China's Alaskan Connection

Thru ARCO & BP

Major Oil's Audacious Daylight Robbery

5/18/97 #1 HATONN

A reader sent an article regarding China and Alaska out of John Coleman's World In Review, asking comments. I don't think that there is much commenting required but I do feel it is such an important topic that we should offer it one step further along the road to publicity.

[QUOTING, April 1997, Volume 6, Number 4, WIR:]

of Chinese troops invade the U.S. through the Aleutians. My reply was, "exactly nothing." I explained that the pact made between the Li family dynasty and David Rockefeller in 1964, that China and the U.S. would never be at war with each other, is stronger than ever.

It was one of the Li family, Li Peng, who directed operations in Tiananmen Square. On the day of the student revolt I was on a speaking engagement in New Orleans. At question time, a lady asked me if the students were going to succeed in overthrowing the government. I told her it wasn't going to happen and she (Please see Major Oil Companies' Audacious Daylight Robbery, p.13)

VOLUNTEERISM CLOAKED IN FASCISM

From THE DAILY NEWS, May 1997, [quoting:]

The President's Summit for America's Future—a call for national service under the banner of volunteerism—came and went without widespread criticism.

Then I thought of those millions of Americans who go to work every day. From coast to coast, they go to work not to serve others but for their own life, liberty and the pursuit of their own happiness. Many Americans help others if—and only if—they are able to afford it. Their livelihoods are drained by taxes and regulations.

The youngest among them are bound to a future of servitude to pay for Medicare and Social Security; they speeches, waving flags and calls for service to society with skepticism; for those who dare to exist for their own sake—one speaker (I think she was a teacher) issued a command at the summit's opening ceremonies: Just do it.

The popular Nike slogan, in this context, translates as: Don't think, don't question, don't trust your judgment.

Just volunteer [emphasis mine].

This is the real meaning of Clinton's era of big citizenship: Renounce your self-interest and step up to serve.

Summit supporters had gathered at the birthplace of the Declaration of Independence to claim that every living American is obliged to serve others [an oxymoron] [emphasis mine].

Throughout the three-day event, the summit's core principles were repeated like a mantra of floating abstractions: Mentor, Protect, Nurture, Teach, Serve.

Protect whom—and from what? Serve whom—and to what end?

In this context, the ideas are a recipe for tyranny.

The philosophy preached at the summit is self-sacrifice camouflaged as volunteerism. It is the moral premise of the Philadelphia summit and carries the unmistakable mark of Fascism.

As Powell told an adoring Tom Brokaw, "We're all part of (the same) family."

No, General Powell, we are not part of a giant family—we are a society composed of unique, unrepeatable individuals, with each individual as his own highest value.

Each individual must be free to live for his own sake, to pursue his own goals and reach for the highest potential within.

The summit was an attempt to desecrate the notion of independence.

The proper response, for those individuals who love freedom, is to reject the morality of self-sacrifice—and proclaim a personal declaration of independence. [End quoting]

Amen!

MARK OF THE DEVIL DISCOVERED

Strange Symbol Adorns New King James Version of the Bible

Excerpted from FLASHPOINT newsletter, 3/97, [quoting:]

"And he causeth all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand, or in their foreheads: And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name." (Revelation 13:16-17)

The publisher of the NKJV, Thomas Nelson Publishing, may claim that their Bible's logo represents the Holy Trinity of Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. But, if so, why is the same design found dominant in New Age and occult circles? Why does a revoltingly

On page 225 in Duncan's Ritual of Freemasonry we find this illustration of the "Three Times Three." This symbol thus created in the performance of this degree's ritual is the same symbol used by New Age authority Marilyn Ferguson on the cover of her book, The Aquarian Conspiracy. The same symbol is used as the logo for the New King James bible.

Lest freedom-loving Americans mistake the summit as a peaceful gathering of big shots getting together to pick up garbage, let me caution: I was there, listening to their calls for national service, and when the organizers of the summit demand that each individual serve society, they mean it.

As I made my way into the host city of Philadelphia, the philosophical implications of the summit were immediately clear.

Jumbo television screens heralding a new era of service to others dwarfed the Liberty Bell. Chains, fences, steel gates, platforms and scaffolding built to hold masses of volunteers engulfed Independence Hall.

A sophisticated department store had replaced cashmere-suited mannequins with pictures of toothless children and gigantic posters of President Clinton and Vice President Al Gore.

Deafening chants of "Volunteer! Volunteer! Volunteer!" erupted when Clinton approached the podium at Marcus Foster Stadium.

For what cause were these willing servants volunteering?

Nothing—anything—it did not matter.

They were pledging allegiance to an idea: the principle of self-sacrifice for the sake of others.

Clinton asked the droning mob: Are you ready to go to work? They cheered in affirmation.

can barely afford to buy a first house.

Nonetheless, Gen. Colin Powell declared: We must be good stewards of each other.

He proclaimed: All of us can spare an extra 30 minutes. All of us can spare an extra dollar.

Who is the retired Army general to decide what constitutes an extra dollar?

And what if someone chooses to save or spend an extra dollar?

In an interview with U.S. News & World Report, the general promises punishment if you don't follow our standards.

Whose standards, what kind of punishment—and what exactly is the crime [emphasis mine]?

Through the happy talk, group hugs and celebrity kiss-kisses, the dark cloud of Fascism was evident throughout the summit.

As the former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said, aware that corporations and businessmen already donate millions of dollars in charity: "I just don't want chairmen and CEOs to give more money. I really want them to take on the personal commitment."

Apparently, giving is not enough—each individual must submit to the will of the masses [emphasis mine].

For die-hard individualists not willing to join this parade of volunteerism; for those who view charismatic blasphemous Masonic ritual also employ the same symbol?

Why does a revoltingly

A SYMBOL OF FREEMASONRY

We reproduce in Flashpoint an illustration from the classic Masonic text, Duncan's Ritual of Freemasonry, which shows how the cryptic "Three Times Three" handclasp is performed in the Royal Arch Degree by three "brothers" of the Lodge. Incredibly, it is during this grotesque ritual that the Masonic initiate learns the true name of the Masonic god, nebulously referred to by Masons as the "Grand Architect of the Universe".

In this secret ritual, however, the Masonic Lodge reveals that the actual name of their deity is Jahbuhlun. This repugnant name is obtained by combining the name of Jehova, or Yahweh, with the names of the Philistine god, Baal, and the Egyptian god, On. (On is one of the several names of the great Egyptian Sun god.) Thus, Jah-baal-on, or Jahbuhlun.

A SYMBOL OF OCCULTISM

Riplinger has brought to my attention that this same tri-part symbol is found concealed in the tail of the Green Dragon, illustrated in Harry E. Wedeck's occult classic volume, Treasury of Witchcraft.

The same symbol and logo can also be found on an album from Atlantic Records of heavy metal music by Led Zeppelin, the satanic rock group. Moreover, it is similar to the logo of the immense Krupp Works, the German manufacturing giant that was one of the most important producers for Adolf Hitler's Nazi war machine. [End quoting]

Still think the ones who wrote and publish the "Holy Bible" are Holy God of Light's (Aton's) messengers?? And that the Bible is the inerrant Word Of God??

NO HAPPY LANDING FOR BUSH, CONFRONTED IN ITALY ON LaROUCHE FRAME-UP

From THE NEW FEDERALIST, 4/14/97, [quoting:] Former President George Bush was challenged in Milan, Italy April 5, on the LaRouche case and on his own involvement in drug-running. Bush was here attending a conference of the Non-Governmental Peace Strategies Project. With former UN Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar, NATO General Secretary Javier Solana, former Swedish Prime Minister Ingvar Carlsson, and former Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachov, he signed the "Milan Charter" against intolerance.

During the question period, EIR correspondent

Andrew Spannaus was given the microphone. He began, "I am very surprised that you, George Bush, have come here to speak about tolerance, since in the United States, you put your political enemies, Lyndon LaRouche and his colleagues, in jail, because they were exposing your Iran-Contra operations of drug-running...and arms-running. How can you possibly come here and talk about tolerance?"

Bush retorted: "if I'm not mistaken, the Intelligence Review this gentlemen works for is run by a crackpot [Calling him a crackpot is tolerance??] named Lyndon LaRouche. LaRouche was put on trial in a court and convicted of tax fraud. And he's a crackpot, in my view. A crackpot."

The newspaper Il Giornale characterized Spannaus as having been "impertinent", if determined, and Bush as "forgetting the fair play and the paeans to tolerance which had just been enunciated in perfect harmony with his former colleague Gorbachov."

The paper added, "[Bush] sharply defined LaRouche as 'a crackpot', and said that he doesn't have to explain anything to anyone about this case."

"It's difficult to know," mused Il Giornale, "how Bush would have reacted if someone had pointed out to him that Saddam is still in power, and he's out."

Maybe he would have bombed them. [End quoting]

What's this?? A treasonous, lying, drug-running, pedophile, mind-controller, con-artist calls LaRouche—who is not a saint, but certainly one who has much higher ideals—a crackpot?? Who's cracked??

COMPUTER IN EVERY HOME—MANDATORY!!

From the INTERNET, 4/97, [quoting:]

"The shadow government's sinister plan to minutely control our daily lives via a global, beast computer network has recently made astonishing advances. The high-tech noose is quickly being tightened around the necks of the citizenry. Clinton announced last October 10th, that the Govt. wants every home in the U.S. to have a computer and be linked to the Internet. Clinton made it seem a noble thing as he remarked: "Let us reach for a goal in the 21st century of every home connected to the Internet, and let us be brought closer together as a community through that connection." Brought closer, indeed! The goal is to bind us together as 21st century slaves under the watchful, electronic eye of Big Brother.

Big Brother wants to keep all patriots, nationalists constitutionalists, fundamentalist Christians, and other supposed "discontents" off the Internet. Working the Internet and getting their message out exposing the New World Order will no longer be allowed.

The scheme to require the Universal Biometrics I.D. card for computer access was first revealed in an article in The European newspaper [29 Aug.-4 Sept. 1996, pg. 21]. The article explained that Acorn Computer Group, based in England; Oracle Software, a California software giant; and Things That Think, a Massachusetts-based, high technology research and development outfit, are working on this project, along with 40 other companies representing a cross section of the world's business community.

So the ultimate plan is to have every computer fitted with this card reader and no one can turn on a computer unless first inserting this Universal Biometrics I.D. card.

To insure that all goes well and the behemoth Project LUCID is fully implemented by the target date of Jan. 1, 2000 A.D., last July 15th Pres. Clinton signed an executive order [No. 13010, Federal Register July 17th, 1996, Vol. 61, No. 138, pp.37345-37350] setting up a monstrously huge federal bureaucracy to oversee and direct all high tech, citizen control operations and systems. The executive order established the President's Commission on Critical Infrastructure Protection. Its membership includes top-level officials from the Treasury, Justice, Defense, Commerce, Energy, and Transportation Departments.

Meanwhile, a global police organization called the Infrastructure Protection Task Force was also established. Made up of FEMA, the FBI, and CIA, and the NSA, the IPTF will use its considerable police, law enforcement, and intelligence authority to whip the citizenry into line. The Internet and all individual computers will be monitored and censored to make sure no "cyber terrorists" can thwart or prevent Project L.U.C.I.D.

There is more, but you can get a pretty good idea what is being planned for us! [End quoting]

Under the new laws governing telephones and fees, the FCC made rules that charge every user of telephones a fee for putting computers in every school.

Do you really think they would want every school to be filled with computers if they were to help improve your children's education? If that were true they would, simply, supply the schools with excellent and highly paid teachers.

Excellent teachers should be the highest paid of all workers—not movie stars, sports stars, corporate executives and politicians. That would cure our school problems and NATION PROBLEMS.

Excellent education is the only way we are going to solve any problems for the long term.

FROM THE PUBLISHER'S LOG (A LETTER)

Excerpted from The Press of Freedom MILITARY, 4/97, [quoting:]

When Sgt. Maj. Larry Williams, Angola, IN, retired from the Army after 27 years (starting in 1967, a year that rings a bell for many of us), he received a Certificate of Appreciation, machine-signed by Bill Clinton, Commander in Chief. Williams replied:

"I am returning this document to you, for it possesses no meaning or value to me.

"You and I are two different people, I chose to serve my country 27 years ago with honor; YOU chose a different path, one of dishonor.

"I was tutored by my parents to place honor and responsibility above all else; you obviously did not have that same type of instruction.

"When I chose to retire after 27 years of military service rather than remain, it was because of YOU!!!!

"I do not agree with your homosexual views (in the military or in mainstream society) or how YOU (and your wife) are destroying such a fine and proud organization as the United States Military (the organization that I love so dearly). For that matter, I do not agree with anything else you have done to date.

"Sir, I have NO respect for you whatsoever!!!

"I will close now by asking GOD to bless the United States Military along with the honorable men and women who serve her so proudly; I will also ask GOD to speed along the remainder of your term in office." [End quoting]

Things might change if our rotten politicians received millions of this type of response.

ANOTHER LETTER

[Quoting, same as above:]

We also get letters against our position that read, "I am a liberal, I voted for Clinton." Then don't complain about the schools, for it was liberalism that stopped the Boys' Deans paddle that you and I remember so well. Remember when you made sure that, when you were in the service, that you stayed on the straight and narrow because you knew that your future employer would want to see your discharge papers? If you wanted a job you knew that it better say "honorable". Today, an employer is PREVENTED BY LAW to even ask if the applicant was in the service. That is liberalism.

Parents leave a video camera running in their home. It records the baby sitter battering the child. Who is at fault? The parents. They "invaded the privacy" of the baby sitter. That is liberalism today. — Armond [End quoting]

ANTI-NUKE BUNCH

Excerpted from The Press of Freedom MILITARY, 4/97, [quoting:]

The anti-nuke crowd is busy trying to stop the U.S. from deploying the B61-11, a nuclear bomb designed to destroy underground command bunkers. It directs the force of its blast downward, destroying everything several hundred meters deep [enhancement mine]. The B61 can be carried by the B-2 bomber and it replaces the B35 nuclear bomb, which can't be carried by the B-2 and is less effective. Critics of the B61 say we will anger Russia, which has extensive underground command posts and other facilities. These critics also say Libya will not like it. They have a large underground chemical weapons plant. [End quoting]

Now-a-days you really have to burrow deep, but if the bomb doesn't penetrate far enough, volcanos, earthquakes and the Photon Belt can still reach them so they can die in their self-dug graves.

WHAT IS FREEDOM?

From the INTERNET, 4/10/97, [quoting:]

Just what did our fathers and grandfathers fight for? Do we, their children, enjoy freedom?

We are free so long as we obey. That is, if we do as we are told, then we are free. Just what is wrong with that picture?

We are born. If we have nothing, then are we free? Free to do what is good, what we wish to do?

Capitalism is not freedom. It is based upon sin and thus, at its very root, is an evil social system.

The more I hear about "TWA 800" the more I think that "America, land of the brave, home of the free" is an open Facist police state. Pursuit of happiness? Nope, pursuit of "rent". Of course, if everyone is ruled by fear, how much different is it from the days of "castles" containing land-barons and controlling the serfs on the lords' property?

"Bring me Wallace. Alive if possible. Dead, just as good." (Braveheart)

The Scottish, Irish and the French fought the "English rule of law" because it infringed upon their freedom as humans.

Have things changed that much? Remember the Falkland Islands war?

Capitalism: To steal as much as you can to be "rich". So America did, indeed, learn from the English. The very thing America rebelled against is what rules their every day life. The serfs work and the lords reap "where they do not sow".

It is not society that is "evil" but the motivations behind it. The motivations behind our systems are greed, that is what drives growth in our economies. The bottom line.

That one driving force is responsible for all the conflicts we face all the time. People have needs and wants to fulfill, every one of us. Why should it be such a struggle just to meet our most basic needs in such rich countries?

If a person commits murder, one must ask, "What is it that drove that person to such an extreme?" How often is it motivated by want? Usually it is extreme anger which is generated by the constant negativity that is poured at us.

It is obvious that when one commits a robbery that the person wants money. For whatever reason.

What causes a person to try drugs? Again, it is not drugs that are evil but the motivation behind using them.

What are the goals of our "Western society"? To make the whole world "free"? Free for exploitation? Do we even have goals as a society?

Everyone tells us to set goals but it is still "every man for himself" in our society. Is this right? Is it moral? Oil companies still set our agendas. Free energy devices are suppressed, the media does not cover them, and generally nobody is aware of such things because they are conditioned in their thinking. The governments are just ruthless rulers who care nothing for the individuals in society, only how much tax they can pay.

Drug dealers and prostitutes are "hated" because they pay no tax. The deaths caused by drugs hardly compare to the deaths caused by the pursuit of the money it takes to buy the drugs. The loss in tax revenue for an individual who uses some drug is also an issue which is quietly swept under the rug.

Money does not buy happiness.

What is the point of our world? Our societies have no goal other than to rule all under the tyrannical boot of capitalism. The "haves" enjoying while the "have-nots" struggle to overcome their oppression.

To gain "freedom" in today's world is to give up your freedom, work at some job, be forced into the mold, and hope you can somehow rise above it by saving and slaving. But no, costs rise while your pay does not. If you screw up and have kids then you are locked into the mold—you must feed your children.

So to gain freedom one must give it up. Therefore, it was never accorded to anyone to begin with. Except the "lords", they are free to continue grinding the rest of us.

We must make ourselves free.

"They may take our lives, but they can never take our freedom."

It is just too bad we, good people, just give it up, without a fight. [End quoting]

Sounds just like a lot of people out there. But, when you look at this Earth as being a classroom for many levels of students and that as many as 2/3 of these are, for all practical purposes, soul-less, the picture changes. What better place could there be for the advanced students and teachers to experience and help others. This is a planet in a grand transition.

The ones who are ready for freedom will be freed during this transition and the remainder will be placed into other "classrooms" where they can continue until they are ready for their grand transitions to freedom and it won't be accomplished with guns.

Truth is the ONLY thing that will set us free!

HUGE OZONE HOLE OVER RUSSIA REPORTED

I wonder what Russia would think if it were aware of what HAARP's doing? Maybe they do know.

From the INTERNET, 5/9/97, [quoting:]

MOSCOW—A Russian newspaper reports a huge ozone hole has developed over North Siberia stretching towards the North Pole.

The Moskovsky Komsomolets daily says Russian scientists estimate the size of the hole has now reached a record 2,000 km in length and has taken ozone levels to a new low, matching the levels seen in Antarctica. The hole has been holding over the area for two months and is becoming a major environmental concern. The paper reports ozone levels have dropped by 40 percent in the last month alone.

NASA has reportedly sent a plane to make high-altitude measurements of ozone in the area.

