Global (GAIA): Simple Solution To Seemingly Complex Problems

Global Alliance Investment Association is NOT a program that further drains persons or nations.

experience. This is simply a good example of Life happening while you plan other things.

The "Spirit is willing; the physical aspect is tired"—so be it.

NECESSARY FRAGMENTS WHICH PULL TOGETHER A "WHOLE" PROGRAM AND NOT BANDAGE FIRST-AID.

Furthermore, understand that we work in the face of atrocious enemies, yea, even our so-called "friends" and colleagues of past and present hounding and nipping. And THAT is only in Manila—surprise.

We now have a major "delay" in the making as the program GAIA presents is validated and barriers pushed aside—but the failure to use the program is now based on the postponement of "use" until there is ability to either change "early" (prior to regular elections), the administration and some of Congress or hold until the 2004 elections will democratically unseat the take-over thugs and corruption kings and queens of this unlawful administration still orchestrated by the U.S. and former president Ramos in the power and blackmail positions.

Therefore, it may well appear that we deviate from purpose and position by having involvement with "land" registrations and total corruption in the land title departments with MASSIVE theft and deception where for a fee anyone can gain title to the piece of property

COMMENTS AND STATUS COMMENTS

"GLOBAL BUSINESS"

Hatonn—COMPUTER PROBLEMS ARE NUMBER ONE ON TODAY'S "HIT LIST".

Please bear with us as we stumble through computer problems of the worst kind: A blank screen! There is little difference in Manila between a rain storm and a "pouring" rain as "When it rains it pours!"

We will simply have to make one apparatus do double duty until we can discern problems.

Dharma asks if this is some kind of a message regarding topics or unknown guidance? No, it is a blank computer screen and there you have it! These are NOT the things of "higher guidance" or instructional input—they are simply the things of LIFE and LIVING in a manifest world of expression and

Our "alliance", friends, is not and never was intended to simply be expressed in one tiny nation called Philippines. THIS PLACE is just a starting point to gain "feet", make adjustments and have an ability with all positive components actually available—even if hidden, buried, politically denied access and thus and so. And no, our team will NOT move elsewhere—we WILL make the program work HERE—first. It is necessary, for here is where we have built stability, credibility and a reputation for total integrity even in the face of bribes, threats and stonewalling. YOU ALWAYS FORGET, I "AM" AT WORK AND YES INDEEDY, WE SHALL GET THIS UNDER WAY APPROPRIATELY AND IN A SEQUENCE WITH WHICH WE CAN ALL "STAY ALIVE" AND ENCOMPASS just bought fifteen minutes earlier by other parties. Not a pretty picture and dangerous in which to delve.

Well, we have no “delving” intentions except where it impacts our own “agreements”, contracts and/or need for backup in our program itself. We often have to tramp around by the “North Pole” to get to the “South Pole”. There is no magic working FOR goodness in the process; no shortcuts lest we be thwarted at destination terminal.

Games are not longer won, or even played, by common-sense rules—for it has become a world of games and manipulation tricks and technicalities, plea bargains instead of justice, and you name it, the nasties are work.

It may well be slow and tedious in the “doing” but it is mandatory if we wish to properly make impact and progress. THE COMPONENTS MUST BE AVAILABLE, FOR NO KEY WHICH OPENS ALL DOORS IS GIVEN TO “ONE”. THEREFORE IT TAKES MANY DOING THEIR PORTION TO EITHER REBUILD OR RECLAIM A BROKEN APPARATUS WHILE REMOVING THE NON-FUNCTIONAL “PARTS”, BE THEY MAN, BEAST OR SIMPLY BROKEN CHIPS. THIS FACT, HOWEVER, IS THE VERY REALIZATION OF GOD AND PURPOSE THAT ALL MAY BENEFIT AND PARTICIPATE WHILE ACHIEVING REALIZATION AND COMPREHENSION OF CONSCIOUSNESS.

GOD, like LIFE, is a compilation of “all parts” just like a working organism or apparatus must be a compilation of all “its” parts.

THE MAJOR DIFFERENCE IN EVIL VS. GOOD, HOWEVER, IS THAT “GOODNESS” CAN “CREATE” AND EVIL MUST WORK WITH THAT WHICH IS MANIFEST—EVEN IF IT BE IN THE “MIND” MADE TO PHYSICAL LIMITATIONS. BUT IT TAKES TIME TO REACH AND TOUCH THE ONES WHO CAN OR WOULD SERVE GOOD INSTEAD OF PHYSICAL EGO. THEREFORE, A LOT OF “US” HAVE TO PLOD ALONG WAITING AND ALSO BEING TESTED AT EVERY CONNECTION ALONG THE CONDUIT LINES.

Dharma, for instance, can’t simply do her appointed (and accepted) task of serving my needs—for in the very “job” itself she must also attend even the most tiny office back in Tehachapi, U.S.A. This IS how connected all is to everything ELSE. Would YOU like the miserable task of fitting the pieces of this infinite puzzle into proper picture or apparatus?

Spectrum’s “Cmdr. Hatonn”, supposedly snatched from Dharma, says to simply “go within” and “all answers will pop out at you”. No they WON’T. There is NO WAY such an attitude or cop-out COULD work—nor is there ever an intent of any higher-guide to present such drivel. THAT is what is ultimately called “cult mentality” or “religion”. It is a presentation of “MAN” in full recognition to CONTROL or incapacitate the viewer of child-mentality. Bro. Satan just laughs all the way to your destruction of self. Where in the world do you come up with your “sacred cows” or “sacred monkeys”?

Did man evolve from monkeys? Well, the highest “ape” of all can perhaps gain some of the skills of a three-year-old human child. Where does that leave you? Well then, I guess so! That is exactly where most of your world population of individuals reside in intelligence. Even Sir Einstein had almost ALL of his scientific data totally WRONG—AS IN “INCORRECT” as assumptions OR scientific fact. Neither does the Sun revolve around the Earth, my friends. The Sun is but your nuclear “center” of LIFE-giving energy and LIGHT. You stop revolving around IT and you die, which is simplicity itself in understanding. Isn’t it?

Worse (or better) yet, the hugging of a tree, kissing a frog nor peeing up a rope will change nary an iota of the facts presented. Is this too “crass” for your tender receptors? Then I suggest you take a long, hard look at where you are headed and how you got to here. My friends, that old weary and fragile Pope in the Vatican can’t even save himself NOR CAN HE ANSWER ANY OF YOUR PRAYERS, FOR AT BEST ALL HE “CAN” BE IS AN INTERVENER IN LINE OF PETITION. MOREOVER, THE PROPHETS, NO MATTER THEIR LABEL, CAN DO NOTHING SAVE SPECULATE AND TELL YOU OF PROBABILITIES “AS YOU” LIVE YOUR LIVES STEP BY FOOLISH STEP. The “manipulator” of eons past simply laid the pathway to achieve that which he/they wished would conclude your journey—and LOCK YOU IN STEP AND IN-SYNC TO THEIR BLUEPRINT FOR YOUR JOURNEY THROUGH PHYSICALITY.

So where from here? Straight ahead!

LET’S TALK ABOUT THE RUSSIANS INSTEAD OF THIS HEAVY DILEMMA “STUFF”? Fine, it suits me as well.

Yes, we can as well talk about China or Israel or anywhere but why not talk about Russia and nuclear potential toward disaster? You choose; we are happy to talk and share.

I will tell you right up top of the presentation we will share that it would be simplicity itself to convert old nuclear subs into power-producers which would be mobile and completely safe. Better yet, about the only thing you have which can even begin to clean up radioactivity as you know it—is WATER.

What happens, however, is atrocious and it is claimed that the simple lack of funds for use will bring devastation. Lack of funds? Oh sick world! And no, we are not going to tell you how to neutralize a radioactive ion—YOU KNOW HOW!

I will share, hopefully without embarrassment to anyone, a little petition which came to me regarding the Internet yet and a “possible meltdown” of some kind. Could I do something to stop such a thing? Yes and no. WHY? Were it “my” choice, I would melt the whole electronic nonsense you have proceeded to construct for the gain of the Elite manipulators. I certainly DO understand the petition and the honor and honesty offered but I don’t INTERFERE with that which man sets into chaos or plunder. We utilize what is available until or unless it is rendered unavailable, for THOSE are the things of MAN.

Would it present an inconvenience to us as well as possibly “you”? Perhaps, but it is YOUR system—not mine and therefore I have no input RIGHTS to do much of anything to the system itself.

Can I “intervene” in your circumstances? Sometimes, IF you have petitioned for assistance in right intent and ask for guidance. THAT IS WHAT IS INTENDED IN PRAYER, FRIENDS. IT IS NOT, HOWEVER, HOW PRAYER IS USUALLY SERVED UNTO GOD.

No, you do not have to do anything for or about “me”. I AM and there is the crux of the entire topic. YOU ARE so why argue about my “I AM”? I, nor frankly God, has ANYTHING to PROVE to anyone or anything—HE IS, YOU ARE, I AM and THAT is proof aplenty. It is much like arguing with “electricity”—IT IS and your tampering may well get you electrocuted. Claiming your “rights” at a busy intersection may well cost you a lot as you collide with another and become “dead” right.

In that scenario someone may well come along and pull you “before death” from the burning vehicle and actually SAVE your life. What will you do? You may well be appreciative but may as well, and possibly more likely, set forth to kill that messenger the minute you are strong enough to throw stones. It happens ALL THE TIME and we could give myriads of examples on a DAILY basis. YOU KILL YOUR VERY SAVIORS AT YOUR FIRST OPPORTUNITY!

Therefore, we have NO INTENTIONS of being saviors—just messengers who will, moreover, stay out of the spotlight at all opportunity. Will some save themselves or their nations because of what we offer? Yes, but THEY will do it, not me “or thee”. Neither did any “CHRIST” hop on a cross to suffer and perish in the human form. YOU KILLED HIM AND THAT IS CALLED MURDER! THAT ALSO PROVES WORSE “SIN” AND NOT “SALVATION” FROM YOUR SINS!

Well now, couldn’t we just go on forever on this subject? But, we have the subject of nuclear subs leaking radioactivity to consider here—today. So be it.

And no, I shall NOT give forth identification of our contacts that our enemies might botch something they perceive cute or ego oriented. So be it.

The following dissertation was hand-carried into our hands by very important persons and we will share it. It is not a great SECRET of some kind nor is it clandestine (today) but just factual presentation of circumstances about as dangerous to the old globe as anything conjured to date.

This will speak to the “Bellona” report. That is NOT either bologna or baloney. It is SERIOUS INFORMATION, SO PLEASE PAY ATTENTION.

[QUOTING a short summary and presentation:]

[H: Hold up—it is far WORSE in the U.S. “fleet”.]

Bellona Report:

The Russian Northern Fleet: Sources of Radioactive Contamination The “Nuclear Chronicle”, Russia

The Bellona Report: “The Russian Northern Fleet: Sources of Radioactive Contamination” gives a thorough overview of the sources of potential releases of radioactivity which could harm the public health and the environment. The problems of nuclear waste and disused nuclear submarines are products of the arms race and the Cold War. Russia continues to build new nuclear submarines, but there are very few provisions being made to properly store old nuclear submarines and develop sufficient storage facilities for spent nuclear fuel and other radioactive waste.

There is a minimum of 21.067m³ of radioactive waste and at least 7.523m³ of liquid radioactive waste at the naval bases and shipyards that are described in this report. More than 24,000 fuel assemblies and nine reactor cores are stored at the temporary storage facilities. In addition to this, there is a minimum of 5,040 spent fuel assemblies stored on board service ships. A total of 88 Northern Fleet nuclear submarines have been taken out of service, of which at least 52 have been laid up while still containing their nuclear fuel.

The following topics will be covered:

History
Nuclear Submarines in Service
Naval Bases
Shipyards
Solid Radioactive Waste
Liquid Radioactive Waste
Storage of Spent Nuclear Fuel
Transporting Spent Nuclear Fuel
Service Ships
Decommissioning Nuclear Submarines
Accidents on Nuclear Submarines
Economic Problems
Reduced Competence

HISTORY

At the end of World War II the United States Navy was considerably larger and more powerful than its Soviet counterpart. To catch up with this head start, the Soviet Union built a large number of nuclear submarines and a series of new naval bases and shipyards on the Kola Peninsula. The Kola Peninsula is of particular strategic interest and importance due to its proximity to the Atlantic Ocean and the fact that its coast is free of ice in the winter. The first Soviet nuclear submarine was taken into use by the Northern Fleet in 1958. A number of larger naval bases and shipyards were established to service the growing fleet of Soviet nuclear-powered vessels. This fleet grew rapidly to become the world's largest fleet.

NUCLEAR SUBMARINES IN SERVICE

The former Soviet Union built a total of 247 nuclear submarines and five military nuclear-powered battle ships. The nuclear submarines were built at four different shipyards. Today, only Sevmash Shipyard in Severodvinsk builds nuclear submarines. At the present time, there are 67 operational nuclear submarines with the Northern Fleet. A total of 88 submarines have been taken out of service. However, due to economic difficulties, a number of the operational vessels remain inactive and tied to the pier for large parts of the year.

NAVAL BASES

The Northern Fleet has five naval bases on the Kola Peninsula, and some of these have several base facilities. The westernmost of these is Zapadnaya Litsa, while Gremikha is the easternmost. Radioactive waste is stored at most of the naval bases. There are several closed towns in connection with the naval bases, making up a population of over 100,000 inhabitants on the Kola Peninsula. The establishment of the supporting infrastructure at the naval bases has often been delayed compared to the rate of delivery of new nuclear submarines. This is particularly true with regards to storage and treatment facilities for radioactive waste which continues to present significant technological problems.

SHIPYARDS

There are five shipyards for repair and maintenance and one yard for constructing new nuclear submarines in Murmansk and Arkhangelsk counties. Three shipyards are subject to the Northern Fleet, while another three of these yards fall under the auspices of the Ministry of Shipbuilding. Due to the cutbacks in the number of operative submarines, the amount of work for these yards has been drastically reduced, leading to some serious economic problems. A few of the shipyards now also accept civilian commissions, and it is also they who are largely responsible for the decommissioning of nuclear submarines. Radioactive waste is stored at all of the shipyards, at times in large amounts.

SOLID RADIOACTIVE WASTE

Solid radioactive waste is stored at 11 different places along the coast of the Kola Peninsula and in Severodvinsk. All of the facilities are full, and at a number of them solid radioactive waste is also stored outside the storage building in the open without any kind of protection. There is no regional storage facility for solid nuclear waste.

LIQUID RADIOACTIVE WASTE

Liquid radioactive waste is stored at almost all of the naval bases, either in land-based tanks, or on board service ships or floating tankers. Most of the storage tanks for liquid radioactive waste are full, and a number of them are in very poor condition. The storage crisis is precipitated by the lack of treatment plants. The processing capacity is too small at the existing civilian treatment plant at the nuclear icebreaker base Atomflot in Murmansk while the costs to the Northern Fleet are too high.

STORAGE OF SPENT NUCLEAR FUEL

The Northern Fleet's largest temporary storage facility for spent nuclear fuel lies at Zapadnaya Litsa in Andreeva Bay, about 40km from the Norwegian border. Approximately 21,000 spent nuclear fuel assemblies are stored here, corresponding to 90 nuclear reactors. The fuel assemblies are stored in three concrete tanks (also in very poor condition). In the 1980s, there were large leaks of radioactivity from an old storage pool. Fuel assemblies are also stored in rusty containers outside without any form of protection from runoff. There is also a smaller storage facility for spent nuclear fuel in Gremikha. Here too the fuel assemblies have been stored outside, and there have been leaks of radioactive waste from the storage pool. The reactor cores from submarines running with liquid-metal-cooled reactors are stored in Gremikha.

TRANSPORTING SPENT NUCLEAR FUEL

Spent nuclear fuel is transported on board ships that do not satisfy safety regulations. The spent nuclear fuel is transported between the shipyards, temporary storage areas and loading point of the railroad in Murmansk and in Severodvinsk. From these points, the spent nuclear fuel is transported further to the reprocessing facility RT-1 in Mayak. There is a serious lack of capacity of rail transportation, and reprocessing at Mayak is quite expensive for the Northern Fleet. The amounts of spent nuclear fuel will dramatically increase if the transport problem is not solved. Another solution under consideration is building a large, long-term storage facility for spent nuclear fuel in northwestern Russia.

