The Military Route For Infecting A Nation
With Deadly Bugs Through Deceit

MEANWHILE, BACK TO THE GULF WAR ILLNESS

I realize that we can’t become THE paper for the Gulf War problems but truth moves beyond that which is buried and must be shared so that no longer can a hiding place be found to stuff the lies and intents of Elite men and women who would be Kings, who receive and accept bribes and then deliberately allow death to mankind.

NEW HIV STRAIN

Within the past few days has come an announcement so important as to boggle all minds, medical and otherwise, and so serious as to merit the world stopping to look and see the seriousness of the matter – but no, you get massive headlines over “fake fat” for fat and weight reduction but NOTHING is said past the first announcement about the HIV strain now running rampant.

It is a strain never seen before and especially affects pregnant women, is a heterosexually transmitted virus “apparently contagious through several carriers...”, whatever that means, and “comes from Zaire where Ebola is prevalent”— AND “there is no treatment!” “In addition,” it is stated, “There are over 15 cases in the military hospital in Long Beach (Calif.).” It is, however, “realized that there are hundreds of cases walking around which will begin to have serious symptoms in

MORE CONFIRMATION ON DEPPOPULATION

Recently newspapers across the country carried the Associated Press release whose headline warned: Infectious diseases on rise throughout America, world. Although this report does not prepare the populace to prevent or to deal effectively with a deadly pandemic, it does have mind-control value—it prepares the mind to accept the concept and its eventual reality. Articles of this type have been recurring with rebound, killing thousands more Americans, surviving potent virus suddenly began killing hundreds of thousands, older people between 1989 and 1992, and a snapshot of middle America found antibiotic resistance growing fast. That doesn't mean people should panic, Lederberg emphasized. Instead, the finding should persuade world governments and drug makers to fund research to fight back.

WASHINGTON—Infectious diseases are a global problem, killing thousands more Americans, surviving potent antibiotics and possibly evolving into stronger bugs as the climate changes, a coalition of doctors warned Tuesday. The world is “more vulnerable than ever before,” said Nobel laureate Joshua Lederberg, who led a call for global battle against infections.

The development of antibiotics once had doctors predicting infectious diseases would be conquered by now. Instead, in the past decade new infections such as the AIDS virus suddenly began killing hundreds of thousands, older diseases like tuberculosis returned and bacteria began evolving to defy treatment.

Tuesday, doctors in 21 countries published 242 studies to illustrate the scope of the threat. Among the most alarming: The U.S. death rate from infectious diseases rose 58 percent between 1989 and 1992, and a snapshot of middle America found antibiotic resistance growing fast. That doesn't mean people should panic, Lederberg emphasized. Instead, the finding should persuade world governments and drug makers to fund research to fight back. [Note the two options presented: panic and/or get the government/drug companies (creators of the problem) to do something. Nowwhere is it suggested that we educate ourselves and take effective, natural measures to protect ourselves.]

Tuesday, infectious diseases became the third-leading killer of Americans in 1992, claiming more than 166,000 lives, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported. Mortality from septicemia, a rapid form of bacterial blood poisoning, increased 83 percent, and deaths from respiratory tract infections rose 20 percent.

In Columbus, Ohio, antibiotic resistance is rising among patients with a dangerous form of bacterial pneumonia that spreads to the blood stream, reported Dr. Joseph Plouffe of Ohio State University.

K-9 UNITS TO SNIF OUT CANCER

The next two articles weaken any confidence I might have had in the medical establishment's ability to restore the world to a state of health. They are always back ing the wrong tree! This article appeared in the January 15 issue of THE ORLANDO SENTINEL.

TALLAHASSEE—The dermatologist and the dog trainer watched as George the award-winning schnauzer sniffed a patient, sniffing until he came to a suspected cancerous mole. The dog sniffed hard, then sat down. "Show me," said trainer Duane Pickel. The dog lifted his paw and gently touched the mole.

The dog correctly identified cancer in at least four of the seven volunteers, and perhaps five depending on how one test is interpreted, Pickel said. Now it's up to medical peers to review the results, said Cognetta, who still has his doubts about the role of dogs in finding cancer.

"It's possible that they might be able to find other cancers, or detect other diseases in Third World countries without high-tech medical equipment. [Good grief! More of the same medical theology of "if it's not broken, then fix it and burn."]

UMBILICAL-CORD BLOOD BANKS

This recent Associated Press offering demonstrates that the dog is a scentless, deadly supply of "what's wrong" to back up—or at best, expensive long shots, [quoting:]

WASHINGTON—Alexander Goldman was a healthy newborn, but doctors drained his still-pulsating umbilical cord and raced to deep-freeze the precious drops—just in case he ever needs the blood. Private companies are signing up pregnant women such as Alexander's mother nationwide to freeze their babies' umbilical cord blood in the hopes it might fight lethal diseases that attack the children later in life. Scientists caution these transplants are highly experimental and the government is about to regulate them, but some mothers say it's biological insurance they can't refuse. "If it doesn't work, you know you tried everything for your child," said Alexander's mother, Cathy Goldman of Charleston, Mass. "If doctors say to me one day, 'Unfortunately you didn't have any cord blood,' how would I feel?"

Cord blood is a rich source of stem cells, the building blocks that produce blood cells. Certain diseases and cancer chemotherapy destroy these stem cells, meaning patients need a transplant to survive. But cord blood has not yet been proven a better alternative to bone-marrow transplants in most patients. And only one in 10,000 babies will develop a disease treatable by cord blood, said transplant pioneer Dr. Pablo Rubenstein of the non-profit New York Blood Center. Still, at least four U.S. companies are recruiting pregnant women to freeze and store their babies' umbilical cord cells. They charge $300 to $1,300 up front, with yearly storage fees of $75 to $150.

BETA CAROTENE BASHING

The headline reads: Beta carotene pills don't help, may hurt, new studies indicate. From the THE ANTELOPE VALLEY EDITION OF THE (Los Angeles) DAILY NEWS, [quoting:]

Two large studies have found that, contrary to the belief among millions of Americans who take it, beta carotene, a vigorously promoted vitamin supplement, is completely ineffective in preventing cancer or heart disease. One of the studies found that it might even be harmful to some people. Federal health officials said they hoped this would spell the end of the beta carotene fad. The idea that a simple supplement capsule might fend off cancer and other diseases, they said, has simply proved too good to be true. [Mainstream medicine is based on the idea that, if it's COMPLICATED, expensive, and controlled, the better!] "With clearly no benefit and even a hint of possible harm, I can see no reason that an individual should take beta carotene," said Dr. Richard Klauser, director of the National Cancer Institute.

The institute financed both studies. [He who pays the piper calls the tune!]

Beta carotene occurs naturally in fruits and vegetables and is converted to vitamin A in the body. The cancer institute recommends that, rather than taking supplements, people eat low-fat diets abundant in fruits and vegetables, whose hundreds of substances combined might foster the disease protection that has been sought in beta carotene. [Granted, it is always best to keep it simple—by eating foods in their natural state and creation. The more mankind meddling, the less the value of the food. Unfortunately, it has become increasingly difficult to find REAL food, raised in mineral-rich, pesticide-free soil. So we are forced to supplement our diets.]

One of the beta carotene studies, the Physicians' Health Study, involved 22,071 doctors who were randomly assigned to take 50 milligrams of beta carotene or a dummy pill every other day. The study ended Dec. 31, after 12 years, with the conclusion that beta carotene supplements did not protect against cancer or heart disease. [No surprise there! Betacarotene is no silver bullet and could not be expected to neutralize the long list of health destroying lifestyle and dietary habits of most Americans (doctors included). It's interesting how such tests are set up: in the second study all the subjects were at high risk for lung cancer because they smoked or had worked with asbestos.]

To underscore the importance of the new findings, Klauser announced them at a news conference Thursday at the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., without waiting for the usual publication in a medical journal. [Humph!]

VIRUS USED TO CONTROL TOAD PLAGUE IN AUSTRALIA

From the January 21 issue of THE ORLANDO SENTINEL, [quoting:]

Scientists hope a virus from Venezuela will save a pristine tropical wetland wilderness from a plague of South American cane toads. The brown amphibians, which have poisonous skin, were brought to Australia in the 1930s when farmers hoped they would rid sugar cane crops of destructive insects. [More meddling. Destructive insects usually attack standard crops raised on depleted soil—it's nature's way of getting rid of its mistakes.] Without natural predators, the toads multiplied. Now millions are found across northeastern Australia. Researchers are checking to see if they have killed one of more than the toad. Lab tests will be conducted to test their effectiveness. [Then will we need to devise something to combat out-of-control iridoviruses?]

MUTANT BUCKS

Shades of the cane toad plague! From the December 26 issue of THE MODesto BEE, [quoting:]

Klausner, director of the National Cancer Institute. [Something they picked up from the Project Monarch?]

But this multilegged menagerie is heading for legal flypaper. Biotech! Crickets! Biocontrol! Mutant toads are building better bugs. After spending years struggling with the technical difficulties of adding new genes to arthropods—the group of organisms that includes insects, spiders and mites—scientists at last have succeeded in making genetically engineered bugs and are preparing to release their first creations. Last month, University of Florida entomologist Marjorie A. Hoy became the first to ask the U.S. Department of Agriculture for permission to release genetically altered arthropods into an outdoor test plot. The agency is now considering that request, which involves a genetically enhanced line of beneficial "predator mites." The tiny, wingless, eight-legged creatures are about the size of the period at the end of this sentence and feed on spider mites, their crop-damaging cousins. Other researchers are putting finishing touches on engineered insects that may be ready for maiden flights next year, including cotton-crossing moths that scientists have endowed with "suicide genes."
New Slaves

NEW SLAVES!

I have new slaves this day and, since no one comes and volunteers this information, I have to realize what I am viewing to see the signs and recognize the gift. I have to ask that the letter from JEROME E. SCHAFFER be run in its own format [see below] for I do note that I may have to return the gift for it does not bear my name in activity. It is interesting that one who judges so quickly, after a few papers, a being, a person or a thing—and sees a name written so many times—might at the least not misspell the label. Ah, but “signs must be worn” is the word of God, in all things. However, since someone at CONTACT forwarded the letter to me (which by the way was mailed in Salem, OR) I have to assume it does have focus on me.

This person in point, Mr. Schaffer, has a heading across his paper which reads: “The moment I begin to hate a man, I become his slave, he fills my thoughts and burdens me with stress.” It is obvious that this man has voluntarily become my slave and so it goes...! And in response? We shall surely and gratefully miss Mr. Schaffer’s presence and when he asks God to relieve his “stress” I would guess that God might well say “no”. Stress is that which you place upon self when you trust neither self nor GOD.

With the last three issues of Contact I have received notice that my subscription has run out. I am happy with this, please do not send any more. I subscribed this last time for the purpose of seeing what information you would provide on several current happenings and have found very little to be offered.

I felt that I could ignore Haton’s blathering garbage but this last issue on page five he has put out such lying blasphemy I cannot ignore it. I have a word or two for him.

Haton you are as phony as a three dollar bill and worth less. You are a deceiver and of your father the devil, nothing etheric about you, just an evil spirited, possessed, utterly stupid and blasphemous man of this earth. There is no forgiveness for the blasphemy you have spewed forth.

Christianity is not a religion, it is an abiding faith. It is a personal, private and intimate covenant between each individual and Jesus Christ. A matter of receiving the spirit and the mind of Christ through the gift of faith freely given by God the Creator as His choice, not yours.

Jesus is the name of the MAN of flesh born of the water, Christ is the spiritual Son of God after the order of Melchizedek, born of God, who is God. There is none other name under Heaven whereby man might be saved. The whole story and a lot more is recorded in the book of history and prophecy called the Christian Bible. The story and history of Jesus is recorded by several witnesses. Jesus is the only begotten Son of God, the first of the manifested ones. The believers in Him are called Christians today along with millions of other organized and misled ones who call themselves Christians. They are the only ones in recorded history to have one who publicly demonstrated the power of the spirit and made it real as their God.

There are the spirits of just men made perfect and the Angels of God but there are no spiritual beings of God running around loose. The dead are dead and know nothing, the only spiritual beings around are those demons, imps, devils and evil ones from Satan, choreographed and controlled by him. Which are you Haton?

You are disgusting and unworthy of the time to enlighten you further.

Have a nice day at Contact, keeping Haton in his cage will help I think.

Dr. John Coleman:

Beware Of The Internet

From the July 1995 issue of Dr. John Coleman's WORLD IN REVIEW, [quoting:]

"The intelligence agencies are surfing the Internet," I was told in November 1994. Since then, I have been investigating exactly what this means, and what I discovered is quite disturbing. The first thing I learned about Internet is that there are no frontiers, no borders, no barriers in CyberSpace. The second thing is that the National Security Agency (NSA), the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) regularly and systematically surf Internet looking for what they call "servers of sensitive information" which could mean anyone providing information that the federal government does not want you to have.

The third thing I found is that foreign intelligence friends of the United States can patch into American servers at anytime they want, and that cooperation between the intelligence agencies and law enforcement officials of most Western countries, and just plain government snoopers, is very strong.

The snoopers have gone to Congress to warn of the dire dangers they say will come to our shores from "Islamic fundamentalist terrorists". This has become the catch-all rationale behind demands for greater and greater snooping powers for government agencies, with a corresponding whittling away of the protection afforded by the 4th and 5th Amendments to the United States Constitution. The enemies of our Republic were successful in getting the Omnibus Counterterrorist Act passed, which contains among other provisions, the "guilty by association" provision found in the former and to the recent hearings on Capitol Hill at which Freeh appeared as a witness, and the love-fest between him and the Clinton/Schumer legislation to destroy the Constitution of the United States. The vast, unremedied information field created by Internet is now the main battleground between the Bill of Rights and U.S. intelligence agencies, the FBI, and law enforcement agencies of every hue and stripe. And what a battleground it is, with no end in sight, until the snoopers get what they want via government edicts, which look and sound remarkably like those contained in the constitution of the former USSR, of which I have a correctly translated copy. The FBI wants immediate controls slapped on Internet. As a result of the scare tactic used on Capitol Hill, Socialist Rep. Charles Schmerl succeeded beyond his fondest hopes in getting the Omnibus Counterterrorist Act tabled before the Congress. And worse yet, FBI Director Freeh is demanding that Congress give him unlimited powers to stop citizens from using encryption codes to protect their privacy, both electronic and telephonic, as if he has the right to know everything about every citizen. Again, I watched one of the recent hearings on Capitol Hill at which Freeh appeared as a witness, and the love-fest between him and certain Republican Party legislators, does not auger well for the Bill of Rights.

This love-fest is being done under the guise of "fighting terrorism", and in support of this contention, the government mentions a number of Muslim organizations operating legally and lawfully in the United States. Freeh wants these organizations to be prevented from sending their information over Internet. Sighted out for special attention was the Committee for Constitutional Rights, which regularly denounces the corrupt dictatorship run by King Fahd of Saudi Arabia.

One fact which is just beginning to emerge is that a number of private companies are using spy programs to snoop on their subscribers and users. They want to help their companies—and probably the FBI—to identify "servers" and to track the way they use services like Internet, CompuServe. The excuse is that they need the information to draw up a proper profile of each consumer. This is more than likely then fed to the FBI. the NSA and the CIA if anyone comes up profiled as a possible "terrorist" or a supporter of "terrorist" causes.

You could fall into this category if, for instance, you are anti-abortion, pro-2nd Amendment, anti-Cia or any other group that has agencies like the NSA, the CIA and the FBI want their own snooping programs providing profiles of "suspect servers", intelligence sources told me that it is more than likely that agency files are being supplemented by private companies.