Scientists believe the reason for the huge hole, the first this size in the Northern Hemisphere, is due to unusually low temperatures in the Arctic this spring. [End quoting]

NOBEL WINNER JAILED

From THE MODESTO BEE, 4/30/97, [quoting:]

Nobel-winning scientist Daniel Gajdusek was ordered Tuesday to serve 1.5 years in jail for sexually abusing a 15-year-old boy he brought back from a research trip to Micronesia. Gajdusek pleaded guilty to two counts of child abuse in February. He began serving his sentence immediately Tuesday at the Frederick County Detention Center. Under a plea agreement, the judge suspended all but 18 months of a 30-year sentence. Prosecutors said Gajdusek brought home 56 boys from research trips to the Pacific islands beginning in the 1960s. - (2) The consequences are far more significant than NAFTA.

(3) The public is completely unaware of this. (What else is new?)

FDR JOINS NATION'S HONORED ELITE

Memorial in Washington pays tribute to the man and his time.

Excerpted from THE BILLINGS GAZETTE, 5/3/97, [quoting:]

A new national memorial took its place Friday beside those for Washington, Jefferson, and Lincoln. In word and sculpture, it honors Franklin D. Roosevelt, who calmed a shaken nation, led it to victory in war and set in place a social system that still endures.

"We honor the greatest president of this great American century," said President Clinton, born after Roosevelt's death in 1945....

"He electrified the farms and hollows, but even more important, he electrified the nation, instilling confidence with every tilt of his head and boom of his laughter," said Clinton.

"It was that faith in his own extraordinary potential that enabled him to guide his country from a wheelchair, and from that wheelchair...he lifted a great people back to their feet and set America to march again toward its destiny." [End quoting]

This man was one of the most evil men to ever rule a country. Talk about a Hitler—in many ways he was even worse because he fooled a great nation over many years—even worse than Hitler.

It was his actions that took us back into a deeper depression when the country was emerging from one (fabricated) so that he could get far more damaging laws passed so the liberals could get us under their control and into the mess they have us in today—ready for the final takeover.

Did you ever think that smile might have been a cynical smile, just like Clinton's—a smirk—laughing at us fools who bought and are still buying the treasonous actions as fatherly love?

Don't you think Lincoln would like to have his memorial moved far, far away from the stench of that treasonous man, Roosevelt, who purposely started the war with Japan and Germany for pure greed and turned over much of our property and power to the Communists.

We are still building monuments to our slave masters and executioners, and gushing over them.

WILL WE EVER WAKE UP??

THE WRONG KEYBOARD

From POPULAR SCIENCE magazine, 6/97, [quoting:]

Buying your kids a computer to open their minds to the wonders of science and logic? Maybe you better buy a piano instead. A team of psychologists exploring the link between music and intelligence has found that piano instruction is far superior to computer instruction in enhancing the kind of abstract reasoning skills a child will need for excelling in math and science later on.

In a two-year experiment, one group of preschoolers was given private piano and singing lessons and another got private computer lessons. The musically trained kids scored 34 percent higher than the others on tests measuring the higher brain functions critical in science, math, and engineering. [End quoting]

Take heed, parents. With training of the higher brain functions the kids will be able to get the knowledge they need on their own and not have to be a slave to teachers the rest of their lives.

ONLY HUMAN

From GUIDEPOSTS, P.O. Box 1479, Carmel, NY 10512, [quoting:]

In the first light of dawn I stood at the Reflecting Pool at the outer edge of the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C. I had driven all the way from California to see it, but I couldn't bring myself to take the final steps to the Wall.

I had fought in Vietnam as an 18-year-old and it was there that I had started using drugs. One night I convinced my friend Gil to take my patrol duty while I went off to get high. Gil was killed that night. Back home, after the war, I hopped from town to town and jail to jail, tormented by guilt and unable to beat the addiction that had caused so much pain in my life.

Now, 23 years later, I had come to find Gil's name and confront the wreckage of my past. This could be my last chance to start life over. But I couldn't approach the Wall.

Through the morning haze a man walked toward me. He looked like an ordinary government worker in a suit and tie. "Walk with me," he said, and without a thought I did. Together we walked along the path. Then we stopped and the man held his hand over some names on the Wall. "You'll find him here," he said.

I looked up to where his hand had been, and there among the 58,000 names cut into the black granite was Gil's. Staring at the spot, I knew that nothing I could do would ever erase my friend's name from that Wall. The only thing that could change was me. With God's help, I could start today.

As the Sun broke over the Potomac, I turned to my guide, but he was gone. Today I would like to tell him how my life has changed. But first I would ask him how he knew where to look for that one name. —Mike Osuch, Charlotte, Arkansas [End quoting]

Further, brainwashing has achieved such sophistication as to totally control the mass population and individual persons to the very capability of separating soul from human consciousness. This is unacceptable to Creator. Man is doomed if changes are not brought about quickly and surely. This book is a representation of a JOURNAL "banned" by Federal Court. We have added the ultimate insult in this offering and made changes in the original presentation to qualify the material. May your reading be guided and the Light of realization be your gift.

PART III

DAVID: Well, if we want to go on for a bit, we can mess around and take some more questions. I thought I would say a few things first—where I've been, things that I've come across. First of all, this kind of book, it has quite an unusual cover on it [See box on this page for his latest book: I Am Me, I Am Free]. The sticker comes off (laughter) because I wanted to focus on some of the things I was talking about earlier, which is not just that the world's controlled, but how it's done. Basically how it's done is turning 5 billion people into a herd instead of unique individuals. It occurred to me that the attitude that we have for the physical body is a classic expression of conditioning, because in Sweden you don't need a sticker. In Britain you need a sticker to get it onto the shelves. At least in some parts of America I think they are going to need oxygen. Just keep taking deep breaths you will be fine in a minute, don't worry about it.

The only difference between those reactions is how infinite consciousness has been conditioned in those countries in the years they have been alive. I remember going to the old city of Jerusalem once in 1993, and in the old city it is a small area within the city walls, but it is still broken up into four parts: there is the Christian quarter, an Armenian quarter, a Jewish quarter, and an Arab quarter—I remember I was just down from that big Islamic mosque temple watching these little Moslem kids playing football (soccer they call it in America). As I was watching these little kids—there were about 6 or 7, something like that—it occurred to me that by that age they already had conditioned into them a certain view of themselves, a certain view of "God", a certain view of Jewish people. Had that consciousness become incarnate in the old city of Jerusalem, for example, literally five minutes down the road, in the Jewish quarter, or Christian quarter they would now have a very different view of life themselves and Arab people. The only difference between that is the conditioning.

It seems to me that, if you observe people, most people, it is very hard to see any original thought manifested as a view or an action that hasn't actually originated out there somewhere and come back out through them as a conditioned response rather than a real thought. I think that in many ways, if we get too pulled into the three-dimensional information, which is very, very important, we can, if we lose the balance, we can get pulled out of the way we got into this situation and the way we can get out of it. And that is taking our power back which is why—I was talking to someone just at the break there—it is very, very important that the stuff about the manipulation also goes out with spiritual information about how we take our power back and who we really are.

And in the same way, it is very important that the stuff about the abductions of children and all this stuff goes out with the big picture of who is responsible for it and to what end. Because if we just put the children information out without the big picture, then we can get a situation whereby the people who are abducting the children then start offering the solutions to their problems, which is to microchip children to stop it happening. So it's very, very important that all the time this big picture keeps going out and we don't get pulled in to just one aspect of it, 'cause in that way, actually doing what we believe to be right, putting information out, can play into the hands of the people that then want to offer solutions to the problems we are exposing.

Like I said earlier, I found in every country I have been in similar things happening. I guess one of them—and it links into mind control—one of them is people going crazy with guns, and the solution being offered is to disarm the population. Now, there is no one that wants a world free of weapons more than me, and I wouldn't personally pull a trigger to save my life. I would tell you that straight up front because I don't see the point in trying to meet violence with more violence. I see it as pointless. However, there are significant numbers of people who would do that, and the people who wish to take control know they would and, therefore, they wish those weapons to be taken out of circulation to make the takeover basically trouble-free. And so around the world this is going on.

In the United Kingdom, in Scotland, we had the famous example of this in Dunblane, where the guy went into a children's gymnasium and blew a lot of kids away. The same has happened in America within a short time after Dunblane. A guy called Martin Bryant went crazy with a gun in Port Arthur, Tasmania, and about a month before I arrived in New Zealand a few weeks ago, someone there did the same. The solution has always been to disarm the population. My understanding of the situation in Australia now is that, by September, the Australian population will be in effect disarmed.

We are definitely looking at a global agenda unfolding because the same is happening in every country. I talked earlier about mind control being "as above so below". What the collective consciousness is being subjected to also in these events is trauma-based mind control. As it's been shown, a mind in trauma is much easier to manipulate and it is much more suggestible. Now it is not only the Cathy O'Briens and people like that who have been through the trauma-based mind control—they have been through it in a very extreme individual way. Anyone like me, who picked up the newspaper and read about Dunblane and saw the picture of the children's classroom on the front page of all the newspapers, on some level went into trauma at the very thought of it. So these events are multidimensional in terms of their effect. They offer problem, reaction, solution: to disarm the population. But they also traumatize the population and make them more suggestible to other forms of mass manipulation. I feel that this is obviously not without the people involved knowing exactly what they are doing. One level of it is trauma-based mind control, and another level of it is problem, reaction, solution. In the end, I think we are looking at an agenda which includes some kind of military intervention of some kind, some kind of military intervention in each country, unless we wake up. I just used the Australian example of how the thing fits together.

In official buildings, as I understand it, in Indonesia, there are maps of Indonesia, the land that is claimed to be Indonesia. These maps, and I have seen a copy of them when I was in Australia, these maps include the top third of Australia, which they put on their map of Indonesia. At the same time that these maps have appeared, the Australian government has announced that, if attacked from the north, it would not defend Australia above what it calls the Brisbane line, which is a line drawn across Australia just slightly above Brisbane. That is precisely where the Indonesians have drawn the line of what belongs to them. At the same time Indonesian people have been encouraged to settle in northern Australia around Darwin and places like that. At the same time the Indonesian army, while I was there in Australia not more than a month ago, was on maneuvers in the very area with the Australian and American forces, the area they are claiming is theirs. At the very same time, a guy called Martin Bryant goes crazy with a gun, and the solution to that has been to, by September, disarm the Australian population.

So you put all these different things together, and it doesn't take a genius to see there is a pattern there. I think this pattern is more obvious in Australia because what surprised me there is just how controlled it is and how rapidly it is moving along the New World Order agenda, particularly in the area of Victoria, Melbourne and all that part of Australia. They have got a Premier in there in Victoria called Jeff Kennit, and he is pushing this New World Order along very, very quickly in terms of its agenda.

I do feel that Australia could be very significant here because, if you want to create a center for something, a center for data control or a center for control in general, then it's clear they want an English speaking country. What better than an English speaking country that has a relatively small population and is literally thousands of miles away from the other English speaking countries which would make it very difficult for people in America to challenge anything that is coming out of Australia, the same with the people in Europe.

I do think that Australia is very, very important. There are people there, particularly a former civil servant called Sawyer who has identified a number of strange things going on with telephone exchanges being built that are far, far bigger than Australia ever needs. He has identified that it is actually a massive computer center quite capable of being the center of the global computer mind-control network. I guess if I was sensible and I was really wanting to bring this about, I think Australia would be a very good place to put it. Certainly it is a very controlled country.

Just finally on that point, about trauma-based mind control and on the collective consciousness, what I find here kind of interesting is that the mental profile of the people that are doing this stuff is almost exactly the same. And secondly, these horrendous events with guns are invariably taking place, not in downtown cities, which would have a lesser effect on the mind because, "oh, well that's a city"; they are taking place in small quiet communities like Dunblane. I have been to Dunblane. I mean, it is just a quiet community where if someone coughs it gets in the newspaper. Port Arthur, Tasmania, another small place; nothing ever happens there, people feel safe. I think the mind-control state of mind that was sought by these events was summed up after the Australia event, the Australia killings, by a front page headline in the British Daily Mail which said: "Is Nowhere In The World Safe Anymore?" That is exactly the state of mind that we are being manipulated to take on because when anyone is in fear then they will demand that someone out there protects them from what they have been manipulated to fear, and if they have been manipulated to fear guns, they will press and press and press for the population to be disarmed.

I think it is important that even people like me who are very—I have no desire to see weapons in existence at all, but I think it is very important that, no matter what your personal belief, you look and ask the question, Ok, I would like to see no guns in circulation, but that includes the military as well, and it includes the police as well, and it includes everybody. And no matter what my personal feelings are, if we are not going to get duped, the question needs to be asked, "What is the motivation of those who are wishing to take guns out of circulation now? Never mind what our feelings are about guns, what is the motivation of people who are seeking to do it now?" And the motivation in the Australian example and endless others is pretty obvious. It is to disarm the population in preparation for a military takeover.

AUDIENCE: I think it is so interesting that you are talking about the child abuse thing because there has been a major story just dominating all the tabloid newspapers, supermarket tabloids, in the United States for going on three months now, about a little 7-year-old girl, Jon Benet. Could you comment on what you see behind that?

DAVID: Yes, I could. I will tell you a story about all this. I started to gather information the last time I was here from witnesses that appeared very strongly to be trustworthy, that there was at least a major Satanic child ring and drug-running ring in Colorado, based particularly in Denver and Boulder. So when I heard, back in England, this story came on the news about Jon Benet in Boulder, Colorado, my antenna immediately sort of started shooting upwards. When I came back over here, I was on my way out to Australia, and I spent a week in California doing research, just before I left for Australia. I thought, well let's start and see how many children go missing in America every year. I rang Washington to try and get some federal figures, and they told me no federal figures were available, they didn't keep them. Tell you how many cars went missing last year, but not children.

Eventually I come across this missing-child line, an 800 number across America, and I rang them, and they were very helpful. They confirmed there were no federal figures, but they said, "We will fax you the address and number of all our branches in every state, and they will keep the state figures." Well, I was just off to Australia so I didn't have time to ring them all. But if anyone wants to do it for me, I would be very grateful. I thought, I will check Colorado because, for a number of reasons, it was pretty obvious there were some pretty black things going on in Colorado, not just related to children, but I think Denver is becoming a major center for this, for reasons that I might talk about in a minute which relate to Canada and stuff. I think it is good to get this stuff out. I came across it the other week. Anyway, I rang the lady at the branch in Denver, and she told me, last year, 1996, 19,000 children went missing in Colorado. Eleven thousand were found, which to this point has left 8,000 children and young people in Colorado gone missing in 1996, officially reported, who have not been found. Now they are only the ones that hit the paperwork and the databases. How many more go missing that never hit the official reports? So I said to this lady, "Is Colorado an unusual state?" She said, "No, it usually goes in America by population. If you rang California, the number would be higher." I said, "Was 1996 an unusual year?" She said, "No."

I said, "I haven't got time to ring them all now, so would it be reasonable, for a rule of thumb then, just to multiply 8,000 in Colorado by 50 states to get some idea of the kind of range we are looking at?" And she thought that would give a fair assessment of America. So you multiply 8,000 by 50 states and you see the figure you get, and they are the ones that hit the paperwork. So obviously not all those children and young people are going into Satanic ritual abuse, not all of them are going into hidden and government mind-control operations. But, the number of children that go missing is so completely ridiculous that it is very clear, when you take all the other evidence that is coming to light, that tens and tens and tens of thousands of them do. I do feel myself instinctively that the Jon Benet case is certainly part of this.

I talked earlier about how I thought the veil was lifting. I don't think anything in human form can stop it lifting. This is a done deal, this transformation of planet Earth. This question is, and it's down to us, how bumpy is the transition going to be? I think that, when you look at the way the veil is lifting, that things are now coming to light like the Jon Benet case and like the Bush stuff and many others, where the chinks of light are beginning to appear in this suppression. I don't think the Jon Benet case will go away. I don't think Oklahoma will go away. I don't think any of these things will go away because I think one thing that they have done—there are two things that people of that mindset cannot understand or relate to or cope with: that is, people who are in integrity, and people who are not in fear. I think, over a period of time, they have had such a clear field to run the world as they wished that they have gotten lazy and they have gotten sloppy. And at the time they are getting sloppy, more and more people are waking up. I think a number of these things are actually going to be ways this gets into the public arena. Of course, with the Jon Benet thing, if pedophilia is as rampant staggeringly as it appears to be—I mean, what better than to have children in that sort of beauty contest circuit? It is obvious that that would be used, indeed, perhaps, even set up from the start by the mindset that we are talking about. I do think it is involved.

AUDIENCE: So you see that particular case as a chink in the armor and not a part of the cover-up?

DAVID: I think the Jon Benet story is clearly, at the moment, being covered up. I don't think you can go on covering up things when information is coming out, when information is coming out increasingly at the rate it is. I think they have made a really big mistake, for instance, over Oklahoma, because that is not going to go away. It doesn't matter, to an extent, what that court decides. It is obviously a stitch-up anyway. That story is not going to go away, because it's too ludicrous. I do feel myself that there is an anxiety now among the controlling Elite to push this on quicker, quicker, quicker. And that will manifest, to an extent, in seeking to discredit even more urgently those who are putting this stuff out. Because there is a point where they are trying to get this installed before the awakening, which they demonstrably know is going on, reaches critical mass. Once it reaches critical mass, and I don't think we are far from it, this agenda is in desperate trouble. I do feel an anxiety to push it on and push it on and push it on. I think some of their time scales are getting behind. Everyone that stands up and speaks out is pushing their time scale behind a little bit more. So I can see some major mistakes being made. I think they have already been made and will have proved to have been so.

AUDIENCE: David, if you agree that there is a mind some place that is running this New World Order, a centralized power, what do you see the common man has as his power to overcome this uncollected? These guys are working on a single thought, a single mind idea. How is the million-points-of-light out here that you are awakening, how are they going to collectively bring it all together and overcome this power?

DAVID: Well, in the end, it is like I talked about before the pudding [break]. Once we access who we are and start to manifest that vision, that power, that focus and that fearlessness in our everyday lives, we will naturally do the things that will bring an end to this. What they have worked to do, and this is what mind control is in the end, is to delink us from that level of our multidimensional self. It is interesting when you talk to people like Cathy O'Brien, one of the things that they so often say is, "No matter what they did to us, they could not get to our spiritual core." Because the spiritual core, pure love, soul, is so far out-of-this-world vibrationally, they can't touch it. What they can do is delink us from it if we allow it to happen. Then we become a fragment of consciousness. It is interesting, wherever you look, you see, "as above so below."

I am sure people here know all about multiple personality disorder and stuff like that after what CONTACT has been printing. Multiple personality disorder is basically breaking up the mind that operates through the physical body into compartments that are unaware of the other's existence. In a way what we are looking at in the collective consciousness and our own higher consciousness is that we have been compartmentalized in the same way, so that our consciousness here, looking through the eyes, and hearing through the ears has become delinked, compartmentalized from its higher dimensional self. So, in a way, almost every person in the world is a multiple in that sense. Once you kind of break down those barriers, and they are basically emotional barriers, and you re-link with multidimensional self then in the same way that Cathy O'Brien's mind became whole as the compartments were removed, so we become multidimensionally whole when we remove our own compartments, this egg shell I talk about. At that point we are accessing a power well beyond a knowledge, an understanding, a wisdom, well beyond anything that has been manipulated in the world, because you can't get out there vibrationally unless your heart is open. And if your heart's open, then you don't abuse children and you don't manipulate countries into world wars in this century. I think it is very important that we keep in our mind the fact that the real power is with the mass of the human race, and not with this handful of people who have manipulated us. It is the knowledge of the mind, and consciousness that has been passed over for thousands of years through the higher levels of the mystery schools and the secret society networks which has allowed a situation in which the few get hold of the knowledge of the nature of consciousness and stuff and therefore use it on us to manipulate, while using inquisitions and ridicule and stuff like that to keep that knowledge out of the public domain, where we can use it for positive reasons, because knowledge is not good or bad: it just is.

