To facilitate this huge and hideous task, Guyana obligingly agreed to waive the usual Guyanese law that requires any body to be autopsied before removal from the country. With this arrangement, the United States achieved the carte blanche military access to Guyana that was needed.

Russian intelligence realized what was afoot by early Monday, November 20, but it was already too late to stop it. Russia could hardly announce to the world that, "We have a secret nuclear missile base in Guyana and the United States is getting ready to destroy it." That would have rallied world opinion behind America; and, although Russian Cosmospheeres quickly converged over Guyana, they, too, were useless in the covert conditions of battle there. Their Charged Particle Beam Weapons could have made short work of the commando-style forces, but in the process they would have wiped out the Russian base itself. The Guyana missiles have become only a minor factor in Russia's military power since the Battle of the Harvest Moon the year prior. They were not valuable enough to Russia to declare open war on their account. And so under these conditions, Russia was powerless to act once the Jonestown tragedy had been staged.

As Thanksgiving Day approached, huge American transports, helicopters, troops, and medical teams swarmed into Guyana. In a remote corner of the huge Temehri Airfield a command post was established for the twin operations of Jonestown and at the Russian missile base.

As some of the troops began the nauseating task of cleaning up the Jonestown kibbutz, other joint attack forces were taking up positions around the missile base in preparations for the surprise raid. Meanwhile, day after day the death count reported at Jonestown remained unchanged at 409.

Then on Thanksgiving Day itself, the Battle of Guyana took place. Crack military forces experienced in jungle and surprise warfare moved in on the Russian complex, striking all the dispersed sites simultaneously. Like the Entebbe raid, the battle itself did not last long. It had to be over quickly to be successful.

First the small crews on site near each missile were overwhelmed, and then killed. The missiles themselves were quickly disabled. Next the military forces converged on the Missile Command and Control Center, where a bloody pitched battle took place.

When the smoke cleared, every single person manning the missile base had been killed, including the Russian commanders.

When the battle was over, American helicopters from Temehri Airfield began landing within the ruined missile complex and flying out the wounded. Then the remaining attackers were left with two more jobs before they could retire from the area. First, they were under strict orders to leave no bodies in the attacking forces on Guyanese soil, and so the entire area was scoured until every single member of the attacking force had been accounted for. Their bodies, like those of the victims at Jonestown, were sealed in Vietnam-type body bags and collected in clearings where helicopters could land to pick them up.

Finally, the combined forces were under orders to remove the nuclear warheads from the missiles and take them back to Georgetown for airlift to the United States. Specially trained members of the attacking force had set to work on this task immediately after the initial attacks on the missile crews.

By early Friday, November 24, all the warheads had been removed. They, too, were placed in body bags, one per bag, with some jungle foliage stuffed in to give the bag a reasonable appearance.

Of course none of this was apparent to the reporters at Temehri Airfield, whose access to the American Command Post there was carefully controlled. When wounded members of the attacking force were flown back to the Airfield, after the Battle of Guyana on Thanksgiving afternoon, they were kept out of sight of the reporters. Otherwise, when reporters occasionally saw body bags being moved from place to place they just naturally assumed that all contained victims from Jonestown. They had no way of knowing that some contained slain Commandos and that others contained Russian nuclear warheads. The continual cargo of death from the Jonestown kibbutz made the perfect cover for the aftermath of the Battle of Guyana.

WHERE COULD THEY TAKE ALL THOSE BODIES?

Many reporters were totally puzzled at the choice of Dover Air Force Base in Delaware for the Guyana airlift. Most of the Jonestown victims were from California, and there is a mortuary facility, similar to the Dover facility, at Oakland Air Force Base in California. Dover was chosen to facilitate transfer of the Russian nuclear warheads to the nearby Aberdeen Proving Ground and Arsenal. This was done by means of shallow flights from Dover to Phillips Air Force Base.

Originally the Guyanese count of 409 had been accepted as firm by United States officials in Guyana. That had raised questions as to where the rest of the one thousand or so residents reported to be in Jonestown had gone. Finally, on Thanksgiving Day, with the body clean-up operation well under way, a military spokesman told reporters, "The evaluation that we have made is simply that there were not many more people in Jonestown at the time of the suicide." But even as he spoke, the Battle of Guyana was raging at the Russian missile base. By midday on Friday, the day after Thanksgiving, 485 body bags had already arrived at the Temehri Airfield. The 'bodies' of warheads from the Russian missile base were destined to raise the total far beyond the total of 409 bodies originally counted by the Guyanese at the kibbutz. It was a bad mistake, the kind of thing that happens in the heat of battle. Something had to be done, and quickly.

So, on that Friday after Thanksgiving, a breathless and nervous Pentagon spokesman at the Temehri Airfield made a stunning announcement over CBS television: "The original count of persons found dead at the Jonestown site has been found to be seriously in error. It now appears there may be as many as 780 bodies, total, found at the site. They were found simply buried under other bodies. There were larger adults that were grouped together, and under their bodies were found the bodies of smaller adults and children."

Badgered by incredulous reporters, the Government embellished the cover story later on. The Washington Star quoted the same spokesman as saying Friday night: "Near the center of the pile of bodies, near the assembly hall they were three deep in some areas. They were in layers with blankets between them." Wasn't it just nice of all those people to fall over in well orchestrated and neat rows?

This story was so unbelievable that within two days the United States Government dismissed its own story about the blankets as a "rumor". Still the basic idea of bodies on top of bodies had to be maintained, so on Saturday, November 25, another Air Force spokesman tried to make it all sound plausible in the following words: "From what I observed, the people, when they committed suicide, would line up in nice neat little circles, children in front of them, and as they died they folded into the interior of the circle." Do you wondrously blind people begin to see the absurdity of that which you believe? [MM: The average person—upon studying the modus operandi of this charade—should have a pretty good idea as to the actual intent of present U.S. government plans (in conjunction with Israel and Britain?) to wage war against Iraq, using the "weapons of mass destruction" scam as justification.] You swallow it hook, line, sinker and fish!

The Guyana cover-up was worldwide in its dimensions—it had to be. In Guyana, Deputy Prime Minister Reid made the first public announcement to the Guyanese people about Jonestown on Friday afternoon, November 24, in Parliament. Then he refused to answer questions, and rushed out to cries of "Shame, Shame" and "Cover-up" from Parliament members. And there in the United States on Thanksgiving Day, FBI Director, William Webster, said that the: "FBI Disaster Squad had positively identified the body of James Warren Jones through fingerprint identification records." But, this was not so and at that very moment Jim Jones was making good his preplanned escape from Guyana.

AND HOW DID JONES MANAGE TO GET OUT?

The plans for removal of Jones were laid well in advance. An ocean-going boat, well stocked with supplies and money, was waiting for him near the river town of Bartica, 35 miles southwest of Georgetown. In order to make his way to Bartica from Jonestown, Jones had a Safe Conduct Pass.

In the early morning of Thanksgiving Day, as the Battle of Guyana was beginning, Jones headed down stream toward Georgetown. Shortly after noon Guyana time his boat left the mouth of Essequibo River into the Atlantic Ocean.

From there Jones followed a complicated itinerary which was designed to prevent his being followed; but in spite of that, he was followed. From Guyana Jones headed due east for about 330 miles and then turned south, landing near La Mere, French Guiana, about 5:30 A.M. local time, November 27. From there he traveled by land to the capital of Cayenne, and took an airplane across the Atlantic Ocean to Freetown, Sierra Leone, in West Africa. From Freetown he headed north along the coast to Guinea-Bissau Airport, arriving there approximately 7:00 P.M. local time, November 28.

There, less than two hours later, he boarded a DC-3 and took off. His route took him eastward to Tambacounda (Senegal); from there onward into Mali with stops at Segou, Mopti and Gao; then onward to Agadez (Niger) and Largeau (Chad). From there his plane continued to Atbara (Sudan), and then a short final hop to Port Sudan where he arrived shortly after 4:00 A.M., November 30, local time. When he arrived at Port Sudan, Jones found a Turboprop Executive Transport waiting for him which was owned and operated by Israeli Intelligence. Within 20 minutes the plane took off with Jones and headed up the middle of the Red Sea toward the Gulf of Aqaba. At 6:30 A.M. local time on November 30, Jones' plane landed briefly at Elath, the back door to Israel; then on to a private airport outside of Jerusalem, arriving at 7:20 A.M. local time. From there he headed to a nearby location for an intelligence debriefing.

HOW COULD THIS HAPPEN TO AN EVANGELIST?

After being transformed gradually into a conscious agent of the Intelligence Community over the prior six years, Jones had taken part in a joint operation by American and Israeli Intelligence in Guyana. The Israelis had contributed valuable expertise and even key lieutenants for Jones in showing how the Jonestown kibbutz could be set up and used for the intended purposes.

U.S. FORCES GET OK TO USE CIA METHODS

By Rowan Scarborough, Washington Times, 10/01/02

American commandos hunting Taliban and al-Qaida guerrillas in Afghanistan have gained permission to employ new clandestine tactics that typically are confined to the CIA in the shadows of war.

Administration and military sources said that in recent weeks the covert warriors received authority from commanders in the United States to conduct "source operations", a special-operations term for a number of classified war tactics.

Source operations generally refer to recruiting and maintaining spies within the enemy's camp. In Afghanistan, it will mean finding Afghans and Arabs, possibly within the Taliban and al-Qaida network, who would supply intelligence to U.S. special-operations forces.