SERVICE SHIPS

The Northern Fleet has four special tankers for the storage and transport of liquid radioactive waste. None of these ships are in satisfactory condition, and all of them are over 25 years old. On one ship, the equipment on board for treating liquid radioactive waste does not work. The Northern Fleet also has two larger ships for transporting spent nuclear fuel as well as two smaller barges for this purpose.

DECOMMISSIONING NUCLEAR SUBMARINES

At this time, there are over 130 Russian nuclear submarines that have been taken out of service, of which 88 vessels belong to the Northern Fleet. These submarines have been laid up at Severodvinsk and nine other locations on the Kola Peninsula. The greatest risk to safety is presented by the 52 submarines that have not yet been defuelled. The submarines are not brought into dock, and are in very poor condition. The vessels still containing their nuclear fuel are undermanned. If the work of decommissioning these submarines is to proceed in the proper fashion, a significant infusion of funds either from the state or from some other source will be necessary.

ACCIDENTS ON NUCLEAR SUBMARINES

From 1961 until the present, there have been many accidents involving nuclear submarines of the Northern Fleet. Most of these have happened while the submarine was on patrol, although some have also occurred during refueling or repair operations. Three nuclear submarines belonging to the Northern Fleet have sunk. There have been loss-of-coolant accidents in 10 submarines and four serious fires on board these vessels in which human life has been lost. There have also been a number of large and small leaks of radioactive coolant in operational vessels.

ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

In 1994 only 35% of allocated funds were transferred to the Northern Fleet in real terms. In 1995 the Northern Fleet did not receive in real terms the 600 billion rubles allocated to it in the Russian budget. What money was transferred went largely for paying salaries and welfare benefits for Northern Fleet personnel. Resources for maintaining storage facilities for radioactive waste have been sharply cut back, and in the last two years, hardly any work at all has been done in securing radioactive waste. On two occasions, unpaid electricity bills resulted in the shutoff of power at a shipyard and a naval base. The Northern Fleet is now investigating alternative possibilities for earning income, including selling naval vessels to foreign countries and leasing its nuclear submarines for other than military purposes.

REDUCED COMPETENCE

Eighty percent of all naval specialists and operators of naval nuclear reactors in the Soviet Union were trained at the naval college in Sevastopol. Since the dissolution of the Soviet Union, the school has not been used, since Sevastopol is located in Ukraine. Economic problems also result in less operational training for the crew than earlier; furthermore, worsening social conditions result in ever fewer officers choosing to renew their five-year contracts with the Russian Navy. The turnover of officers undermines the safety.

[END QUOTING]

I won't belabor the points here by adding the "OVERVIEW" attached because we have presented the pertinent and associated points which can be impacted by our Alliance which would, yes indeed, SOLVE THE ENTIRE FINANCIAL-FUNDING PROBLEMS.

Global Alliance Investment Association (GAIA) is NOT a program that further drains persons or nations. The entire program is based on whatever "currency" might be utilized, for the entire VALUE IS BASED ON THE PRICE OF GOLD.

The "debt" is Federal Reserve of the U.S.-based but the entire foundation is GOLD, so you can talk rubles as well as dollars or balance one against the other—whichever is convenient and desirable. We ask gold itself to be available OR receipts which guarantee gold holdings, i.e., in a BANK upon which to shelter in additional RESERVES and remove any question of appropriate value established. The asset can only enhance the reserves and allow for new currency to be appropriately printed or put to actual working capital. This is in addition to making funds immediately available and the portion established for GAIA (a fair 50%) will be also HELD by the funding parties and/or nation to still be utilized as local reserve. Some 20% of OUR 50% is all that will be removed for use elsewhere. In fact, it will probably never be even that much, for a return of value is fully anticipated to the nation involved in local development.

If gold reserves have been TAKEN or STOLEN from any nation, then it certainly is a very excellent way, through use of GAIA, to reclaim it and bring it home from whomever snatched or mismanaged the commodity. In this instance bank guarantees or receipts can and shall serve the same purpose until such time as physical commodity can be properly redistributed to proper holders.

Moreover, all "loans" can be handled as "letters of credit" so that there is only need or cost of that which is USED and not a devastation of the borrowers. In this way the held "commodity" can suffice in its own gain of value to cover any or most of the costs as in "interest" expenses of any project or program.

Now readers, if this is NOT a gift from God to YOU and your global society—then you are blind, deaf and totally dumb!

So, will I interfere with Internet problems? No thank you—for I am waiting around to see what YOU will do with that which you have already petitioned and to which GOD has already provided TO YOU. Kill a few more messengers if you must but remember that the most important one to meet a final death-wish for foolishness—IS YOU YOURSELF.

Trying to manipulate or argue with my people will merit you NOTHING. They bring and present and that is ALL they CAN do. What you do is up to YOU. What YOU let go because of non-participation or sharing of the burden to fulfill the, yes, prophecy if you will, is YOUR choice. We also present opportunity to personally contribute to your own PURPOSE of this magnificent journey. So be it and Selah. (God bless you in Love and Light AND IT SHALL BE AS IT SHALL BE!)—GCH

GAIA Program Presents Multiple Viable Solutions

11/16/02—#1 (16-92)

RE: ENCOURAGEMENT TO DIANE, JACK AND FRIENDS, INPUT ON SUNSHINE VALLEY FARM, IMF/PHILIPPINES, BELLRINGER DINGALINGS, FREEDOM OF SPEECH AND DAVID ICKE FROM A MORE PERSONAL VIEWPOINT (OURS)

WHERE TO BEGIN?

Please, for Mothers, Fathers, and family as well as friends—"THIS TOO SHALL PASS". In every circumstance it matters HOW "YOU" perceive, use, project and "manage" THROUGH the good times and the so-called BAD times.

That which you think you "cannot do" or "manage"—YOU CAN. The more positively you interpret that which happens is the foundation upon which you can build your life into positive or negative realization.

Diane is basically three quarters of her way through the "nightmare of "bar wars" and I will guarantee that even if inconvenient and miserable in most aspects of having to run about constantly to meet regulations—the experience will have been in retrospect one of the most growth and eye-opening of her young life. She will also now recognize her proclaimed "enemies" who will lie, cheat and steal to gain whatever conceived purpose they may have conjured. THE LIES GIVEN TO FEDERAL AGENTS IN THESE REGARDS WILL BE CONFRONTED AND TRUTH REVEALED.

Example? Kathy Ward gave to Federal Agents information which not only is erroneous, it COULD NOT HAVE BASIS UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES. The information was then used to coerce Diane's attorney into hanging Diane out to dry, so to speak.

One of the things given forth by Kathy with supposedly a Ph.D. degree in several new-age fields of training actually said that a couple of people who had taken SILVER colloid complained of increased LEAD levels in the blood. Anyone care to comment on just one of the stupidities in this statement? This was a major "cause of action" in the case itself.

One necessary comment: How can silver colloid EVER cause any LEAD level of any kind? If anything, be it known and IT IS—silver will BIND WITH LEAD OR ANY HEAVY METAL AND REMOVE IT FROM THE BODY! Wow and oh wow!

So, beloved children, THIS TOO SHALL PASS AND YOU MUST "LEARN" FROM THE EXPERIENCE AND NOT BE PUT INTO LOSS OVER IT.

STATUS OF SUNSHINE VALLEY FARM AS REGARDS TO TURNER "OUT FROM UNDER" SALE.

I need to remind everyone that the Sunshine Valley Farm PROJECT is (IS) an ongoing project with full intent of continuation. We will not just belly-up and walk away—WILL WE, TEAM?

Mr. Turner has no cause to ever suggest that there was ever any OTHER intent than having THAT PROPERTY for our purposes. Permanent improvements and major grain storage was accomplished with full realization by Mr. Turner (the owner).

Over a decade hundreds of thousands of dollars were poured into both lease (toward an option of purchase with lease payments being applied to that purchase) and more hundreds of thousands of dollars poured into the place itself. WALKING AWAY "SHOULD" NOT BE AN OPTION EVEN CONSIDERED.

Mr. Turner has contacted Mr. Ekker this week and—although friendly—states that he must work out a "sale" to his so-called buyers, any way he can. So be it. It is our obligation to all involved parties to that project, to stop such nonsense any way we lawfully can.

Mr. Turner "needs cash" and he further says that he "can't sell his other properties because he has no buyers". THAT IS NOT OUR PROBLEM AND BECAUSE WE HAVE REGISTERED AND CERTIFIED THE FARM AS "ORGANIC" IS THE REASON HE HAS FOUND A BUYER FOR IT. HOWEVER, MR. TURNER WANTS TO MAKE "NO" RESTITUTION OR RETURN ON ANY OF THE OVER HALF MILLION DOLLARS (IN LEASE PAYMENTS ALONE) NOR ON ANY OF THE IMPROVEMENTS OR THE "ORGANIC" STATUS. IT IS UNACCEPTABLE.

That Farm has become Ekkers' legal address for all purposes in the U.S. until they can get back and work other plans. After having the home property SEIZED (simply taken under FALSE CLAIMS AND PRETENSES) they have to have a legal address for personal and business purposes. THAT, until other things could be accomplished, would be their actual residence—even if it be in a motorcoach to validate that address.

There have been NO missed payments to the owner of the Farm to date.

The problem now becomes one of putting into Mr. Turner's account any further payments to him in view of the fact that he "claims" to have already made "the sale" to other parties.

There was NO DISCUSSION regarding his selling of the property—he simply sold it, he said, while now claiming he informed Rex Smith that he was going to do so. REX SMITH? Now that is a bunch of laugh-making jokes. So be it—it isn't so and Rex certainly did not mention such a thing.

It is now brought to our attention, thank you, that from DAY ONE there has been full intent and disclosure of that farm property written in "CONTACT" from upstart. Mr. Turner claims to read "religiously" every word of every edition of that paper.

It certainly becomes evident that we have greatly overpaid for the farm itself in every way considered—from lease to improvements (all at our expense from day one).

Mr. Turner now claims that at some point along the way he offered the Farm to E.J. for "half-price". No, that is not so—but were it so, it is now PAID FOR IN FULL.

I will further remind you readers of something else that perhaps has slipped your minds: As far back as 1992-3 when Fr. Ed Cleary and Mike Blinsten (Rose) were to the Philippines, we structured a whole plan for starting a project for SPELTA growing IN THE PHILIPPINES WITH US SUPPLYING THE SEED AND GROWING EXPERTISE. THAT HAS NOT CHANGED ONE IOTA SINCE THAT TIME—NOT ONE IOTA. WE HAVE THE LAND SPOTTED AND THE GROWERS IN LINE AWAITING FUNDING FOR THE PROJECT ITSELF. WE MUST NOT JUST DUMP THAT ORGANIC GRAIN WE GREW AND BOUGHT FOR SEED AND USE. WALK-AWAY IS NOT IN OUR PROGRAM ANY LONGER, TEAM.

Now I wish to comment on something in today's paper in Manila as regards the IMF—because everyone involved seems to be even more blind, deaf and ignorant than the general run-of-the-mill populace.

IMF/WORLD BANK/PHILIPPINES—GLOBAL

HEADLINE: "IMF TELLS GMA GOV'T TO FIX BLOWOUT OR RISK INT'L BACKLASH."

The GMA government is warned directly to "bring its budget 'back under control' and to also bring structural reforms back to pace or risk 'a deadline in investors' confidence and an adverse market reaction."

This is "serious" time, readers, but nothing happens except higher budget deficits now totally out of control.

Can't anyone SEE that even the IMF is making every effort possible to push these people into using the Global Alliance Investment Association "assets"?

The IMF/WB/FED are OBLIGATED by ORDERS to avoid approval recognition of GAIA. It is part of the original program—most especially to shut down the program itself. HOWEVER, it is now noted that the IMF, et al., are in worse trouble and with problems now insurmountable for solution and GAIA is the ONLY game around which is valid, useable, controlled and based on value (as theirs is NOT).

There is a very interesting side to all of the graft and corruption to date and that is massive dollar payoffs have been made to the grafting and corrupting abusers. If that DOLLAR collapses, my friends, everybody is back to POVERTY—for there is NOTHING, including gold, to back ANYTHING IN ANY NATION USING THE "DOLLAR".

THEREFORE, it certainly would be wise for SOMEONE to "wise up" and get shifted around to salvage that old "dollar" note.

This is not some NEGATIVE aspect to any bank involved—IT IS THE SALVATION OF ANY BANK INVOLVED ALONG WITH THE NATIONS THEMSELVES.

What happens, however, while the "lenders" ☺☺☺ all the way to their own bank "reserves" is that GMA/Philippines BORROWS more from the very culprits of downfall "while the interest rates are less, thanks to Alan Greenspan". So millions of dollars more go to the debt side and up the deficit by millions and the first tranches of payback have never been paid. Business is dead and there is NO WAY to even earn anything to pay back anything—even "interest" which is the basis of the loans anyway—in that cycle of destruction of a nation.

What can we do? Well, we're here and that is about the size of it—isn't it? Sad though, isn't it?

In collapse is it too late for GAIA?

NO, our program is based on GOLD and a sound foundation IN ANY CURRENCY OF ANY NATION. A ruble, kina, centavo, peso or euro is EQUAL in our program!

Could NESARA work? NO, it is based solely on a "dollar" concept even if it had any merit at all—which it does not.

I will take up the Bellringer recent plea for funds in the next segment as he cries "help" because he used anyone else's material for his Website and then asks for "gifts or Grants" of $100,000 for paying him for his usurpation of other's material—even in the face of being ORDERED to stop it.

BUT, he has given forth ALL the information necessary for legal action against him from our standpoint—right to "Gyeorgos Ceres Hatonn" and all of our Journals—he has taken and offered as his own holding. Interesting in that he has internationally damaged, in some instances beyond repair or able restitution, our program in his idiotic ramblings of "dark side" drivel. He misleads, misinforms and misrepresents everything he touches while claiming total friendship with the good "best friends", the SPECTRUM "CREW". Fine—it all comes out in the wash when TRUTH hits the airwaves.

I am asked to take the space to give you this most recent plea for funds and help—and I ask that all of you study each statement from beginning to end, for it is time you REALIZE what one person can do TO YOU THE CHOSEN "VICTIMS" OF THEIR GAMES.

[THEREFORE, QUOTING:]

A CALL FOR HELP

From Fourwinds...., Tuesday, Oct. 22, 2002

During the mid-1990s six family members, who had been scattered throughout the U.S., were mysteriously drawn to live and work in one location in the central U.S.—Rapid City, South Dakota. Using very limited resources but determined to present Truth to the world, this family established the www.rapidnet.com/~contact news Website as an archive site for the Phoenix Journals and the Contact newspaper.

[H: My goodness, isn't that an interesting admission? We certainly NEVER gave permission for any such use of anything we have ever produced then or now. We do note, however, that Dr. Young (former Editor of the paper and Al Overholt who compiled for layout the Journals) did give on discs, yet, the information—even as to court-banned Journals. Nasty world isn't it? Young, with Overholt in tow, proceeded to even STEAL the paper and published it as their own just prior to SPECTRUM's "birthing"—"Spectrum" being the name of Dr. Young's personal CORPORATION. The direct attempt to destroy CONTACT was already underway. That, however, is not for lengthy repeating here—but THIS "IS" how Truth eventually OUTS.]

To answer the call of Sananda to present Truth one last time to the "four corners of the Earth", this courageous family established the www.fourwinds10.com Website on January 19, 1998. At that time the domain name of www.rapidnet.com/~contact was changed to www.contactnews10.com. [H: Totally WITHOUT PERMISSION!] (A second domain name of www.phoenixarchives.com has since been added) [H: This was to cover already made indiscretions by Dr. Young and Spectrum so that they could then refer to the Archive site as somehow being different and simply a "historic" document site. Didn't work then and it does NOT sell NOW! But ah ha, read on:] TO ASSIST THE NEW SPECTRUM NEWSPAPER'S PRESENTATION OF TRUTH A THIRD WEBSITE, WWW.SPECTRUMNEWS10.COM WAS ESTABLISHED BY THEM ON JUNE 1, 1999. [H: Yes indeed, AFTER the Spectrum "crew" STOLE (TOOK OVER BOTH THE PAPER, CONTACT, AND THE OFFICES THEREOF) SUBSCRIPTION FUNDS AND MAILING LIST. Note the date and realize that Ekkers were in Manila at the time and these miscreants had brought clandestine and secret charges against them. Realize please that the Federal investigators did their interrogations of the "bunch" of thieves and liars in MAY 1999—you know, that little stuff like "Lead" in the blood from "Silver"! These dudes even STOLE "my" identity—which is REGISTERED lawfully—and without permission for any other writer to use it.]