AUDIENCE: It sounds good, David, but where can I go to get those children out of that hole? Where can I go for support?

DAVID: You know that.

AUDIENCE: I know that but I can't go to the police, I can't go to my government, I can't go to a lawyer. Who can I go to?

DAVID: You can go to some lawyers. The point is where can I go to? I can't go to the police, I can't go to a lawyer, I can't go to a politician about this, so what am I doing? I'm going around, bypassing that, going direct to people who can make a difference, which is all of us. If you go via the established structure, then you are just wasting your time because that is there to stop, not to put this out. Then go direct to people, put it out, tell them about it.

AUDIENCE: Maybe I am belaboring the point, David, but where do all these thousands of people go to make the change?

DAVID: Only they know that. If you are looking to me to say what I think you should do, you are giving your power away to me. You know! It's accessing that: somewhere in you, you have an intuition which says, "If you want to do this, this is where you need to go." I don't know where you need to go. You know where you need to go. That is why I am simply not going to get into, at any time, with saying this is what people should do in terms of action, because I'm then just doing what I'm challenging which is telling people what is right for them. I know what is right for me. I know what I'm trying to do to highlight this. I'm not even going to begin to tell you what I think you should do or even what you could do. You know that. Accessing it is your responsibility, not mine.

AUDIENCE: So you think one person can change it all?

DAVID: Well, one person can change it all. I remember, in the very early part of my awakening I bumped into a psychic when I was still a television presenter. She started giving me this information which was kind of blowing me away because this was all new to me at the time. She was telling me that I was going to go out on a global scale and talk about all this stuff, and I [would be] facing opposition, but they would always be there to protect me, and all this stuff. I was thinking, "What?" One of the things she said, funny enough, was and I will never forget it—one man cannot change the world, but one man can communicate the message that can change the world. So one man can, but there is no need for one man to do it because we are all that one man and we are all that one woman. It is just a choice.

AUDIENCE: Sir, regarding your comment about the future resting with the vast majority of people who sense what is right versus the tiny fragment that's, through our inaction, attained control of the planet. An interesting idea that Commander Hatton has discussed and alluded to is that there has been such a massive program of cloning going on for so many decades that something on the order of two-thirds or maybe three-quarters of the physical beings walking around on the planet could be called, to one degree or another, soulless. I wonder if that idea has come your way and how you would respond to that? It makes the job all the harder, I guess would be another way of saying it.

DAVID: Well, first of all, if you take what appears to be the case, that secret technology and development is anything, thirty, forty, fifty years and more ahead of what is in the public arena, then if they are admitting to cloning sheep in the public arena, then they have clearly been cloning people for a very long time. It is kind of funny, almost, in the papers: "Oh well, they might be doing people in three or four years." Funny, isn't it?

AUDIENCE: Well Domino's has them doing sheep at the sound of a button with a pizza on top, because they are so excited about having done it once, the guy gets snowed in with cloned sheep.

DAVID: Well, I will tell you a funny story. You know these guys that came with the cameras to CONTACT and stuff. One thing I think that we might remember is that the media is not knowingly manipulating, in the vast majority of cases. There are publishers that are knowingly manipulating, there are editors that are knowingly manipulating, there are key writers, key correspondents. But most journalists—and I have been one—are some of the most uninformed, manipulated people you will ever meet in your life. We have this saying in Britain which goes, "You can not bribe or twist the great British journalist, but seeing what they will do unbribed there is no reason to."

I will tell you a funny story. When I was talking down in Los Angeles about a week ago, I talked twice in Los Angeles on different nights, and after the second one this guy came up to me with an English accent, and he said, "Can I have a word with you?" I said, "OK." He said, "I am from the Observer," which is a broadsheet Sunday newspaper in Britain. And we are having this conversation and it's, like—talk about not up to speed—at one point, and it was ever so funny, and I mentioned about Bush and his drug running—this is a journalist on a Sunday newspaper in Britain, not a tabloid, a "serious" one (the difference between tabloids and the serious ones is the serious ones use bigger sheets of paper and longer sentences, and their nose is slightly higher in the air) so this guy says at one point, he said, "Bush was running drugs?" I said, "Yeah!" He said, "What, when he was President?" I said, "Welcome to the world as it really is, I hope you will be very happy here."

So, most journalists are just naive. There is a combination which I find is incredibly manipulable and that's naivete and arrogance: the naivete that you will accept the stuff and not question it, and the arrogance to think that, of course, since you are a journalist, if it was going on, you would know about it.

So, what was the question again, I'm miles away now. Oh, cloning. Yeah, so I think that cloning is definitely a reality. It is ridiculous now that sheep stuff is in the public arena. I guess to an extent it makes things harder, but, I mean, we can go on piling things on top of things about how hard it is. I think, actually, we are starting to turn the corner here. Again it comes back to what happened to CONTACT and others. If you weren't making a difference, they wouldn't even bother with you. I found it interesting: I have been in Denmark about three times now, and none of this is going out in Denmark. They asked me in from England because no one else is doing it in Denmark. It is amazing in a country of five million people how you can get things around pretty quick. I was talking the last time I went about their main newspaper. It's called Politiken and it's edited by a Bildeberger. Someone sent me recently a whole page article in Politiken talking about these people with theories of global conspiracy and all this stuff. "Don't listen, it is all nonsense, basically please don't listen." I have picked up on an aircraft recently, I think it was Newsweek (could have been Time, but I think it was Newsweek), and they had a page article about conspiracy theories; "Don't believe it". They don't waste that newsprint and that space unless they think it is necessary. So we are turning the corner here, and we need to keep focused on that.

I mean, you talk about cloning. Well two can play at that game. When I was up in Canada last autumn, I spoke in Vancouver, and they recorded the talk and they networked it around Canada and it had a really significant effect. When I went back to Vancouver this time, everything had upped a lot of gears. I spoke to 650 people in two nights in Canada. They are really beginning to open up there. The reason I am telling you that story is that the guy who put the meeting on, when I met him, when I arrived this time, he said to me, "Which one are you then?" I said, "What do you mean?" He said, "Which David Icke are you? Well a guy who is a conspiracy buff in Vancouver had heard the tape you did in Vancouver and then got hold of a tape you did in Los Angeles you did in the fall as well, and he is putting it around that they are not the same people."

Well, the guy putting in the meeting in Vancouver was told, "The real one spoke in Los Angeles; you are getting the clone. You have been ripped off." So when you look at my schedule, you will see that I am talking in Denmark, Britain, Australia and Canada and the United States all on the same night.

Actually, I think it is worthy of talking about this Canadian stuff. I don't want you to come across it. It relates very much to the United States and the big picture. When I was up in Canada the last time, I started to realize that there was a major operation going on up there to absorb Canada into the United States by 2005. This time I stayed with the guy and his wife who are at the forefront of exposing this. The man is called Glen Keeley, and what happened to him was that he was involved in putting together a big property deal some years ago; it was a big complex. Then he got a call from a government minister who wanted a clandestine meeting with him one morning. Basically, the conversation went along the lines of, "This is a big project; it would be a shame if something went wrong with it, wouldn't it? I mean, you need the government behind you, don't you?" The line was basically, "If you'd like that to happen, then put 5% on top of your cost and I will tell you where to send the money." So this guy, Glen Keeley—seems a very straight guy—immediately dropped the project, got out of it, and spent one thousand days on Parliament Hill in Ottawa protesting, day after day after day, shouting profusely at Brian Mulroney the prime minister, asking him how many five percents he had taken that day.

We talk about "Can one man make a difference?" He was telling me that, at the early part of that stand, he was being laughed at and ridiculed. But by the end of it, people in the government were giving him documents. And then, synchronicity happens, because the team is coming together now big time. She came across him, a lady named Shelly Ann Clark.

Shelly Ann Clark was born into a wealthy diplomatic Canadian family, and went to work for the Canadian foreign office, and came into a significant position. At one point, she was special assistant to a guy named Germane Dennis. He was one of the negotiators of the Free Trade Agreement with the United States. She was called out a number of times in the middle of the night between 12 and 4 o'clock, and she was told to do two things; first of all, shred documents which showed what had really been agreed at a federal level between Canada and America, and to produce a new version of the Free Trade Agreement which the provinces of Canada would see. For instance, if Canada was giving up 40% of something in the agreement, the doctored document for the provinces said they were giving up 10%, and so on. So they didn't know what they were agreeing to. During these clandestine operations in the middle of the night, Shelly Ann Clark—this is in the '80s, now—also saw what she called a bio-rhythm chart which was the sequence of events through the '80s up to 2005 which would lead to Canada being absorbed into the United States. One of these—and it was scheduled back in the '80s for 1995—was the pulling out of the union by Quebec. It even named, back in the '80s in this chart, the premier, the man who would be premier of Quebec at this time now, and his name was Lucien Bouchard(?) and that is who is premier now. They got a little behind in the time scale because in 1995, right on the button, they orchestrated a referendum which failed by a small majority.

The last time I was in Canada I saw an article in, anything like a free newspaper left, called the Toronto Star which was looking at the way Lucien Bouchard(?) was making life difficult and unpleasant for English speakers in Quebec and they were leaving Quebec in droves. What the guy's doing, of course, is exporting the majority so when they go the next time, they will get it. In this bio-rhythm chart—incidentally, Shelly Ann Clark is now married to Glen Keeley and I stayed with both of them in Canada this time—the scam to get Canada into the union (and for something else very important that I will talk about in a second) was something called the Grand Canal Project. It is to dam James Bay in the north of Canada and to redirect the fresh water flow down into the United States. It is a massive operation that will cost hundreds of billions of dollars. The idea is to sell to the Canadian people—because, of course, NAFTA is dismantling Canada's economy—it is to sell to the Canadian people the idea that, if this is done, they will be able to sell water, which they have in fantastic abundance in Canada, to the United States, particularly to the Midwest, which will mean there will be no more dust bowls or anything like that because there will be a permanent, constant flow of fresh water. And in doing that, they will be able to have a very, very large check from the United States for selling them that water.

DAVID: The idea is to underestimate the cost. Oh, another thing that would be offered, of course, is that at a time when jobs are getting scarcer because of NAFTA this project will create hundreds of thousands of jobs and more for Canadian people. And if you're without a job that's another incentive to say yes to this stuff. The idea then, and this is from the bio-rhythm chart back in the eighties, is to under price, very significantly, the cost of the project. To borrow the money from the international bankers to fund it and then, before it's finished and before any money is coming in from the project, it runs out of money. Big time, runs out of money. The idea then is for whoever's Premier at the time, and I'm sure they know who that will be already, is to have crisis meetings with the international bankers. Who will say to them, "We can't lend you any more money, because we're not sure of getting it back. Therefore there's nothing we can do because you cannot guarantee repaying it. You've fallen on this." And they will say, "There is only one way that you will be able to finish the project and start to get this money in and that is to have the United States guarantee the further hundred billion (or whatever it is), loan that's necessary to finish this project." Take into account, by now in the sequence, Quebec is no longer in the Union. And it's also planned for Ontario—which is already the 51st state of the United States, in truth—to start focusing down towards the United States in terms of where it looks for its focus. And the Canadian people will be offered the choice, if that's the word, between a completely bankrupt, chaotic country, or economic stability being returned by being absorbed into the United States. The land that is necessary to build this canal is already being bought up, and much of it already owned, by key Illuminati families like the Bronfmans, who have been buying it up over a long period of time.

Also, at the moment, there is another scam going on in which there's a lot of talk about Indian communities having rights to land, historically, which is currently owned by White Canadians. What is going on here, it appears, is that something I also think that we need to get focused on, especially in the New Age, where if you are a Native person, you must by definition be enlightened. A Native person, a Black person, a Chinese person, a White person is consciousness incarnate, full stop. Their state of being has no relationship whatsoever with their physical body. And, so as some of the Canadian Indians, who interacted with Glen Keeley, have said, "You think you have corruption in the White community—it's no different in ours."

And I think that what is planned is for great chunks of land, which just happened to be exactly what is required for the canal project, will be handed over to the Canadian Indians, to that part of them that are not focused on the spiritual side of life. And they will then sell it on to the international bankers. So, what's the other reason for this, because I mean this is intellectual geniuses that we are talking about, therefore there's never one reason it's just going to get Canada into the Union. The plan that Keeley started to identify—and I think he's absolutely right, because the stuff that I've come across and people in this room will have come across fits into this also—is to use that water, when it's on flow to turn the Midwest of the United States into one of the greatest, if not the greatest, centers for food production in the world, while at the same time destroying other areas of food production, elsewhere on the planet. To the point where what the United States—not the United States, what the hidden hand working through the United States—chooses to do with the food produced in the Midwest will, every year, be the balance about how many people eat and how many people don't.

Part of Colorado just goes into this area that Keeley has mapped out for this great flow of water and therefore this tremendous fertile area that it will become. And just off the edge of it is Denver, which is increasingly becoming the focus of so much. I was talking to someone the other night who had worked for the Federal Government about this and he was saying "My wages used to be paid from Washington, now they started being paid from Denver." And things are moving there. It's no accident that the McVeigh trial has gone there. And I do think that all these things are connected. The good thing about this is that although they're looking to—and, of course, it's the food cartel owned by the same people, like Archer Daniels Midland and stuff, but it's behind this part of the scam of having control of whether people eat or not. I think 2005 was on the bio-rhythm chart; maybe that's gone forward now because they just missed the referendum result they wanted in Quebec but certainly in the early part of the next century it is, to a certain extent, feasible to play the first side of this, which is bankrupting Canada.

But there's people I've talked to, up there, about the civil engineering nature of this project. You're talking twenty years and more before that flow of water can bring about the food scam that they're planning, and my feeling is that anything that takes twenty years to bring into existence, ain't going to make it. But, that's the sort of stuff that I got up there in Canada and it certainly fits with a lot of other stuff.

It's not just, you know, whether it's going to happen or not, I'm talking about what they're planning.

AUDIENCE: About ten or fifteen weeks ago CONTACT printed the last report by Serge Monast that exposed Project Blue Beam, that's probably the report he was killed for, and it exposed a very similar story to what you just told, involving Saint James Bay. But, with a hydroelectric twist, involving a planned power outage to nineteen Eastern and Midwestern States in the United States and an armed uprising by the Cree Indians. And a much shorter time-line, and I think you'd find that very interesting information. And one of the most interesting little snippets—buried deep down in the story, which wasn't more than six or eight pages—he also exposed the idea that, of course, the technological innovations, like this cloning business, are metered out to the public by the Illuminati. And he actually portrayed a picture of sort of an inverse spiritual realm of dark energies communicating through sort of negative mediums, if you will. The nine areas of technology are controlling the scientific and technological futures. Very interesting story.

DAVID: I couldn't agree more. I've thought that myself for a long time. I think he was absolutely right. And I think what you've said about the shorter time-scale thing, I also feel a lot of sympathy with—there are long cycles and then there's the bits in between, as well. And something that I think fits in with what you've said there, is in Ontario there is a big power company called Ontario Hydro, which is actually headed by the same kind of people. There's a guy called Maury Strong who has massively manipulated the environmental movement who is involved there and it would appear that at the Bilderberg meeting in Kingscity, Toronto, in 1996, June 1996, hosted by Conrad Black who owns 52% of newspapers in Canada, or at least he does on behalf of British Intelligence, anyway. On the agenda of that Bilderberg meeting was both the removal of Quebec from the Union and the manipulation of Ontario Hydro. So, definitely, what you say and I think what Keeley says does interrelate and is part of the same big picture, absolutely.

AUDIENCE: David, when you say bio-rhythm, do you mean they're using the bio-rhythm aspect, or they're just laying down a schedule?

David: Well, I'm just using Shelly Ann Clark's description, as she said what she saw was just like a bio-rhythm chart. But I think that's an interesting point because this knowledge that's been passed on through initiation is the very knowledge that's beginning to reemerge in our part of the pyramid. And I think there's absolutely no question that they understand about the flows of energy, they understand about the power of astrological energies, the power of numbers, the power of names, and the power of doing something when the energy flow gives that something the best chance of success. And I don't think it's any accident whatsoever, although it's tried to be explained in other ways, that Waco happened on April 19th, and Oklahoma happened on April 19th, and I understand that even the first shot was fired that started the American War of Independence was on April 19th. It's a number that keeps coming up and so they're certainly working with these energies because, like I said before, knowledge is neutral. You can use it or abuse it. The very same knowledge that we're trying to use positively, they use for negative reasons. It's the same knowledge; so not only the date, but the place on the planet, when you go for an astrological reading with a good astrologer, who's coming from the scientific base of it, they ask you for your birth date, and also your birth place. So, when an agreement is signed, it's signed in the right place on the planet, from an energy point of view, on the right date and, no doubt, they go into such detail that even the right people are signing it at the right time. So, this flow of energy is with whatever they want to bring about, that's for sure.

QUESTION & ANSWER: AN EXCHANGE WITH LaROUCHE
CONCERNING CHINA

From THE NEW FEDERALIST, 4/14/97, [quoting:]

The following exchange between Lyndon LaRouche and a Chinese political activist (who spoke through an interpreter) took place Feb. 16, during a question period at the Schiller Institute/JCLC Presidents' Day Conference in Northern Virginia. Subheads of course, are ours.

CHINESE GUEST: My name is Chao Ping Lee. I escaped from Tiananmen Square during the June 4th Movement (1989) in Beijing, among several leaders. When the massacre occurred, I was the Workers' Union Commander, and so I, with my naked eyes, I saw all the process of massacre. After the June 4th Movement of Beijing, in order to escape the chase of the Chinese Communist Party, I took refuge in the United States. Afterwards, I myself, and the other friends, who took refuge abroad—they are the leaders of the workers' organization—we organized the Chinese Workers Autonomous Union. I was elected the chairman. For several years, we have done a lot to push forward China's democracy, strive for the basic autonomy, human rights, the right to work, the welfare of the working class. We have devoted a lot of time and energy.

For these years, I myself, and my friends, all our efforts (have been) made in order to accelerate the coming of liberty and democracy to China, our motherland. In order that the billions of Chinese population can breathe as freely, liberal air as the American does. We devoted our time and youth. Many friends returned back to China, to do the underground secret work. And they were arrested again, and put into prison again.

