Man Refuses to Change But Major Change Imminent

11/23/05—#1 (19-99)

RE: ANY JOURNEY DESTINATION IS FAR MORE
EASILY ACHIEVED WITH A "MAP"—GCH/d

SEQUENCE OF PREPARING FOR A JOURNEY
AND MORE SPECIFICALLY, "LIFE'S" JOURNEY

Do you have a purpose?

Yes, of course, YOU DO! That is a universal "no-brainer" even if it is to get up in the morning and have your coffee, tea or complain.

Is each purpose, and journey, but a MENTAL exercise?

Yes, and all else follows.

If your intention for the day is to only drift around, stroll about the shops and/or sit on your rear on the couch in front of your brain-box—it requires a bit of reasonable acknowledgement that you have to have some order and structure to your activities.

Perhaps many would choose to just stay in the bed and never mind the other drains on living such as the boring tasks of getting yourself awake, dressing or making a decision to "not" dress, go to the toilet and consider whether or not you will move on, eat, drink and/or speak to "Mary" as in "Mary Doe" by any name. Perhaps it is "John" you must consider. Lucky you if nobody demands attention other than self? Oops, you are the most difficult to please of all "others". WHAT DO YOU SAY TO SELF?

What you say to self is the very most important one communication absolutely mandatory. So, what do you say to SELF?

Is this trivial nonsense?

NO, IT IS THE MOST IMPORTANT THING YOU COULD DO IN YOUR CYCLE OF LIFE'S DAYS AND NIGHTS—TO CONSIDER WHAT IN THE WORLD YOU ARE "DOING"!

Some of "my" acquaintances will first thing in the morning think about whether our teacher is offering lessons, hard knocks, peace in the valley or solutions to these incredible decisions laying in wait to ambush you; we call it "coup you" (koo-u).

Now, IF you truly wish to move forward—STOP BLAMING YOURSELF OR ANYONE "ELSE". Get as bitter, mean and "had" as you wish but when the rocks are again laying motionless on the ground—WHO IS ACTUALLY RESPONSIBLE FOR YOUR PLIGHT; GOOD OR BAD?

If, for instance, you are suffering from some disquieting, or even deadly, disease of some kind—WHY? If you are "suffering" in the moment then make every effort to alleviate pain so that you can again "think" of other possibilities regarding the problem itself.

We can talk about "bird flu" until there are no longer any birds—but it will solve nothing and more especially WHAT YOU WILL EAT! Everything—EVERYTHING—is in the "CHAIN-OF-LIFE".

If you get rid of all your fowl you get rid of your eggs, your meat, your Kentucky Fried Chicken, chicken gravy, poultry raising industry, poultry feed producers and poultry house construction crews, income, taxes, fertilizer for crops and gardens and METHANE which could run your vehicles when the gasoline is gone. This is but to name a few.

In a world of starving people this “Bird Flu” has so many possibilities for bringing you “suckers” under control that Satan is in glee overload. You can actually make electricity using chicken poop! One goose can sooner or later produce enough poop to shock an elephant—or garden keepers and pond tenders. So, the “kill ‘em all”-“KILL ‘EM ALL” is somewhat stupid even on the face of it.

Now, however, how do you TREAT the problem? Oh yes indeed, Tamiflu!

Tamiflu is now proven to be an irrational drug and people are dying just to try and keep from dying. Oh well. You will also find that more people GET THE INFECTION from the vaccines than ever considered possible from random chance.

Therefore, should you vaccinate and give Tamiflu to the poultry? Well, the places where this approach is used we now find whole flocks of previously healthy fowl dropping dead—from the vaccine. Then, the entire flock must be “culled” (a good sensitive word for genocide and MURDER).

Oh well, it works as well for people as it does for chickens; what the heck?

We note that General Motors in Detroit, Michigan is going to lay off 30,000 workers in December (2005—oops). Will that put only 30,000 people out of work? Don’t you just wish!? The chain of damage is compounded throughout the industry and on around the globe. Ah indeed, those good old Free Trade Agreements!

Too late smart?

It remains to be seen for we still are confronted with the blamers and finger-pointing adversaries who diligently work constantly to STOP anything we make an effort to accomplish. YOUR WORLD IS IN SHUT-DOWN AND UNDER CONTROL OF THE MOST VICIOUS OF ALL MASTERS AND YOU CAN’T SEEM TO UNDERSTAND HOW IT IS YOU THAT ALLOWS IT, HELPS IT AND INSISTS ON ITS FULL CONTINUATION.

We can, AND HAVE, given you person by person, structure by structure, operation by operation the who, what, where, when, how and solution to the, for instance, New World Order. We will continue on in the old presentations but at some point it makes sense to recognize the problem and do SOMETHING different that works.

Can “we” do it? Well, fortunately for you, we keep right on making an effort to chip through the walls but even our own people get bored, impatient and simply point and blame—at us for not hurrying in the very face of, say, a ration of ten against 6-7 BILLION. These are interesting “odds” for any handicapper. However, STEP by STEP with tired feet and broken toes, we make headway within the laws of God AND politicians and creep right on even getting a sustaining frozen chicken or two. We have a few who help us but mostly everyone just waits and hopes we hit disaster and certainly some just hope for death or incarceration of our beings so they can shout their, “I told you so.” While it is they who have put barriers and burned bridges. So, we work in foreign territory where we also KNOW the backup “collateral” is supposed to be vaulted. Meanwhile, back “at home”, you will continue to lose 30,000 plus a hundredfold every month you remain as you are.

Will GOD stop the war in Iraq? GOD DIDN’T START, NOR DID HE CAUSE, A WAR IN IRAQ OR ANYWHERE ELSE. This means that sacrificing all the chickens in the world to GOD will do nothing other than starve you PEOPLE to death.

YOU WANT REVELATION? THIS IS IT! YOU ARE HEADED FOR DEAD DUCKVILLE AT TOP “FAST LANE” SPEED, TRAVELERS.

“NATURAL” PHENOMENON

The next revelation you want is just what is happening to the natural world and all those nice trees and animals—and stability of a planet.

YOU HAVE ALMOST NONE OF ANY OF THOSE THINGS LEFT FOR THE GREEDY HAVE GOBBLED THEM UP AND NOW, “YOU” PAY THE PIPER FOR THE FLUTE TUNE TO WHICH YOU HAVE MARCHED, DANCED AND DESTROYED ONE ANOTHER—MOST URGENTLY, YOUR CHILDREN.

So be it for choices are YOURS. I have “mine” which includes MANY of you but I have no prerogative to interfere with YOURS. I can only point out the potentials and oncoming run-away trains on your track but I am not to even pluck you off if being there is your CHOICE.

Yes, I did say that I had “come, gone, am and so and thus...” to prepare a place for you?

I have, we are, and we will keep right on preparing while you choose to sleep or help—but no, there is NO SAVIOR for that it a LIE. So, “too late smart”? Indeed, for most of the manifest beings on your globe.

You have oncoming disasters unimagined but of which we have told you, proven the facts and even have shared how to survive the incidents—even to the photon-belt strikes now coming upon you. How many of you still know where to get your Mylar sheets to cover your windows to keep out the certain BLINDING light on that day it hits? Thought not!

Is this “my” fault that you have forgotten, never bothered, or can’t remember where in heck you stuck that old stuff? I told you over and over and over again—exactly how it would be and given you some idea of urgency—but I never give exact times or dates to be manipulated by our adversaries. We are watching the cycles roll around, however, and lo and behold—the books lay gathering dust, the foods stashed have spoiled for the lack of attention and now it is, AGAIN, somehow OUR FAULT.

VK Durham, for instance, claims to have had quintillions of dollars available since 1990 compounded at 44% per year. How much is that by now? OK, take even half or a quarter or a tenth—and WHERE IS IT, PILGRIM?

WE HAVE DONE NOTHING WITH HER “ANYTHING”! So, what does that tell you inquiring minds?

Our program is logical, reasonable, “limited” by its ability to have full supporting collateral—AND hurts no one, not even the nasty bankers. And yet, full-out efforts to disinform and bring damage are constant and continual.

WE WANT NO ATTENTION and therefore labeling us a “cult” of some idiotic kind is a bit STUPID in the face of it.

But, yes indeed, we are, even in this place, realizing that we must prepare “a place” for some of you, our team. This place from which we work is near the equator and although it is populated with volcanoes and in the line of other heinous things of natural perception, it is also the place where preparations were laid FOR YOU for many, many years gone and also recently within your historical realization. The rest is up to you for don’t think we are going to paddle this boat over and abduct you to your ideal island in Southeast Asia. But, as we move on and continue to make arrangements and have success we WILL HAVE NOT ONLY A PLACE BUT ALSO PLENTY OF AVAILABLE WORK.

If you read the information NOW WITHOUT DEBATE, the U.S., you will find, is under total control of the elements who planned the New World UNDER

THEM and it is very “late” to reverse the train in full motion ahead and bearing down on you. All individual distractions are only PROOF of the facts of how it is.

Will we snatch those out of Ida Grove, Iowa, from the path of the next tornadoes or flit them to our nest in Paradise? No, they will do whatever they do and so be it. VK, for instance, would truly be unhappy in our company. Everyone who has blasted us or damaged us, intentionally or otherwise, will be uncomfortable in our company. You cannot MAKE “DEMANDS” of GOD, good buddies, and that includes ANY GOD you so choose. When you make honorable, credible demands on SELF—without ego or selfishness—YOU HAVE THE EAR OF GOD!

IF THE PRIOR STATEMENT IS THE ONLY THING YOU GAIN FROM THIS MESSAGE IT WILL BE THE MOST IMPORTANT LESSON YOU SHALL “EVER” LEARN.

That old “except through ‘me’ shall you get into heaven...” is interesting for you might well consider who is the “me” to be considered. Jesus? Isu? Immanuel? Adam? Eve?—WHO IS “THE” “ME”? Whomever it might be in your consideration there will be the required meeting of behavior guidelines to get to where you obviously are hoping to be going after you are saved. CHRIST (the very spirit of Truth) is the guideline and it is NOT A PERSON—it is a STATE OF BEING. So much for religions that promise you goodies in exchange for evil. I, for instance, can give you absolution and it will mean NOTHING!

What you want from “me”, friends, is to solve ALL of your problems you consider annoying to you, do it NOW and abundantly supply you with what you failed to EARN along your otherwise journey. It is a fact and if I don’t get it done to your timely demands, you forsake those who are continuing to work for YOUR miracles. So be it for we will keep on “trying” and that may well result exactly where you perceive as “nowhere”.

I can assure you that every civilization that comes after the great cataclysmic events comes with the adversary (to freedom, righteousness and goodness) presenting in different ways—BUT THE CONCEPT OF HOW TO DESTROY YOU AND GAIN FULL POWER OVER YOU AND YOUR SOULS DOES NOT CHANGE ONE IOTA. As man grows out of the caves and into some recognition of knowledge and capability of the moment, any moment, the methods of gaining control are THE SAME on any list or protocol or manifesto. Terror simply is one tool and yes, YOU ARE NOT ONLY NEXT—YOU ARE “IN IT”!

You certainly DO NOT need “believe” in “me” for that is truly your prerogative but it might well behoove you to pay attention to some of the things we share so that you can remain a bit informed. It would be nice, for instance, to have been informed enough to stay out of the New York area of the Trade Center on 9-11.

Your currency is going to collapse only when it is appropriate for the use of the “controllers” and that is why we use GOLD, for gold has value after the paper pictures have long gone. Until then you use what you have available and within the system that keeps you functional and OUT OF JAIL. Dead people are of little value to anyone and “martyrs” are boring and foolish. However, when “life” is worse than “death” you can expect more and more suicides. Only the CHOICE of death is at point.

Most of you only need “attitude” adjustments to realize your wonderful gifts. You can accept and use them or blow them off and be miserable. I cannot do other than suggest that you consider the possibilities of dwelling in negative nonsense.

MOST of the problems with the global weather circumstances are resulting from several very natural evolutionary and quite scientific presentations.

THE GLOBE CALLED EARTH IS CHANGING, AS WE WRITE, ITS MAGNETIC POLES. The magnetic poles shift every so many eons and you are IN IT. That means a LOT but your nice little compass will continue to point NORTH while the direction may actually BE SOUTH.

The magnetic shifts CHANGE EVERYTHING. Moreover, the “users” can now manufacture what they choose with manipulative advantage for the games they wish to play. Melt those ice poles and you have TROUBLE, don’t you know?

You WILL have a photon belt phenomenon and that is just the fact, “ma’am”. It doesn’t take a detective Friday to determine that SCIENTIFIC FACT. You revolve around your sun, don’t you know, and no, your world is NOT “flat”; it is just that most of you remain and choose to live in “Flat-land”.

Almost all of you will wait until choices are upon you. By this I example the people who jumped out of the high floors of the Trade Center buildings. They made choices whether to burn to death or quickly perish by jumping. Which will YOU do? Will you jump to your death or burn to your death? WHY DO YOU CHOOSE TO DO EITHER?

Will there be room for YOU in Paradise Asia? Of course, silly people. The citizens from here want to go to the “heavenly” United States and elsewhere—so, just exchange while they get what they seem to think they need and you find interesting value and expression in a place where there is ACTUAL hope and potential for a bit of freedom and balance if we do our work and do it RIGHT.

There are over 3-million Filipinos IN THE U.S. ALONE! That leaves places for at least 3-million “visitors” to “here”.

Won’t the Filipinos want to “go home”? No, they want their families mostly OUT of here and over to them—illegally or otherwise. The controllers know what to do with those newly acquired servants. Especially the already relocated Filipinos know what to do with their accustomed “slaves”.

Perhaps you too might like to live on the 30th floor of a high-rise in Manila? We have a global ALLIANCE—not a take-over plan. We, further, have a backup support system to work in full conjunction and it, too, is but a FOUNDATION that has no stockholders but every citizen is a SHARE HOLDER.

HOWEVER, THE EXPECTATION IS TO HAVE “US” DO IT ALL AND THAT WILL NEVER HAPPEN!

