Who Will USE The Magnificent Solution?

In this lengthy review we will try to provide our readers with a feel for the swirling political environment in the Philippines at this time. The solution to the problems there as well as globally rests with "The Magnificent Solution", God's Plan, the GAIA Program. It is in the Philippines that the perfect confluence of events has come together whereby the first to choose and USE that which has been provided can achieve heroic status.

President Arroyo is now cited as the least popular leader of the Philippines of all time, even as the country itself has been judged one of the most corrupt in the world. As the people starve and the IMF presses for full implementation of its financial-imperialism policies, GMA has protected her position using the corrupt military leaders who supported her unconstitutional ascent into power. Now the corruption is being exposed and charges have been laid against one of those military leaders, Major General Carlos Garcia, who is being made the scapegoat for all the corruption in the nation. How very convenient for the politicians this is. One must wonder, however, for how long the foundation of GMA's power can be eroded without the house falling down.

As the following articles should make clear, de facto political power rests with the military and it is a long time since de jure political power has counted for anything in the Philippines. It is hard to conceive of a lasting solution that is not based on restoration of de jure rule of law. As Alan F. Pagua reminds us constantly, the de jure leader of the Philippines remains incarcerated for charges of corruption which have never been proven.

Our choice for the lead article reviewed in this issue ends with a thought-provoking reference by former Senator Francisco Tatad to "an alternative program of government which could be used by the next government". What could that be? It certainly appears as though GMA is at risk of losing "it" if she chooses not to use "it".

GMA SHOULD FOCUS ON HER EXIT PLAN

—TATAD

The Daily TRIBUNE, 10/21/04

By Gerry Baldo

Forget spying on the opposition leaders. Start preparing an exit plan.

This was opposition leader and former Sen. Francisco "Kit" Tatad's advice to President Arroyo, following reports of intense surveillance activities conducted on him and other opposition leaders by Malacañang.

Tatad stressed that which Mrs. Arroyo should be concentrating on is her "exit plan" rather than waste government time and money to harass the political opposition.

"This is no longer a contest between the administration and the opposition. It is a choice between the nation and Mrs. Arroyo. To save the nation, we must let go of Mrs. Arroyo. The choice is that simple," Tatad pointedly said.

The opposition leader charged that Mrs. Arroyo is the primary destabilizer in the country, warning that the Arroyo government is going down the drain even without the opposition doing anything to rock her and her administration.

"She has reached the dead-end and she's going to fall on her own, even without the opposition having to do anything against her," Tatad said.

The opposition leader also disclosed to the Tribune yesterday that Mrs. Arroyo's allies and even her Cabinet secretaries have been admitting privately to members of the diplomatic community that the end of the Arroyo regime is "only a matter of time".

"Who should take over, and what programs should they use to rebuild the nation?" are the important questions that must be raised today, Tatad stressed.

A Palace insider virtually confirmed that "many Cabinet" officials have discussed among themselves, in private conversations, the possibility of their quitting their posts, sensing the imminent collapse of the President and her government, knowing that "from this point on, it's downhill for her (Mrs. Arroyo)", pointing out that there is little the President can do to convince either the Filipino people or even the international community, that she can turn things around for the country and the nation.

"The others were smarter," the Palace insider told the Tribune. "They left early, like (former Finance Secretary Jose Isidro) Camacho. Many others have tried to leave her Cabinet, but she has virtually been begging them to stay with her, telling them that after all she has done for them, the least they can do is to stick it out with her in her hour of need," adding that she keeps on telling them that there can be no collapse of her presidency because the military generals remain loyal to her.

Tatad has confirmed reports he had gone to the United States where he had met American officials and Filipino community leaders in Washington, D.C. and New York to launch the "Filipinos for the Philippines", a group which seeks to mobilize Filipinos outside of the Philippines to support the badly needed changes in the government.

During his trip, he said he had learned that the White House had ceased to take the telephone calls of Mrs. Arroyo and that U.S. officials had told a visiting economic team from the Philippines that they were unhappy about the extent of corruption in the Arroyo government and the failure of the government to institute reforms.

Tatad declined to identify the U.S. officials he said he had spoken with.

Sources, however, said these individuals are connected with the White House, the State Department, Pentagon and the Heritage Foundation, one of whose staff members recently scored the Arroyo administration in an opinion piece in the Asian Wall Street Journal.

Mrs. Arroyo, however, yesterday in Leyte for the Leyte Landing anniversary rites, intimated that she still enjoys the strong support of U.S. President Bush and his government, pointing to the promised delivery of 30 helicopters and some P4 billion in defense aid within her six-year term.

"The ties remain strong" between the U.S. and the Philippines, she said.

Tatad pointed out that what he had done and is doing are within his rights and duties as a Filipino citizen.

"My position on the Arroyo presidency is well-known. I have written books and articles about it, and spent the last campaign talking about it to millions of Filipinos. That's why 80 percent of my votes never made it to the official canvass, while those who saw nothing wrong with Mrs. Arroyo are now in office," Tatad said.

"Mrs. Arroyo is not only the cause of the present crisis, she is the crisis herself. But while a regime change is absolutely necessary, it is no longer sufficient. We need to change the system, restructure the government, reinvent the Philippines," he said.

He said, he and the Christian Nationalist Union, where he is a board member in charge of international relations, have been working on an alternative program of government which could be used by the next government.

[END QUOTING]

Next: How is it alright for the President of the Philippines to suggest investigating a different mode of government and at the same time somehow treasonous for anyone else to do so? As former Senator Tatad pursues apparently NON-violent means of effecting change in the government, it is revealed that this activity on his part has come under the surveillance of Mrs. Arroyo's security forces.

PALACE SPY OPS SPREAD TO ANTI-GLORIA LEADERS

The Daily TRIBUNE, 10/20/04

By Gerry Baldo and Mario J. Mallari

Seemingly gripped by paranoia over the government's sense of impending doom and equating this doomsday scenario with official Washington's "displeasure" with her and her administration, following a report of the Heritage Foundation, a highly influential Republican-leaning think tank piece that was damning to her, President Arroyo and her security officers have reportedly heightened surveillance of key opposition leaders and presidential critics, notably those believed by Malacañang to have close personal contacts with U.S. officials and Filipino community leaders in the U.S., intelligence sources told the Tribune yesterday.

Very high on this list, the sources said, is former Sen. Francisco "Kit" Tatad, who recently returned from a trip to the United States, where he was said to have discussed the deepening Philippine crisis with influential American officials and Filipino community leaders.

A source with close contacts in the office of the Executive Secretary Eduardo Ermita said, "the intelligence effort is now focused on Tatad, who was recently monitored in Washington, D.C. and New York, meeting with important American officials and personalities."

The source pointed out that while Malacañang continues to keep a tight watch on former Sen. Gregorio "Gringo" Honasan and Sen. Panfilo Lacson, who have been described by a Palace insider as the "major players" in an alleged planned coup d'etat against the Arroyo government to be mounted sometime next month, Tatad, among other opposition leaders, is also under tight surveillance as he is said to be seen by the President and her aides as having "a line to U.S. State Department" officials, following his trip to the U.S. recently.

Tatad and a group of visiting Filipinos were believed to have met with U.S. State Department officials, among others.

Their presence was also noted at an important function of the Philippine-American Foundation in Washington, D.C., where they met with the Philippine-born U.S. Maj. Gen. Antonio Taguba, the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense and the Philippine-born Pulitzer Prize-winning photographer Cheryl Diaz Meyer, who criticized the crisis of confidence in the Philippines.

In New York, Tatad, together with the group of visiting Filipinos, and Filipino community leaders from New York, New Jersey and Washington, D.C., launched "Filipinos for the Philippines", a global solidarity movement, which seeks to mobilize Filipinos everywhere to support a regime change in the Philippines.

"It is this movement started by Tatad that has made the President really nervous," the insider told the Tribune, since the movement is focused on documenting U.S. properties not only of Cabinet members of Mrs. Arroyo, but more important, the properties of the President and her spouse, First Gentleman Jose Miguel Arroyo.

The movement, which is said to have caught fire in the U.S. Filipino communities, had its members digging up documents related to this.

Reports have begun circulating here and in the Filipino communities in the U.S. that the American government is preparing to file charges against high-ranking Filipino officials who have amassed properties and money in the U.S., under the Rico (Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations) law.

There are allegedly some pinpointed properties said to belong to the Arroyo spouses, albeit listed allegedly under a Filipino realtor's name.

Although these reports are still unconfirmed, Malacañang sources have said there is no assurance such cases are in fact being prepared, and that President Arroyo cannot afford to end up with any slapped against her.

Malacañang, according to the sources, suspects that Tatad's group might have had a hand in this.

"It cannot be mere coincidence that U.S. pressure on President Arroyo has tremendously increased, following this group's visit to the U.S.," the sources said.

They pointed out that presidential aides are more concerned over Tatad's movement than the alleged Honasan-Lacson coup plot, saying the two may not have public support, but the call for a regime change by Tatad appears to be picking up momentum.

The alleged Lacson-Honasan coup team-up reportedly will usher in a military junta, with Lacson as the President. Honasan's Guardians' group will reportedly be the frontline army.

The Tribune tried but again failed to get in touch with Lacson and Honasan, its called unanswered.

The Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) Chief of Staff Gen. Narcisco Abaya appears to have been hit by coup jitters, as he alerted, some two weeks ago, all major unit commanders against possible destabilization attempts by certain groups that may take advantage of the controversies hounding the military establishment.

Abaya, in a memorandum dated Oct. 5, particularly cited the case of former AFP comptroller Maj. Gen. Carlos Garcia who is facing charges before the Office of the Ombudsman for gross dishonesty and perjury, through his misdeclaration of his statement of assets and liabilities (SAL).

"In light of the recent case involving a ranking officer of the AFP, this letter is published to preclude attempts to capitalize on this issue to sow intrigue among our ranks," Abaya stated in the memorandum addressed to all military commanders nationwide.

"In this light, we cannot avoid that there will be some individuals or groups that could take advantage of the issue to advance their own selfish interests. I urge all members of the Armed Forces to remain alert and cautious against false and misleading information coming from suspicious individuals or groups," he further stated.

In the letter, Abaya also stressed what the AFP leadership has undertaken after learning of Garcia's case last February. He said he immediately ordered the transfer of Garcia from being the comptroller to deputy chief of staff for plans and programs.

“The AFP has handled this case in conformity with established procedures. As a matter of policy, the AFP conducts its investigations in a discreet manner, cognizant of the principle enshrined in the law that every respondent, regardless of rank or stature, is to be accorded due process,” the AFP chief said.

“Without prejudging the outcome of the investigation, the graft and corruption charge against a ranking AFP official is indeed a serious matter. And while it has again placed the AFP in bad light, it must be viewed by all AFP members in the context of the ongoing reforms aimed at improving the public trust in our Armed Forces,” he added.

Only last Friday, Abaya had an audience with the AFP sergeants major and assured the military enlisted men the leadership is not coddling Garcia, a member of the Philippine Military Academy Class of 1971 where Abaya is an honorary member.

Meanwhile, after her surveillance operations on Honasan and Lacson had been exposed, Mrs. Arroyo yesterday linked the local revolutionary left to international terrorist organizations.

She was said to have called an emergency security meeting yesterday morning but emphasized that its agenda was mainly focused on the discovery of the links between the two groups.

After the emergency meeting with the members of the National Security Council (NSC), Mrs. Arroyo appeared before the media, along with National Security Adviser Hermogenes Ebdane, Defense Secretary Avelino Cruz and incoming AFP Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Efren Abu, current Philippine Army chief.

“We must be able to protect our youth from recruitment into underground organizations just as we must protect them from the scourge of drugs. Political institutions are being used as platforms for dissent bordering on sedition and civil disobedience. The labor and transport sectors are being subjected to day-to-day agitation,” the President said.

“Intelligence reports show growing links between the (Philippine) revolutionary left and international terrorist organizations. We must meet this threat internally and externally with allies,” she said.

The Philippine Guardians Brotherhood Inc. (PGBI), for its part also yesterday lashed at the Arroyo administration, accusing the government of fanning destabilization plots to divert public attention from corruption allegations against the military.

“Government propagandists should not divert our people’s sense of outrage and dismay from the reported corruption and coverup now haunting the DND (Department of National Defense) and AFP leaderships,” PGBI spokesman Ernesto Macahiya said.

Hitting out, the PGBI spokesman stressed the Arroyo administration has no one to blame except itself for its failure to live to its promises of a “strong republic”.

Instead of reforms, abuses were committed, he said.

“Truly, the Palace is becoming increasingly isolated from mainstream society as the ghosts it creates are the ones giving it its nightmares. Indeed, from the promise of a strong republic, the administration has become a government of food coupons for the poor, while mansions and secret bank accounts for top government/police/DND/AFP officials. There are luxurious cars for generals but low-quality boots, helmets and firearms for soldiers and police,” Macahiya pointed out.