THANKING SCHILLER INSTITUTE

The friends from Schiller Institute, have been giving us lots of help, to give us the weapons of ideology and philosophy to accelerate the pro-democratic movement of China. For many years, we have contacted many political parties, organizations; after a comparison, we deeply feel that there are very few who really put Chinese problems on their international agenda, as Schiller Institute does. There are only very few organizations who are really doing penetrating research on China, in order to save China from collapse, politically or economically. I therefore represent my organization and my friends in expressing our heartfelt gratitude to Schiller Institute.

However, here I must put forward some very serious problems, for consideration. During recent years, the Chinese economy has been booming fast. The exports and imports have augmented a lot. The infrastructure construction goes very quickly. The most conspicuous is that while the world economy was universally depressive—many countries even rushed down very quickly—the GNP of China increased at a fixed rate, no less than 11%; that's conspicuous.

On the other hand, because of the one-party dictatorship of the Chinese Communist Party, democracy and freedom have been suppressed. In order to maintain this dictatorship, to perpetuate this dictatorship, the Chinese communists were taking another step cruelly suppressing the pro-democratic persons. So that, in the whole of China, there are many problems which we are worrying about. The first major problem is, the intensification of ethnic contradictions, which manifests itself in the Taiwan problem, the Tibet problem, and the Singkiang problem.

The second problem, is the intensification of the economic contradiction, which results in the non-equilibrium, or imbalance, of the regional economy and politics. And mainly the contradiction between the eastern coast and the hinterland, the north and the south, which means the earlier-developed and the later-developed provinces. These contradictions are intensifying continually.

Although China is economically in a booming situation, in culture, in morality, in education, it's degenerating very seriously, so that we need an advanced theory, as Mr. LaRouche has proposed it, the megasystem, with the economy management theory. We need such a weapon to make China another new Renaissance, so that China can get rid of all these problems. It can be compared as after the 1890, many advanced theories were introduced into China, like Marxism-Leninism, which helped China to get rid of the imperialism. But their disadvantages have already been proven, so that in this stage, what we need is only Mr. LaRouche's theory, which is the most useful for Chinese development. Thanks.

LYNDON LAROCHE: I think that the speaker has touched upon matters which are of fundamental, strategic significance, and has cited the China case, which is an exemplification of the nature of the problems we face today.

Look at China, first of all. And, before looking at China, look at China's enemy. The enemy of us all. The British Imperial Commonwealth, which is the declared enemy of China, which is the complexity which we face in many countries. For example, in the United States, we have many evils. We try to fight them. But we don't let the British Commonwealth intervene to organize to fight against the evils. We don't even let academics who think like Brits intervene in our domestic affairs, if we can prevent it.

CHINA'S ENEMY

And the problem is, that China is in a state of war, imposed upon it by an agent enemy of China, called the British Empire, something which China, collectively, remembers very well from the last century. So therefore, simplistic reactions to problems are not appropriate. We have friends from Ukraine and Russia, here today, and others, who could tell you the same thing. We have in every one of our countries, we have crises. We have great injustices. But we live under the hammer of the threat of the extermination of our nations. And therefore we conduct our internal struggles of our nations in a way not to place the existence of our nation and its purpose in jeopardy. And this is the problem, as the speaker has said, in respect to China.

What has happened is, that China has historic problems. China is the oldest living civilization on this planet: 5,000 years. There's no part of this planet which has a culture, except China, which is 5,000 years old. And in 5,000 years, China has picked up a number of internal contradictions, as they say, which are also part of their history, as all of our cultures have.

In the United States, we have a divided culture. We have a legacy of racism and slavery in the United States, which is unique among decent nations, and we have to fight that issue. And we have people in black skins, who are among the best slave herders, who tell Black people they are inferior, and they should go get their own inferior culture, and not try to deal with White superior cultures.

We have these problems.

But the key thing to remember, is that China is embattled. The British are out to destroy it. By British Empire, I mean the following: I mean a ruling group of people, who are of the Venetian type, financier-oligarchs, who run a thing called the British Empire, or the extended British Empire, as a result of British participation, on the victorious side, in various wars over the past 200 years, almost 300 years. The British are ruled by a chosen monarchy, which was an elected monarchy, an elected, hereditary monarchy, the House of Welf, of Orange-Welf. It is ruled not by a Parliament. It is ruled by a Privy Council.

THE PRIVY COUNCIL

You know what the British Privy Council is? You should know your enemy. Every leader, every minister of a Commonwealth country, except those that revolted, is a member of the British Commonwealth. The British Commonwealth governs every Commonwealth country, directly, by dictatorship. Every minister of a Commonwealth country which has not resisted—as Sudan has resisted, or Nigeria, in a sense, has resisted—is an agent of the British monarchy. Every elected official of government, of every Commonwealth country, is an agent of the British Empire.

Now, you look at China from that standpoint. What's going on out of Hong Kong? Who's running the Japan operation against China? The same Britain that ran the two Sino-Japanese wars, 1894 and 1930 onwards. Who is deploying the opposition in Taiwan, which is trying to create a conflict between Taiwan and mainland China? British agents! Including some very highly placed; all in the name of ethnic issues.

Who is trying to destroy Indonesia? Who is destroying Thailand? Who is insisting every morning on destroying Myanmar, which is on China's flank? Who tried to destroy Korea? Who is trying to orchestrate Korea to become a trap for South Korea and for China, in a very important area of China? Who is sending people into Singkang to stir up revolts under British pay, and then report them in the British press, to attack China? Who has deployed the Taliban in Afghanistan? British Intelligence [enhancement mine].

And we are fools, many of us. We refuse to recognize we don't have a spiritual enemy, only, on this planet. We have a very real enemy. That enemy is the British Empire, which is represented by the monarchy, which is evil. If you don't believe it—they don't even know how to breed straight. And the British Privy Council, which runs the Republic of South Africa, which runs Museveni, which controls and runs, actually, a non-Commonwealth country, Eritrea. Non-Commonwealth Ethiopia is controlled by the British Empire. Every Commonwealth country in Africa, except Nigeria and Sudan, are under direct control of the Empire, even though there are forces which have patriotically resisted it. India has resisted it.

It's the largest force on this planet and they're out to destroy China, and thus, what we must recognize, is we must further the elimination of the enemy, so that we may go about the business which we should have gone about at the end of World War II, if Roosevelt had lived, instead of being succeeded by Truman.

We must proceed to defeat the enemy, while advancing honest principles, respecting the problems in each of our own countries, and among nations, resolving that upon the success in defeating the enemy, we will then have the circumstances to clean up a lot of problems, inside our countries. [End quoting]

And we think England and the British Empire are our friends??

When will we wake up to the fact that the U.S. Government has no real friends, even though the people of many countries like the people of the U.S.

Major Oil Companies'

Audacious Daylight Robbery

challenged me to write my comment on her program and sign it—she was that sure the Beijing government was about to fall. I obliged her and, three days later the student rebellion was crushed, under the direction of Li Peng.

This is the same Li Peng toasted by Vice President Al Gore during his recent Beijing public relations disaster trip. As to an invasion by China, it has already happened; Li and Gore may well have been drinking a toast to that achievement. Although there are none of Beijing's soldiers roaming our streets [H: Oh? Aren't there?], the Li family has overcome us by the oldest and most successful method known to man: bribery and corruption. Fanning out from their K Street headquarters in Washington, China's political foot soldiers have done a remarkable job in an amazingly short time, one which would have taken them years and years and at far greater expense, to achieve by force of arms. Now, the occupation is proceeding at a gallop, and without bloodshed.

Instead of bumbling Al Gore, Clinton would have been better advised to send Lordwick Cooke, or Tony Knowles, Bruce Babbitt, or Charles Manatt, Edward Patton or Tommy Boggs instead of Gore. All are intimately connected with the conspiracy to export Alaskan OIL to China. Even Henry Kissinger or, as a last resort, "I'm in charge" Al Haig, would have been a better choice than Gore; and yes, Haig is still around passing out C.F.R. (Council on Foreign Relations) instructions to the Clinton administration—fulfilling his role as their number-TWO messenger boy.

China has many good, high-ranking friends in the rapacious petroleum industry, a law unto itself, neither knowing nor respecting national and international boundaries or national sovereignty. One such friend is ARCO, which holds a place high on the ladder of Committee of 300 companies and ARCO, along with that other jewel in the crown of Committee of 300 oil companies, B.P., is presently scheming and plotting to ship Alaskan crude oil to the massive Zhenhai refinery on the outskirts of Shanghai which is ready to start producing.

Lordwick Cooke was ARCO's former C.E.O. and, like old soldiers or political party leaders (Carter, Dole) who never fade away, Cooke was active in 1996, stumping for the reelection of his old friend Bill Clinton, the "outsider" from Arkansas. In 1994, the same year that he got Tony Knowles elected as governor of Alaska, Cooke was invited to the White House to celebrate his birthday with Bill Clinton, the outsider from Arkansas, who presented his friend with a giant birthday cake, and then allowed him to travel with Commerce Secretary Ron Brown to China where the two told the Chinese government that ARCO would invest billions ($$$) in the new Zhenhai refinery. In response to questions by the Chinese government delegation, my sources say Cooke assured them that crude oil from Alaska would be forthcoming for their refinery. THIS IN SPITE OF THE FACT THAT IN AUGUST, 1994 THERE WAS A PERMANENT PROHIBITION ON EXPORTING ALASKAN OIL.

About one year after the Brown-Cooke trip to China, Robert Healy, ARCO's president of governmental affairs, was invited to the White Coffee House to have coffee with Al Gore and Marvin Rosen, then the finance chairman of the Democratic National Committee. To show ARCO's gratitude, Healy left a $32,000 "tip" for the DNC.

Enter Charles Manatt, former chairman of the Democrat Party and now head honcho of Manatt, Phelps and Phillips, Mickey Kantor's old alma mater, which lobbying company handles and fronts for major oil companies EXXON, MOBIL, B.P., ARCO and SHELL. On May 26, 1995, Manatt was invited to yet another White Coffee House get-together with Clinton. Manatt dished out $117,150 in a show of appreciation, and then, quite independently, of course, Kantor, as an insider member of the Clinton cabinet, set up a drum-beat, demanding that the ban on exporting Alaskan oil be lifted, which hitherto, federal law prohibited as the oil in the National Petroleum Reserve is supposed to be a reserve stock in time of national emergency.

If anyone cares to look up my monograph "Environmentalism: The Second Civil War Has Begun" about the fraud of major oil companies being the biggest contributors to the "Earth First" and "Greenpeace" ecology groups, they will see that in 1987 I spelled out the reasons for the seeming contradiction of how the ecology movement could be supported by the majors in the petroleum industry. For decades the major contributors and supporters of the so-called ecology movement, received large sums of money from ARCO, EXXON, B.P., MOBIL, SHELL, and the answer to the puzzle is provided in "Environmentalism: The Second Civil War Has Begun", a three-part work.

I explained that the major oil companies wanted the National Reserve lands, much of which held huge reserves of oil, kept free of "outsiders" so that when the time came, they would be able to move in and take possession of the oil reserves beneath the national parks lands at bargain prices. As far as national wildlife reserves in Alaska are concerned, that day arrived in 1996. The hypocritical oil majors cared little or nothing about the ecology or protecting the wildlife of the areas; witness what they have done to Prudhoe Bay.

In 1996, Tommy Boggs was called in to work the miracle of lifting the ban on Alaskan crude oil. Boggs is the son of the late Sen. Hale Boggs, whose mysterious disappearance in the Alaskan wilderness in 1972 has never been explained. Tommy Boggs is the chief lobbyist of Patton Boggs and his clients include ARCO, EXXON, B.P., MOBIL and SHELL and, just coincidentally, he is a close golfing friend of Bill Clinton, the "outsider" from Arkansas.

A formidable lobbyist, Boggs is believed chiefly responsible for getting the 104th Congress to reverse the ban on exporting Alaskan crude oil, and so it was that in 1996 Clinton signed an order lifting the ban, just as Ron Brown and Lordwick Cooke had promised the government of China two years earlier. Only a blind man would fail to see that the skullduggery to rob the nation of its Alaskan oil reserves has been in progress since at least 1994, and probably a lot longer than that.

In 1996, after the "coffees" at the White House, Pres. Clinton handed the major oil companies involved in China and Alaska an astonishing bonus. The press should have shouted this development from the rooftops but, like Dan Rather, Peter Jennings and Tom Brokaw, not to mention Larry King, they were as silent as the grave about this momentous event. Silently and without fanfare, Clinton ended the ban on exporting our reserve oil stocks beneath the Alaskan wilderness and handed the petroleum giants a free gift of billions, yes, billions of dollars. So while heating oil and petroleum prices were at an all-time high, Clinton and his backers were selling the United States out from under the feet of We, the People, for "coffees" and substantial cash contributions to his reelection campaign fund.

Foreshadowing this national disaster—only he didn't call it that—Tommy Boggs wrote a memo to his clients predicting that he would get the ban on the export of Alaskan oil lifted by the 104th Congress. But that was not the only shock which the American people were handed; on the last day of the 1996 summer session of Congress, Clinton signed the "Federal Oil and Gas Simplification and Fairness Act". As the name implies, the bill was intended to mislead; this was more skullduggery on a massive scale, and the "fairness" bit was not intended to benefit the American people; in fact, it was a wholesale sell-out by the Clinton administration of the American people.

Simply put, what this deceptive piece of legislation does is play ducks and drakes with the price of the oil the companies have to pay royalties on to the Federal government. The scam is too lengthy to include here in detail, but I will do a follow-up in the May issue of WIR and I fully intend exposing this gigantic government-sanctioned rip-off of the American people which will allow the majors of the petroleum industry to get away with billions of dollars. It is one of the most audacious daylight robberies ever to be carried out by the petroleum industry. And throughout this great robbery, the jackals of the media—print and electronic—have remained deathly silent! My God, what have we, as a nation, come to?

To execute the great robbery, enter Tony Knowles, the Governor of Alaska, or as he prefers to be called, "ARCO's governor"; and lest we forget, ARCO doled out $352,000 in contributions during the 1996 elections. In 1994, Knowles got $32,000 and it helped elect him as the first Democratic Party governor of Alaska, probably also the first governor of any state to sleep over at the White House, all part of the overall conspiracy. Knowles says he will walk every square mile of the 17 million acres of the great Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, to make sure that future oil drilling will not upset the ecological balance. In this he will be aided and abetted by Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt. Now you know why I say and have always said that China and the U.S. will never go to war with each other.

(This article will be continued in the May issue of WIR.)

[END OF QUOTING]

If somebody sends along that article we will ask that it be printed in CONTACT as well.

[Dr. John Coleman's World in Review (WIR) is published monthly in the United States: WIR, 2533 North Carson Street, Carson City, Nevada, 89706.]

So, what do I have to add to this commentary? Nothing. It is quite obvious that the noose around the neck of the world has now made a complete circle of the globe. Moreover, it is hard to tell one player from another in the "getcha" higher-level poker game. And moreover, I praise you when you regard the problem of your friend as your own—for, but for the Grace of God, go you—in any circumstance, for you have become both deaf and blind.

This is a rather short writing but important enough to leave you THINKING about this other side of the globe—the China Syndrome. Realize that Hong Kong reverts to China at the end of June. And where will you be? Does it matter? Oh yes indeed, it matters! Salu-

Save Us From Misguided "Help"

S/18/97 #1 HATONN

AND THE BAND PLAYED ON

Yea, even as we walk through the valley of shadows there is always a drumbeat which never ceases its ageless cadence. So, along the way we pause, take stock of what "seems" to be taking place and then continue as the moment clutches us in the grip of whatever emotion may be infiltrating our very beings as we think we are controlling ourselves. Since the moment is all we have as to time considerations, it is in our favor to move along, listening to the beat of the drum very carefully. The drum itself is but a THING which is utilized to mark cadence in rhythm, so it is never the "thing" (drum) to which to beware—IT IS THE DRUMMER!

Remember this when you feel that somehow you have lost your instrument player while Dharma is simply unable to match the necessity of my own endless supply of things upon which to expound. And, yes indeed, we are writing, writing, writing, while we do other tasks now at hand which require the attending by myself. The play does not stop or end; the music and beat goes on and, yes indeed, you have over 200 journals to read and, if you have run out—go read them again.

A man came to town this very day with a private need and insistence to see and speak with "Doris" as Dharma. He had been given some sort of revelation that he was to come to this place to visit this group and he would get his purpose and direction. What had really happened is that someone in Montana told him "Doris does that sort of thing...". He had traveled EVERYWHERE and was a seeker of every group for information and he was quite sure this was the place to find it all for self. He announced he was going to spend a full week WITH DHARMA and learn everything and then probably settle down here and help run "things". Do you see, readers, when you don't understand your own information, you mislead people for this man couldn't afford (he spends all his stuff searching) this trip. He is now on his way to Sedona, by way of I don't remember where, to find his guru and purpose. He was so disappointed to find Doris sick, NO GROUP, NO ORGANIZED ANYTHING, and that he would have to read his own materials if he wanted anything from here. Can you see how the label of "cult" gets started? Moreover, you are not too popular if you send people great distances to seek and they find NOTHING but a small town doing nothing. How long does it take to learn these important things? Furthermore, it has NEVER been different here. We simply chose to welcome anyone who wished to hear if there would be a "speaking" opportunity. THIS IS SO YOU DO NOT CONFUSE THE "WORD" WITH GURUS, SELF-PROCLAIMED LEADERS AND/OR ANY ASSOCIATION WITH ANYTHING OR ANYONE, OTHER THAN GOD. Do you see that most of the time you bring your own misery upon selves?

This man was so uninformed as to have never read a journal and only had one clipping out of the paper, not even the whole paper. Well, readers, this is what the "revelation" movements are all about—ignorant people feeling bigger than life and off to set the world to their own drumbeat. Does this not terrify you who would be set upon by such misguided individuals? Therefore, I repeat a many-times-stated fact: if you want gurus, fortune telling, psychic nonsense, someone ELSE giving you your life's direction—then go to where these things are advertised and sold along with trinkets, talismans and bewitchery.

Can you see what is really happening here in this instance? The man was not coming to commune with God or angels or anyone other than the group where he might find his way to not having to do for himself and to one-on-one with Doris who never one-on-ones with anyone save on her own human terms. These are the misperceptions that will destroy mankind and lead a bunch of revelationaries off to suicideville and purple kerchiefs.

"Well, with that attitude you aren't going to go very far..." is the usual response to people who can't see further than their own opinions. The facts are, readers, we don't want to go anywhere and much the less in the company of such buffoons and know-it-alls. We reach where and whom we need to reach and the ones destined to hear and see—always do!

The Sovereign Citizens (Authority)

Vs.

The Federal Government

4/14/97 V.K. DURHAM AND RAY BILGER

Ref: Excessive Misconstruction and Abuse of Powers not granted nor vested nor enumerated to the Central Government, by treaty (Constitution) from the Sovereign Citizens.

In the landmark decision of Marbury vs. Madison, the Supreme Court of the United States, (1803. 1 Cranch (1) 137, 2 L. Ed. 60) stated that (quoting):

By the Constitution of the United States, the President is invested with certain important political powers, in the exercise of which he is to use his own discretion, and is accountable only to his country in his political character and to his own conscience. To aid him in the performance of these duties, he is authorized to appoint certain officers, who act by his authority, and in conformity with his orders.