We simply have to keep informing, meeting and conferring and moving until this “train” gets rolling and that is called overcoming the inertia by ERTIA. Even that is scientific in its full definition.

Every day brings confirmation that I have given you correct concepts from the working and control of central banks to who the controllers are or might be. Avoid the TRAPS and USE the tools that move you forward and you will be FINE. Keep your profiles low, your bodies in security, wisdom in your speakings and observations and above all, check out your own attitudes, presentation and just WHOM DO YOU BLAME FOR YOUR PLIGHT? HOW OFTEN DO YOU REALLY THANK GOD FOR THE GIFTS OFFERED YOU AND WHICH YOU ACCEPTED? SOMETIMES THOSE WERE AND ARE THE VERY GIFTS OF “LIFE” ITSELF.

Know that our team members bleed, hurt and realize pain and sometimes despair as the days pass and the rocks are thrown—mostly into the very workings of the program itself as individuals feel somehow slighted. We too must wonder “WHY”? We also have to occasionally confront the “Why go on?” Our people too would like to simply “live out life” as best they can in whatever comes along. That, however, does not fulfill PURPOSE or TRUTH of being so we tread on toting that bale and pulling that barge up “old man river”. So, it is, further, against the current but know that it is certainly easy to drift downstream while accomplishment is usually UPSTREAM in the face of the other “DOWNSTREAMERS”. A downstreamer may well reach his destination more quickly but will it be the REWARD or OUTCOME desired after all is said and done?

We have to push on upstream THROUGH those grabbers, corrupted and greedy drifters who feed off our beings as do parasites of the worst kind. THEY FEED OFF OUR SOULS and not “just” our bodies.

And yes, remember: When you are in the middle of that deep, deep river that you, as a human mortal, have two choices—sink or swim. Which will YOU do?

Each paper is now so filled with information of such urgent value as to cause me to wish to not take the space or time for your boosters. HOWEVER, MAN DOES NOT LIVE BY BREAD ALONE BUT YOU CAN SURVIVE FOR A VERY LONG TIME IF YOU ADD A FEW LENTILS.

Christmas Comes with a Bang!

11/14/05—#1 (19-90)

Mon., November 14, 2005 9:32 A.M. YR 19, DAY 90
Manila, Philippines

RE: THE CHRISTMAS PUSH COMES HERE WITH A BIG BANG! HOWEVER, IT IS QUITE DEPRESSING TO EVERYONE, ESPECIALLY MERCHANTS—DJE

FIRST NOTE THE PROTOCOLS OF ZION

The Protocols of Zion are being noticed around everywhere and of course there comes the push to silence any release of the document in point. They are noted to be removed from Internet sites which have always carried them so, please, we have no input into that matter while reading with interest the information as available on the topic and also living with our own experience from full observation after having received our own share of abuse over the topic.

However, as the trial of Mr. Zundel takes center stage as being prosecuted and after incarceration for years it becomes a focus worthy of attention. Mr. Zundel simply opined that the Holocaust could not have happened AS PRESENTED. However, further, it was that laws were passed whereby no one could even speak as a “revisionist” and any who did so were labeled by the Jews as “heretics”. Worse yet, Zundel is a Canadian but is being tried, of all outrageous things, in Germany and we do nothing for there appears to be nothing available to do about it. When we miss the moment of ability to impact something or change something and DO NOT, we end up paying the price in further loss of freedom and that even of speech, press or THOUGHT EXPRESSED. AND NOW WE HAVE BIRD FLU PANDEMICS THAT “CANNOT BE AS PRESENTED” BUT YOU WILL FIND “PROTOCOLS” ESTABLISHING THE LOSS OF FREEDOMS WHILE CONTROL WILL BECOME THE ACTION OF THE MOMENT.

We have run the Protocols several times through the years up to now and would be happy to run them again, in full or in partial summary version but we don’t have them now. It seems as though we lost much when we had to restructure files from our computer dropout and changeover. I’m sure we can get the information from many of you, i.e., John or Ron, etc. [Now, if only there was sufficient space available in the paper to re-run them!] It certainly does seem timely to address the reality of their existence although we take no political stand on the material other than to comment, our opinion only, that certainly they were established as VALID documents from the Elders of Zion and the Communist and Nazi manifestoes seemed to be based 100% on the protocols themselves. They are simply a rundown of the manifesto as would be presented by THE NEW WORLD ORDER which is now in place globally while the old debris is being cleared away to establish a rule by control and force as it unfolds.

If we can believe any Biblical writings of the HOLY LAND, inclusive of the BIBLE of Christian Faith—WE ARE ALL JEWS! Worse yet for we narrow judges, Islam is based mostly on a “CHRISTIAN” set of rules and teachings.

I personally am faced with the conclusion that the WAR OF THE SOULS is truly IN HEAVEN between the so-called Light and Negative Forces. We can only tell TRUTH and offer that which we are given and that to the best of our capability and commitment. And no, I do not believe that some invisible God, good or bad (god), is going to save my egotistical attitudes “just because”. I must serve within the laws as handed down for us as guidelines even if we don’t think them to be either rational or worthy. However, we will utilize every worthy opportunity and asset under those laws as presented.

VK Durham has tried every sinister and deceitful way she can conjure to get us listed as bad dudes, terrorists and supporters of terrorists to the point of looking as absurd as she has become and it is annoying for the delays and misleading of otherwise competent and worthy journalists and website personalities. So be it.

CHRISTMAS

Here in the city of Makati there has been issued a “no city decoration for lighted Christmas displays”. However, here in Ayalaland and Glorietta Center territory we fare better. Ayalaland had already started hanging their decorations on the Avenue/Boulevard and thus continued to finish—and it is beautiful as usual only without the side-street, million-lights displays.

Part of the denial of displays might well be that this year, as other years, the “fake” lights from unapproved sources—and which usually burn down whole villages—are being confiscated and therefore there is a shortage of same. It is probably a good thing.

We were mourning the absence of fireworks on weekends as that is our ONLY Christmas in this house. However, last night just before 8:00 pm we experienced the loudest explosion we have yet experienced here, bombs and all, and the adrenalin pumped, the heart pounded but lo and behold, the sky lit into glorious red, green, blue, gold and sparkled thusly for some quarter of an hour. It seems the Ayalas kicked off the season a bit early to make up for the cutbacks otherwise. It had gotten to be a family special-time for kiddies on Holiday weekends and Ayala decided to bear the cost in spite of an expected bad commercial season this year as they have done very well. I for one am grateful and am quite appreciative of the commercial adventures of our leading “rich” people who share. It is easy to throw stones but I note that not one person I know wants to be without electricity, running water, sewers and/or ability to have computers and other things of comfort and technology.

I can also point out that in this place the major business players, except for BANKERS associated with the Federal Reserve, IMF-WB and the controlled Administration are not Jewish and none we encounter even claim to have association with Zionists. They are mostly Chinese Taipans and the only other parties who could remotely qualify as fitting into the “Jewish” consideration are the Zobels of Ayala who are from the Spanish aristocracy. Other exceptional business people are Filipinos. The rot has certainly imported itself into this place and yes, it makes our job more difficult but no, not impossible. Meanwhile, the longer we stay the better we are accepted and respected. If I have “pride” at all, it is because of this very FACT.

I am amused as VK says that somehow INTERPOL was ordered “not to investigate”, whether that means us or other places of Russell’s so-called (by her) activities. They have INVESTIGATED us on at least two occasions. The head of INTERPOL here is a man by the name of Diaz, a captain with the National Bureau of Investigation here in the Philippines. We are sure the FBI serves around the U.S. Embassy and have already visited us from our very early days here with agents right in our same hotel. How good it is to be clean, clear and have good support and no, it is NOT “cover up” or some “protection racket”. It is honor, integrity and playing no clandestine or “funny” games that allow our ongoing comfort. We are confident that if any of the really “Big” players wanted us out it would have been accomplished long ago and, probably, far away.

We are comforted to realize that every guard and security person around these parts KNOWS US. We go to the grocery store across the street and immediately “someone”, sturdy and male, accompanies us while we shop. If anyone else tags along in any strange way whatsoever, a security person quietly shows up and that ends the potential of even someone just wanting to meet us. In this land of growing “hate the white people from anywhere” and kidnapping for ransom, it is comforting. Especially all the “guard dogs” around know us and lick us to death and of course I kiss them to death while down on the sidewalk.

Perhaps these are the things that give endurance through the plagues of interminable delays. Everyone who comes to call wants a paper and nobody even suggests we are Muslims, False Muslims or anti-Jewish (although one did “hear” gossip that we are Jewish, or maybe even Roman Catholic which here is basically equated to “Christian”). Neither does anyone ask for Princess Rani, that Muslim Lady of 21 aliases or that supernatural National Security Agency agent. Nobody even asks us to be crucified on Easter, which is a going thing here in Paradise. Only VK holds out for Saudi beheading of our personal selves because it appears she doesn’t like us very much. It is quite interesting to us that she should bite (well, try to chew to bits) the very hands of the ONLY people who supported her very living person. And yes indeed, Ekkers are not the only ones from our acquaintance who helped her. Some did even more than did we. Further, we will keep it all carefully documented and entered into the legal records as recorded in Clark County, Nevada, where registered.

MORE CHRISTMAS

We just now received a call from next door and Ng (“Neng”) said Gilarmi was extended to the end of January. That is celebration time, for it means that they will once again at least put up our local Christmas tree and give us a place to meet for the beginning-year necessary conferences. GOD IS GOOD! This is certainly a wonderful omen for us as we do have some things of great potential working there within that circle of hotel owners and would-be builders. Say a little prayer for our side because these people could help us get something moving which could get us into that central bank for inventory. That very news just gave “me” my most wished-for Christmas present. If “they” move on with extensions into the New Year there is hope of keeping the hotel standing until other things can be accomplished.

It seems that there was a Japanese consortium going to help those owners of what we call the “Discovery” or with us, “Gilarmi”, chain but pulled out recently because of the terrible business atmosphere in the Philippines. It is even worse than imagined as the Administration is even selling off major holdings in the major businesses to meet current debt payments so GMA can run up some more debts. It IS that bad! Moreover, I am sure that we don’t know the half of it.

The obvious thing that most people miss in the confusion is that by selling off everything to pay today’s bills, which can’t be even nearly done, there is NOTHING remaining to pay more ever again or have for current running expenses. It is called collapse of a nation.

How in the world did we all end up “here”? And what have we done to our children to come? In fact, where have all our children gone? They have grown into elders while we wondered at not being able to rock our grandbabies now great-grandbabies.

How hard do we REALLY “try” to serve them and is it a favor to spoil their own wishes to just get along and thrive?

I guess, in the bottom line it is somewhat summed up in a heartfelt and received message from Mark Rowsell and ended our concern about his well-being in Guatemala.

He didn’t mention the storms as he was preoccupied with the arrival of his and Vivian’s baby boy, Jeremiah, born on Friday, October 21, 2005. A tad early at 36 weeks but obviously doing well as are the parents. Since the announcement he has sent pictures as enraptured parents are prone to do to us old folk at the other end of the spectrum. All are beautiful and certainly we cherish each new life with the hope it brings.

Mark also sent a writing which I am sure has something to do with the miracle of being a part of new life and in consideration of the old in which we can bless our teachers and share appreciation for any inspiration from which we can gather the fuel to move on.

I will ask that the writing be attached at the end of this for it is a gift for this old soul and from which we find it a bit easier to share whatever gifts we are allowed on this journey.

Mark and Vivian spent months and months with Baba in India these past two years and it makes our own trek worthwhile as he gives such warm gratitude and claims inspiration from our own GCH.

As Mark ends his writing with “Remember the way back home!” I am caused to stop and remember that no matter where we are or where we established what we call “home” it really has little meaning. We have to remember the way HOME and we have to do so in responsibility of the journey itself. Home must be where we ARE and the Big Home is beyond the “things” manifest. It makes it easy to let go of the perceived losses along the way.

Then we remember some remarkable moments in the journey come before as Ellen visits with family with one who hangs on, throws or jumps on everything around and reminders run wild.

I remember a small little boy, Dave, our grandson whom we took camping and one trip out to the wind-arm for a few days in the motor coach. By 6:30 in the morning he was up and doing swing-outs from the upper bunk. This continued until we were all “up” for the hourly feeding and more run, jump, non-stop conversation, etc. Finally, in total frustration I put him on the ground outside the coach door and told him to run about and use up that energy.

Exactly one minute later he was back, announced he had used up all the “nergery” and was right back to swinging on the bunk. That was now over a quarter century ago and surely enough it is only “memories” we have to hold and treasure so we had best make the experiences worth the bother instead of mere regrets. We had best consider and treat THIS MOMENT as the best of all, however, for it, after all, is all we really have while we make new memories to light those future moments we anticipate.

This brings back a lot of things associated with such trips and visits from the time he was a couple of weeks old when we took him out for a day trip up to one of our wonderful camping sites and we had to stop, change diapers and take a shovel and bury it as it was so pungent. That place was called “David’s corner” forever more. Indeed, where have all our children gone—long time ago.

Perhaps we get attached more to one than another but there is usually a reason. Dave and Deb came home to us with the new baby because he just didn’t seem quite “right” to this old “Mom”. I was at Children’s Hospital of Los Angeles in the organ transplant program for heck sakes. The pediatrician discharged Mother and child with him pooping lime-green “something” and vomiting up everything—like across the room. I objected and the doctor was bored to death for after all, it was a long weekend and he had “other” plans. Wow.

One day later I came home to Deb holding this baby in the middle of the bed crying and when she asked me “Is he going to die, Mom?” I about flipped out. “No, he is NOT!” I called one of the Transplant doctors who lived nearby and in ten minutes he was to our house, put that baby on the table and located to the millimeter a total blockage in the bowel. So off to Children’s where the transplant team surgeons gathered and corrected the problem. Later he got an infection in the wound, IN THE HOSPITAL, and the story goes on as with any tales of life ongoing. Interestingly enough, the Doctor’s name is Malek (Mohammad Malekzadah) from IRAN yet. And that is as close to “Muslim” as I ever got in spite of VK’s otherwise. But yes indeed, sometimes it DOES help to “know someone” and dare ASK HELP.