The civilian- and police- and military-based PGBI, which boasts of about one million members nationwide, is headed by Honasan.

“Senator Honasan and I are often together visiting our various chapters all over the country and helping them with their livelihood projects,” Macahiya said, in downplaying reports the PGBI is engaged in a fresh destabilization plot.

He, however, admitted the PGBI is continuing with its expansion but now focusing on “quality” members, not on “quantity”.

At the same time, Macahiya revealed the ongoing “cleansing” within their ranks of suspected government deep penetration agents (DPAs).

“Even as we continue to expand and strengthen internal discipline, we are building up new quality leaders—disciplined, respected and professional—in their respective fields or communities, including local government officials—mayors, congressmen—non-government organization leaders, retired and active police and soldiers who constitute the bulk of our members and who believe in our vision of reforms and are enthusiastically joining our ranks,” he claimed.

Previously this year we made the case that President Arroyo could use the counsel of her late father, the respected President Diosdal Macapagal. She could put Filipinos’ needs first and address the real issues or she could end up in a very untenable position, now identified as the “weakest president in Asia” by the Heritage Foundation. Let there be no misunderstanding, GMA now finds herself between a rock and a very hard place. This is probably best spelled out in the writing of Teodoro Benigno which follows.

[QUOTING:]

GMA—WHITHER? HOW MUCH LONGER?

The Philippine Star

By Teodoro C. Benigno

Yes, President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo has indeed ordered the immediate court-martial of Maj. Gen. Carlos Garcia. No, I don’t believe the lady is serious. Yes she said the “interest of justice and due process must be served to the satisfaction of people and the soldiery”. No, I don’t think she meant what she said. Yes, the president promises a goddam lot. No, those promises don’t mean much, for that matter anything. Yes, she has developed a SONA (State of the Nation address) syndrome. No, those SONAs are simply the mirror of a split personality, better still a headless chicken running round and round the mulberry tree.

Harsh words? No, they ring very true, particularly these days when armed with enormous presidential power; she doesn’t use this power. She wastes it.

And if you ask around these days, even many of what used to be her flock of ardent supporters (a prominent Taipan for instance) are beginning to lose hope. And most of the people I have talked with these past days are wringing their hands, wondering what ever happened to “that little lady” who they thought had the big, creative, resourceful and dynamic brains to deliver the country from filth—moral and material—so awesome it crawls on our skin like an endless army of worms.

The court-martial of General Carlos Garcia, who as AFP comptroller under five Armed Forces of the Philippines chiefs of staff, looted the people’s money with more verve, with more gall, more cheek, more effrontery, than the dictator himself? If he hadn’t been caught, this general, with more calluses on his thieving hands than a Pier 7 stevedore, would have gone on and on. And it would have gone on and on with the president pretending to be blind and deaf, and a cabal of generals close to her stuffing their bags with the kind of loot that even the ancient Mongol emperors would envy.

So what do I think? What do many Filipinos think?

Yes, the court-martial will indeed proceed. But this is just show to mollify an outraged populace, a Harry Houdini performance of now-you-see-and-now-you don’t. It will be dragged and dragged like a slow camel pack through the Gobi desert. The desert dogs will bark and howl, but that’s all they can do, bark and howl. Eventually, the camel pack bogs down. But even before it bogs down, thunderclaps will rain from the sky.

Something will happen like General Carlos Garcia getting “terminally ill”, dying or disappearing under mysterious circumstances, poisoned maybe or an induced heart attack maybe, or simply terminated in another rigged event. Easy. The NPA guerrillas will be blamed. Or a camarilla of supposedly young, idealistic officers—mercenaries actually—will gun him down like a dog. General Garcia knows his goose is cooked.

And now he plots, they plot, seeking a way out of this accursed wilderness of political, social and economic dynamite.

Otherwise if General Garcia testifies, talks, tells the truth, the whole truth and nothing er but the truth, the Establishment will be blown skyhigh. Names not only of prominent generals close to GMA will be dragged into the open. What is more, what is even more lethal and explosive, is that equally prominent politicians, Malacanang, some former presidents, who may have profited handsomely from military scams, past and present will be thrown into the mire, squealing and oinking like the pigs they are.

The government will then theoretically collapse. This has to be prevented at all costs. In an earlier column I predicted GMA and her covey of consenting, cohabiting, colluding generals—actually her main support system—would resort to something like a state of national emergency or martial rule, a la Marcos.

The military anyway had always spat in the face of civilian rule. This is why the two or three congressional “inquiries” we all witnessed on television dismally failed. You could feel this military contempt, this abhorrence, this loathing for politicians. “Who are you to investigate me?” the cornered general (and the surrounding brass) must have told himself. “You are even bigger thieves, the whole lot of you. You call each other Your Honor, when you all deserve to be lined up before a firing squad.”

I can well understand General Garcia’s seething scorn and revulsion. Two committees of the House had no moral authority to investigate him. They too were guilty as hell. But there they were, grandstanding, posturing, pontificating, when all they had done during the decades was poison and pollute the republic with perks, pork barrel and piracy, emphasis on pork barrel, the revolting manure that keeps our rotten politics very much alive.

Okay, so they were and all are thieves. So what does our commander-in-chief do? I don’t think she knows right now exactly what she is going to do. She has been named by Heritage Foundation, a conservative U.S. think tank, as the “weakest president” in Asia. Again, just two days ago, Transparency International dropped the stink bomb the Philippines is the 11th most corrupt country in the world (with her in mind, I would imagine).

Her name is now synonymous with disorder, strife, havoc. Even corruption. How can she survive? The political capital she regained when she triumphed during the May 10 presidential elections she frittered away during her First One-Hundred Days. Even much earlier, she sought the comfort, refuge and security of top military and police generals when she could have electrified the nation by slitting their throats and those of her political contemporaries. Like smelly camels, they got their nose into the tent a long time ago. Their bodies immediately followed spewing urine, dung, and other excreta.

How restore integrity in our political in process? How introduce law and order? How clean up a government so crooked with the jaws of an alligator, the appetite of a pack of orangutans, and the profligate habits of an Arabian harem?

Honestly, I don't know. I thought I knew before. That's why I conceptualized Freedom Force, then proceeded slambang into the setting up of BANGON! I figured the Filipino people, particularly civil society and the middle class, would get so outraged and incensed, so fed up, they would rise like the hordes of Robespierre, Marat, and Danton, the starving masses of Paris in 1789 and slay the dragon of the entrenched monarchy of Louis XVI. They haven't risen yet.

We have no Robespierre, no Marat, no Danton. In a recent conversation with a top foreign diplomat, we went deep on why the Philippines could not produce an opposition with giants, with heroes, with men "who can match our forests and our valleys". The last one was Ninoy Aquino, and nobody followed in his footsteps. The answer, rather my answer. Vide: We have a meek and marshmallow culture resistant to change, resistant to progress, borne aloft more by the boozy redemptive mystic of a Roman Catholic religion gone haywire, than the lofty peaks of reason and logic, science and technology. We Filipinos are alien to a fast changing world seeking the refuge of modern education, the fat, bulging storehouses of a modern economy where hunger and poverty would disappear.

And so again whither GMA?

In another conversation with a Filipino-Chinese tycoon who had previously supported GMA but was now downhearted, he feared to look at the future because all he would see was shambles. GMA cannot hack it, he said. Now even the leaders of the business community have summoned the courage to demand that GMA adopt an active and effective population control program. They supported GMA enthusiastically during the elections.

Will she? Will she have the nerve, the moxie to defy the Roman Catholic Church which continues to insist only the "rhythm method" can be practiced by Catholics? I doubt it very much. A devout Catholic herself, GMA stands in awe of the Church. And so do many Filipino politicians who feel that if they challenge the Church on the population issue, they would topple for from their perches and break into twigs.

So there we are, a country seemingly checkmated and stalemated, up against evil forces we can't seem to control, a stunted dwarf seeking to bring down a towering oak with a puny knife. Puny, that's it. Everything about us is puny. We talk big but we don't have a club. We seek the stars but we are the bull-throated frogs trapped in a deep well and unable to jump out. We are Don Quixote personified tilting with the windmills. We go to the wars riding a fleabitten Rocinante. We have a slingshot not a bazooka. We punch a mattress of straw and it doesn't give at all.

I am afraid GMA cannot last. In two years time or less she could fall under the weight of screaming irate forces of the citizenry virtually hobbled by the rising prices of oil, electricity, prime commodities, walled in by hunger, a swollen population that could soar into 160 million Filipinos in 20 years, yes. And then there are the Fates and the Furies that history summons every now and then to roil a persecuted humanity, bring out its claws and its fangs and sink these into tyranny.

We all have suffered this tyranny long enough. Anybody for a revolutionary government, the heart of which is honor and integrity?

[END QUOTING]

A government based on honor and integrity? Now that would be "revolutionary" and without need of any force to accomplish if Filipinos would simply get behind an "honesty in government" type of movement such as former Senator Tatad suggests. Along the way, some restitution might be in order. An inside look at the functioning of institutional corruption in government is provided by the wife of Major General Garcia. What do you think: Is it much different for the wives of other high-ranking, longstanding military officers?

[QUOTING:]

WIFE'S STATEMENT DID GEN. GARCIA IN

The Philippine Star

By Jarius Bondoc

The AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] has confirmed my query Wednesday morning on Sapol ni Jarius Bondoc (DWIZ daily, 8-10 a.m.). Intruders did break into the Camp Aguinaldo quarters of Maj. Gen. Carlos Garcia days before he was charged with corruption and gross misconduct. The military police incident report did not state if anything of value was taken. But neighbors at the officers' row murmur that P10 million in cash and jewelry supposedly was looted. Too, that two prominent 1971 PMA [Philippine Military Academy] classmates were the first to rush to the scene. And that since then, Garcia moved his many sleek cars out of camp.

Garcia had just got home when he found it ransacked. He reportedly phoned his mistahs for help and only later called in the camp police. Hours before in Baguio, Garcia was feted to a testimonial parade at the PMA camp for his impending retirement age 56 Nov. 18. Little did he know the Ombudsman already was hot on the trail of his alleged millions of pesos in undeclared wealth.

For a general receiving P35,000 [$700] a month pay, stashing P10 million is incredible. But after verification that Garcia withdrew P19 Million from the AFP thrift bank and P13 Million from an Army cooperative two to four days after his suspension, one can just imagine what hoard is hidden somewhere. There are also reports that Garcia and family had cleared out cash from 15 accounts in two banks before the Anti-Money Laundering Council froze their assets last week. Too, that 45 other vehicles registered in their names are parked in places yet unknown.

Such reports lend credence to the account of Mrs. Clarita Garcia about their source of wealth. The account, sworn to and signed by her in San Francisco on June 4, 2004, served as basis to check the general's assets. Here it is, in full and unedited:

"I, Clarita D. Garcia, date of birth December 3, 1950, swear that the following statements are true and correct to the best of my knowledge.

"On or about December 19, 2003, I instructed my sons Juan Paulo D. Garcia and Ian Carl D. Garcia to bring cash in the amount of $100,000 into the U.S. from our home in the Philippines. I told both my sons to declare the money when entering the U.S. The money was to be used as earnest money toward a down payment for a condominium in New York City where my son Timothy would live while going to school. Timothy was paying rent in the amount of $3,000 per month to rent an apartment. My son Juan Paulo told me he didn't declare the money because, 'It was too much hassle.' I always declare the money when I bring it into the U.S. I declared the money in 1993, in 1995 when I had a medical operation. I declared $100,000 on December 17, 2003. I also declared $200,000 in January 2003. My son Juan Paulo is a risk taker and is very spoiled.

"Source of Funds:

"My family's income is from four sources, two corporations, a daycare school and my husband's job as Two Star General in the Philippine military. My family has an 80 percent interest in the two corporations and we may earn a monthly income equivalent to US$8,000. The day-care school brings in more money, perhaps $10,000 per month. However, based on the Philippine tax laws regarding both the corporations and daycare school, we are allowed to declare zero income. The income received from these businesses was not reported as a basis for tax liability. The two corporations IJT MANGO ORCHARD, INC.: and IJT KATAMNAN CORP. were incorporated on March 22, 2002.

"My husband Carlos Garcia (Two Star General in the Armed Forces) was assigned to the Comptrollers Office until April 4, 2004. He receives a salary that is declared as income for tax purposes. In addition, Carlos receives travel money and expenses in excess of several thousands of dollars. I often travel with my husband on business and my travel, expenses and shopping money in excess of US$10,000 to $20,000 is provided to me. He also receives cash for travel and expenses from the businesses that are awarded contracts for military hardware. These businesses are in Europe and Asia. He also receives gifts and gratitude money from several Philippine companies that are awarded military contracts to build roads, bridges and military housing.