In such cases, their acts are his acts; and whatever opinion may be entertained of the manner in which executive discretion may be used, still there exists, and can exist, no power to control that discretion. The subjects are political. They respect the nation, not individual rights, and being entrusted to the executive the decision of the executive is conclusive. The application of this remark will be perceived by advertizing to the Act of Congress for establishing the Department of Foreign Affairs. This officer, as his duties were prescribed by that act, is to conform precisely to the will of the President. He is a mere organ by whom that will is communicated. The acts of such an officer, as an officer, can never be examinable by the courts.

But when the legislature proceeds to impose on that office other duties; when he is directed peremptorily to perform certain acts; when the rights of individuals are dependent on the performance of those acts; he is so far the officer of the law, is amenable to the laws for his conduct, and cannot at his discretion sport away the vested rights of others... But where a specific duty is assigned by law, and individual rights depend upon the performance of that duty, it seems equally clear that the individual who considers himself injured has a right to resort to the laws of this country for a remedy...

That the people have an original right to establish, for their future government, such principles as, in their opinion, shall most conduce to their own happiness is the basis on which the whole American fabric has been erected. The exercise of this original right is a very great exertion; nor can it, nor ought it, to be frequently repeated. The principles, therefore, so established, are deemed fundamental. And as the authority from which they proceed is supreme, and can seldom act, they are designed to be permanent.

This original and supreme will organizes the government and assigns to different departments their respective powers. It may either stop here, or establish certain limits not to be transcended by those departments.

The government of the United States is of the latter description. The powers of the legislature are defined and limited; and those limits may not be mistaken, or forgotten: so the Constitution is written. To what course are powers limited, and to what purpose is that limitation committed to writing, if these limits may, at any time, be passed by those intended to be restrained? The distinction between a government with limited and unlimited powers is abolished, if those limits do not confine the persons on whom they are imposed... It is a proposition too plain to be contested, that the Constitution controls any legislative act repugnant to it; or, that the legislature may alter the Constitution by an ordinary act.

Between these alternatives there is no middle ground. The Constitution is either a superior paramount law, unchangeable by ordinary means, or it is on a level with ordinary legislative acts, and, like other acts, is alterable when the legislature shall please to alter it...

Certainly all those who have reformed written constitutions contemplate them as forming the fundamental and paramount law of the nation, and, consequently, the theory of every such government must be, that an act of the legislature, repugnant to the Constitution, is void...

So if a law be in opposition to the Constitution if both the law and the Constitution apply to a particular case, so that the court must either decide that case conformably to the law, disregarding the Constitution; or conformably to the Constitution, disregarding the law; the court must determine which of these conflicting rules governs the case. This is of the very essence of judicial duty.

If, then, the courts are to regard the Constitution, and the Constitution is superior to any ordinary act of the legislatures, the Constitution, and not such ordinary act, must govern the case to which they both apply.

Those, then, who controvert the principle that the Constitution is to be considered, in court, as a paramount law, are reduced to the necessity of maintaining that courts must close their eyes on the Constitution, and see only the law.

This doctrine would subvert the very foundation of all written constitutions. It would declare that an act which, according to the principles and theory of our government, is entirely void, is yet, in practice, completely obligatory. It would declare that if the legislature shall do what is expressly forbidden, such act, notwithstanding the express prohibition, is in reality effectual. It would be giving to the legislature a practical and real omnipotence, with the same breath which professes to restrict their powers within narrow limits. It is prescribing limits, and declaring that those limits may be passed at pleasure...

The judicial power of the United States is extended to all

Could it be the intention of those who gave this power, to say that in using it the Constitution should not be looked into? That a case arising under the Constitution should be decided without examining the instrument under which it arises?

This is too extravagant to be maintained.

In some cases, then, the Constitution must be looked into by the judges. And if they can open it at all, what part of it are they forbidden to read or to obey?...

Why otherwise does it direct the judges to take an oath to support it? This oath certainly applies in a special manner, to their conduct in their official character. How immoral to impose it on them, if they were to be used as the instruments, and the knowing instruments, for violating what they swear to support!

The oath of office, too, imposed by the legislature, is completely demonstrative of the legislative opinion on this subject...

Why does a judge swear to discharge his duties agreeably to the Constitution of the United States, if that constitution forms no rule for his government?...

It is also not entirely unworthy of observation, that in declaring what shall be the supreme law of the land, the Constitution itself is first mentioned; and not the laws of the United States generally, but only those which shall be made in pursuance of the Constitution have that rank.

Thus, the particular phraseology of the Constitution of the United States confirms and strengthens the principle, supposed to be essential to all written constitutions, that a law repugnant to the Constitution is void; and that courts, as well as other departments, are bound by that instrument. (End quoting.)

Currently, in this time of our American history, we have a president issuing executive orders which directly infringe into, and upon, the rights of the American people. Likewise, his appointees, delegates, nominees, committeees, relatives, friends, foreign employees, corporations, trusts, etc., who choose to pervert the Constitution of the United States, have all violated the inalienable rights of We Sovereign Citizens, the ultimate Authority in "Our" government.

We Sovereign American Citizens are the ultimate Authority of the Government of the United States. This was clearly identified in Marbury vs. Madison (1803), when the Constitution of the United States was 14 years old. Also, when Marbury vs. Madison was held by the United States Supreme Court, the Bill of Rights (ratified, December 15, 1791) was 12 years old. The intent was clear, unmistakable, and firm, as to the rights of individuals guaranteed, held perpetual, inherent and inviolable by acts of any branch of government, albeit state or federal.

Does the President possess the constitutional power to enter into treaties with other nations? Yes, he does, as long as they do not impede the original treaty of the Constitution with the American people.

Can the President of the United States issue executive orders, or inquire of Arlen Specter (per letter on White House letterhead), to snoop into the pantries of American households for the purpose of food confiscation from "cult" groups such as Mormons and Christians? No! Constitutionally, no! He is not in possession constitutionally of such powers. Nor is Congress.

Does the President have the constitutional power to delegate the powers of the Office of the President of the United States, or, the laws of the United States, to such persons who have sworn allegiance to other nations while acting on his committees, as appointees of said executive, thereby operating in conflict of interest with the mandatory laws made in pursuance of the Constitution of the United States? No!

Furthermore, do our judges in the Judicial Branch of "Our" government have the power to circumvent or ignore the Constitution? Certainly not according to the Supreme Court in 1803.

And does our Congress have the power to enact laws which are repugnant to the Constitution? Again, you do not need a rocket scientist to tell you the answer when the Supreme Court was so emphatic about it in their decision in Marbury vs. Madison in 1803. Yet the Congress continues to pass unconstitutional laws day after day after day!

Since it appears for all intents and purposes that all three Branches of "Our" government are in fact operating totally outside the parameters set forth by We the People in "Our" Constitution, what are we to do to correct the situation?

Thomas Jefferson told us in the Declaration of Independence in 1776, "that, whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness."

If we can do this without guns and only with our pens, we may live to see a future fit for our children. What we need is a 260 Million Civilian March on Washington, D.C. And this summer would be the perfect time for it!!

An Ode To Grandma

"To be continued as inspiration unfolds"

The U.S. Congress cries and shrieks
Whenever a lady called "Grandma" SPEAKS!
Uncovering lies that parasites seek
To cover deep with rhetoric sweet.

"She lies, she lies," the asshole parasites yell.
But Americans believe the truth she tells.
And time will cause the knowing to flow.
Yes, the day will come when all will know.

The Constitution will once again
Become the rule for every man.
America shall be for God and Law,
And to all nations a "Land of Awe".

A li'l ole lady from Okawville
With fiery red hair and an iron-clad will
Has Congress actin' like a jumpin' jack,
And fearing a gallows on a tree out back.

Come home, boys and girls of Congress dear,
We'll plan a welcome-home party here.
A rope for you and a hoss for me:
Someone may hang from a cottonwood tree.

Now the end doesn't have to end that way,
If Congress brings our Constituiton into play.
You politicians can still have some say
Of how you wish to end this play.

U.S. Congressman John Shimkus
301 N. 6th Street, Suite 100
Springfield, Illinois 62701

Ref: Case No. 96-739-WLB; U.S. District Court, Article III Jurisdiction, for the Southern District of Illinois.

Ref: Impeachment of U.S. District Court Judge William L. Beatty as presiding judge, including inferior magistrates of said U.S. District Court.

Congressman Shimkus,

I, V.K. Durham, plaintiff in Case No. 96-739-WLB, U.S. District Court, Article III jurisdiction for the Southern District of Illinois, do herein and hereafter request the exercising of your duly constituted congressional powers of Office of Public Trust for impeachment of said U.S. District Court Judge, William L. Beatty.

Said U.S. District Court Judge, William L. Beatty, as presiding judge for said U.S. District Court, Article III Jurisdiction for the South District of Illinois, has failed his Oath of Public Trust as a U.S. District Court Judge, failing the U.S. constitutional Article VI, Clause 2 by failure and denial of said U.S. constitutional laws made in pursuance of the Constitution, as cited by plaintiff in case 96-739-WLB.

Said U.S. District Court Judge, William L. Beatty, as presiding judge:

(1) Failed to apply and/or acknowledge the federal civil judicial procedures and rules of court;

(2) Failed to uphold the laws made in pursuance of the Constitution of the United States;

(3) Controverted said laws made in pursuance of the Constitution of the United States, by violation of Article I, Section 10, whereas said controverting of U.S. constitutional laws made in pursuance thereof, were denied, and ex-post facto laws made 48 and 53 years after the date of contract, being inferior statutory laws in their nature, allowing a perverse verdict, in color of all laws to prevail over a constitutional jurisdiction case, whereas said U.S. District Court Judge, William L. Beatty, did fail his sworn duty as a U.S. District Court Judge, to enforce the laws made in pursuance of said Constitution of the United States, as the primary law of the land.

(4) Said U.S. District Court Judge, William L. Beatty, by failure of his sworn duty as a U.S. District Court duly constituted judge, did allow:

(a) Obstruction of justice;

(b) Outside influence;

(c) Parties not related and/or co-related to said case 96-739-WLB, to

- (1) Intimidate;
- (2) Use coercion;
- (3) Coercion by intervening force and;
- (4) Intervention by a third party (Social Security Administration, individuals, employees, agents, agencies, appointees, delegates, nominees, et al.), not a party to the original case, but claiming an interest in the subject matters of estate(s) while failure to lawfully enter into said case 96-739-WLB, while application of coercion, intimidation, and extortion methods were exerted by said Social Security Administration individuals, employees, agents, agencies, appointees, delegates, nominees, et al., on SSA letterhead, in writing, demanding access and/or information related to said case 96-739-WLB more particularly described as "estate".

Said U.S. Court was Noticed by accepted federal civil judicial procedure and rules, more particularly defined as mandatory notice. Said mandatory notices stated the facts of Social Security Administration's heavy handed tactics which exceeded jurisdiction of said federal agency, employees, individuals, agents, agencies, appointees, delegates, nominees, et al., authority and/or duly constituted lawful jurisdiction. Said U.S. District Court Judge, William L. Beatty, refused to acknowledge said mandatory notices.

(d) Said U.S. District Court Judge, William L. Beatty, did refuse to acknowledge:

- (1) A duly constituted contract known as a "Sum Certain Contract" dated October 9, 1941;
- (2) Perfection of said contractual collateral on said "Sum Certain Contract" duly recorded, duly filed, in Illinois Secretary of State's Records;
- (3) The Rules of Court for mandatory 20 days for summary judgement on perfected title

collateral instruments;

(4) Rule of Decision of Declaration of Choice of Constitutional Common Law of the Land.

Said U.S. District Court Judge, William L. Beatty, alleges plaintiff cited laws which he had never heard of, and which were not (per the defendants) his (the court's) jurisdiction, whereupon said defendant's allegations of no jurisdiction were held by said U.S. District Court. William L. Beatty did refuse to acknowledge and/or employ said duly constituted laws made in pursuance of the Constitution of the United States, in conformance with and to the Rule of Decision, the Judiciary Act of 1789, and Admiralty Law Sec. 1-9 saving of constitutional common law, when requested, in cases not related to Maritime matters.

(1) Said saving of constitutional common law of the land did prevail, as no ships, ships' manifest, cargo, or ships' carpenters, etc., were involved in said case at issue;

(2) Nor, at any time, was Maritime Law cited in said case by said plaintiff, V.K. Durham, for Durham cited the constitutional common laws made in pursuance of the Constitution of the United States as prevailing laws at the date and time of contract.

The citing of duly constituted constitutional laws, made in pursuance and in conformance with said Article VI's mandatory provisions, while prevailing upon the Article I, Sec. 10 provisions, prohibiting the impeding of contracts was cited, in res judicata, supported by prior decisions of the U.S. Supreme Court cases of (1) Marbury v. Madison, (2) Fletcher v. Peck, (3) Laws at the time of contract, by Durham.

Said U.S. District Court Judge, William L. Beatty, did refuse plaintiff the mandatory constitutional laws made in pursuance of the Constitution of the United States, thereby denying original jurisdiction of constitutional, duly constituted constitutional laws, and access to ancillary jurisdiction of misprision of felony, and U.S. criminal codes as duly constituted in 18 U.S.C., Sec. 1512, Obstruction of Justice, Sec. 1961, Extortion and Racketeering Practices.

Congressman Shimkus, your duly constituted, congressional powers of impeachment of said U.S. District Court Judge, William L. Beatty, et al., as related and correlated, is herein requested, and required by constitutional duties of powers of duly constituted office of the United States.

Hilarion: Understanding Your Bio-Electric Sensing Machine

Editor's note: The following writing is by the Ascended Master known as Hilarion of the Fifth Ray, the Emerald (green) Ray of Healing, among the seven great "Rainbow Masters" communicating at this time to help us through Earth-Shan's planetary transition and rebalancing. See Journal #7 called THE RAINBOW MASTERS for more background on this important group of teachers, plus earlier writings by them. Refer to the Back Page for Journal ordering information.

5/17/97 MASTER HILARION

Good afternoon, my friend. Please release of the emotional charge and allow the energy to flow naturally and smoothly. It is I, Hilarion, of the Fifth Aspect of Creator's Spectral Expression. I come in the Light of Holy God of Lighted Creation. I come as the Cohan (Master Teacher) of the Emerald Ray.

Ones on your planet are greatly concerned with the physical well-being of the body in which they are housed. Here we shall give forth some insights that will help to clarify the causes of the conditions that ones are experiencing. For most this will not be "comfortable" reading because the reasons for illnesses are most often other than what a person wants to hear, let alone accept.

The physical body is "merely" a conduit for the interaction into and the interfacing with the physical experience. I say "merely" because that body is a most exquisite creation indeed and poorly understood by your current level of so-called medical science.

It is a self-contained bio-electric machine that is quite suited to handle a wide array of energy patterns and frequencies that allow for the animation and coordination between the physical and the non-physical. The body's electrical system is quite sensitive and balanced in such a manner as to have the capability to respond and alter according to emotional desires of the one controlling the mechanism.

YOU ARE NOT YOUR BODY! "You" are the one inhabiting the mechanism and it responds to your desires. There is similarity between "you" inhabiting and operating your body, and the process of sitting behind the wheel and driving your automobile.

The body, for the most part, is self regulating and will tend to run quite well in an "autopilot" mode. However, there come times of experience where the body is subjected to threat, such as physical injury, when it will offer a reactionary response to the danger and bring focus to the impending physical condition.

An example of this reactionary impulse would be to quickly remove one's hand from a hot stovetop. The body will retain information that will help one to avoid future damage and will offer a cautionary warning to the host (YOU) when the hand even gets close to a warm object.

This mechanism is part of the design of the body so that more primitive (lesser aware spiritually) users will be able to persist long enough in the physical without demise so that there will be adequate time sequence for growth.

This is the situation wherein one will tend to live instinctively and obey the signals of the body such as hunger, thirst, and rest. Ones will seek out the satisfaction of these basic needs so that they can experience as fully as possible.

As entities begin to grow more and more aware spiritually, they will begin to come out of the fog and into a more reasoning condition wherein mental anticipation of the future need for food will be recognized and planned for through storage.

This is the point where ones begin to awaken enough to realize that there is something more to the experience than to just exist and search out survival needs. This is where ones begin to reason with others the value of working together with one another in order to quiet the distractions and concerns of the body. This is where there occurs the first spark of sensing that man is more than a reactionary animal and that there is an inner desire to explore this awareness.

As cultures and beings evolve, there comes the need for Guides and Wayshowers to interject more and more of the true nature of the physical experience. While Esu "Jesus" Sananda is a good example of one such Wayshower who came to your planet 2000 years ago, MANY have come at this present time. These more advanced ones will volunteer for the challenge of fulfilling this task and will choose to take on a body in the physical to bring forth the all-important messages concerning the non-seen-but-felt spiritual connectedness of mankind.

These awakening nudges will often cause great emotional stirrings in the body. Ones will not know how to handle these energy surges at first, because they are subtle yet strong in their grip upon the physical apparatus. The surges will cause an array of sensations within the physical which, in turn, can provide the physical entity with guidance as to what is right versus what is wrong.

Much like the reactionary impulses to avoid physical danger, the body will offer reactionary impulses in response to other kinds of situations, which can nudge you to go toward that which will offer comfort and warmth. And in the case of the presentings of spiritual truth, the body will offer the best it can in the way of "gut felt" responses to that which is being offered.

"How", you may ask, "does the body do this?"

The physical part of the body is but "only" one small part of the entire apparatus that makes up the entire, functioning, bio-electric machinery. Just like in a computer, you have all the physical components—the main processor, the memory modules, the peripheral (audio and video) circuit boards, and the interconnecting wiring. And yet, more fundamentally, the computer still requires electricity (energy) operating in very focused ways in order to function and come to life at all.

In the case of the body, there are various electrical counterparts associated with each physical part of the body, including each organ and each individual cell. More fundamentally, there is a coordinated electromagnetic (LIGHT) energy field that encompasses the entire physical body. Some can actually see this "luminous" electromagnetic field under the proper conditions and call it the aura.

Your body's electromagnetic field interacts with the electromagnetic fields emanated by others and will respond to the various frequencies of these fields.

This is when you ones will say that you KNOW you can trust a person immediately; you don't know why but you can just "feel" it. This is why, when another comes offering true spiritual knowledge, you "feel" it within your "gut". You are responding to the higher-frequency energies flowing into the electromagnetic field of the body. The body then responds with a desire to find more of what causes this reaction.

This is also the reason why some ones will be frightened of you. They will know that you hold truth and they cannot hide their trickery from you and that you will, in time, see through their games. These ones have resisted the spiritual path, having not yet learned to recognize that there is value in the experience. These ones have an energy signature that is much lower in frequency. They are usually the ones clinging to the physical-material for their comforts and security. They are much like the animal that has to horde and hide food from others that might take it away—not realizing that there are infinitely abundant sources of nourishment for both the physical apparatus and, more importantly, the soul (the non-physical, God-like, thought projection of Creator Source).