I must go now before I get off onto the plethora of other possible tales stemming from nine children. No wonder I’ve been isolated in distant Manila. There is no way, though, to say how much we treasure and cherish each last little person. If God has enough faith in us to trust us with his treasures then there is hope after all. I am always so relieved when I hear from them and find they are moving on with their lives quite nicely without us. It is the best of all feelings when you can’t do a thing about it anyway. The most and best we can do for them as well as all the rest of us is TO KEEP GOING AND MAKE THIS THING HAPPEN—RIGHT!

We can do this, friends and so SHALL we. This IS the promise to which we cling like superglue because it is proven and we DO “KNOW” and to be able to share such a journey is truly wondrous if not always fun or easy. God only promised us “wondrous”; not fun or easy.

Remember the Way Home! Appreciation of Inspiration

HOW I REMEMBER "THE SCRIPT"

And the winds blew forth upon the face of the deep and a loud voice sprang up and said, "Let there be light" and creation became. Spirit willed the first beginnings of the ever-present journey of soul-spirit into manifest form to play upon the face of the maternal waters to come to know its maker. The play had begun and what a magnificent play it was/is. Soul-spirit took on the form as it willed itself to be, approaching the waters of creation with an ever-delicate touch and yet it had nothing to touch with except the subtle energies of its ever-present love. The total light was beginning its expression to clothe itself in matter to play out the harmony between the supernal creator and creation. The joy burst out and the explosions of love filled the maternal waters with the desire to encase spirit in manifest forms to bring ever-presence into finite form. Oh, what an experiment!

And now millennia have passed and the world has its shape as we do with an ever-exquisite body of beauty and grandeur and yet it is still not finished to its near-perfected state. The coming of total fusion is yet to take place between the delicate embrace of soul-spirit and the maternal elements of creation. We have yet to arrive and arrive we shall for the goal was set long ago with clear vision and focus ever intent to complete and come to fruition. Joy is our ultimate fulfillment in soul contentment as we journey to the finish line of the first leg of the "race". Time is of eternity and time is of essence as we, humanity, need to finish it together for no one is to be left behind. All are in the game and on track to come to bear witness to the fruits of our labors so as to be filled simultaneously with the unbounded satisfaction of a job/mission/goal well accomplished. As time passes by to the senses made for us to communicate with the material world, the essence of eternity is felt within the heart/soul of our being giving us wondrous awe and complete joy in the midst of an illusionary game in which consciousness is played into its dynamic expressions of life unfolding.

The play is about to close with the curtain ready to be drawn and all on stage, in the audience and helping all about are part of the overall game and integral to the whole. We all shall finish; we all shall endure to the end of the race. It is only our duty, our dream, our hope to be all that we can be in the ever-expansion of the wondrous whole. Love is the one string that threads us all together and love shall be the unifying element that brings all pieces together and mends them once again. We all must learn to sew/sow love and light back into our life with care and attention and lots of understanding of the how it all works. To leave this stage of planet earth we all must leave as one. To perform with the greatest conviction we all must give it all our love. The love to love, the love to hate, the love to be sad, and the love to complain and yet love embraces all emotions and is at the same time none but the pure bliss of knowing ONE. All comes from one source and all will return back to that source. It is the way remembered, the way we once knew. The time has come to awaken to the reality of the ending acts and the play must move on to more sequels of unparalleled beauty. In order to come to the next sequel we all must finish as ONE, ONE in love with the source and its beauty of remembering our full and total connection. Remember? Remember? Remember the way back home!

Secretive 'Banker's Bank' History, Operations Exposed

The money power—or "the awful power of the purse" as referenced in the Protocols—controls virtually all of man's activities on this planet, so if we would "strike at the root of the problem", this is IT. All other issues are, at most, secondary and all are quite controllable through the various mechanisms of the world's monetary system. Those who control this system quite literally control the planet. For the sake of simplicity and to avoid the trap of being labeled as "anti-" anything, we can refer to these conscienceless beings as the Money Masters.

At the pinnacle of the Money Masters' pyramid of power, the Bank for International Settlements sits atop the World Bank, International Monetary Fund, International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, International Development Association, Paris Club of Creditor Nations, the Federal Reserve and the central banks of all nations, globally, not to mention the numerous regional development banks (such as Inter-American Development Bank—wink).

Picture, if you will, a tiny handful of inhuman beings getting together four times a year in Basel, Switzerland to make the decisions which affect all of mankind. Their decisions will affect how much money is available for any purpose, Anywhere, World. This group dictates how great the money supply will be in any nation: from hundreds of dollars per person in Third World countries to tens of thousands of dollars per head in more developed nations. Are the people of the Philippines, for instance, less industrious than those of America? So, why is it that no matter how hard they work, they are never allowed to rise to a Western standard of living?

We present the following information to increase understanding of the extremely important but little-known entity called the BIS.

[QUOTING:]

GLOBAL BANKING: THE BANK FOR INTERNATIONAL SETTLEMENTS
The August Review, Vol. 5, Issue 11

Preface

When David Rockefeller and Zbigniew Brzezinski founded the Trilateral Commission in 1973, the intent was to create a "New International Economic Order" (NIEO). To this end, they brought together 300 elite corporate, political and academic leaders from North America, Japan and Europe.

Few people believed us when we wrote about their nefarious plans back then. Now, we look back and clearly see that they did what they said they were going to do... globalism is upon us like an 8.6 magnitude earthquake.

The question is, "How did they do it?" Keep in mind, they had no public mandate from any country in the world. They didn't have the raw political muscle, especially in democratic countries where voting is allowed. They didn't have global dictatorial powers.

Indeed, how did they do it?

The answer is the Bank for International Settlements (BIS), self-described as the "central bank for central bankers", that controls the vast global banking system with the precision of a Swiss watch.

This report offers a concise summation of BIS history, structure and current activities.

Introduction

The famous currency expert Dr. Franz Pick once stated, "The destiny of the currency is, and always will be, the destiny of a nation."

With the advent of rampant globalization, this concept can certainly be given a global context as well: "The destiny of currencies are, and always will be, the destiny of the world."

Even though the BIS is the oldest international banking operation in the world, it is a low-profile organization, shunning all publicity and notoriety. As a result, there is very little critical analysis written about this important financial organization. Further, much of what has been written about it is tainted by its own self-effacing literature.

The BIS can be compared to a stealth bomber. It flies high and fast, is undetected, has a small crew and carries a huge payload. By contrast, however, the bomber answers to a chain of command and must be refueled by outside sources. The BIS, as we shall see, is not accountable to any public authority and operates with complete autonomy and self-sufficiency.

Leading up to Founding

As we will see, the BIS was founded in 1930 during a very troubled time in history. Some knowledge of that history is critical to understanding why the BIS was created, and for whose benefit.

There are three figures that play prominently in the founding of the BIS: Charles G. Dawes, Owen D. Young and Hjalmar Schacht of Germany.

Charles G. Dawes was director of the U.S. Bureau of the Budget in 1921, and served on the Allied Reparations Commission starting in 1923. His latter work on "stabilizing Germany's economy" earned him the Nobel Peace Prize in 1925. After being elected Vice President under President Calvin Coolidge from 1925-1929, and appointed Ambassador to England in 1931, he resumed his personal banking career in 1932 as chairman of the board of the City National Bank and Trust in Chicago, where he remained until his death in 1951.

Owen D Young was an American industrialist. He founded RCA (Radio Corporation of America) in 1919 and was its chairman until 1933. He also served as the chairman of General Electric from 1922 until 1939. In 1932, Young sought the democratic presidential nomination, but lost to Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

More on Hjalmar Schacht later.

In the aftermath of World War I and the impending collapse of the German economy and political structure, a plan was needed to rescue and restore Germany, which would also insulate other economies in Europe from being affected adversely.

The Versailles Treaty of 1919 (which officially ended WWI) had imposed a very heavy reparations burden on Germany, which required a repayment schedule of 132 billion gold marks per year. Most historians agree that the economic upheaval caused in Germany by the Versailles Treaty eventually led to Adolph Hitler's rise to power.

In 1924 the Allies appointed a committee of international bankers, led by Charles G. Dawes (and accompanied by J.P. Morgan agent, Owen Young), to develop a plan to get reparations payments back on track. Historian Carroll Quigley noted that the Dawes Plan was “largely a J.P. Morgan production”.¹ The plan called for $800 million in foreign loans to be arranged for Germany in order to rebuild its economy.

In 1924, Dawes was chairman of the Allied Committee of Experts, hence, the “Dawes Plan”. He was replaced as chairman by Owen Young in 1929, with direct support by J.P. Morgan. The “Young Plan” of 1928 put more teeth into the Dawes Plan, which many viewed as a strategy to subvert virtually all German assets to back a huge mortgage held by the United States bankers.

Neither Dawes nor Young represented anything more than banking interests. After all, WWI was fought by governments using borrowed money made possible by the international banking community. The banks had a vested interest in having those loans repaid!

In 1924, the president of Reichsbank (Germany’s central bank at that time) was Hjalmar Schacht. He had already had a prominent role in creating the Dawes Plan, along with German industrialist Fritz Thyssen and other prominent German bankers and industrialists.

The Young Plan was so odious to the Germans that many credit it as a precondition to Hitler’s rise to power. Fritz Thyssen, a leading Nazi Industrialist, stated:

“I turned to the National socialist party only after I became convinced that the fight against the Young Plan was unavoidable if complete collapse of Germany was to be prevented.”²

Some historians too quickly credit Owen Young as the idea-man for the Bank for International Settlements. It was actually Hjalmar Schacht who first proposed the idea³, which was then carried forward by the same group of international bankers who brought us the Dawes and Young Plans.

It is not necessary to jump to conclusions as to the intent of these elite bankers, so we will instead defer to the insight of renowned Georgetown historian, Carroll Quigley:

“The Power of financial capitalism had another far reaching plan, nothing less than to create a world system of financial control in private hands able to dominate the political system of each country and the economy of the world as a whole. This system was to be controlled in a feudalistic fashion by the central banks of the world acting in concert, by secret agreements arrived at in frequent meetings and conferences. The apex of the system was to be the Bank for International Settlements in Basle, Switzerland, a private bank owned and controlled by the world’s central banks, which were themselves private corporations. Each central bank, in the hands of men like Montagu Norman of the Bank of England, Benjamin Strong of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, Charles Rist of the Bank of France, and Hjalmar Schacht of the Reichsbank, sought to dominate its government by its ability to control treasury loans, to manipulate foreign exchanges, to influence the level of economic activity in the country, and to influence co-operative politicians by subsequent rewards in the business world.”⁴ [Bold emphasis added.]

So here we have a brief sketch of what led up to the founding of the BIS. Now we can examine the nuts and bolts of how the BIS was actually put together.

The Hague Agreement of 1930

The formation of the BIS was agreed upon by its constituent central banks in the so-called Hague Agreement on January 20, 1930, and was in operation shortly thereafter. According to the Agreement:

The duly authorised representatives of the Governments of Germany, of Belgium, of France, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, of Italy and of Japan of the one part; And the duly authorised representatives of the Government of the Swiss Confederation of the other part Assembled at the Hague Conference in the month of January, 1930, have agreed on the following:

Article 1. Switzerland undertakes to grant to the Bank for International Settlements, without delay, the following Constituent Charter having force of law: not to abrogate this Charter, not to amend or add to it, and not to sanction amendments to the Statutes of the Bank referred to in Paragraph 4 of the Charter otherwise than in agreement with the other signatory Governments.⁵

As we will see, German reparation payments (or lack thereof) had little to do with the founding of the BIS, although this is the weak explanation given since its founding. Of course, Germany would make a single payment to the BIS, which in turn would deposit the funds into the respective central bank accounts of the nations to whom payments were due. (It would be the subject of another paper to show the shallowness of this operation: Money and gold were shuffled around, but the net amount that Germany actually paid was very small.)

The original founding documents of the BIS have little to say about Germany, however, and we can look directly to the BIS itself to see its original purpose:

“The objects of the Bank are: to promote the co-operation of central banks and to provide additional facilities for international operations; and to act as trustees or agent in regard to international financial settlements entrusted to it under agreements with the parties concerned.”⁶

Virtually every in-print reference to the BIS, including their own documents, consistently refer to it as “the central banker’s central bank”.

So, the BIS was established by an international charter and was headquartered in Basle, Switzerland.

BIS Ownership

According to James C. Baker, pro-BIS author of The Bank for International Settlements: Evolution and Evaluation, “The BIS was formed with funding by the central banks of six nations, Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, and the United Kingdom. In addition, three private international banks from the United States also assisted in financing the establishment of the BIS.”⁷

Each nation’s central bank subscribed to 16,000 shares. The U.S. central bank, the Federal Reserve, did not join the BIS, but the three U.S. banks that participated got 16,000 shares each. Thus, U.S. representation at the BIS was three times that of any other nation. Who were these private banks? Not surprisingly, they were J.P. Morgan & Company, First National Bank of New York and First National Bank of Chicago.

On January 8, 2001, an Extraordinary General Meeting of the BIS approved a proposal that restricted ownership of BIS shares to central banks. Some 13.7% of all shares were in private hands at that time, and the repurchase was accomplished with a cash outlay of $724,956,050. The price of $10,000 per share was over twice the book value of $4,850.

It is not certain what the repurchase accomplished. The BIS claimed that it was to correct a conflict of interest between private shareholders and BIS goals, but it offered no specifics. It was not a voting issue, however, because private owners were not allowed to vote their shares.⁸

Sovereignty and Secrecy

It is not surprising that the BIS, its offices, employees, directors and members share an incredible immunity from virtually all regulation, scrutiny and accountability.

In 1931, central bankers and their constituents were fed up with government meddling in world financial affairs. Politicians were viewed mostly with contempt, unless it was one of their own who was the politician. Thus, the BIS offered them a once-and-for-all opportunity to set up the “apex” the way they really wanted it—private. They demanded these conditions and got what they demanded.