For nearly six years the "fourwinds ground crew" have worked against great odds to maintain these Websites with funds from their personal salaries and Social Security payments. Never have they asked for or received any outside financial assistance. From the beginning of their work, they have been under constant attack and harassment by the darkside for their presentation of Truth. NSA has used every possible means to "shut them down". All U.S. government darkside intelligence agencies and U.S. military darkside groups and technologies have been used against them with no success. [H: Anyone who believes that nonsense is surely ignorant of the abilities of NSA (National Security Agency) and technological capabilities of such agencies. "They" cannot even purchase (or perhaps they have) such disinformation resources as is Bellringer and Four Winds.]

As a member of the "Fourwinds ground crew", I assure you that we are survivors! We work under the direction of Sananda, St. Germain, COMMANDER GYEORGOS CERES HATONN of the Pleiadean Starfleet, and El Morya of the Red Rays. That is why we are known by the masters as the "Red Rays of Rapid City". We have asked for and we have been given complete and permanent protection from all darkside attacks against us and our work. You may recall that I have spoken elsewhere in my writings of our plasma bubble of protection.

Here is the current problem we face. On October 21-22, 2002 the www.fourwinds10.com Website was shut down because we had exceeded our monthly data transfer quota. In fact, due to the large files of the Santa Fe Radio talk show interview being downloaded, we used our data transfer quota for one month in just one day! Our Internet provider is in a dilemma about what to do to correct our problem without at least tripling our cost. We are being told that we need our own T-One line to our network to handle the volume at this time. This we cannot afford. Therefore, the Fourwinds ground crew are putting out a call for help.

The volume increase on the “fourwinds” in 2002 is partially due to our hosting of the Dove Reports and Jennifer Lee Reports on NESARA. We have added the News and Information Section, and the Sheldon Nidle Updates at his request. [H: We therefore ask that CONTACT no longer run any update from Sheldon Nidle, for I cannot sanction such careless representation even though I have NOTHING of contribution to any Sheldon Nidle.] These have substantially increased our Internet traffic. Now, with the presentation of Lord Ari’s Galactic Tales, the messages from Lord Sananda and Mother Sekhmet—and the NESARA talk radio interview with Lord Ari and Lord Ava—our volume has “gone off the charts”. Now there is enormous NESARA advertising happening all over the planet with reference to “for more information”—you guessed it, “go to www.fourwinds10.com”!

The Fourwinds webmaster is inundated with work and needs help. We have ground crew with computer skills who can help, but who must also work a regular job to provide for their own living expenses. Basically, the webmaster and two other people are trying to keep the Websites operative, handle e-mail and make sense of this expanding communication center from their two separate very small homes.

We desperately need to establish a Fourwinds office, provide for more adequate equipment, and have our own server and at least one T-one line. Because the hits on our Websites are increasing exponentially, our volume problems are only going to get worse. We have the crew to do the work but we need financial assistance to provide office space, equipment and salaries to make it all work. There is also the possibility of establishing “mirror” Internet sites to distribute the volume load.

We know that there are enlightened people who are wealthy, who understand the meaning and value of NESARA, and who understand our determination and sincerity to present Truth to the world in our time. Our call goes out to these philanthropic people who are searching for ways to use their money to accomplish great good—to make a difference in our world today. We ask you for financial help at this time. We are asking for a gift or grant of $100,000. Can you help us? Will you help us? Together we will take a great step in faith and establish a Fourwinds Communication Center in Rapid City, South Dakota that will greatly expand our capabilities to present Truth to the world.

[H: Yes indeed, please do what you can because we—and now several other entities—will be demanding restitution for the DAMAGES perpetrated against us/them through their diligent “darkforces” enterprises.]

As spokespersons for the Fourwinds ground crew, my son, the Fourwinds Webmaster, and myself make this urgent call for help.

In Love and Light, Patrick H. Bellringer and webmaster@fourwinds10.com

[END OF QUOTING]

We wish to acknowledge the attached (to the above notice) request of the sending party to hold for future purposes and recovery efforts. It is couched pretty pointedly: “After milking the Millers and many others dry, I guess the thieves and liars are attempting to scam an additional $100,000 (just the beginning!!!) from the ignorant something-for-nothing crowd.” ...

And so we shall!

Now please let us turn to the more recent misfortunes of our old friend David Icke—as the Freedom of Speech killers are hard at work.

Does this mean that I/We agree with everything David has presented? Nope, and certainly we have no wish to help SPECTRUM glean more income off his sensational books BUT, David Icke has a right to write what he sees and that which his research presents as conclusions to him.

Do I wish to further comment on what I mean in my “agree with” or “disagree with” file? Not much but I would point out that I did suggest TO DAVID that he was “out on a limb” when he wrote accusations against the Royal Family of England of being Satanists and “serpent shape-shifters”. AT BEST—SHAPE-SHIFTING IS IN THE EYE OF A “BEHOLDER”, NOT A CELLULAR CAPABILITY OF CHANGE—BY DRINKING BLOOD OF ANY KIND OR SOURCE.

I also suggest to him that he was in potential deep yogurt by publishing works of a WITCH (self-claimed) and “controlled” party who had actually participated in cult murders (sacrifices), etc. I believe I recall that to have been a “Priestess Winters” or something similar. This is A HUMAN PERSON and murder is MURDER and if the tales be TRUTH—then the party should be sent forever to prison for MURDER.

But as to David’s writings? He most certainly has a right to WRITE, in reference to research and interpreted “findings” from those investigations and research programs, what HE FOUND. That, I believe, is all that he has ever done and if it does not coincide with other inputs or sources, so be it. His writings ARE sensational but you will note that when the case comes down to recent CHARGES presented through a court of law—it refers mostly to “anti-semitic” possibilities and racist leanings. He is being charged with libel but for the sake of argument—we can find where he libeled no one or anything.

Anyone who knows David Icke KNOWS that he is not intimidated by outrageous topics and is born with a curiosity beyond the reach of most individuals. Therefore he is dangerous to those who would control and limit YOUR input and thus a “stop at all costs” goes forth and the intimidation, harassment and expenses begin in the intent to destroy through inability to continue some endless battle with the BEAST.

We appreciate the notice and copy which has been sent, from Europe yet, and from one for which we shall not advertise identification for obvious reasons.

We will simply thank the sending parties and share David’s notation:

[QUOTING:]

DAVID ICKE HAS BEEN SERVED WITH A LIBEL ACTION

This is on David Icke’s site, but for those who don’t visit it, this is what he’s up against trying to get the truth out. According to Richard Warman I must be “unstable” too as I’ve read one of his books and been to his seminar...

As many will be aware by now, David Icke has been served with a libel action by one of the most active opponents of his right to freedom of speech and the right of the people to hear and read what he says.

Richard Warman is a member of the Ontario Green Party and, take a deep breath, a human rights lawyer with the Canadian government’s Human Rights Commission.

He has campaigned for years to stop David’s public events in both North America and the United Kingdom, and has publicly been quoted as campaigning for David’s books to be “seized and incinerated”. Pointing out in Children of the Matrix that such actions were also taken by the Nazi regime in Germany against books they did not want people to read is, apparently, “libelous”.

[H: Been there and had that as hundreds of nine volumes of Journals were seized and yes indeed, burned by no less than the Federal Court and by the University of Science and Philosophy (Walter Russell’s cult). It appears that Bellringer is the only one who never stopped offering the banned books and freely splattered them onto his Website—good buddy just trying to spread Light and Glory at anyone’s expense and to his own gain. Anyone still want to talk about “darkside” tainting of our own people? Oh my!]

Mr. Warman has publicly dubbed David as a writer of anti-Semitic hate material and a “hatemonger”. One of Mr. Warman’s most outrageous quotes—remember he is a “human-rights lawyer” with the Canadian government—was in the UK Independent on Sunday magazine on October 1st 2000. Speaking of David and those who listen to him, Mr. Warman said:

“He has taken all the conspiracy theories that ever existed and melded them together to create an even greater conspiracy of his own. His writings may be the work of a madman, or of a genuine racist. Either way they are very dangerous. There is an unpleasant anti-Semitic undertone in his work that must be brought to public attention. If he’s unstable then so are his followers, who hang on his every word. What benefit can there be in allowing him to speak?”

I wonder if you find that as chilling as we do. Silly as people may understandably believe Mr. Warman’s claims of libel to be, the legal system is enormously expensive and Bridge of Love is a publisher that only publishes David’s books. In doing so it has to constantly find money for reprints when it receives only a fraction of cover price some 90 to 120 days after a book is sold in a shop. This alone presents enormous cash-flow problems and it has often been a serious struggle to keep the books available, never mind launching new ones.

RE: SUNSHINE VALLEY FARMS AND DISCUSSION OF BEING "SOLD-OUT".

I have to first "apologize" if this is going to come across as "cross" as I feel. To be perfectly honest, as in a "total story" realization, I will admit that this is not Joyville over here in Insanityland.

I have just experienced the worst upper respiratory "dis-ease" of my life, the back is totally GONE as to "use" and the new foam rubber mattress finally arrived yesterday to great glee and hope for miracles. No such miracles, as this must be the only place on Earth that can turn a foam rubber slab into cured cement. It is best I go no further on that topic but get to the topic in point—lack of funds and a terrible desire to "duck" responsibility for any part of this absurd adventure.

Things are going very well HERE as to ongoing contacts and business ventures—except of course, nothing ever gets DONE, finished, concluded or even rationally unfolds.

Example: We find a good example of a land-title mess (which does, YES, involve US). Some time ago a title was issued to the Land Bank and Lucio Tan, all at the same time from the same registrar of deeds, yet. Perhaps I am a bit jaded by considerations of "LAND" holdings of any kind.

We are humbly grateful for the convenience of this immediate move on our part and we should have some order out of the moving chaos as health improves, etc. You people would laugh at the primitive world here where a washing machine consists of cold-water use, an agitator tub with no agitator and a spin tub adjacent. Then you can hang clothes on the roof if you can find a "cage" without a lock already affixed to same. Hey, it is an improvement, for we have a two-rack drying line on the patio out front and since I was washing everything by hand anyway, except linens, it is somewhat better. E.J. was allergic to the soap in the Gilarmi laundry so we had been washing clothes in buckets agitated with an old fashioned potato-masher utensil. (MM: Please note E.J.'s "[]" comments.)

Now, the furniture here is incredibly BAD and yet what is the price for beauty or comfort? Well, for us at this time—no consideration—if we can just keep our offices and computers working. And, if we can ever get phones IN.

We have a fairly nice looking kitchen "range" but unfortunately it requires a butane TANK which we don't yet have! I'm sure we needed the experience, for my sudden impulsive desire is to burn the furniture in the stove to heat the burners.

So, we are still living out of a crock-pot, coffee-heater pot; GOD LOVE ONES FOR THE BREADMAKER AND MIXES, and a small convection "thing" (glass oven of sorts) and a frying pan. It works for we pioneers of 2002 new millennium of miracles.

I about fell apart yesterday as I realized that being on the 25th floor with one window that looks toward

Manila Bay and on a clear day you can see it very, very well—that a passenger airline plane crashed there yesterday morning and killed a bunch of people just trying to get from somewhere to somewhere.

Humor in Paradise? Oh indeed—our home is decorated with towels, etc., which come directly, hand-carried in fact, from True-Value Hardware and the grocery market.

Do my complaints say I have cause to doubt our process or our ability to get this job done? NO, absolutely not.

It may well seem like it can't even get proper attention but it IS and in such a way where the VALUE of true legal order backs it. Moreover, the Norwegian "Captain" that we met some time back, like three years ago, sought us out and with someone actually and originally from South Africa, tracked us down because there is major interest from Russia into some program to hopefully recover and clean up some nuclear subs before there is worse disaster in that part of the world.

They were doing their preliminary due diligence and say that they have direct connections and assurance that if the program is "workable", they will SEND VIPs to get on with it.

This should interest Ron K. who already has some stuff going with a "Hard Hawk" in the same arena and without connections, it seems, but both contacts do come from Nicosia. Small world after all and HH was, and I guess still is, Greek from Cyprus.

I speak of this because YOU DO NEED TO KNOW and yet we can't just tell the world the news. We actually have to check with the "who is on the U.S. black-list" before we can even entertain these "visitors".

Meanwhile, almost every week there come the "dealers" and "brokers" in gold who claim to be "the holders"—but promise "25 bars at 8:00 tomorrow morning" only to show up (or not show at all) and announce that they just were checking us out and will "now" go and talk to the "real holder".

Yesterday E.J. was "checked out" by a Malaysian for the "holder" because these people don't "trust" Americans. Wow! And since NOBODY has yet done anything—out of DOZENS upon DOZENS, we should be the ones "untrustworthy"?

I suppose that IF I WERE GOD, I would dump this old orb and leave us to our own devastation, which seems to be that for which people demand and aspire.

I NEVER WANTED ANY PART OF THE FARM—PERIOD!

With that start, you need to know the circumstances, for E.J. and I were going about our appointed tasks when "survival" became an issue and Commander started writing about such things as spelta, lentils, beans and chlorella. It gets better so please don't go away.

Charles and Leon Fort went searching for a "farm" where we could put all this wonderment into actual purpose—hands on. To shorten the story—they turned up Turner and his infamous farm. It was in terrible shape with even the pole-barn ready to topple over. But it appeared that it was useable for our needs and we "could grow with it".

Therefore, the costs of defending this action in Ontario, Canada, are going to be very difficult to meet because it doesn't matter how ridiculous you may believe such an action to be, it still costs a great deal of money to defend it. Before too long David's books could cease to be available without external support for legal costs.

We are asking visitors to this Website if they would consider supporting David by contributing to a fund to meet the legal costs and ensure that David's books and information stay in circulation, especially at this crucial time for all our freedoms. If he is left to do this alone, his life's work will be seriously threatened and his books will disappear from circulation—which, of course, is what Richard Warman has said he wants.

[STOP QUOTING]

No, I am not advertising for assistance funding for, singularly, David Icke. It is time you people look at your options and where you can do the most GOOD and accomplish the most positive potential for changing this kind of trashing.

GET THIS JOB WE ARE WORKING ON CONSTANTLY—ACCOMPLISHED. WHEN WE HAVE SUCCESS THESE OTHER COSTS AND CONFRONTATIONS BECOME ONLY BOTHERSOME ANNOYANCES—FOR WE WILL THEN HAVE FUNDS TO SUPPORT, SUFFICIENTLY, THESE CASES WHEREBY HONORABLE PEOPLE CAN BRING TRUTH TO A DYING WORLD OF CONTROLLED SLAVES.

We can't do it without your help but it is not as great a need in "amount" NOW than it would be to support even one expensive mandatory confrontation in a court by such as David Icke or Eustace Mullins, Spotlight paper—or you name it.

It is not my prerogative to tell YOU what to do—and to you who ask, we can only offer that which will ultimately make change HAPPEN. David Icke, himself, needs far more than a few loose dollars in a legal fund—he NOW has acquired too many blood-thirsty enemies. Let us pull together and get something working which can take care of these things instead of leeching us dry from every drop of blood we have left. Together we can get THIS job accomplished. Separately we simply run from one hemorrhage to another. So be it.

I would ask to leave this now, Dharma, for there is much other to be noted and certainly E.J. is off to a most busy and interesting day. Things are in FLUX and major local change is in the wind. Stay out of it but be available if any should come to council, and that, of course, is for E.J.'s information. You, Dharma, go NOWHERE.

Getting "settled in" is not important but only that the one phone line is working and the computers working and on-line when needed. Thank you.