When ones turn from their purpose, there come the "STRESSES" of the life experience. This unbalanced condition is a signal to you so that you can stop to evaluate where it is that you are heading and compare that to where your heart tells you that you should be heading. The heart knows the direction that will garner fulfillment.

More accurately, it is the emotional (electromagnetic) energy center associated with the heart that is attuned to both your Purpose from Creator Source and the impinging emotional currents of the ever-changing electromagnetic pulse-wave universe in which you exist. This heart energy center responds by instinctively offering that which will help you to discern your most satisfying path in life.

When you first start heading in a direction that is not fulfilling to the purpose for your being down there, you may or may not notice the subtle annoyance that you feel. But be assured that it is there. This causes slight distortions in the energy field of the body as you resist the natural flow of your experience. These distortions are what you ones refer to as "stress" and the corresponding worry and frustration is a by-product of the electromagnetic distortions in the non-physical part of the body.

If these distortions are allowed to persist, they will cause physiological malfunctions within the body. The physical body will respond to the out-of-balance (out-of-phase electrical impulses) condition of the electromagnetic energy field of the body. This will result in negative physiological changes within the body if the condition persists—such as colds, flu, cancers, and especially that #1 cause of death: HEART dis-ease.

Please be aware that the direction of the individual always starts with a thought and a decision. When ones are considering choices of action is when ones should really make an effort to monitor the response of the heart or "gut" while evaluating their choices. Some do this automatically and may cause frustration in others because there will be times when the only reason they can offer for an action is: "I don't know; it was 'just' a feeling." These perceptive ones have learned to recognize and utilize the "bio-feedback" that is being offered to them.

When there is illness of any sort in the body, you can be assured that the one experiencing the illness was not paying attention to the signals offered through the heart energy center. There are choices and decisions associated with the condition that allowed for the stress to persist on and on until there is great unbalance within the physical, causing improper coordination between the various energy centers, and thus the body will not regulate itself properly.

When ones can isolate that which causes them "stress", they will be looking for that which has a decision or choice associated with it and would be wise to perhaps re-evaluate or look for that which they are resisting. Usually those things that the heart desires by way of growth have responsibility associated with them, and ones know analytically that there are often "growing pains" associated with such responsibility—as the primitive, ego-based, reactionary mode of living is replaced with a freer, more personally responsible mode of living.

Many will go through many life experiences without ever recognizing the connection between the physical condition and the non-physical stress—only to cast blame upon another for their lack of physical balance. YOU each are creators of YOUR experience, either through deliberate action or passive reaction. Your physical condition is no exception!

Ponder upon these words, for they are offered in love and NOT with the intent to be offensive or hurtful. At this time many are crying out for assistance with the physical condition of the body. You will see that there is great value in finding within yourselves the TRUE cause(s) of any unbalanced situation.

The subject matter discussed here is far from complete. It is offered as a general overview so that ones can come into awareness of self in a general, yet more balanced, manner. There shall be more coming forth on this subject of the physical body's functioning. Please be patient and understanding. Thank you!

Tutorial On Volcanos And Related Geophysics

Due to the recent alert from Commander Soltec in last week's CONTACT about the impending explosion of Mt. Popocatepetl near Mexico City, as well as the frequent rumblings (and volcanic alerts issued by the media) concerning Mammoth Mountain and Mono Lake near Yosemite in California (with its attendant large skiing and hiking resort community), we are reprinting the Professor's lessons on volcanos at this time.

To quote from Soltec's 5/22/93 writing on this subject: "You ones in California and Nevada, especially, need to be very aware of that old volcano in the Mammoth and Mono Lakes area, because you have been experiencing a great deal of renewed activity there. Not only are there earthquakes, but you also have a lava dome that has been building for quite a few years, and this is not something to be ignored.

"As you should be aware, I have given instruction on th.s area several times in the recent past, and the information was given for a purpose. This sleeping giant is awakening, chelas, and you ones are most likely going to experience, in your lifetimes, an eruption of this volcano.

"This is not some little insignificant volcano, but one that, during its last eruption, made Mount St. Helens look like a little toy. The ash cloud at that time spread as far east as Nebraska and Kansas, as far south as Old Mexico, and as far north as Wyoming. The ash within a 100-mile radius of the volcano could accumulate to as much as 3 to 4 feet in depth, and there would also, most likely, be hot pyroclastic ash flows, which could extend as far as 150 to 200 miles from the volcano itself. So, as you can see, this is not a volcano to be taken lightly, and this new flurry of seismic activity is symptomatic of magma movement below the surface.

"The Long Valley Caldera is approximately 20 miles in diameter, and the area of magma uplift within the caldera is approximately 7 1/2 miles in diameter. The magma chamber lies at a depth of approximately 5 miles, but it is rising continually. The new round of earthquakes recently is cause for concern in this place, as the area is riddled with many faults as well. As your part of the world moves into its "vacation" time of year, the concern for this area should be ringing loudly, as this is a very popular vacation site, and many could be caught there unaware of the potential hazard that exists."

We are in serious times as the signs of building pressures within Mother Earth continue to intensify. Thus it is time to again share this very readable tutorial on the subject of volcanos and related volcanic activities.

The writing below originally appeared on pages 17-26 in Journal #21 called,

Creation, The Sacred Universe, as there had been, according to the media, an "insignificant" rash of small earthquakes in this same Long Valley Caldera area at that late-October 1990 time frame. — E.Y.

of pressure from the "cone" itself. I move to stand-by, thank you.

* * * *

Soltec present to speak of general information regarding the type of quake just experienced in this most important area. I am responsible for the Command following most closely your Earth Changes in a "geophysical" attitude and, hopefully, allow you ones to have knowledge regarding these changes and "possibilities" involved. I can also tell you what to look for relative to a given action as follow-on. Please do not ask me to define explicitly in "Earth-timeframe". We calculate possibilities and probabilities by "sequence of events". I shall also make it as simple for general understanding as I can find words to fit descriptions.

The relatively small quake in point was experienced in California to the coastal area near and around San Francisco as well as throughout portions of Nevada (most important indeed). To allow understanding to the "lay" public, I must first speak of vulcanism in general. Therefore, I ask ones who know all this information to please be patient, for we find that 99.9% of the human masses do not have the foggiest idea of that which we outlay unto you.

VULCANISM

The term "vulcanism" implies volcanos—and they are, to be sure, a spectacular product of it. But vulcanism involves much more than mere volcanos. Any invasion of the Earth's crustal zone by magma from below is properly called vulcanism. If the magma pushes its way far up into the crustal strata but does not reach the surface, it is termed intrusive vulcanism, but if the magma flows out onto the surface via volcanic or other vents, it is called extrusive vulcanism. (These, of course, are Earth/English words and will need translation for other language groups.)

The question may well be asked, "Why does molten material from the Earth's interior force its way into and through the hard rock of the crust?" This is one of the questions that has vexed your geologists for many years—not only, "Why does magma invade the crust?" but, "Where precisely does the magma originate?" It is obvious to you "close" observers that release of pressure on the interior of the Earth by deformation and fracturing of the crust triggers the outward movement of magma, but whether it originates initially at the Earth's core, the mantle, or even the crust itself is difficult for you to determine for you have not enough knowledge or ability to research those pressures and temperatures to reach valid, provable conclusions.

It depends on the TYPE of volcanic activity. Most volcanoes tap only relatively shallow source regions; however, this does not obviate the deep-seated sources for certain types of volcanic activity.

Nearly all major mountain masses are underlain by intrusive masses, and frequently there is some sort of extrusive vulcanism in evidence as well—simply through visual observation. Mountain-building mechanisms such as folding and faulting cause vulcanism, but vulcanism, once set in motion, can be a potent mountain-building mechanism in its own right. Massive intrusions may lift and warp the surface layers, and extrusive magma, finding its way to the surface through faults, can build huge piles of volcanic rock. Also, intrusions may be exposed by the wearing away of the softer overlying strata by erosion, and the hard igneous mass will stand up as highlands. The Adirondacks and mountains of New England, for instance, are of this type.

Please understand that I am speaking of the United States in this instance for this is where the scribe can have association and this is where the subject in point has and is occurring. The information is valid for all Earth locations geographically.

Other examples are the smooth lava flows in Alaska's Valley of the Ten Thousand Smokes which poured out of a volcanic vent just a few of your decades past and still have the appearance of motion as observed. Today the area, Katmai National Monument, as you have named it, has only about 100 smokes active. It is, however, an area only in the "sleeping".

Another great example of a landscape filled with volcanic plugs, the Kapsiki Mountains in Cameroon, is far different in visualization. Where each great "protrusion" (plug of rock lava) was once a live volcano, its vent filled with molten lava. As the volcano expired and eventually eroded away, only the solidified igneous rock, relatively harder and more resistant, has survived for your modern-day viewing.

INTRUSIVE VULCANISM

BATHOLITHS AND STOCKS:

The largest of the intrusive masses is the batholith, found to underlie every major mountain system and frequently exposed at the surface as the roots or cores of ancient mountains that have eroded away. But the batholith is not merely the upper margin of the monolithic Sima volcanics. It is a lobe that has forced its way well beyond that into the sedimentary (or altered rock) layers that form the continental epidermis, because of lessened pressure as a result of diastrophism. As for size, a stock is simply indication of "size". There is not "reason" of two terms other than somebody felt it helpful to describe the "bulging" or "hat" under the surface as a batholith if over 40 square miles in area and a stock if smaller. Both will be found in the same "bulge".

The batholith and stock are coarse-grained igneous or plutonic rock that has obviously cooled slowly deep underground. At their point of contact with the stratum above is a metamorphosed aureole or baked zone where the combination of heat, pressure, magmatic fluids and gases have commonly given rise to concentration of useful minerals.

For practical Earth purposes you may as well regard these as essentially "bottomless" structures, and intrusive rock has not been "seen" to actually crystallize as extrusive lavas have. You are, as usual, dealing again with conjecture on your placement and it serves well enough in concept.

LACCOLITHS:

On a much smaller scale than the batholith are several other kinds of magmatic intrusions. One of these, the laccolith, has some of the character of a small batholith or stock except that it is fed from below by a tube cutting across the overlying strata like the conduit of a volcano. However, where the volcanic bore gets into the surface rocks, magma rising up the laccolith feedpipe loses some of its impetus and spreads out between two flat-lying rock layers, eventually forming a lens-shaped mass that lifts and bows the surface into a dome and this is indeed most important to the subject in point.

SILLS:

Similar to the laccolith but much more common is the sill. In this case the invading magma spreads out as a flat sheet, often for many miles, but does not throw up the overlying layers. Sills come to your attention when erosion exposes an edge as a sheer wall, often darker and harder than the surrounding rock. The down-cutting Hudson River, as example, has revealed a sill in the Palisades that is particularly striking because of the columnar jointing of the cooling magma. Another major feature standing out in a moderately subdued landscape is the Great Whin sill of Northumberland, England. The black escarpment describes a 100-mile crescent from the Pennines to the sea, and since its steep side faces northward, it was seized on by the Romans as the foundation for Hadrian's wall. Again, within the U.S., you will have a good example in the Black Canyon of the Gunnison.

DIKES:

If the invasion of the surface layers is in the form of a thin sheet cutting sharply across all horizontal strata but falling short of intersecting the surface, then you have a dike. Visualize a sill turned on edge, except in the case of a dike it draws magma from its entire lower edge rather than from a bore or conduit. Dikes often occur in swarms, most frequently radiating from a volcanic vent. If the resulting igneous rock is harder than that which surrounds it, erosion may lay bare the solidified magma in the volcano conduit as a neck or plug and the radiating dikes as long narrow ridges. Ship Rock, New Mexico, is an outstanding example. One can see the radiating dikes exposed at the surface and Ship Rock itself is a volcanic plug.

PEGMATITES:

Note that although the originally molten rocks involved in intrusives are properly classified as plutonics and should therefore display a coarse granularity, only the batholith or thick sill is highly typical. Generally, the smaller intrusives isolate the magmatic melt into such thin or limited quantities that cooling is quite rapid and crystal formation is impaired. However, it is possible that a long intrusive finger may keep its contact with the molten mass below and selected gases and fluids will find their way into this backwater (pegmatite). Occasionally, crystals will grow to huge size under these unusual conditions. In South Africa mica crystals have been encountered measuring 10 to 15 feet in width.

EXTRUSIVE VULCANISM

VOLCANOS:

Volcanos are, of course, of particular interest not only because of their unpredictable explosive habits but because of their impressive structure. They tend to follow fault lines, and thus the world's great seismic zones. Faulting, Earthquakes, and volcanos go together, and faulting is the basic cause for the other two. The Pacific's unstable margin is often popularly referred to as the "Pacific Ring of Fire" because of its extensive volcanic activity. Everywhere, cones of all sizes, both active and dormant, are evidence of continuing vulcanism.

It is foolish indeed to ever refer to any volcano as "dead". Dormant is your word most suitable for use and should be used if there has been no eruptive activity in historical time. Even historic time is not sufficient. For instance in 79 A.D., your labelled "Vesuvius", was not even a very imposing landform which was half hidden inside the broken remnant of the older Monte Somma and had never erupted in the memory of human inhabitation. There were not even any fanciful legends of vulcanism, so long ago had been its most recent activity. Yet in that fateful year Pompeii was buried in a great blast of fiery ash and Herculaneum was overrun by repeated flows of hot mud. Then for sixteen centuries there were only ten additional major eruptions. But in 1631, after 130 years of quiescence, Vesuvius began its modern, more frequent eruptive cycle marked by increased lava flows that had been of little consequence earlier. So today Vesuvius is by any measurement active, its personality changed considerably from its former self; and if Somma is any evidence, there have been many times in the distant past when Vesuvius and its precursors have surprised the sleepy folks along the Bay of Naples.

The United States' own Cascade Mountains, pimpled with 600 miles of snow-capped cones, must be regarded as merely dormant. Lassen Peak, the least spectacular of the lot, was active in 1914-15, but there has been a tendency to think of the others as "scenery". All are very new, geologically speaking, scarcely mutilated by erosion, and this, of course, is why they make such outstanding scenery. But by the same token, dear friends, they are more likely to be alive than dead after such a short time span. Evidences pointing to just such a likelihood are very modern cinder cones all around the base of Mt. Shasta, another in Crater Lake, and recently discovered by your own geologists, hot spots high on the slope of Mt. Rainier and Mt. Baker, and Mt. Lassen itself.

VARIATIONS IN ERUPTION

No two volcanos are alike in their eruptive habits and as you have seen from the Vesuvian example, an individual volcano is often capricious. Some are spewers of ash, like Irazu in Costa Rica, which erupted continuously for almost two years (1966-1968), subjecting the residents of the capital city, San Jose, to a seemingly endless rain of thick dust. Others eject lava but with variation: Vesuvius goes off violently with loud explosions and gushes of lava streaming down its flanks; Kilauea, the Hawaiian crater, quietly spills lava over its lip with a minimum of fireworks; Strombolian lava, cooling and crusting over lightly in the crater, traps gases beneath it, which explode every half-hour throwing incandescent clots high into the air. Then there are the spasmodic eruptors whose conduit becomes clogged with hardened igneous rock between eruptions. With a cork in the bottle, so to speak, it is not uncommon for the increasing pressures to blow out suddenly through a weak spot on the side of the mountain. This is what happened to Mt. Pele on Martinique in 1902. Internal pressure started the cork, pushing it out of the vent in the form of a high spire, but before it could wholly clear the passage the side blew out. A dense cloud of intensely hot gases and self-exploding lava mist swept down the slope to the sea, completely wiping out the town of St. Pierre in an instant.

CALDERAS

There is yet another kind of happening that involves the reverse of eruption, that is, a sudden emptying of the magma chamber. When this occurs, the entire top of the mountain, lacking support, collapses and is engulfed into itself. The end result is a huge crater-like pit called a caldera. Crater Lake, Oregon, is one of these. It is not a true crater because glacial evidences on the contemporary slopes indicate that a peak of over 12,000 feet must have existed to support full-blown glaciers. This reconstructed volcano, dating back probably some 8000 years, has been named posthumously Mt. Mazama. But volcanos can blow their tops—how do you know that it collapsed rather than blew up? You can know because the entire surrounding countryside would have to have been covered with debris from the old peak and there simply is none. So now you are faced with the question, what causes the abrupt evacuation of a magma chamber? And you have no certain finite answer.

Of more recent origin than Crater Lake is the caldera of Krakatoa, an island just off western Java. On August 27, 1883 there were four tremendous explosions, the last of which was heard 3000 miles away in Australia. A towering dust cloud was thrown up, noticeable around the world for two years, and a great tidal wave drowned 36,000 people. Subsequent investigation revealed that a deep pit had replaced two-thirds of the island but that despite the dust and ash ejected, the bulk of the island had collapsed and the sea had rushed into the resultant caldera. The area is still indeed active. A new volcanic island is building called by you, Anak Krakatoa (child of Krakatoa). But even the original Krakatoa was merely a remnant of an earlier, much larger island. Like Vesuvius, standing in the breached caldera of Somma, generations of crustal ulcers appear on occasion to be healing but the infection distressingly reasserts itself again and again when least expected.

LOSS OF LIFE

On recounting the loss of human life from volcanic disaster through the centuries, one might be inclined to wonder why anyone would choose to live with volcanos as neighbors. But if a given cone can be classified conveniently as "extinct, local residents come to love it, are inspired by its majesty, or even regard it as divine—that "the mountain" could be venomous and turn on its friends is unthinkable, until, of course, it does so. Agricultural people are drawn to the frequently fertile lava soils, willing to take an unknown risk to derive a known livelihood. And if the giant should cough up rejuvenating showers of ash periodically, so much the better. Anyway, absolute security is not a guarantee of living anywhere. Why would anyone choose to live in Earthquake country, tornado alley, or along hurricane coasts? The law calls these "acts of God", and God seems, in the short run, less lethal than midtown or freeway traffic, which threatens you all on a daily basis.

CLASSIFICATION BY CONE SHAPE

The simplest classification of volcanos is on the basis of the shape of the cone. Most of them fall generally into one of three types that are easily recognizable, and the cone shape also gives some indication of the type of ejecta and the eruptive habits of the volcano.

First, there is the cinder cone. This is the product of a violently explosive volcano where the lava has solidified in the vent, forming a plug. The accumulation of steam and magmatic gases gradually develops sufficient pressure to blow the plug with such force as to shatter it into tiny fragments (called cinders and ash), and these are deposited in a symmetrical pile around the vent, the larger particles nearest the vent and the finer ones farther away. The resulting cinder cone is steep sided (around 37 degrees, the maximum angle of repose of unconsolidated material) and usually symmetrical (Mt. Asmara in Ethiopia). Although evident in many parts of the world, the cinder cone seldom achieves any great size, as erosion rapidly wears away what is essentially merely a pile of loose material. The disappearing islands of the Pacific are often mere cinder cones, where an eruption may throw up a pile of solid ejecta above the ocean level to be visible for a few days or months until wave action removes it.