A quick summary of their immunity, explained further below, includes

- diplomatic immunity for persons and what they carry with them (i.e., diplomatic pouches)
- no taxation on any transactions, including salaries paid to employees
- embassy-type immunity for all buildings and/or offices operated by the BIS
- no oversight or knowledge of operations by any government authority
- freedom from immigration restrictions
- freedom to encrypt any and all communications of any sort
- freedom from any legal jurisdiction⁹

Further, members of the BIS board of directors (for instance, Alan Greenspan) are individually granted special benefits:

- “immunity from arrest or imprisonment and immunity from seizure of their personal baggage, save in flagrant cases of criminal offence;”
- “inviolability of all papers and documents;”
- “immunity from jurisdiction, even after their mission has been accomplished, for acts carried out in the discharge of their duties, including words spoken and writings;”
- “exemption for themselves, their spouses and children from any immigration restrictions, from any formalities concerning the registration of aliens and from any obligations relating to national service in Switzerland ;”
- “the right to use codes in official communications or to receive or send documents or correspondence by means of couriers or diplomatic bags.”¹⁰

Lastly, all remaining officials and employees of the BIS have the following immunities:

- “immunity from jurisdiction for acts accomplished in the discharge of their duties, including words spoken and writings, even after such persons have ceased to be Officials of the Bank;” [bold emphasis added]
- “exemption from all Federal, cantonal and communal taxes on salaries, fees and allowances paid to them by the Bank...”
- exempt from Swiss national obligations, freedom for spouses and family members from immigration restrictions, transfer assets and properties—including internationally—with the same degree of benefit as Officials of other international organizations.¹¹

Of course, a corporate charter can say anything it wants to say and still be subject to outside authorities. Nevertheless, these were the immunities practiced and enjoyed from 1930 onward. On February 10, 1987, a more formal acknowledgement called the “Headquarters Agreement” was executed between the BIS and the Swiss Federal Council and basically clarified and reiterated what we already knew:

Article 2 Inviolability

- The buildings or parts of buildings and surrounding land which, whoever may be the owner thereof, are used for the purposes of the Bank shall be inviolable. No agent of the Swiss public authorities may enter therein without the express consent of the Bank. Only the President, the General Manager of the Bank, or their duly authorised representative shall be competent to waive such inviolability.

- The archives of the Bank and, in general, all documents and any data media belonging to the Bank or in its possession, shall be inviolable at all times and in all places.
- The Bank shall exercise supervision of and police power over its premises.

Article 4

Immunity from jurisdiction and execution

- The Bank shall enjoy immunity from criminal and administrative jurisdiction, save to the extent that such immunity is formally waived in individual cases by the President, the General Manager of the Bank, or their duly authorised representative.
- The assets of the Bank may be subject to measures of compulsory execution for enforcing monetary claims. On the other hand, all deposits entrusted to the Bank, all claims against the Bank and the shares issued by the Bank shall, without the prior agreement of the Bank, be immune from seizure or other measures of compulsory execution and sequestration, particularly of attachment within the meaning of Swiss law. ¹² [bold emphasis added]

As you can see, the BIS, its directors and employees (past and present) can do virtually anything and everything they want, with complete secrecy, immunity and with no one looking over their shoulders. It was truly a banker's dream come true, and it paved the international freeway for the rampant financial globalism that we see manifest today.

Day-to-Day Operations

Acting as a central bank, the BIS has sweeping powers to do anything for its own account or for the account of its member central banks. It is like a two-way power-of-attorney—any party can act as agent for any other party.

Article 21 of the original BIS statutes define day-to-day operations:

- buying and selling of gold coin or bullion for its own account or for the account of central banks;
- holding gold for its own account under reserve in central banks;
- accepting the supervision of gold for the account of central banks;
- making advances to or borrowing from central banks against gold, bills of exchange, and other short-term obligations of prime liquidity or other approved securities;
- discounting, rediscounting, purchasing, or selling with or without its endorsement bills of exchange, checks, and other short-term obligations of prime liquidity;
- buying and selling foreign exchange for its own account or for the account of central banks;
- buying and selling negotiable securities other than shares for its own account or for the account of central banks;
- discounting for central banks bills taken from their portfolio and rediscounting with central banks bills taken from its own portfolio;
- opening and maintaining current or deposit accounts with central banks;
- accepting deposits from central banks on current or deposit account;
- accepting deposits in connection with trustee agreements that may be made between the BIS and governments in connection with international settlements.;
- accepting such other deposits that, as in the opinion of the Board of the BIS, come within the scope of the BIS' functions.¹³

- The BIS also may
- act as agent or correspondent for any central bank
- arrange with any central bank for the latter to act as its agent or correspondent;
- enter into agreements to act as trustee or agent in connection with international settlements, provided that such agreements will not encroach on the obligations of the BIS toward any third parties.¹⁴

Why is "agency" an important issue? Because any member of the network can obscure transactions from onlookers. For instance, if Brown Brothers, Harriman wanted to transfer money to a company in Nazi Germany during WWII (which was not "politically correct" at that time), they would first transfer the funds to the BIS thus putting the transaction under the cloak of secrecy and immunity that is enjoyed by the BIS but not by Brown Brothers, Harriman. (Such laundering of Wall Street money was painstakingly noted in Wall Street and the Rise of Hitler, by Antony C. Sutton.)

There are a few things that the BIS cannot do. For instance, it does not accept deposits from, or provide financial services to, private individuals or corporate entities. It is also not permitted to make advances to governments or open current accounts in their name.¹⁵ These restrictions are easily understood when one considers that each central bank has an exclusive franchise to loan money to their respective government. For instance, the U.S. Federal Reserve does not loan money to the government of Canada. In like manner, central banks do not loan money directly to the private or corporate clients of their member banks.

How Decisions are Made

The board of directors consists of the heads of certain member central banks. Currently, these are:

- Nout H E M Wellink, Amsterdam (Chairman of the Board of Directors)
- Hans Tietmeyer, Frankfurt am Main (Vice-Chairman)
- Axel Weber, Frankfurt am Main
- Vincenzo Desario, Rome
- Antonio Fazio, Rome
- David Dodge, Ottawa
- Toshihiko Fukui, Tokyo
- Timothy F Geithner, New York
- Alan Greenspan, Washington
- Lord George, London
- Hervé Hannoun, Paris
- Christian Noyer, Paris
- Lars Heikensten, Stockholm
- Mervyn King, London
- Guy Quaden, Brussels
- Jean-Pierre Roth, Zürich
- Alfons Vicomte Verplaetse, Brussels¹⁶

Of these, five members (Canada, Japan, the Netherlands, Sweden and Switzerland) are currently elected by the shareholders. The majority of directors are "ex officio", meaning they are permanent and are automatically a part of any sub-committee.

The combined board meets at least six times per year, in secret, and is briefed by BIS management on financial operations of the bank. Global monetary policy is discussed and set at these meetings.

It was reported in 1983 that there is an inner club of the half-dozen central bankers who are more or less in the same monetary boat: Germany, U.S., Switzerland, Italy, Japan and England.¹⁷ The existence of an inner club is neither surprising nor substantive: the whole BIS operation is 100% secret anyway. It is not likely that members of the inner club have significantly different beliefs or agendas apart from the BIS as a whole.

How the BIS works with the IMF and the World Bank

The interoperation between the three entities is understandably confusing to most people, so a little clarification will help.

The International Monetary Fund (IMF) interacts with governments whereas the BIS interacts only with other central banks. The IMF loans money to national governments, and often these countries are in some kind of fiscal or monetary crisis. Furthermore, the IMF raises money by receiving "quota" contributions from its 184 member countries. Even though the member countries may borrow money to make their quota contributions, it is, in reality, all tax-payer money.¹⁸

The World Bank also lends money and has 184 member countries. Within the World Bank are two separate entities, the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (IBRD) and the International Development Association (IDA). The IBRD focuses on middle-income and credit-worthy poor countries, while the IDA focuses on the poorest of nations. In funding itself, the World Bank borrows money by direct lending from banks and by floating bond issues, and then loans this money through IBRD and IDA to troubled countries.¹⁹

The BIS, as central bank to the other central banks, facilitates the movement of money. They are well-known for issuing "bridge loans" to central banks in countries where IMF or World Bank money is pledged but has not yet been delivered. These bridge loans are then repaid by the respective governments when they receive the funds that had been promised by the IMF or World Bank.²⁰

The IMF is the BIS' "ace in the hole" when monetary crisis hits. The 1998 Brazil currency crisis was caused by that country's inability to pay inordinate accumulated interest on loans made over a protracted period of time. These loans were extended by banks like Citigroup, J.P. Morgan Chase and FleetBoston, and they stood to lose a huge amount of money.

The IMF, along with the World Bank and the U.S., bailed out Brazil with a $41.5 billion package that saved Brazil, its currency and, not incidentally, certain private banks.

Congressman Bernard Sanders (I-VT), ranking member of the International Monetary Policy and Trade Subcommittee, blew the whistle on this money laundry operation. Sander's entire congressional press release is worth reading:

IMF Bailout for Brazil is Windfall to Banks, Disaster for U.S. Taxpayers Says Sanders

BURLINGTON, VERMONT—August 15—Congressman Bernard Sanders (I-VT), the Ranking Member of the International Monetary Policy and Trade Subcommittee, today called for an immediate Congressional investigation of the recent $30 billion International Monetary Fund (IMF) bailout of Brazil.

Sanders, who is strongly opposed to the bailout and considers it corporate welfare, wants Congress to find out why U.S. taxpayers are being asked to provide billions of dollars to Brazil and how much of this money will be funneled to U.S. banks such as Citigroup, FleetBoston and J.P. Morgan Chase. These banks have about $25.6 billion in outstanding loans to Brazilian borrowers. U.S. taxpayers currently fund the IMF through a $37 billion line of credit.

Sanders said, "At a time when we have a $6 trillion national debt, a growing federal deficit, and an increasing number of unmet social needs for our veterans, seniors, and children, it is unacceptable that billions of U.S. taxpayer dollars are being sent to the IMF to bailout Brazil.”

“This money is not going to significantly help the poor people of that country. The real winners in this situation are the large, profitable U.S. banks such as Citigroup that have made billions of dollars in risky investments in Brazil and now want to make sure their investments are repaid. This bailout represents an egregious form of corporate welfare that must be put to an end. Interestingly, these banks have made substantial campaign contributions to both political parties,” the Congressman added.

Sanders noted that the neo-liberal policies of the IMF developed in the 1980s pushing countries towards unfettered free trade, privatization, and slashing social safety nets has been a disaster for Latin America and has contributed to increased global poverty throughout the world. At the same time that Latin America countries such as Brazil and Argentina followed these neo-liberal dictates imposed by the IMF, from 1980-2000, per capita income in Latin America grew at only one-tenth the rate of the previous two decades.

Sanders continued, “The policies of the IMF over the past 20 years advocating unfettered free trade, privatizing industry, deregulation and slashing government investments in health, education, and pensions has been a complete failure for low-income and middle-class families in the developing world and in the United States. Clearly, these policies have only helped corporations in their constant search for the cheapest labor and weakest environmental regulations. Congress must work on a new global policy that protects workers, increases living standards and improves the environment.”

One can surmise that a financial circle exists where the World Bank helps nations get into debt, then when these countries can't pay their massive loans, the IMF bails them out with taxpayer money—and in the middle stands the BIS, collecting fees as the money travels back and forth like the ocean tide, while assuring everyone that all is well.

BIS dumps gold-backed Swiss Francs for SDRs

On March 10, 2003, the BIS abandoned the Swiss gold franc as the bank's unit of account since 1930, and replaced it with the SDR.

SDR stands for Special Drawing Rights and is a unit of currency originally created by the IMF. According to Baker:

“The SDR is an international reserve asset, created by the IMF in 1969 to supplement the existing official reserves of member countries. SDRs are allocated to member countries in proportion to their IMF quotas. The SDR also serves as the unit of account of the IMF and some other international organizations. Its value is based on a basket of key international currencies.”²¹

This “basket” currently consists of the euro, Japanese yen, pound sterling and the U.S. dollar.

The BIS abandonment of the 1930 gold Swiss franc removed all restraint from the creation of paper money in the world. In other words, gold backs no national currency, leaving the central banks a wide-open field to create money as they alone see fit. Remember, that almost all the central banks in the world are privately-held entities, with an exclusive franchise to arrange loans for their respective host countries.

Regional and Global Currencies: SDRs, Euros and Ameros

There is no doubt that the BIS is moving the world toward regional currencies and ultimately, a global currency. The global currency could well be an evolution of the SDR, and may explain why the BIS recently adopted the SDR as its primary reserve currency.

The Brandt Equation, 21st Century Blueprint for the New Global Economy notes, for instance, that since the SDR is the world's only means of meeting international payments that has been authorized through international contract, “The SDR therefore represents a clear first step towards a stable and permanent international currency”²² [bold emphasis added]

As to regional currencies, the BIS has already been hugely successful in launching the euro in Europe. Armed with new technical and social know-how, the BIS' next logical step is to focus on America and Asia.

For instance, according to BIS Papers No. 17, “Regional currency areas and the use of foreign currencies”, “Canada, Mexico and the United States are members of the trade group NAFTA. Given the high proportion of Canada and Mexico's trade with the United States, a NAFTA dollar or ‘Amero’ has been proposed by some Canadian academics such as Grubel (1999). See also Beine and Coulombe (2002) and Robson and Laidler (2002).”²³

Assuming that NAFTA permanently identifies Canada, the U.S. and Mexico as one trading block, then North America will look like the European Union and the Amero will function like the Euro. All of the work put into the SDR would be perfectly preserved by simply substituting the Amero for the U.S. dollar when they choose to bring the Amero to ascendancy over the dollar.

For those American readers who do not grasp the significance of the adoption of the euro by European Union countries, consider how one American globalist describes it.