Indeed, we are already in a technocratic, electronic concentration camp.

Let not be silent about what this does: It tramples on the fundamental rights of freedom of speech, and the right to privacy in our homes, and in our papers.

ANY movement could be dubbed "subversive" in terms of intelligence agencies" surfing" Internet and in terms of the Schmerl/Clinton bill. What are "We, the People" going to do about these flagrant violations of the Constitution?

CONTACT: The Phoenix Project

CONTACT is a unique and inspired newspaper for concerned citizens everywhere, though it particularly focuses on the United States because of this country's special mission in the affairs of the world. That is, "As goes the United States, so goes the world."

CONTACT is a vehicle for Commander Gyeorgos Ceres Hatonn's most recent writings on important current affairs, plus those from other Enlightening sources, on matters critical to a responsible and informed public at this time of planetary transition and final days of battle between the Forces of Light and the "Evil Empire" forces of darkness.

CONTACT exists to counteract the manipulative lies and clever half-truths (by whatever means, purpose) by the regular print and broadcast media prostitutions of the Satanic Elite controllers—parasites who are in the process of economically, physically, and spiritually collapsing this once great country (and actually the entire planet) down to a slave-state level of existence under their diabolical control plan called the New World Order.

This newspaper, CONTACT, began life on March 30, 1993. rising, the mythical bird, with great determination "up from the ashes" of its internationally acclaimed predecessor CH PHOENIX LIBERATOR.

The PHOENIX LIBERATOR, in turn, began life in mid-October 1991, having evolved from an earlier newsletter called the PHOENIX JOURNAL EXPRESS, which itself came into existence as a faster way to get THE TRUTH out to you readers than was possible with the more substantial "book" format of the PHOENIX JOURNALS. Much incredible ground has been covered so far in that mission.

While the PHOENIX LIBERATOR's motto reminded all that "The Truth Will Set You Free", the CONTACT's motto, displayed prominently in the masthead, takes that thought another important step forward and proclaims: "Ye Shall Know The Truth And The Truth Shall Make You Mad!"

The "Phoenix Project" is about those preparations needed—at body, mind and soul levels—to both understand and survive the great healing changes which are beginning to energize this beautiful little planet, now so frazzled and tortured from abuses of all kinds. We look forward, with great expectations, to the CONTACTing with all of you—a coming together as the entire Phoenix Project "ground crew" continues to connect, solidify, and gain strength through becoming informed of THE TRUTH. Indeed, welcome aboard, friends!

The Bar Association—“Club Members Only”
America’s Judiciary Under Microscope

Part II: Understanding History

Part I of Rick’s well-researched series on the American Bar Association appeared in the 1/23/96 issue of CONTACT on page 8. We continue with this historical exposé.

1/24/96 RICK MARTIN

To counter a charge that he had made some errors in judgment, Abraham Lincoln once told a story about a lawyer and a minister who were arguing.

As they rode down the road together, the minister said, “Sir, do you ever make mistakes while in court?”

“Very rarely,” the lawyer sniffed. “But on occasion, I must admit that I do.”

“And what do you do when you make a mistake?” asked the minister.

“Why, if they are large mistakes, I mend them. If they are small, I let them go. Tell me, don’t you ever make mistakes while preaching?”

“Of course,” said the preacher. “And I dispose of them in the same way you do. Not long ago, I meant to tell the congregation that the devil was the father of lawyers. The mistake was so small that I let it go.”

JUDICIARY ACT OF 1789

The First Congress enacted the Judiciary Act of 1789, which was then signed by President Washington, one day before the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution was proposed. Section 35 of the Judiciary Act reads, in part: “And be it further enacted, That in all the courts of the United States, the parties may plead and manage their own causes personally or by the assistance of such counsel or attorneys at law as by the rules of the said courts respectively shall be permitted to manage and conduct causes therein.”

THOMAS PAINE

Also in the late 1780s, Thomas Paine wrote the Declaration of the Rights of Man, which says, [quoting:]

The law ought to prohibit only actions hurtful to society. What is not prohibited by the law should not be hindered; nor should any one be compelled to that which the law does not require.

The law is an expression of the will of the community. All citizens have a right to concur, either personally or by their representatives, in its formation. It should be the same to all, whether it protects or punishes: and all being equal in its sight, are equally eligible to all honors, places, and employments, according to their different abilities, without any other distinction than that created by their virtues and talents.

No man should be accused, arrested, or held in confinement, except in cases determined by the law, and according to the forms which it has prescribed. All who promote, solicit, execute, or cause to be executed, arbitrary orders, ought to be punished, and every citizen called upon, or apprehended by virtue of the law, ought immediately to obey, and renders himself culpable by resistance.

The law ought to impose no other penalties but such as are absolutely and evidently necessary; and no one ought to be punished, but in virtue of a law promulgated before the offence, and legally applied.

Every man being presumed innocent till he has been convicted, whenever his detention becomes indispensable, all rigor to him, more than is necessary to secure his person, ought to be provided against by the law.

No man ought to be molested on account of his opinions, not even on account of his religious opinions, provided his avowal of them does not disturb the public order established by the law. [End quoting.]

ULYSSES S. GRANT

In the 1860s, undistinguished and often shabby in appearance, Ulysses S. Grant did not recommend himself to strangers by his looks. He once entered an inn at Galena, Illinois, on a stormy winter’s night. A number of lawyers, in town for a court session, were clustered around the fire. One looked up as Grant appeared and said, “Here’s a stranger, gentlemen, and by the looks of him he’s traveled through hell itself to get here.”

“That’s right,” said Grant cheerfully.

“And how did you find things down there?”

“I just like here,” replied Grant. “Lawyers all closest to the fire.”

THE “MISSING” 13TH AMENDMENT

“If any citizen of the United States shall accept, claim, receive, or retain any title of nobility or honor, or shall, without the consent of Congress, accept and retain any present, pension, office, or emolument of any kind whatever, from any emperor, king, prince, or foreign power, such person shall cease to be a citizen of the United States, and shall be incapable of holding any office of trust or profit under them, or either of them.”

In Vol. XVI, #2 of THE PHOENIX JOURNAL EXPRESS (predecessor to the PHOENIX LIBERATOR and CONTACT) we find, [quoting:]

At first reading, the meaning of this 13th Amendment (also called the “title of nobility” amendment) seems a bit obscure, unimportant. The references to “nobility”, “honor”, “emperor”, “king”, and “prince” lead you to dismiss this amendment as a petty post-

Mother Goose & Grimm revolution act of spite directed against the British monarchy. But in your modern world of Lady Di and Prince Charles, anti-royalist sentiments seem so archaic and quaint that the amendment can be ignored. Not so!

Consider some real hard evidence of its historical significance: First, "titles of nobility" were prohibited in both Article VI of the Articles of Confederation (1777) and in Article I, Sect. 9 of the Constitution of the United States (1788). Second, although already prohibited, an additional "title of nobility" amendment was proposed in 1879, again in 1810, and was finally ratified in 1819. Clearly the founding fathers saw such a serious threat in "titles of nobility" and "honors" that anyone receiving them would forfeit their citizenship. Since the government prohibited "titles of nobility" several times over four decades, and went through the amending process (even though "titles of nobility" were already prohibited by the Constitution), it's obvious that the amendment carried much more significance for your founding fathers than is readily apparent to you today.

There are many examples of the monarchy's efforts to subvert or destroy the United States; some are common knowledge; others remain to be disclosed to the public. There is, for example, a book called 2 V4 LA W in the Library of Congress. This is an uncatalogued book in the rare book section that reveals a plan to overthrow the constitutional government by secret agreements engineered by the lawyers. That is one reason that the 13th Amendment was ratified by Virginia and the notification "lost in the mail." There is no public record of this book's existence.

Does this sound surprising? Perish the thought of surprising. The Library of Congress has over 349,402 uncatalogued rare books and 13.9 million uncatalogued rare manuscripts, laws and ratifications! There are secrets buried in that mass of documents even more astonishing than a missing constitutional amendment, I can well secure you.

In Colonial America, attorneys trained attorneys but most held no "title of nobility" or "honor." There was no requirement that one be a lawyer to hold the position of district attorney, attorney general, or judge; a citizen's "counsel of choice" was not restricted to a lawyer; there were no state or national bar associations. The only organization that certified lawyers was the International Bar Association (IBA), chartered by the King of England, headquartered in London, and closely associated with the international banking system. Lawyers admitted to the IBA received the rank "Esquire" — a "title of nobility"!

"Esquire" was the principle title of nobility which the 13th Amendment sought to prohibit from the United States. Why? Because the loyalty of "Esquire" lawyers was suspect. Bankers and lawyers with an "Esquire" behind their names were agents of the monarchy, members of an organization whose principle purposes were political, not economic, and regarded with the same wariness that some people today reserve for members of the KGB or the CIA.

In 1789, the House of Representatives compiled a list of possible Constitutional amendments, some of which would ultimately become the Bill of Rights. The House proposed seventeen; the Senate reduced the list to twelve. During this process Senator Tristain Dalton (Mass.) proposed an amendment seeking to prohibit and provide a penalty for any American accepting a "title of nobility" (RG 46 Records of the U.S. Senate). Although the Senate did not consider the amendment, this was the first time a "title of nobility" amendment was proposed.

Twenty years later, in January, 1810, Senator Reed proposed another "title of nobility" amendment (History of Congress, Proceedings of the Senate, p. 529-530). On April 27, 1810, the Senate voted to pass this 13th Amendment by a vote of 26 to 1: the House resolved in the affirmative 87 to 3; and the following resolve was sent to the states for ratification:

If any citizen of the United States shall accept, claim, receive or retain any title of nobility or honor, or shall, without the consent of Congress, accept and retain any present, pension, office or emolument of any kind whatever, from any emperor, king, prince or foreign power, such person shall cease to be a citizen of the United States, and shall be incapable of holding any office of trust or profit under them, or either of them.

The Constitution requires three-quarters of the states to ratify a proposed amendment before it may be added to the Constitution. When Congress proposed the "title of nobility" amendment in 1810, there were seventeen states, thirteen of which would have to ratify for the amendment to be adopted. According to the National Archives, the following is a list of the twelve states that ratified, and their dates of ratification:

- Maryland, Dec. 25, 1810
- Kentucky, Jan. 31, 1811
- Ohio, Jan. 31, 1811
- Delaware, Feb. 2, 1811
- Pennsylvania, Feb. 6, 1811
- New Jersey, Feb. 13, 1811
- Vermont, Oct. 24, 1811
- Tennessee, Nov. 21, 1811
- Georgia, Dec. 13, 1811
- North Carolina, Dec. 23, 1811
- Massachusetts, Feb. 27, 1812
- New Hampshire, Dec. 10, 1812

In an early demonstration of sleight of hand and footwork (which has now become the modus operandi when the going gets tight): Before the thirteenth state could ratify, the War of 1812 broke out with England. By the time the war ended in 1814, the British had burned the Capitol, the Library of Congress, and most of the records of the first 38 years of government. I'm sure the connection between the proposed "title of nobility" amendment which would close England out of the U.S. government forever, and the War of 1812, becomes self-evident. You have entered massive wars for far less-like Desert Storm in Iraq.

Four years later, on Dec. 31, 1817, the House of Representatives resolved that President Monroe inquire into the status of this amendment because all sorts of "strange" things were beginning to happen in the government. In a letter dated Feb. 6, 1818, President Monroe reported to the House that the Secretary of State informed him that the governors of Virginia, South Carolina and Connecticut were to tell them that the proposed amendment had been ratified by twelve states and rejected by two (New York and Rhode Island), and asked the governors to notify him of their legislature's position. (House Document No. 76).

This, and other letters written by the President and the Secretary of State during the month of February 1818, note only that the proposed amendment had not yet been ratified. However, these letters would later be lost or destroyed. In the absence of additional information, they would be interpreted to mean that the amendment was never ratified.

On February 28, 1818, Secretary of State Adams reported the rejection of the amendment by South Carolina (House Doc. No. 129). There are no further entries regarding the ratification of the 13th Amendment in the Journals of Congress; whether Virginia ratified is neither confirmed nor denied. Likewise, a search through the Federal Register (or at least, not recorded), the amendment was there...

In a letter dated March 10, 1819, the Virginia legislature of Act No. 280 (Virginia Archives of Richmond, "Misc." file, p. 299 for micro-film): "Be it enacted by the General Assembly, that there shall be published on edition of the Laws of this Commonwealth in which shall be contained the following matters, that is to say; the Constitution of the (united States and the amendments thereto..."

This act was the specific legislation on what was, by law, to be included in the republication (a special edition) of the Virginia Civil Code. The Virginia Legislature had already agreed that all Acts were to go into effect on the same day—the day that the Civil Code was to be republished. Therefore, the 13th Amendment's official date of ratification would be the date of re-publication of the Virginia Civil Code: March 12, 1819.

The Delegates knew Virginia was the last of the 13 states to ratify because the book was published in the republication (a special edition) of the Virginia Civil Code. They also knew there were powerful forces allied against this ratification so they took extraordinary measures to make sure that it was published in sufficient quantity (4,000 copies were ordered, almost triple their usual order), and instructed the printer to send a copy to President James Monroe, as well as James Madison and Thomas Jefferson. (The printer, Thomas Ritchie, was bonded. He was required to be extremely accurate in his research and his printing, or he would forfeit his bond.)

In this fashion, Virginia announced the ratification: by publication and dissemination of the 13th Amendment of the Constitution.

Some argue that there is question as to whether Virginia ever formally notified the Secretary of State that they had ratified this 13th Amendment. Some have argued that because such notification was not received (or ratified), the amendment was therefore not legally ratified. However, printing by a legislature is prima facie evidence of ratification.

Further, there is no Constitutional requirement that the Secretary of State, or anyone else, be officially notified to complete the ratification process. The Constitution only requires that three-fourths of the states ratify for an amendment to be added to the Constitution. If three-quarters of the states ratify, the amendment is passed. Period. The Constitution is otherwise silent on what procedure confirms, or communicates the ratification of amendments.
Knowing they were the last state necessary to ratify the amendment, the Virginians had every right to announce their own and the nation’s ratification of the amendment by publishing it on a special edition of the Constitution, and so they did.

Word of Virginia’s 1819 ratification spread throughout the states and both Rhode Island and Kentucky published the new amendment in 1822. Ohio first published in 1824. Maine ordered 10,000 copies of the Constitution with the 13th Amendment to be printed for use in the schools in 1825, and again in 1831 for the Census Edition. Indiana Revised Laws of 1831 published the 13th Article on p. 20. Northwestern Territories published in 1833. Ohio published in 1831 and Kansas in 1841. Wisconsin Territory in Iowa Territory in 1843; Ohio again, in 1848; Kansas Statutes in 1855; and Nebraska Territory six times in a row from 1855 to 1860.

So far, David Dodge [person sending the original research to THE PHOENIX JOURNAL EXPRESS] has identified eleven different states or territories that printed the amendment in twenty separate publications over forty-one years. And more editions including this 13th Amendment are sure to be discovered for they are there.

In 1829, the following note appears on p. 23, Vol. 1 of the New York Revised Statutes:

"In the edition of the Laws of the U.S. is an amendment printed as article 13, prohibiting citizens from accepting titles of honor, or honor, or being present in foreign courts. But, the message of the President of the United States on the 4th of February, 1818, in answer to a resolution of the House of Representatives, it appears that this amendment had been ratified only by 12 states, and therefore had not been adopted. See vol. iv of the printed papers of the 1st session of the 15th Congress, No. 76." In 1854, a similar note appeared in the Oregon Statutes. Both notes refer to the Laws of the United States, 1st vol. p. 73/74.