"As the comptroller, my husband handles all budget for the armed forces. My husband prepared the budget for the armed forces based on the requests from each branch of the military. The budget is sent to the Secretary of National Defense and it is sent to the Senate for approval. The Armed Forces Committee reviews the each contractor's bids. Once the bids are approved and the review committee has checked out the companies, my husband is the final signature for funding the contracts. The expense money, gratitude money and shopping money is not declared as income.

"My husband will always thank the person that provides the gratitude. If someone stops by the house with a gift or gratitude, my husband insists that their name and telephone number be taken so they may be called and personally thanked. As the wife of a general, I am afforded several privileges including a 4,000-gallon per month gasoline allowance, security detail and five drivers. I have a military cook that also provides piano music upon request.

"My husband's position in the Armed Forces is one of privilege. The gratitude monies that he receives is common and unsolicited. Contracted companies and personnel from the different branches of the armed services are grateful for my husband's assistance and timely payments for contracted work. In addition, I provided Agent Van Dyke with a four page handwritten statement that explains my husband's job and our additional source of funds." [End of article; no further comment from Mr. Bondoc.]

[END QUOTING]

Thus we return to the question: Who will act in honor, with dignity and USE The Magnificent Solution? Will GMA pull the fat from the fire? Will the people's vigilance and insistence on good government lead to another solution (without need for violence)? One thing seems certain: "Something's gotta give."

No matter what we do or say it seems that one response brings forth myriad trials at “debate” or, more probably, “arguments”.

I do not seem to find better ways of offering TRUTH of factual “way it is” than to keep repeating, revisiting an issue, and/or offering an obvious fact presented by others so that “I” am not the party to question. YOUR SPIRITUAL JOURNEY IS “YOURS”. I can only present that which I KNOW to be TRUTH and you must discern that which you will depending on from where you come, who and what you are, and by all means, with functional brain and more important, MIND.

You have been lied to so extensively and for so long that you seem to have no “reason”, “logic” or ability to discern properly, left in your arsenal of ongoing “fixit” tools.

I could offer you TRUTH in dozens of religious proverbs, text jokes and/or right back to the “books of wisdom” of any TEACHER who has deciphered TRUTH but will you be satisfied? Perhaps so and perhaps not: IT IS YOUR PREROGATIVE TO CHOOSE.

Therefore, since this day is already overloaded I shall keep the output to minimum “pick-up” as is possible while sharing that which seems to “touch you” as you conjure and ponder on your place and purpose in this universe and no, I did not say “downtown anywhere”.

I am going to again take out of sequence some of Little Crow’s observations as we have worked them through in counsel. I think that if we start this one at the end of his writing chapters, we can gain your better attention.

QUOTING: SACRED HILL WITHIN, Little Crow, Chapters 12 & 13:

“There are no outs, no scapegoats, no fall guys, no more saviors to die for us. Now, it is down to just us, you and me. We did it and we have to clean it up, stop it, change it, or let it go on as it is. No one, and I mean no one, is going to come down from anywhere and save our asses.” [LC]

[H: I suggest that if you don’t like these “white” apples that you can do one of two things: 1. Read on and find some information of which you are obviously unaware, about which you are uninformed, or working under incorrect assumptions, or, 2. Toss the paper in that dump “file” and remain ignorant by intent which

In many cultures, there is an idea of an “ending time” heralding some other catastrophic event. Many people seem to need some prophetic words shared with them so they will appear knowledgeable and can give explanations about what they think is happening in the world. Most of us are not Hopis, but we have become invasive enough of the Hopi world view to find out about their prophecies. Even though many of us have our own “good book” that talks about the ending times, we search out the prophecies of other cultures. Perhaps it is because we want a different ending, something with some hope. We want hope for us dastardly fools who have not lived a righteous life but would still like to think about going to heaven. We keep thinking there must be some prophecy somewhere that says it won’t be “the judgment” that determines if we get to where we are going, but it will be our own belief and our own conduct, in accordance with our accountability.

The other day I read in the paper about a father who bought a new gun and as he was showing it to his daughter, it went off and killed her. I remember in combat training, when we began to throw hand grenades there was always a fear that somebody would drop one or not throw it in the proper way and it would fall short and explode. There were stories about artillery round falling short onto our own people. We call it friendly fire. Most of the time when we don’t know what we’re doing, we have a tendency to be a loose cannon in danger of blowing up our own side. When we think we know something and we begin to talk about it or try to explain it, we do more damage than good. So, in this idea of the red and blue days, the ending times, there is always a thing called SILENCE, knowing when to speak and when to be quiet, knowing when to say something and when not to. It is hoped that the decision to keep still is not out of fear but out of knowledge.

My prophecies said the ending time, the red and blue days, began in 1987 and we have been going on ever since. [H: Please note our counting at the top of this writing and you will find that we began that counting, year one, on August 17, 1987.] The ending time means things change, people realize they are changing. I have shared with you about life and death and that our old ones said that when the Moon and the Sun turn color it is the ending time. Further relating the duality of that thinking, they said that each time our ignorance and egos are reduced by one iota and we become cognizant of our humility and aware of our connection and accountability, our life has begun and ended. We are talking about the red and blue days, the ending time, the prophecy, the cosmic duality that exists in the Dakota/Lakota world view and the idea that we die with each breath. Every time we take a breath we die. We live in a continual state of spirituality because each breath is a new life. Our previous life has gone; we take in air and give ourselves new life. In that new life, we have a bit more knowledge than we had before by having an opportunity to look around and see new things. Everything changes in the breath of a moment, so everything we see is new. With each breath we are a new person and there is nothing that remains of us from one breath to the next. Is it any wonder, then, that we don’t know how to respond when people say, “You somehow seem different.” You bet I’m different. It’s a whole new life, a whole new me, a whole different circumstance. The old me is gone, vanished, disappeared. Yet we carry around and recreate old hurts and hates for centuries. We go to our so-called graves, our place in the ground or our puff of smoke in the air carrying the old garbage, the old guilt, the old pain, the old hurts, the old memories when all that is necessary to be free of that is to recognize our spirituality and the power invested in us by the Mother-Father Creator, or whatever name we wish to give that authority.

The end of the world comes at the end of every breath. We live and die with each breath. With each breath we are given new life, unlimited opportunity. With each breath we have increased our knowledge and decreased our ego. Some of you may have trouble grasping that idea and it is difficult because it means we have to be accountable every time we take a breath. Each time we breathe, we have to think about what we are going to say, what we are going to do, how we are going to act, where our thoughts are leading and what our thoughts are about. That can be difficult to accept and apply with the patterns of our own beliefs. We want some other guarantee, something that helps us understand. We always want to understand something. Understanding indicates we are standing on something that is beneath us. What is under us is the foundation of what we believe; our faith. If our foundation, our faith, is shaky then understanding is impossible. Faith is only a tool, a key, a focal point. It doesn’t promise anything. It doesn’t guarantee anything. It is just faith.

With each breath we are working on attaining humility, reducing the ego. People confuse that with being humble. We attach negative connotations to the word humble, just as we do when we hear the word give, when we hear the word share, when we hear the word community. In California there is a proposition, a law, called 187 which concerns illegal immigration. In the vocabulary and vernacular of law enforcement, 187 is murder, 187 is homicide. When I first heard about that particular proposition, my thought was that it had something to do with killing someone or, perhaps, it was that those who had written the proposition were dead because they had no feeling. They were tapped out both financially and spiritually. It seems we can no longer feed the tired, the hungry, the poor, the wretched masses yearning to breathe free, so why not tear down the statue in New York harbor, haul it off to sea and sink it because its premise is no longer valid. Of course, I think it would be a great idea if aliens and illegals went home. Now somebody will assume from that statement that I dislike white people. Not so. From my perspective, anybody in this country who isn’t an Indian is an alien. If you are not indigenous to this continent, feel free to get your raggedy butt home. Get on a boat, get on a plane, take a magic carpet, use the freeway, just get on back.

We, as indigenous people are familiar with the ending times, the red and blue days. We have had to live with them for five centuries. Recently, I was again reading how in the 1800s and early 1900s, the Catholic Church launched its great crusade to gain control of the mission and government contract schools. It even manipulated the Supreme Court. Teddy Roosevelt was very supportive of the Catholic Church, as were various cabinet members. The church managed to get treaty money, along with money from other resources held by Indians, used for the maintenance of their schools. We are supposed to be a non-sectarian government but that continues to this day. The schools that send those little maps and calendars are Catholic and only exist because of money originally taken from Indian people to pay for them. The Catholics were paid with Indian money to maintain the contracts for the government schools and to keep them going. During that time, Protestantism struggled to maintain its position in America and we became very anti-Catholic. Protestantism had held its sway for a long time, but it began to lose its power over its children, the Indians. Once again, Indian people became the key figures in the struggle for control. The souls of Indian people became the bartering point over who would maintain the schools and for how long. We don't teach those things in school because we don't consider it significant that we took a people's monies, that we didn't—and still don't—acknowledge a people's treaties and we continue to violate them at every opportunity. What difference does it make? They are only Indians, just simple children. The idea prevalent at the time was that it was necessary to kill the Indian to save the man. Killing the Indian meant removing us from our tribalism and our communalism. Killing the Indian meant we had to be assimilated and our culture destroyed.

So, the red and blue days have always been significant to us as indigenous people. We still struggle for the freedom to practice our world views. I have been asked what keeps Indian people still hoping they are going to be treated with any kind of fairness when this nation has continually worked towards their removal and complete destruction. The answer is hope and humor. If we didn't have humor, we would not have been able to survive. We need the ability to laugh at the difficulty, the reality and the cruelty of life. And what is hope? Knowing that there will be people who will not let the end, whatever it might be, happen in their time. When George Seifert was coach of the San Francisco 49ers, he said he was in an organization that does not think about losing. He said that any coach who comes to the team does not want to be known as the coach that goes out a loser. No one wants to be known as the coach responsible for ending the dynasty. Oren Lyons, the Faithkeeper of the Onondaga people, says that every generation must see itself as being accountable for those generations that follow and not let the world end in their time. Do not let it end in your time. Do not be the contributing factor that flushes us down the drain.

When we talk about the ending times, we talk about gaining knowledge. Learning is a process of remembering, remembering who and what we are.

We all dream. Dreaming is the little microdots that we implanted on our life script tape when we were in a spiritual context, so that we might remember something when we were living in this lifetime as a human being. We are a collection of consciousnesses. We have each lived thousands and thousands of times and we have had billions of microdots on our life script. We forget what is permanently etched on the tape of life that we carry within our collective consciousness, so we have dreams. Imagine your collective consciousness if, say, you've lived 186,000 lifetimes. Think of all those collective consciousnesses and all of those dreams on those microdots that you have put on that tape. No wonder there are people who hear voices. We should all hear a lot of voices. We all have multiple personalities and they are all based on our needs. That's knowledge and that's part of the ending time. Part of the ending time is when we can begin to realize that what we are doing here on this Earth is trying to satisfy our needs. We are trying to meet our needs, whatever they are.

What the red and the blue days, the ending time, and the prophecies are saying is that we need to start over again. There needs to be a time when we can begin to think differently about ourselves. All of the legislation, all of the congressional acts that are passed and the laws that are put on the books are not going to change us. What changes us is how we feel about ourselves, starting with yourself. If you can by the slightest figment of your imagination see yourself, as well as everything else, as being sacred, your life will change. And, as your life changes, the world changes and the world for the person next to you changes. It becomes like that, one thing helping the other by example. As you have been sitting there, your life has changed with every breath you've taken. Your life has begun, it has ended, and it has begun again. You know more than you knew when you sat down. It's that simple.

The red and blue days, the ending time, means the removal of blindness, the symbolic gaining of knowledge with each breath. With every breath you see something you didn't see the moment before. Your wisdom has increased, your ego has been reduced and you retain a sense of humility in recognizing your connectedness to all things. You are connected to everything in the universe. Our holy people said when you can see that occurring in your life you are walking on the red road, the spiritual path. You don't have to be Dakota/Lakota; the spiritual path is there for anybody. It's the same path for everybody, just interpreted a little differently. It goes to the same place. So, after each breath you can say to yourself, "I've gained in my knowledge, my wisdom, and I have hopefully reduced my ego. I know I am on that sacred path to God." Whatever it is, to whatever form your God takes, you are on that path whether you know it or not, because you breathe. You all breathe. You are all on that path and while you're on that path just remember, in this time you are important, you are critical. Each of you is equal in your importance to the universe and to those things which the universe is about.

Each of you is sacred and in that sacredness, you have accountability. Remember that. Remember your accountability to see that the world does not end in your time. You have the power to do that. Don't let it happen in your time and remember that everything you do, every breath you take, is not for yourself but for all your relations.