May the world we build be worthy of God's grace and gifts.

Now KNOW, please, that one of the reasons Leon Fort loaned funds to the Institute was so that he could help get the farm under a plan that would actually pay him back abundantly and he could put in some tinkering hours there and actually create a place for the Ence (Enz) family to come farm and cast miracles.

Turner gave us a song and dance about renting the house for some atrocious price that nobody in a right mind would even consider. Then there was the incredibly BAD (OLD, OLD, OLD) single mobile home in terrible condition but he also said we could rent it for an equally obscene price. Then thirdly, there was “an apartment” consisting of a sink, an old non-working stove and two tiny rooms with a shower.

We knew at the time it was a dud for estate lots (his plan and the basis of his pricing) BUT he also had a plan that could work FOR US. It was that he would lease it and funds we paid could go to the option to buy. He didn’t want to be bought out at the time because of tax liabilities at that outrageous price.

Everything we did from then forward about that place was both EXPENSIVE and directly geared to having it and turning it into a full-blown research farm and an actual “show-place” for visitors and agricultural students.

We agreed to the program to the extent that we would actually start with lease payments of what I considered totally obscene and outrageous but with recognition that anything we put into that place would be OURS and the arrangement would fit everyone’s needs.

We were working with a “builder” (Donahue) from Florida (by the way, a personal friend of none other than George H.W. Bush—but that is another story too long for here but well worth the telling, believe me). Donahue moved to California, to Hemet, with a friend, and we paid him to work on these prefab houses and buildings for which he was “famous”. He built “forms” for the panels for both square and dome buildings that would be light in weight but very strong and fast to assemble. Two of his buildings are at the farm, one under the Red Barn and the other on the pole-barn slab. We planned to have the big Arena now used by Grimway Farms to fabricate the buildings. That project was stopped when George Green got Schroepfers to come to Carson City and demand their money back because the first dome home was being built for them.

At that time we also had a “compressed-dirt-block-making machine” and several people had wonderful experience and fun making compressed-earth blocks—most of which would melt in the first rain—BUT PROPERLY COVERED WOULD LAST FOREVER even for retaining walls. The big retaining wall and generator house on the Adam Drive property were both made from the blocks with a simple stucco coating.

Leon Fort had a ball UNTIL Ann Beam came drifting through to “experience” Cmdr. Hatonn. She and a friend happened to camp next door to Leon and his mother, Esther, in the campgrounds at Indian Hills. Within one week Ann had moved into Leon’s trailer and into Leon’s bed, yet. This was fine, I suppose, but it was NOT “fine” with Esther. Soon Ann took over Leon’s business, wrote nasty letters to and about me, and even took over his corporation.

You have to realize that Leon IS a Wallenda of circus fame and did/does(?) train Circus of the Stars people to walk the tightwire. He would have been involved in the movie-making with Wally Gentleman, etc.

Visitors came from Ann’s old stomping grounds in Arizona where they had literally experienced her participation in a Witches’ Coven. If she was a part of “our group”, they would never return. When this came public Leon had a fit, Ann lied her way through the most incredible tales ever heard and Charles demanded that Ann NOT be allowed on the “farm”—but Leon would still be welcome. He soon quit coming, however, after Ann announced that Leon was a “slave” and repeated that to Tuten and the game was off and that started more problems.

Meanwhile, the place was “fixed up” enough for Ence to move there with his family of nine. The first year, Ence and family went right to work and it looked like we had a winner. He found Leon xxx who knew all about raising spelt in Ohio and who talked him into applying some 20 tons of “Nutricarb” (ground high-quality anthracite coal) to the entire (farmable) 150 acres. We had no farm equipment so we had to hire a neighbor to spread and disc in the Nutricarb and then plant the spelt. By that time it was quite late to plant so the crop was only about 50% of “advertised” (by xxx) but it had wonderful flavor and “we” had grown it. Ence and Charles hauled it about 100 miles to a grain mill that could clean it (not “hull” it—that takes a special machine which we later bought to become the only spelt processor west of the Mississippi).

Rod Ence’s wife, Sandy, had a sister named Tammy who moved into the Trailer (mobile home). Instead of rent she carpeted it and after we had redone the water, electric and septic system, repaired and fixed the roof, she lived there rent-free. Her husband “loaned” Sunshine Valley Farms $1500 which would have covered her rent for several months. When they were divorced he sued in Small Claims Court and got a judgment for $1500. You think we have not had “opposition”?

As to the apartment, Gene Dixon had been kicked out by his wife and he had blown the entire Sacramento program for the Constitutional Law Center—yea even to criminal diversions of money from the Institute—with the able assistance of George Green who had moved by then to Nevada—so we moved Gene to Tehachapi. [While a consummate and incorrigible liar, Gene Dixon had a legal mind—backed by experience—probably on a par with any of the current “greats”, including Beli and Bailey. After getting out of the Navy in the late ’40s, he worked his way through college and law school as a bailiff in the San Jose, California court system. That alone would be an education. He had lost his Bar License in an S & L scam but he knew the law. It was upon his advice that we successfully sued Tips for screwing up and losing the Adam Drive house case.]

Dixon made sure that no inconvenience was ever rested on any of HIS COLLEAGUES, including Ence to whom he became quite attached while LIVING in the apartment, with furnished auto, offices and staff. Oh, these things can be easily confirmed as Valerie worked IN THAT OFFICE, as did Karen Singer-White.

When we bought out the Jojoba operation at the airport near Bakersfield, we had grand plans for “colloids”, Bob James’ working center and thus and so. The place had a train-track terminal for shipping and really fitted some of our other needs, for the biggest grain shipper/bagger around was NEXT DOOR. Well, we had all that wondrous old equipment and suddenly the Airport wanted the land back (for a bigger and better offer) and pulled a regular Bob Turner OUT FROM UNDER US.

We had to empty the building and move the equipment that we could salvage and tried to sell the rest. Bob rescued some dandy lab equipment and E.J. sold some of the equipment for a good price so we “made wages”—just barely.

While there we were exposed to a Dole plant going out of business and for a good price we could get the “granaries”. It meant tearing them down, moving them and reconstructing them. We then got permits, laid foundations and paid dearly to have the ones constructed for use at the farm. Two or three others are waiting to be put up in addition.

EVERYTHING WE DID, WE DID WITH FULL INTENTION (AND PERMISSION OF TURNER) FOR PERMANENT OWNERSHIP OF THE FARM ITSELF.

We got paint and Gregg and Debbie from Yucca Valley came and together we did the entire house inside and out. There were giant cottonwoods around the house and when the wind howled, as it often did, and broke off limbs, they usually pierced holes in the tarpaper roof. E.J. decided we needed a steel roof and several thousand dollars later we had one. Now Mr. Turner says Rod Ence overcharged us? Ence was gone by then.

When we first got ready to irrigate we learned the wells had to be cleaned and the pumps re-worked. Turner “didn’t have money for that” so we paid for it. In retrospect we should have deducted it from the rent but we were trying to “get along” so we let it go. [After all, it was only about $8,500 and it was “our” wells.] We dug an entire shelter which was reinforced and insulated inside the Red Barn while insulating [18” of spelt hulls in the walls and ceiling] the barn itself for “cold room” facilities and putting in a bathroom in case of emergency—and for convenience of anyone working in that area.

Charles had a crew put in toilet facilities for both “men” and “women” in a separate building, again, for the convenience of Ence so that nobody would have to “bother” or inconvenience them to use the facilities in the house. Charles needed “freezer” capacity to freeze the grain flour and mixes to make sure there were not insects surviving. So, that came from an orchard going out of business and it became part of our inventory.

We bought a humongous irrigation system for, obviously, irrigation. That went the typical way of good management in a big windstorm where Ence had tethered the system only on the DOWNWIND side and of course the wind just blew the system to smithereens against the pole-lines. After leaving the farm, Ence came back with family helpers and vandalized the system AGAIN by breaking off the valves. Nice people?!

We bought a huge tractor with all of the wonderful accessories that go with tractors, like swathers, bailers, multiple discs, etc., etc., and two Combines (one to be used for parts to fix the other). [We later heard the neighbors were green with envy at all the stuff Ence had to work with.] It seems Ence considered farming a part of child-rearing and Charles came in seething one night. Seems he had caught the oldest boy doing “donuts” in the driveway with the big tractor. After yanking the kid off the tractor (forever), he confronted Ence who said, “Boys will be boys.” Later, after E.J. fired Ence, there was vandalism to the NEWLY REPAIRED tractor with “aviation gas” dumped in the nearly empty diesel fuel tank—worse by far than either sugar or sand as a sabotage item [blew the head gaskets and broke some cylinders].

The crops were not planted properly and the farm went in the “hole” by thousands and thousands of dollars because nobody wanted to weed or keep the equipment in repair. The millet and sunflowers went for bird feed—literally, as we went forth and gathered what we could by hand—ME INCLUDED, while Al made his turn as well—mostly year number two was a total waste.

When Ence left we were facing a different kind of experience because we did have someone wanting to come and make it work—from Canada. This was a wonderful experience except that Stan and Deanna could not get clearance from immigration to be able to stay more than six months. They are among the most wonderful people we have ever encountered and remain totally good friends to this very day—even with us in Manila.

The effort continued, however, and never with other than full intentions of—even if everything else failed—holding on to that FARM.

When we knew Dingmans were coming we personally bought BRAND NEW appliances for the house—including stove (range), refrigerator, microwave, kitchen center and even a custom-made small dishwasher to fit the broken one in the kitchen. We outfitted the house with curtains where appropriate and set it up enough that it could be used by people able to BRING NOTHING across the border from Canada because of immigration restrictions.

In addition we paid farm helpers to be there EVERY DAY. They also ran the mill, cleaners, etc. It was definitely NOT SHABBY.

While Stan’s family was still there, Ray Bilger asked to use the trailer. He was doing some research and writing for Gene Dixon and the Law Center so we said OK. He then wanted to invite a lady to move in with him but, in the face of the two precious little Dingman girls, WE SAID “NO”.

Then, when Janet had her accident and we saved her life and a couple of her kids, she eventually ended up with Ray and THEY took possession (free of charge) of the house and, yes, supposedly the farm. Just as Mark P. promised, it was all downhill from there.

However, not one payment was missed to Bob Turner—NOT ONE. A few were LATE and he promptly raised hell, but we made them all. Once, after being in Manila, the payment was late and he did condescend to its being a bit late and I, Doris, personally wrote and thanked him for the “favor”. In return I got a scathing letter that friendship was one thing and business and payments were another and never the twain would ever be considered a second time. The only other time a payment was late he “evicted” us in “three days”, Charles and all. He was having a bad day, he claimed.

So, what of NOW?

Let me point out some of the ways this is not a good deal—this dump us out and run: In the beginning the lease was outrageous but would be put to buy-out—so it was “OK”, I guess, since it would all go to the proper end in the long run. Turner never “cut” the payment but did increase it on at least two occasions to “more outrageous”.

He received some kind of government payments of which he gave us no portion. He also was able to collect on some storm damage to the planted fields (ours) of which we got NOTHING. He also was able to recover for the damage and new roof to the trailer home when the wind blew off the roof—but all furniture and contents were lost TO US and as “luck” would have it—the furniture was a set of Narra wood furniture (Philippines prime). It just went to the dump and since we were not there to even howl about it, so be it. By then, Rex and Margie were in charge of everything there.

THERE WAS NEVER ANY MISUNDERSTANDING ABOUT THAT FARM AND OUR INTENDED USE OF SAME—PERIOD AND END OF DEBATE.

Now what happened? We don’t know, really. We do know that Bob Turner called us about two months ago, after no contact for at least these three years, and announced that he was dying and had buyers for the farm. He said he would send us a fax.

E.J. was caught totally by surprise and gave him a lot of sympathy over his condition which consists of being probably 300-plus pounds overweight and which has destroyed his heart and legs. He said he had two good offers for the farm “on the desk” in front of him. That was, now realized, a blatant lie as was the presentation on the “health” aspect of his condition.

He said HIS SON AND DAUGHTER (of seven or eight children) were there and that “Thad” (the son) wanted to get things cleaned up, into a Trust, and prepare for Bob’s demise.

After Dingmans had to go home, we decided to “lease out” the land—since it was organically certified (at the expense of thousands and thousands of hours and dollars)—to the Duncans, who were at that time one of the largest organic farms around the country. We knew the Duncans and like them—they even planted some test-spelt on their property elsewhere. Bob Turner “hated” (his words) “those Duncans” and didn’t want any part of it. We subsided and we grew weeds. We did run some sheep from which, next season, we grew even a larger variety of weeds from the broadcast sheep-seeding.

Duncan’s had rented us space in their big arena-sized barn to store our beans, lentils, some spelt hulls and equipment. However, they needed to finish the paving of the floor and Charles had agreed, without our knowledge, to empty the area by “December”—you know, that first December we spent in Manila WITH CHARLES! So, long distance and far away, we had to clear out that place and make places at the farm for dumping the beans and the equipment.

We never knew exactly what happened but E.J. tried to manage it from here while Pablo and brothers shifted everything and disked the “hulls” into the ground—using our fork-lift as tractor with the discs pulled behind. Dave and Kathy finally TOOK (borrowed) the “lift” (via arrangements with Charles?)—and that was the end of that story. We still have a small “lift” at the farm and we wonder constantly of its position or storage and just hope that Gene perhaps took it home once he located it.

When E.J. terminated Ed Young in March of 1999, and Rick Martin and Charles Neil refused to pick up his keys and enforce the termination, Ray Bilger joined the rebels and stripped the farm house of all of the appliances, dishes, bedding, etc., etc., he could carry off. The rest of that story is not appropriate here.

Rex Smith immediately “came to the rescue” and moved into the farm-house. He and Margie got along well and that story also needs no further dialogue HERE—but—he took up the interchange with Bob Turner, et al.

When Bob refused to sublease to Duncans, E.J. asked Rex to see if Bob would reduce the lease to a fair amount for the buildings in use and he could lease the land elsewhere but keep it to “ORGANIC” for obvious reasons—then we would take it back when appropriate. Bob said he had had inquiries to use the big well so he would lease what we needed for $1800 per month and reduce the payment another $300 when he could sell the water. Bob didn’t sell the water so we were stuck with $1800 per month.

THERE IS NO EARTHLY WAY WE WOULD EVER HAVE EVEN PAID A DIME FOR THAT “DUMP” IF WE DIDN’T HAVE ULTIMATE PLANS ONGOING; AND TO ACCOMPLISH OUR PLANS WE WANT AND NEED THAT FARM—OR “A” SUITABLE FARM. NOW THERE ARE HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS IN IMPROVEMENTS AND STORAGE UP FOR TOTAL LOSS UNDER THESE CURRENT CONDITIONS.

Bob Turner has lied to us, used us, made over half a million dollars OFF OF US under manipulative circumstances, been insulting, overpriced everything—and has never in over a decade put one dime into that property while we provided everything—and I mean EVERYTHING—even to the labor. Now he says that at one time he offered E.J. that farm at half price? BS squared. He never did anything except increase the lease payments on “cost of living” (his) basis. [Why would he now say he offered it at half price? To protect himself from his promise (not in writing, of course) to credit us with our lease payments when we purchased the property? Makes one wonder: Can Lucifer make one forget things?]

He has a bunch of totally bad properties, such as OLD motels and that old outrageously-priced Talmark building which I’m surprised has not been condemned already. He has given faulty “eviction” demands to the ones living at and attending the farm as caretakers while it remains our (Ekkers) only local and permanent legal address in the U.S. Is this game fine and wondrously OK with me? NO. Not even to Ellen spending five minutes more in address changes.

Bob did NOT consult with us—he pronounced to us his intentions, while trying to gain sympathy over his imminent and impending death and then claims to have sold out from under us and even upping the deadline dates by over a month as if he hadn’t written his dates and faxed it to us. NO! It certainly is NOT acceptable with me.

Frankly, at first it hit that what a relief it would be to be free of that THING and just get our job done. But no, it is NOT alright and people “invested” both funds and hours to make that place work and have it and hold it for development—and this was all along the way.