It’s not yet clear whether the 13th Amendment was published in Laws of the United States, 1st vol, prematurely, by accident, in anticipation of Virginia’s ratification, or as part of a plot to discredit the amendment and make it appear that only twelve States had ratified. Whether the Laws of the United States Vol. 1 (carrying the 13th Amendment) was re-called or made-up is unknown. In fact, it’s not even clear that the specified volume was actually printed—the Law Library of the Library of Congress has no record of its existence.

However, because the notes’ authors reported a further reference to the 13th Amendment after the 13th Amendment was never ratified. In February 1818, they apparently assumed the ratification process had ended in failure at that time. If so, they neglected to seek information on the amendment after 1818, or at the state level, and therefore missed the evidence of Virginia’s ratification. This opinion—assuming that the President’s letter of February 1818, was the last word on the amendment—has persisted to this day.

In 1849, Virginia decided to revise the 1819 Civil Constitution and renewed her effort to ratify the 13th Amendment for 30 years. It was at that time that one of the code’s revisers (a lawyer named Patton) wrote to the Secretary of the Navy, William B. Preston, asking if this amendment had been ratified or appeared by mistake. (A most interesting resource for information at any circumstance.)

Preston wrote to J.M. Clayton, the Secretary of State, who replied that this Amendment was not ratified by a sufficient number of states. This conclusion was based on the information that Secretary of State Q.D. Adams had provided the House of Representatives in 1818, before Virginia’s ratification in 1819. (Today, the Congressional Research Service tells anyone asking about this 13th Amendment this same story—that only twelve states, not the requisite thirteen, had ratified.)

Note, however, that despite Clayton’s opinion, the amendment continued to be published in various states and territories for at least another eleven years (the last known publication was the Nebraska Territory in 1860). Therefore, the Supreme Court was not authorized to give to Congress the power to abolish or interfere, within any State, with the domestic institutions thereof, including that of persons held to labor or service by the laws of said State." (In other words, President Lincoln had signed a resolution that would have permitted slavery, and upheld states’ rights.) Only one state, Illinois, ratified this proposed amendment before the Civil War broke out in 1861.

In the tumult of 1865, the original 13th Amendment was finally removed from our Constitution. On January 31, another 13th Amendment (which prohibited slavery in Sec. 1 and ended states’ rights in Sec. 2) was proposed. On April 9, the Civil War ended with General Lee’s surrender. On April 14, President Lincoln (who, in 1861, signed the proposed amendment that would have allowed slavery and states rights) was assassinated. On December 6, the “new” 13th Amendment loudly prohibiting slavery (and quietly surrendering states’ rights to the federal government) was ratified, replacing and effectively erasing the original 13th Amendment that had prohibited “titles of nobility” and “honors.”

To create the present oligarchy (rule by lawyers) which you now endure, the lawyers first had to remove the 13th “titles of nobility” Amendment that might otherwise have kept them in check. In fact, it was not until after the Civil War and after the disappearance of the 13th Amendment that the newly developing bar associations became a system whereby lawyers took on a title of privilege and nobility as “Esquire” and received the “honor” of offices and positions (like district attorney or judge) that only lawyers may now hold. By virtue of these titles, honors, and special privileges, lawyers have assumed political and economic advantages over the majority of U.S. citizens. Through these privileges, they have nearly established a two-tiered citizenship in this nation where a majority may vote, but only a minority may run for political office. This two-tiered citizenship is clearly contrary to Americans’ political interests, the nation’s economic welfare, and the Constitution’s egalitarian spirit.

The significance of the 13th Amendment and its deletion from the Constitution is this: Since the amendment was never lawfully nullified, it is still in full force and effect and is the law of the land. If public support is awakened, this missing amendment would provide a legal basis to challenge law-like Supreme Court decisions made by lawyers who were unconstitutionally elected or appointed to their positions of power; it might even mean the removal of lawyers from your current government system.

At the very least, this missing 13th Amendment demonstrates that two centuries ago, lawyers were recognized as enemies of the people and nation.

In his farewell address, George Washington warned of “...change by usurpation; for though this, in one instance, may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed.”

In 1788, Thomas Jefferson proposed that you have a Declaration of Rights similar to Virginia’s. Three of his suggestions were “freedom of commerce against monopolies, trial by jury in ALL cases,” and “no suspensions of the habeas corpus.”

No doubt Washington’s warning and Jefferson’s ideas were dismissed as redundant by those who knew the law. Who would have dreamed your legal system would become a monopoly against freedom when that was one of the primary causes for the rebellion against King George III?

Yet, the denial of trial by jury is now commonplace in the courts, and habeas corpus, for crimes against the state, suspended.

The authority to create monopolies was judged-made by Supreme Court Justice John Marshall, et al, during the early 1800s; Judges (and lawyers) granted to themselves the power to effectively erode or override the Constitution. Today, the “outrageous and unconstitutional,” waited until their decision was grandfathered, and then granted themselves a monopoly by creating the bar associations.

Although Article VI of the U.S. Constitution mandates that executive orders and treaties are binding upon the states ("...and the Judges in every State shall be bound thereby, anything in the Constitution of Laws of any State to the Contrary notwithstanding"), the Supreme Court has held that the Bill of Rights will not be interpreted as applying to the states, and thereby resurrected many of the complaints enumerated in the Declaration of Independence, exactly as Thomas Jefferson foresaw in Notes on the States of Virginia, Quercy 17, p. 161, 1784:

Our rulers will become corrupt, our people careless...the time for fixing every essential right on a legal basis is [now] while our rulers are honest, and ourselves united. From the conclusion of this war we shall be going downhill. It will not then be necessary to resort every moment to the people for support. They will be forgotten, therefore, and their rights disregarded. They will forget themselves, but in the sole faculty of making money and will never think of uniting to effect a due respect for their rights. The shackles, therefore, which shall not be knocked off at the conclusion of this war, will remain on us long, will be made heavier and heavier, till our rights shall revive or expire in a convulsion.” [End quoting.]

Readers, please remember that everything is connected and each event influences the next, while it may seem that I am jumping around a bit to offer specific quotes, in the final analysis a very clear picture will be formed in your minds. With that said, let’s continue.
The American Bar Endowment [ABE] was formed as an Illinois not-for-profit corporation in February 1942. Dedicated to the advancement of jurisprudence and the promotion of justice, the Endowment fulfills its charter purposes by supporting research and educational activities of the bar. Grants to eligible organizations have made possible many important professional and public service programs. Making substantial funds available to these organizations, through primary grants to the ABA’s Fund for Justice and Education or the American Bar Foundation, is the Endowment’s overall objective.

The Endowment’s principal source of funding comes from contributions of dividends by participating members in the groups insurance programs administered by ABE. Such funds, after administrative expenses, are distributed as grants to fulfill its tax-exempt purpose. The Endowment has obtained a ruling from the I.R.S. that members who permit the Endowment to retain their dividends may be eligible for a charitable contribution deduction on their income tax returns.

THE AMERICAN BAR FOUNDATION

[Still quoting:] The American Bar Foundation is a major research institution which is affiliated with the American Bar Association. Established in 1952 as an Illinois not-for-profit corporation in response to the need for continuous and thorough examination of important problems confronting the law and legal institutions. The American Bar Foundation is supported by the American Bar Endowment, the Fellows of the American Bar Foundation and private foundations, which organizations provide the basic unrestricted operating funds for the Foundation’s program. The Fellows are comprised of an honorary group of practitioners, judges and legal educators limited to one-third of one percent of the attorney population in each U.S. jurisdiction.

The members of the corporation of the Foundation are the persons who from time to time are the members of the Board of Governors of the American Bar Association. [End quoting.]

THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

Beginning where we left off in Part I of this series, the following is found in an article provided by the American Bar Association and appearing in the July 1978 edition of the American Bar Association Journal. This article, titled The First Century of The American Bar Association, is written by Whitney North Seymour. [Quoting:] During the turmoil of the 1960s, Lewis F. Powell, Jr., when president of the Association, expressed the view that the Canons of Professional Ethics were in need of major revision, particularly with respect to the relationship between the press and the bar, the presentation of unpopular causes, and grievance procedures. The Special Committee on Evaluation of the Canons of Professional Ethics, under the chairmanship of Judge Edward L. Wright, was proposed and in August, 1969, the Association adopted a new Code of Professional Responsibilities to supersede the Canons of Professional Ethics. The preamble to the Canons of Ethics adopted in 1908 emphasized that the “maintenance of justice, pure and unsullied,” depended on the character of the individual members of the profession; the preamble to the 1969 Code of Professional Responsibility additionally focused on the right and duties of the individual bar association.

One of the significant and productive recent enterprises of the American Bar Association was the work of the Committee to Establish Minimum Standards for the Administration of Criminal Justice, under the chairmanship of Judge Edward Lumstead of New York, a joint activity of the American Bar Association and the Institute of Judicial Administration. The formulation of minimum standards on criminal justice was proposed in 1963 by the Institute of Criminal Justice,. which the first two presidents—Arthur T. Vanderbilt and John J. Parker—had been leaders in the promulgation of minimum standards of judicial administration twenty-five years earlier.

While the scope of the project's concern was the entire sphere of judicial administration, the noteworthy and laudable contribution of the committee was the promulgation of standards for "providing defense services," which were approved by the Association in February, 1968. Those standards incorporate and expand the pre-Gideon standards adopted in 1960, which had recognized the need to "provide counsel for every indigent person unable to employ counsel who faces the possibility of the deprivation of his liberty or other serious criminal sanction." The proposal by the Association's Commission on Law and the Courts, which the first two presidents supported, was indefinitely postponed. In 1937, two bills were introduced into the Senate, one of which was withdrawn. A companion bill, No. 424, A., was introduced into the Assembly, was ordered engrossed and read a third time to the sine die adjournment of the Legislature. In 1939, Bill No. 462, A., was introduced into the Assembly, passed but was not concurred in by the Senate. Bills introduced into the Senate and Assembly in 1941—Bill 153, A., was introduced into the Assembly and passed but was not concurred in by the Senate. Bills were introduced into the Senate and Assembly in 1941—Bill 153, A., was passed by the Assembly and considered by the Senate but final action was not taken because of the sine die adjournment of the Legislature.

In 1937, 1939, 1941 and 1943 while no bills were introduced, the State Bar of Wisconsin was the only one of the six states, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico that have taken steps to implement these standards. Thirty states have made substantial implementation, with new codes of substantive and procedural criminal law and new or amended rules of criminal procedure. More than four hundred appellate court decisions have cited the Association standards as authority.

Work with respect to the implementation of minimum standards of judicial administration continues. In April, 1976, the Association, the Conference of Chief Justices, and the Judicial Conference of the United States, under the leadership of Chief Justice Burger, jointly sponsored a National Conference on the Causes of Popular Dissatisfaction with the Administration of Justice. At that conference, which commemorated the seventieth anniversary of Dean Pound's 1906 speech to the Association, the chief justice, in a keynote address, focused on the need to "resolve minor disputes fairly and more swiftly than any present judicial mechanisms make possible." That proposal by the chief justice, as well as other specific proposals for the transfer of certain functions from the courts to agencies better adapted to their resolution, are now being considered by the Association's Standing Committee on Law and the Economy of Judicial Administration. John J. Parker, the present president (1978) Griffin B. Bell, was an active participant in this conference, and it is to be hoped that the Justice Department, under his leadership, will play a role in forwarding the conference objectives. [End quoting.]

NATIONAL BAR ASSOCIATION

In a brochure received from the National Bar Association, we read the following [quoting:]

The National Bar Association is the oldest and largest organization consisting primarily of Black attorneys in the United States of America. It is the principle advocate for the interest of Black lawyers, judges and law students. Through the NBA, informal and formal networks of Black lawyers provide professional support for enhancing professional growth and development.

When the NBA was organized in 1925, it was the only national professional bar association for Black lawyers. The purpose of the National Bar Association is..."to advance the science of jurisprudence, uphold the honor of the legal profession, promote social intercourse among the members of the bar, and protect the civil and political rights of all citizens of the several states of the Union." Throughout the NBA's 70-year history, legions of Black lawyers affiliated with the NBA ushered in the rule of law through the turbulent 1920s and 1930s and up through the 1950s and 1960s and continues today.

The NBA has grown enormously in size and influence and currently has a network within the United States of over 17,000 lawyers, judges and student members. It has 87 affiliate chapter institutions throughout the United States, Canada, United Kingdom, Africa and the Caribbean. [End quoting.]

ALEXANDER HAMILTON—FEDERALIST PAPER 878

In Alexander Hamilton's Federalist Paper No. 78, we read [quoting:]

..."the judiciary, on the contrary, has no influence over either the House of Representatives or the Senate; and of the three departments of power, that which can never attack itself must be independent of them all, and that all possible care is requisite to enable it to defend itself against their attacks. It equally proves that though individual oppression may now and then proceed from the courts of justice, the general liberty of the people can never be endangered from that quarter, I mean so long as the judiciary remains truly distinct from both the legislature and the executive. For I agree that there is no liberty if the power of judging be not separated from the legislative and executive powers. And it proves, in the last place, that as liberty can have nothing to fear from the judiciary alone, but would have everything to fear from its union with either of the other departments; that as all the effects of such a union must ensue from a dependence of the former on the latter, notwithstanding a nominal and apparent separation; that as, from the natural feebleness of the judicial department, it would be over-armed, awed, or influenced by its co-ordinate branches; and that as nothing can contribute so much to its firmness and independence as permanency in office, this quality may therefore be justly regarded as an indispensable ingredient in its constitution, and, in a great measure, as the citadel of the public justice and the public security. The checks and separations of the powers of the courts of justice is peculiarly essential in a limited Constitution. By a limited Constitution, I understand one which contains certain specified exceptions to the legislative authority; such, for instance, as that it shall pass no bills of attainder, no ex post facto laws, and the like. Limitations of this kind can be preserved in practice no other way than through the medium of courts of justice, whose duty it must be to declare all acts contrary to the manifest tenor of the Constitution void, and to sustain the rights and privileges which are asserted or implied by the Constitution. By a State Constitution, it is at least as requisite to have a separate and distinct judiciary, and the peculiar advantage of one, as the strong arm of the Constitution to prevent impositions by the majority on the minority. In all the Governments of the United States there is an inherent mixture of the three departments of power. That order has ever since remained in force. In re Integration of State Bar of Oklahoma, 1939, 185 Okl. 505, 95 P.2d 113.

Enough has been said to indicate that the matter of bar integration is not a sporadic or evanescent movement. The movement was called into being to meet situations in the various jurisdictions which could not be dealt with efficiently under presently existing laws. Scattered as the states are from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, the extent of the movement is strong evidence of the fact..." that there is a general widespread recognition of the fact that the conduct of the Bar is a matter of general public interest and concern. We shall postpone to a later time a discussion of the merits and demerits of bar integration.

[Then, later in the ruling, still quoting:] It is the primary function of the Legislature to declare rules of conduct to govern the future action of the citizens of the state. The Legislature does this in the discharge of its constitutional duty to promote the general welfare and the educational and ethical standards of the bar. In this connection it is of the utmost importance that the conduct of the Bar is a matter of general public interest and concern, and necessarily affect the general welfare. What is true of the admission of attorneys to practice in the courts applies equally to the integration of the Bar. It is because the public interest is necessarily involved in prescribing the conditions upon which persons shall be admitted to the practice of the law that courts generally have deferred to some extent to the legislative branch of the government in matters relating to the Bar. In this connection it should be noted that the concept of the Bar as an instrumentality of government is derived from the co-operation and collaboration of two coordinate departments of the government. [Remember Hamilton’s warning in Federalist Paper No. 78 above.]