But source operations also refers to a number of other classified tactics that can be employed in the Afghanistan-Pakistan theater. The U.S. military estimates there may be 1,000 or more of Osama bin Laden's terrorists still on the loose in the region.

The authorization is part of a much broader plan to toughen the war against terrorists by allowing commandos to do more clandestine missions in more places overseas.

In July, Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld ordered U.S. Special Operations Command in Tampa, Fla., to accelerate the war against al-Qaida and other terror groups by devising a new war plan. Mr. Rumsfeld, who wants al-Qaida members captured or killed at a faster rate, desires a mechanism for the United States to identify and locate terrorists, then dispatch covert warriors in a matter of hours, not days or weeks.

"They are going to use some special-forces-unique skills to track them down," said a military officer involved in war planning who asked not to be named. "There are certain skills and capabilities that are not publicly associated with special forces."

An administration source said, "There are some initiatives that are very, very sensitive."

Source operations may involve finding spies or using a released detainee to spread disinformation.

A second military officer said in an interview that source operations mean that Army Special Forces soldiers, the Green Berets, will shift from informal contacts with local informants to a more structured relationship that could involve exchanging money for information and regular meeting times and places.

"It's making friends and giving them a tip for a tip," the officer said.

Any significant information would be turned over to the CIA, which has officers and paramilitary people deployed throughout the region.

Commandos in Afghanistan are part of the Combined Joint Special Operations Task Force that has headquarters near Bagram air base north of Kabul, with camps near Kandahar in the south and Khost in the east.

The task force is a combined force of Army Green Berets, Delta Force and Navy SEALs, including its crack counterterrorism unit, the naval special-warfare development group that used to be known as SEAL Team Six. Foreign nations, including New Zealand and Australia, also assigned some of their best "hunters and killers" to the group.

Some units have complained they are not getting good intelligence on al-Qaida and Taliban locations from either the CIA or the Pentagon's Defense Intelligence Agency.

Sources say the source operations approval is an attempt to improve the intelligence take.

Units are also wary of "walk-ins," locals who provide information but sometimes have an ax to grind with a rival and want the special operators to do their dirty work. ...

A 2000 U.S. Special Operations Command posture statement says JSOC is "designed to study special-operations requirements and techniques" and "plan and conduct joint special-operations exercises and training; and develop joint special-operations tactics."

Those benign-sounding words mask the command's role as headquarters for super-secret elite units, such as Delta, that specialize in quick raids and deadly tactics.

Special Operations Command is requesting a big budget increase and 9,000 personnel, in addition to the current 47,000, during the next five years to carry out what Mr. Rumsfeld says will be a long war.

[JR: Hunters, killers, warriors... What ominous-sounding names we choose for our killer elite special forces. These specially trained forces you would not want to meet in some lonely isolated place in a faraway land and ask for directions. The U.S. seems to rely more and more on covert operations to engage an enemy who is also quite adept in defending himself with skills of cunning he has successfully used for centuries. Modern warfare seems to be going back to the basics of knowing your enemy and using the element of surprise to gain the advantage and the victory. The U.S. is now resorting to using prisoners/detainees we have captured in Afghanistan and possibly from Camp X-Ray, to spy for us, through the use of psy-op mind-control techniques. Our steely-eyed Defense Sec. Rumsfeld is very eager to speed up the war of containment in Afghanistan and is looking to go down in the New World Order's history books as the first American Genghis Khan.]

SEN. GRAMM SET TO JOIN UBS WARBURG

By Greg Cresci, Reuters, 10/07/02

NEW YORK (Reuters)—Sen. Phil Gramm (R-Tex.) will soon become vice chairman of UBS Warburg, the investment banking arm of Switzerland's biggest bank, UBS Warburg said on Monday.

Gramm, who will take up the private sector post when his Senate term ends later this year, follows a well-trodden path of key legislators who join top Wall Street firms. A member of Congress for the past 24 years, Gramm has specialized in financial issues and co-authored historic legislation in 1999 that repealed a prohibition on companies offering banking, brokerage and insurance operations under one roof.

Known as the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Financial Services Modernization Act, the legislation gave rise to the "one stop shopping" model adopted by such financial powerhouses as Citigroup Inc. C.N and J.P. Morgan Chase & Co. JPM.N. The results of those diversification efforts have been mixed however, and critics charge that such breadth engenders damaging conflicts of interest.

Gramm, 60, will split his time between Washington, D.C. and New York, and will work closely with Vice Chairmen Lord Brittan and Ken Costa, who are based in London, UBS Warburg said.

One has only to check an encyclopedia to see that Jonestown was, in fact, a kibbutz. For example, the World Book Encyclopedia under the topic "ISRAEL", says: "In a collective community, called a kibbutz, the farmers share all the property and combine their labor. The village administration provides all their needs. The adults eat together in a dining hall, but married couples and single persons have private sleeping quarters. All children are raised together in a separate home. Parents visit their children for an hour or two before supper."

Let us look at the word "commune" as domesticated in America. It means living in a commune. There is no pure form of commune in the Israeli kibbutz. When a commune is run by persons with Satanic and schizophrenic characteristics, like those of Jim Jones, murderous and suicidal behavior are forced upon the people, as happened at Jonestown. And when this example is expanded to include an entire nation, one has a nation in the grip of [Zionist] Bolshevism. It was happening to America then and you are still being led directly into national suicide.

Let me show you the ridiculous cost of such actions.

As things came to pass, the war which started between you and Russia began on that Thanksgiving Day. America lost that war in the Battle of the Harvest Moon. Of course the calculations don't work out properly because you have no notion as to what is happening nor in what order. We shall speak to these topics later. At that time the very rules of war were altered forever.

Russia then tried to force America "to surrender" to SALT II disarmament, but your Unseen Rulers instead stepped up preparations for a suicidal nuclear war to be launched by the U.S.

The Guyana happenings gave you a preview for the entire war. By the standards of those who planned it, the Battle of Guyana was a brilliant success—and yet, at what cost! Many times more American lives were deliberately sacrificed than were lost by the enemy in the battle itself. In the same way, the plans still in operation will dwarf the numbers killed by the millions.

The Battle of Guyana was an exercise in futility, a mere scratch on the arm for Russia. It was planned before the Battle of the Harvest Moon, which rendered the Guyana battle obsolete before it happened.

Well, Jim Jones had a motto hanging over his throne in Jonestown: "THOSE WHO DO NOT REMEMBER THE PAST ARE CONDEMNED TO REPEAT IT."

Now, would any of you care to do a dissertation on what the Guyana tragedy actually had to do with religion in any manner whatsoever. 'Tis sad indeed! And yet, you gullibly feast on the lies. So be it.

Dharma, enough for this day. Let us close this portion. Thank you for your service.

Hatonn to stand-by. Please think upon these things most diligently, for we have a long, long way to go. Salu.

UBS Warburg is part of UBS AG UBS.N UBSZn.VX, which has more than 70,000 employees worldwide and does business in more 40 countries. As an investment bank, UBS Warburg specializes in areas such as stock and bond offerings, corporate lending and merger advisory.

"Having spent my professional life working on finance-related issues, I look forward to bringing that experience and knowledge to bear on behalf of UBS Warburg clients worldwide," Gramm said in a prepared statement.

A UBS Warburg spokeswoman, Christine Walton, declined to comment on Gramm's compensation package, citing firm policy. The senator's starting date depends on the Senate schedule, but will come before year-end, Walton said.

Global banks seeking to enhance their cachet often court top U.S. political figures, whose knowledge and contacts can widen their scope.

Last December, Citigroup named Stanley Fischer, former deputy managing director of the International Monetary Fund (IMF), as vice chairman. Fischer reports to former U.S. Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin in that position.

In another example, John Kasich, former chairman of the U.S. House Budget Committee, went to investment bank Lehman Brothers LEH.N early last year. And Vernon Jordan, a well-known Washington lawyer and confidant of former U.S. president Bill Clinton, took a job at private investment bank Lazard Freres & Co. in 2000.

Gramm plans to meet in coming months with heads of various investment banking sectors at UBS Warburg to develop strategy, Walton said.

"We hired him for what he knows, not who he knows," Walton said. "It's very much a full-time job."

IN THE 2002 ELECTION, THE ISSUE IS UNCHECKED POWER

By Harvey Wasserman, CommonDreams.org, 10/09/02

Is this the most important election in U.S. history?

With his TV talk of war, George W. Bush has blown smoke over what's really at stake today: the future of democracy. Not in Iraq—here in the United States.

Never in U.S. history have we ever been closer to an unchecked one-man one-party rule than right now. And as the world's sole military super-power, we have made the crisis truly global.

The reality is simple: the right wing of the Republican Party controls three of the four branches of government, and is just a single vote away from taking the fourth. The Executive, the Judiciary, the media and the House of Representatives are all in Republican hands. The Senate teeters on the edge. And the USA Patriot Act, passed in the wake of September 11, has obliterated most of the Constitutional guarantees that made this country a democracy in the first place.

Should Congress go Republican in November, there will be no institutional check or balance left to guarantee that the democracy born here two centuries ago will survive.

First, the Republicans control the Executive Branch, which it took with the first losing candidate in 120 years. Defeated in a popular election by more than 500,000 votes, with many more not properly counted, the administration is firing away with an aggressive far-right agenda that's kept the opposition off balance.