CHAPTER 13 SYMBOLISM AND THE WORLD

“Never before have we, as human beings, questioned so strongly or for so long the matters of our spirit. We have indeed launched ourselves upon a journey of faith—a journey that will ultimately emerge within the vastness of our own inner universe coming to rest at the base of all beginnings and endings, the sacred hill within.”

We live in a world of symbols. We share a symbolic relationship with the Creator, the Mother-Father. We are created of it. We are, symbolically, the representation of the Mother-Father God in the physical form, in the human form. We are the living representation of the Creator, as are the trees, the rocks, the plants and the animals. They breathe and they are the living representation of the creative energy, the Mother-Father God, in that symbolic form. All of those things together make up the gigantic puzzle of existence, of life.

As we look at nature and see its struggle to recapture itself, to recapture its dignity, it becomes a symbol of the struggle that goes on within each of us, the struggle to find balance and a way to feel good with what is going on in our lives and in the lives of those around us. Nature shows us how we are to live. Nature shows us an acceptance of what is. We, unfortunately, do not seem to want to work that way. For some reason, we want to be more than we are. We are encouraged to be things that we are not. The confusions which seemingly control our lives are based upon mythical limitations and the implantation of concepts early on in each of our lives that we, as we find ourselves, are unworthy and unacceptable to God or whoever unless we become perfect.

In the stories in my Oral Tradition, we can see symbols of what we once were and of what we once had the ability to do. We once had the ability to fly, to communicate with all things, to walk in spirit and to exist in a spiritual way. Then came a time when we lost that ability and we see the symbols there, too—the symbols of impatience and lack of faith, frustration and hatred, judgment and finger pointing; symbols of deterioration, of regression and aggression, symbols of things which are out of balance.

As we read the newspapers and listen to the news, we see and hear a symbolic message. A mother stabs her children to death because she thinks the world is coming to an end. How ironic. If the world is ending, what purpose does it serve to take the life of her children? It serves none but her own need and her own fear. Each one of us is responsible and accountable for every act, word, thought or deed that we initiate and send forth into the universe. We are accountable for every thought that we have had since we woke up this morning. Be assured that it will make itself known somewhere along the way, not as a matter of punishment but as a realization that nothing escapes its sacred responsibility—not a haphazard glance, not a passing thought or comment—for we are all spiritually accountable. We are the physical representation of the Mother-Father Creator.

Symbols are all around us. Each time we see a child, we see a symbol of trust and love, a symbol of the determination and tenacity of the human spirit to return again and again to somehow find a way to bring balance to a world gone mad. Each time we see a mountain, each time we see a rock, we see a symbol of those things which last forever. Each time we see an animal, a four legged or a winged, we are reminded of those things which have lived with us and provided for us since the beginning of creation. In my office, I have a picture I clipped out of a magazine of a young boy who has no arms or legs. He has prostheses yet he plays ball, he swims, and he plays soccer. When I think I've got problems in my life, I just look over at his picture and I realize I don't have any problems. That's my perception; that's my perspective. That's my own need to see something that symbolically reminds me that life isn't too bad for me.

A symbolic sign of the times is that the Bible is being rewritten to refer to God as the Mother-Father. A symbolic sign of the times is that Jesus will be referred to as the Human Being. In the many languages of indigenous people across this land, we are called the Human Beings. Since our inception, we have referred to ourselves as the Human Beings. In the genesis that occurred when we went West across the Bering Straits to carry the message of brotherhood and healing, love, peace and balance that we shared with all nations, we told them that there would be Human Beings that would come among them. We traveled from the tip of the Arctic to the end of the Antarctic sharing these ideas. It didn't happen the other way. No one came here. It happened in reverse. You might ask, "How can you make a statement like that? How can you prove that?" It's a symbolic statement and just as plausible as what is taught in school.

If you wish to live, to survive, become aware of the Earth and begin to take care of it for the sake of those who come after you. People talk about saving the world, but we cannot save the world. The world, the Earth, doesn't need us to save it. It will save itself. We can do a little bit of this and a little bit of that, but the Earth will just ignore us. It can outlast us. We fight the oil spills but the Earth and oceans will eventually dissolve them, given enough time. The mountains will grow again when the houses slide down after "the big one". But let's face it, we are not really concerned about the Earth, about the oceans and the mountains, the wetlands and the marshes. We are worried about us, as individuals. We are worried that we're going to run out of air, out of ground, out of food and water. We are afraid of dying. We are afraid we're going to run out of faith and we want something that gives us a guarantee. Well, we are our own best guarantee. Realize that if we find balance within ourselves, everything we do will affect everything else in accordance with that. We can only change ourselves, individually. Everything else has its own accountability.

Symbolism and the world around us means to recognize the symbols in the perpetuation of an idea that says, "As a female, you must be subservient because the word of God said so and, therefore, we males can treat you any way we want. You are second class, you do not count, you are not special, you are not equal." How can women support that type of dogma, one wonders, and at the same time say they want their place in the marketplace, in the business world, in the home, or in the political arena? They go back time after time, Sunday after Sunday, and hear that they are not equal and that they have been relegated to a role of servitude. They support that position when they say they can't leave the situation they are in or they can't escape this or that.

The world is made up of a mosaic of human beings, each of us believing whatever we believe and attempting to function at a level of compatibility that shows we have some kind of behavioral responsibility towards one another. We need to respect women and teach our young people to respect women and themselves. We need to teach them that each young man is feminine as well as masculine, and that each young woman is masculine as well as feminine. Women are the core of the spiritual strength of the family. This lifetime, if you come back as a woman, you are the spiritual strength, the spiritual core. You are the voice of God, the Mother-Father Creator. What more do you want? What more is there? Once we recognize that and see the feminine energy within ourselves, then we can talk at the same level. Who is it easier to talk to, your husband or another woman? Who is it easier to talk to, another man or your wife? Your wife gets exasperating because she keeps asking the same questions. You just think she forgot. Not so, kemo sabe. We, in our masculine energy, become frustrated because of the feminine energy's expectation of finding some resource in the masculine symbol. When the feminine energy discovers that the masculine symbol crumbles, it gets disappointed and the masculine symbol gets frustrated with the expectations that are placed upon it. Expectations; a symbol of our times.

What does God expect of you? What do you think the Mother-Father Creator expects of you? Are you up to the task? People ask time and time again, "What am I doing here? What's it all about?" You are here to breathe. You are here to breathe and give life to all things through your sacred breath. That's it. Your sacred breath gives life to everything—to me, to the plants, to the universe, to those things above and below the sea. You are sacred; you are special; you are spiritual; you are holy. You are all those things and none of those things. You are all of those things and you are one thing.

As this is being written, we are in the time of the long night, the time of falling star, when we tell some of the creation stories involving the star system and the universe, the constellations, how what is mirrored above is mirrored below and how we follow those things in the traditional ways that we were given. The symbols that were spoken at the time they were given to us said there will come a time when some people will attempt to diminish our beliefs and we will not be able to follow the stars in the way in which we were instructed. Instead, we will be encouraged to do other things. At that time, the world will be upon its knees and the ending time will have begun but don't dismay, the Sun will return. Don't make too much of it though, it might look like a buffalo. Don't make too much of it because people will attempt to exploit it again, as the world exploits all suns who bring a message, all sons and daughters who are prophetic and bring a message.

We have continued to dance and pray and the buffalo has returned and all of our relatives have come home. You are different colors but you are the relatives we were told to dance home. We have danced you home and we do not see whites or blacks, Asians, reds or greens, Catholics, Jews, protestants, Christians or Buddhists. You are all human beings. You are here and we are saying to you that all you need to do is recognize your sacredness. The rest will take care of itself.

In the three segments of the Oral Tradition, as I was instructed, we were told that a spiritual core dwells within all things of creation. That spiritual energy and spiritual core is symbolically represented by those things of creation that we can see, as well as those things we cannot see, those things that must be taken on faith. Each one of us has a different degree of faith based upon our life experience. One reason we find life so difficult is because we are often dealing with people who do not operate at the same levels of faith as we do. So be mindful, be aware, see the signs, recognize the symbolic meaning of those things which you observe.

You are my relatives and I encourage you to pray for everyone except yourself. I encourage you to realize, in your sacredness and holiness and in your wisdom; that the person next to you is praying for you. You are included in the prayers of all of those within the circle of life. You are encouraged to step back from your egos and address the sense of humility that God, the Mother-Father Creator, has presented to us through the breath of life. In that breath, the things that we do are not for ourselves but for all of our relations.

Mitak.

As a closing thought I would ask that each of you who have any questions AT ALL regarding "what's it really about?", go back and study these chapters very carefully. I find that the desire for discussion is truly only a PRETENSE at "not understanding" in order to pursue your own opinions and misperceptions. It is all very simple indeed and it takes no more than the innocent openness of a child—not rocket science, to comprehend and understand ALL OF IT.

It only takes you and God, friend, and all the pretending otherwise and hopping about the planet or the universe, to find yourself, makes not a whit of difference—JUST YOU AND GOD! (You can call him/her anything you choose.)

You can argue with me until that proverbial freeze in you-know-where—BUT I HAVE BEEN THERE AND DONE THAT, and I know the way while I find that so many of you are on a wheel of searching, choosing, denying and outright lying to yourself and others as to make your points of absurdities seem to have no sense or reason. It just doesn't sell here, my friends, where we have nothing at all to sell in return. What IS—IS.

Walking On While The World Spins More Crazy

10/23/04—#1 (18-68)

SAT., OCT. 23, 2004 8:27 A.M. YR 18, DAY 68
Manila, Philippines

RE: WE ARE ASKED FOR UPDATES RELATIVE TO MORE PERSONAL VENTURES—WHILE THE WORLD SPINS IN ITS MYRIAD SCATTERED DIRECTIONS—DJE

WHY ME, US, WE OR THOU OR THEE?

This morning I don't know why any of the above. It certainly cannot be "me" (we) because of lack of frustration, lack of notice of the World burning in its hot orbit around some sun pushing off solar energy while we kill and destroy over "OIL"! My conclusion: We are totally nuts; as a civilization.

Are "we" somehow brave and/or daring beyond good "reason"? I don't think so for I certainly do NOT feel either daring nor do I feel that we act outside "reason" and that is based on hard evidence while every day the alternative to our stance is shown in most remarkable unfolding discoveries.

Every day I awaken to go over the happenings of the day at a level where, yes indeed, we are caused to function even in this foreign land and I want to simply take off to Bali to the white sand beaches Mark describes. Or perhaps to Malaysia where there is now amnesty for illegal immigrants [but only if they leave]. Wow, it is only that we are LEGAL and not immigrants and so, foiled again by our call to Truth and LAW. Never mind spewing "God" around like scattering quicksand in the path of some "believers" or another kind of sales pitch to suck anyone into a trap of some kind.

I have found that "God" IS and enough said. Righteous and RIGHT—ARE. Walking on planet Earth as human expressions—WE "ARE", it "IS" and within that capsule of limitation we seek and search THE WAY.

HAIRBRAINED IDIOTS

We have noted just about every type of "scam", lie and deceitful game along this journey through, indeed, Hell and have found that TRUTH resides only in that which is KNOWN and can be presented—yea, even from our own presentations as published documentation.

There is, we find, a scammer con-person or even, yet, some manipulating person seeking his own MORE reward in, thus far, every attempt at manifesting our task—yea, even the holdings which after years and years of substantial trial and error, we find TRUTH but frustration in unlimited measure in putting out fires, confronting outright LIES and disinformation and still people want US to bring order, wealth, abundance, peace and a better way—if we can outlive the crooks chasing us and tossing grenades or scattering Daisy Cutter bombs all about us.

I think I am most overwhelmed at the most recent REALLY IMPORTANT (more than the other "really important" information to share)—with the more updated information arrived in some seventy pages of documentation from SCALAR BEAM (WAVE) technologist, Tom Bearden, et al.

We have written on that topic until I would have thought there was NOTHING LEFT TO SAY. It "IS" and it is truly amazing that the years go by and only the BAD GUYS get the goodies while patiently awaiting the opportunity to take the world and gain the "slaves" while never minding the "souls". THAT is a no-brainer.

So, we are asking that as possible the information be segmented into some kind of "series" presentation while leaving room for ongoing updates on progress in Paradise and room for those mandatory PUBLIC NOTICES which offer TOTAL TRANSPARENCY in all we do or attempt to do. Hindsight is truly better than narrow vision of the moment and we can only speculate and act on that lesson learning from hindsight as to possibilities and probabilities into the future; whatever that might mean.

TODAY IN "MARCOS" LAND OF FACT AND FICTION

While the Philippine Congress is conducting hearings to catch a thief, or 2000 of them, the humor of the moment becomes overbearing and slapstick to the point that the laughter is one of "black humor" and cannot be considered soul-cleansing.