Without such co-operation and collaboration unseemly conflicts might easily arise because it is an area in which each department may within the exercise of its powers act with propriety.

It is quite obvious from a study of the history of the Bar and the consideration of judicial decisions that the conduct of the Bar and the judicial field in matters relating to the Bar is not a straight line, or even a fixed one. Heretofore courts have dealt with attorneys as individuals. It has denied the right of persons to practice before it who are unworthy of the trust and confidence of clients and of those who are not properly qualified and learned in the law. Chapter 315 deals with the members of the Bar in their capacity as members of the organization to which they belong. Inasmuch as the Bar is a collective body, it is of the utmost importance for the court to determine who shall be admitted to the practice of the law. We shall not attempt to delimit any farther than is necessary for the purposes of this case, the respective powers of the Legislature and the court in relation to the admission of attorneys to the Bar and the regulation of their conduct.

It is obvious that the general welfare requires that the Bar be treated as a corporate body is a matter for the consideration of the Legislature. Inasmuch as the functioning of an integrated Bar involves the exercise of regulatory control over its members, it directly affects the exercise of the power of the court over attorneys. So that the character and extent of the regulation is a matter of immediate concern to the court in the exercise of its functions.

If the court recognizes the power of the Legislature to fix minimum standards of qualifications to be required of attorneys at law, it will determine for itself whether the qualifications so fixed invade the judicial field or embarrass the court in the exercise of its functions. It is no more within the power of the Legislature to prescribe qualifications for attorneys which are too rigorous than it is to prescribe with finality those which are too low. In the promotion of the general welfare the Legislature may prescribe requirements for the admission of attorneys which it may not by the exercise of its inherent powers. The Legislature in the exercise of its power to determine the qualifications for the admission of attorneys to the practice of the law, shall not be deemed as depriving the court of its function as the ultimate arbitrator of what are the qualifications for practicing law in this State.

The case above and the next case below are so important concerning the status of the integrated Bar, that some of the case ruling is included here.

The Petition of Chapman, 309 A.2d 753 (N.H. 1974) [quoting some portions].

It is clear that the Bar’s second argument, a federal constitutional claim, becomes relevant. He asserts that, by taking a position on tort reform, the [Bar] Association has violated his right to freedom of speech and what he terms his “rights of conscience” under the Federal and State Constitutions, U.S. CONST. amends. I, XIV; N.H. CONST. art. 1, arts. 4 (1970), 22 (Supp.1985). The federal right that he asserts is part of that category known as “Negative First Amendment rights,” which may be defined as the right to be free from government action, not the right to force one to associate and...to participate in certain forms of expression.”

In the footnote: In fact, during the course of the court’s decision in this case, the court recognized the power of the Legislature to fix minimum standards of qualifications to be required of attorneys at law, it will determine for itself whether the qualifications so fixed invade the judicial field or embarrass the court in the exercise of its functions. It is no more within the power of the Legislature to prescribe qualifications for attorneys which are too rigorous than it is to prescribe with finality those which are too low. In the promotion of the general welfare the Legislature may prescribe requirements for the admission of attorneys which it may not by the exercise of its inherent powers. The Legislature in the exercise of its power to determine the qualifications for the admission of attorneys to the practice of the law, shall not be deemed as depriving the court of its function as the ultimate arbitrator of what are the qualifications for practicing law in this State.

to tort revision as a whole is not within the mandate of Association's constitution as broadly as the dissenter doing would be to eliminate any limitation on the legis-avtive activities of the association where one was clearly intended.

We believe that circumspection is the watchword to be observed by the Board. Where it can reasonably be argued that an issue is outside the scope of its authority, the Board should take no position on the matter.

Some key points at law in this case, as listed before the narrative of the ruling, are:

* A "unified bar" or an "integrated bar" is qualita-different from a "voluntary bar", membership in a unified or integrated bar is compulsory, whereas membership in a voluntary bar is voluntary, and in effect, one is not at liberty to resign from a unified bar, for, as a result, one loses the privilege to practice law.

* In exercise of its continuing supervisory author-ty over State Bar Association and its activities, Su-reme Court is obligated to interpret limits on bar activities so as to preclude First Amendment infringe-men which would result if Association were to take positions on issues outside scope of those responsibilities which justify compelling corporate interests associate with voluntary bar. The Constitution defines the corporation to practice law.

* A service which otherwise would be a form of the practice of law does not lose that character merely because it is rendered gratuitously.

* If practitioner of a "distinct occupation" goes beyond the determination of legal questions for purpose of performing this special service and instead advises his patron as to course to be taken to secure a desired legal status, he is engaged in the practice of law.

* The "practice of law" is the rendition of services requiring the knowledge and the application of legal principles and technique to serve the interests of another with his consent.

Supreme Court has original jurisdiction to enter-ministerial acts, and has been adopted by the Court:
[quoting:]...[End quoting.]

Although it may sometimes be articulated more simply, one definition has gained widespread acceptance, and has been adopted by the Court:
A general definition of the term frequently quoted with approval is given in Eley v. Miller, 7 Ind. App.
529, 34 N.E. 836, as follows:

As the term is generally understood, the 'practice' of law is the doing or performing of services in a court of justice, in any matter depending therein, throughout its various stages, and in conformity to the adopted rules of procedure. But in a larger sense it includes legal advice and counsel, and the preparation of legal instruments and contracts by which legal rights are secured, although such matter may or may not be dependent in a court. State ex rel. v. Perkins, 138
Kan. 899, 907, 908, 28 P.2d 765, 769 (1934).

The court, in Perkins, also pointed out that "one who confers with clients, advises them as to their legal rights, and then takes the business to an attorney and arranges with him to look after it in court is engaged in the practice of law." 138 Kan. at 908, 28 P.2d at 770.
The quotation from the Eley case has been adopted as the general rule in 7 C.J.S. Attorney and Client S. 3 g (1937).

A more recent source defines the practice of law
as "the rendition of services requiring the knowledge

It is clearly the prerogative of the Supreme Court to define the practices of law:
It is unnecessary here to explore the limits of ducal power conferred by Article 3, Sec. 1 of the Kansas Constitution but suffice it to say that the practice of law is so intimately connected and bound up the exercise of judicial power in the administration of justice that the right to regulate the practice naturally and logically belongs to the judicial department of the government. (In re Integration of Nebraska State Bar

Included in that power is the supreme court's inherent right to prescribe conditions for admission to the Bar, to define, supervise, regulate and control the practice of law, whether in or out of court, and this is so notwithstanding acts of the legislature in the exercise of its police power to protect the public interest and

LAWYER CLARENCE DARROW

Darrow was being interviewed for a magazine article about the reasons given by prominent men for their success. "Most of the men I've spoken to, so far, attribute their success to hard work," said the interviewer.

"I guess that applies to me, too," said Darrow. "I was brought up on a farm. One very hot day I was distributing and packing down the hay which a stacker was constantly dumping on top of me. By noon I was completely exhausted. That afternoon I left the farm, ever to return, and I haven't done a day of work since."

CONSIDER THIS

"The minute you read something and you can't understand it, you can almost be sure that it was drawn up by a lawyer. When you give it to another lawyer read and he don't know just what it means, why then you can be sure it was drawn up by a lawyer. If it's in a few words and is plain and understandable only one way, it was written by a non-lawyer.

"Every time a lawyer writes something, he is not writing for posterity, he is writing so that endless others of his craft can make a living out of trying to figure out what he said, 'course perhaps he hadn't really said nothing, that's what makes it hard to explain." [Will Rogers]

Update From Michael Maholy

1/30/96 MICHAEL MAHOLY

While the Mena, Arkansas case that has been under intense investigation by several government agencies fades into history like the ghost of Christmas past, other sources continue to pursue the truth among the key players of the drugs-for-weapons enterprise. Whitewater Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr and members of his seek-and-destroy team have cut the Razorback State from end to end and have by no means even begun to finish their search for the truth into allegations made by me and several other employees who became entwined under the rule of the "Masters" and the "lawmakers" of the one-world state within our own nation.

Starr's recent indictments of former Clinton business partners James MacDougal and Arkansas Governor Jim Guy Tucker are not likely to be the least. With a lot of pressure coming into FBI offices from people concerned about the illegal activities of "trusted" elected officials, the plot is nearly to boiling point. I consistently receive letters from concerned readers of CONTACT (as well as from other sources) who tell me that they have other evidence of what has taken place down in the Arkansas Banana Republic and most of this information has merit.

I believe my allegations in the Pipeline series are what spearheaded this internal investigation. In fact, when the FBI questioned me about the murders of the two young boys, Don Henry and Kevin Ives, it pointed the finger at several federal officers from the Little Rock and Pulaski County, Arkansas. For several months a Little Rock grand jury, as well as the FBI, has been investigating my allegations and more damaging evidence is being uncovered. As I have told you in the past, the targets of this probe are a handful of suspected drug traffickers and most of this information has merit.

The most obvious question I now ask myself is: Just WHOM do I trust? Obviously, because of my situation, TRUST is not one of my strong points. I would like to be an idealist, but like so many, I have been too often fooled and even lied to by some of my closest friends—and even loved ones. Am I a fool for disclosing the true nature of the evil intentions of some of the most powerful people on Earth? Perhaps. But to fully understand my position, you must consider just what really took place, what events led up to all of this.

One might ask just why should this case bother the higher-ups at the White House. I personally could think of two very good reasons. Through my testimony, two important Arkansas businessmen who just happen to be very, very quiet and never stick their heads out are now at the top of the lists of people being investigated. There are mountains of legal files that pertain to the Mena cover-up, which also pertain to my case. As the pieces of the puzzle come together, more and more of the picture is coming into view.

I was being closely monitored, as I am now. This is precisely what happened in the beginning of my case. It had now come to the attention of the Clintons that I was going to eventually pull in some of their closest personal friends and even relatives if I get arrested—or at least that is what they perceived as my first line of defense.

There are mountains of legal files that pertain to the Mena cover-up, which also pertain to my case. As the pieces of the puzzle come together, more and more of the picture is coming into view. Even now, there are new developments in the case which even I did not know about until recently. Not long ago two senior inspectors from the DEA security division were dispatched to Little Rock to try to track the paper trail left by the money laundered by Barry Seal, myself, and several others. This is coming to light through the investigations into the Whitewater Development scandal. The inspectors are not worried about all of the DEA files that have been turning up, but rather, just a few of them.

One of the most important files is on Dan Lasater, and another points the finger towards Don Tyson, the poultry magnate.

Through my own contacts, I have also discovered that even my first attorney, the late Gene Worshem, a highly recognized attorney who was once connected with the Rose Law Firm in downtown Little Rock, was my betrayer. He was withholding all the damaging evidence that would have implicated the Clintons for their part in the illegal activities. As you see, it was not just George Bush and Oliver North involved in the smuggling business, but the Clintons also "bought into the fold. When you are the governor of a state, especially Arkansas, you damn sure are aware of what goes on in your own back yard! My attorney advised me to plead guilty to these crimes in order to protect his circle of prominent friends, or face the consequences of a very lengthy prison sentence. We're talking about 35-40 years. I turned over to Gene Worshem several maps, photos, and other documents that would have incriminated several top law enforcement officers as well as their bosses. I recently telephoned attorney Gene Worshem's office in regard to the files pertaining to statements I was instructed to make to the federal agencies and gave them the information and details that they need to get their investigation rolling. It was later established that the two boys had stumbled upon a Mena narcotics drop site shortly before a major drop was scheduled. Coupled with the fact that the boys had also found the location of the laboratory used for making the drug methamphetamine at a nearby farm house, their captors were left with little choice of what to do with the boys.

Just last week I was called to the prison telephone to speak with the attorney of the Republican Representative from Iowa, Jim Leach, who is also the chairman of the House Banking Committee. I was told that Mr. Leach is very interested in the Mena cover-up and has since dispatched two aides to begin a preliminary investigation and he is expected to call a hearing very soon. He also warned me about entrusting any further information to the FBI or the DEA at this time because of the political nature of the investigation.

The most obvious question I now ask myself is: Just WHOM do I trust? Obviously, because of my situation, TRUST is not one of my strong points. I would like to be an idealist, but like so many, I have been too often fooled and even lied to by some of my closest friends—and even loved ones. Am I a fool for disclosing the true nature of the evil intentions of some of the most powerful people on Earth? Perhaps. But to fully understand my position, you must consider just what really took place, what events led up to all of this.

Let me start at the beginning when the DEA first started its probe into my affairs. Here I was, a young man who, at that time, could be considered a low profile, yet prominent citizen of Arkansas, who would very quietly come and go in and out of the state at a moment's notice. Being labeled a "Yankee" due to my Chicago origins, I was viewed rather suspiciously by the "natives". They wondered just what this young man was into to enable him to live so comfortably. Surely it was not his trout fishing business on the White River, because a business like that would yield no more than 40K a year. Yet this young man was living in a home that was worth over $500,000; he had a condo in Florida and cars, trucks, boats, and other assorted playthings that could not be acquired with annual income of a trout fishing guide. Even combined with his military pension, it did not cover his expensive lifestyle. So they assumed I was involved in illegal activities, and indeed I was! One might say I was in over my head and sinking fast.

Soon the DEA and state authorities launched their investigations. Part of an investigation is surveil-
The secretary’s reply was that it was not a good time to speak with Mr. Worshem. He had a number of pressing matters to attend to, which he was not at liberty to discuss. So now we have evidence into the illegal activities of the Clintons who will expose these tyrants once and for all!

The transfer of papers was organized by Betsey Wright, Clinton’s former chief of staff, who also has aremainder of a loyal friend to the family. It is said that Wright even gave the transfer of the documents a code name: PROTOCOL! Several of the boxes were said to have PROTOCOL stamped on them, some two truckloads of paperwork. The Starr investigators believe these documents deal not only with the Clintons’ Whitewater property, investment, and other suspected laundering techniques, but they may also contain details pertaining to yet another land deal called FLOWERWOOD. These documents will reveal the close, tightly knit relationship between the Clintons and some other well known wealthy businessmen from northwest Arkansas—Don Tyson, the poultry king and Sam Walton of the famous Wal-Mart retail stores.

There is a lot of money—perhaps hundreds of millions of dollars—floating around out there that the Clintons want to dig their talons into. But last but not least, I must relay to you the new developments with my ol’ buddy, Mr. Dan Lasater. You all remember him, don’t you?—the Arkansas bond daddy who had a fetish for cocaine and young pretty women. Now that old Dan has once again been in the spotlight, due in part to my story of the CIA Pipeline and other reports filled with allegations of wrongdoing, Lasater is really on the outs with his one-time good friend Bill Clinton. Why? Perhaps because Lasater, a once-convicted cocaine distributor, was pardoned back in the late 1980s by the then-governor Clinton, is now about to be indicted once again. Lasater, who thought he had been keeping a low profile since his 1986 drug conviction, is about to have a run-in with the IRS. With information I supplied to officials last fall about Mr. Lasater’s dealings and money laundering habits, the FBI finally got around to doing a little investigating into my disclosures. And what do you know, BINGO! Lasater, who was removed to the offices of the Rose Law Firm within the basement of the First Commercial Bank building and from the Worthen Bank. By the way, people, these two banks were the money laundering headquarters for many of the pilots involved in drug smuggling as well as for corrupt political figures from Arkansas, Texas, and Louisiana. Along with documents seized for review were papers from the Rose Law Firm (Hillary’s former employer) and Jennings and Bryan, the firm in which Senator Dianne Feinstein and the Whistle-Blower aide Bruce Lindsey was a partner.