Second, the Republicans control the Judicial Branch, which formally installed Bush into the Presidency, and which is currently dominated by right wing appointees—many for life—dating back to the Nixon Era.

Third, the Republicans control the "fourth branch of government". Virtually all major U.S. media is now owned by six corporations. With precious few exceptions, there is no serious debate on the core issues that define American life, and no mainstream coverage of the movements for peace, social justice, environmental, labor, or minority rights to balance the constant blare of right wing pundits.

All that remains in play—barely—is the Congress. The U.S. House is firmly in control of the Republican Right. The minority Democratic opposition is feeble, without strong leadership or direction.

Thanks to the defection of Jim Jeffords of Vermont, the Democrats hold a one vote majority in the U.S. Senate. And that's all that now keeps the Republican far right from total and unchecked control of every branch of the United States government.

To this lethal mix has been added the USA PATRIOT Act, approved after September 11, virtually obliterating the once-sacred guarantees of the Bill of Rights. Put simply: the Executive Branch now has the power to arbitrarily brand anyone a "terrorist" with no tangible evidence, and to have that person imprisoned without formal indictment, access to a lawyer or even public notification. Hundreds of unnamed alleged terrorists are thus being held indefinitely in Cuba and perhaps elsewhere with no recourse. If unchecked, such openly contemptuous disregard for the human rights guaranteed in the U.S. Constitution will inevitably spread like a cancer to the core of American liberty and dissent.

The structure of our basic rights is as tenuous under George W. Bush as under many of the Third World dictators installed by his father when he was head of the CIA.

Any shreds of counter-balance left in the system will disappear if the Republicans keep control of the U.S. House and retake the Senate.

Globally, that extends to a Bush Doctrine touting the "right" to intervene in any country, and remove any ruler it does not like, regardless of national sovereignty or international law.

The timing of Bush's latest rhetorical escalation has nothing to do with Iraq. Saddam Hussein is only the latest American-installed enemy of convenience.

This anti-Iraq hysteria is about an aggressive, unelected U.S. regime aiming to complete the coup d'etat it began two years ago.

America's domestic economy is shattered, its stock market in free fall. Unresolved multi-billion-dollar scandals still taint Bush from Harken Energy and Vice President Dick Cheney from Halliburton. Under this regime, joblessness has skyrocketed and the quality of life has plunged.

The Bush remedy has been tax breaks for the rich and relentless assaults on organized labor, gays' rights, women's rights, minority rights and the natural environment. His foreign policy has been to trash international treaties on atomic testing, missile defense, global warming, international justice and more.

Bush's latest war talk admits to no human or financial cost. He and most of his cabinet are chickenhawks who avoided service in Vietnam. They are selling a video-game war in which Saddam Hussein magically disappears with no American bloodshed, no crying widows, parents or orphans. The American veterans suffering from Gulf War I don't exist. Nor does the chaos in Afghanistan left after removing the Taliban and failing to find Osama bin Laden.

A real war against this particular Saddam Hussein could cost $100 to $200 billion the current U.S. economy can't afford. It could destabilize global oil supplies and infuriate much of the muslim world, 1.2 billion strong. The real costs could include skyrocketing oil prices, economic collapse, and terrorism escalated beyond our wildest nightmares, with the final demise of liberty and peace.

The Republicans are running out the clock on the November election. They are winning their bet against Democrats too timid to oppose a war that has no clothes, and a declaration of global empire with no legs. After that comes an endless procession of Orwellian enemies, conjured at will, a permanent pretext for martial law.

The Harken-Halliburton attack on Iraq is Stage Two of the coup d'etat that began with the installation of an unelected president. It could be completed November 5 with the final capture of the House and Senate.

If that happens, Saddam Hussein will be the least of our worries.

[JR: This coming election like all others is just a façade. What the Clintonites have begun, the Bushites are putting the final touches on. Nothing would have been different if Gore had won the election and not Bush and the Democrats in control and not the Republicans. We would still have a muted congress, a USA Patriot Act, a one-man rule of government, and a media controlled by the ethnic Elite ruling class censoring the news. We would have created a war not necessarily with Iraq but with any country Israel might target to further her expansionist plans. We are now governed by a socialistic form of government which, we supposedly liberated the rest of the world from.]

AMERICA KNOWS BEST WHO SHOULD RULE GERMANY

By Sergey Borisov, PRAVDA.Ru, 10/08/02

"It would be better for the chancellor to resign."

The White House is dissatisfied with Germany very much, and the Pentagon is even more so. And this dissatisfaction is because of the German chancellor's strict opinion concerning the U.S.-led campaign against Iraq. Schroeder mentioned several times already that Germany will not participate in this war, even if the UN approves it. The statement made by German Minister of Justice Herta Daubler-Gmelin when she compared George W. Bush with Hitler only added fuel to the fire. [JR: Of course comparing President Bush to Adolf Hitler is something you can't do, which is why Daubler-Gmelin won't be a member of Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder's new cabinet.]

During the past several days, German diplomats have made every possible effort to reduce the tension in relations with America, which arose after the above mentioned statements. The scandal seemed practically hushed up when Pentagon senior adviser Richard Perle arrived in Berlin. He was the aide to the U.S. defense secretary under Ronald Reagan. As soon as he arrived in Berlin, he immediately announced that Gerhard Schroeder should resign. Perle doesn't care at all that Germans elected the chancellor in accordance with their domestic interests. However, the American official strongly believes that if the chancellor doesn't support U.S. policy concerning Iraq, he should resign. Germany's Handelsblat quotes Perle: "It would be better for the chancellor to resign."

Perle says that Schroeder's anti-war election campaign strongly undermined the relations between Germany and America, and in a burst of revelation, he explained to the German people how much the chancellor's pertinacity will cost the country. Is Germany still wishing to become a permanent member of the UN Security Council? It should forget about it for a long time, Perle says. According to him, it is because of the chancellor that the problem can be considered once again only by the next generation of Germans.

Germany has been deprived of any authority to influence the Iraqi problem because of Schroeder's "astonishing isolationism," Perle says. He adds that nobody made Schroeder do anything concerning Iraq, the U.S.A. especially. However, the chancellor, Perle says, “preferred to stay with his old friend for the sake of several votes at the elections.” Many observers say that relations between Berlin and Washington are on the lowest level ever registered since the end of WWII. They also admit that Perle’s statements proved to be the most harsh within the whole period of preparation for the war in Iraq. At first, U.S. officials dared to speak about Hussein’s resignation only. But, as we know, appetite grows while eating.

[JR: Ms. Daubler-Gmelin got it wrong. Bush isn’t Hitler; Herr Perle is. Wonder if Perle did the goose-step when he marched into the offices of the German officials to dictate his demands. Perle is making it all too clear that sovereign countries do not have the right to oppose our war policies. Germany and the German people have spent the past century paying for her past “aggressions”. German troops are serving in the Balkans, Africa and Kuwait. Why should she now be made to engage in our war of aggression against Iraq? Zionist Perle can’t have it both ways.]

CIS SUMMIT: MOSCOW PLAYS ITS HAND

By Dmitry Chirkin, PRAVDA.Ru, 10/08/02

Georgia promised to deliver terrorists, Armenia promised to pay off all of its debts, and Belarus promised to work on the union with Russia.

These are just a few issues that will be discussed on a bilateral level. Almost all leaders of the Commonwealth of Independent States requested a personal meeting with President Vladimir Putin.

The agenda of the CIS summit is rather trivial. It is basically divided into two parts: exchanging opinions on major international problems and discussing possible ways of to improve the CIS state structures. As far as the second part of the agenda is concerned, it is all about the state of the commonwealth itself. It has been more than ten years since it was created, but now it is experiencing a strong decline. Integration within the CIS is growing, but commodity circulation is decreasing. The countries of the commonwealth are basically indentified by no visa regimes (except for Georgia) and privileged discounts by Russian energy carriers.

The meeting between Russian President Vladimir Putin and Georgian President Eduard Shevardnadze is the event of the summit. There has been a lot of controversy between Russia and Georgia recently, so the media’s attention was attracted to this issue. Putin and Shevardnadze discussed the situation in the Pankisi Gorge of Georgia. The presidents agreed to military cooperation and on the delivery of the terrorists who are detained in Georgia.

In the words of the Russian president, Russia and Georgia decided that they both have to develop collaboration between the border agencies. Vladimir Putin said that both Russian and Georgian border guards might soon patrol the state border together.

Commenting on the meeting with the Georgian president, Vladimir Putin stated that Eduard Shevardnadze understood Russia’s position. The Russian president gave his hope that there were certain positive changes in the relations between Russia and Georgia. Putin also declared that everything on which Russia and Georgia agreed upon would be implemented.

Another intriguing aspect of the summit is the meeting between Vladimir Putin and Alexander Lukashenko, the president of Belarus. Lukashenko has not been really friendly to Moscow lately. It goes without saying that the presidents will spend a lot of time talking about the problems of the unified state.

Actually, there has never been political opposition between Russia and Belarus. The problem is actually about several politicians that used the relations between Russia and Belarus to settle their own issues. There have been six contracts on the establishment of the unified state prepared. ...

[JR: Putin is consolidating Moscow’s power over the independent states of Russia. Russia under Putin, is determined to not be left in the backwaters of power as she had been for centuries. A united Russia will make her a major world player.]