C. Fred Bergsten is a prominent and core Trilateral Commission member and head of the Institute for International Economics. On January 3, 1999, Bergsten wrote in the Washington Post:

“The adoption of a common currency is by far the boldest chapter of European integration. Money traditionally has been an integral element of national sovereignty ... and the decision by Germany and France to give up their mark and franc ... represents the most dramatic voluntary surrender of sovereignty in recorded history. The European Central Bank that will manage the euro is a truly supranational institution.”²⁴ [bold emphasis added]

Bergsten will have to rephrase this when the U.S. gives up the dollar for the amero—that will become the most dramatic voluntary surrender of sovereignty in recorded history!

Conclusions

Our credo is “Follow the money, follow the power.” This report has endeavored to follow the money. We find that:

- The BIS is central bank to all major central banks in the world.
- It is privately owned by central banks themselves, most of whom are also private.
- It was founded under questionable circumstances by questionable people.
- It is accountable to no one, especially government bodies.
- It operates in complete secrecy and is inviolable.
- Movement of money is obscured and hidden when routed through the BIS.
- The BIS is targeting regional currency blocks and ultimately, a global currency.
- It has been hugely successful at building the New International Economic Order, along with its attendant initiatives on global governance.

As to “follow the power”, another paper will more fully explore the influence of power that the BIS exerts over other banks, nations and governments. For your own consideration in the meantime, Proverbs 22:7 provides a useful compass: “The rich rule over the poor, and the borrower is servant to the lender.”

The New Jerusalem

Part 10: Conclusions

This installment concludes the serialization of author Michael Collins Piper's The New Jerusalem: Zionist Power in America. Thank you, Michael, we are grateful for the sharing and, hopefully, you have been rewarded by the sale of additional copies of your work. We honor you, sir, for your daring to continue to speak out right in the face of the dragon.

In the last few months four notable "Holocaust" questioners have been incarcerated and are now awaiting trial in Germany: Ernst Zundel; David Irving of the UK; Germar Rudolf, a German chemist who published his analysis of the so-called "gas chambers", then sought asylum in the USA, "land of the free"; and Siegfried Verbeke of Holland, who had the temerity to question the Anne Frank fable (author Meyer Levin was awarded $50,000 for his intellectual property, remember?). There is no room for the truth in the courtroom, as defense lawyers dare not argue their cases for fear of being similarly charged.

Please read this paper's banner again, until you see how YOU have brought this about.
[QUOTING:]

A FINAL JUDGMENT . . . JEWISH POWER IN AMERICA TODAY IS GREATER THAN JEWISH POWER IN ANY COUNTRY AT ANY TIME IN RECORDED HISTORY

Professor Norman Cantor has encapsulated the immense power of the Jews in America today. Writing in his controversial book, The Sacred Chain, which was widely criticized for its candor, Cantor wrote:

Jews in the four decades after 1940 came home in American society to suburban comfort, to penetration of academia and the privileged bastions of the learned professions, to corporate business, to politics and government and controlling levels of the media. Jews were over-represented in the learned professions by a factor of five or six. In 1994 Jews were only three percent of the American population but their impact was equivalent to an ethnic group comprising twenty percent of the population.

Nothing in Jewish history equaled this degree of Jewish accession to power, wealth and prominence. Not in Muslim Spain, not in early 20th century Germany, not in Israel itself, because there were no comparable levels of wealth and power on a world-class scale in that small country to attain.

Cantor concludes: "The Morgans, the Rockefellers, the Harrimans, the Roosevelts, the Kennedys, the titans of bygone eras, they have been superseded by the Jew as flawless achiever"

And so it is, according to a Jewish academic—echoing the reality of the facts and the figures that we have seen in these pages: The old names amongst the American elite have been surpassed and today the Zionist elite have truly emerged as Those Who Reign Supreme in America—The New Jerusalem.

MODERN-DAY ZIONIST PHILOSOPHERS: "AMERICA IS THE NEW JERUSALEM"

Lest there be any doubt that the leaders of the American Zionist community do now view the United States as The New Jerusalem, it is vital to consider this salient—and undeniable—fact:

The Zionists now openly charge that critics of Israel are not only anti-Semitic and anti-Israel but also anti-Christian and anti-American, that anti-Israel sentiments are actually the underlying foundation of anti-Americanism and, in turn, anti-Americanism is inextricably indivisible from anti-Israel, anti-Semitic and anti-Christian sentiments. In short, the bottom line of this proposition is America is indeed "The New Jerusalem". That America and Israel are one. Such views are being nurtured at the highest levels of the Zionist movement and even now being inserted into the discourse of public debate in America. As such, we can only conclude that all of this is very much a confirmation of the thesis put forth in the pages of The New Jerusalem.

In a certain sense, there is some truth to the theme that "anti-Americanism" is a form of opposition to Israel, for most people around the world who are concerned about the new imperialism being pursued by the United States know full well that this policy is not really "Americanism" but, in fact, the product of the Zionist powers and their policymakers in high places who have come to reign supreme in America, particularly during the presidency of George W. Bush.

However, as usual, the Zionists always show great capacity to twist reality in order to make it fit their peculiar worldview. People worldwide are not "anti-American" (in the sense that they have no problem with the American people). If anything, it seems, because people from all walks of life from around the globe often have a better understanding than even Americans themselves of who really rules America, they actually have a certain sympathy for Americans for having allowed themselves to be manipulated so relentlessly by the Zionist minority. So there's no "anti-Americanism" in the sense that the Zionists would have us believe.

It is also important to acknowledge that people worldwide have no trouble with the principles of democracy, liberty and freedom—however loosely defined. The idea that the rest of the planet (with the exception of Israel) is somehow "anti-American" is a destructive and dangerous myth the Zionists have propagated in order to turn Americans against anyone around the globe who dares to question Zionist power in America.

This concept of "anti-Americanism" is thus largely a Zionist invention. It was in the wake of the 9-11 terrorist attacks and in the period leading up to the utterly insane (and Zionist-ordered) U.S. invasion of Iraq in the spring of 2003, that the Zionist-controlled media in the United States began hyping "anti-Americanism", as a consequence of the urgent need to stoke up a worldwide (and apparently unending) "war against terrorism" of which President Bush and his Zionist handlers said the campaign to destroy Iraq was a vital component.

As a direct consequence of lies and inflammatory language coming from the Bush administration, coupled with deliberate distortions and disinformation in the media, good, honest, decent patriotic Americans truly believed that Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein had played a part in the 9-11 terrorist attacks and that the war against Iraq was thus justified.

And in the build-up to the Iraq war, Zionist propagandists and the media increasingly began touting the message to Americans that "The whole world is against us"—or, to put it more accurately, at least as it was rendered in the media: "The whole world is against us good Americans and our good friends, the Israelis, who are certainly our only democratic ally in the Middle East and our only real, solid, dependable ally in the whole big wide world."

The theme that "anti-Americanism" had run rampant was instilled in Americans for the very purpose of making them "anti" everyone who refused to support the war against Saddam that the Zionists demanded Americans fight on their behalf. In a sense, the Iraq war became a—if not "the"—measuring stick of determining who was supportive of the bigger, more broad-ranging Zionist agenda and who wasn't.

In any case, the theme of "anti-Americanism" is now being introduced by the Zionists in the media into the public debate and now, as noted, "anti Americanism" is being equated by the Zionists with opposition not only to Israel and Jewish interests but even to Christianity itself—an extraordinary theme indeed.

Yet, although it may be quite difficult for the average American to accept (or even understand) such a broad-ranging historical and geopolitical contention with obviously immense global ramifications, this is precisely what one of Zionism's most highly regarded "intellectuals" contended in an audacious essay published in the January 2005 issue of Commentary magazine, the always-pompous, but nonetheless candid, journal of the American Jewish Committee.

In his Commentary essay, "Americanism—and Its Enemies", Yale Professor David Gelernter says that "Americanism" itself—at least as defined by Gelernter and his fellow Zionists—is no more than a modern-day evolution of old-line Zionist thought, going back to the Bible itself. America, he contends, is essentially the new Israel, The New Jerusalem, a virtual adjunct of the State of Israel itself.

However, before we explore the specifics of Gelernter's amazing essay, it is critical to understand the particular milieu from which it emerged, for that, in itself, points toward how significant this thesis is, at least from the standpoint of the circles of influence in America that truly count for something, that is, the Zionist elite.

That Gelernter's proposition was put forth in Commentary—long-edited by neo-conservative "ex-Trotskyite" Norman Podhoretz, who still remains the power-behind-the-scenes at the journal—means quite a lot. Generally recognized as one of the foremost media influences directing U.S. foreign policy in the Bush administration, Commentary is certainly one of the leading—and hard-line—voices of Zionism, not only in America, but worldwide.

In addition, although Gelernter is a computer specialist, his views on political affairs are regularly published with great fanfare in the pages of The New York Times and The Washington Post, and in such staunch pro-Israel publications as The New Republic, National Review and Zionist billionaire Rupert Murdoch's house journal, The Weekly Standard, edited by William Kristol, who is perhaps the chief media publicist and public affairs strategist for the so-called "neo-conservative" point of view today.

As such, what Gelernter has to say should be considered carefully, inasmuch he is very much a part of the Kristol network and also given free rein in Commentary to air such provocative opinions. Gelernter is one of the most widely-read voices of Zionism today.

Thus, to understand what the "neo-conservatives" such as Gelernter believe is to understand the very mindset of the hard-line Zionist movement not only in the United States and Israel, but worldwide, for neo-conservatism is probably best described as perhaps the foremost influence within the always-multifaceted world of Zionism today.

Although the history of the neo-conservatives (outlined in detail in this author's previous work, The High Priests of War) is beyond the scope of our present study, it is important to note that the aforementioned William Kristol's father, Irving Kristol, is known as "the godfather" of the neo-conservative movement and was himself, as an old-line Trotskyite communist, one of the self-dubbed "New York intellectuals"—part of a cell which actually called itself "The Family"—who acted as mentor for Podhoretz during the time when Commentary was emerging as one of the Israeli lobby's most powerful media voices.

Today, the Kristols and Podhoretz—along with those such as Gelernter—are stalwart forces behind the global agenda of the Bush administration, allied with such key administration policymakers as Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Wolfowitz and collaborating intimately with like-minded allies in hard-line factions in Israel. All of this is particularly relevant, of course, since it is under the Bush presidency that America's effective merger with the State of Israel became all the more evident—an alliance unprecedented even in American terms.

And, as such, it is by no means irrelevant that when President Bush delivered his controversial second inaugural address, one of the intellectual masterminds behind that address was Natan Sharansky, one of the more outspoken leaders of the hard-line bloc in Israel with whom America's neo-conservative Zionists collaborate quite closely. Along with William Kristol and other neo-American conservatives, Sharansky actually visited the White House at Bush's invitation and played a part in crafting the speech that the president delivered.

In that inaugural address, Bush reaffirmed his commitment to the principles of global world revolution—framed as the pursuit of "democracy"—that have been the foundation of the always-evolving philosophy of those ex Trotskyite neo-conservatives who are the godfathers of the "compassionate conservatism" of the Bush administration. In short, the Bush agenda (rather the agenda of Bush's Zionist handlers) is no more than a modernized brand of old-style international Bolshevism inspired by the late Leon Trotsky.

As we now see, today's Trotskyites—now the leaders of Zionism—are realists and opportunists, if nothing else. As such, they have retooled their mechanism for global rule and have adapted it for their particular needs during the 21st century, to the point that they have even drafted a born-again, messianic-minded, gun-toting cowboy with a Texas twang as their chief public spokesman. And, in fact, he's developed quite a cult following. In that second inaugural address, Young Bush proclaimed that "America's vital interests and our deepest beliefs are now one. ... Advancing these ideals is the mission that created our Nation. ... Now it is the urgent requirement of our nation's security, and the calling of our time."

The bottom line is that it means future war and lots of it—global war—nothing more than an expansion of the ongoing imperial venture in Iraq, to include as the targets any and all perceived to be standing in the way of the New World Order the leaders of international Zionism have dreamed about for so long. And now they have America in their hands and are therefore in control of the one powerful nation whose resources (and people) can be exploited to achieve that dream.

It is no coincidence that on the eve of his assumption of a second term, Time magazine—the weekly voice of America's Zionist Royal Family, the Bronfmans—dubbed George W. Bush an "American Revolutionary". An American Bush may be, but the revolution he leads is not American. It is a revolution whose Founding Fathers are the ruling leaders of international Zionism. Young Bush may be king but Zionist intriguers are his regents.

The Bush agenda is the Zionist agenda and the whole theme of advancing global democracy is part and parcel of the modern-day (and ever-advancing) Zionist plan to re-make the world under the force of American guns.

And this brings us back to David Gelernter's essay in Commentary, for it is very much a philosophical complement to the theme put forth by Sharansky—and dutifully and enthusiastically echoed by Bush—and part of a not-so-subtle ongoing effort to underscore and promote the new international imperium the Bush administration is working to effect.

While his essay was published before Bush's inaugural address was publicly delivered—although it had already been privately concocted in the hands of Gelernter's Zionist associates—Gelernter contends that what today is the Sharansky-Bush point of view goes back, in American historical terms, to the days of the Puritan and Pilgrim founding fathers.

Noting that "Puritans spoke of themselves as God's new chosen people, living in God's new promised land—in short, as God's new Israel," Gelernter asserts that "Many thinkers have noted that Americanism is inspired by or close to or intertwined with Puritanism," noting that "one of the most impressive scholars to say so recently is Samuel Huntington, in his formidable book on American identity, Who Are We?"

An old Council on Foreign Relations hand, Huntington seems an ironic choice for Gelernter to cite when preaching about Americanism and democracy, inasmuch as Huntington's earlier book, The Crisis of Democracy (published by the Rockefeller-funded Trilateral Commission) suggested there was too much democracy in America and that it needed to be suppressed. However, then again, "democracy"—in the eyes of the elite—applies only to those whom they want to have freedom.

More recently, Huntington emerged a vocal spokesman for a determined high-level campaign to block certain groups of immigrants—namely Muslims and Hispanic Catholics—from coming into the United States, basically in the name of "fighting terrorism and anti-Semitism", since the Jewish elite have concluded that Catholic immigrants, along with Muslims, are suspicious of Jewish power and not easily controlled.