In closing I would like to thank all of you who have given me all your love and support. Some of you have been deceived by those out there with false promises and attempts to lure you with dreams of this or that, despite repeated warnings to beware of false prophets. If you are one of those, please do not lose faith in the Light of Truth. And to those of you who have stood by me throughout my ordeals, a very special thank you from the bottom of my heart, for it is your inspiration that has kept me going in my continuing fight against government corruption at the highest levels. Thank you also to my many Canadian friends and especially to the hardworking staff at the CONTACT. With a little bit of luck, and a lot of prayer, I may soon realize my freedom. Pray with me as I will pray for all of you. May the light of Truth guide you all.

Review Of The Golden Crescent Heroin Connections

CONNECTIONS

"Why can't you just stick to a subject and finish at least one topic before confusing us with another..." is the cry from the trenches where you-the-readers reside. Well, when you give me ten secretaries who don't have to fight just to stay alive, perhaps we can "finish" something. We only have intent, however, to open your curiosity, share the major topics to allow YOU to go subjects can be obtained from Rodney Stich's books, especially Defrauding America.

We have already written on this subject in great length some three or more years ago but for new readers please allow us repetition. It is hard to remember all these things from prior journals or papers so we can afford to be reminded of such important material and players.

[QUOTING:
THE GOLDEN CRESCENT HEROIN CONNECTION

by Jeffrey Steinberg

On May 27, 1986 [H: A decade ago!), a Soviet cargo ship, the Kapitan Tomson, was busted by Dutch authorities in Rotterdam with 220 kilos of pure heroin aboard. At the time, it was the largest heroin seizure in European history. The container with the heroin originated in Kabul, where the drug was hidden among 30 tons of raisins. The shipment was trucked overland across the Soviet Union, and placed on the ship at either Leningrad or For the first time, western security services had hard proof that the Soviet occupation forces in Afghanistan were directly involved in the dope trade.

And the Soviets weren't alone in the trade either. In the late 1970s, as the United States was first becoming involved in the covert support for the Afghan mujahideen, Dr. David Musto, a member of the Carter administration's drug advisory board, issued a pre-scient warning that the Afghan nation was moving "into Afghanistan to support the opium growers in their rebellion against the Soviets. Shouldn't we try," Dr. Musto asked, "to avoid what we had done in Laos?"

The Laos parallel was precise. Back in the 1960s and 70s, the CIA had conducted a secret war in Laos, which was predominantly funded by the sale of opium. The CIA's private airline, Air America, became notorious for its dope shuttle flights in and out of Southeast Asia's "Golden Triangle" opium region. The CIA station chief in Laos, Theodore G. Shackley, would later emerge as a key behind-the-scenes player in the Reagan-Bush-era secret wars.

Dr. Musto was not alone in his fears. Already in December 1979, the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) called an emergency behind-closed-doors meeting at New York's JFK Airport to come up with a plan for dealing with the flood of South Asian heroin about to hit the eastern seaboard of the United States.
A RIVAL TO THE GOLDEN TRIANGLE

Over the next decade, the Golden Crescent region, encompassing the mountain valleys of Iran, Afghanistan, and Pakistan, emerged as one of the world’s two biggest sources of opium, for several years even surpassing the contiguous Golden Triangle. While some of the opium-producing areas of Afghanistan were unquestionably under the control of the Red Army, the majority of poppy fields were in areas such as the Helmand Valley in southern Afghanistan that were in the hands of the mujahideen, especially the Hezbi Islami of Gulbuddin Hekmatyar, which also controlled a string of heroin laboratories just across the Pakistani border. In Pakistan, a significant struggle over the opium business broke out in 1988, after President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq, along with several top generals and the U.S. ambassador, were killed in a plane crash.

By the late 1980s, the DEA reported that Pakistan’s annual revenue from heroin sales was $8–10 billion, one-fourth of the country’s Gross Domestic Product. Most of the raw opium processed into heroin at the Headquarters of Intelligence and Security (ISI). Gen. Fazle Huq, the commander of the NWFP, was arrested for covering up his own brother’s drug trafficking. General Huq’s personal pilot, Maj. Farooq Hamid, was arrested on heroin-trafficking charges. As early as 1983, Norwegian customs officials had arrested a Pakistani smuggling a large quantity of heroin. A follow-on investigation led to the indictment of Hamid Hasnain, the vice president of the Pakistan government’s Habib Bank. Hasnain was the personal account manager for President Zia.

THE GOLDEN CRESCENT HEROIN TRAIL

Since 1980, Afghanistan has been the source of half the heroin sold in Europe and North America. Some opium was grown in areas under Soviet control, but most of the production was in the Helmand Valley in Southwest Afghanistan, and along the Afghan-Pakistan border northeast of Kabul, areas controlled by the mujahideen and the Pakistani Army. Hundreds of heroin labs were set up in the nearby frontier areas in Pakistan. Heroin was routed to world markets via Iran, India, the Asiatic republics of the U.S.S.R., and by Arabian Sea routes to Turkey.

END OF QUOTING

I think, since it is quite lengthy to include in this particular writing all the inside workings of the British forces into the planned destruction of the continent housing India and India herself, we will take in order that which would first catch our attention from the Banking routes for drug funds. We all remember MANY writings and investigations of BCCI and the ones who only had their fingers tweedled in the fall-out while the blame was dumped on those out of reach of you-the-people. Your government controllers are so sick and so contagious as to be a blight on the entire human race and STILL YOU BOW TO THEM LIKE THEY ARE YOUR FRIENDS.

BCCI: BANK FOR GOLDEN CRESCENT ARMS-FOR-DRUGS TRAFFIC

by Bill Engdahl And Jeffrey Steinberg

In the summer of 1991, the Bank of England took the unprecedented step of shutting down one of the world’s largest banks, the Bank of Credit and Commerce International (BCCI). Soon afterwards, the District Attorney of Manhattan, Robert Morgenthau, handed down criminal indictments against top officials of the bank. Soon, the popular media were filled with tales of drug-money laundering, bankrolling of Middle East terrorists, underwriting of Saddam Hussein’s quest for a nuclear bomb, etc. BCCI was linked to some of the Persian Gulf’s wealthiest sheikhs, and was described as a secret slush fund for the Central Intelligence Agency. Time magazine even quoted CIA head Robert Gates, referring to BCCI as the “Bank of Crooks and Criminals International.” [H: He should know!]

Two rather critical facts, however, were invariably left out of the story—even during the lengthy soap
The first fact was the extraordinarily close alliance between BCCI and some of Britain's most powerful financial houses and aristocratic families.

The second fact was that BCCI was created, and then built up as a “world class” bank, primarily to manage the covert funds that poured into the secret war in Afghanistan. Hardly any mention was made of the fact that BCCI was in the middle of the Afghan effort—serving as the de facto central bank for a multibillion-dollar Golden Crescent illegal arms-for-drugs trade that mushroomed during 1979-90.

When the last of the Red Army troops pulled out of Kabul in February 1989, the massive British-devised and American-led covert action program in support of the Afghan mujahideen began to wind down. BCCI lost its raison d’être, and went away of the 1960s-era Investors Overseas Service (IOS), and the Vietnam War-era Nugen Hand Bank of Australia: the money was siphoned out, a diversionary scandal was manufactured, and its doors were shut. During the decade of the Afghan War, BCCI’s assets had grown from an initial capitalization in 1972 of $2.5 million, to $4 BILLION in 1980, to an astounding $23 BILLION at the point that the Bank of England moved to shut it down. The bulk of the $23 billion disappeared and to this day is still unaccounted for.

A BRITISH ‘CROWN JEWEL’

During its meteoric rise in the 1980s, BCCI was anything but a “Third World bank.” Nominally funded in 1972 by Pakistani banker Agha Hasan Abedi, it was initially capitalized by the British-run Sheik Zayed of Abu Dhabi, incorporated in Luxembourg, and conducted all of its real business in London. True, Abedi was closely allied with the Pakistani military, especially with Gen. Mohammed Zia ul-Haq, who took power in 1977; and BCCI was used as a laundromat for the billions of dollars a year generated by the heroin laboratories in Pakistan’s North West Frontier Province (NWFP) that processed Afghan opium and smuggled it onto the world market. Likewise, BCCI was the central bank for the British and American arms flows to the Afghan mujahideen.

BCCI became a “crown jewel” in the British offshore hot money system because of its ties in the City of London. In 1976, BCCI established a Swiss base of operations by purchasing 85 percent of Banque de Commerce et de Placement (BCP) of Geneva. The remaining 15 percent was retained by the original owner, Thesaurus Continental Securities Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of Union Bank of Switzerland (UBS). Under BCCI control, BCP was managed by Alfred Hartmann, a former senior official of UBS. Hartmann eventually became chief financial officer for BCCI Holding, and was the person most accountable for the “lost” $23 billion. [Hi: Please note that the major part of that $23 BILLION went to paying off your own congressmen such as the Doles, etc. And you thought the lobbyists were bad!] While serving as BCCI’s “man in Switzerland,” Hartmann was always operating on behalf of the Rothschild family. Hartmann was president of Rothschild Bank AG of Zurich, was vice-chairman of NY-Intermaritime Bank of Geneva (run by Mossaad operative Bruce Rappaport), and was a member of the board of directors of the elite N.M. Rothschild and Sons in London.

BCCI’s London, and Caribbean branches were the central bank for the British and American arms dealer Leslie Aspin opened up four joint bank accounts in BCCI’s Paris branch. And when the Colombian Medellin Cartel put $10 million into the Bush covert war chest, the funds were conducted through one of Bruce Rappaport’s Swiss accounts. When Syrian guns- and dope-trafficker Mansur al-Kassar arranged to sell $42 million in arms to Iran on behalf of the Bush-North effort, he and Leslie Aspin funnelled the profits through BCCI’s Cayman Island branch.

Former Senate investigator Jack Blum summed up the BCCI case in 1991 testimony before a congressional committee: “This bank was a product of the Afghan War and people very close to the mujahideen have said that many Pakistani military officials who were deeply involved in assisting and supporting the Afghan rebel movement were stealing our foreign assistance money and using BCCI to hide the money they steals; to market American weapons that were to be delivered that they stole; and to market and manage funds that came from the selling of heroin that was apparently engineered by one of the mujahideen groups.”

END OF QUOTING

Perhaps you are being able to better connect the different parts to this incredible puzzle and see how the people, places and operations are ALL A PART OF THE SAME THING?

Worse, it always comes down to the SAME PLAYERS and oh, yes, it will include HENRY KISSINGER because Kissinger Associates, Eagleburger, etc., are all into this over their heads—while YOU DROWN. There was a whole banking operation set up just for these latter operations. Even your evangelist Pat Robertson and the Mormons are all looped within the network. Frightening, isn’t it?

Even I am offended when this kind of thing is allowed to go on and yet a citizen with only Social Security can literally have their meagre bank account TOTALLY CONFISCATED by the Devil’s attorneys. What price a man’s soul? Cheap! I fear! What price the soul of a nation? Cheap! And what of a planet? Even cheaper!! When the very instructions for life are handed down by the same Satanic crew—you really don’t have much of a “choice”, do you? And how often do you take a given opportunity to hop onto the “other side” to aid and abet against the very ones you claim to serve? Do you better understand how NO ONE ELSE CAN DO IT FOR YOU?

As a for-instance, there are ones who want to get even with me and mine to the extent that they are literally committing felony crimes to serve George Green-Abbott just to allow these criminals to gain revenge for their perceived wrongs—OF GETTING CAUGHT AT THEIR CRIMES. AND THEN, WHO DO THEY COME TO TO “SAVE THEM”? THAT’S RIGHT—GOD! THEY KICK GOD IN THE TEETH AND THEN EXPECT GOD TO SERVE THEM.

God does NOT serve Satan, good friends, and you had best be checking out your “masters”. Consequences will be the upcoming “name of the game” and some people are going to get their scales singed. Salu.

producing disease, and reports of a mystery viral infection among the troops, including flu-like symptoms. Newspaper accounts blame the Belgians, or perhaps the rats, and the Department of Defense is looking at the Bosnian tick that carries Encephalitis. This seems unusual as it is the middle of winter and you would think the tick would be dormant. Hopefully, it will not be the excuse for the use of the military's experimental Encephalitis vaccine (we know of one poor guy who received it in 1990 and is still sick as a dog).

Another answer may be the Bosnian soldiers have been infected with the Gulf War Syndrome by either deploying there or working daily for over four years with sick soldiers who have it. The cold and stress on their bodies can activate it.

Let’s look at what has happened before. Walter Reed Army Hospital was filled with troops from Somalia who had drug resistant malaria. Also many troops from the Gulf were there with drug resistant tuberculosis. [H: Does anyone think it strange that passengers from TWO different trains are right now being warned about the fact that a drug resistant tuberculin carrying passenger had passed through these trains and ALL passengers should go in and be tested and treated?] Say what? It is mandatory to allow all AIDS carriers to go freely to anywhere, including food-preparation jobs, and yet one possible tuberculosis passenger can cause panic in the streets! Oh indeed, I certainly DO think it is urgent, important and as serious as you can get!!!

Besides the obvious medical experiments, i.e., radiation tests, LSD tests, unauthorized vaccines, and other tests, such as the Break-a-Man test conducted on Special Forces Soldiers, there are other factors that can be found for the increase in illness among our Armed Forces.

Historically, there were certain wars and areas Kings would refuse to send their Armies. If there were known outbreaks of disease, and as it was realized these pestilences could be brought back and wreak havoc on the people, Kings would not wage a war there. Our political leaders, it would seem, and the United Nations, have forgotten these common-sense arguments and believe they can send in troops anywhere at anytime, and not encourage the movement of disease back to their people. This is "magic" thinking.

When troops are called up for deployment, they are given vaccines supposedly to guard them against some of the hazards of the occupied country. Vaccination in and of itself depresses the immune system and is usually given directly before deployment, increasing the risk of exposure initially. Troops deploying to a war-torn area usually are faced with inadequate housing measures, exposing them to weather elements as well as having food supplies that are not adequate to help guard off disease. Any time someone moves into a new country or area of the world, they are at risk for catching diseases whereas the natives in that area have had lifetimes to become accustomed to the indigenous diseases and parasites that the visiting soldier has not. In the past few years soldiers have not only had to endure this happening once but many times by visiting such as Panama, Haiti, Somalia, Saudi Arabia, Korea, Europe, Africa, etc., etc. Sanitation in many of these areas is lacking and troops do not have adequate shower and latrine facilities. That we can deploy anyone anywhere is true; that they will not become ill and carry these diseases home, is false. Already scientists are warning about air travel moving diseases around the globe; it is interesting that they are not concerned about soldiers doing it.

If this were not enough of a strain on the immune systems of the troops, the Department of Defense further complicates the matter by using these troops as guinea pigs. In Vietnam, besides AGENT ORANGE, the military used special medical groups to test vaccines. Also, most Vietnam War veterans received ADENO-VIRUS vaccinations which have been implicated in many diseases. In Somalia, most of the soldiers were provided with prophylactic medicines designed to prevent malaria. Obviously these were not

Many reasons were given for the use of these drugs, but unfortunately no one talked about the fact that US troops were in danger because of US firms sending dangerous biological and chemical weapons to Iraq in the first place. This would be like giving your neighbor a gun and making him angry and then sending your unarmed son over to get it back. If these drugs were “for our own good”, if they were so “safe”, how come the powers that be won’t even acknowledge what the soldiers WERE GIVEN so these vaccines could be studied by researchers for answers as to why the soldiers are sick… [not legible]... The authorities state that INFORMATION WAS COLLECTED on the use of these drugs—WHERE IS IT? AND WHEN WILL WE SEE IT?