Senator Ping Lacson, a good friend and former Philippine National Police head, tells the investigators to go look in the mirror to find the culprits of graft and corruption. So, he is bashed and trashed and the "mirror shards" launched at him instead of the billionaire players in this sick game of "destroy the Philippines" in the name of DOLLARS.

Even the U.S. is fully into the game and it is very difficult to see exactly who and where the cover is tossed as to "least damage to the U.S." but with full inability to stop the fragments from going worldwide as to graft and corruption—even to inferior and worthless ammunition to the soldiers who must die in the game.

We are not talking a "few dollars more", readers, and this is peanuts to the U.S. graft and corruption (try Halliburton and Enron) and to the point that the worthless printing of "dollars" has destroyed any sense of VALUE in any setting. All the REAL enemy of the people of the globe have to do is WAIT and watch as the vipers are now sucking on their own tails not to mention their brothers' soft belly along with the greedy wives of the culprits themselves. Never overlook those greedy WIVES, including such as the "claimed" (but was not) so-called wife of one Russell Herman known as Vina Katherine Durham, fraud personified. The tales are truly remarkable beyond room to present.

The poor Presidente here has resorted to, in this time of poverty and starvation, calling in her military "field-commanders" and wining them on red wine and STEAK at the "Palace" Malacañang day before yesterday to get a "Loyalty Test Check".

The military "run of the mill" soldiers and good commanders are sick and tired of the BS and the President (and all her men) KNOW IT.

There is full blown presentation right from the opposition's mouth in the papers yet of replacement of the administration under the assumption that Gloria will "step down" and the time-line seems to be in November sometime, or at the least by Christmas.

More games and empty threats and shouts? Perhaps so for it has been years of this non-productive gossip and "cleanup" promises.

Just yesterday the Palace spokesman came up with total hogwash as Transparency International (that London Prince Phillip cover bubble but headquartered now in Germany) and the Heritage Institute (check that out in Conspirator's Hierarchy, The Committee of 300) told that the Philippines is the 11th most corrupt nation on the globe and is right in there with the worst of all in recognition of the truth of that claim. The ones in the "worst" are also THE LIST OF COALITION OF THE WILLING. How is that for realistic description of this "Paradise" and her working partners?

Now, this is not all of the garbage flinging: The reason now given is that of the recognition of the corruption of just two people: former President Ferdinand Marcos (never found guilty of anything) and former President Erap Estrada (equally mistreated but never found guilty of ANYTHING).

And we find that somehow WE ARE SUPPOSED TO FIX IT ALL AND ON "YOUR" SCHEDULE AT THAT?

Do I plan to lead some stupid army while waving a Joan of Arc flag for Country and God? No, I certainly DO NOT.

I plan to have us present as is possible the credentials and COURT ORDERS giving us authority to PARTICIPATE in recognition of that which has been placed into our keeping.

Just TODAY in the major paper there is a story: "Marcos Riches Scam: 2 Convicted In US".

Good go, U.S. (New York), it only took you since 1994 to nail the frauds who are two "ladies" of the VK variety who SOLD shares in order to get back millions of $$ when "Marcos funds would be released" wherefrom the ladies were the signatories. They gathered up funds even through e-mail for shares in the returns. They live in Manhattan "uptown" in a posh hotel room at $5,000 per month. Let's see now, $5,000 per month since 1994 seems to add up to "considerable". They were supported equally well in all other ways in addition.

By the way, they are "ladies" (oh yes, they are named Roberta Dupre of New York and her accomplice, Beverly Stambaugh, of Montrose, Colorado). My goodness! Since there are over 3 million Filipinos in the U.S. one has to assume there is a connection to even resemble anyone with "signatory" rights to a "Marcos" account anywhere. Moreover, it is fraud in the highest measure because of claimed "bank accounts". Well, they lucked out on bank fraud for they didn't have any account at all, inclusive of the "Marcos" account. We have to assume they did, however, have their own accounts.

Is it any wonder that the investigators are trying to establish "Bank Fraud" charges against one "Prince Tallano" in Switzerland and which pulled in INTERPOL. No, we don't know the outcome of that search but Tallano is still out and about playing even more interesting games than trying to get gold out of Swiss banks and defrauding the bank in point.

Does that impact OUR “FDN”? No. Truth and documents STAND in court records and orders for uncounted centuries of time and counting.

THIS is why “we” stay the course—not playing games with the fairy-tale princesses and princes of Fantasyland.

Is that different from VK Durham? Yes, but only in that we couldn’t support her in such a grand manner but to the tune of some minimum $3,000 per month while she dickered and bled us after Russell’s death while thinking we could “save the day” somehow. A great big BS is such an understatement as to be staggering.

Were we a bit stupid? Yes and no. We had, from August 5, 1993, Russell’s assignment of all of his interests but VK had already done her dirtier work. Russell knew that and suggested we please try to work WITH HER. We did and that was also an experience with the Devil herself.

Did VK KNOW that Russell Herman had handed into our care his interests? YES, OF COURSE SHE DID AND THAT IS PROVEN.

As he was dying in 1994 she filed documents claiming her “takeover” of all assets relative to that infamous 3392-181 “Peruvian”. She did such a bad job of it but without question she even had the very ASSIGNMENT itself as she added the duplicated signature FROM THE ASSIGNMENT to her Warranty claim turning over everything to her. She copied the signature onto her document from “our” document over a year later.

VK would have done well—or perhaps she personally trained the Filipinos—in the Philippines where counterfeit, fraud, scam and forgeries are the game of the day (and especially the nights). Hers were equally as badly done but “Oh Well”.

Oh by the way: Never mind that “Assignment” to which VK refers constantly. It has little meaning and perhaps even less than the unnecessary “Certificate 3392”. The POINT is that the asset was confirmed, conformed and placed 100% identified into COSMOS SEAFOOD ENERGY MARKETING, LTD. (THAT was RUSSELL HERMAN—with his associate Ms. Xalis) in 1985. Please check for yourself the status of that corporation and find comfort in the fact that you are not on VK’s “side” of this little confrontation in ongoing nonsense.

Is there truly HOPE? Well, it is said that hope is the door to goodness, even Heaven; while Faith is the key to that door.

Do we have hope and faith? Yes, I suppose we do but it is based on the literal FACTS in TRUTH and not in whimsical claim to God in invisible voices or flag-waving. The most amazing revelation here is that EVERYONE claims “God said” and being predominantly Roman Catholic and yes, Muslim with “Allah”, it is always “GOD SAID” followed on with fraudulent documents, forged papers and you name it even to claiming to be the “King” Sultan.

We were called just two days ago from the “horse’s mouth” who had been to THE meeting where it was established that the top Sultan has been proclaimed. It is Not Rodinood and no, we don’t know who that might be in the sifting through of the claimants. It is said, however, that “He is on ‘our’ side.” Oh; well, good?!? So be it. Allah is great and God is good! And NO, this “one” is not among those awful terrorists of which VK speaks and claims our inside participation and most especially that we are the financial support behind all of them. It will have far more to do with political interchange and especially the holdings of Malaysia as established in old Borneo (Sabah). It can be proven, I expect, more currently than President Taft in the gifting of Brunei to that Bolksiah family and I don’t refer to Prince Bandar who has nothing to do with Brunei under any circumstances other than perhaps some recognition of Bandar as U.S. Ambassador from Saudi-Arabia and who, by the way, was also completely entangled with Bush, along with those Bin Ladens of Osama fame. Please, just look at Fahrenheit 911 and catch a wake-up call. This is NOT “NEWS”, readers, just the “facts, Ma’am”.

VK claimed in the last two years that she was, with Russell Herrman, dinner friends and guests to King Fahd of SA no less. Wow, and she also claims to be a cousin of Queen Elizabeth! Well, I guess I would be as nuts as she claims if I accepted any of her tripe.

Oh, by the way, INTERPOL can’t find any agent called Gammelsgaard to whom VK constantly writes. Does that surprise us? You believe what you will but it surely is stacking up to be a bunch of crap piled higher and deeper at every new revelation.

Does the negation of VK somehow negate Russell Herman? No, it certainly proves his standing and it is proven as “Russell Herman” no matter what other alias labels he might have used through his “service” years to the CIA head and President, Geo. H. W. Bush (Sr.). My goodness; and you might still think Saddam had weapons of mass destruction? What ever he might have had came from the U.S. and economically was based on Geo. Bush’s MISUSE of this asset he called “SUPERFUND”. We have “decapitated” the “weapon” and turned it into potential “mass construction” which would actually save the very assets of one Geo. Jr. if there is anything left with which to use as value-base.

If the gold is gone from the Philippines then the next problem of the global snatchers is returning it to right here in that OLD CENTRAL BANK while never minding the Bangko Sentral of the foreign ownership. The newly established (in about 1993) BSP DOES NOT negate that which was to have been in the prior CENTRAL BANK. Mr. Ramos might well have some hard explaining to do when those chips are tossed onto the table. He did it and lying about it won’t help.

Will the Rule of Law ever prevail? Certainly it is hoped that it can and shall but getting through the daily drag through the cesspool tank is a major experience of almost too much crap to handle without ponies in there anywhere.

There are a couple or three articles within the past few days by former Sen. Tatad which we request be run as are. It is a fact that a whole group of people have just been to the U.S. and as nearly as we can tell it was to gain support for a possible new government and a little bug told us that it was also to get first-hand input regarding GAIA, et al. It is established now that there is available the use of the Foundation here and I would think that “faith” has no value here—but reality of “due diligence” is more “important” to the moment at hand. THAT is what we have pleaded to have happen from EVERYONE interested.

It seems that our contact long before becoming Secretary of Treasury was Lawrence Summers while he was still Assistant Sec. and during his stint as Secretary of same. He is now head of Harvard U. and would be the logical contact, along with the “Legal” Department Head of Treasury at the time, Russell Munk—both named by VK and constantly informed BY VK as claimed. WE ARE NOT HIDING ANYTHING! What these people investigating might find out from IMF, et al., is purely speculative in that they are owned 100% by the IBC bunch of thugs. Remember that the Treasurer and Attorney General of the U.S. are paid directly by the IMF. The working coalition of the U.S. Treasury WITH/through the Federal Reserve causes our holdings to be 100% “guaranteed” by the UST/FED. Wow and oh my goodness—even on a bad day in Monsooned Manila that is observably good.

“In our lifetime” is a recognized condition of “when” as two of our sons, one just yesterday (Chuck), turned the half-century mark. That, no matter how we count, dates old Mom and Dad considerably. Yes indeed, we need all the help we can get. Let us just hope, children, that you are maturing in wisdom along with those years passing. These are the times I find my patience short and some irritation growing as my own family grows old and my babies are gone forever while I pay, I suppose, those karmic debts of some time—some where.

Would we do it again? Well, yes I suppose so, seeing that we did it THIS time and that indicates a choice made and perhaps many choices made in that span of lifetime(s). Would it be our “rather” choice? I guess I have to assume that it would be, also based on the above assumption.

How have we managed in this maze of rat-trails? I certainly can’t say but I assume it to be through the blood, sweat and tears of KNOWING it “should” work out right if everything about it is right, lawful, legal and “perfected”. The “way” we have made it this far is directly credited to YOU. And my goodness, we are grateful and humble, for it indicates that there are some of you who also KNOW in what we experience.

It has been a long run of conscious recognition of lessons and realizations beyond the quibbling of who gets what and what “teacher” might or might not be Real. They are all very REAL indeed—even the frauds as we would label one or another. It is OUR discernment at point, not “theirs”. This is just as “yours” are not “mine”.

I don’t know why we so willingly give away our “power” to the adversary of life itself but I observe that we certainly do so at every opportunity. I guess we actually FEAR that we cannot be “right” and live in guilt and shame of some kind or another. Well, I don’t accept that load much any longer. EJ never did and it gives us a leg-up on the racetrack. Moreover, we can leave YOU to YOURS without struggle or remorse, for we have no notion of blame, vengeance or judgment. The acts of all/each will be that which is in response, properly returned. It need not take our time or attention to any great extent beyond confronting that which is not true and allow that Truth to stand its ground.

I need to go and practice that which I have preached, release the burden of that which I cannot have right to change, change that which seems appropriate and possible and yes indeed, continue to pray diligently, AND LISTEN TO THE RESPONSE, for wisdom to KNOW both the “same-same” and the “difference” in each presented adventure.

We will pick some articles to give input about the focus here these days and leave space to do so without tampering or being accused of possible tampered interpretations—as space allows.

We send our love and appreciation to each of you. We are fully aware that we could not do this job alone nor would we even wish to “try”.

Electromagnetic Weapons & Asymmetrical Warfare

By T.E. Bearden (Part One)

Readers of this newspaper are probably aware there are weapon systems based on prana or "scalar" energy, which have been in existence for a long time already.