In any case, Gelernter says that the Puritanism of Huntington's chosen type is the real foundation of America. He writes:

Puritanism did not merely inspire or influence Americanism, it turned into Americanism. ... You cannot really understand the Pilgrims, or Puritans in general, unless you know the Hebrew Bible and classical Jewish history; knowing Judaism itself also helps ... Early exponents of Americanism tended to define even their own Christianity [emphasis Gelernter's] in ways that make it sound like Judaism.

And it is probably worth pointing out that Gelernter notes that Puritanism, in its classic sense on American shores, underwent transition, so much so that many Puritan congregations became Unitarian. And the irony there, of course, is there are quite a few Christians—including fundamentalist supporters of Israel—who don't even consider Unitarians to be Christians. (But that's another question for another day and for others to debate.)

In any case, for all intents and purposes, Gelernter is perhaps hinting that (at least in the Zionist view) the modern-day form of "Puritanism" underlying "Americanism" is actually anything but Christian. And this, of course, again, would surprise many Christian supporters of Israel who proclaim that America is a Christian nation doing its part in helping fulfill God's so-called promises to the Jewish people.

Gelernter's assessment of the Bible, as he reads it, is that, among other things, Americans, in particular, have "a divine mission to all mankind" and that this conclusion can be reached: "Every human being everywhere is entitled to freedom, equality, and democracy." (What Bible Gelernter refers to may be a good question, but certainly beyond our scope here.)

Suggesting that those whom he calls "the theologians of Americanism" understood that freedom, equality and democracy were not just philosophical ideas but "the word of God", Gelernter concludes that the consequence is "the fervor and passion with which Americans believe their creed". Gelernter says that creed is that "Americans, virtually alone in the world, insist that freedom, equality, and democracy are right not only for France and Spain but for Afghanistan and Iraq."

Here Gelernter begins to spin his particular theme that Zionism is integral to and inseparable from what he says is "Americanism":

To sum up Americanism's creed as far as freedom, equality, and democracy for all is to state only half the case. The other half deals with a promised land, a chosen people, and a universal, divinely ordained mission. This part of Americanism is the American version of biblical Zionism: in short, American Zionism.

Purporting that "Americanism" (as he defines it) is "American Zionism"—the idea that America is also a Zionist "promised land" that is as one with the state of Israel and traditional Jewish Zionism itself, Gelernter is suggesting that both Israel and America are Jewish states. He goes even further:

Classical Israel's (and classical Zionism's) contribution to Americanism is incalculable. No modern historian or thinker I am aware of ... has done justice to this extraordinary fact. They seem to have forgotten what the eminent 19th century Irish historian William Lecky recognized: that "Hebraic mortar cemented the foundations of American democracy." And even Lecky, I suspect, did not grasp the full extent of this truth. Unless we do grasp it, we can never fully understand Americanism—or anti-Americanism.

In short, Gelernter is avowing that "anti-Americanism" is nothing more (or nothing less) than opposition to the Zionist theology that he contends played such a considerable role as the "mortar" that "cemented the foundations of American democracy". Then, Gelernter moves forward, applying his bizarre theory to the conduct of U.S. foreign policy. In the same spirit in which The Washington Post on January 21, 2005 declared President Bush's global view to be "more Wilsonian than conservative", Gelernter asserts:

[Woodrow] Wilson stands right at the center of classical Americanism. No president spoke the language of Bible and divine mission more lucidly ... During Wilson's administration, Americanism accomplished a fundamental transition. It had always included the idea of divine mission. But what was [emphasis in the original] the mission? Until the closing of the frontier in the last decade of the 19th century, the mission was to populate the continent. With the frontier closed, the mission became "Americanism for the whole world".

According to Gelernter, subsequent presidents such as Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman waged wars on behalf of Americanism. FDR's war against (a virtually united) Europe, allied with Japan, was no less than a war to vanquish perhaps the greatest threat that ever emerged to Zionist power in the entire history of the planet. Truman, of course, launched the Cold War against the Soviets which we now know was yet another mechanism of global profiteering, for even while American kids were dying in Korea and later in Vietnam, international banking houses—many of them Jewish, some not—were propping up the Soviet tyranny while it was in their interests to do so.

However, Gelernter says, it was Ronald Reagan who affirmed this “Americanism” when he spoke of a “shining city upon a hill”, citing the Bible's book of Matthew in the same spirit of Puritan father John Winthrop. It was Reagan, claims Gelernter, whose “use of these words connected modern America to the humane Christian vision—the Puritan vision—the vision (ultimately) of the Hebrew Bible and the Jewish people—that created this nation.” Now, Gelernter says, “That Americanism is the successor of Puritanism is crucial to [understanding] anti-Americanism.”

According to the Zionist-based slant that Gelernter puts forth, modern-day European opposition to the global designs being advanced by the neo-conservative policy-makers in the Bush administration is nothing more than a current manifestation of something long past:

In the 18th century anti-Americans were conservative, monarchist and anti-Puritans. ... In the 19th century, European elites became increasingly hostile to Christianity—which inevitably entailed hostility to America.

And with a grand flourish, Gelernter lays it on the line . . .

In modern times, anti-Americanism is closely associated with anti-Christianism and anti-Semitism [Gelernter's emphasis].

All of this reflects the mindset of the Zionist elite and those who are now dictating American foreign policy in the name of a grand scheme of advancing some ill-defined global democratic revolution.

What it represents is nothing more than the New World Order that genuine American patriots warned about for generations, a scheme that is genuine “anti-Americanism” in its most basic definition.

Real Americans—and their many good friends around the globe who are rightly concerned with the rise of Zionist power in America—would make a mistake to discount the influence of such thinking: agree or disagree, this is the philosophy of the Zionist elite, however immoral and Hellish it may be.

The final result, in the Zionist grand scheme, will be the establishment of a global empire—ruled from America, The New Jerusalem.

While the “real” Jerusalem in the occupied land of Palestine may function as the spiritual capital of international Zionism, America will provide the money and the arms and the young men and women who will fight and die to make the world safe for Zionist wealth and supremacy, all in the name of “Americanism” which is now the great Jewish mask.

Thus, in the end, the thesis put forth in The New Jerusalem—that the Zionists have laid claim to America as their New Jerusalem—is not some horrific and hate-filled “anti-Jewish conspiracy theory”. In fact, according to the Zionists themselves, the concept that America is The New Jerusalem is the very foundation of Zionism in the 21st century. That conclusion is inescapable.

The question that remains is what Americans—and others worldwide—intend to do about it . . .

IS AMERICA MORE THAN JUST “THE NEW JERUSALEM”? PERHAPS IT IS TRULY . . . THE NEW BABYLON.

SOME PARTING THOUGHTS . . . THE WAVE OF THE FUTURE . . .

We close this volume confident of one thing: the material assembled in these pages is undeniably more comprehensive than anything yet seen on a topic that is perhaps the most inflammatory subject being discussed on the face of the planet today.

Hundreds of millions of people across the globe are convinced that America is, effectively, the “New Jerusalem”—the power center of world Zionism. America has emerged, beyond any question, as the proverbial “land of milk and honey”, one that—for better or worse (many would say “worse”)—far eclipses the tiny State of Israel as the jewel in the Zionist crown. It cannot be denied.

As demonstrated in the Godless, immoral and unnecessary American assault upon Iraq (with the vast destruction and devastation that followed, including the needless deaths of more than 1,000 Americans, not to mention the butchering of many thousands more), Zionist power in America has reached an unprecedented height as acknowledged by more than one Jewish historian and certainly by no less than one of the most influential newspapers in the State of Israel.

There are those, of course, who say that Zionist power in America is a natural consequence of “the free market” and a demonstration of American democracy at its best. There are others—many others—who would argue otherwise.

The assassination of John F. Kennedy was indeed a turning point in the American system, and really, for the world. Although Zionist power had long held sway in Washington and across America, the state of Israel itself was relatively new-born in 1963. However, as president, JFK was taking a strong stand against the demands of the Zionist lobby—particularly its desire to help Israel become a nuclear weapons powerhouse—and, as a consequence, paid with his life. This set the stage for a major realignment of U.S. policy toward Israel and the Arab world and likewise gave new power to the role of the Israeli lobby in Washington. And, obviously, that influence has grown by leaps and bounds ever since.

The proliferation of nuclear arms in the Arab and Muslim world has been a direct reaction to Israel's nuclear build-up—something that JFK tried to stop—and it is no exaggeration to say that had JFK succeeded in stopping Israel from achieving nuclear weapons, it is likely that the United States would never have become involved in the debacle in Iraq that resulted from Zionism's determination to hinder Saddam Hussein's efforts to build a nuclear arsenal to counter that of Israel. And the tragedy of Iraq will continue to haunt America and its people for generations.

So while the Zionist lobby remains steadfast here in America, promoting the interests of its foreign client—the State of Israel—the Zionist families and power blocs here on American soil have assembled a massive conglomeration of wealth and power that, as we have seen, has effectively made the United States, beyond question, The New Jerusalem.

The secret history of JFK's behind-the-scenes struggle with Israel is one that needs to be known far and wide if Americans—and people around the world—are to ever truly understand how and why Zionism achieved such predominance in American life.

Those Who Reign Supreme do so because—on November 22, 1963—an American president who challenged their power was put to death in a very ugly public execution in a crime that, to this day, remains unpunished. Now today, we face the reality that came as a consequence of that crime in Dallas. We must begin looking at the situation and pondering what lies ahead for America . . . and the world.

If we turn our eyes toward other modern-day nation-states, we find that the struggle against Zionist power is—just as in America—the unspoken “big secret” of the day. In some places, though, the struggle is moving very much into the open. . . .

In the Western hemisphere, we find a populist revolutionary in Venezuela—Hugo Chavez—standing up (and gleefully so) against international Zionist intrigues. It was by no means an accident that, on one occasion, Chavez proudly stood beside then-Iraqi ruler Saddam Hussein and declared that both he and Saddam were opposed by “the Pharisees”. Chavez knew precisely what he was saying. And likewise it is no accident that Chavez is now, increasingly, a target of the Zionist media.

In Asia, former Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir Muhammed shocked the world by publicly referring to the immense power of international Zionism. He was ruthlessly savaged by the media for his remarks, but everyone knew, of course, that he was right on the mark. And that is why Muhammed remains immensely popular, not only in the Muslim world, but throughout the nations of the globe where free-thinking people do not fear the truth.

In the new post-Soviet Russia, a handful of Zionist billionaires—known as “the oligarchs”—are struggling to maintain an iron grip on the Russian economy, facing a challenge from Russian President Vladimir Putin who—by taking on these powerful forces—has put his own future on the line. And needless to say, the Zionist-controlled media in the West has not welcomed Putin's measures against the oligarchs. The media vilifies Putin, calling him a throwback to the era of the Czars or that of the dreaded Stalin who—in his final days—began moving against Zionist influence in Russia, thereby bringing about his own premature demise.

(The facts about Stalin's murder were conclusively documented in 2004 by Jonathan Brent and Vladimir Naumov in Stalin's Last Crime, confirming what had been broadly and not-so-subtly hinted at, really bragged about, in Jewish publications for over 50 years.)

So whether Putin will survive the Zionist onslaught is a question the answer to which will play a major part in directing the course of Russia's future and that of the world, for the Zionists have no qualms about stoking up a new “Cold War” between the United States and Russia in order to tame Putin and ensure the survival of Zionist clout in Russia.

In the end, the struggle against inordinate Zionist power and influence and its often pernicious consequences has always been a part of history and in the United States today it could very well prove to be the critical issue of the years to come . . . or, at least, it should be.

Is it really so vital to the American system that a handful of billionaire families have a stranglehold on the Media Monopoly in America? Would it hurt Si and Donald Newhouse to be subjected to strict antimonopoly laws which would dispossess them of their vast ownership of newspapers all across America? Can't Si and Donald be happy with owning just one newspaper and one magazine—or maybe just a few?

More than one American media critic has raised concerns about growing concentration of ownership of the media, but—thus far—only a handful of independent voices (including, by the way, a Jewish-congressman, Bernie Sanders of Vermont) have seriously dared to raise the issue.

Is it likewise perhaps time to recall the warnings of the late Louisiana populist Sen. Huey P. Long who called for the redistribution of the wealth? As analysts such as Kevin Phillips, among others, have noted, the gulf between rich and poor in this country is growing exponentially, with the middle class likewise getting poorer and poorer all the time. Is it perhaps time to break up the great accumulated fortunes and take on those whom FDR referred to as “the malefactors of great wealth”?

Will the three heirs to the gigantic Mars candy fortune—worth a combined $30 billion—really suffer if they have to give up everything except for a paltry $100 million or so? And the same question can be asked—by the way—about some of the non-Jewish fortunes in America. Imagine what could be done to improve things here at home in America if even just a handful of these monumental conglomerations of wealth could be redistributed to make life better for all Americans.

No child would ever go hungry. No parents would have to struggle to put their children through college. Disease and drug abuse could be dealt with in a well-funded national campaign with resources unlike anything yet seen. No community would again go without proper health care. Elderly folks would never eat dog food in order to save money for much-needed medicines. Our nursing homes would no longer be ugly places where our seniors would be sent off to die in squalor. Our crumbling bridges and highways and railroads would be restored.

The list of what we could accomplish with an infusion of wealth taken from the hands of the super-rich is endless. Put your imagination to work. And then consider the fact that America—as a nation—could also lend a helping hand to peoples all across the globe.

This is all a dream—for the present. In fact, the Zionist elite and their allies in the upper reaches of the American ruling class, are working assiduously to ensure their own continued dominance and that their fortunes remain intact. All manner of legislation is coming down the pike, aimed at suppressing popular dissent in America.

The institution of so-called “hate crimes” laws—which are nothing less than schemes designed to counteract criticisms of Jewish influence in American policy making—along with such liberty-robbing measures as the so-called “Patriot Act” and other such legislation, are part and parcel of a long-planned program to suppress dissent and set in place a program of “thought control” with one purpose and one purpose alone: to perpetuate continuing Zionist domination of the American experiment.