ARMY SEEKS TO EXPAND CHEMICAL, BIOLOGICAL DRILLS

By Judith Graham, Tribune, 10/10/02

DENVER—For 60 years, the U.S. military has tested its ability to withstand chemical or biological attacks at a desolate site in the Utah desert. Protective gear for troops, heavy equipment such as tanks and aircraft, and detection systems designed to signal an attack have all been run through intense simulations, sometimes using active chemical and biological agents.

Now, with a possible war with Iraq looming on the horizon, the military plans to more than double its testing at the 798,000-acre Dugway Proving Ground, 80 miles southwest of Salt Lake City, and to vastly expand its counterterrorism training activities at the site.

The plans are disclosed in a draft environmental impact statement issued by Dugway, which has received little attention in Utah or nationally. The statement indicates that the Army facility wants to expand biological defense testing from an average of 11 events a year to 26, and boost chemical defense testing from 30 events a year to 70. Counterterrorism training would go from two events to 58 events a year.

Almost no test details are provided, making the few advocates following Dugway’s plans uneasy about risks to public health and the environment if biological or chemical materials were accidentally released. The environmental statement notes systems are in place to make sure that does not happen.

“In principle, there’s an appropriate role for this kind of testing. But essentially what they’re saying is we want blanket permission to double our mission without telling anyone what we really plan to do,” said Steve Erickson, director of the Citizens Education Project, a non-profit organization based in Salt Lake City. “With their track record, that’s spooky.”

Information released Wednesday by the Department of Defense shows that during the Cold War, Dugway was involved in testing dangerous biological and chemical agents on military personnel in exercises on land and at sea. This seems to suggest that past tests were not confined to the isolated Utah setting, and posed more of a potential threat to human health than previously acknowledged.

The 28 reports were released by the Pentagon after a two-year investigation prompted by veterans who claimed they had been exposed to harmful substances during their participation in the exercises. As many as 5,500 men and women in the military may have been involved. ...

The chemical and biological exercises were overseen by the Desert Test Center in Utah from 1962 to 1973; those tests occurred in the coastal waters off Hawaii, California and Puerto Rico, as well as on land in Alaska, Florida, Hawaii, Maryland, Utah and Canada. The center, headquartered at Ft. Douglas, Utah, was combined with Dugway in 1968 and the alliance lasted until 1973, according to materials supplied this week by Dugway’s public affairs office.

The Pentagon acknowledged that some soldiers may not have been fully informed about the tests, which included use of the military’s deadliest nerve agent, VX.

Also, thousands of civilians in Hawaii and Alaska probably were unaware of their exposure to relatively mild bacteria meant to simulate germ weapons, a Defense Department health official said.

“How are we supposed to trust an outfit that did this kind of thing but never told anyone?” Erickson asked.

Dugway spokeswoman Paula Nicholson declined to comment, referring all questions to Defense Department officials.

A year ago, when the anthrax attacks struck Florida, New York and Washington, it also emerged that Dugway had been producing a weapons-grade form of the Ames anthrax strain—the same strain investigators found in letters implicated in five deaths.

The Utah complex had been making the lethal anthrax for a decade, and included the only military lab in the United States known to produce the finely milled, powdered form discovered in the letters. ...

The environmental statement indicates active agents will be used in defense exercises, along with much less dangerous substances that simulate chemical or biological agents.

Up to 250 workers who served at Dugway during the Cold War claim to have been exposed to harmful substances, and believe they contracted serious illnesses, such as cancer and multiple sclerosis, from their work. ...

In its draft statement, which has been circulating for comment in Utah, Dugway asserts the need for more tests and training “related to new enemy threats” and offers general examples of what these might entail.

“Testing would evaluate newly developed biological defense detection and protection equipment that is required to effectively prepare for potential terrorism incidents,” reads one point under the biological defense testing section.

“Large-scale aircraft contamination control field testing” would “evaluate the way the military handles aircrew, passengers, and cargo in a chemically or biologically contaminated aircraft,” another point notes.

Counterterrorism training scenarios could include constructing a mock city and simulating an attack for “urban chemical/biological incident training,” according to the statement.

Since 1999, Dugway has been training weapons of mass destruction teams for the National Guard. Under expanded counterterrorism training, more emergency response teams would receive similar instruction.

One exercise would include firing a cruise missile into a building filled with containers of a chemical to see what would happen to the materials in such a scenario, the document said.

“Sometimes it’s very difficult to delineate the differences between offensive and defensive purposes in biological and chemical weapons testing,” said Erickson, the Salt Lake advocate.

Offensive testing is banned under biological and chemical weapons conventions signed by the United States.

If things go as planned, Dugway’s environmental impact statement will become effective a little more than a year from now. ...

[JR: We all should realize that under the expanded powers congress has given Dubya Bush, they will conduct whatever chemical or biological test they feel necessary, with or without public knowledge. And we all know that most of their “expanded testing” will not be in controlled safe conditions at Dugway labs. The majority of the testing will be in and around heavily populated cities for maximum effect to simulate possible terrorist strategies. It will consist of airborne spraying in the form of chemtrails, which they have been doing for years, and lower-level

(mosquito) spraying. The public will even demand increasing low-level spraying to stop the ever-increasing spread of the fatal West Nile Virus. And of course these lab boys will need to simulate potential contamination of municipal water-treatment plants. None of us will be the wiser until those of us that do survive all the unexplained illnesses and cancers find out what really happened after twenty/thirty years from now, provided there is still an effective "Freedom of Information Act". Is there any doubt that they will still conduct all the necessary experiments and test, even if the public refuses permission? Asking permission is just testing public opinion on something they have already done.]

BRITAIN RE-IMPOSES DIRECT RULE ON NORTHERN IRELAND

By Alex Richardson, Daily News, 10/14/02

HILLSBOROUGH, Northern Ireland (Reuters)—Britain seized back the reins of government in Northern Ireland on Monday amid a crisis in the peace process provoked by a spying scandal, but vowed to try and restore home rule early next year.

After halting the province's power-sharing government with a stroke of his pen, Britain's Northern Ireland Secretary John Reid said he regretted the return of direct rule from London and hoped it would be "a short-lived impasse".

"I hope the decision...marks a breathing space and a chance in a sense to gather strength and to regather confidence," Reid said at his Hillsborough Castle residence outside Belfast.

Both the British and Irish governments will now be working frantically behind the scenes to edge Northern Ireland's politicians toward a compromise that will allow them to restart the stalled process.

British Prime Minister Tony Blair and his Irish counterpart Bertie Ahern, who have both invested much personal and political capital in the 1998 Good Friday peace agreement, said their governments were "saddened" by Monday's events.

In a joint statement, they promised to seek a restoration of devolution before Northern Ireland Assembly elections next May, and sent a message to the Irish Republican Army, against whom allegations of spying precipitated the current crisis. ...

The hard-line Protestant Democratic Unionist Party, led by preacher-politician Ian Paisley, declared the Good Friday deal over. Britain should start over again rather than trying to "pump oxygen into a failed process," Paisley told reporters. ...

At the other end of the political spectrum, Gerry Adams, leader of the IRA's political ally Sinn Fein, accused Reid of pandering to unionists who wanted to see the power-sharing arrangement set up under the 1998 deal fail.

"It is a serious crisis," he said. "What he (Reid) is doing is accommodating resistance to the Good Friday agreement."

This was the fourth suspension in three years of the assembly and other Catholic/Protestant power-sharing institutions, and the feeling was widespread that it will take longer this time to get the bickering factions back together.

The longest prior freeze of the institutions was three months and was resolved by an IRA move toward decommissioning.

With Protestant unionist parties increasingly skeptical about continuing to share power with Sinn Fein, claims the IRA was spying on the British government proved the final straw.

After First Minister David Trimble's Ulster Unionist Party threatened to walk out of the Belfast executive unless Sinn Fein was expelled, Britain decided to pull the plug before the devolved government self-destructed.

Reinforced by two new junior ministers, Reid's Northern Ireland Office will take over day-to-day running of the province of 1.6 million people from midnight Monday.

[JR: The Protestant hard-liners have remained sullen since the Good Friday peace agreement because they do not wish to share power with Sinn Fein, ever. The crisis and dissolution of the sharing of powers came about when the Sein Finn administrator of Stormont castle was arrested and accused of stealing documents and computer discs containing personal details on Ulster police officials, paramilitary leaders as well as the British military for targeting purposes by the IRA. This article conveniently leaves out the details and the main sore point of the issue and that is that some "sensitive" political memos and transcript conversations between Unionist leaders and British government officials that outlines their strategy for negotiations with the Irish Republicans. McGuinness, Chief negotiator for Sinn Fein refutes the allegations of spying because it is part of a politically motivated frame-up. The Ulster police have known for the past 13 months that there was a mole in the British government in Northern Ireland and they played along so that the charges of spying could be conveniently used to break up the peace agreement. Blair, instead of protecting the accord, chose to protect Her Majesty's most loyal and faithful subjects, the obstructionists to peace in Ulster. Wonder if Blair got this idea from reading his e-mails from Sharon.]

IMF MAY CREATE COURT TO SHIELD NATIONS FROM CREDITORS

By Monica Showalter, Human Events, 10/14/02

If last month's carnival of anti-globalization protestors outside the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) in Washington amounted to a noisy bonfire of discontent, what went on inside at the meeting was more like a blast furnace. Hundreds of investors told the IMF off with a focused fury that made street protestors seem like clownish entertainment.