The second type of volcanic cone is called a shield or dome. Here a quiet flow of fairly fluid lava issues from the vent, forming a vast low-angle cone as it cools. Mauna Loa-Mauna Kea whose 13,000-foot tips form the island of Hawaii is an excellent example of this type of cone, and if the low angle of the island's slope is traced to the sea bottom some five miles deep, the true size of this twin cone becomes apparent.

As often as not, however, a volcano passes through several stages in its history, alternating between explosive eruptions and lava flows. The resulting cone develops a combination of the low-angle shield and the high-angle cinder cone. These are composite or strata cones and display concave slopes with a sharp peak. Imagine first a cinder cone, but before it can erode away, it is overlain by lava flows. Then built on top of this another cinder cone, followed again by lava. The end product looks like Fujiyama, Shasta, Rainier, or Egmont, the world-famous volcanos that inspire poets and legends. The most tell-tale concave slope development, however, is shown by Mt. Shishaldin in the Aleutians which is smoking and active today. Its classic shape is totally unscarred by any type of erosion as it continues to build. Currently, Shishaldin towers well over 9000 feet above sea level and almost 40,000 feet above the ocean floor and growing.

The four formerly mentioned volcanos are considered dormant, but El Misti in Peru is equally as impressive and still active, as is Mayon in the Philippines. Mayon, despite its generally low elevation and lack of picturesque snowcap, is reputed to be the most perfectly shaped of the world's composite volcanos. I URGE YOU TO NOT BE FOOLISH IN YOUR ATTITUDE THAT THESE "DORMANT" GIANTS ARE CONTINUING IN DORMANCY. THE ENTIRE OF THE CASCADE CHAIN IS AWAKENING.

Now, let us turn to a most important link-up with information regarding the current quake in point:

FISSURE FLOWS

Lava, in pouring out onto the Earth's surface, does not always issue from volcanic vents; it may well out of faults or fissures many miles in length. If the lava is highly liquid and the terrain fairly subdued, such fissure flows have been known to cover thousands of square miles and build up extensive plateaus as in Eastern Washington, Eastern Oregon, Southern Idaho, and Northern California, U.S.A. The bulk of peninsular India is also of this origin. In Washington the Columbia River Gorge and the Grand Coulee reveal along their sides a banded layering of differing colors and textures, each of which represents a separate flow. On occasion, the hot lava will be heavily charged with gases, and as the lava cools, the escaping gases leave holes in the rock, making it extremely porous. Water will occasionally flow through the permeable (scoriaceous) rock as though it were a pipe. It is also possible that in a moderately viscous flow, with the surface cooling and congealing through contact with the atmosphere, the hot, still liquid lava underneath will run on and out leaving an igneous cave.

SO WHAT, SOLTEC?

If you reason carefully regarding the quake in point, you can determine the situation and watch for further example or increased activity—in any and all directions. This can allow you to begin to determine likelihood of damage and extent of passage of radioactive material from the Nevada testing site. Because of underlying strata, the flow will be toward the Pacific Sea and will, obviously, affect the immediate areas around the site of the "caldera" container and the direct fissure network radiating to the sea.

It would be expected then, that material flowing from the nuclear testing center in Yucca Flats outside of and north of Las Vegas would flow along fissure lines into Death Valley and thus and so, however, this is a false premise. A brief and general outlay of descriptive flow from Yucca Flats test grounds would be between the Spring Mountains to the west and the Spotted Range and Sheep Range to the east, moving through and into "Devil's Hole" which I believe is one of your National Monuments north of the town of

of and laughed at,
But the only reason I hang around this place is to see what happens next!

Pahrump, Nevada, on the south edge of the Amargosa Desert east of the Amargosa Mountain Range and scattering in all directions. The most open and active fissure, however, runs on through (under) Sarcobatus Flat, between the Inyo and Toiyabe National Forests and pools in the major underground-to-surface cauldrons beneath Mono Lake. Mono Lake is not formed for no reason, dear friends, and it is quite a toxic lake in its already pristine state. Lee Vining is at Mono Lake!

Does this mean the only danger from radioactive material problems would be along that route, then scattering out from the Mono Lake Bulge (which by the way, is under water for the most part)? No, it means that it (the danger) is where the weakest surface portion of the landscape lies. The fissures running into Southern California are much more extensive but are deeper and less likely to show surface bulging. The flow, however, is much easier with much less interference from strata mass. THE MAJOR FISSURES ALL END UP AT THE SAN ANDREAS FAULT!

When you hear of the prophecies expecting death from open fissures exuding death-causing vapors—it will be from toxic substances, yes, but deadly because of radiation from foolish man-made experiments of nuclear materials.

How much will surface, if it surfaces? I cannot answer for it depends upon pressure buildup, pressure slippage vs. man-caused slippage and extent of flow. You can expect deadly gasses to spring from what you call Lake Elsinore and on down to the Salton Sea. These gasses may or may not be, radioactive. Watch the type of tremors for you can know if a quake is felt over a large area, it is a bit deeper than a little surface jolt. It means a lot of deep churning and activity in radiating fissures.

Since you do not yet show surface fissures to any great extent and very little surfacing material at this point, you can surmise it is still in the "intrusive" stage and moved into the "sill" stage from and forming additional "laccoliths". The area at Mono Lake represents a batholithic stock in a location not noticed easily through visualization. The lake is not "just getting lower from depletion of water" but is also more shallow from the "rising" of the lake floor.

I am not here, Dharma, to argue points of physical geology or geography. We have great difficulty with your new names for everything—the entire area described was once at the bottom of the sea and my vision and instrumentations recognize no difference except for isolating the identification of markers for you ones.

The quake in point is of little notice except for the massive information it should be telling you. More important substance is coming forth along the New Madrid Fault but the toxic quality of the California tremor bears more destructive potential from that aspect.

The widespread activity is indeed important but I have not the facility nor you the understanding, to outlay it all. I just ask that you be at alert. If you can understand the functioning of your "Mother's" circulatory system, you can better know where safety can be found in order to continue service in this time of transition and upheaval. You, in contact and counsel with the Higher Energies, will be given to know if you but listen. You who just desire to save your assets (of all types) will likely not hear and discount much of this information—so be it for it is most certainly up to your own acceptance.

Thank you, Dharma, for scribing this information. I realize you have neither the time nor the interest in these matters but your service is greatly appreciated for I have no receiver regarding these matters in this location. Much, much focus is given to this area geographically, and I am greatly appreciative of your willingness to entertain my input. I ask the blessings of understanding in behalf of you ones awakening from the confusion of the sleep and I am most grateful to be of whatever service I might project.

I take leave in salute unto you of our "land-locked" fellow-man. Saalomé and Salu!

Soltec to clear.

Hatonn returned to sign-off for this session as it has grown quite lengthy—being that Soltec has not been subjected to having to reduce a chapter to a page nor a page to a paragraph as has been jested upon Hatonn. When we come back I will continue with items of "TODAY'S WATCH" and shake you up a bit with Quantum Cosmic Code. I shall at first reduce the paragraph to a sentence but as you might guess the subject is technical indeed and may require a bit more in-depth projection of wordiness as we move into the subject of genetic doubles abounding upon your place these days of political and technical chaos. So be it. Let us close this segment and take rest. Salu.

5/29/93 SOLTEC

Toniose Soltec present. I come with the Host of God, and in the Light and Love of God of Creation, during this time of Transition Earth-Shan. We take this time and space to bring, unto you ones of Earth, information regarding that which is taking place within and upon your planet regarding what has come to be known as Earth Changes. These changes come in many forms, yet all is interconnected and interrelated; therefore, nothing which takes place within the confines of your world can be omitted when dealing with this subject matter.

It is difficult to put into words, given your limited expression of language, the full impact of that which is taking place with your world and there are so very many aspects to tie in together that, without writing entire volumes of text, you have received but a mere smattering of the facts thus far. Keep in mind, also, that our main focus is to inform you ones, on a timely basis, of those events which affect your world on a day-to-day basis, and of those things which have been presented in misinformation, be it by purpose or by ignorance, and to bring basic education about your world to those who lack same. Either way, we must at all times remember first the purpose of this Mission, and that is to get a remnant through all the upheaval of politics, economics and geologic changes that are upon you ones of Earth-Shan.

The best defense that you ones have at this time is to be informed and armed with the TRUTH, which has become a very precious commodity in your world. Yet, this TRUTH is the only chance you ones have for survival. For without it, you too would be following all the other lost lambs unto the slaughter which the Adversary has planned for your world.

You are in the final counting of time as you perceive such and the Adversary understands this fact quite fully. It is because of this that the battle has grown so fierce of late and you ones are experiencing attacks from all sides. For you see, if the Adversary can cause you ones to become fragmented in your purpose and cause you to become side-tracked, then you can be defeated. Yet, if you stand united, stay on course, keep yourselves right with God and one in your purpose, armed with the TRUTH, nothing can defeat you. For as soon as you take your sights off God, the Adversary will slip in so quickly that you will not even be aware. This is no small enemy that you ones are dealing with and not one to be taken lightly and, for Heaven's sake, it is not one to be taken on without the Shield of God about you!

Ones become tired of our badgering to continually clear space, yet it is of absolute necessity during these times. You ones are here for lessons and you shall have many opportunities for learning, for it is the reason that you CHOOSE to participate in this mission. This current mission is the greatest opportunity you ones shall have in your present dimensional expression to learn.

Yes, the lessons may seem difficult and many times you may perceive that you have failed, but believe me when I tell you that each one of you are making giant strides in your own development and it is only through such adversity as has been experienced that you ones experience the most growth. So, when you reach a point of wanting to give up and not participate any further, keep in mind that you are never given more than you are able to handle. And, the more you are given, the more you have grown. So look upon each obstacle with joy and understanding of what it represents.

We understand that you grow weary, but you are never alone so long as you request our presence about you and, should you stumble along the way, pick yourself up, dust yourself off and go on, and learn from the stumbling for in the learning you will have grown stronger.

In our writing of last week, we discussed volcanic activity upon your world and, during this writing, I shall continue this discussion. Commander Hatonn has requested that my dissertation on volcanism, which was scribed by Dharma previously, be rerun in this edition of the CONTACT, as it is a very good primer for the information I have been giving forth of late. I would, therefore, urge each of you to read that article prior to delving into this article, for it lays a good foundation. [That earlier lecture by "Professor" Soltec on volcanism and Mother Earth's circulatory system is the writing immediately preceding this 5/29/93 one.]

PHYSICS ON A PLANETARY SCALE

Your Earth is constructed of several different layers, or strata. They are: the continental crust, oceanic crust, uppermost mantle, asthenosphere, mantle, outer core and the inner core. The crust and uppermost part of the mantle are relatively rigid. Collectively, they make up the lithosphere. The upper mantle underlying the lithosphere behaves plastically (a semi-fluid state), and is known as the asthenosphere. Convection takes place within the asthenosphere, as well as within the lower mantle. The lithosphere is moving, as a result of the underlying mantle convection, and the internal processes of the crust are significant to understanding geology.

The tectonic forces are those generated from within the Earth and cause deformation of rock, as well as vertical and horizontal movement of portions of your planet's crust. Mountain ranges are created by tectonic forces stronger than the gravitational forces. Mountain ranges are built over long periods of time as portions of the planet's crust are compressed and raised. Most of these tectonic forces are mechanical in nature and some of the energy is put to work deforming rock, bending and breaking it and raising these mountain ranges. This mechanical energy may be stored or converted to heat energy. An Earthquake is a sudden release of this stored mechanical energy, while melting rock, resulting in volcanic eruptions, is another type of release of this same stored energy. By your scientific definition, the machinery of the Earth works by what is called "Plate Tectonics".

Volcanic activity is directly related to Plate Tectonics and most active volcanoes are located near plate junctions, where magma is produced as spreading or sinking lithospheric plates interact with other Earth materials. Approximately 80 percent of all active volcanoes are located in the Pacific Ring of Fire, which circumscribes the Pacific Ocean. This area essentially corresponds to the Pacific Plate. In the United States, several volcanoes in Hawaii, Alaska and the Cascade Mountain Range are considered, by your scientists, as active.

The Hawaiian volcanoes are of interest due to their location, well within the Pacific Plate, rather than near a plate boundary. Below the Pacific Plate, where magma is generated, are what are known as "hot spots". Magma pushes upward through the fissures and fractures in the plate and vents to the surface, producing a volcano on the bottom of the sea floor, that eventually may become an island.

At the Hawaiian Islands, the Pacific Plate is moving in a northwest direction and passing over one of these so-called "hot spots", and so a chain of volcanoes has formed. The island of Hawaii is, at this point, near one of these "hot spots" and is presently experiencing active volcanism and land mass formation from the active volcanoes. Other islands to the northwest are off this "hot spot" and volcanoes on these islands are no longer active. In time, the larger island of Hawaii will also pass from over this "hot spot" and its volcanic activity will also move into a quiet or inactive stage.

Magma, which becomes lava if it reaches the surface, forms locally within the outer 100 kilometers (approximately 62 miles) of the Earth's surface. Pockets of magma form from the melting of rock within the crust or uppermost part of the mantle.

LONG VALLEY CALDERA

We have been discussing the area in California known to you ones as the Long Valley Caldera, a volcano that erupted some 700,000 years ago, and one that is exhibiting signs of renewed activity in recent years. Let me first give explanation of a caldera for you who may be unaware of this term. A caldera, or crater, is a large volcanic depression formed by the explosive disruption of a volcanic cone or by the collapse of a volcanic crater floor. The explosive eruptions are rather rare, but usually extremely violent.

A large caldera-forming eruption may explosively extrude 1000 cubic kilometers of pyroclastic ["pyro" = hot, "clastic" = broken; meaning small rock chunks and other rocky fragments formed during the cooling down into solid material after being hurled as hot "liquid" from the volcano] debris, mostly ash. This would be about 1000 times that which was ejected by the eruption of Mount St. Helens in 1980. The most recent caldera forming eruptions on the North American Continent occurred between 600,000 and 700,000 years ago in Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming and in the Owens Valley in California (known as the Long Valley Caldera).

The main explosive eruptions are over very quickly—within a few days or a few weeks, but intermittent and lesser magnitude volcanic activity can linger on for millions of years. In Yellowstone, the original event left the result of hot springs and geysers. The Owens Valley event (Long Valley Caldera) is still producing volcanic and seismic potential hazards. Both the Yellowstone and Long Valley sites are still capable of producing future volcanic activity because magma is still present at variable depths beneath the caldera floors. Both are what your scientists refer to as resurgent calderas, because the floors of the calderas have slowly domed upward since the explosive eruptions that originally formed them.

The concern, however, with the Long Valley Caldera, as I have written on before, is that the rate of uplift has been accelerating and there have been swarms of Earthquakes in the area with magnitudes of 5 to 6, which became harmonic, and this is symptomatic of magma moving closer to the surface. It was considered, by your own scientists, enough of a potential hazard that a notice of potential volcanic hazard was issued in 1982. At present, the notice has been lifted, but the future situation there is still deemed "uncertain" by your scientists so they are continually keeping a watchful eye on this place. With the recent renewed Earthquake activity in this area, you can rest assured that they are once again taking a very close look at this area.

When a volcano, such as the Long Valley Caldera, erupts, it is the explosive type of eruption which spreads ash for literally hundreds of miles in all directions, and produces an ash cloud that can spread for thousands of miles. In a normal eruption, in addition to the ash itself, various gases are also released. These gases include: water vapor, carbon dioxide, carbon monoxide, sulfur dioxide and hydrogen sulfide. Even some thought-to-be-dormant volcanoes emit gases for very long periods following eruptions.

DEADLY RADIOACTIVE GASES

Although these natural escaped gases produce some hazard, the greater hazard in the Long Valley Caldera scenario is that of radioactive gases, which would be released if this old giant should come to life.

These radioactive gases present are due to all the fissures and fractures that extend over into the State of Nevada (where shaking has been felt as far away as Las Vegas in the recent series of Earthquakes associated with this situation). All areas of land mass have a certain amount of natural fissures and fractures created by the continual moving, grinding, folding and separating actions of the Tectonic Plates.

Nevada, however, has experienced a tremendous amount of tampering by man—because of all the underground nuclear testing that has taken place there over the years. So, here in this place you have natural fractures and fissures, but these have been enlarged by man's interference, and new fractures and fissures have been created by the same man-caused interference. There are also underground storage areas of hazardous waste of the most insidious kinds—genetically altered life forms, radioactive waste and the like. Yet, your new President has given the go-ahead to continue, for a limited time, the ridiculous practice of underground testing.

These underground storage facilities are of grave concern at this point due to all the seismic and potential volcanic activity from that Long Valley Caldera area. If that volcano goes, there will be even more new fissures and fractures and you can bet that all those nice little surprises stored below ground will end up in the atmosphere and spread world-wide. That is in addition to the mass destruction that would take place from the resultant volcanic ash that would be naturally produced by this sleeping giant.

Let me take a few lines to summarize the different types of volcanoes you will find on your planet. Shield Volcanoes, by far are the largest volcanoes and are characterized by relatively non-explosive activity, resulting from the low silica content of the magma. They are broad, gently sloping cone-shaped and are built up almost entirely from solidified lava flows. During eruptions, the lava spreads widely and thinly due to its low viscosity. Because the lava flows from a central vent, without much lava build-up around the vent, the slopes are usually in the shape of a flattened dome or shield.

The Hawaiian Islands are essentially a series of shield volcanoes, built upward from the ocean floor by intermittent eruptions over millions of years. They are spectacular to observe and the eruptions are relatively non-violent because the lava is generally fluid (less viscous). The Hawaiian Islands, then, are composed of a series of layers of basalt (low in silica and relatively high in iron, magnesium and calcium oxides).

Cinder Cones are volcanoes constructed of loose rock fragments which have been ejected from a central vent. In contrast to the gentle sloping sides of shield volcanoes, cinder cones commonly have steep-sided slopes (approximately 30 degrees). Most of the ejected material lands near the vent during an eruption and builds up the cone to a peak. The steepness of slopes of accumulating loose material is limited by gravity to approximately 33 degrees. Cinder cones tend to be much smaller than shield volcanoes. Most cinder cones are in the area of 1500 feet in height.

The fragments of volcanic rock ejected from cinder cones range in size from 1.5 to 13 inches. Dust and ash are the finest particles emitted. When solid rock has been blasted apart by volcanic explosion, the fragments are angular and have no rounded edges or corners. If lava is ejected into the air, a molten blob becomes streamlined during flight, solidifies and falls to the ground in a spindle or lens shape. Local concentrations of gas in magma cause eruptions that build cinder cones. They are not necessarily related to the silica content of the extrusive rock lava. Some cinder cones are found in Hawaii, on the flanks of much larger shield volcanoes. The life span of an active cinder cone tends to be short as the local concentration of gas is depleted rather quickly during the period of eruption.

Composite Volcanoes are constructed of alternating layers of pyroclastics and rock solidified from lava flows. They are known for their cone shapes and are associated with a magma of intermediate silica content, which is more viscous than the low-silica magma of shield volcanoes.