While there are indications that highly-placed elements in American life—persons inside such influential policy-making institutions such as the CIA, the FBI, the State Department, the National Security Agency and the military itself—are growing restless, rightly concerned that Jewish Zionist influence on American policy is a danger to America and its place in the world, the fact remains that the preeminent Zionist control and/or influence over the American media monopoly is a force that plays a major impact in shaping the broad-ranging American psyche.

At this juncture it seems—sadly—most unlikely that the American people are, any time soon, about to rise up and elect a president and a Congress who will challenge Zionist power and what it represents.

However, if enough Americans—in enough places across this broad land—are willing to stand up and speak out and lend their support to those in positions of power, it is likely that those in high places who do have serious questions about Zionist power will be more inclined than ever before to likewise stand up and speak out on their own.

In short, we can have “revolution from above”—for revolution from below, at this time, seems highly unlikely. The first American Revolution was the product of discontented intellectuals, military leaders, and businessmen and the coming Second American Revolution will inevitably arise from the same sources.

That’s why grass-roots Americans must remain vigilant. They must continue to support independent voices in the free media and—when the time comes—rally behind those in high places who finally have the guts to say, “I’m mad as Hell and I’m not going to take it any more.”

The Wave of the Future is rolling fast toward American shores and the whole world is watching. That wave will come crashing down with a resounding roar unlike anything yet heard in history and, ultimately—whatever it takes—Americans will declare forthrightly and boldly, in no uncertain terms, that our nation is The New Jerusalem for all people—not just for a self-worshipping and clannish elite few. When that happens—and only then—can we rest assured America (and the world) will be on the real road to salvation, not on the road that Those Who Reign Supreme would have us travel . . . the road to destruction.

Counterpoint by Judy Andreas

Do not let it be said, “the Jews” are to blame for the problems of the world today. It is NOT “the Jews”! There is, however, a tiny handful of conscienceless beings devoted entirely to SELF service, who protect themselves by hiding behind a MASK of “Jewishness”, which YOU ALLOW by not living and acting in truth—and not defending it.

Do not let it be said that Judy Andreas is a “self-hating” Jew. She has found the truth and survived the gut-wrenching which follows. In the end, friends, we are all ONE and it is not so wise to throw stones.

A LETTER TO JUDY

By Judy Andreas, <JudyAndreas.com>, 11/24/05

Last week I was interviewed on Channel Islam. Prior to the interview I had my usual set of concerns. I was scheduled to speak for the first hour and to take questions from listeners during the second hour. Being far from an expert, I wondered if I had two hours worth of information and I wondered about the worth of the information I would impart. I wondered how I would be received by the audience. After all, Judy Andreas is merely an essayist who writes from her heart and feels things very deeply. I wondered if that would be good enough.

Surprisingly, the two hours flew by and there was a strong emotional connection. My words seemed to come from the deepest part of me. The callers were gracious and accepting and I felt truly welcomed.

After the interview, the host stayed on the line to tell me how well it had gone. With gratitude, I felt that I had made a small contribution towards healing.

Today, I received the following letter and asked the sender for permission to publish it. He granted it gladly, and requested that I omit his name and email address. The letter both warmed and broke my heart. I was born of Jewish parents and this man is a Muslim, yet these labels become meaningless as we meet in friendship and caring. There is no distance between us. This man is my brother.

Dear Judy

I listened to part of your interview on Channel Islam from Zambia. It was a heartwarming experience for me also.

Your statements and comments were like music to, I am sure, all the Muslim listeners of Cii.

I have the following contribution to make from a Muslim perspective.

The confrontation we are witnessing today in my opinion is not just about democracy, oil reserves, occupied Palestine & Iraq. Take the issue of wearing the head scarf for instance not only in France but also in some Muslim countries.

There was a case in Turkey recently where a Muslim lady was not allowed to wear the head scarf to university.

She took her case to the European court of human rights and lost. A female physician in France has a notice posted outside her clinic: “You are not allowed in if you’re in Hijab.” I listened to a radio programme on the BBC about the construction of a mosque somewhere in Europe. Residents of the locality signed petitions to the authorities complaining that the minaret was too high. The minaret had to be reduced from 25mtrs to 15mtrs.

So why all the fuss about religious symbols predominantly Islamic?

Islam is a complete and comprehensive way of life. Every aspect of life for a Muslim is part of religion.

There can therefore be no separation between secular and religious matters. This is why in my opinion there appears to be a confrontation with the west.

Take the prohibition on usury in Islam also referred to as interest, for example. This is an aspect for business but very much part of religion for a Muslim also. The Quran clearly forbids any transaction with usury. Muslims have therefore set up Islamic financial institutions based on profit sharing in some countries.

The way Islamic banking works is that the bank must share in the profit and loss. In other financial systems, the bank always wins. I have seen people who have lost their homes and business to banks.

The west supports despots in the middle east for many reasons. One of the reasons is to ensure Islamic parties do not come to power at any cost. There was an uprising by the Muslim Brotherhood in Syria in the ‘80s. President Assad ordered the military who massacred over 10,000. Was this reported in the media? I do not think so.

They know very well that if Islamic parties come to power they will abolish the interest system. If interest is abolished, how will the IMF and World Bank survive? The IMF and World Bank is one of the many systems put in place for global domination.

Muslims will ask authorities to take down nude bill boards near mosques as was the case in Britain recently. They are afraid that Muslims will begin asking for more Islamic identity and the west will start looking like the “Middle West”.

The news media and hollywood have already started their disinformation campaign against Islam with movies like The Siege with Denzel Washington. Have you noticed the news media always focuses its cameras on veiled women in Muslim countries.

Donald Rumsfeld, Tony Blair and Bush often say that the enemies of freedom wish to impose their medieval vision on the world.

They consider the enemies of freedom to be the Muslims and their way of life.

Islam, in my opinion, is the only ideology that stands in the way of a group some call the Illuminati who have a sinister vision to subjugate the people of the world and their natural resources.

Their major tools are the Zionist controlled news media, movie theatres (I call brainwashing halls), financial institutions and the United Nations.

Mr. Bush was hard on Ariel Sharon in a few of his press statements. A couple of days later did you see how quickly he changed his tune to "Sharon is a man of peace"? Affairs are not directed by Mr. Bush or Blair. People are not aware of this because they only see and hear the voices of Mr. Blair and Bush.

Algeria is another good example. The Islamic party there was poised to win an election when the commanders in the military backed by France stepped in and canceled the election. The Muslim Brotherhood in Egypt is a religious party with popular support. They are banned from taking part in elections. Their candidates have to stand as independents. I guarantee you 100% that they would come to power if they were allowed to take part in elections. The same goes for Hamas in Palestine.

In Zambia, construction of a mosque was halted by the authorities when the building had reached window level. Permission for the mosque was granted, then later revoked while construction was underway. Do you see how events in the media have influenced the decision of the Zambian government to prevent the construction of a mosque?

I have concluded beyond any reasonable doubt that the war on terror is actually a cover for a war on Islam.

Thank you for the Cii interview. We look forward to you coming on air again. It is pleasing to know that more and more people are becoming aware of this global conspiracy.

Yours faithfully,

LIVE PEACE..... BE PEACE

By Judy Andreas, <JudyAndreas.com>, 11/27/05

Some people think it's a miracle to walk on water. I think it is a miracle to walk on the earth in peace.—Thich Nhat Hahn

Most people know who Cindy Sheehan is. Most people have read how this incredible woman has taken the tragic loss of her son, Casey, who died in Iraq for a war based on lies, greed and corruption, and turned it into a mobilizing heroic effort. Cindy has transmuted violence into peace by example. Whether she is a Democrat or a Republican becomes irrelevant. Whether she is a Catholic or a Buddhist becomes irrelevant. Cindy is more than a label; she is greater than that. She has taken an "unspeakable" event and given everyone a mirror in which to reflect. How many of us have the courage to look?

Recently, Cindy gave a speech at Riverside Church in New York City. Reflecting on that event, she said:

In a speech I delivered at the Riverside Church in NYC on the one year anniversary of Casey's death, which was also the 37th anniversary of MLK Jr's death, I said: we must all do one thing for peace each day. I now know that is not enough. We must live peace and embody peace if we want peace on earth. Our entire lives must be for peace. Not just one activity a day.

I saw Cindy Sheehan in the audience at a lecture I attended at The Ethical Culture Society in New York. After the lecture, I, and many others, went to greet her; to thank her, to hug her. The admiring throng was honored to be in her presence, to "touch the robes of a Master", to share the same space with someone who, indeed, "walks the talk".

And yet, how many people truly understood what they were feeling as they greeted Cindy? How many people merely intellectualized her words and her behavior and returned to their lives unchanged; lives peppered with hatred, anger, cruelty and violent words.

While the intellect rules the planet and emotions are twisted and distorted, misused and abused, Cindy's words will remain merely "words". The intellect cannot grasp who she is or hear beyond her words. Cindy is talking about a way of life. Cindy is talking about a moment to moment experience. Cindy Sheehan is a personification of the heart, and the heart is the one organ which remains covered in our culture.

This woman has been misused by people who hang on a fragment of what she is and what she is saying. For these people, she becomes a wonderful platform upon which to build their vitriolic rants. Her actions get distorted into fuel for the personal fires of their rage.

It is time for all of us to stand naked in front of the mirror. It is time to throw away the defensive layer of flesh which keeps us out of touch with reality. It is time to throw away the drugs and the cigarettes and the booze. These are merely props in the play of self imposed isolation. They are keeping us isolated from our true nature. We cling to them as we cling to a lover. And though they may temporarily blur the pain, the pain is always there. Why do you fear it? Why don't you get to know it? Why don't you go deeply into it? Stop running from it. Embrace it. Befriend your pain, your loneliness, your shadow nature, and, if you have the courage, you may become an authentic being. If you have the courage, your words will no longer ring hollow. Your life will become an example for everyone. You will have learned why you admire Cindy Sheehan.

We are a great deal more than we think we are. Do not be so quick to believe that reality is only what you can touch and taste. Do not get caught in the illusion of the three dimensional world. Do not dismiss the power of thought. Do not become an unwitting agent of your own destruction. Do not believe that your angry words, spoken under the guise of "peace", and your unkind actions to "the least of your brethren" do not affect the entire world. Do not dismiss my words as you reach for another cigarette. Do not dismiss the ancient wisdom because your eyes cannot see over the belly which you stuff to numb the feelings you are afraid to confront.

It is time to stop the violence.

Yesterday, I stood on a street corner with a group ... protesting the war in Iraq. A man called an obscenity from a passing car and one of the "peaceniks" hurled an invective at the passing motorist. She laughed at her comment which had attacked the size of his manhood. Do you see the irony? Do you see the hypocrisy?

We must live peace and embody peace if we want peace on earth. Our entire lives must be for peace.—Cindy Sheehan

First, some confirmation of the dangers of the Tamiflu vaccination from Dr. Mercola.

[QUOTING, emphasis added:]

FLU DRUG IS KILLING PEOPLE

By Dr. Joseph Mercola, <Mercola.com>, 11/22/05

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is investigating reports that the deaths of 12 Japanese children may be linked to the anti-viral drug Tamiflu. The possibility has caused alarm, since millions of doses of the drug are currently being stockpiled for use in a potential flu pandemic.

...Tamiflu has also been linked to neuropsychiatric incidents in children, including seizures, loss of consciousness, and delirium.

...The reports mention incidents including:

- A 14-year-old boy with flu took a dose of Tamiflu and two hours later fell from the ninth floor of his apartment building.

- Another child, hours after taking a dose, jumped from the second floor of his house into deep snow.

...[I]t is important to realize that the reason Tamiflu side effects may show up earlier in Japan is that Tamiflu is used 12 times more frequently in Japan than in the United States. ...

Dr. Mercola's Comment:

... Earlier this year the United States placed an order for 20 million doses of this worthless drug at a price of $100 per dose. That comes to a staggering $2 billion. It was abundantly clear that this drug was not going to help anyone with the flu, and now we find out that this drug has a serious potential of killing children that take it.

To add insult to injury, the drug companies have made a sweet arrangement with the U.S. government that they are not liable for any of the side effects from the drugs. President Bush's $7.1-billion pandemic flu plan seeks broad limits on lawsuits against producers of vaccines and antiviral drugs, but is silent on how those injured or killed by adverse reactions might be compensated.

... So, even if these drugs or vaccines wind up killing innocent children, these companies will not be held liable. But you don't have to worry as on Saturday the FDA announced that Tamiflu was safe. Of course, this is the same agency that gave Vioxx its safely blessing before it killed 55,000 people.

When Tamiflu kills U.S. children, Roche will plead that they had no idea it could do such a thing! They will claim reports such as this one out of Japan were unverified, and that there was no way they could have known it was a problem.

It just doesn't get much worse than that. When will America wake up and say enough is enough?

... If you want to avoid catching the flu, drugs and vaccines are not the answer. Your body and health are better served by addressing the reasons why the immune system is impaired, which allows it to acquire the infection to begin with. ...

GM JOB CUTS WILL DEVASTATE U.S.-CANADA CITIES

By J. Kay and B. Grey, <WSWS.org>, 11/24/05

General Motors' plan to eliminate 30,000 hourly jobs by 2008, announced Monday in Detroit, will have devastating consequences for cities in the United States and Canada, and its ripple effects will hit working-class communities throughout the two countries. The closure of twelve facilities will reduce the auto maker's manufacturing jobs in North America by nearly a third.

Taken together with hourly and salaried job cuts already announced this year by GM, Ford and the auto parts makers Delphi and Visteon, Monday's announcement brings the total of auto jobs targeted for destruction to 60,000, and this does not take into account the impact of Ford's downsizing plan, to be made public in January. The number two U.S. auto maker has made clear that it intends to eliminate thousands of jobs and permanently close a number of factories.

Since 2000, more than 100,000 hourly and salaried automotive jobs have been eliminated in the U.S....