What is the burning issue? Sovereign debt restructuring. The IMF, along with the U.S. Treasury, is pushing for a program to allow sovereign nations—the kind that come to the IMF for bailout packages again and again—to walk away from debts by declaring bankruptcy, like an insolvent corporation.

It's not that there aren't good intentions. But bankers, investors and analysts say the proposals are seriously flawed and unlikely to be resolved without a reduction of their rights.

Investors say that, by making it easier for governments to default, the new plan will make American investors' bond portfolios riskier, while not easing the risk of bailouts, either. If the measure goes through, they say, it would hurt millions of Americans who invest in bond mutual funds, either individually, through 401(k)s or in pension plans.

As stocks plunge, those funds are growing. U.S. investors now have $18.8 billion parked in bond funds, according to Lipper, Inc., a mutual fund tracker in New York. That includes $3.66 billion in emerging market bond funds that invest in countries where defaults are most likely. ...

The plan, which the IMF calls a "sovereign debt restructuring mechanism" (SDRM), has been in the works for about two years, and its managing director, Anne Krueger, has made a forceful case for it. Krueger's idea is to encourage governments to recognize early on that they cannot pay their debts and then enter a sovereign bankruptcy process that will make resolving unpaid debt issues go more smoothly than currently. With a trend toward more defaults, on paper this might look like a good idea.

But what it would amount to is either a new international court to settle disputes, or modifications to new or existing bond contracts.

Possibly cowed by the baleful response from investors, the IMF is now saying the process is evolving, and a more developed draft proposal is likely to be on the table at the IMF's next meeting in April. "We're too far from conclusion," said IMF spokesman Francisco Baker. "We're just getting the ball rolling."

But some investors think the IMF still can't hear them. They say a world bankruptcy court or a modification of bond contracts poses serious risks for bond portfolios.

For one thing, they don't like the idea of moving jurisdiction from U.S. courts in New York (which now usually oversee legal disputes involving foreign-government bonds) to somewhere else.

"Savers buy such bonds because they trust the debtor, but even more because they trust the U.S. laws," said Ottavio Lavaggi, an Italian investor who manages his own bond portfolio. "Now the IMF wants to change all those contracts, not only future contracts, but all those issued in the last 20 years, and say: If the debtor fails to pay, what happens will be decided by an international court, appointed by bureaucrats and politicians, and they will decide the case according to the wishes that some (other) government might have in the future."

Moody's Investors Service, Inc. in a September study called "Proposed Frameworks for Sovereign Debt Restructuring" saw potential problems, too.

The international credit-rating agency warned that the sovereign restructuring would probably be an incentive for more bailouts as states find bankruptcy an easier option for resolving their debt problems.

A defaulting government might be hauled in to court to restructure, but a court can't do much if that government does not follow its demands. Unlike a corporation, which can be forced to sell assets or fire its CEO, a sovereign state cannot be forced to do such things without the threat, or actual use, of military force.

For corporations, "a bankruptcy procedure is an administrative process, a good faith effort to allow a bankrupt to come out of bankruptcy, and start over," said Farisa Zarin, who led the Moody's team on the study. In a typical corporate bankruptcy, "there needs to be a reasonable plan, with a judge's approval. And if a bankruptcy proceeding doesn't produce a plan, creditors can divvy claims on a priority basis," she said.

"But there is no comparison to a sovereign situation. At the end of the day, a sovereign is a sovereign, and creditors cannot divvy up a country," she said. That reduces the leverage bondholders can exert over states that fail to pay their debt or adhere to their restructuring plan. ...

As an alternative to a world bankruptcy court for deadbeat governments, U.S. Deputy Treasury Secretary John Taylor has advocated adding clauses, or new rules, to bond contracts that would enable creditors to sue a nation for payment, but only if a certain majority of bondholders agree on the lawsuit. An individual investor would no longer have the right to hold out for full payment and sue by himself.

This would create problems because it could require altering the contracts for existing bonds, which would lower their value by making them riskier.

"Debt is a contract," said Robert Konigsberger, principal of Gramercy Advisors in Connecticut, a hedge fund that represented bondholders during Ecuador's bond default in 1999. "If Brazil owes $1 million, it is a contract. How can they try to impose a new system when they have an existing system? It's contracts the IMF is trying to change..."

But Konigsberger disagrees. "It won't solve the problem of why these countries default," he said.

The drive for a world bankruptcy court, or a new type of bond contract, he said, is not about promoting sound economic policies in Third World governments. It is about positioning the IMF for the next round of national defaults. "The IMF is out of money, and out of ideas," Konigsberger said. "Their model has failed."

[JR: The idea of rewriting bond contracts is putting the risk on bondholders and perhaps that's the whole idea behind the IMF's recommendations for changing contracts. American investors are looking to the bond markets to shelter their investments to steer them through the ongoing prevailing storms in the financial markets. Sorry, Ms. Zarin of Moody Investors Services, but sovereign countries have already been divided up and left cannibalized by their predators. The banksters of the IMF/WB have succeeded in "divvying up sovereign" countries around the world. Look what happened to the Philippines, Southeast Asia, Mexico and Latin America to name just a few. The IMF/WB cabal and those in their loop have succeeded in buying up these countries resources for pennies and in doing so have destroyed their economies and their ability to pay off their debts to these old world creditors. If the bankrupt IMF is allowed to rewrite the rules to bury their failed policies you can bet that the ones who will be left vulnerable are the hapless bondholders. Beware, investors, for the vultures are getting ready for the final kill.]

GENERAL TAKES SHOT AT SMART BOMB USE

By Stephen J. Hedges, Washington Bureau, 10/13/02

WASHINGTON—Nothing was more comforting to U.S. troops scrambling over the slopes and ravines of Afghanistan's Shah-e-Kot Valley in March than the explosive arrival of American precision-guided bombs hitting enemy positions.

And nothing proved more frustrating, according to the general who directed ground forces during the 12-day Operation Anaconda, than waiting too long for those air strikes to arrive, or not being able to request them at all.

Those failures occurred, Maj. Gen. Franklin Hagenbeck said recently, because the Air Force insists that only its personnel can direct precision-guided weapons dropped by Air Force planes. That requirement, he told the military journal Field Artillery, sometimes left ground troops without air cover.

Hagenbeck's complaint has ignited a heated debate within the Pentagon, where policymakers and military leaders are struggling to understand the interaction between U.S. forces and a generation of exceedingly powerful, accurate weapons—called smart bombs—whose technology sometimes outstrips the capabilities of the humans using them. ...

The recent fighting in Afghanistan and the prospect of a more intense conflict in Iraq have highlighted the power and pitfalls of the fast-evolving world of precision bombs. The problems include the mistakes that occur when humans interact with deadly technology—targeting errors have led to civilian and military deaths in Afghanistan—as well as design failures and glitches that have rendered some of the whiz-bang weapons less than reliable. ...

In particular, the Joint Direct Attack Munition has emerged as the simple, predominant star of the Afghanistan war, accounting for more than 6,700 of the 22,000 bombs dropped by Air Force, Navy and Marine planes. The bomb became so popular that its frequent use taxed U.S. inventories.

A second new satellite-guided weapon, the Joint Stand-off Weapon, has been used far less in Afghanistan and has been under intense scrutiny since it was used in a February 2001 strike over the southern no-fly zone in Iraq. Nearly 30 of those weapons flew off course, and just 40 percent of the targeted areas were damaged.

"It was like trying to hit Queens and hitting the Bronx instead," one defense analyst said.

The Navy recently put the JSOWs, which cost $250,000 each, back into service, over the objections of the Pentagon's test office.

In quickly reviving the JSOW, the Navy cited an urgent need for weapons in the terror war. But another reason may be that a lot is riding on weapons such as JSOW, which is projected to cost more than $6 billion for development and production.

Both kinds of smart bombs face another uncertain, potentially debilitating shortcoming: the possibility that an adept enemy such as Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein could jam the global positioning system satellite signals.

"There's a common understanding that we're heavily reliant on GPS, and increasingly more so by the day," one congressional aide said. "This is clearly an area that any enemy, Saddam or whoever, is going to try and exploit. We're not grasping at straws when we say that GPS jamming is something they're going to pursue."

For the military, one of the most distinct lessons of the 1991 Persian Gulf War was that its laser-guided bombs, no matter how good they looked on television, weren't nearly as useful as they seemed and only 10 percent of the bombs dropped during the Gulf War were smart weapons. Laser-guided munitions proved ideal for hitting precise targets—pilots could point a laser at a target, and the bomb would home in—but they also had significant drawbacks.

The lasers could not penetrate thick clouds or smoke. And the pilots who directed the lasers had to get close to their targets, exposing them to enemy fire.

Afterward, the Pentagon decided it needed smart bombs that weren't affected by weather and could be dropped from greater distances. The Defense Department's GPS—a program hatched in the late 1970s that allowed ships, planes and vehicles to navigate using signals from 28 satellites—offered a possible solution.

The Air Force quickly latched on to the idea of a GPS-guided bomb, and, after a competition, it awarded the JDAM contract to McDonnell Douglas, which later merged with Boeing.

The JDAM evolved in an uncharacteristic way. Instead of building a new weapon, designers fitted a 2,000-pound Mark 84 gravity bomb with GPS-controlled tail fins and strap-on winglets that helped it glide.

The JDAM has a range of 15 miles, depending on the altitude from which it is dropped. The target coordinates can be loaded before missions begin or by the pilot, who may get coordinates from a ground forward air controller.