And God Said “NO”

I asked God to take away my pride, and God said “No”. He said it was not for Him to take away, but for me to give up.
I asked God to make my handicapped child whole, and God said “No”. He said her spirit is whole, her body is temporary.
I asked God to grant me patience, and God said “No”. He said that patience is a by-product of tribulation; it isn’t granted—it is earned.
I asked God to give me happiness, and God said “No”. He said He gives me blessings; happiness is up to me.
I asked God to spare me pain, and God said “No”. He said “Suffering draws you apart from worldly cares and brings you closer to Me.”
I asked God to make my spirit grow and God said “No”. He said I must grow on my own, but He will prune me so I will be fruitful.
I asked God if He loved me, and He said, “YES, NOW AND FOREVER.”
I asked God to help me love others as much as He loves me, and God said, “Ah, finally you have the idea.”

very successful. In the Gulf War it was a virtual candy store of unapproved vaccines, unapproved nerve gas, and lots of DEET. What can the Bosnian store of unapproved vaccines, unapproved nerve gas, and in the Pentagon's paper they announced that they would soon begin field trials of another new, recombinant-DNA, live BRUCELLOSIS vaccine. Will Bosnian troops receive these?

With the obvious birth defects and illness in Gulf War babies and children, it is unthinkable that the military should be using recombinant DNA, as it is an unproven therapy and Churches and Synagogues should demand that the military stay out of our DNA. GOD knew what He was doing; the military should leave the process of creating life to HIM and not create mutant or defective life. This is EVIL. [H: It is also TOO LATE!]

WHAT THIS MEANS

In the aftermath of the Vietnam War, the veterans came home to a country that had abandoned them. The Vietnam Veterans were not only shunned by the public but also by traditional Veteran's groups such as the American Legion and the VFW. There were many problems to consider, but they wanted the correct: POW/MIA issues and the men left behind, the lack of support for both the mission and the soldiers who fought there, the Post Traumatic Stress Disorders suffered as a result of brutal combat conditions, the illnesses caused by Agent Orange and experimental drugs given to the troops. Many Vietnam veterans were told they deserved this because they had "lost" the war.

The medical doctors are willing to continue the cover-up by the military, and especially the Vietnam veterans, hoped to put the past behind them and use the hard lessons learned in Vietnam to assure a decisive victory in the Gulf. The fact that were going to the Gulf because of a failed foreign policy of arming Saddam Hussein with chemical, biological, and other weapons of mass destruction was glossed over. The important thing was that we needed a "win" and we had to support the soldiers that were sent there and so it was "UNAMERICAN" to question this policy. The Gulf War soldiers were given support by the American people; they were done to protect America. While the Iraqi soldiers were coming back to Andrews AFB, lots of Kodak moments on CNN for the people at home to cheer. A large effort was undertaken by the military to make sure that most of the POW/MIA's were accounted for. Most Americans are now wondering what is the Gulf War Syndrome fuss all about, because we did the right things for our soldiers.

The Vietnam veterans essentially won for all other soldiers many improvements. There was one area in which the Vietnam veterans did not win and that was AGENT ORANGE. The military lied about the numbers, had large studies that said dioxin, the chief ingredient in AGENT ORANGE, was not responsible for birth defects and illnesses seen in the veterans and their babies. They did wonderful studies that reported the veterans suffered only from PTSD [H: For you out of the loop this means, I believe, post traumatic stress disorder.], and with the kind of war it was, this argument made sense. The military was able to send enough force to insure victory, and they are able to fund plenty of big institutions and lots of doctors without scruples to "prove" that dioxin did not cause cancer and birth defects. So the veterans waited twenty-odd years and, eventually, after enough had died and enough time had elapsed, and when the guilty parties would not be prosecuted or have their medical license revoked, the chemical companies finally paid out small settlements that elapsed, and when the guilty parties would not be prosecuted or have their medical license revoked.

The Persian Gulf War was a wonderful chance to try out all the new weapons, and also all of the new vaccines and other investigational medical products. When the Rush Nader group took the DOD to court in December of 1990 to protest the use of these products, the military said it was for the "protection" of the soldiers against the chemical and biological weapons Saddam Hussein might use. If that was true then it could be argued that they made a mistake and that no intentional damage was done. [H: The question here might be "Why did the troops allow themselves to be used like this?" I refer you to yesterday's court-martial and conviction with dishonorable discharge of Mr. New who refused to take an oath to the United Nations Constitution or wear a blue beret and arm band signifying him as a soldier for the United Nations. The order was deemed appropriate and under the LAW! Wake up, America!] The fact that many troops in the Gulf did not receive these drugs, and that many troops stationed across the Middle East did get them, shows that these investigational drugs were not used only as a last ditch effort to "save" the soldiers. The troops not deployed who are now sick and so it was "UNAMERICAN" to question this policy. The Gulf War soldiers were given support by the American people; they were done to protect America. While the Iraqi soldiers were coming back to Andrews AFB, lots of Kodak moments on CNN for the people at home to cheer. A large effort was undertaken by the military to make sure that most of the POW/MIA's were accounted for. Most Americans are now wondering what is the Gulf War Syndrome fuss all about, because we did the right things for our soldiers.

Let's go back to the Persian Gulf War, where vaccines were given to soldiers to protect them from chemical and biological weapons that Saddam Hussein might use. We have numerous reports of chemicals being used in the Gulf area; we have numerous reports from the UN that Scud warheads with chemical and biological agents existed in Iraq even after the war. We have numerous reports that recombinant DNA technology was being used in Iraq to develop "novel" or new biological warfare weapons that would defeat normal testing procedures to try and identify the agent/agents used. Where did Iraq get these chemical and biological warfare weapon components and technology? Right here in the good ol' US of A. There are also reports that our side launched chemical and biological warfare weapons, and that some of our soldiers handled the weapons. Why would we do that?

21 December 1990 in response to the Rush Nader suit. They continue: "The December 21, 1990 amendment to the FDA's informed consent regulation was challenged in Federal Court," but as of this date, has not been overturned. Therefore, it may be expected that if there is a need for use of investigational products in support of combat operations, this amendment can be readily invoked. However, to rely on this amendment to address future situations is inadequate. The amendment is useful and effective, but is not the preferred solution to the problem of providing medical defense against chemical and biological warfare agents. Because the Horsetail tincture is an excellent source of Silica which is said to change into calcium that is more absorbable in the cells of the body. We are a nation that is seriously deficient in calcium because the forms of calcium that we consume are not allowed on the Gulf War registries, as this would show that the use of the drugs was a test, and the soldiers were used as Guinea Pigs.

HORSETAIL TINCTURE

(Horsetail is a herb)

Well, that was in the Persian Gulf War and it is long ago, you might say. The military did respond to the lawsuits brought and in an interesting and very informative article published in Military Medicine Vol. 157, August 1992 by LTC [sorry, the names are not legible] addressed this very issue. It is recommended reading for all who hope to know where we are headed. Some excerpts: "Under FDA regulations an investigational product cannot be used without the informed consent of the patient or the patient's legal representative...." "Deteriorations were [sorry again, the copy is so poorly produced as to disallow reading but there is reference to two products listed of which one is "botulinum toxoid vaccine"). These were not the only investigational products fielded in support of Operation Desert Storm. The other products were "only to be used in the traditional clinical setting". These other products were only to be given with "informed consent". There was an attempt, however, to collect information on the use of these products. Information was collected when possible of the same nature as is routinely collected on approved drugs and vaccines used in the traditional setting. The military went to the FDA and received a waiver for the use of these drugs on products involved, however extensively tested, are called "investigational" their use will cause doubts about their safety and efficacy. "A mechanism by which these products can attain an approved status within the FDA is needed. The FDA should establish a drug approval category for those products where clear demonstration of efficacy in humans cannot be accomplished. This would require approval of a drug product to be based on safety studies done in humans and safety and efficacy studies done in animals. Finally, change the package, change the procedures and make it EASIER, is what is indicated here.

Many reasons were given for the use of these drugs, but unfortunately no one talked about the fact that US troops were in danger because of US firms sending dangerous biological and chemical weapons to Iraq in the first place. This would be like giving your neighbor a gun and making him angry and then sending your unarmed son over to get it back. If these drugs were "far our own kind", if they were safe, "how come the powers that be won’t even..."

Today, every day, troops are lining up to receive their vaccinations in Basic Training Centers across the U.S. They BELIEVE what they are being given and they TRUST the fellow soldier who is shooting the air gun into their arms. In the Persian Gulf, the soldiers BELIEVED in their Commanders enough to UNMASK when told the Chemical alarms were false. They TRUSTED their Officers when they saw dead animals without flies and were told this was "normal" for Saudi Arabia, even though their Basic Skills booklets have told them this was a sign of a Biological contaminant. Few questioned the drugs or the vaccines; they BELIEVED they were safe. When they came home and began to get sick, they TRUSTED military doctors who had taken both a HIPPOCRATIC OATH and the Oath of Office as a Military Officer. They BELIEVED they would "heal" them. SOLDIERS DEPLOYING TO BOSNIA TRUST AND BELIEVE IN THEIR COUNTRY and the OFFICERS APPOINTED OVER THEM. THEY DO NOT BELIEVE THE U.S. MILITARY, OR THE U.S. CONGRESS, OR THE U.S. PRESIDENT COULD OR WOULD HURT THEM. They could believe the enemy might harm them but surely not their "own".

In both England and in U.S. Military Hospitals, sick Gulf War soldiers are in Arts and Crafts therapy, stoned out on Anti-Depressants as their bodies rot and are exposed to a body and a baby, but also used a contagious disease that is literally crippling whole families. It is a silent killer and it grows every day, while the liars continue their cover-up and hope that this disease will burn out. For all the big money and attention it is supposed to bring, many active-duty soldiers are terrified to come forward. They have seen what will happen to them, they will lose their jobs, and so they suffer and die in silence from horrible stomach and bowel cancers or they take their own lives. All of the military has been EXPOSED to biological warfare weapons and that some of our soldiers handled the weapons. Why would we do that? How would we know if the vaccines worked? Where else could we get the real intelligence information on our chemical and biological warfare capabilities? It certainly would answer the question as to why there is so much denial on the part of our Government about these things. As a high-ranking DIA official said in a prominent London news supply as many witnesses and proof as are necessary until such time as control is gained and no such documents are necessary.

Did we "win" the Persian Gulf War? We did bring home some troops to parade and there were not a lot of caskets lined up, but we now have sick Veterans and their sick families dying on our streets. They are the MIA of our war, and they are losing their health and their minds, and many eat out of garbage cans. This time the Pentagon has royally screwed up, for they are dealing with not just the chemicals, and all they can do is to keep the lid on. The real story is that literally crippling whole families. It is a silent killer and it grows every day, while the liars continue their cover-up and hope that this disease will burn out. For all the big money and attention it is supposed to bring, many active-duty soldiers are terrified to come forward. They have seen what will happen to them, they will lose their jobs, and so they suffer and die in silence from horrible stomach and bowel cancers or they take their own lives. All of the military has been EXPOSED to biological warfare weapons and that some of our soldiers handled the weapons. Why would we do that? How would we know if the vaccines worked? Then, "Persia! Gulf War Syndrome is real..." and then "There is no such thing as Persian Gulf War Syndrome." They report that funds will be given to civilian researchers to test these people and then you hear that the testing will be from "our own extensive studies and in our facilities". They will report that "These babies appear to have a high incidence of birth defects (GAO)," followed by the usual retraction and denial and "there is no higher incidence of birth defects in Gulf War Babies." Are you now confused? Now try to understand how a sick and dying Vet can accept this!

This is the legacy of the Persian Gulf War Era veterans that we expose the use of Military weapons against our own soldiers and their families. We look at the soldiers in terrible living conditions, many already showing the first signs of illness, and we scream silently as the new cycle gets underway.

So you have it, readers, just another chapter in depopulation and methods of bringing a world into One World Control. No military army can fight or defend from their own individual sick-beds or, as the case may be, from "their own death-beds".

Ex-Judge Jason Brent said it best in his diatribe in the Elite Mensa Society Journal: "We have to accept that the old, infirm, stupid (and useless eaters) be killed," Then, you have to realize that the military troops are the "enemy" of the "movement" into this Orwellian Society. These must be dispatched as well as the troublemakers associated with them in order to get rid of the troublesome problem-makers. Kill the welfare system and you effectively KILL THE SICK and the rest will fall into line and also become sick and, without treatment, WILL PERISH.

This is but the final act in the demise of civilization—for there ultimately comes the THING beyond which even the Elite cannot survive! So be it. Evil shall have its own rewards. Saiia.

[QUOTING:]

GULF WAR SYNDROME
by Pastor Dave Bailey

Dear friends, I have just read a very saddening article from the November 1995, LIFE magazine. Personally, I don't see how any normal individual could read this same article and not be heart-wrenchingly moved by this special story about a precious three-year-old little boy, Jayce, whose father (Sgt. Paul Hanson), was most likely exposed to some form of radioactive waste debris, and/or biological warfare. Sgt. Hanson's son, Jayce, is one of many VICTIMS who will never have the luxury of living or being like normal children. Jayce is the product of some form of chemical/biological warfare this father was exposed to during the operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm. While President Clinton and former President Bush seem to decry drug abuse, and they ask for tougher laws against drugs and drug users, and they give billions of dollars for AIDS research and so forth, WHY IN GOD'S NAME DO THEY CARE LESS ABOUT AN ESTIMATED 45,000 AMERICAN SOL- DIERS WHO HAVE DEVELOPED SEVERE SYMPTOMS/HEALTH PROBLEMS DUE TO SOMETHING THEY WERE EXPOSED TO DURING THE GULF WAR?

Land. The scientists responsible for the research were granted immunity from prosecution in exchange for their cooperation, a decision that has drawn criticism. Why? Because only the Japanese government-sponsored biowarfare experiments conducted during World War II at a camp in northern Manchuria as in Indio, California where private, and scientists from the World Health Organization (WHO) were not informed about the program. The Subcommittee on Health and Scientific Research substraited to Fort Detrick and shut down the program. The Wackenhut in Indio was built on Cabazon Indian Reservation where federal and state laws are exempt. The Indians profited from the huge financial bonanza of leasing their land to Wackenhut, while Wackenhut continued its search for the elusive biological weapon to make all other weaponry obsolete. The biological technology was transferred to bio-labs in Berkeley, California, as well as classified research institutes in Japan. The documentation on this bio-trail is available for scrutiny, but space constraints prohibit us from printing it all in this issue.

Suffice it to say that the Hantavirus found on the Indian reservations bordering the Four Corners area of Arizona, Utah, Colorado, and New Mexico may also have resulted from biological experiments conducted at Fort Wingate—an Army base located near the epicenter of the epidemic, which was once used as a storage depot for chemical weapons. [H: More than this, planes were seen spraying “something” in that area just as you would watch a plane spray a cabbage patch—only of course these were sophisticated jet planes which would not appear out of the ordinary in the area.]

So what does all this mean to ordinary Christians who have no understanding of who is pulling the strings? It is this writer’s hope to explore the possibility of a biological holocaust in the coming decade. [H: I suggest you not be “selective” to “Christians”—this is one thing YOU ARE DEFINITELY ALL IN TOGETHER—SAINT AND INNER ALIKE!] It means hope. Few families have the conventional weaponry of defending against armed BATF agents, black helicopters, or U.N. troops, so why stockpile against impossible odds?