Nikola Tesla once stated that these energies could be used to "split the Earth like an apple". Dr. Peter Beter disclosed Russian "psycho-energetic" technology and use of prana-energy weapons—and much more—back in the 1980s. Much of this information has been made available—albeit with different semantic labeling—in the works of Walter Russell, the presentation of which drew the ire of the "powers that be" a decade ago. Yes, we tried to present this information to the public more than a decade ago and the proof of that statement is in those amazing Phoenix Journals—which can be acquired through Phoenix Source Distributors, 800-800-5565, <www.PhoenixSourceDistributors.com>.

Nowhere in the public domain is information about the "WMD" aspects of this science revealed more fully than by Tom Bearden, who also lays out specific applications of these "superweapons" likely to be witnessed in the near future. We give thanks and appreciation to Tom Bearden and <www.cheniere.org> for permission to reprint this material in an effort to give it the widest possible circulation at this time.

SCALAR ELECTROMAGNETIC WEAPONS AND THEIR TERRORIST USE: IMMEDIATE STRATEGIC ASPECTS OF THE ASYMMETRIC WAR ON THE U.S.

By T. E. Bearden, 10/13/04

<www.cheniere.org>

Drafted Sept. 11, 2004 on the Third Anniversary of 9/11/01

1. COLD WAR DEVELOPMENT OF SCALAR INTERFEROMETRY

Prior to 1990, our weather over North America was being steadily engineered by the KGB—particularly beginning on July 4, 1976—using giant strategic scalar interferometers on site in Russia {1,2,3,4}. From the beginning of the development program started shortly after WW II, the KGB personally controlled the development of startling new Russian weapons under the Soviet energetics program {5,6,7}. That program was for research and eventual development of highly advanced new superweapons more powerful than the atomic bomb.

The new superweapons were developed, produced, manned, and operated by the KGB itself, and were never placed in the hands of the regular Russian armed forces. Speaking to the Presidium in 1960, Khrushchev referred to the forthcoming scalar interferometer weapons with the following statement:

"We have a new weapon—just within the portfolio of our scientists, so to speak—so powerful that, if unrestrainedly used, it could wipe out all life on Earth."

The large Soviet strategic scalar interferometers were deployed and became operational in April 1963—a bit too late for Khrushchev to use and counter the U.S. confrontation in the Cuban Missile Crisis of latter 1962. However, the first operational weapon was used to destroy the U.S.S. Thresher nuclear submarine underwater and on maneuvers off the East Coast of the United States, in April 1963. Thereby Khrushchev demonstrated the power of his new weapons over one of the major three elements of the strategic military nuclear firepower of the United States. Extension to the other two elements—ICBMs and strategic bombers—was obvious.

2. INCIDENTS WHERE OUTSIDE INTERVENTION SAVED THE UNITED STATES

Many dramatic but largely unheralded incidents occurred during the so-called "Cold War". For example, in the 1970s a small nation saved us from being totally destroyed by Soviet nuclear weapons which had been inserted in our cities. That nation did it very simply: They also inserted an appreciable number of nuclear weapons of their own inside Russia itself, in its population centers and its primary target zones. Some of them were thermonuclear.

All these inserted nuclear weapons—both in the United States and in Russia—are still there with their activation teams, waiting. In such manner was the "balance of terror"—the Mutual Assured Destruction or MAD doctrine—really implemented and enforced vis a vis the Soviet Union.

In April 1986 a secretive little U. S. group intervened in a forthcoming giant earthquake being built up by the KGB scalar interferometers for the greater Los Angeles and San Francisco areas. Via a special electronic device, the group suddenly destroyed one of the distant Soviet scalar interferometer transmitters—thereby initiating the nearby Chernobyl nuclear incident but preventing the loss of perhaps 200,000 U.S. lives in Los Angeles and San Francisco, together with terrible destruction and economic damage.

Also in 1986, the same friendly little nation again prevented our strategic destruction by even more powerful energetics weapons developed by the Soviet Union. The friendly nation simply began exploding very large Russian missile ammunition storage sites, as a direct warning of what was in store for the Soviet Union if the Soviets attacked.

In 1997, again the U.S. would have been utterly destroyed on two occasions had it not been for the same little nation. Several professional colleagues and I played a desperate role in both those incidents; they were frighteningly real but also totally unreported in the news media. Indeed, our own intelligence agencies had no inkling that a full strategic Soviet superweapon attack to destroy the United States was imminent on each of the occasions (the second of which would have occurred on May 1, 1997) {8}. The May Day for 1997 would have been the "big one", had the FSB/KGB not been checkmated by "an offer it could not refuse"—delivered once again by the friendly nation. During those critical periods when every hour on the clock seemed a week in length, the hostile armada that would have struck us included the Japanese Yakuza and Aum Shinrikyo teams on site in Russia, operating leased KGB/FSB strategic scalar interferometers against the U.S.

3. YAKUZA ACQUISITION OF SOVIET SUPERWEAPONS

With the collapse of the old Soviet Union's economy, by the end of 1989 the Russian financial situation was grim. By courtesy of the Russian Mafia {9} which works directly for the FSB/KGB, a rogue Japanese group consisting of the Yakuza {10} and Aum Shinrikyo {11} was conducted to Russia in latter 1989, met with the KGB, and leased some of those large KGB strategic scalar interferometers on site in Russia {12}. The down payment was $900 million U.S. in gold bullion, and the lease is rumored to be some $1 billion per year.

The Yakuza and Aum Shinrikyo then assigned teams to man those superweapon sites and begin weather engineering operations against the United States and other targets. The Aum Shinrikyo even set up a small university in Russia where the energetics theory and technology could be taught to the rogue Japanese teams by the KGB scientists.

The rogue Japanese teams underwent extensive training and in 1990 they began operating these large strategic interferometers {13} worldwide, including performing extensive weather engineering operations, directly under the supervision of the FSB/KGB. The use of the Yakuza and its vast resources worldwide was thus incorporated into the FSB/KGB planning and coordination for the coming destruction of the United States and the Western world.

Much later, Western investigations into the Aum Shinrikyo did clearly establish the sect's links in Russia, but missed the major involvement of the Yakuza. The Soviets easily made it appear that contact of the Aum Shinrikyo with Russia had been harmless. Quoting Turbiville {14}:

"Russian, Japanese, and other investigators quickly identified a substantial number of sect [Aum Shinrikyo] members in Russia, including members in the government and other walks of life. Media commentators took note of a 'gas analyzer' of Russian origin seized at a sect facility; reports of Aum Shinrikyo sect members among Russian Radiation, Chemical, and Biological Defenses Troops; alleged sect ties to the Russian Academy of Sciences; the large volume of commercial Russian ship and aircraft traffic between Russia and Japan; and other issues that suggested questionable Russo-Japanese linkages to sarin production or transport... Official Russian military and security service spokesmen, while acknowledging Aum Shinrikyo's presence in Russia, reiterated the absolute security of military chemical depots and munitions..."

So in early 1990, the weather engineering operations over North America were assumed from the FSB/KGB by the Yakuza/Aum Shinrikyo teams, and operations continued with the Yakuza's leased giant scalar interferometers. The weather engineering against the United States continues today under the rogue Japanese teams on site in Russia, with direct FSB/KGB supervision.

In 2004 we have entered the 2-year “final preparation phase”. These operations have been intensified and will continue to be intense, wreaking great economic damage. Hurricanes Charlie, Frances, Ivan, Jeanne, etc. have been no exception to the Yakuza weather engineering, which included directly influencing and controlling each hurricane’s power and behavior, as well as directing its course and speed so as to choose its targeting path. Indeed, Ivan did a 180 degree turn, and Jeanne did a 360 degree loop before reaching Florida, demonstrating the degree of control available.

Meteorologists do recognize periods of increased or decreased hurricane activity for various reasons {15}, but they do not consider deliberate human induction of hurricanes or human control over their direction, power, and progress.

Indeed, in latter March of 2004, Hurricane Catarina—the first-ever recorded hurricane in the South Atlantic—formed and came ashore in Brazil on March 28 with 90 mph winds, doing substantial damage. So while the conventional wisdom is that hurricanes cannot form (naturally) in the South Atlantic; this one did and “broke all the records”. It appears to have been a “deliberate probe” by the Yakuza: Produce and drive ashore a hurricane where the textbooks state one is impossible, to test whether Western governments and scientists recognize the artificial weather engineering. The answer, of course, is that—as expected—the West did not recognize its importance, or that it was a deliberate “stimulus”. Western meteorologists and governments simply shrugged off Hurricane Catarina as an interesting little phenomenon but of no great concern.

After leasing the KGB/FSB scalar interferometers on site in Russia at the end of 1989, the Yakuza later carried the scalar electromagnetics (energetics) technology and science for such interferometry back to Japan. There they set up their own clandestine facilities to manufacture such weapons, including small portable scalar interferometers, EMP weapons, and possibly even negative energy EMP weapons.

Selected portable weapons of such types are to be inserted—probably some have already been inserted—into the U.S. and used internally by the Yakuza in its coming destruction of our centralized electrical power system. With the final coup de grace to be delivered about two years from now, the loss of our national electrical power system is intended to evoke the catastrophic collapse of the entire U.S. economy, followed by the fall of other Western nations’ economies like toppling dominoes.

The problem is this: The U.S. Government, scientific community, intelligence community, and electrical power industry seem totally incapable of confronting the desperate requirement to replace our entire centralized electrical power system with fuel-free self-powering “energy from the vacuum” (EFTV) systems, as rapidly as is humanly possible. Mere mention of such a requirement engenders psychological displacement activity and denial. Hence the U.S. continues its “energy business as usual”, while the clock ticks away to our destruction.

4. OUR DESPERATE NEED TO CORRECT THE SERIOUSLY FLAWED CLASSICAL ELECTROMAGNETICS (CEM) AND ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING (EE) MODELS

In the past we have used the phrase “scalar electromagnetics” and “scalar interferometry” {13} to describe the longitudinal EM wave transmitters used in these interferometer weapons. Tesla did not originate the term, nor did he originate scalar interferometry, although he had indeed stumbled onto longitudinal EM waves and what can only be called force-free precursor engineering {16}. Quoting Tesla {17}:

“...I showed that the universal medium is a gaseous body in which only longitudinal pulses can be propagated, involving alternating compressions and expansions similar to those produced by sound waves in the air. Thus, a wireless transmitter does not emit Hertz waves which are a myth, but sound waves in the ether, behaving in every respect like those in the air, except that, owing to the great elastic force and extremely small density of the medium, their speed is that of light.”

If one replaces the words “gaseous body” with the modern term “virtual particle flux (active virtual state gas) of the vacuum”, one sees Tesla’s words in agreement with the basic view of the modern active vacuum. Discovery of EM longitudinal waves—which actually comprise all normal EM waves, fields, and potentials {18,19}—leads to a much more fundamental electrodynamics, including sophisticated altering of ordinary EM waves, potentials, and fields to contain hidden internal Whittaker field vectors and their dynamics.

The energy density of the vacuum energy comprises an enormously powerful “scalar potential of the vacuum/spacetime”. As such, this potential (i.e., the vacuum energy flux and Einstein’s 4-space itself) decomposes into Whittaker harmonic sets of bidirectional EM longitudinal phase conjugate wavepairs {18}. The Western classical force-field electrodynamics is a lower group symmetry electrodynamics—i.e., U(1) symmetry EM—which in turn is totally “engineerable from its very beginning” and from its inside out, by an EM of sufficiently higher group symmetry.

Our scientists, engineers, and thermodynamicists have largely failed to grasp the implications of the gauge freedom axiom once asymmetrical regauging is used rather than symmetrical regauging. The first requirement for EFTV systems producing more energy output than the operator alone inputs, is to violate the invariance of the theoretical equations and thus break Lorentz symmetry as well {20}. Further, when one deals with the force-free EM field, potential, and wave as it exists in mass-free space, one does not have to “pay” to furnish the energy necessary to develop powerful working forces a priori. Instead, one only has to deliberately direct nature’s own energy flows, exhibited by the internal Whittaker composition of any EM “static” potential, field, or wave in space. Force is an ongoing effect of a more primary ongoing interaction, not a fundamental cause. By asymmetrically directing the free Whittaker EM energy flows from almost freely established “static” fields and potentials, forces in charged matter can in theory be generated to almost any strength and in any pattern set, including with a chosen internal dynamics.

This is the ultimate “far from equilibrium” thermodynamics approach. In such manner, one uses negative entropy engineering, in total violation of the present flawed Second Law of thermodynamics {21}.

There are no “integrated (observable) forces” in space, since force and force fields exist only in matter. Our fundamental mechanics greatly errs in assuming a separate force in mass-free space, acting upon a separate mass. No such “separate force in mass-free space” exists, or can exist, since mass is a component of force by $F \propto d/dt(mv)$. No mass, no force. As Nobelist Feynman stated:

“Everything we know is only some kind of approximation, therefore, things must be learned only to be unlearned again or, more likely, corrected.”