But while pilots have quickly taken to JDAMs, ground troops are still adapting to their use.

The Air Force's insistence that only its air controllers direct JDAM strikes means ground forces are left without a way to request air strikes if that ground controller is injured, killed or sent elsewhere, as happened during Anaconda.

"We need training and certification for our observers to call in JDAMs," Hagenbeck said. ...

An Air Force representative would say only that neither the Air Force nor the U.S. Army endorses Hagenbeck's comments.

Targeting errors also have crept into JDAM missions. A JDAM destroyed a Red Cross warehouse in Kabul last year after the wrong coordinates were entered. Other JDAMs mistakenly hit residential areas, killing Afghan civilians.

A different dispute has sprung up around the JSOW, which is manufactured by Raytheon Co. As a "stand-off weapon", it was designed to be fired up to 40 miles away from a target, giving pilots a margin of safety that the JDAM can't. It is also designed in three variations—it can deliver 145 cluster bomblets, 24 anti-tank "submunitions" or a single warhead.

In addition to a GPS receiver, the weapon, first used in Bosnia, employs an inertial guidance system to find its way.

Its initial requirements, however, proved far more ambitious than its design would permit. A plan for the bomb to track and hit moving targets, such as tanks, proved unworkable, and the Navy recently deferred procurement of anti-tank JSOWs.

The bomb's cluster version also has encountered tracking difficulties.

They were discovered when JSOWs were fired at anti-aircraft targets by U.S. planes patrolling in the southern no-fly zone in Iraq, and a programming error failed to account for the severe wind shifts. ...

Given its price and limitations, the JSOW has lost some luster. Earlier plans called for the Pentagon to spend more than $4 billion to buy 14,000 JSOWs through 2007. But in December, the Pentagon cut $61 million from the $257 million JSOW budget for 2003. [JR: The bottom line, in case you haven't picked up on it, is that the U.S. war industry always needs a Bosnia/Serbia/Kosovo, an Afghanistan and an Iraq to test and adapt all these sophisticated "weapons of mass destruction". While at the same time unload our obsolete and unstable bombs by dropping them on our supposed enemies. Remember they lost the use of that small Puerto Rican island they used for bombing practice to peace demonstrators. What is great about being able to test these new-generation technical bombs on what they perceive as hostile territories is that they don't have to be concerned about civilian casualties since many of these sophisticated or so-called Smart Bombs miss their targets. The bulk of the U.S. stockpiled inventories are obsolete conventional bombs, so they are used to level mountains, destruction of infrastructures or even villages, along with the inhabitants. Once we perfect our sophisticated weapons of mass destruction at the cost of thousands of supposedly insignificant lives through collateral damage, our most favored ally and partner Israel, will then sell our technology to our enemies.]

OFFICIALS SEEK AID FOR BORDER HOSPITALS

By Jerry Seper, Washington Times, 09/27/02

Three lawmakers from Arizona yesterday said hospitals along the U.S.-Mexico border in 2000 lost $200 million in unreimbursed costs in the treatment of illegal aliens and they want the federal government to come up with some cash to keep the facilities open.

"Unless we act now to reimburse states and local health care providers for the cost of federally mandated care to illegal immigrants, more hospitals will be forced to cut costs and possibly close their doors," said Sen. Jon Kyl, Arizona Republican.

Mr. Kyl, along with Sen. John McCain and Rep. Jim Kolbe, both Arizona Republicans, presented a study showing that the 77 hospitals along the U.S.-Mexico border in California, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas face "a medical emergency."

The 133-page study, by the U.S.-Mexico Border Counties Coalition, said one in four dollars of uncompensated emergency medical costs for the Southwest border hospitals was attributable to undocumented migrants.

The study calculated the losses at $79 million in California, $74 million in Texas, $31 million in Arizona and $6 million in New Mexico. It also said that emergency service providers incurred another $13 million in uncompensated costs.

"I've been shouting from the rooftops for a long time about this problem, but to no avail," said Mr. Kolbe, adding that federal law requires that hospitals and emergency personnel screen, treat and stabilize anyone who seeks emergency medical care regardless of income or immigration status.

“No one denies that there is a moral and legal obligation to provide care, but the question remains on who is responsible for paying the bill,” he said.

Mr. Kyl and Sen. Pete V. Domenici, New Mexico Republican, will introduce legislation soon that will reimburse states and health care providers $200 million a year for the cost of emergency treatment, $134 million to the 17 states with the highest numbers of undocumented aliens and an additional $66 million to states with the highest numbers of undocumented alien apprehensions.

“We have an opportunity here to provide some necessary relief to the many hospitals facing huge financial burdens,” Mr. Kyl said, although he noted he was not optimistic the legislation would pass. Similar bills he has introduced over the past five years have languished in committee.

“We knew that until we could demonstrate facts and figures, the people wouldn’t believe it,” Mr. Kyl said, pointing to the border study. “The losses are staggering and more people are beginning to recognize that a problem exists.”

The lawmakers, in arguing for financial assistance from Washington, said that because the federal government had mandated that illegal aliens must be treated at emergency facilities and because it had failed to control the border, allowing illegal immigrants to flood into the United States, the government was responsible for the rising costs.

“The obligation here falls on the federal government,” Mr. McCain said. “The states do not control the border, the federal government does and it has failed to do so—causing a financial and human crisis.”

Hospitals in Arizona are among the hardest-hit by the uncompensated care for illegal immigrants. Last year, University Medical Center in Tucson provided nearly $8 million in emergency medical care to illegal aliens and the Copper Queen Hospital in Bisbee was hit for $200,000 in uncompensated services—out of a net operating income of $300,000.

The root of the problem, Mr. Kolbe said, is “an unreasonable” policy of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, which oversees the U.S. Border Patrol.

“The Border Patrol has an existing health care delivery system for illegal immigrants; however, illegal immigrants must be in the custody of Border Patrol to qualify for reimbursement,” he said. “To complicate matters, Border Patrol has an explicit policy of not taking injured illegal immigrants into custody, so they do not have to reimburse the hospitals.”

The U.S.-Mexico Border Counties Coalition, consisting of elected officials from counties in the four border states, undertook the study at Mr. Kyl’s request to persuade Congress to approve legislation authorizing reimbursements for the hospitals.

[JR: The immigration problem is not only in the hospital and medical field but in all aspects of American society... from jobs to housing to crime and we are not just talking about illegal Mexicans. Although Mexicans may be the dominant illegal alien, our borders are leaking like a sieve and many International legal-but-temporary aliens decide to stay and thus become illegal. Part of the problem is local law enforcement officials not only don’t want to be charged with profiling but many feel it is neither their job nor their responsibility to pick up illegal aliens. It’s cost effective to look the other way as they don’t get reimbursed for their time and efforts from the INS. In the meantime certain areas in the U.S.—the local language is Spanish. Notice too that most other law agencies changed their titles to “enforcement” while the INS still remains a “Service”. No wonder they don’t ENFORCE the immigration laws.]

HARVARD’S ENRON-STYLE PARTNERSHIP WITH HARKEN

Harvard Watch Press Release, 10/09/02

HARVARD STUDENTS CALL FOR INVESTIGATION INTO SCHOOL’S ENRON-STYLE PARTNERSHIP WITH BUSH’S HARKEN ENERGY COMPANY. BUSH, HARKEN, AND HARVARD FORMED QUESTIONABLE OFF-THE-BOOKS DEAL, STUDENTS UNCOVER.

Harken’s largest shareholder, Harvard University, used its endowment to bail out the failing company under Bush’s watch, misleading investors;

HarvardWatch calls for full disclosure of the partnership, launches reform campaign.

The Harken Anadarko Partnership, formed by the ailing Harken Energy Company and its then largest shareholder, Harvard University, propped up the troubled company with endowment money and may have deeply misled investors students found and today’s Wall Street Journal and Boston Globe reported. HarvardWatch has announced a new campaign to reform Harvard’s ties to the corporate world. As a first step, it is calling upon the university to disclose all information related to its investment in Harken.

“When you have the California legislature investigating Harvard’s ties to Enron, the Justice Department suing Harvard for fraudulent management of development aid to Russia, and now this, you know something’s rotten in Cambridge,” said Roona Ray, a Harvard senior. “We need to ensure nothing like this ever happens again.” The partnership, created with George W. Bush’s express approval, bears strong resemblance to the widely-condemned Enron partnerships, controlled by insiders and disguising the dismal prospects of the company. Students’ findings prompted stories in the Wall Street Journal and Boston Globe, and students and alumni are now calling on Harvard President Laurence Summers to open an investigation.

HarvardWatch, an independent group of Harvard students and alumni promoting more transparent and accountable governance of their university, points to the partnership as further evidence of improper corporate practices at Harken Energy while President George W. Bush was a director.

The new details raise the most troubling questions to date about the university’s involvement in the Texas oil company during Bush’s tenure on the board.

In late 1990—at a point when Bush held three high-level positions at Harken Energy—Harken and its largest shareholder, Harvard University, created the Harken Anadarko Partnership (HAP).