People, Two-by one of them, even offered to mortgage their own homes to hold that farm (this month) but the price is so outrageous as to have a thing worth $250,000 at most be claimed at $1.2 million. All improvements used by Bob Turner to advertise that place—ARE OURS! Even to the “organic” status of certification. AND THAT IS THE ONLY REASON GRIMWAY FARMS WANTS IT.

Turner could have LEASED the growing fields to them—but you see, it is more cash he needs to clear his debts before he dies and that wouldn’t serve his personal needs or wants. Furthermore, he could have leased out the water for nearby irrigation systems, even to the sod farmers, but didn’t. The Golden Rule works both ways.

So, what am I saying in this rambling diatribe? NO—TO MR. TURNER’S “ANYTHING”.

Turner does NOT make suitable “offers”—he manipulates everything and expects to have HIS way—count on it. We did EVERYTHING to suit him all these years and now it is just “TOO MUCH” for me to bear.

If we let go of this last big enterprise, then we deserve to not amount to much because people have contributed to keep the farm and assets and who would further contribute to anything that is given away or allowed to again be stolen and destroyed at the whim of anyone just out for himself?

Maybe it is OK to take everything I HAVE and that has been pretty consistently accomplished—BUT IT IS NO LONGER “OK” TO COST ANOTHER CENT TO ANYONE WHO HAS STAYED THIS COURSE AND KEPT US GOING—PERIOD, NEVER AGAIN IF I CAN DO ANYTHING OTHERWISE.

In a court of law, it WILL stand that the “intentions” had to have been for permanent ownership of that farm and oral agreements DO stand for something in court in most instances. It is OBVIOUS that there was NEVER any other intent than for us to have that property.

Yes, indeed, if we had been offered “half price”, then let me assure you immediate receivers of this notation—WE OVERPAID ALREADY! Surely there are enough records around to confirm that for selves. Turner didn’t ASK us about the sale of the place—HE TOLD US and only gave us a week to “be in or out”. He may be surprised.

My goodness, WE could lease the land to Grimway if that is the problem—but right now we can’t afford CASH to get a pot and much the less to pay Bob Turner a MILLION DOLLARS for his overpriced property. And yes, that is exactly what he demanded in that “either or” announcement—CASH and arrangements for same by Oct. 20th—“in or out”.

My gosh, we even took on the tending of old Spud-the-dog FOR Turner. Things are definitely not good in Sunshine Valley today, good friends.

Do we just start paying the lease again? Well, certainly not yet because he said November was covered because of the “metal roof” on the house “at our expense”. Moreover there are legal ramifications and I remember one outstanding thing from our first encounter with housing problems and banks—what you pay in the middle of disputes of this type is LOST FOREVER and has NO BEARING ON OUTCOME. You get no “refund” and THEY KEEP THE MONEY.

Bob is now, apparently, demanding rent payments? Come off it, people, this is totally ludicrous and, moreover, insane on our part. Besides, we don’t have it laying around in the cookie-jar.

He also says the children want him to sell all the assets now. Fine, he has bunches of other overpriced property—so sell THAT, for I doubt there are agreements for purchase on them as there are on the farm—WITH US.

That is NOT “Ekkers’ farm”. It is a responsibility that we somehow ended up shouldering and we would be far, far better off without ever having heard of the place. BUT, IT BELONGS TO EVERYONE WHO EVER EVEN INVESTED IN A GRAIN OF SPELT IN THAT PLACE. “THAT” WAS A “MAJOR PROJECT” IN CASE PEOPLE DON’T REMEMBER!

We Ekkers have been accused in the courts of “mismanagement” of funds and other interesting perceptions by outsiders and “insiders” cutting a deal for themselves. That farm is the glowing project and most visible of intentions to do good business. It is not spiritual hoopla—it was one of our typical good projects, which [all of] by the way, remain right on the drawing boards.

It was destined to be a major “Institute” research facility and we intend that it shall be. We are not over here in Hell to build some ode to Ekkers of some kind. We have been entrusted with THE WAY and when used, THE MEANS to the end of a better way for EVERYONE—not just Ekkers.

Right now that farm is worse than the albatross around the neck—but it is “our albatross to bear”, I suppose. If we are forced out—so be it but to just turn the other side of the face and get hit again seems to me that we deserve to FAIL at all the wondrous opportunities afforded us. We are NOT there to be the human parties involved—but frankly, I don’t know when God’s plan reduced itself to “Ekkers’”. I personally have found the farm to be nothing more than anathema for me and an assumed responsibility of impossible management for E.J. However, it is a part and parcel of that which was agreed to accept by us. Others have long since dumped and left while hoping everyone would do likewise.

Fine, the numbers of obligations seem to get fewer and fewer, don’t they?

We would have done anything within our ability to help Bob Turner if he had just been truthful and honorable with us. He manipulated us from onset and upstart and those are the facts. I for one am sick and tired of being the screwie every time another screwor comes by to line his own pockets AT OUR EXPENSE. Enough is quite enough. If that is ungodly, somehow, then I guess SO! I consider it, however, an effort to fulfill a promise to our higher guides who have made this journey for all of us, possible.

You will NOTE, please, that the “house” in town thing is NOT a bargain—Turner expects us to BUY it, as tacky and as worthless as his other “deals”, and offering Grimway’s “Mexicans” to move our office “stuff” is hardly a bargain, my friends.

I’ll tell you something and I am confident from our own lessons—there will be a time when even that farm is worthless (not far from it NOW) and land will go for less than 10 cents on the dollar. Hard times are ahead with merciless happenings and a new generation who doesn’t know how to do much of anything except punch computer keys. This is not some revelation—it is DEAD AHEAD. And no, I thought that if we had made the grade here, we would just pay Turner—for his convenience. Right now I have concluded that we would be worse than stupid to pay another cent OR MOVE OUT AT HIS WHIM.

What happens, however, is that if John L. up and leaves, then the fulltime “live-in” will have “abandoned” the property and that makes it awkward as to care of the property. I find it more interesting that Bob Turner DOES NOT GET IN TOUCH WITH US nor does he allow us to have contact with this “buyer” who would probably work out an instant deal with us. He (the buyer) wants the fields and water, so what possible inconvenience could we be to him in his needs—since we made “organic” possible in the first place?

So, I have beat the horse to shreds here and still have not touched on most of the more obvious things about that FARM—but, I needed to express MY feelings because it still seems that my job is not one of “choice” in a day’s plans but one accepted and it was not and is not—farming—and that is neither “here” nor “there”.

I wanted you to have more input from ME before any discussion on Tuesday afternoon (your time) (Wednesday morning ours). Forgive me if I am emotional but the load is just too confounded heavy on the heart in these circumstances where I see our friends hurt and pushed around while, incredibly enough, somehow causing it to seem to be OUR FAULT.

Turner doesn’t even try to call, people—he has fabricated those stories also.

Now, how long will it be before we get this job underway? We have this job underway and what we really ask is when will we have abundance—called money? We don’t know and part of our bargain was not to demand OUR WILL—“but thine”, Sir. We ask for a “better way” in “His best wisdom” and WE GET IT—every day it shows and is confirmed.

It is much as with “our house”. Early, early on in the first encounters over the place: “You just can’t believe that it will be fine, can you?” we were asked. We were, however, at the same time reminded that it might well be that we would have to move OUT temporarily. Well, that has come to pass—and yet if Kathy was not in the place right now as a basic squatter—it would still be quite EMPTY.

What will be ultimately the outcome of all this activity? We haven’t any notion and we would be in total danger if we did know. We have learned that, if nothing else about this incredible odyssey.

Moreover, to be good stewards of “HIS” gifts causes us to realize that we must never appear extravagant and we must attend to our best ability that which we hold—and that includes a farm in Cummings Valley called “Sunshine”. I further realize that if we simply had the abundance available, we would not take a stand properly because it is “right”; we would pay off the hounds to clear the debris.

Perhaps we will NEVER want to “own” that farm, friends—but we certainly have PAID for the right to be there and to protect our decade-plus investment until we can make other arrangements.

Thank you for hearing me “out”. Certainly I will abide by “Democratic” vote on actions but sometimes we need honest input in order to even decide for ourselves what another might do if they understood facts and none of us are psychic even if it is so-claimed.

THESE ARE THE TESTS and of that I am confident. So, do we pass or fail the tests? I don’t know, for surely I am not the professor in the institute. We are but the students making every effort to survive the course and gain that diploma into the next higher level of “make it” or “flunk it”.—DJE

GAIA Moves Forward In Honor And Truth

11/17/02—#1 (16-93)

HOW CAN WE SHARE?

Hatonn—When we beg patience and indulgence with what perhaps seems blind “faith” of some kind as to our ongoing project, we KNOW that we risk interference every time we DO decide to give another try at letting you, our team, in on, at the least, some interchanges and documents for your evaluation.

Politicians play every game available, and some which aren't, to enable themselves to continue the heinous graft and corruption downfall of this nation, the Philippines. Oh they claim that they are cleaning up everything but while espousing the lies the status of acceptance around the globe now places this nation BELOW the level of the darkest, deepest poverty Third World countries as to poverty, corruption, education and anything else you wish to name.

Standard & Poor have again downgraded the economic status of the Philippines to less than ANY acceptable level for investment purposes. Then, this very week the “Cabinet” of the President was challenged to “turn in courtesy ‘resignations’” and a lot did—(of course meaning NOTHING). However, it tossed a brick into the international wheels and even a big potential bond offering fell totally out of bed and had to be called OFF.

A very good political cartoon did a takeoff this morning of the crashed plane in Manila Bay this week. You have to realize that the problem with that plane was that both engines quit and thus nothing was left to keep the craft airborne. Not to be without blame onto “anyone else”—it is deemed probable PILOT ERROR. Of course the plane was only less than a kilometer from the runway from which it had just “lifted off” with everything working, seemingly, just fine.

It is looking more and more like the engines simply did not have fuel. Oh well. Perhaps that IS “pilot error”?

Anyway, the cartoon depicts a plane headed DOWN. On its side it reads: ECONOMY. The voice inside the plane shouts: “Both engines have quit and we are going to crassshhh!” The other strong voice shouts out in the face of the obvious: “NOT SO!!!”

This represents the foolish President (GMA) saying that everything is just fine, for after all she has a doctorate in economics, was a classmate of Billy Zipper and has at least four “lovers” in one stage of loving or another.

It seems the lady did a little gossiping “pillow talk” and told one about some indiscretion of the other (who happens to be head of the Judiciary—Justice Secretary) WHO THEN MADE PRIVILEGED SPEECHES TO CONGRESS WITHOUT NAMING THE CULPRIT BUT BRINGING DOWN THE “HOUSE OF LORDS AND LADIES”.

Does the lady have lovers, yea yet, even her husband? Who knows and more importantly WHO CARES? THE NATION IS DYING A MISERABLE SLOW DEATH OVER THE FLAMES OF EXECUTION.

This brings up another little notation in the paper where there is a new fad for cooking chicken here. And no, this is NOT some joke of some kind. The “cook” simply takes a live chicken and hangs it over a heat source and slowly cooks the chicken alive. When it is still “flapping” but is obviously near death the “cooks” take a very modern blowtorch and burns the feathers of the bird—still alive. The claim is that this method of cooking gives more flavor for the palate. The complaint? Oh my, that the Animal Rights people are trying to stop this most delicious way of cooking chicken.

Now please, friends, as we consider these things just suppose you might be GOD (by whatever label is being used today) and you are responsible for each of the above-mentioned parties, including the chicken NOT in the pot—and how WOULD BE YOUR SUNDAY TODAY? This, without even mentioning JUST the murders and mayhem spewed in the rest of the paper—just in local Manila.

Even in consideration of the chicken-cooking method above it appears people are totally insane about their own health and welfare. Since time was counted hunters have known that to have good meat and safe food, the animals had to be killed AND CLEANED. A lot of people are going to pay a heavy price for such inhumane stupidity, for those entrails will contaminate the whole of the meat. And who will be blamed when food poison takes its toll? You can KNOW it will be “someone else”—instantly and probably followed by rallies, demonstrations and lawsuits. The Filipinos have learned well from some of the tricks of the “New World”.

As we turn our attention to that which holds more interest to this team and our project, we need to give a bit of backup and as much current information as is circulating around and about regarding various points of interest.

This has to begin, I suppose, with a remote reference to, first of all Malaysia and Dr. Mahathir, and further out, the gold Dinar.

Dr. Mahathir, and his Deputy who is working with our program and the parties to which we next refer, are in favor of pushing the Gold Dinar as a basis (gold) for currency—hopefully, in this area of the Pacific and Arab nations nearby. Well, perhaps “Islamic” people in case that is not a reference established. It serves the NEEDS of the inability of Muslims/Islamic people to handle INTEREST which is AGAINST the laws of, basically, ALL “RELIGIONS”. This statement is made here in case you “Christians” have forgotten that your “savior” dumped the moneychangers OUT OF THE TEMPLE for the practice of “usury”. Taxes and INTEREST (usury) are typically Pharseeian practices which hold strong to today and brought the world to demise.

Now, our friends down South (in Mindanao) some of whom are Moros and Muslims would like to continue peaceful coalition within the Philippines as established. However, there is no evidence or effort to attend these poverty-stricken populations. Agreements are broken, funds NEVER show up as promised and thus the “people” involved have better relationships with Malaysia—so when you look at documents and see the term “Ringgit” you will realize that summaries are given in Malaysian currency as well as Peso while not being expressed in “dollars” at all but based on the dollar as in both instances. Pesos are devaluating daily—Malaysia Ringgits are STABLE and have been since 1997 when Mahathir took action in the face of the Soros MESS.

Now we have an added small intrusion into peace and order and that is the current dispute over North Borneo (Sabah), the Sultanate of Sulu (to which we are now umbilically attached because of court orders and agreements) and of course TERRORISM in its most confused reference.

As is usually the case, however, the only “terrorists” around are the establishment, police, military and political criminals—along, of course, with the biggest international business wheelers and dealers on the globe. The U.S. citizens may well still be asleep to the prospects of economic collapse and currency wipe-out (called “dollar”) but even the little Third World sovereigns are NOT.

How nice that Global Alliance Investment Association (GAIA) is based on GOLD and not on some worthless “dollar” paper note. GAIA is not DENIED but nobody dares USE anything that will bring about realization of leadership corruption, which no longer can be avoided. That is not because of us; it is solely because of the facts. Even the Central Bank seems to have stopped using V.K.’s favorite term: “fictitious”. Everybody, including the bankers (for your personal insight) wishes to use the program but can't figure out “how” or, especially and moreover, how to keep it QUIET. We can show them BOTH while the focus is on whom is sleeping with whom and when and to whom went the greatest spoils of high office; Ramos is still a long way OUT FRONT with that medal of achievement.

Note however, when THAT DOLLAR GOES POOF (as is promised by every economist under his/her breath) there goes all the loot of a lifetime of stashing and laundering, hiding and manipulating.

It certainly would seem the better part of wisdom to use the right tools now and save that dollar while it still has value. Oh well.

How long do we have? We "have" to have as long as it takes with step by step, drop of blood by drop of blood (ours of course).

There seems always to be a misunderstanding in what even Ekkers are assigned to accomplish. They are available for holding, offering and explaining. They are NOT sent to SAVE anyone's "assets" except through the open and lawful methods before us. And no, our team has no need to "fold it in" because of delays. If you can't see the merit in this work, then I can't twist arms, my friends. You want instant gratification and got it for years and years at the cost of having to walk the debris-strewn way NOW. Pipers get paid for their services in one way or another. Satan had his day and still hangs on for dear life, for a world of people have to have attitude adjustments. While such as "The Osbornes" hold center stage as models to emulate—then you continue to have BIG problems. Furthermore, as long as you feast on information scattered about as DISinformation from such as Bellringer—you have even larger problems. It does, however, take the focus off of us and we appreciate that gift of oversight—even from Bellringer and his "Red Rays of Rapid City" still attached to that SPECTRUM (personal corporation of Dr. Ed Young) nest of "nippers" and "snitchers". Prison inmates have a name for these kinds of criminal persons.

In the worst of circumstances the associates "down South" are pulling their association together and are now organized and working diligently to have an operational and REASONABLE plan for proceeding with commodity coverage and what we will label for simplicity, "Deeds" or "DEEDholders".