New Gaia Products Offer Help

GaiaCol

GaiaCol is a combination of Colloidal Silver and Trace Colloidal Gold. This combination of ingredients has produced a product that is so high frequency and potent that it could quite possibly be the solution to our ongoing fight against the new antibiotic-resistant diseases that we face today. Colloidal Silver was used extensively and very successfully against bacteria, virus, fungi and the like before the advent of the first antibiotic, penicillin. The uses of Colloidal Gold were also significantly utilized in the restoration of health as early as 1885 and was noted for its ability to calm and harmonize the emotional body. Once the chemical companies began manufacturing the myriad of antibiotics, silver and gold were no longer looked to for treatment. The antibiotics they were producing, however, produced no effect on the more resistant viruses, fungi and parasites. Now we face a new generation of bacteria that are completely resistant to any antibiotics merely due to antibiotic over-prescribing and resultant survival of the fittest bacteria.

Research has demonstrated that Colloidal Silver is nontoxic to humans and allows no presently known disease-causing organism to live in its proximity. With the addition of Trace Colloidal Gold the frequency of GaiaCol is remarkably enhanced to allow these newer, more powerful viruses and bacteria to be eliminated. GaiaCol is gentle enough to use topically on just about any skin, hair or mouth condition without fear of toxicity and is outstanding for burns.

For internal use during any type of infectious process, start with one teaspoon the first day and then 10-12 drops, 3-4 times per day under the tongue until the infection clears. Then maintain with 3-4 drops, 3-4 times per day under the tongue. Important: Due to the powerful nature of this product, friendly bacteria can be affected to it is advisable to replace the natural intestinal flora with some type of acidophilus/lactobacillus supplement daily or at least when symptoms are noted such as cramps, bloating, diarrhea/constipation and a general feeling of malaise.

GaiaCol is said to be safe for children and pets and can be taken with other medications without incident. This product is not addictive and does not build up a tolerance to it in the body. 2 oz. $10.00

GaiaGold

GaiaGold is a solution of 100% Colloidal Gold which is one of the oldest used substances for medicinal purposes and has no equal in affecting the physical body positively. Around 1885, colloidal gold was commonly used in the United States as the basis for the cure of alcoholics with additional uses including treatment of Arthritis, skin ulcers, burns and certain nerve damages. Colloidal gold does not have the same Germicidal/ Antibiotic action of Colloidal Silver when topically applied, but it does have tremendous effect if taken internally for such as Syphilis and other diseases.

Colloidal Gold has been noted for its tremendous ability to balance and harmonize the emotional body, particularly in regards to unstable mental and emotional states such as "depression", "autism", "Alzheimer's", etc. Gold has further been found to aid in the healing of heart muscle and is highly beneficial in rejuvenating sluggish organs—especially the brain—as gold is the best electrical conductor yet recognized for nerve action. Another use for Gold is in cases of glandular and nervous insufficiency because Colloidal Gold is said to rejuvenate the glands and stimulate the nerves which releases the pressure and allows the signals for function to reach through to the various organs and glands.

GaiaGold intake can benefit self-control in diet and quitting programs because it helps to balance the brain's craving or need for such overindulgence or addiction. Taken in conjunction with GaiaCol, overall renewed vitality and longevity may be achieved. 2 oz. $20.00 babies thought to be at risk of crib death of SIDS. The developed the Cotwatch, a breathing monitor used for in patient monitoring systems. Together they Karlsson, a biomedical electronics engineer specializfindings that turned up surprised them: "Without endeavoring to do so... we found that the babies breathing was affected in a certain character-atic manner over a long period of time (40-65 days) following DPT injections... We also learned from the parents of crib death infants that most commonly the child had died after a DPT injection," said Dr. Scheibner.

As she continued her research, the link between crib death and vaccination became painfully obvious, and undeniable. "There was a significant and clear clustering of these (crib) deaths around the time of vaccination." Yet when approaching pediatricians with her findings she was shocked at their reaction. "We realized that we had touched a very serious and contentious issue... The resistance we encountered in pursuing this research... became the best and most effective goal for us to continue. So I wish to thank those who would not speak out against the silent killer of babies," said Dr. Scheibner.

According to medical historian Iarris Coulter, Ph.D., "There is no way that a pathologist can tell the difference between crib death and death from vaccination. I called attention to this fact at a vaccination committee meeting in Washington, D.C., where they had a panel of people from about 10 countries, and I asked the difference between sudden infant death syndrome and death from vaccination? The Americans simply could not answer the question. They waffled and couldn't site any guidelines. But the European representatives were most honest and said, 'Indeed, there is no way in the world that we can tell the difference between them, and it is a very big problem for us.' It appears that M.D.'s invented the term sudden infant death syndrome to explain away the coincidence that babies die about the same time they receive vaccines."

Dr. Coulter estimates that about two thirds of the 10,000 cases of crib death are vaccine related, but he may be conservative. When childhood vaccination rates in Australia dropped by 50 percent, they became non-mandatory (as it is becoming in many European countries). SIDS cases dropped by 50 percent! And, when Japan moved the vaccination age to 2 years old in 1973, crib death and infant convulsions virtually disappeared. Japan then recorded the lowest incidence of infant mortality in the world. (American babies receive their first shot at two months.)

Dr. Coulter, in his book Vaccination, Social Violence and Criminality, studied the long-term effects of vaccination and has found them to be related to a single neurological disturbance caused by vaccination. He wrote, "Assumptions may be generated in the same way--by an endorsement on commonly caused by vaccination... The child who would have grown up autistic dies instead by 'sudden infant death syndrome.' " [H: OK, readers, now RIGHT HERE is where gold colloids does its most wondrous work—in autism. In autism you have the inability of the nervous system in the brain to properly function and gold in a good colloidal form will not only counter toxins, it will often reconnect disconnected nerve passages. I am not advertising particularly but I AM telling you that it often WORKS! I do suggest silver with gold/colloidal colloid along with it because, as you can guess from the simple nature of immuniza-

I don't want to get into "medical malpractice" problems but this is exactly what is wrong with your Superman, Reece. His spinal injury is in that very location whereas he is paralyzed and does not breathe well on his own. It is, I consider, a total travesty of justice to let this man continue as is when there can be a reduction of nerve damage and reconnection (in his instance wherein the cord was not severed) made with the use of something as simple as a Dri-x-carrying solution and gold colloid along with a silver colloid to counter the toxins which are apparently present at the injury site. However, apparently even the ones who want him for motion picture work can't seem to get to him for that, as well. Do we become so aloof in your environment as to cut noses to spite faces? Yes, I suppose so."

According to Coulter, "When the cranial nerves are affected, the result is weakness of the eyes, ears, voice, and respiratory system (i.e., asthma), the latter condition being responsible for the cases of sudden infant death following upon vaccination."

This observation is not limited to the above authors. For decades independent researchers in different countries have commented on the vaccination-crib death link. Further, the National Vaccine Compensation Office in Washington has paid out over $500,000 in compensation for vaccine damaged children, about half to parents of children killed by the shots that were originally labeled "sudden infant death syndrome of unknown origin" on the death certi-dicate (doctors are loathe to write "vaccine death"). There's about 4,000 more cases in the pipeline with total compensation in the several billions of dollars.)

How do these findings relate to the work of Abraham Towbin, M.D. and others that show a relationship between cervical spinal damage and crib death? Towbin dealt with gross trauma, while it appears that subtile chemical vaccine trauma creates meningeal irritation that subluxates the atlanto-occipital spine, affecting the vagus nerve. [H: Fit that one to Reece as well, please.]

Dr. Scheibner, incidentally, did not stop with crib death. In a daunting display of determination she studied over 35,000 pages of medical papers dealing with vaccination and discovered that, in that material there was no evidence of effectiveness and safety of vaccines. Her years of study culminated in her book, Vaccination, The Medical Assault on the Immune System, which led her to conclude: "Immunizations, including those practiced on babies, not only did not prevent any infectious disease, they caused more suffering, more deaths than any other human activity in the entire history of medical intervention. It will be decades before the mapping-up after the disasters caused by childhood vaccination will be completed. All vaccination should cease forthwith and all victims of the side-effects should be appropriately compensated."

CAN'T STRESS SERIOUSNESS OF NEW BACTERIA, ENOUGH!

You are going to have to watch the little side notations in your local papers to catch the "passing" announcements of the trouble you face. The orders handed down from the powers that be is that there shall be no panic over these new and deadly diseases. You will find that "old" statistics will be offered and then there will be a relative comparison but always allowing announcements of the trouble you face. The orders panic - a "wet season" or a "dry season" can be blamed and will have time to receive medical attention.

HANDED DOWN FROM THE POWERS THAT BE IS THAT THERE SHALL BE NOTIFICATIONS IN YOUR LOCAL PAPERS TO CATCH THE "PASSING" OF NEW BACTERIA, A "WET SEASON" OR A "DRY SEASON" CAN BE BLAMED AND WILL HAVE TIME TO RECEIVE MEDICAL ATTENTION.

Example? In the local Bakersfield paper of yesterday, Sat., Jan. 27, on the "Local" page, at the bottom, with little fanfare, is printed an article: "The bacteria is in the air and many people carry it lines of iniquity-high probability links-between vaccine-suspended meningococcal disease and the military. Researchers are considering at least two plausible explanations for the disease: either the bacteria is a natural occurrence or it is a result of a vaccine reaction. Either way, the disease has the potential to cause death and suffering.

Dulan said the deadly bacteria often hits suddenly, as in the baby's case, giving the sufferer little opportunity to overcome the disease. Or, patients will display flu-like symptoms such as vomiting, fever and rashes and will have time to receive medical attention.

DO recommend very highly this book and I guess we must have suggested getting the book from The National Vaccine Information Center. However, the better idea is to go to NEW ATLANTEA PRESS (who publishes the book). That is: New Atlantean Press, PO Box 9638, Santa Fe, NM 87504, 1-800-698-9827.

One of the deaths was that of 13-month-old Bakersfield resident Alexander Odom, who died suddenly Jan. 5 within a few hours after he had been taken to the doctor with a rash and sniffles. He was being treated for an ear infection.

CORRECTIONS TO INFORMATION

Administration pursuant to measures inconsistent with accepted standards of medical practice." The lawsuit also asserts that "the product was FDA-approved despite the known presence of contaminants, including retroviruses such as HIV."

This landmark suit makes the following charges as well: "As a direct and proximate result of [the plaintiff's] use and consumption of contaminated live oral polio vaccine manufactured by the defendant, [the plaintiff] was infected with the retrovirus which causes AIDS and has contracted AIDS. "At all times material hereto, [the defendant] knew or should have known:

that its live oral polio vaccine was subject to contamination by infectious agents, particularly those viral in nature, including monkey viruses and retroviruses.

...that the manufacturing procedure used to produce [the polio vaccine] did not prevent contamination with foreign viruses. In fact, [the defendant] allowed these viral contaminants to remain in its product because [the defendant] believed these viral contaminants could not be killed without also killing the polio virus and ruining the vaccine.

...that the expected contaminating viruses in its live oral polio vaccine were monkey viruses from the monkey kidneys used to grow the special strains of polio virus that constituted the vaccine.

...that the product would be consumed by infants whose immune systems were immature and less capable of resisting foreign viruses.

...That the use of its live oral polio vaccine had the potential to infect many millions of infants around the world with multiple unknown viruses sufficient to start a human epidemic of an animal disease."

CHEMICAL AND BIOLOGICAL WARFARE

Several researchers believe that AIDS began as a biological warfare experiment conducted by the U.S. government. In this scenario, animal viruses were synthetically altered and intentionally added to the smallpox vaccine. This vaccine was then tested on millions of unsuspecting Central Africans during the 1970s. Although this sequence of events is disturbing, the circumstantial evidence cannot be overlooked.

On June 9, 1969, Dr. Donald M. MacArthur, Deputy Director of Defense Research and Engineering in the Office of the Secretary of Defense, testified before Congress on U.S. involvement regarding chemical and biological warfare. Excerpts from that testimony are included below:

Monday, June 9, 1969
Mr. Mahon: This Subcommittee and the Congress has, over a period of years, supported the appropriation of funds for chemical and biological warfare. I am not sure what portion of your testimony can appropriately be put in the record. We would not want to have in the record anything that would be damaging to the security of the United States, but otherwise we feel that the Congress and the American public are entitled to know all the basic facts.

Dr. Sikes: Tell us something about the biological weapons, both lethal and incapacitators. Tell us what we are doing and what the Russians are doing.

Dr. MacArthur: I am sure all of you know biological are microorganisms. We have had a policy that the biological agents that we would try to develop would be noncontagious; that is, that it could not be passed on directly from individual to individual.

Dr. Flood: Would they be effective if not contagious?

Dr. MacArthur: They could be infectious from the standpoint that they would be used as a primary aerosol and infect people inhaling it. After that they could be carried from me to you, say by an insect vector—a mosquito, for example.

Mr. Flood: Could they be effective and contagious?
Dr. MacArthur: No. A contagious disease would not be effective as a biological warfare agent, although it might have devastating effects. It lacks the essential element of control which I alluded to earlier since there would be no way to predict or control the course of the epidemic that might result.
Mr. Sikes: Tell us the story of our progress and our capability.
Dr. MacArthur: I want to reemphasize that our policy has been not to develop any contagious agents so that we could control the effects so that they would not "boomerang" on our own people if ever we were forced to use them. Typical examples of diseases caused by agents we have worked on are tularemia, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, "Q" fever, Venezuelan equine encephalitis... pm O" [B: Now try adding to that a cute little thing like meningococcal bacteriaviruses.] These agents are different from the chemicals in that they are naturally occurring diseases.
Mr. Flood: Break out for the record which are lethal and which are incapacitants. (The information follows.)

The following potential biological agents are among those that have been studied for offensive and defensive purposes:

- Immunizing:
  - Rickettsia causing Q-fever
  - Rift Valley fever virus
  - Chikungunya disease virus
  - Venezuelan equine encephalitis virus

- Lethal:
  - Yellow fever virus
  - Rabbit fever virus
  - Anthrax bacteria
  - Psittacosis
  - Rickettsia of Rocky Mountain spotted fever
  - Plague

[H: Anybody begin to see the connections with such as the new "mystery diseases" which resemble old diseases but are not?]
Dr. MacArthur: Talking about potential offensive agents, I will first restate the constraints I mentioned earlier that we have put on ourselves as a matter of policy to prevent exactly what people have been saying—that there will be a worldwide scourge, or a black death type disease that will envelop the world or major geographical areas if some of these materials were to accidently escape. That could not possibly happen with the biological agents that we have. That is a constraint that we have put on ourselves.

However, to keep the record straight, we have done a small amount of research on a few agents that do not satisfy this constraint.

[D] [END OF QUOTING]

Dr. MacArthur: There are two things about the biological agent field I would like to mention. One is the possibility of technological surprise. Molecular biology is a field that is advancing very rapidly, and eminent biologists believe that within a period of 5 to 10 years it would be possible to produce a synthetic biological agent, an agent that does not naturally exist and for which no natural immunity could have been acquired.

Vantages of such a program would be, the time and the cost involved?
Dr. MacArthur: We will be very happy to do it. (The information follows.)