Volcanic activity characteristic with this type of volcano is a mixture of explosive activity and lava flow. Composite volcanoes are built up over long time spans. Eruption is intermittent, with hundreds or even thousands of years between eruptions.

During the quiet intervals, composite volcanoes may be eroded by running water, landslides or glaciers. These processes tend to alter the surface, shape and form of the cone, but due to their long lives and relative resistance to erosion, composite cones can become extremely large. Also, because of the sometimes long periods of quiet between eruptions, populations tend to ignore their potential hazards. They are normally quite beautiful and majestic-looking mountains, and this can tend to deceive people.

Mount St. Helens and Mount Rainier are examples of Composite Volcanoes. Nearly all the larger and better known volcanoes of the world are composite volcanoes and tend to align along (1) the Pacific Ring of Fire, which includes the Cascade Mountain Range, and (2) the Mediterranean Belt, which is home to the legendary Mt. Vesuvius. Several composite volcanoes are in Mexico, among which is El Chichon, which erupted in 1982. The towns near this volcano were buried by the heavy ash and ash flows, leaving thousands dead in the small towns and villages.

Volcanic domes are steep-sided, dome or spine-shaped masses of volcanic rock formed from viscous lava that solidifies in or immediately above a volcanic vent. A volcanic dome grew within the caldera of Mount St. Helens after the climactic eruption in 1980. Mt. Lassen in Northeastern California is a good example of a volcanic dome. One previous eruption of this volcano blew out horizontally and destroyed a very large area. A group of volcanic domes, known as the Chaos Crags, are located just north of Lassen Peak. These domes have a recent history of explosive activity and large rockfall debris avalanches.

The alignment of composite volcanoes along the circum-Pacific Belt is due to subduction at converging plate boundaries. For example, the source of magma for Mount St. Helens and Mount Rainier is the Juan de Fuca Plate, whose spreading center is in the Pacific just a little west of the Washington and Oregon coastline. This plate moves eastward and is subducting beneath the North American Plate, which is moving westward.

As this Juan de Fuca Plate descends, it is the upper portion of the Plate which, of course, tilts forward as it is going downward, and thus that "leading" surface of the Plate comes into contact with increasingly hotter material. Once it has slid beneath the continental lithosphere, it continues under the asthenosphere. At that point, temperatures are high enough to cause partial melting of the upper portion of the descending plate. The magma, being less dense than the surrounding rocks, then rises toward the surface, eventually erupting and building these composite volcanic domes of the Cascade Mountain Range.

Let us draw this writing to a close, as we have given quite a lesson on volcanoes and volcanic events. Thank you for your attention, and we shall continue this lesson in basic geology.

As always, you are held in the Light of God and with our blessings.

Toniose to standby. Salu.

New Gaia Offers Journey To Health

What Should We Be Taking?

S/26/95 SANDRA TULANIAN, D.C.

The times in which we live in do not afford us the opportunity to keep life simple enough that health can be taken for granted by just ingesting food and water. The game rules have been changed by bureaucrats (directed by crooks higher up the ladder) who dictate questionable farming practices which, when added to the already choking pollutions of our atmosphere and water, end up depleting the soil, the food supply, plus the air & water we breathe, of many of the essential nutrients that would otherwise allow our bodies to function optimally.

Aside from a core of products that New Gaia carries which will be discussed further on in this article, two brand new products are being offered that are extremely important to present first. They are GaiaCol and OxySol. GaiaCol is a combination of Colloidal Silver, Trace Colloidal Gold and Trace Crystalline Dribs. This combination of ingredients has produced a product that is so high-frequency and potent that it could quite possibly be the solution to our ongoing fight against the new antibiotic-resistant diseases that we face today. Colloidal Silver was used extensively and very successfully against bacteria, virus, fungi and the like before the advent of the first antibiotic, penicillin; and the uses for Colloidal Gold at that time were just beginning to present themselves. Once the chemical companies began manufacturing the myriad of antibiotics, silver and gold were no longer looked to for treatment. Interestingly, the antibiotics that they were producing had no effect on the more resistant viruses, fungi and parasites yet this did not stop the medical community from prescribing these drugs regardless of the type of infection. Now we face new generations of bacteria that are completely resistant to any antibiotics merely due to antibiotic overprescribing and resultant survival-of-the-fittest bacteria.

Research has demonstrated that Colloidal Silver is non-toxic to humans and allows no known disease-causing organism to live in its presence. With the addition of Trace Colloidal Gold and Trace Crystalline Dribs, the frequency of GaiaCol is remarkably enhanced to allow these newer, more powerful viruses and bacteria to be eliminated. GaiaCol is gentle enough to use topically on just about any skin, hair, or mouth condition without fear of toxicity and is outstanding for burns. For internal use it is recommended to maintain with 3-4 drops, 3-4 times per day under the tongue and if an infection is present, start with 1 teaspoon the first day and then 10-12 drops, 3-4 times per day under the tongue until the infection clears. Important: Due to the powerful nature of this product, friendly bacteria can be affected so it is advisable to replace the natural intestinal flora with some type of acidophilus/lactobacillus supplement daily or, at the least, when symptoms are noted (symptoms may include cramps, bloating, diarrhea/constipation and a general feeling of malaise).

Please note that this product is said to be perfectly safe for children and pets and can be taken with other medications without incident. Colloidal Silver is not addictive and the body does not build up a tolerance to it. For your information only, Colloidal Siver has been used effectively on the following: acne, conjunctivitis, allergies, rheumatoid arthritis, bladder inflammation, venereal diseases, eczema, appendicitis, boils, cancer, candida, otitis media, prostate problems, whooping cough, ulcers, plus many, many others. GaiaCol can also be used to wet wound dressings and bandages and help heal cuts, scratches, abrasions, fever blisters, etc. There is a myriad of uses for this product which makes GaiaCol, in my opinion, one of the most exciting and valuable products on the market today.

OxySol contains Colloidal Silver and Trace Colloidal Gold but has Hydrogen Peroxide (food grade) and other trace minerals to add a new dimension to the effects. Organisms that have plagued us for centuries may be destroyed using this product but the new, more resistant strains will require the higher frequency GaiaCol. When added to water, the OxySol will help to purify, which makes this ideal for taking to restaurants or for travel. When taken with GaiaCol you get a two-fold effect of combating foreign invaders and providing a greater oxygen content for the health of the cells from the Hydrogen Peroxide. OxySol is wonderful topically as well, but is not advised for burns (use GaiaCol for burns). The trace minerals found in OxySol are vital to our health because the nutrients that were once taken for granted in our vegetables and fruits have been systematically farmed out of our soil. These trace minerals need to be replaced, otherwise our bodies continue to be open season for aggressive bugs. Another use for OxySol is to rid the oral cavity of harmful bacteria by brushing your teeth with 4 drops OxySol on your toothbrush or use as a mouthwash or gargle. The recommended amount to take daily for system clearing is 6-10 drops, 3 times a day on an empty stomach. If taken with GaiaCol, reduce both daily requirements in half. If you are adding OxySol to your water, just add 1-2 drops in each glass of water. Both OxySol and GaiaCol are very powerful additions to our pursuit of health.

Without these "food"-based essential nutrients our immune systems and body physiologies are sitting ducks for any attack—from chemical and biological "warfare" practices, to increased nuclear radiation pollution, as well as from other high-energy photon bombardment as this planet prepares itself for the upcoming changes.

It is up to every individual to take personal responsibility for their health and prioritize the needs their bodies may have at this time as well as pay special attention to the needs of their children. I hope to describe here some good products available to you so that your search for a basic, complete arsenal against disease can come to an end.

New Gaia has presented many products to the public that you can pick or choose for individual needs. But there is a core of products, which should be taken regularly, that is felt to be essential to health and well being. These products are: Gaiandriana, AquaGaia, Gaialyte, Kombucha Tea, Kombucha Vinegar, CarbraGaia, GaiaCleanse Program, Chlorella, Spelt, and 3-In-1. Each of these provides a service to the body that is a necessary assistant to the other. We will discuss each one individually to provide you with the information you need to understand why these items are necessary.

The physiology of the body is basically governed by the actions and programming found within the cell. The cells make up the tissues of the body, the tissues make up the organs such as the heart or liver which, in turn, make up the organ systems that work in harmony with each other to keep the entire body functioning. If the cell structure has been altered or is malfunctioning (for whatever reason), every organ system is affected. To what degree they are affected depends on the offending substance that has caused the cell's breakdown or the length of time that cell has been subjected to abuse.

Gaiandriana is a product that is said to help correct the faulty programming that has occurred at the cell level by correcting into perfection the cell's DNA/RNA blueprint. Viruses, unlike bacteria, have the ability to fuse with the DNA strand within the cell, creating a mutation to that cell. By perfecting the DNA/RNA blueprint, the cell may be returned to a level of vitality which allows it to fight off an incoming virus and maintain the homeostasis within the cell and, in turn, within the organ systems.

This is essential for the immune organ system, because without healthy cells that can fight off offenders like free radicals, viruses, and cumulative levels of radiation, the immune system is overtaxed to the point of exhaustion—eventually leading to dis-ease. Another benefit from consuming Gaiandriana is its ability and nature to thrive on the invisible, higher photon frequencies which are bombarding us daily. Gaiandriana is able to speed up the frequency levels of the cells to more nearly match the energies pouring in and assaulting the body. This, in turn, can offer a two-fold benefit: One benefit is the ability of the cell to withstand and actually adapt to these otherwise damaging energies; the other benefit is to help protect ourselves from mind manipulation through pulse beams that are irradiating mankind relentlessly. Originally the dose was 10 drops, 3 times per day, under the tongue. However, with the growing number of "manufactured" epidemics and other stepped-up plans for our demise by the Elite, perhaps more is better. One ounce or more per day may produce faster and more effective results.

AquaGaia was introduced to benefit the mitochondria system that lies within the cell. The mitochondria is the energy producer of the cell and is essential to convert the food we eat into usable cell fuel and to produce enzymes that are absolutely necessary for survival of the body system.

AquaGaia is also said to feed on vessel plaques adhering to blood vessel linings. Most all of us, by the age of twenty, have plaques developing on the arterial walls due to the American diet that is filled with saturated fats, high protein, white flour products, and limited consumption of fresh fruits and vegetables. This product provides added fuel to any compromised system to assist in strengthening the immune system, as well as cleaning out blood vessels and enhancing the pliability of the vessel walls throughout the body. Both Gaiandriana and AquaGaia work in harmony to strengthen and eliminate mutations of all cells by working together within the cell structure itself.

Another product that you will find essential in your daily regime is Gaialyte. This is a fully integrated electrolyte liquid that is brought forth from the Kombucha Tea. The combination of tea and juice, vitamins, minerals, Gingko Biloba, Echinacea, Chlorella, oxygenators, Aloe Vera and Gaiandriana are a powerful combination that helps boost energy levels as well as provides electrolyte balance within the body to help enhance the performance of the Gaiandriana within the cells. Electrolytes are substances which dissociate into ions in solution and thus become capable of conducting electricity. The balance of these electrolytes in the body will aid in the protection from the various high-frequency energies that we are now subjected to as well as enhance the effectiveness of all the other products you are consuming for your health.

Another beverage that should be taken in a dose of approximately 8 ounces per day is the "Tea Breeze" Kombucha Tea. Enough can not be said about this fermented drink from the mushroom fungus found long ago by a prominent Japanese woman in a town called Kargasok, Russia. What she found amongst these villagers astounded her. The women were virtually without wrinkles or other signs of aging and the overall population was comprised of unusually healthy people. She was told that these people drank 8 ounces of Kombucha Tea daily. She brought the mushroom fungus back to Japan and, today, over a million Japanese people drink the fermented tea daily. With the high content of special proteins and enzymes, this tea is said to reduce cholesterol, restore hair growth, strengthen eyesight, help insomnia, aid in weight reduction, help with allergies, bronchitis, asthma and a myriad of other debilitating conditions including the prevention of certain cancers.

While these are claims from people who have used or researched the product, it would simply be prudent to regard Kombucha Tea as a must to add to your daily health regime. Many people make their own tea with the mushroom that is available through New Gaia Products, but for those of us with limited time, the ready-made tea in the 1-liter and 2-liter bottles is both delicious and convenient. Try mixing the tea with the Gaialyte and your favorite juice, or just drink it straight.

There is a Kombucha Vinegar that has been developed which offers similar properties to unpasteurized apple cider vinegar, which has been used for centuries to care for all types of ailments. This product packs a punch when fighting off the common cold and is great as a digestive aid. Many are using this product in their salad dressings or other recipes to enhance the nutrition that their families receive. While Kombucha Vinegar is not recommended for canning or preserving, it certainly is recommended for general consumption.

CarbraGaia is the membrane that is found in the mushroom fungus of the Kombucha Tea bathed in a nurturing amniotic-like fluid of Gaiandriana to aid the body in repair of connective tissue. This product was designed to replace the need for Shark Cartilage supplement, which has been well researched and documented in recent years and which is said to program the body to never develop cancer tumors. By mixing one teaspoon in to any of the above mentioned drinks, you add one more weapon to your arsenal in the quest to build the immune system to its optimum healthy state.

A 14-day program called Gaiacleanse has been developed that assists in the elimination of the nasty and destructive parasites found within the body. Very few people realize the kinds and types of diseases that these parasites can contribute to, such as Cancer, AIDS, Hepatitis, Hodgkin's Disease, Diabetes, just to name a few. There have been reports that people have been able to turn their conditions around by utilizing a program such as the Gaiacleanse Program to eliminate the myriads of parasites, such as flukes, keeping house in their internal organs.

The beauty of this program is that 14 days every 3 months is all that is required to insure a body that is free of most parasites. The Gaiacleanse line includes tinctures that can be mixed in any one of the above beverages or in juice. There is also an intestinal cleanse that comes in the kit to ensure proper elimination and cleansing during the two weeks. These steps to health are important if one is to realize optimum health within the cellular structure and organ tissues of the body.

Chlorella is a single-celled, fresh-water algae which is a nutritionally balanced whole food that is extremely high in protein (60%) and contains more than 20 essential vitamins and minerals, 19 of the 22 essential and non-essential amino acids, enzymes, plus Chlorella growth factor. The combination of these factors results in a product that has been found to be excellent in the healing of wounds, injuries and ulcers, immune strengthening, age retardation, protection against radiation, normalizing digestion and bowel function, and protection against toxic pollutants, to name but a few of the benefits.

Chlorella is a rich source of chlorophyll, which is extremely effective in controlling body odor both internally and externally. The suggested daily consumption is 3 grams per day, but dosages should be adjusted to your individual needs. Many times the alkaline reserves in the body are so depleted that Chlorella, in larger doses, is warranted.

Moreover, because of its superb food value, Chlorella is an important addition to anyone's emergency food storage stash.

As part of an ongoing nutritious diet, the grain of Spelt (Triticum Spelta) should be added to every diet in replacement of the standard wheat grain. Spelt is superior to wheat in that it contains more protein, crude fiber, and fats than wheat. It also contains special carbohydrates (Mucopolysaccharides) which help stimulate the all-important immune system.

Many people who are allergic to wheat find Spelt to be easily digestible. What is most exciting is the delicious nutty flavor that Spelt offers to any baking needs. Another advantage of Spelt is the large amount of vitamin B-17 found in the grain (also known as Laetrile) which has a reputation for retarding cancerous cell growth and aiding in the healing of other serious illnesses. Spelt also has an exceptionally thick husk around the center grain, which protects it from all kinds of pollutants and insects far better than happens with other grains. The Spelt grain can be ground up into flour and used in any recipe where flour is required. New Gaia offers the whole Spelt grain bread mixes, or the grain itself to be ground into flour, or the flour already milled for your convenience. This simple addition to your family's diet can provide a wealth of extra nutrition for your loved ones as well as a great taste experience.

The last product I wish to discuss is a newer product of which you may not be fully aware. Many of you have heard of the latest craze using a product called "Pycnogenols". Pycnogenol comes from the bark of the pine tree and is said to have remarkable anti-oxidant properties that are aiding in the relief of a number of chronic conditions. The 3-In-1 product offered by New Gaia has been found to be superior to Pycnogenol. The research that has been conducted on the elements found in Pine Bark were primarily conducted on Grape Seed Extract because this, too, had the components that offered the superior anti-oxidant protection.

What was discovered is that the Grape Seed Extract was even superior to the Pine Bark in that it contains a higher level and higher potency of OPCs (Oligomeric proanthocyanidins) which are the active ingredient for free-radical scavenging. These OPCs found in the Grape Seed Extract are known for their instant bioavailability to seek out nasty free radicals and produce rapid counter-effect results. While no claims are here being made for the healing qualities of any product, the OPCs found in Grape Seed Extract have been identified with: Anti-aging protection, improved vision, decrease in wrinkles, resistance to mental deterioration, reduced risk of heart disease, reduced risk of stroke, enhanced immune system, faster healing, subdued PMS, and reduced inflammation of arthritis.

The other substances found in 3-In-1 are Ester-C and Aloe Vera. Ester-C is found to get into the blood stream faster and in larger amounts than other forms of vitamin C and wastes only a fraction of what other vitamin C products lose through elimination. It is also found to penetrate white blood cells more efficiently, which is necessary for their metabolism. There is also a reduction, if not an elimination, of the side effects from the acidity of regular Vitamin C because Ester C has a neutral pH. Each capsule also contains 150 mgs. of Aloe Vera which is the equivalent of one-and-one-half ounces of natural Aloe Vera juice. Excerpted from an article by John C. Pittman, M.D., we read: "Acemannan, a mucopolysaccharide, is a long-chain sugar which is found as an active ingredient in Cold Processed Whole Leaf Aloe. It interjects itself into all cell membranes. This causes an increase in the fluidity and permeability of the membrane, allowing toxins to flow out of the cell more easily and nutrients to enter the cell. The net result may improve cellular metabolism throughout the body, resulting in a boost of energy production."

These three powerful ingredients are found in one product called 3-In-1. It is a potent product that should be utilized by anyone suffering from a chronic condition or for those wishing to maximize the functioning of their immune system on a day-to-day basis.

All the above products discussed: OxySol, Gaiacol, Gaiandriana, AquaGaia, Gaialyte, Kombucha Tea, Kombucha Vinegar, CarbraGaia, Gaiacleanse, Chlorella, Spelt and 3-In-1 can be the keys to a healthier and more vibrant life by reinvigorating the immune system, increasing the metabolic activity of the cells, providing more complete nourishment to allow the organ systems to function in harmony with one another, and to increase our bodies' overall frequency levels to withstand the onslaught of various high-frequency energies that are thrown our way. These products work synergistically together to maximize the effects of each product.

TELEPHONE HOTLINE

This is a service for our dedicated readers. Today's Watch telephone hotline carries the latest news and comments from Commander Hatonn's most recent writings. This is our way of keeping you informed about fast-breaking news and events.

The message machine will answer after 2 rings if there are any new messages for that day, and after 4 rings if not. Thus daily callers can hang up after 2 rings and save toll charges if no new message has been recorded. If the hotline does not answer your call then that means that there is currently no hotline message.