When people start forming working alliances in a right and righteous direction, friends, they can be delayed, of course—but they will not be stopped even though the going is oftentimes "slow".

I ask to share with our friends and readers some papers which were delivered yesterday and obviously after some delays in transit. I believe, however, that it would give you great encouragement to see that it is not just "talk" but organized "action" taking place. You must remember also that there is a month-long

The Proposed Allotments are for reference and future use when releases to Deedholders are to be effected with GAIA'S APPROVAL.

Muss

Islamic-Muslim time of worship of Ramadan into which we are now about half way through. This slows or halts business to a crawl but is a time of thought and prayer for forward movement in honor and Truth.

We will just let the documents speak for themselves, please, for we have no time for further explanations other than to say that there are some 600 "deeds" out in the areas mentioned but this will involve some 50 in "Western Mindanao Area (WMA)".

This does/will not reflect accurate amounts, for this represents a working plan for reasonable combining of potential assets and backup commodity to establish proper and workable programs which can be monitored properly rather than simply stir a boiling pot without organized growth and management. This is the area, however, where Spelt fields can be grown and exchange products between other SEA nations could be immediately established.

Do not be distracted by individual names affixed, for these are the signature parties who take responsibility but all entities come under properly authorized and registered corporations, livelihood cooperatives or foundations for livelihood cooperative projects. These will be anything from major building, agriculture, fishery (marine) projects, to seaweed farming. There will be housing or community formations and educational facilities allowing for schooling for ALL children and adults.

These people started out totally without knowledge or ability to function in this type of assembly—but you will see just by this one set of documents that when necessary there is a willingness to LEARN AND GROW. SELF-ESTEEM AND SUCCESS IS BUILT ON SUCH REALITY. Various sectors are being brought into operational coalition under Asia Polygon Development Corporation in order to structure things properly, lawfully and to offer management and staffing. We know and honor Dr. Mustapha P. Ballaho to whom there is reference and also have had long-standing relationship with Sharif Zain Jali (here spelled Zali).

These people have NO ASSOCIATION WITH OR INTERCHANGE WITH any groups who present as any kind of terrorist or shadow organizations. The area mostly encompasses that long recognized as ARMM (Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao) with agreements established within all Philippine laws. They also are in the area most affected at this time by the Sultan of Sulu legal/lawful and court-recognized holding of the Philippines and Sabah. But that is not at issue in this process. THAT is altogether different in focus but, of course, is recognized in potential.

We have working agreements but we have no political input or directives. This is often difficult, for in the keeping distance we are unable to participate in some of the more pleasant things of developing growth and recognition. And, there will always be “a brother” to do in another. We, therefore, must keep distance and neutrality at ALL times.

I believe that the way to handle the papers for more personal enjoyment, E.J., is to simply fax copies to Mark. There truly is nothing like actually seeing signatures affixed along with the personal note interchange. Copy doesn't offer the same “part of” realization. We ARE going to get this job done, beloved friends, and it shall be done in such a way that we stand tall and clean.

We are not sharing to have to explain ANYTHING nor to ask anything. We know what we are doing here in this partnership venture and yes it may well be a long way to fruition but other things are moving as well. Our friend from Papua New Guinea is still working to get the trip made. It seems his sponsors got sidetracked on crude-oil exchange

RESOLUTION NO. 1
SERIES OCTOBER 2002

A motion has been presented by member AROLA MADISA, duly seconded by member HJ OSTER TAHIL, to the body requesting, that, a Resolution be adopted address to Mr. EJ. EKKER, President, Global Alliance Investment Association (GAIA) for his humanitarian involvement in extending Worldwide Assistance to the depressed areas particularly the Philippines and for alleviating and adopting measures to combat Worldwide hungers among the poor and institutionalize sound investments in private and public sectors.

WHEREAS, the overall aim of GAIA initiated Joint Venture Partnerships (JVP) Project is to contribute to sustainable socio-economic development of the disadvantage rural-populace in Third World Nations;

WHEREAS, The Coalition-building means allying with institutional partners that share the aim of promoting and safeguarding the development interest of the less-fortunate and strengthening them through capacity-building investments.

The approach builds upon a common vision of the DEEDHOLDERS in support of GAIA Programme, so that the consequent empowerment of the poor and its growth on the political, economic, Social and Human capital is not a threat to participant institutions, but, rather the desirable final result of working together;

WHEREAS, the fact that, 1.2 billion people are obliged to subsist on less than a dollar per day or less than Fifty pesos, in degrading and often brutal reality are perhaps the most important challenge for humanity in years to come;

WHEREAS, the GAIA's Fund Approached is a Catalyst if we have to realize its mission and put into best practices, at the same time using these to influence the good direction and content of National and International Poverty - reduction efforts. Consequently, supporting the development of partnerships-governments, private sectors, Civil Society and financial institutions, establishing institutional and policy frameworks in support of the DEED's objectives and fulfillment.

FINALLY, let copies of this Resolution be furnished. The Board of Directors and Officers of Global Alliance Investment Association (GAIA) at its corporate office, Las Vegas, Nevada, United States of America, The Private Sectors, The Government concerned and Banking Institutions.

At the same time of that meeting a call was received from an old Korean acquaintance in London, off making things work there. He was excited and hopes 99.99% to have positive funds by Christmas. We will share that hope and joy in realization.

I want to also share with you some more interpretations of who is on second, first and home base in the Sultan drama but that will take us off on too long a fragment to enjoy too much piled in on this writing. We DO want to share as much as possible for now, more than ever before, it is OUR program and not some figment of imagination and YOU HAVE MADE IT POSSIBLE OUT OF TOTAL IMPROBABILITY AND AGAINST ALL ODDS.

We would also like to keep you a bit informed on, yes and no joy, the circumstances as they unfold here in Southeast Asia and specifically here in the Philippines. It may not be interesting to most of you as to world affairs but I promise you IT IS.

God will keep you in the hollow of his hand and that, beloved ones, is sufficient to our needs.—GCH

WAVING A BIG STICK

By M. Cherif Bassiouni, Tribune, 11/10/02

Getting the world riled up over Iraq has served two purposes even if war does not materialize: shaking up Iraq and putting three permanent members of the Security Council [France, Russia and China] on notice that their inaction would result in the council's marginalization.

Both tactics were successful but that is only Part 1. Part 2 dealing with the actual use of force if needed, raises issues of legitimacy and is more complicated.

The United Nations Security Council after eight weeks of negotiation and debates, on Friday approved a resolution strongly warning Iraq to disarm and clearing the way for military action if Saddam Hussein does not comply.

The debate that is not taking place is the legitimacy of the use of force in international relations.

After World War I, the U.S., realizing that the powerful states invoked the right of preventative self-defense against weaker states, sought to punish that kind of bullying.

In 1919 the U.S. joined its allies in drafting the Treaty of Versailles, which stipulated the prosecution of the German Emperor. It was the first time in history that a head of state would be prosecuted for what is now called aggression. The Emperor sought refuge in the Netherlands, which found that no such crime existed in international law.

To avoid the occurrence of such evasion, the U.S. and France in 1928 signed the Kellogg-Briand Pact, named after the U.S. Secretary of State and the French foreign minister. The treaty renounced war as an instrument of national policy.

It was on this basis that the U.S., France, the United Kingdom and the USSR signed an agreement in 1945 that established the Nuremberg International Military Tribunal, which included a provision for "crimes against peace".

In 1946, the U.S. also proclaimed the Tokyo Charter for the prosecution of Japanese leaders. There, too, "crimes against peace" were included.

At Nuremberg and Tokyo, the U.S. insisted that an unprovoked attack by one state against another was such a crime. Arguments by the accused concerning preventative self-defense were categorically rejected.

After these trials to make sure there was no doubt about it, the U.S. urged the drafters of the UN Charter to reject preventative use of force. The conclusion, Article 2[4], could not be clearer: "All Members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state..."

This does not mean that a state is precluded from using force in self-defense, including anticipatory self-defense in cases of necessity. That right is described in the UN Charter as "inherent". The analogy to individual self-defense is that no one has to wait to be struck before using force.

Iraq does not constitute an imminent, immediate or even short-term foreseeable threat against the U.S. that warrants anticipatory self-defense. Consequently, there is no legal or factual basis for the U.S. to resort to unilateral use of force at this point.

The International Court of Justice has already condemned the U.S. once, during the Reagan administration, for its mining of the Nicaraguan harbors and for sending armed rebels from Honduras in an attempt to change the Sandinista regime by force.

Assuming the U.S. has no legitimate basis under international law, how can Congress resolve to authorize the president to use force, as he sees fit and when he sees fit?

Aside from the questionable constitutionality of Congress' delegation of its war power to the president, can Congress legitimize the use of force in violation of international law?

The answer is no.

This may be why the early beatings of the war drums for unilateral U.S. action gave way to the urging of those such as Secretary of State Colin Powell, who said a Security Council resolution authorizing force was necessary. If nothing else, such a resolution is the best shield against a charge of "aggression", though likely the reason for seeking it was political opposition.

Unlike the first Bush administration, in which the president, vice president and the secretary of state were lawyers sensitive to the values of the law, this president, vice president, secretary of defense and national security adviser are neither lawyers nor sensitive to the law.

This may be why they are attracted to the theory of force that is contrary to international law.

No matter what the arms inspection fate may be, and no matter how the U.S. interprets the Security Council resolution, before resorting to the use of force, there should be a finding by the council that Iraq has materially breached portions of Security Council resolutions relevant to the preservation or maintenance of international peace and security.

Only such a finding can confer legitimacy on multilateral use of force.

The U.S. correctly wants to make sure that, in the first resolution there would be no question that such a finding would be made if the Iraqi regime materially breaches the inspections. This is not an unreasonable position.

But the final judgement should be made by the Security Council.

In following this approach the U.S. would be champion of world order and world peace, and not its bully.

In the meantime, if arms inspections clears Iraq of its weapons of mass destruction, and the U.S. continues its containment policy, the victory would be complete and without bloodshed.

Now the U.S. should put its efforts behind another Security Council resolution to establish, as it did in the former Yugoslavia in 1992, a commission to investigate Iraq's violations of international humanitarian law and of human rights....

[JR: It will be interesting to see how the U.S. will get around UN Article 2(4) to counteract international law to justify its use of "preventative" force against Iraq. Germany did it in WWI and paid dearly for it with the implementation of the Treaty of Versailles that just about destroyed her as a nation. It's a newer version of a superpower using its might against a weaker state. The U.S. has chosen not to lead the world but to conquer it.]

TREMORS OF SYSTEMIC FAILURE ARE MERELY EARLY WARNING SIGNS

By Georgie Anne Geyer,
Universal Press Syndicate, 11/08/02

WASHINGTON—Behind the results of this week's elections and beyond the immediate questions of control of Congress and the states, fear is growing in Washington about our whole system shifting beneath us.

It's not a fixed idea yet. One finds hints and warnings of it in articles, speeches and personal conversations, which have yet to be assembled into any coherent whole. Here is an ongoing list of the warning signs:

The fact that, more and more, our security is being decided and our wars fought by paramilitary-style troops and bodies outside the structure of our regular, uniformed and congressionally mandated military.

The strike by the United States into Yemen this week, which killed a major al-Qaida operative and five of his associates. It was not even a volunteer Army strike, but a CIA missile fired from an unmanned Predator aircraft—and it was the first time such a strike has been made in an independent country outside of Afghanistan. The president authorized such offbeat actions months ago.

The degree to which, in these same fields of warfare and security, what used to be purely military operations are being conducted by civilian operatives.

U.S. News & World Report has just reported, for instance, that in the Gulf War there was one civilian contractor for every 100 military personnel, while in Bosnia, the ratio was often one-to-one.

The Pentagon has "failed to come to grips with a number of profound legal and operational problems posed by putting civilians in the battlefield," the article said. "And lurking in the background are longer-term consequences, as the military loses its own in-house ability to maintain and support its armies."

What's more, the article went on, "Similarly troubling issues are raised by a host of other American firms staffed with former soldiers who are landing jobs training and advising foreign militaries... contractors are even training the United States military itself."

The fact that the search for intelligence, too, is being taken away from traditional organizations like the Central Intelligence Agency and the Defense Intelligence Agency and being potentially placed in politically malleable hands.

One dramatic instance of this was reported recently when Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld formed a competing in-house intelligence agency under zealous supporters of invading Iraq, with the express purpose of finding intelligence to support such a strike. The New York Times further reported that the secretary also "wants to create a greater role for the Pentagon's supersecret commando forces in covert operations traditionally under the control of the director of Central Intelligence. For more than two decades, those actions have been authorized by the president in writing and subjected to oversight by two select committees of Congress."

This particular article quotes author Thomas Powers, a specialist on intelligence and biographer of the legendary head of the CIA Richard Helms, as posing this question: What will happen when the military's new commandos are "used to big ends" and perhaps overthrow or assassinate leaders connected by such intelligence to terrorism?

The employment of public relations efforts or gimmickry to take the place of serious news and informative efforts.

One can see this occurring in the replacement of the old Voice of America-type comprehensive news service to the Arab world with, for instance, the effort to bombard the Arab world with enticing American pop music, as well as commercials showing how happy Muslims are in America. All of this comes in place of policy rather than aside it.

The change from our traditional conception of what a citizen is and does and should be to a national creature who is merely a customer or consumer of government services and attention.

"Americans may still regard each other as fellow citizens with common causes and commitments," Matthew Crenson and Benjamin Ginsberg, two professors of political science at Johns Hopkins University, wrote recently in the Washington Post. "But the candidates seeking votes... see us as something else; not a coherent public with a collective identity but a swarm of disconnected individuals out to satisfy our personal needs in the political marketplace."

Finally, our "defense": the Bush administration's conception that the U.S. has the right to strike anywhere in the world, any time that we see another state that could in the future threaten America.

The administration's policy of pre-emption is antithetical to our traditional American idea of building coalitions of like-minded, principled nations to rule themselves in a collegial world.

Are we being changed? Are we changing ourselves? Do we want to be so changed? Stay tuned.

U.S. CIVILIANS WAGE DRUG WAR FROM COLOMBIA'S SKIES PROGRAM STRIVES TO ERADICATE COCA

By Gary Marx, Tribune, 11/03/02

LARANDIA, Colombia—They are private U.S. citizens but work on the front lines of America's war on drugs.

Under a little-known program, more than 100 pilots, mechanics and others work for the U.S. State Department in Colombia as part of a program to eradicate Colombia's coca and opium poppy fields.

Some of the Americans fly planes that spray herbicides on the illicit crops. Others fly gunships that accompany the spraying missions. Still others fly hulking transport aircraft or work as aviation mechanics, logistical experts and medics.

A leading Colombian news weekly last year ran a cover story describing the American pilots as "gringo mercenaries" and "lawless Rambos". Some U.S. critics say the private contractors are proxies for the U.S. military in a place where the public would not allow a more direct American military involvement.

"It creates a space for further involvement without putting U.S. soldiers on the ground," said Ingrid Vaicius, a Colombia expert at the Center for International Policy, a Washington think tank. "The contractors are not watched as closely as U.S. military personnel would be."

But others say private contractors are needed because the U.S. military is stretched thin and attention is focused on Iraq and other hot spots.

The U.S. Congress, concerned about private citizens fighting a dangerous drug war overseas, mandated that only up to 400 U.S. contractors be allowed in Colombia. U.S. officials say there are on average about 120 American pilots and other private contractors in Colombia's anti-narcotics program at any one time.

"We don't even come close to the limit," said one U.S. official in Colombia.

The pilots, interviewed on the condition that they not be identified, downplayed their cowboy image and characterized themselves as regular guys with wives, kids and mortgages—even if their job is anything but ordinary.

From dawn until dusk, 16 American spray planes take off from Larandia's dusty airstrip heading south to the coca fields.

Once there, they swoop down and drop the herbicide glyphosate, making pass after pass just over the tree line, often as they are shot at by leftist rebels and drug traffickers.

The work is endless. Colombia has hundreds of thousands of acres of coca—the raw material for cocaine—planted along steep ravines and in recently cleared jungle terrain.

The fumigation, part of the $1.5 billion U.S.-financed program known as Plan Colombia, has accelerated under recently elected President Alvaro Uribe, who agrees with U.S. officials that fumigation is the fastest way to get rid of the illicit crop.