According to minutes of Harken’s August 29, 1990, board meeting, Bush gave the deal his personal approval. Over the next two years, the partnership allowed Harvard to bail out Harken’s struggling business by effectively shouldering a large percentage of the company’s loss-generating assets and debts in the Anadarko region of Texas and Oklahoma. This maneuver transformed the public perception of Harken’s financial state: the company’s reported losses and liabilities were drastically reduced over the next two years. The brighter financial figures allowed Harken’s stock price to temporarily reverse its precipitous decline and reach its historical high in 1991, indicating that the Anadarko partnership misled investors about the future profitability of the company. Harvard used this bubble as an opportunity to sell 1.6 million Harken shares.

Members of the Harvard community, already concerned with recent reports of unethical business practices at Harken, as well as Harvard’s heavy investment in the company immediately after Bush became a director, reacted with dismay. “As a citizen, I’m deeply disappointed in the President—as a student, I’m ashamed of Harvard,” said Cliff Ginn, a third-year law school student. Others compared the news to earlier revelations of the university’s role in the Enron scandal. “Harvard’s involvement in the Enron scandal was disturbing enough, but this tops it all,” said Stephen Smith, a Harvard graduate. “It’s hard to imagine a worse use of the Harvard endowment.”

[JR: Isn’t it amazing that of all the corporate financial scandals, the Bushes seem to be involved, either directly or indirectly. If a scandal involves oil or high finance today, an honest unimpeded investigation just might turn up a connection to one of the Bushes. I guess greedy back-room shenanigans and behind-the-scene manipulations are flourishing greater than ever, especially now that Washington is operating in total secrecy and this President has now been given unprecedented powers. You may not be able to distinguish between Bushes, branches or twigs, but they will all make for good kindling if the people are ignited enough to demand the restoration of our constitutional government.]

HOW DID WE SURVIVE?

If you lived as a child in the 40s, 50s or even the 60s, looking back, it’s hard to believe that we have lived as long as we have.

As children, we would ride in cars with no seat belts or air bags. Riding in the back of a pickup truck on a warm day was always a special treat.

Our baby cribs were covered with bright colored lead-based paint.

We had no childproof lids on medicine bottles, doors, or cabinets, and when we rode our bikes, we had no helmets. (Not to mention hitchhiking to town as a young kid!)

We drank water from the garden hose and not from a bottle. Horrors.

We would spend hours building our go-carts out of scraps and then rode down the hill, only to find out we forgot the brakes. After running into the bushes a few times we learned to solve the problem.

We would leave home in the morning and play all day, as long as we were back when the streetlights came on. No one was able to reach us all day. No cell phones. Unthinkable!

We played dodgeball and sometimes the ball would really hurt. We got cut and broke bones and broke teeth and there were no law suits from these accidents.

They were accidents. No one was to blame but us. Remember accidents?

We had fights and punched each other and got black and blue and learned to get over it.

We ate cupcakes, bread and butter, and drank sugar soda but we were never overweight... we were always outside playing. We shared one grape soda with four friends, from one bottle and no one died from this?

We did not have Playstations, Nintendo 64, X Boxes, video games at all, 99 channels on cable, video tape movies, surround sound, personal cellular phones, Personal Computers, internet chat rooms ... we had friends. We went outside and found them.

We rode bikes or walked to a friend’s home and knocked on the door, or rung the bell or just walked in and talked to them. Imagine such a thing. Without asking a parent! By ourselves! Out there in the cold cruel world! Without a guardian! How did we do it?

We made up games with sticks and tennis balls and ate worms and although we were told it would happen, we did not put out very many eyes, nor did the worms live inside us.

Little League had tryouts and not everyone made the team.

Those who didn’t had to learn to deal with disappointment.

Some students weren’t as smart as others so they failed a grade and were held back to repeat the same grade. ... Horrors. Tests were not adjusted for any reason.

Our actions were our own. Consequences were expected. No one to hide behind.

The idea of a parent bailing us out if we broke a law was unheard of.

They actually sided with the law, imagine that!

Our generation has produced some of the best risk-takers and problem solvers and inventors, ever. The past 50 years has been an explosion of innovation and new ideas. We had freedom, failure, success and responsibility, and we learned how to deal with it all. And you're one of them. Congratulations!

Please pass this on to others that have had the luck to grow up as kids, before lawyers and government regulating our lives. They say, "for our own good"?

Good is gone. Excellence has been forgotten. It's been replaced with mediocre, politically correct banality, bottom-line conformity for the benefit of a few.

No need for a communist manifesto now. We're controlled by those who "legally" enforce social engineering for the benefit of "all" citizens as long as they conform.

It's a sad, bitter-sweet day. We've forgotten what freedom really is or was.

Shame on us for letting them take it away.

WHEELS COME OFF U.S. WAR PLANS FOR IRAQ

By Michael C. Ruppert, fromthewilderness.com, 10/29/02

Administration Making Riskier, More Volatile Moves To Begin 'All or Nothing' Gamble For Iraqi Oilfields

(FTW)—All over the world, both internationally and here at home, the wheels are coming off of the Bush Administration's plans for the invasion and occupation of Iraq. And Bush Administration responses to recent events appear to be moving a tense international situation into a new phase where chaotic, scattered and increasingly bloody violence may spread risk to civilian populations and the estimated 80,000 to 100,000 U.S. troops that have been forward-deployed in anticipation of the attacks for months. U.S. troop deployments in Kuwait, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Egypt, Kyrgyzstan, Uzbekistan, Georgia, Djibouti, Yemen, Afghanistan, Pakistan and a Kurdish-controlled region of northern Iraq—once offensive staging points or strategic postings—are now becoming vulnerable defensive liabilities as world sentiment mounts against the U.S. invasion. Britain is also reported to have troop deployments in Oman on the Southeast tip of the Arabian Peninsula.

At stake is a nation which holds 11 percent of the world's oil and which is one of only two nations capable of quickly increasing production in time to avert a major economic collapse for the U.S.

A recently reported coup attempt in Qatar, perhaps the most vital country to a successful U.S. invasion plan, has raised serious questions about whether the administration can afford to wait much longer without risking the entire collapse of both its prestige and a plan which has recently been shown to be years in the making.

The assassination today of the head of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) in Amman, Jordan follows on the heels of recent attacks in Kuwait, the Philippines, South Korea, Pakistan, Afghanistan and Bali, most of which have been reportedly linked to terrorist organizations sympathetic with Osama bin Laden's al-Qaida network. An interpretation not offered by the administration—but which has been voiced by some Islamic foreign nationals contacted by FTW—is that the flimsy justification for invasion offered by the U.S., along with what is perceived as successful international opposition leading to vacillation by the administration, have encouraged attacks from some quarters that have had minimal or no connections to al-Qaida.

These events are reminiscent of a warning issued by Pentagon hawk Richard Perle, who stated in an Aug. 18 Washington Post story, "Timing is everything when you do this. If you launched [a public campaign] too far in advance and nothing followed, that would raise questions and fuel a debate that would not be helpful to the administration... If you join the debate now, but don't act for months, you pay a worse price." Perle's prediction is coming true just two months after he made it.

In spite of routine denials USAID has regularly been linked to the Central Intelligence Agency and has reportedly served as a cover for CIA operations. Jordan remains a particularly sensitive country for the U.S. because of its geographic position between Israel and Iraq, its perceived status as a U.S. ally, and the fact that as many as 6,000 U.S. troops have been positioned in Jordan since late-August in anticipation of the U.S. invasion. FTW reported on Aug. 21 that the total number of U.S. troops, as reported by the Jordanian news agency Petra and other Mid East news sources had topped 6,000 and included light armor, medical detachments and Special Forces troops. An on-the-record eyewitness statement confirmed visual sightings of U.S. troops in the country.

For additional coverage on troop deployments and war plans please visit: [http://www.fromthewilderness.com/free/ww3/082102\_deployment.html]

Jordan, like many other countries in the region, has been sending ambiguous signals about the role it will or will not play in the U.S. invasion. These mixed and often changing positions, shifting like the sands of the desert, clearly reflect the tectonic pressures that are mounting in the region each day that an invasion is not executed. A Reuters story on Aug. 12 indicated that Jordan was being considered as a launch point for the Iraqi invasion at a time when the Jordanian military was engaging in joint exercises with U.S. troops. However, a July 10 Associated Press story indicated that Jordan would not participate in any U.S.-led invasion.

Amid repeated stories that the U.S. intends to "Balkanize" the region, splitting Iraq and possibly Saudi Arabia into several kingdoms divided between Hashemite, Sunni Arab, Kurdish and Shiite ethnic groups, tensions between Muslim countries in the region have been steadily mounting. For more information: [http://www.fromthewilderness.com/free/ww3/082102\_saudi\_arabia\_1.html].

On Oct. 22 Reuters reported that a Jordanian journalist had been sentenced to death in Qatar for allegedly spying for Jordan and reporting on U.S. troop deployments in that country. Qatar is home to the multi-billion-dollar, state-of-the-art Al Udeid air base. According to numerous press reports and published photographs, Qatar is virtually sinking under the weight of U.S. military equipment, including M1A2 Abrams main battle tanks, which have been positioned there for the Iraqi invasion. That move came after Jordan recalled its ambassador in August from Doha, the Qatari capital, and closed the Amman offices of Al Jazeera, the feisty Arab news organization based in Qatar.

A COUP ATTEMPT IN QATAR?