Speaking about force, Feynman stated {22}:

“...in dealing with force the tacit assumption is always made that the force is equal to zero unless some physical body is present... One of the most important characteristics of force is that it has a material origin...” “If you insist on a precise definition of force, you will never get it!”

So then what kind of electromagnetics exists in force-free space, prior to the presence of mass and thus prior to the formation of forces and force fields assumed by the present CEM/EE? Speaking of the electric field in space from a source positive charge, and the responses of charged masses placed in that field and interacting with it, Feynman stated {23}:

“...the existence of the positive charge, in some sense, distorts, or creates a ‘condition’ in space, so that when we put the negative charge in, it feels a force. This potentiality for producing a force is called an electric field.”

What basically exists in mass-free (nonintegrated) spacetime is the disintegrated and disordered virtual particle flux (VPF) of the vacuum. All the energy is virtual state energy and we may state that the basic “enormous” vacuum energy—if it were coherently integrated—is disintegrated into very tiny virtual bits of energy. An EM field, or potential, or wave in vacuum (in empty space) is actually an organization (ordering) and dynamics imposed upon and in the basic disordered VPF and virtual energy. The fundamental field or potential is thus an “organizing pattern” and must already include negative entropy (to reorder the disordered virtual energy of the vacuum) a priori {24}.

Any persisting (pattern) EM change (organization) in a region of the VPF—once it interacts with observable charged matter—can be and is integrated to observable (quantum) level, producing force and force fields in the interacting charged matter.

There is no observable force a priori until a pattern of virtual change in a region of the vacuum is reacting with observable matter and being integrated to observable quantum level in that interaction. We have explained that integration process elsewhere {23,25}, as demonstrated by every charge in the universe.

5. HOW THE NOTION OF TRANSVERSE EM WAVES IN SPACE ORIGINATED

To explain longitudinal EM waves in the vacuum, and also to explain their detection as transverse waves in a receiving conductor {26}, one merely points out the known severe longitudinal flow restraint on the Drude electrons in a conductor. While the electrons in the Drude gas may individually move at greater velocity, their net flow longitudinally down the conductor is the drift velocity {27} and it is usually on the order of a few centimeters per second in a typical bench circuit with small voltages and currents {28}. The electron longitudinal velocity down the conductor is very much less than the speed of the field or potential down the wire. Hence there exists a very effective gyroscopic restraint of the electron’s spinning gyro axes in the longitudinal or “current flow” direction.

The Drude electrons—due to their continuous spin—act as gyros with longitudinally restrained axes, when the longitudinal EM force kindles (integrates) upon them from the vacuum precursor (force free) field interaction. The longitudinally restrained Drude electron occasionally slips a bit longitudinally, but it is immensely freer to move transversely. So it easily precesses laterally, and the lateral motions can be very large and/or very fast indeed. The intense lateral precession of the “Drude electron as a gyro” quite well demonstrates the longitudinal nature of the causative disturbing precursor agent, with the longitudinal impulse force strongly resisted by the longitudinal restraint force, and with most of the electron's effect force being the resulting gyro-electron precession force at right angles.

Even for electrons in empty space, their inertia together with their spin results in a similar much larger precession at right angles to the disturbing force created upon them by the precursor force-free fields and waves.

The observation of the "lateral electron precession waves" of these precessing Drude electrons in our instruments is the accepted "measurement" of the so-called "transverse EM waves in vacuum". The measurement does not measure the oscillation direction of the causative precursor EM wave in vacuum at all, but only its oscillation effect created in the Drude electron charged matter. There are really no transverse EM waves in mass-free space, albeit we seem to be stuck with such a model since the founders of classical electrodynamics assumed the material ether filling all space, and thus used matter waves (force field waves) in space in their modeling. If there were such a material ether, then there would be matter at every point in space, and there would indeed be transverse charge precession EM waves in this "ethereal but real matter" filling all space. The continued implicit assumption of a material ether, and the continuing erroneous misinterpretation of what our measurement instruments are measuring, has been erroneously propagated to the present day in electrodynamics since at least 1865. Yet the material ether has been falsified for more than a century, since 1887. The false assumption of the material ether and the resulting false assumption of the transverse EM force field wave in space continues even after Drude's fundamental work.

To my knowledge, no other Western analyst has pointed out the connection between longitudinal restraint of the Drude electrons to a slow drift velocity, with the restrained electron's lateral precession in such a case. So we argue that the Drude electron precession proves that the EM waves in matter-free space are longitudinal rather than transverse, precisely as Tesla stated. We pointed out this anomaly in the erroneous "force in empty space" theory for years, to little avail. The Soviets weaponized it.

6. CEM AND EE STILL ERRONEOUSLY ASSUME THE OLD MATERIAL ETHER

The misinterpretation of the detected transverse EM force field waves as actual force-field waves in a material space has been perpetuated erroneously in classical electrodynamics since its inception, and it continues today. The entire U.S. scientific apparatus—including the National Academy of Sciences, National Science Foundation, Department of Energy, national laboratories, and universities—continues to bury its head firmly in the sand, covering itself with the old luminiferous material ether.

Those measured waves in our measuring instruments really are transverse EM force field effect waves in and of the interacting Drude electron material medium in the conductors of the intercepting instrument. But the causative interacting EM field entities in the vacuum are themselves force-free longitudinal EM wave disturbances of the curvature of spacetime (general relativity view) and of the local VPF of the vacuum (particle physics view). Else the theory of gyro precession is voided by every Drude electron and by every transverse EM force field wave detection in Drude electron gases.

The EM force fields so blithely assumed by our present electrodynamics absolutely do not and cannot exist in mass-free space, since force only exists in a mass system in and during its ongoing interaction with the force-free precursor fields. The elemental responses of the charged mass system are at right angles to the disturbing force-free fields. Neither do transverse EM "effect" waves exist in mass-free space, but only in charged mass systems (such as the Drude electron gas) engaged in an ongoing interaction with the longitudinal precursor waves. Here also, the element response of the mass system is at right angles to the force-free fields of the disturbing precursor wave.

The primary, longitudinal force-free fields in massless space are the more fundamental EM fields, as Tesla had realized. Tesla actually began the process later partially captured by Whittaker {18,19}, which was taken to fruition after WW II by Soviet weapon scientists as the new weapons science of energetics. It is what the present author is calling precursor waves, precursor fields, and precursor engineering.

Bearden, Fer-de-Lance, Cheniere Press, Santa Barbara, 2nd edition, 2003, gives a reasonably good overview of the Russian/Soviet/KGB/FSB development and use of what is called energetics weapons. These are superweapons using a new approach for using force-free fields in space prior to their interaction with matter to form force fields in matter. We have also called this new approach "precursor engineering", in order to tie it to conventional Western physics as an extension thereof, and hopefully convince Western scientific leaders to correct the seriously flawed and horribly archaic old classical EM and electrical engineering models taught today in Western universities.

The standard CEM/EE model is so fouled with known major errors that it has become a reflection on the lack of scientific ethics at the highest levels of our scientific community. Our scientific leaders continue to advocate and promulgate such erroneous models, and are directly contributing to the imminent destruction of our nation and people. They continue to ignore the serious flaws of the models as pointed out by eminent scientists such as Feynman, Wheeler, Bunge, Lindsay, Margenau and many others. This cannot be simply shrugged aside and ignored with impunity, if we wish to survive.

Because of its long inaction on this problem, the U.S. scientific community is directly responsible for the presently escalating energy crisis, and it is also partially responsible for the high probability of success of the present 3-year terrorist strategic program leading to our total destruction.

Any high level scientific organization or group involved in electromagnetics that is not discussing and working on the source charge problem—how a charge continuously pours out observable photons in all directions, without any observable energy input—is a scientific organization or group that is participating actively though unwittingly in the coming destruction of our nation and our people.

By the same token, any high level intelligence agency not addressing this seemingly innocuous problem, will have no knowledge of the KGB energetics weapons and capabilities. Any such intelligence group is simply not performing its designated scientific intelligence mission. Sadly, almost all our present high level intelligence agencies have hardly even heard of the problem. They certainly have not considered it to involve winning or losing the asymmetric war against us. Consequently, that war now enfolds and coordinates the international terrorists also, including the hidden key role being played by the Yakuza.

since developed, deployed, and clandestinely being utilized against us.

This paper gives a succinct mathematical development of scalar interferometry, using a higher electrodynamics with O(3) group symmetry.

7. T. E. Bearden and K. D. Moore, Conversion: A Major Strategic Threat, 2003, a 300+ page color slide briefing, covers the bizarre but highly successful mind-engineering aspects. It was produced and delivered pro bono to a three-letter U.S. government agency. No open release of this document has been made by the authors. The document is not classified at all, but it is considered by the authors to be sensitive, since it gives the basis for actual production of a living and functioning human mind in the laboratory, the insertion of that mind in another human being, and alternation (conversion) between the two minds to shift the behavior of the individual back and forth at will.

What is demonstrated in a multiple personality case can be directly produced on the laboratory bench and in any human target anywhere on the planet.

An operational fraction of the mind can be used in conversion techniques also, without total mind switching but only with switching of that fraction involving a certain area or class of behavior.

Thus selected leaders in a societal polarization area, on both extreme ends, can be selectively and repeatedly "temporarily converted" to more extreme behavior and leadership, to push the polarization to greater intensity. That capability will be increasingly exercised over the next two years. The general background of the KGB development of this ability, actual dramatic human test incidents, and the science on which it is based are given in the briefing. The application and role of conversion in the present 3-year coordinated terrorist program to destroy the United States is also included.

8. On April 28, 1997—even as Defense Secretary William Cohen was publicly confirming at a conference in Georgia that "terrorist" electromagnetic superweapons were being used to engineer the weather and climate, trigger volcanoes into eruption, and generate earthquakes—the moments were ticking away for a sudden massive Russian/KGB superweapon attack on May 1 that would have utterly destroyed the U.S. in two hours or less. Eerily, neither Dr. Cohen nor our U.S. intelligence agencies knew what was actually transpiring and coming down upon us, even as the Secretary spoke. Five days before the scheduled attack, we had sent a desperate fax to the prime minister of the supporting nation, pointing out a critical change that had to be made in their most powerful superweapon's command and control system. The change was made and the Soviets were so notified. We waited in agony as the clock ticked until, with two days remaining before May 1 (the scheduled attack date)—and while Secretary of Defense Cohen was speaking in Georgia—that giant armada started standing down, and Armageddon was again avoided by a hair's breadth.

9. Stanislav Lunev (with Ira Winkler), Through the Eyes of the Enemy, Regnery, Washington, 1998 gives a good accounting of the powerful part played by the Russian Mafia in the aftermath of the Soviet Union's economic collapse. Lunev is the highest ranking GRU defector. He is a former Colonel in the GRU, the military counterpart of the KGB. On p. 22-33, he summarizes the Spetznaz capabilities. On p. 22-27, he summarizes Spetznaz use of nuclear weapons already on American soil and in our cities. On p. 26, he gives some of the ways in which the Soviets easily brought nuclear weapons into the U.S. On p. 30 he confirms Russian seismic weapons. Use of EMP weapons is on p. 30-31. Use of very, very low frequency weapons to destroy the human brain, put people into a zombie-like state, and aid in brainwashing is confirmed on p. 31. Lunev was of course not allowed to detail the most highly relevant energetics weapons information. The book as published had to be cleared and approved by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, which would obviously not allow those details to be included.

10. For some details on the Yakuza, see (a) Brian Bremner, "The Samurai Meets the Godfather", Business Week, Jan. 29, 1996. (b)—"How the Mob burned the Banks: The Yakuza is at the center of the $350 billion bad-loan scandal." Business Week, Jan. 29, 1996, p. 42-43, 46-47. This article summarizes the Yakuza involvement in, and cause of, the huge bad-loan banking scandal that occurred in Japan. This rip-off of the Japanese taxpayer enriched the Yakuza. See also (c) Michael Hirsh and Hideko Takayama, "Big Bang or Bust?" Newsweek, Sept. 1, 1997, p. 44-45. The Yakuza rip-off of the Japanese banking system may have been for as much as $600 billion. Our comment is that any high U.S. Japanese official seriously protesting the Yakuza involvement at the time, was in grave danger of being killed.

Sadly, that Subcommittee seems to have known nothing at all about the Soviet superweapons acquired by the Yakuza/Aum Shinrikyo, although that information certainly is known to certain U.S. Government agencies.

16. T. E. Bearden, "Precursor Engineering: Directly Altering Physical Reality," Explore, 13(2), 2004, p. 50-60. Briefly, there are no forces or force fields in mass-free space, but only in mass systems. For electromagnetic systems, what we call "force" is the ongoing interaction of the force-free EM field in space, with charged mass q . That ongoing interaction is identically force. Force is therefore the ongoing effect of a more fundamental ongoing causative interaction of curved space with mass.