Some Colombians say the herbicide causes severe skin rashes and other illnesses. The American pilots at Larandia, a sprawling Colombian military base in a swampy plain, say it's safe. ...

Some of the pilots are two decades removed from their military careers. Many have had second careers flying for the United Nations and other organizations. They say Colombia is a great place to work, despite being at war. ...

If a plane does go down, the pilots are in serious trouble, even though they never fly without two heavily armed helicopter gunships and a third rescue helicopter. Pilots carry pistols and receive survival training.

But the FARC, which has designated the Americans military targets, controls much of the coca-growing region along with the area surrounding the Larandia base.

The FARC has never attacked the base, but some Americans working here believe that construction workers, maids and other Colombian civilians working at Larandia are keeping tabs on the Americans for the rebels.

"I don't know anybody that wants to go off base," said one American logistical expert. "It's there—the sense that the bad guys are surrounding us."

[JR: What is obvious here is that we are recruiting U.S. civilians and military retirees to fight our private wars for private reasons. There seem to be no longer any checks or balances in our government. Anyone who has a plan or an agenda is allowed to go ahead with it if it is sold with the premise that it serves and promotes American interests. Who really is in charge of the renegades that have brought chaos into the government? The decisions now being made certainly defy all reason and logic. We should change the name of Washington D.C. to Bedlam D.C. because the nefarious and the lawless have taken over the U.S. citadel of power.]

YEMEN ATTACK SIGNALS U.S. IS EXPANDING WAR

By Stephen J. Hedges, Washington Bureau, 11/06/02

WASHINGTON—The CIA's missile strike that killed six al-Qaida members in Yemen on Sunday is remarkable because of the tactics employed—the missile was fired from a pilotless aircraft—and because it suggests that the long-promised unconventional war on terrorism has finally begun.

While President Bush has been saying for months that the U.S. war on terrorism would be unlike any war the United States has fought before, Sunday's attack, which killed the leading al-Qaida figure in Yemen, seemed to be the first action to fit that description.

The operation involved a Hellfire anti-tank missile fired from a crewless Predator. It occurred far from the Afghanistan battle plain, where about 6,000 U.S. troops are trying to root out al-Qaida terrorists.

The Yemen strike suggests that the U.S. has begun to take its fight, and its advanced military technology, to countries where al-Qaida elements have previously operated with virtual impunity, and where host governments are willing to accept American intelligence and tactical aid even if it invites domestic criticism.

"What it tells you is that the war on terrorism is going to be fought with a new bunch of relationships, with a new club," said a former top CIA official. "The old relationships where you sit down for three hours of elocution over lunch in Paris and everyone knows which forks to use are done with."

Administration and CIA officials remained leery Tuesday of discussing Sunday's attack, which the CIA coordinated with Yemen. While Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Wolfowitz suggested in a CNN interview that the strike was a "very successful tactical operation," others refused to discuss it.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher, while not acknowledging U.S. involvement in the attack, said it differed from Israel's killing of Palestinian militants.

"If you look back at what we have said about targeted killings in the Israeli-Palestinian context, you will find that the reasons we have given do not necessarily apply in other circumstances," Boucher said.

He apparently was referring to the fact that the Israelis and Palestinians represent two legitimate powers involved in occasional peace talks, while the U.S. government considers al-Qaida an illegitimate, murderous terrorist organization.

White House spokesman Ari Fleischer also declined to discuss the CIA role but said that "sometimes the best course is a good offense."

The careful language points up the diplomatic difficulties an expanded terrorism war will pose for the U.S. and other nations that join in the war against terrorism. Bush has promised repeatedly since the Sept. 11 attacks that Washington will support governments that want to defeat terrorist leader Osama bin Laden and his al-Qaida network.

But like Yemen, other governments in the Mideast and Southeast Asia—al-Qaida's primary areas of operation—have not always been eager to take up the U.S. offer of support.

Yemen has been plagued by al-Qaida incidents for years. Its arid, remote regions that are under tribal rather than government control have made it an ideal haven for Muslim militants, and the government has had only fair luck in limiting terrorist attacks. Last December, 13 Yemeni army troops were killed in a fierce firefight during an attempt to arrest al-Qaida members near Saudi Arabia.

In October 2000, suspected al-Qaida suicide bombers steered an explosives-laden boat into the side of the USS Cole, a Navy missile destroyer moored in the port of Aden. Seventeen American sailors died in the blast.

U.S. officials believe that one of those killed Sunday was Ali Qaed Sinan al-Harathi, a top al-Qaida leader in Yemen they allege probably was involved in the Cole attack. A Yemen security official told The Associated Press that al-Harathi had been under surveillance at his farm for months.

Al-Harathi had just left the farm when his vehicle was hit. Even Tuesday's blitz of news reports describing the CIA Predator attack couldn't prod Yemen's government beyond an official statement that it was investigating the unexplained "explosion" of a car carrying six al-Qaida operatives.

[JR: When a former top CIA official boasts about "cultivating a new bunch of relationships and forming a new club" to fight the "war on terrorism", it is just Bush's way of introducing a new twist to fighting an unconventional war using centuries-old tactics and maneuvers. What we are doing is paying locals and training them, with the consent of government, to fight those with opposing points of view. It is a technique our Special Forces have been trained well in and are now using in Afghanistan and in other countries yet to be revealed. This type of warfare had been employed in the past by the warlords in their wars for dominance. The only difference then was that large hordes of men rode through the towns and villages and used less sophisticated weapons of mass destruction. Our Deputy Defense Secretary, Zionist Paul Wolfowitz has a tendency to profess an irrational exuberance when it comes to inferring threats to the rest of the world and engaging the U.S. in wars that only aid and benefit the state of Israel.]

U.S. SLAMS TORTURE CONVENTION REFORM

NewsDay, 11/07/02

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department criticized proposed changes in a United Nations convention to combat torture because they fail to provide for inspections of detention centers without notice.

Spokesman Richard Boucher said the changes require advance notice of inspections, enabling authorities to “clean everything up” before the inspectors arrive.

Boucher spoke as the UN General Assembly began final debate on the measure. The changes are designed to permit enforcement of a 1989 UN treaty on torture.

A Geneva-based committee receives reports from alleged torture victims and issues policy recommendations to countries.

Boucher said the United States opposes provisions requiring that all members of the United Nations finance the cost of the reforms, including an international oversight body charged with inspecting detention facilities.

The United States is proposing that the costs be shared exclusively among countries that become parties to the accord.

Some human rights groups contend that the U.S. actions will dilute the effectiveness of the revised system.

Under present rules, countries are supposed to enforce the convention on their own, but rights groups say monitoring is needed because torture is still prevalent.

The protocol, which has been under negotiation for a decade, would be an optional supplement to the 1989 treaty. Its objective is “to establish a system of regular visits undertaken by independent and national bodies to places where people are deprived of their liberty, in order to prevent torture.”

Boucher rejected any suggestion that the U.S. position implies a more tolerant attitude toward torture.

“We abhor the despicable practice of torture,” he said. “The United States has been one of the most forceful voices against torture.”

[JR: Does it really matter if the U.S. signs off on a UN resolution to reform the policies of torture? We support despot regimes the world over, and in particular the state of Israel that openly uses torture as a matter of policy. The UN like the U.S. is going through the motions about addressing human rights abuses but that's about it. Great populations are dying off of Aids in Africa and elsewhere thanks to the policies of the UN World Health Organization. The U.S. is using psychological programming to “quiet” the prisoners at Camp X-Ray in Cuba and in Afghanistan and is also using bio-weapons experiments above the cities across America. How about the occurrences of the West Nile Virus this past summer and the warnings about an upcoming influenza epidemic this winter that will be greater than the one in 1917? All governments have their own methods of fear and control they use to suppress and to subdue their people—and depopulation is the silent weapon of choice.]

U.S. MAY CARRY OUT YEMEN-LIKE KILLINGS IN ASIA: OFFICIAL

Riyadh Daily, 11/10/02

A controversial CIA-led missile strike which killed six suspected al-Qaida members in Yemen was “legal and necessary” and may be emulated in Southeast Asia to crush terror groups, a top U.S. counterterrorism official said Saturday. “We will use whatever is necessary and legal to attack this (terrorist) threat, to interdict it and eliminate it,” Francis Taylor, the U.S. State Department coordinator for counterterrorism, told a media briefing in Manila. Asked whether the covert and lethal Yemeni missile strike a week ago was necessary and legal, Taylor said: “Sure, the answer is yes. “Both legal and the appropriate tool given the circumstances,” said Taylor, here to attend a counterterrorism conference after visits to Australia, Indonesia and Singapore. In Washington, Pentagon spokeswoman Victoria Clarke told a press conference Friday that even if local governments don’t agree, American forces may launch assaults into lawless or poorly governed areas around the world to go after terrorists hiding there.

“We make every, every effort to work with countries, most of whom are very eager to get rid of the al-Qaida,” she said. “But... without speculating where, there may be circumstances when we go into an ungoverned area in pursuit of al-Qaida,” she said on the question of getting local permission first. “I’ll just leave it at that.” In the year-old so-called “war on terror”, there have been no known instances of the U.S. military capturing or killing a terrorist suspect without the prior consent of the government where the operation occurred. It also is not known if such operations have been performed by the CIA, which works under different rules and greater secrecy than the military. Six suspected al-Qaida operatives were killed by a Hellfire missile launched from a remote-controlled CIA Predator aircraft as they rode in a vehicle 160 kilometers east of the Yemeni capital Sanaa, reports have said.

U.S. Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Wolfowitz had implicitly confirmed that the United States was behind the Yemeni missile strike. While Wolfowitz called it a “very successful tactical operation”, some groups have raised questions about the legality, effectiveness and ethics of using a tactic outwardly akin to assassination. Assassination is banned by a presidential executive order. To another question, Taylor said the United States would keep its options open in launching a Yemen-style strike against terror groups in Southeast Asia—regarded as the second front in the U.S.-led coalition’s battle against terrorism after Afghanistan. “For Yemen, perhaps that is a military operation and for the Philippines, it may be a law enforcement option,” Taylor said. “But all of those options are on the table, that are available to governments and regional coalitions to fight against the threat and find the right tool and right time to get the result we are looking for,” he explained.

U.S. President George W. Bush had asked the international coalition against terrorists to put “all kinds of power together” to take on the threat and “to use what is appropriate given the nature of the threat we face,” Taylor said. Taylor dismissed suggestions by some groups that the CIA was behind the Bali carnage, saying “it is absolutely ludicrous to think that the United States government or any element of the United States government will be involved in such a crime against innocent people. These (the attackers) are terrorists, people who want to use political violence against innocent people to reach their political goals,” he said. The U.S. State Department is the lead federal agency dealing with international terrorism and Taylor’s office has primary responsibilities for developing, coordinating and implementing U.S. counterterrorism policy, officials said.

[JR: The more our U.S. State and Defense Dept. officials talk the more they sound like war council members in the Israeli Knesset. Pres. Bush said we would be fighting a new kind of war and he is forging ahead on that promise. The U.S. and Israel have redefined and rewritten the manuals for fighting wars. The U.S. has succeeded in blurring and eliminating the boundaries of what was once considered as an acceptable and appropriate use of force during warfare. We have also added a new dimension to our foreign policy. We now use coercion and intimidation to extract agreements from foreign governments to allow us to infiltrate their countries to get after our enemies. You have to wonder if the bombing in Bali was a gift sent by the gods of war because it has opened up many inroads for the U.S. to involve itself in Southeast Asia. Maybe Americans would not be deliberately involved in the killing of innocent people but the powers that control our government certainly would and are. The U.S. has become such an awesome, uncontrollable giant of force one would have to ask who are we going to call when all the bad guys come looking for us and engage in our no-holds-barred kind of retaliation?]

SOUTHEAST ASIAN LEADERS TO SHOW WORLD THAT THEY CAN CONTROL TERRORISM

Riyadh Daily, 11/03/02

Breakthrough in Spratly Issue Hailed

Southeast Asian leaders prepared Saturday for an annual summit at which they hope to send a clear message to the world that the region is capable of controlling terrorism. Only a day earlier, the U.S. State Department warned that terrorist groups may be planning attacks at Southeast Asian restaurants, hotels, beaches, and other sites visited by Westerners. Cambodian Prime Minister Hun Sen has promised that the 10 leaders of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations—plus heads of government from China, Japan, South Korea, India and South Africa—will be safe during the summit. The meetings are being billed as the largest international gathering in modern Cambodian history. Cambodian officials hope they will symbolize the country’s return to a respected position in international society after nearly three decades of war, Khmer Rouge revolution and civil conflict. Festive banners are strung across Phnom Penh’s cleanly swept streets, potholes have been repaired, and colonial-era government buildings have been given a fresh coat of paint....

Some members were disgruntled then that the organization—founded in 1967 to improve economic ties—had become preoccupied by terrorism. “ASEAN does not want terrorism to dominate the organization,” said its spokesman, M.C. Abad. But recent bomb blasts in Indonesia and the Philippines have inexorably intertwined economics with terrorism, endangering both tourism and foreign investment. ASEAN officials said their leaders will push for a clear signal from the summit that the region is capable of handling terrorism and still safe for tourists.

Officials expect greater pressure on Indonesia—largely in private—to rein in radical religious groups that have already infiltrated other parts of the region. But it will be hard for the summit to find tough new anti-terrorism initiatives, coming less than two weeks after a summit of the Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation forum—which includes many ASEAN members—pledged “concrete steps” against terrorism. Those steps include tighter security for shipping containers, fortified cockpit doors in airliners and strengthened customs cooperation. Human-rights groups also warned ASEAN governments not to respond to terrorism by curtailing civil liberties. ...

Following the summit, the ASEAN leaders are to meet on Monday and Tuesday with counterparts from China, Japan, South Korea, India and South Africa.

Chinese Premier Zhu Rongji, the first of the international leaders to arrive, was to preside later Saturday over the signing of agreements to provide US$12.5 million in assistance to Cambodia. The aid is seen by some as an attempt by China to deepen its influence over Cambodia, with which it has been deeply involved over the last three decades. Meanwhile, in another development, a landmark breakthrough in resolving the battle of sovereign claims in the hotly-disputed Spratly Islands was hailed Saturday as a genuine move towards ensuring regional and global security.

Under the agreement—truck between the 10-member ASEAN and China—all parties will refrain from activities that would escalate tensions in the South China Seas. It will also call on all countries to help any person in distress in an area that has proved prone to military skirmishes over the past two decades. “Malaysia is extremely happy with the breakthrough,” a Malaysian foreign ministry source said. “The signing represents a major turning point for all claimant countries.” “We are living in difficult times amid the threat of terrorism and it will send a positive signal to the international community that all countries in the region are committed to ensuring and preserving peace and stability.”...

CRITICS FEAR SINGAPORE
USING TERROR WAR TO DUCK REFORMS

By Uli Schmetzer, Tribune, 11/03/02

SINGAPORE—This paternalistic city-republic, where spitting on the sidewalk or failing to flush a public toilet is against the law, has embraced America’s war against terrorism with such enthusiasm that some people here suspect the war is being used to stifle the clamor for a more open and democratic society.

Often criticized for its anachronistic ways, including caning, Singapore—like neighboring Malaysia and Indonesia—has welcomed Washington’s initiative against global terrorism. The republic aims not only to crack down on militants calling for an Islamic state in the region but also, critics say, to shift attention from overdue reforms.

The arrests this month of 21 suspected Islamic terrorists shocked Singaporeans. The city, which has thrived on commerce, banking and the service industry, is often described as an Asian oasis of tranquility. But some fear this community, which lives under the vigilant eye of a Big Brother government, is infected by the terrorism virus.

The first warning came last December with a similar wave of 15 arrests. Police said the suspects, members of the fundamentalist Islamic group Jemaah Islamiyah, had planned to target U.S. interests, possibly Singaporean naval and air bases that have become important maintenance facilities for the U.S. Navy and Air Force.

Last year alone, 100 U.S. warships docked in Singapore. A U.S. 7th Fleet manual to servicemen advises: “The people of the Republic of Singapore are conservative in their dress and their demeanor. They consider unkempt personal appearance to be offensive. It is important that the hospitality of the Singaporeans not be abused.”