The dramatic progress being made in the field of molecular biology by NIH and others has led us to investigate the relevance of this field of science to biological warfare. A small group of experts considered this matter and provided the following observations:

1. All biological agents up to the present time are representatives of naturally occurring disease, and are thus known by scientists throughout the world. They are easily available to qualified scientists for research, either for offensive or defensive purposes.
2. Within the next 5 to 10 years, it would probably be possible to make a new infective microorganism [AIDS?] which could be used in certain important aspects from any known disease-causing organisms. Most important of these is that it might be refractory to the immunological and therapeutic processes upon which we depend to maintain our relative freedom from infectious disease.
3. A research program to explore the feasibility of this could be completed in approximately 5 years at a total cost of $10 million.
4. It is a highly controversial issue, and there are many who believe such research should not be undertaken lest it lead to yet another method of massive killing of large populations.

[End of Excerpt]

WHO: Friend or Foe? Shortly thereafter, in 1972, the World Health Organization (WHO) published a provocative article on the detrimental effects of viruses on the immune system. The title of the article, "Virus-associated immunopathology: animal models and implications for human disease", indicates that a new era in the development of synthetic biological agents may have begun. In that study the following observations are made:

1. "The properties of viruses are seemingly ideal for producing immunopathological damage," and
2. "Virus-induced immunodepression might conceivably be highly instrumental in prolonging certain virus infections."

The following recommendations were made as well:

1. "A systematic evaluation of the effects of viruses on immune function should be undertaken."
2. "An attempt should be made to ascertain whether [or not] viruses can in fact exert selective effects on immune function."
3. "The possibility should also be looked into that the immune response to the virus may itself be impaired."

In a controversial article published by Health Freedom News, William Campbell Douglass, MD, claims that the virus—the AIDS virus—was deliberately manufactured by the World Health Organization in collaboration with the National Cancer Institute.

NOTE: Shortly after the link between smallpox vaccines and AIDS was publicly revealed, WHO scientists indicated their desire to abolish the world's last remaining vials of smallpox. Although they claim smallpox was eradicated and we can no longer risk an accidental reinfection, others question whether or not valuable evidence is being destroyed. [II: Let it be out of public view. Nearly 43,000 Gulf War veterans are suffering from debilitating illnesses: bleeding rashes, cysts throughout their body. Their skin is thinning, threatening to destroy her brain. She has splitting headaches and painful genital infections. Their son is sick as well.]

A few months later the true extent of Gulf War babies are headaches and painful genital infections. Their son is premature. Their children born this dilemma ranged from pesticides and burning oil wells to undetected Iraqi nerve gases, it appears that American troops are the only ones suffering. The ailment is largely unheard of in British, Canadian, Saudi, and Iraqi soldiers. Even though the media refrained from implicating vaccines as a potential cause, it awoke the country to a national dilemma: how to support our vets who unquestionably served their country.

Navy reservist developed non-Hodgkin's lymphoma cancer after returning from a six-month tour of duty in the Persian Gulf. He has since documented 86 lymphomas among fellow soldiers.

A few months later the true extent of Gulf War damage was revealed. Little by little the facts seeped into public view. Nearly 43,000 Gulf War veterans are stricken with debilitating illnesses: bleeding rashes, gums, and sinuses; muscle aches, swollen joints, chronic fatigue, diarrhea, hair loss, severe headaches, and memory loss. Also, over time the symptoms tend to become more acute. Many vets are now confined to wheelchairs and hospital beds.

"This is an epidemic. This is absolutely comparable to AIDS."

In addition, the syndrome appears to be contagious. Many veterans, their spouses, and scientists believe it can be passed through sex or sweat, or through the air. Apparently, veterans' wives and their unborn babies are being damaged as well. According to Michigan Senator Donald Riegel Jr., of the 600 vets his office surveyed, 77 percent say their spouses have the symptoms, 65 percent say their post-war babies are damaged, and 25 percent report that their children born before the war have new debilitating illnesses as well.

According to one medical researcher, "This is an epidemic. This is absolutely comparable to AIDS."

Many Gulf War couples also report that they are no longer able to make love. Intercourse causes the women to experience immediate abdominal cramping and intense burning sensations, as though their genitals were being torched. For many, their labias crack and bleed. Also, the semen burns both husband and wife within minutes of contact with skin. It causes open sores—blisters that bleed.

Many Gulf War families are being advised against pregnancy. Babies are being born with extra toes and fingers, undescended lungs, and missing body parts.

Only speculation on the roots of this dilemma ranged from pesticides and burning oil wells to undetected Iraqi nerve gases, it appears that American troops are the only ones suffering. The ailment is largely unheard of in British, Canadian, Saudi, and Iraqi soldiers. Even though the media refrained from implicating vaccines as a potential cause, it awoke the country to a national dilemma: how to support our vets who unquestionably served their country.

HEARING IS MILITARY RESEARCH HAZARDOUS TO VETERANS' HEALTH?
LESSONS FROM THE COLD WAR, THE PERSIAN GULF, AND TODAY

"A few months ago, Americans were shocked to learn that our government had intentionally exposed thousands of U.S. citizens to radiation without their knowledge or consent. Although many of us expressed horror at the apparently unethical behavior of our government, we were all relieved to hear that such experiments had been stopped long ago.

"We'd like to think that these kinds of abuses are a thing of the past, but the legacy continues. During the Persian Gulf War, hundreds of thousands of soldiers were given experimental vaccines and drugs, and today we will hear evidence that these medical products could be causing many of the 'mysterious illnesses' those veterans are now experiencing.

"Today's hearing will examine the results of an intensive 6-month investigation conducted by Committee staff. The investigation focuses on Persian Gulf War veterans, but extends from World War II-era veterans to the present.

"The results of our investigation showed a reckless disregard that shocked me, and I think they will shock all Americans. The use of investigational drugs in the Persian Gulf is especially troublesome. The Pentagon... threw caution to the winds, ignoring all warnings of potential harm, and gave these drugs to hundreds of thousands of soldiers with virtually no warnings and no safeguards.

"If that wasn't bad enough, they administered these drugs and vaccines in such a way there is a very good chance they wouldn't have even worked for the intended purpose. They would not have protected most soldiers from chemical or biological warfare.

"These are strong statements and I don't make them lightly.

"The situation is unfair from start to finish. It begins with soldiers who are asked to participate in research, to take experimental drugs, but are not told what the risks are before, during, or after.

"Then information about the exposures is not included in soldiers' medical records, putting them at even greater risk. And, when these soldiers leave the service and become veterans, the VA lacks information about the exposures, and about any resulting illnesses, making it more difficult to help them.

"Finally, when these veterans become ill, they are unable to get the medical records and other information they need in order to prove that their illnesses are related to military service.

"This situation is unacceptable.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION
"A few months ago, Americans were shocked to learn that federal agencies intentionally exposed thousands of U.S. citizens to radiation without their knowledge or consent. Although many Americans expressed horror at the apparently unethical behavior of the federal government, many believed such experiments occurred in a bygone era with less stringent ethical standards.

"Post-Holocaust Standards of Research. The Nuremberg Code is a 10-point declaration governing human experimentation which was developed in response to the inhumane experiments conducted by Nazi scientists and physicians. The Code states that voluntary and informed consent is absolutely essential at all times, wartime included. Additionally, current law prevents funds appropriated to the Department of Defense from being used for research involving a human being as an experimental subject unless the informed consent of the subject is obtained in advance...

"The Nuremberg Code should have guided the experiments whereby LSD and other hallucinogens were given to military servicemen in the 1950s without their knowledge or consent; however, those studies were kept secret until the mid-1970s. Similarly, the Nuremberg Code should have prevented hundreds of radiation experiments that several federal agencies conducted on thousands of soldiers, veterans, and civilians during the Cold War without their knowledge or consent; however, those studies continued for years and were never made public until a few months ago.

INVESTIGATIONAL DRUGS AND VACCINES IN THE PERSIAN GULF
"Under the Food, Drug, and Cosmetics Act, all vaccines and medical products must be proven safe and effective by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) in order to be sold and distributed in the United States.

"In August 1990, DOD contacted FDA to review regulatory restrictions on DOD's plan to use pyridostigmine and botulism vaccine for U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf. According to minutes of the meeting, 'FDA expressed some concern about liability and the need to comply with the regulations,' and Dr. Peck, FDA's Deputy Director for Drug Review, 'pointed out the need to establish an appropriate investigational framework to determine whether any of the military medical products in question.'

"The major focus of the meeting was informed consent. In summary, DOD did not want to abide by informed consent regulations, and FDA officials pointed out that pyridostigmine and botulism vaccine were investigational and that there are laws regulating how they can be used. DOD claimed that they had the authority to 'dictate the use of unapproved FDA regulated products' in the Persian Gulf, but they would prefer to obtain an waiver from FDA.

"The issue was debated by the two agencies for several months. Finally, at a meeting on December 31, 1990, it appeared that an agreement was reached. DOD officials agreed that the vaccine would be administered by trained individuals with a health care background, and that information would be provided orally 'at minimum, and in written form if feasible, to all personnel receiving the vaccine.' DOD officials said the feasibility of distributing an information sheet would depend on many factors, and would vary from location to location within the military theater of operations.

"In this report, we will examine how decisions were made by DOD regarding the use of investigational drugs and vaccines in the Persian Gulf War were intentional exposures to investigational drugs and vaccines... In still other cases, soldiers were exposed to biological agents or other dangerous substances that DOD was studying; the goal was to study the substances, not their effect on humans...

"Some of the studies that have been conducted had more questionable motives. For example, DoD now admits they conducted 'Man Break' tests, exposing soldiers to chemical weapons in order to determine how incapacitating those exposures were designed to harm them... is not ethical.

"These experiences put hundreds of thousands of U.S. troops at risk, and may have caused lasting harm to many individuals.

"In this report, we will examine how decisions were made by DOD regarding the use of investigational drugs and vaccines in the Persian Gulf War were based on inadequate information and in some cases by ignoring evidence that soldiers would be harmed unnecessarily. We will also discuss how the DoD's failure to provide medical treatment or information to soldiers was unjustifiable, unethical, sometimes illegal, and caused unnecessary suffering.

"In addition, information about the use of these investigational drugs and vaccines, and adverse reactions that resulted, usually were not included in soldiers' medical records. As a result, veterans, who became ill following the use of these medical products are often unable to prove that their illness or disability was related to their military service.

"Under the Food, Drug, and Cosmetics Act, all vaccines and medical products must be proven safe and effective by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) in order to be sold and distributed in the United States.
orally or in writing. Many report that they were told not to tell medical personnel that they had received vaccination, even if the vaccination caused pain or swelling. No record of the vaccine was available in medical records; as a result, physicians who were concerned about any local or systemic reactions were uninformed about the possible causes. Veterans who claim they were harmed by the vaccine of pyridostigmine frequently have no proof that they were vaccinated or took the pills, or that they had an adverse reaction. Moreover, virtually none of the soldiers received more than two of the botulism vaccinations, even though DoD informed FDA they would administer the three shots necessary for protection...

"On January 8, 1991, Dr. David Kessler, FDA Commissioner, wrote to the Assistant Secretary of Health of DoD, regarding the waiver for informed consent... In his letter, Dr. Kessler agreed that since there was 'no available satisfactory alternative therapy' for protection...he would 'concur with your assessment that informed consent is not feasible.'"

"Since the end of the Persian Gulf War, DoD has repeatedly requested that the waiver of informed consent be made permanent, arguing that 'to not finalize it provides an arguable defect under the Administrative Procedures Act and leaves both DoD and FDA open to greater liability.' To finalize the interim rule would grant unrestricted use of investigational drugs by military personnel, even when efficacy and safety have not been established."

SURVEY OF 146 PERSIAN GULF WAR VETERANS

"In the early months of 1994, staff of the Senate Committee on Veterans Affairs interviewed 146 Persian Gulf War veterans... The respondents complained about numerous negative side effects of the vaccines and pills... One claimed that two people in his unit had heart attacks after taking the experimental drugs and that one died. There were numerous complaints about the quality of care and the lack of compassion of VA physicians and nurses. This included a doctor's comment claiming that the Persian Gulf War 'wasn't a real war' and a patient's complaint that a doctor told her that she was fine, after using a stethoscope that he had forgotten to put in his ears."

VETERANS WHO COULD NOT REFUSE VACCINES

Here are a few selected comments from the survey:

On Medical Records:
- "Seven months of medical records are missing."
- "Asked for my medical record and was told all had been disposed of."
- "Medical record is lost forever."
- "Medical record was destroyed."
- "Doctors refused to put vaccinations in my medical record."
- "Was told my leave would be held up if I wanted copies of my medical record."
- "My medical record says my illness is not related to Agent Orange. This VA doctor has the wrong war!"

On Vaccinations:
- "Passed out after anthrax shot."
- "We were told not to tell we got anthrax shots because there wasn't enough for British and French troops."
- "Several reported flu symptoms at time of vaccinations."
- "I argued that I was pregnant, so finally they let me not take the shot. It was a big argument."

"They made me sign something, but the form was folded so I couldn't read what I signed."
- "We were ordered to sign the consent form."
- "I tried to refuse anthrax; was threatened with Leavenworth."

On the VA Hospital System and Doctors:
- "Military doctors are harassing me because I'm sick."
- "VA doctors don't want to know what is making you sick."
- "VA is minimizing our illnesses."
- "Navy doctors told my wife to terminate her pregnancy."

On Illnesses:
- "Lots of men in the unit have swollen testicles."
- "Sometimes I forgot to feed my son."
- "I got lost while going to get my children from school."
- "I don't have a spleen and wonder if I should have taken those drugs and vaccines."

Reproductive Dysfunction:

Additional evidence regarding the potential damage inflicted on Gulf War personnel—and insight into the magnitude of the problem—continues to accrue. For example, on August 3, 1994, the United States General Accounting Office released testimony given before the Senate Committee on Veterans Affairs. Here are a few brief excerpts:

OPERATION DESERT STORM

Potential for Reproductive Dysfunction Is Not Being Adequately Monitored

Statement of Kwai-Cheung Chan
Issue Area Director
Program Evaluation and Methodology Division

"We are here today to present our report on possible reproductive dysfunction among the U.S. armed forces who served in the Persian Gulf War. Since their return from the war in the Persian Gulf, many veterans have complained of a variety of health problems including reports of an increased number of birth defects and other reproductive problems. It is now known that before, during, and after the war, U.S. troops were exposed to a variety of potentially hazardous substances. These include but are not limited to... investigational drugs and vaccines.

"Questions remain unanswered concerning the potential reproductive and developmental dysfunction that may have occurred..."

[END OF QUOTING]

[The next two paragraphs seem to be a summary by the Author. Ed.]

_Reproductive Dysfunction: A pattern of individual and collective abuse is beginning to emerge. Some of the players include drug companies, medical policymakers from the American Medical Association (AMA), the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP), the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), the World Health Organization (WHO), the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), the Department of Defense (DoD), and federal lawmakers who turn the other cheek as the human race is subjected to a slow and methodical process of extermination._

Despite vaccine propaganda claiming the shots are safe and effective, consumers should beware of these potentially dangerous drugs and the unscrupulous forces pressuring for our compliance. We are not their human guinea pigs! [H: OH????] Whether you're trying to protect your own physical health, or the well-being of a young child or close friend, always remember to give credibility to your concerns: trust your inner voice. Don't allow yourself to be pressured into a situation against your will. If you're still unsure, seek out additional information until you're positive the decision you are making is yours alone, and is right for you and your family.

[END OF QUOTING]

And wouldn't it be dandy if it could work this way? If you could simply refuse something that the Elite push off on you? If you don't stop your fantasia trip you are going to continue to regress as a civilization until the unwanted players are weeded out. No one in the military service can even refuse to wear a UN insignia and blue beret—how think you that children going off to war can refuse a direct order to be shot, in any which way or with what, to shoot them? YOU HAVE NO CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS, PEOPLE—WAKE UP! Salu.