The field in space is simply an energy pattern, existing as a change to the virtual particle flux of the vacuum (particle physics view) and a curvature of spacetime (general relativity view). It is also a set of Whittaker energy flows, where by "change in energy" we mean "change in the VPF of the vacuum" and "change in the curvature of spacetime". Accordingly, we may formally define energy as spacetime curvature, and also as change in the VPF of the vacuum.

The precursor EM field is simply the EM field as it exists in mass-free space, prior to the field's interaction with matter to form forces and a force field.

Astoundingly, the precursor EM field—even a "static" field—is also a set of ongoing Whittaker energy flows that continue so long as the field is merely present. So unlimited energy flow itself is free for one's taking and using, from any precursor (force-free) field or potential that is established in space. One merely has to prevent any of the collected energy being used in one's circuit to destroy the source of potential or the source of field. This free energy flow phenomenon actually is the physical mechanism that provokes the gauge freedom axiom, whereby the potential—and thus the potential energy—of any EM system can be freely changed at will, and without doing work.

One can directly engineer very powerful changes in the energy of the causative force-free precursor field, requiring that one furnish only a bit of work for the switching and structuring and controlling of the freely available energy flows comprising that change. Thus one can almost freely produce a very large precursor energy field set prior to forces being involved at all. By subsequently interacting this large precursor energy field set with charged mass in a physical system, extraordinarily large forces and physical effects (work) are then almost freely produced in the mass system. This strongly calls attention to the fact that there are no "conservation of work" laws in physics! There are only conservation of energy laws. Work is simply changing the form of energy; if the "energy changed in form" is received for free, then so can the resulting work be "for free". In the present scientific view, this is negentropic engineering—and it is perfectly permissible by the laws of nature and of physics.

By precursor engineering (i.e., Russian energetics), one can pay a little bit to almost freely engineer very large energy patterns in mass-free space, prior to their subsequent interactions with matter. Then by simply interacting these almost freely developed "pure energy structures and dynamics" with charged matter, very great work (force effects) can be almost freely produced in matter systems, including at great distances. We point out that, by continuing to propagate a hoary old false EM model that still assumes force fields in space (and thereby still assumes the old material ether), our own scientific leaders are blindly and very determinedly withholding the U.S. scientific community from knowledge and use of precursor engineering and therefore from knowledge and use of negative entropy engineering. Since the KGB weapon scientists are using precursor engineering (energetics) in superweapons of great power, the ignorance of our scientific leaders is leading the United States directly into Armageddon where we can be utterly destroyed.

21. Elsewhere we have formally corrected the present Second Law of thermodynamics, which is an oxymoron implicitly assuming its contradiction has first occurred (to move the system away from equilibrium, thus lowering its entropy—a negative entropy operation). The old Second Law deliberately does not account its assumed preceding negative entropy operation. It then accounts only for the decay of the out-of-equilibrium system back to equilibrium—the state of maximum entropy. That is why it prescribes only the production of increasing positive entropy.

So as presently written... the Second Law assumes—but deliberately does not account for—its own contradiction, and thus formally is a logical oxymoron and always has been. The old Second Law is replaced by the new law, which now also accounts for the previously unaccounted negative entropy precursor operation.

Very often, this overall new Second Law is applied in systems in two serial phases: first an excitation phase where the system departs from equilibrium via the new half-law, followed by the excited system's decay back to equilibrium by the old half-law. The new overall Second Law is consistent with experiment, removes the known thermodynamic contradictions to the old Second Law (given in Kondepudi and Prigogine, Modern Thermodynamics, Wiley, 1999, p. 459), includes statistical fluctuations in an equilibrium including their initial negative entropy halves; removes the logical error in the old law's statement, and now includes negative entropy engineering (precursor engineering, or what the Soviet KGB weapon scientists dubbed "energetics"). Since every charge and dipole in the universe explicitly demonstrates the new Second Law, and formally falsifies the present old Second Law, then the new or corrected Second Law is also experimentally established once one studies the "source charge problem" and its broken symmetry solution.

With the U.S. locked in a quagmire in Iraq for the foreseeable future, it is to be hoped there can be a diplomatic resolution of the global problems occasioned by the "illegal" (according to Kofi Annan of the UN) aggression. Americans are generally aware through the mainstream media that over 1,000 U.S. soldiers have lost their lives in Iraq but the overall toll is far, far greater. Before continuing the discussion of the military casualties, however, we review a startling report estimating the civilian toll.

CIVILIAN DEATH TOLL IN IRAQ EXCEEDS 100,000

NewScientist.com, 10/29/04

By Shaoni Bhattacharya

The invasion of Iraq in March 2003 by coalition forces has led to the death of at least 100,000 civilians, reveals the first scientific study to examine the issue.

The majority of these deaths, which are in addition [to] those normally expected from natural causes, illness and accidents, have been among women and children, finds the study, released early by The Lancet on Thursday.

The most common cause of death is as a direct result of violence, mostly caused by coalition air strikes, reveals the study of almost 1000 households scattered across Iraq. And the risk of violent death ... was 58 times greater than before the war...

The figure of 100,000—estimated by extrapolating the surveyed households' death toll to the whole population—is based on "conservative assumptions", notes Les Roberts at Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health, Baltimore, U.S., who led the study.

That estimate excludes Falluja, a hotspot for violence. If the data from this town is included, the study points to about 200,000 excess deaths since the outbreak of war....

U.S. military losses are said to be just over 1,000 troops but this is very misleading. As with Gulf War One, the true loss of life cannot be measured until subsequent lingering deaths are factored in. It is now generally acknowledged that the anthrax vaccine given in 1991 is at the root of Gulf War Illness, which has claimed many lives in the intervening years.

In this next report, we read of Italian military losses due to the singular cause of depleted-uranium poisoning—which has not been covered in the press in the United States. And if the Italians have losses on this order of magnitude, it is hard to imagine the effects on U.S. forces.

DEPLETED URANIUM: OBSERVATORY

LAMENTS DENIAL

Agencia Giornalistica Italiano, 10/19/04

According to the Italian Military Health Observatory a total of 109 Italian soldiers have died thus far due to exposure to depleted uranium. The observatory stressed the fact that 41 percent of active personnel casualties relate to disease. According to Domenico Leggiero at the Military Health Observatory, "The total of 109 casualties exceeds the total number of persons dying as a consequence of road accidents. Anyone denying the significance of such data is purely acting out of ill faith, and the truth is that our soldiers are dying out there due to a lack of adequate protection against depleted uranium." Leggiero pointed out the fact that the Senate has to date failed to establish a probe committee on this matter: "...it is proof of a worrying lack of oversight on matters which are frankly dramatic." Members of the Observatory have petitioned a urgent hearing "in order to study effective prevention and safeguard measures aimed at reducing the death-toll amongst our serving soldiers".

In addition to the acknowledged loss of life by regular U.S. forces, it should also be noted that in many cases "contractors" have borne the brunt of things and it has been estimated that over 18,000 of them are in the field at the present time. Loss of life among "contractors" (mercenaries, many of whom served their country in other conflicts) is not part of the acknowledged totals.

Next: Given Tom Bearden's outlay of information relating to disease generation by means of frequency induction, along with the longstanding NWO agenda for population reduction, the following story might be less wild-eyed than it first appears.

RUSSIAN EXPERT SAYS FLU EPIDEMIC MAY KILL OVER ONE BILLION THIS YEAR

MosNews, 10/28/04

The world is on the brink of a major flu epidemic—one that could claim more than a billion lives, the head of the Russian Virology Institute, Academician Dmitry Lvov said at a press conference organized by the RIA-Novosti news agency on Thursday.

"Up to one billion people could die around the whole world in six months," Lvov said. The expert did not give a timeframe for the epidemic, but said that it is highly probable that it will start this year. "We are half a step away from a worldwide pandemic catastrophe," the academic said.

The Russian expert said that U.S. researchers possessed data suggesting that if a pandemic hits, up to 700,000 people will fall ill in the United States...

The academician said the pandemic was most likely to be caused by the so-called bird flu stem. "The death rate among those who contract this type of flu reaches 70 percent," Lvov said...

RUSSIA SENDS ELECTION CHIEF TO MONITOR U.S. VOTE

AFP, 10/29/04

Top Russian electoral officials will be in the United States to help monitor the presidential election there, Interfax news agency said Saturday. Alexander Veshnyakov, chairman of the Russian central elections commission, arrives in the United States Saturday and will be among those monitoring the voting process and vote counting in Los Angeles on Tuesday, the report said. Viktor Yashchenko, another senior Russian election official, will also travel to the United States to examine the use of electronic devices to facilitate the voting process, Interfax said, quoting a commission spokesman.

The 2000 US presidential elections were marred by charges of extraordinary irregularities in voting in a number of U.S. states.

RICHARD ARMITAGE LAYS WREATH TO RIZHSKAYA METRO STATION TRAGEDY SITE

RIA Novosti, 10/27/04

Deputy U.S. Secretary of State Richard Armitage laid a wreath to the Rizhskaya metro station terrorist act site in Moscow, where an explosion sounded on August 31, which killed 10 and wounded over 50 people.

"This evening I came here to honor the memory of all Russian citizens who died here, as well as those killed in other horrible events that happened in Russia," said Mr. Armitage.

"The whole civilized world witnessed the events that happened in Beslan. The citizens of my country cry for what happened there together with you," he added.

Mr. Armitage said he would discuss with Deputy Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Kislyakov ways to fight our common enemy.

U.S. citizens will stand shoulder by shoulder with Russian citizens to put an end to this evil, he said.

The deputy secretary of state is in Russia on a working visit. Within the framework of his stay in Moscow, he will meet with Russian Security Council Secretary Igor Ivanov.

SUNSPOTS MORE ACTIVE THAN FOR 8000 YEARS

NewScientist.com, 10/27/04

By Maggie McKee

The Sun has been more active in the last 70 years than it has for the previous 8000, according to an analysis of tree rings dating back 11,400 years. But researchers say its recent bout of hyperactivity does not account for the rapidly rising temperatures recorded on Earth over the last three decades.

Sunspots are surface concentrations of the star's magnetic field and the more there are, the more energy the Sun is emitting...

Scientists have tried to reconstruct previous sunspot activity using ice cores and tree rings. These contain isotopes, such as carbon-14 and beryllium-10, created when high-energy particles from deep space, called cosmic rays, slam into the atmosphere. Fewer cosmic rays reach the Earth when the Sun is very active, because the charged particles from the Sun deflect them.

Now, a team led by Sami Solanki of the Max-Planck-Institut fur Sonnensystemforschung in Katlenburg-Lindau, Germany, has analysed records of trees preserved in riverbeds and bogs that date back 11,400 years to produce the most precise study yet of sunspot history...

NEVADA CORPORATIONS:

Foreign Nationals And Corporate Citizenship

Budget's "Tip of the Week" #10:Benefits for Foreign Nationals

As a foreign national citizen, when you set up a Nevada corporation you are establishing an entity resident in the United States, with all of the benefits that accrue to that status. And no, you do not ever have to set foot in the country to do this. You can even set up a virtual office presence, with a telephone answered in the name of the corporation to present a different face to the new global community!

A Nevada corporation can provide services for a business in a foreign jurisdiction and receive its income in Nevada, where is taxed at the federal rate of just 15% on the first $50,000 of net income. In some cases, that advantage alone is sufficient reason to take this step IMMEDIATELY. In the long run, however, you will find that Nevada's "haven" status will serve you in many other ways as well.

Coming to America

The United States Immigration Service has in recent years relaxed requirements for many high-tech workers, in recognition of the global demand for skilled workers in this field. H1-B visa status—which applies to entertainers, athletes and those who otherwise possess unique skills—is easier to obtain now than at any time in the past. Wouldn't it be nice if an American company needed you badly enough that it would help you to qualify for an H1-B visa? You just might have a LOT to offer this country!

H1-B visa quotas are often filled quickly but there is another type of visa that might be of interest to any foreign national working in a management capacity. An executive or manager of a foreign corporation affiliated with a U.S. corporation can qualify for an L visa, if the following requirements are fulfilled:

1. The foreign corporation must be affiliated with the American (Nevada) corporation and should have assets in excess of $500,000.

2. Document that you are in fact an executive or manager of a foreign corporation affiliated with the U.S. corporation.

2. Document that the U.S. corporate affiliate is in need of someone with your skills and abilities. (An advertisement demanding a special combination of skills and abilities that just happen to match your own will help a lot.)

3. Document your skills and abilities relative to the U.S. corporation's needs.

In addition to the L-type visa, foreign nationals may be able to avail themselves of E-type visas, which typically involve investment in U.S. businesses. We suggest you consult with an immigration attorney.