Said a senior European diplomat: “Everyone knows, including Singapore’s Asian neighbors, that both the new Changi Naval Base with its deep-water pier and the Paya Lebar Air Base have become de facto U.S. bases for warships and planes shuttling between U.S. bases in Korea and Japan and the Persian Gulf. Singapore wants to save face by calling the bases facilities for visiting ships and planes.”

The city on the mouth of the Malacca Strait, the world’s busiest shipping lane, built the billion-dollar Changi Naval Base, which has been host to the U.S. aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk.

The largest ship in the Singaporean navy is a frigate. ... “It is no secret Singapore believes that the presence of the U.S. military in this part of the world contributes to the peace and stability of the region,” said Deputy Prime Minister Tony Tan. But the growing presence of the U.S. military has made the city a potential target for anti-American extremists. ...

Dissent is not welcome. Permits to hold political rallies are hard to get. Government leaders issue writs against anyone who has offended them, like a businessman who recently questioned the wisdom of a $15 billion government loan to former Indonesian dictator Suharto.

Political broadcast time is limited to parties with six Parliament seats. Independent candidates get no time on the air.

In a climate dominated by the fear of terror, there was no criticism when a court fined two opposition Democratic Party leaders for holding an impromptu Labor Day rally without a permit.

The fine was large enough to disqualify both from standing in the next election and any election for the next five years.

“Singapore is an unforgiving society,” lamented professor Chin Tet Yung, a member of Parliament.

[JR: The issue of terrorism now preoccupies all governments around the world. The U.S. has succeeded in its campaign of making our enemies their enemies. Go forth and multiply and manipulate your enemies, vilify them, and target them with missiles and hunt them down whoever and wherever they might be. These are the new commandments as decreed and written in Bush’s copy of the Zionist New World Bible.]

BOSNIA-HERZEGOVINA
STILL STUBBORNLY SEPARATE

By Tom Hundley, Tribune, 10/23/02

BANJA LUKA, Bosnia-Herzegovina—Before going to the polls early this month, Bosnians got a lecture from Paddy Ashdown, the feisty former British politician who rules this Balkan land with the powers of a colonial viceroy.

“The question is simple,” Ashdown told voters. “Will you join Europe or will you be left behind in the stagnant pool of the Balkans?”

The ballots have been counted and the results were announced during the weekend. The verdict was unanimous. Bosnia’s Serbs, Croats and Muslims all rejected the moderate politicians who have been working toward the unified, multiethnic state envisioned by the 1995 Dayton peace agreement.

Instead, they voted overwhelmingly for the hard-line ethnic politicians who signaled their respective constituencies that they would go along with the Dayton rules just enough to keep the international aid pumps primed, but not so much that a genuine pluralistic society could take root here again.

In the Serb half of Bosnia, known as the Republika Srpska, the big winner was the Serbian Democratic Party (SDP), the party of the Serbs’ wartime leader, Radovan Karadzic, an indicted war criminal who remains in hiding.

Similarly, Bosnia’s Muslims and Croats, whose forced cohabitation in the so-called Muslim-Croat Federation was the result of a U.S.-imposed shotgun marriage, voted for the same nationalist parties that led them into a fratricidal civil war a decade ago.

Ashdown, whose official title is High Representative for Bosnia-Herzegovina, called the election results “a cry for help”, but political leaders and analysts from the region are asking what further proof the international community needs to understand that the Dayton formulas do not work.

Yugoslav President Vojislav Kostunica, who led the democratic opposition that ousted his predecessor, Slobodan Milosevic, has said repeatedly that the future of Bosnia’s Serbs lies with Serbia. He praised the SDP for its “wise” policies and congratulated the party on its victory.

Milan Protic, a former Belgrade opposition leader who recently completed a tour as Yugoslavia’s ambassador to the U.S., does not share Kostunica’s enthusiasm for the SDS, only his skepticism about Bosnia’s future.

“I don’t know of a single politician—Croat, Muslim or Serb—who sincerely believes in the unity of Bosnia. Most of them have learned that mimicry is the best way to deal with the West. They parrot the lines the international community expects to hear,” Protic said. ...

The Dayton agreement stopped Bosnia’s war, but it has not been able to rebuild a real peace. As a nation, Bosnia-Herzegovina exists only in the minds of the European and American bureaucrats who run the place as a kind of international protectorate. For local inhabitants, it’s a convenient fiction they sometimes play along with, sometimes not. ...

Economically, the country remains a basket case, with unemployment estimated at 40 percent to 60 percent. In the Republika Srpska, factories are working at 10 percent of prewar capacity.

The only business that has flourished across ethnic boundaries is organized crime. Bosnia has become a European hub for cigarette smuggling, drug smuggling and human trafficking. This week, 11 UN police officers assigned to a special squad that was supposed to crack down on human trafficking and prostitution were fired for aiding and abetting those crimes.

The politicians take their cut too. According to the latest official report, $150 million to $300 million in state revenues for the last fiscal year are “missing” through fraud and mismanagement.

But saddest of all is that seven years after Dayton, the brutal “ethnic cleansing” project of Karadzic and his cohorts appears to be irreversible.

According to official figures, about 300,000 refugees have gone back to live in areas where they are the ethnic minority. This has been the major accomplishment for Bosnia’s international administrators. But the war created 1.8 million refugees, and it is now clear that most of them will remain in ethnically separate zones. ...

Bosnia’s international overseers have done a good job of restoring property rights to refugees. Of 256,312 claims for the return of property, the High Representative’s office has been able to restore legal title to 150,984. But the owners are not returning to their properties; they are selling them. ...

An estimated 14,500 international peacekeeping troops, including 2,000 U.S. soldiers, are still stationed in Bosnia. They maintain a fairly low profile, and continue to be stymied in their efforts to track down the elusive Karadzic.

There is no feeling that any of the sides is ready to return to a state of war, but there also is a consensus that it is still too soon to withdraw the peacekeepers.

Ashdown, the high representative, dressed down local political leaders in Sarajevo last week, telling them that the international community is losing interest in Bosnia.

“Time,” he warned, “is not on our side.”

[JR: What a silly title to hold in today’s skewered world. Paddy Ashdown, England’s overseer and “High Representative” for the province of Bosnia-Herzegovina. Mr. Ashdown, with his exalted title, is a ruler of a region where co-existence is but an illusion. Through force and with the assistance of U.S. and NATO forces this new Bosnia-Herzegovina area was carved out of Yugoslavia by the EU plotters. The EU divided Yugoslavia into five states and relocated its people into separate regions in order to insure their absolute control of this country, its assets and to gain a strategic advantage in this area of the Balkans. In time this region may form and go back into what it once was before the invasion because of its past history and traditions. After living under foreign occupation, hopefully the Serbs, Coats and Muslims might have learned that feuds and ethnic wars are not the way to settle their differences. If the rampant crime and corruption isn’t reined in and an economy built—there will be little hope here for peace and stability. This is an another example of a failed attempt by the EU plotters to mold nations according to their distorted vision of the world.]

CALIFORNIA PHYSICIAN TIED TO GERM WARFARE,
STOCKPILED WEAPONS, DEADLY PATHOGENS

LEGALLY DRUGGING OUR CHILDREN
JUST GOT EASIER

By Arianna Huffington,
Working For Change.com, 11/03/02

IRVINE, Calif.—On the morning of Feb. 28, 2000, a man wearing a black hood ran up to Patrick Riley in front of his office, shot him flush in the face and fled.

Riley, a biotechnology entrepreneur, survived. But two days later, his business partner, a doctor named Larry C. Ford, killed himself with a shotgun after learning he was suspected of being behind the shooting.

Then police began receiving phone calls saying Ford had left something behind: a cache of weapons and anthrax.

Police and federal investigators began to unearth evidence that Ford had another life—that he was not just a brilliant, if somewhat geeky, gynecologist who hoped to develop a device to protect women from AIDS.

Buried next to his swimming pool they found canisters containing machine guns and C-4 plastic explosives. In refrigerators at his home and office were 266 bottles and vials of pathogens, including salmonella, cholera, botulism and typhoid. The deadly poison ricin was stored, with a blowgun and darts, in a plastic bag in the family room. A compartment under the floorboards held medical files on 83 women.

What the searchers did not find was anthrax, and the fear of what remained unfound prodded the investigation on.

Around Irvine, most people knew Ford, 49, as a committed Mormon and a family man.

Trained as a gynecologist and microbiologist, he taught at University of California campuses and wrote dozens of scholarly articles on diseases.

After his suicide, former patients came forth and said Ford had intentionally made them ill. Epidemiologists investigated but said they found nothing suggesting deliberate infection.

Then there were the suggestions that Ford was working for the CIA. Several people said he sometimes told them so. Others said they simply assumed it.

One thing that is clear is that Ford was involved with the apartheid government of South Africa.

Authorities learned that Ford had been a consultant to Project Coast, which has been accused of creating weapons for use against opponents of apartheid. Ford's laboratory assistant, Valerie Kesler, said he once traveled to South Africa with a vial in his vest pocket. That the vial held lethal bacteria, she said.

Ford met with scientists from South Africa's Project Coast in the 1980s to discuss chemical and biological warfare, said Wouter Basson, who headed the project.

Project Coast, which has been accused of trying to create deadly bacteria that would only affect blacks, poisoning opponents' clothing and stockpiling cholera, HIV and anthrax, opened an offshore bank account to pay Ford.

He also passed a bag filled with cholera, typhoid, botulism, anthrax and bubonic plague to a South African military doctor during a meeting at the house of the South African trade attaché in California, former FBI informant Peter Fitzpatrick told 60 Minutes.

[JR: The enigmatic Dr. Ford is a puzzle but his inferred involvement with the plagues of South Africa and his connections with the CIA are less ambiguous. The real mystery, apart from his suicide, is why he was stockpiling pathogens and weapons around his home. One could speculate that he was about to sell these items or he was connected to or engaged in some upcoming nefarious covert operation here in the U.S. or abroad. Unless and until some intrepid investigator looks into this strange shooting and suicide, it will become shrouded in a wall of silence and then disappear into a place where all such mysteries and secrets are kept dead and buried.]

Chalk up another profitable victory for those promoting the legal drugging of America's children—also known as the good folks of the pharmaceutical industry. Earlier this month, a federal judge struck down a Food and Drug Administration regulation that required drug makers to test medicines routinely given to children.

As a result, America's legal drug pushers are once again free to offer their potent concoctions for our kids' consumption without having to prove that they are safe or effective for pediatric use.

This is no small matter, given the skyrocketing number of children being prescribed heaping helpings of powerful mood-altering drugs. For instance, 1.5 million kids are currently taking Prozac and its equivalents even though the FDA hasn't approved these drugs for use by anyone under 18.

In making his ruling, U.S. District Judge Henry Kennedy, Jr. made it clear that the problem wasn't the FDA's attempt to protect our kids, but Congress' failure to authorize them to do so. He pointed out that earlier this year Congress considered but passed on the chance to require drug companies to make sure that products designed for grown-ups but regularly given to kids are, in fact, safe for children to take.

Instead, our elected representatives—legislating under the influence (LUI) of the $18 million drug companies have donated to congressional campaigns this election cycle—approved an industry handout, offering “financial incentives” to companies willing to take the trouble to find out if their products are dangerous for kids. Rewarding companies that bother to behave with ordinary civic responsibility is becoming a bad habit for Washington and it reveals their scary baseline assumption that, left alone, big business can never be expected to do the right thing.

Sens. Christopher Dodd, Mike DeWine, and Hillary Clinton are cosponsoring a new bill that would supersede the federal court's ruling and give the FDA legal authority to require drug testing for children. “Children will be harmed if we don't pass this legislation,” warns DeWine. So far, the troika's efforts to bring the bill to a vote have been thwarted by the drug companies' loyal beneficiaries in the Senate.

But Capitol Hill is not the only pharmaceutical industry-friendly place in Washington. The drug companies also appear to have found an ally inside the highest echelons of the FDA.

In keeping with the White House's habit of assigning foxes to guard the henhouses they used to stalk—including the tres-vulpine Harvey Pitt and Gale Norton—last summer the president appointed lawyer Daniel Troy as the FDA's general counsel. While in private practice, Troy had successfully challenged the agency's power to regulate drug companies—particularly the companies' ability to freely promote and market their products.

It probably shouldn't come as too much of a surprise then that, from his lofty post, Troy has overseen a dramatic decrease in the number of drug companies that have been reprimanded for running false or misleading commercials—even as the drug ads filling our TV screens and magazines have multiplied. Of course, it could just be that the drug companies have all joined the Boy Scouts and are now being meticulously honest and trustworthy.

One of the pharmaceutical industry's weapons of choice in its fight to free itself from federal oversight has been the First Amendment, a tactic once favored by none other than Daniel Troy. Groups aligned with the industry have successfully used free speech arguments to convince courts to strike down regulations barring drug companies from advertising so-called “compounded drugs” and from telling doctors about unapproved uses for its products—such as giving adult drugs to children. The founding fathers would have had to pop a lot of pills to conceive of this perversion of the Bill of Rights.

Reeling from these rulings and under increasing pressure from the drug industry, this spring the FDA invited interested parties to comment on whether any of its other rules raise “First Amendment issues”. Among the flurry of feedback the agency received was a suggestion from the ever-helpful gang at Pfizer that the FDA do away with those pesky rules requiring drug companies to list a product's side effects and replace them with a cheerful reminder that since all medications come with some risks, patients should always check with their doctor before taking them.

Makes sense. Why bother letting consumers know that downing a brightly colored, widely advertised little pill might cause nervousness, anxiety, insomnia, restlessness, suicidal thoughts, self mutilation, manic behavior, and bad breath when a simple and direct “Consult your doctor”—or rather “consult your overworked, underpaid, HMO-tormented physician”—will suffice? Who on earth takes a prescription drug without consulting their doctor? It's not like patients can prescribe the drugs for themselves, although now that I've said it, I fear I've given drug companies and Daniel Troy an idea for the ultimate regulatory rollback.

This kind of self-serving, the-public-be-damned thinking is precisely why we need strong drug industry oversight in Washington, not appointees and politicians beholden to their deep-pocket patrons. Especially when our children's health and well-being are at stake.

[JR: It has been reported, and naturally denied, that many of the children involved in the numerous school shootings: Columbine, CO; Santee, CA; West Paducah, KY; Pearl, MS; Jonesboro, AR and Springfield OR were on mood or mind-altering medications. Any child that fits a profile as to what teachers might recognize as “abnormal”, are instructed to recommend psychological examinations, which usually results in the prescribing of mind or mood-altering drugs that could cause violent behavior in some children. Another example of improper oversight in the administering of unsafe prescription drugs and their side effects is other dangerous “compounded” drugs that are intermixed in common injections. On July 7, 1999, the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) issued, with the U.S. Public Health Service (USPHS) a joint statement alerting clinicians and the public of concern about thimerosal, a mercury-containing preservative used in many vaccines. The reason for the warning is that thimerosal contains a related mercury compound called ethyl mercury. Mercury is a toxic metal that can cause immune, sensory, neurological, motor, and behavioral dysfunctions. Symptoms of mercury toxicity in young children are extremely similar to those of autism. Why, in eighty years, they have never ordered one clinical test on the effects of thimerosal in vaccines is beyond me. Although it has now been “recommended” that thimerosal be removed from many vaccines it is still contained in ALL influenza vaccines and the CDC just announced a major increase of influenza nationally and is recommending everyone get influenza shots. Doesn't this make you feel safe in rushing out to get your flu shots? Some might say you are probably already brain dead to follow the advice of the CDC so a little more mercury poisoning shouldn't matter, and just maybe the flu shot might actually prevent you from getting the flu.]

WORDS OF WISDOM FROM HATONN

CONTACT OR SPECTRUM?

I want to briefly respond to a most unusual question from a totally "out of the blue" person: "It appears Spectrum will fail, possibly close, so will you go back to writing for CONTACT or what?"

I have never stopped writing for CONTACT—but I have NOT written, nor have my compatriots written for Spectrum. Tails wag a lot of dogs, my friends. Therefore, "or what" has no meaning.