Studies show that each job at a U.S. auto factory supports seven jobs at other businesses nearby. That means the elimination of 60,000 auto jobs in the U.S.

and Canada will result in a total job loss of well over 400,000. ...

Thousands of jobs will be lost in southeastern Ontario, Canada. GM announced that it will close its Oshawa No. 2 plant by 2008, eliminating 2,500 jobs. It will also eliminate a shift at its No.1 plant, leading to a loss of an additional 1,000 jobs. About 140 jobs will be lost with the shutdown of a parts plant in St. Catharines, Ontario.

An article in the Toronto Globe and Mail on Tuesday noted that the entire economy of the region will suffer. "About half of Canada's critical auto parts industry lies exposed to the shock waves emanating from the planned closing," the newspaper reported. According to the article, GM contracts are responsible for half of the 100,000 jobs in the Canadian auto parts industry. An estimated 12,000 jobs in the parts industry may be eliminated as a result of the job cuts at GM.

The economic impact will extend beyond these parts jobs to wider sections of the economy. "Jan Myers, chief economist for Canadian Manufactures & Exporters," the Globe and Mail reported, "estimates that about nine jobs are created directly in Canada for every auto assembly position. That means the sector generates about 20 to 25 per cent of the total jobs in Canadian manufacturing."

Outside of the U.S. Midwest and Canada, several major plants will be closed in southern states. GM will sharply scale back production at its Saturn plant in Spring Hill, Tennessee, resulting in some 1,500 job losses. Over 2,500 jobs will be eliminated in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma when a plant there is closed in 2006. And 3,000 workers will lose their jobs in Doraville, Georgia, just outside of Atlanta. ...

RUSSIAN CENTRAL BANK COULD INCREASE GOLD IN RESERVES

RIA Novosti, 11/24/05

MOSCOW—The Russian Central Bank could increase the share of gold in the national gold and currency reserves, a senior bank official said Thursday.

First Deputy Chairman of the Central Bank Alexei Ulyukayev said the bank would be purchasing gold "on all markets on which it is available", meaning both domestic and foreign markets.

He also said the bank has not been increasing the share of gold in the past few years and confirmed a $60-billion increase in gold and currency reserves by year's end.

On November 22, Russian President Vladimir Putin said he was in favor of putting more precious metals in the Central Bank's gold and foreign currency reserves.

THE GATHERING WINDS

By Peter Whoriskey, Washington Post, 11/27/05

First, there was Opal (1995). Then Fran (1996), Floyd (1999) and Allison (2001).

But the string of deadly billion-dollar storms blowing in from the Atlantic was far from over.

In 2004, the quartet of Charley, Frances, Ivan and Jeanne ravaged Florida in rapid succession and set records for damage.

Then, somehow, it got worse.

With Katrina, the inundation of New Orleans and an Atlantic storm season so active it stretched forecasters beyond the normal alphabetical list of names into the Greek of Alpha, Beta and Gamma, 2005 racked up more storm deaths and destruction than the previous 10 years—combined.

... "People talk about what is 'normal' for hurricanes, but there's a new definition of 'normal' now," said Roger Pielke Jr., an environmental studies professor at the University of Colorado. "This is out of people's range of experience. But there will be far more activity and far more destruction."

... "We have to decide as a society whether that's a problem," Pielke said. "Obviously, the benefits of living near the coast outweigh the costs [for some people, who seem to not value their own lives] because people are doing it. The question is: In the face of inevitable property damage and loss of life, how well do we prepare?"

"Either way," he noted, "we are going to see many more years of intense hurricanes. ..."

... In September, a group of scientists led by Peter Webster at Georgia Tech found that, worldwide, the number of the strongest hurricanes—categories 4 and 5—has nearly doubled over the past 35 years. The authors aligned the finding with global warming and a rise in sea surface temperatures. ...

The North American tectonic plate is under tremendous pressure, to the extent that deep-underground fracturing is being detected at the surface as a series of 'booms'. Methane gases released from the depths have been detected at numerous locations around the continent but primarily in the Northeast and near the West Coast, where new underwater volcanic activity has also been reported. We turn to Sorcha Faal for further documentation of recent geophysical activity.

[QUOTING, emphasis added:]

U.S. PREPARES FOR 'CATASTROPHIC EVENT'...

By Sorcha Faal, <WhatDoesItMean.com>, 11/26/05

On a day that Americans strangely refer to as 'Black Friday', and which is a day that sees their descent into an orgy of consumption, spending money they do not even possess, Russian Scientists have issued one of their strongest warnings, and repeating earlier ones, that the fracturing of the North American Plate has accelerated in these past weeks, and leading to yet another violent volcanic eruption on the periphery on the Continent, and as we can read as reported by the Reuters News Service in their article titled "Colombia's Galeras volcano erupts" and which says: "One of Colombia's largest volcanoes has erupted, spewing huge amounts of ash and sulphur fumes. Pasto, the city that lies immediately below the Galeras volcano, is home to nearly half a million people. The evacuation of the area began days ago, but many farmers are still refusing to vacate their homes. The volcano, part of the Andes mountains, last erupted 12 years ago, killing nine people, including scientists who were monitoring it."

Occurring almost simultaneously to this volcanic eruption in Colombia was an antipode (a direct or diametrical opposite) counterpart in the Indian Ocean, and as we can read as reported by the Reuters News Service in their article titled "Comoros volcano spews ash over capital" and which says, "A volcano spewed ash in its second eruption this year in the Indian Ocean Comoros islands, sending hundreds of villagers fleeing in fear the mountain could unleash a river of lava, witnesses said. Mount Karthala, a 2,361-metre (7,746-foot) volcano, sent clouds of ash and sparks flying late on Thursday, leaving the capital Moroni and other villages on the main island of Grande Comore covered in grey."

Further evidence of the continued stresses building upon the North American Plate we can see from these various reports over the past few weeks:

- As reported by the Associated Press News Service in their November 17th article titled "Small earthquake strikes Massachusetts" and which says, "A minor earthquake shook a section of Plymouth this afternoon. Officials with the Weston Observatory, which monitors earthquake activity, say the two-point-five registered tremor was centered two miles south of the center of town. According to the observatory's Web site, the quake was felt just after 12:30 this afternoon."

- As reported by the Post and Courier News Service in their November 20th article titled "Quake surprises Summerville [South Carolina]" and which says, "The boom heard across much of Summerville, and the vibration that followed, was actually a little earthquake, the second this year in the area, according to Pete Jenkins, director of the Earthquake Center at Charleston Southern University. The quake, which struck about 3 p.m. Saturday, raised eyebrows and worried children, but caused no damage. The U.S. Geological Survey took note of the event but did not report its magnitude as of late Saturday."

- As reported by the KOMO TV News Service in their November 23rd article titled "4.1 Quake Rattles Bellingham Area" and which says, "A small earthquake shook the area around Deming in Whatcom County Wednesday. There were no initial reports of any injuries or property damage. In the first half hour after the quake, 25 people reported feeling it, describing the shaking as moderate. Some people who called the media reported hearing a loud boom before the quake."

- As reported by the Associated Press News Service in their November 23rd article titled "Tiny earthquake shakes St. Louis region" and which says, "No major damage was reported after a minor earthquake shook the St. Louis region. The tiny quake [2.5 magnitude], centered 10 miles southeast of St. Louis, struck around 11 p.m. Tuesday in East St. Louis, Ill., said Waverly Person, a geophysicist at the National Earthquake Information Center in Denver."

- As reported by the Thunder Bay Chronicle News Service in their November 25th article titled "Big bang shakes up Dryden area" and which says, "What seismologists are calling a 'small' 1.5 magnitude earthquake, also reported that the couple heard a deafening bang, like a sonic boom or explosion."

Not just to the increasing frequency of these earthquakes upon the North American Plate, but also to the 'Boom' noises being reported that are accompanying them are most significant according to these reports as these 'booms' are the indicators of earthquakes of massive plate fracturing, and not associated with normal earthquake movements.

More concerning are the reports from the United States New Madrid Fault Zone Region where these 'Booms' are being heard without an accompanying earthquake, and as we can read as reported by the KTVO TV News Service in their 'sanitized' November 25th article titled "Explanation found for mysterious boom" and which says, "The mystery surrounding a loud, explosion-like noise that had much of Northeast Missouri talking Tuesday afternoon is now solved. It was apparently a sonic boom, an explosive sound caused by the shock wave preceding an aircraft traveling at or above the speed of sound."

These reports further state that the only modern day comparison to the earthquake events occurring within the North American Plate today are those of this past year's

9.3 magnitude Sumatra earthquake catastrophe, and of which we can read, "This was no small earthquake. It ruptured the planet along 750 miles (1,200 kilometers) of fault. Scientists estimate the Indian plate slipped 33 to 50 feet (10 to 15 meters) under the Burma microplate. The fault shook for at least eight minutes. A typical large earthquake lasts 30 seconds or so. Earth's very gravity balance was altered, and the North Pole shifted by an inch."

Not being reported to the American people are how rare in fact these earthquake 'booms' are, and as we can read as reported by the United States Terra Research Institute in their report titled "Mystery of 'The Earthquake Boom': a real earthquake" and which says:

Earthquake Boom is a very loud, deep sounding explosion, which emanates from the earth. If directly above emanation, directional determination may be difficult as sound is not from a distinct direction as it is from a wide area of earth's surface. It is a higher frequency audio form of the traditional shaking earthquake even though current seismographs cannot "see" or "record" them.

Scalar devices are able to clearly "see" these events along with the rest of the earthquake "family" of earth-generated events such as the "silent" or "slow" earthquake. Another relative to the "family" is the earth "lurch" and a "fast version of slow" earthquake—these yet to be discovered by mainstream science. These loud explosions have been witnessed by many over the years. They also accompany traditional earthquakes as these are part of the mix of seismic activity.

City residents of Spokane, Washington in the summer of 2001 experienced a classic series of explosions (earthquake booms) and earthquakes in a flurry of shallow earthquake swarms. Seismologists were unable to record these booming events on seismographs.

... In order to control the mass panic and chaos these catastrophic events will soon visit upon their citizens, the United States Government is also reported to be cracking down even further in their attempt to stifle internal dissent, and using both political and Bird Flu pandemic fears to mask their true motivations ...

On this day that these Americans call Black Friday, the evidence of their heeding the warnings for their preparing for these events, even those warnings from their own government officials, and who have told them it is their Civic Duty to be prepared, continues to show their non compliance. But, how soon they will be faced, not with just a Black Friday, but a Black World, they do not recognize. For as some Russian Scientists speculate, their time for preparation should no longer be measured in months, or years, but perhaps only in weeks....or days.

GLOBAL WARMING: CARBON DIOXIDE LEVELS HIGHEST FOR 650,000 YEARS

Agence France Presse, 11/24/05

Levels of carbon dioxide, the principal gas that drives global warming, are now 27 percent higher than at any point in the last 650,000 years, according to research into Antarctic ice cores published on Thursday [in the journal, Science].

... The evidence comes from the world's deepest ice core, drilled at a site called Dome Concordia (Dome C) in East Antarctica by European scientists ...

Volcanic eruptions that disgorge CO2 and other greenhouse gases, oscillations in the planet's axial spin and minor changes in its orbit can have a major impact on surface temperatures, sometimes plunging Earth into prolonged Ice Ages, the last of which ended some 11,000 years ago.

... In the past five years, the average global temperature has risen by 0.2 C (0.36 F)—100 times higher than is normal for such a short time scale—and 2005 is on course for being the hottest year on record.

Glaciers in the Alps, Greenland and the Himalayas are shrinking and ice shelves are cracking in the Antarctic peninsula in what appear to be early signs of dangerous climate change, according to recent studies.

... In the most extreme scenarios, global warming could drive up sea levels and drown coastal cities, cause floods, droughts and freak storms, and create tens of millions of "climate refugees".

NEVADA CORPORATIONS:

Built-In War Chest For NV Corporations

Budget's "Tip of the Week" #4:

NRS 78.752—Insurance and other financial arrangements against liability of directors, officers, employees and agents

In this very litigious society, anyone can sue anyone for almost any reason at any time. Corporations are not exempt from being sued but anyone suing a Nevada corporation could be surprised at just how resistant to attack Nevada corporate structures can be. (Important side note: To avail your Nevada corporation of the protection inherent in Nevada's statutes, you should always ensure that the other party to any contract agrees that the contract is made in Nevada and any disputes are to be resolved according to the laws of Nevada.)

Let's look at a provision of Nevada law that affords a Nevada-based C corporation amazing defensive capabilities: NRS 78.752, which was added in 1987. Here's how it begins (emphasis added):

1. A corporation may purchase and maintain insurance or make other financial arrangements on behalf of any person who is or was a director, officer, employee or agent of the corporation, or is or was serving at the request of the corporation as a director, officer, employee or agent of another corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise for any liability asserted against him and liability and expenses incurred by him... or arising out of his status as such, whether or not the corporation has the authority to indemnify him against such liability and expenses....

Paragraph 2 states that "other financial arrangements" may include the creation of a trust fund; the establishment of a program of self-insurance; the securing of its obligation of indemnification by granting a security interest or other lien on any assets of the corporation; and/or the establishment of a letter of credit, guaranty or surety. Specifically excluded from this protection are "...intentional misconduct, fraud or a knowing violation of law...". In paragraph 4, we find that "In the absence of fraud... the decision of the board of directors... is conclusive...".

Thus, when a Nevada corporation is sued and the litigant names as co-defendants any of the officers, directors, employees or agents of the corporation, the corporation is entitled by NRS 78.752 to set aside funds for the liability asserted. Since many suits "go for broke", quite literally, a Nevada corporation can often set aside ALL of its assets so that they may be used to defend itself. At best, the attacker is likely to end up with a "mouthful of dirt", as the Nevada corporation defends itself to its utmost.

Sometimes it is just as important what the statutes do NOT say. Next week, we'll examine some key provisions NOT included in Nevada's corporate statutes, which greatly enhance PRIVACY aspects.