On Oct. 16 the Arabic News issued a story stating that reports from Cairo and several Persian Gulf states had resulted in the Oct. 12 arrest of "scores of Qatari army officers" after an attempted coup by pro-Taliban elements against Qatari leader Sheikh Hamad bin Khalifa al-Thani. The coup was reportedly suppressed with the assistance of "American personnel in civilian costumes". An Oct. 24 New York Times story clearly stated the Qatari position. It carried the headline: "A Tiny Gulf Kingdom Bets Its Stability on Support for U.S." Stories about the massive Al-Udeid air base and its intended use as the headquarters of the U.S. Central Command for the Iraqi invasion have been circulating for months. On Sept.

12th, the Washington Post's Vernon Loeb reported that Central Command had announced a plan to send 600 personnel in November from Florida to Qatar for a readiness test of the headquarters facility.

A Reuters story dated just 10 days after the reported coup attempt stated that the planned exercise had been moved from November to an unspecified date in December. While making no mention of the coup attempt the story did state that, "The Gulf region is bristling with U.S. troops and weaponry."

Upon learning of the coup attempt, FTW made an immediate request to the White House asking for comment. In a rare return call, which took place within two hours, a spokesperson for the National Security Council stated, "We [the NSC] are not even aware of a coup attempt. No comment." A spokesman for the Department of Defense said, "We don't know anything about any coup attempt, and U.S. forces were not involved."

The subscription intelligence service Stratfor stated in an Oct. 24 story that it received confirmation of the coup attempt from Qatari and Russian intelligence sources. It also added some twists which indicate the quicksand-like nature of Middle Eastern alliances. Translating from the Egyptian daily al-Joumhoreyah, Stratfor reported that members of the Qatari ruling family had been taken into custody and that that they had recently expressed opposition to the regime's pro-U.S. policy. As it turns out Sheikh al-Thani took power in a bloodless coup in 1995 from his father who remains a good friend of Saudi Arabian elements that oppose the invasion of Iraq.

Tensions between the two countries reached a high point in September when Riyadh recalled its ambassador from Doha. Saudi Arabia remains the ultimate ambiguity in its support for the U.S. invasion on a measure equal with glaring recent contradictions in stated U.S. support for the kingdom which contains 25 percent of all the oil on the planet. For additional information: [http://www.fromthewilderness.com/free/ww3/082102\_saudi\_arabia\_1.html]

Withdrawal of support for the U.S. invasion in Qatar would most likely make the invasion of Iraq an impossibility. The support offered by other Middle Eastern nations, already under intense pressure from their populations, would likely evaporate completely. Even Turkey, a staunch NATO ally has been strongly signaling its reservations in recent weeks, and it is not capable of single-handedly hosting the invasion.

DIPLOMATIC POWER PLAYS DEEPEN CRISIS

Moves by Russia, France and China to delay a U.N. vote favorable to the U.S. plan have been extremely successful on the world stage. Prolonged negotiations and a delayed vote in the U.N. Security Council on a resolution needed by the Bush Administration to keep its fragile alliance together are producing responses from the administration that sound more like whining than leadership. Over the weekend, Chinese Premier Jiang Zemin arrived late—a major diplomatic snub—for a summit at President George W. Bush's Crawford, Texas ranch and failed to give him the endorsement for action against Iraq that Bush so desperately needs. This move apparently gave strength to continuing opposition from France and Russia in the U.N. Security Council.

And the backroom arm-twisting, carrot-offering, wheeling and dealing of the administration to divide the spoils of an Iraqi conquest has also failed to produce the desired outcome: a global blessing for the Empire to do what it wants to do. For additional information, please visit: [http://www.fromthewilderness.com/free/ww3/101802\_the\_unseen.html].

American major media, trying desperately to put a positive spin on what is increasingly a major diplomatic defeat, continue to report that the U.N. is making progress in getting what it wants. But each minute of delay weakens the U.S. position economically, politically and militarily. Today the president was seen almost whining that the U.S. would act without U.N. approval if necessary even as CNN wrote, "The U.S. game plan on Iraq was encountering significant Security Council resistance." Bush's position today is on its face no different from what he said in his speech to the U.N. Sept. 12, yet no action has been taken.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

In the meantime major demonstrations took place on Oct. 26 all over the United States and around the world protesting the U.S. invasion of Iraq. In Washington, D.C. a crowd estimated by police at in excess of 100,000 loudly protested the war on which the administration is betting all of its political chips. In San Francisco an estimated 75,000 people turned out while other large demonstrations were reported in cities all over the country. Following on the heels of previous anti-war crowds of 400,000 in London and more than 1 million in Italy, protestors filled the streets in Berlin, Frankfurt and Amsterdam to establish that the U.S. and the world are anything but united over this war.

This is the first time in modern American history that there has been a vocal anti-war movement before the war even started.

In Brazil yesterday, former Marxist and Workers' Party candidate Luis Inacio "Lula" da Silva scored a landslide victory with 61 percent of the vote, becoming president of the largest democracy in South America. Da Silva's victory, another political slap in the face to the Bush Administration, follows on the heels of a second recent, failed coup attempt against Venezuela's independent President Hugo Chavez—an often vocal critic of many U.S. policies in South America.

It is clear that global and domestic opposition to the invasion of Iraq is growing. But it is not a given that these developments have rendered the administration impotent or weakened its resolve. As FTW has been saying consistently since the administration took office—and especially since 9-11—the degree of criminal, unconstitutional and aggressive behavior by the administration only serves to guarantee that its future moves will only be more illegal, more dangerous and more costly of human lives.

Some activists and analysts have openly speculated that the recent tragic death of Sen. Paul Wellstone, perhaps the administration's most vocal and committed critic in the Senate, was a murder perpetrated by a ruthless regime capable of stealing a presidential election and complicit in allowing the attacks of 9-11 to take place in order to provide it with a pretext for what is happening now. [FTW will have a story on a number of major inconsistencies in the Wellstone tragedy sometime this week.] Last week this writer had conversations with two Democratic Party members of the House of Representatives and both unhesitatingly expressed their belief that Wellstone was probably murdered.

Recently an anti-war activist was asked why no one was making a point of the now documented and glaring inconsistencies in the Bush Administration's actions, statements and conduct since the attacks of 9-11. "It's irrelevant," the activist said. An angry response came from the Internet, "If you had paid attention to all the warnings and evidence of administration complicity in 9-11, we would not be looking at the coming murder of tens of thousands of people in the Middle East."

The point, well taken, was that the people in control of the U.S. government are capable of anything. And while these recent developments show that the administration is not omnipotent, it does not make it any less dangerous, any less capable of horrific actions, either overseas or right here at home. And the rest of the world, following the U.S. example, is showing increasing signs of instability that could unleash a variety of conflicts, the outcomes of which cannot be predicted.—http://www.fromthewilderness.com/free/ww3/102802\_wheels.html

NEVADA CORPORATIONS:

Nevada Vs. "Offshore": Working With Your Capital

Budget's "Tip of the Week" #17:

What About "Offshore"?

"What about setting up a corporation 'offshore'? I've heard that offshore corporations don't have to pay any tax and that I can move my money offshore to shelter it." Up front, there is little that can be done offshore that cannot be accomplished in and through the shelter of Nevada corporations. But let's look at just a few things that this questioner should consider before moving in this direction.

There CAN BE tax advantages, particularly in cases where the offshore entity earns its income in a tax-free jurisdiction from activities in locations that do not tax the income. Such opportunities can be hard to find. On the other hand, if the offshore entity (sometimes called an IBC, for International Business Corporation) is OWNED by U.S. stockholders, the stockholders are still subject to tax on capital gains and on any income derived from the IBC. In most cases offshore shareholding is NOT private, unlike in Nevada. Further, the United States has developed MLATs (Mutual Legal Assistance Treaties) with virtually all offshore locations, allowing for the extension of U.S. law—and the powers of the I.R.S.—into those jurisdictions, at will.

One good solution might be for the offshore entity to be owned by a private Nevada corporation. Just keep in mind that the Nevada corporation would still be subject to taxation on any income or capital gains derived from the IBC. In many cases, however, it might be better to simply extend the structuring of Nevada corporate shelters than to try to operate offshore. The main reasons for this are more immediate control and, of course, privacy. The Nevada Corporation Manual sums it up like this:

"Nevada is unique in that it not only offers a high degree of privacy but ready access to your capital that is not likely to be denied in even the most extreme turmoil that COULD develop in the world's financial markets. In these highly uncertain economic times, long-range planning should take into consideration the possibility—even the probability—of extreme turmoil. In that event, there could be some real shock felt by those whose strategies are oriented around offshore structures. It is entirely possible that in a real emergency offshore funds would be totally inaccessible, depriving the owners of those assets the use of their own capital when they need it the most. For any situation where ready access to one's capital is required, and especially if you wish to work with your capital, Nevada corporations are THE answer."

In September 2000, the globalist OECD (Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development) proposed the total elimination of any and all offshore tax advantages. The Bush Administration has withdrawn its support—for the time being—from this initiative, probably allowing time for repositioning by at least some of the Big Boys. Ultimately, though, it seems likely that offshore jurisdictions will be precluded from offering tax advantages to foreigners. When that happens, it will leave the shelter of Nevada corporations as one of the very few true "havens".

WORDS OF WISDOM FROM HATONN

CONTACT OR SPECTRUM?

I want to briefly respond to a most unusual question from a totally "out of the blue" person: "It appears Spectrum will fail, possibly close, so will you go back to writing for CONTACT or what?"

I have never stopped writing for CONTACT—but I have NOT written, nor have my compatriots written for Spectrum. Tails wag a lot of dogs, my friends. Therefore, "or what" has no meaning.
