Secret Bible Of Modern Conflict

1/7/99 KORTON

Commander Tomeros Maasu Korton here in The Light of Creator Source of All That Is. How we use our “time” at this critical time in the sequence of events unfolding upon your planet is as much a part of testing as are the lessons and challenges.

Let us move quickly into our material for this lecture as “the plan” of the adversary is to keep you in darkness while we intend to turn on a lot of Light, so to speak. As I ended my last lecture [in the 1/5/99 issue of CONTACT] I said that if you wish to be prepared for what is planned, it is important to become familiar with The Plans of those who are your sworn and PROVEN enemy.

The following is the Mossad-British Intelligence-KGB-Naval Intelligence, etc. plan for fooling all of the people all of the time. It is a strategy carefully hidden from the layman, yet it is taught in all your spy groups and the colleges which are their secret alma maters, and is required reading for their would-be kings and generals of New World Order manipulation in training.

PLANNING TO HAVE 15,000
ON STREETS IN WATTS ON 7th ANNIVERSARY OF RIOT!

From the INTERNET, Mike Ruppert, <para-discuss@tje.net>, 1/1/99: [quoting]

NOTHING IS MORE IMPORTANT—NOTHING!

PLANNING MEETING TO PUT 15,000 IN THE STREETS AT FLORENCE AND NORMANDIE ON THE 7TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE LOS ANGELES RIOTS TO PROTEST
CIA DRUG DEALING

DATE: January 12, 1999 TIME: 5 P.M.

LOCATION: Conference Room, Los Angeles
Public Library, 46th and Main, Los Angeles

On April 29th, 1999 the National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression, in alliance with Mike Ruppert and many other groups, will stage a march and protest rally which will commence at the Bethel AME Church at 79th and Western and end at the world famous intersection of Florence and Normandie. The sole purpose of the march and demonstration will be to protest the Central Intelligence Agency's role in selling drugs to American citizens.

The recently released report from the CIA Inspector General's office confirms that CIA played a premeditated role in introducing large quantities of cocaine into the inner cities and throughout the country. In the middle of the impeachment crisis, Iraqi bombing and a deliberate cover-up by the major media, the promised hearings on the report in the House of Representatives are being held hostage against Bill Clinton's impeachment. This is not being strictly reported by me but has also been reported by long-time Clinton critic Larry Nichols who says (fantastically) that Oliver North was a rogue and somehow acting all by himself.

The purpose of this march is for the people to say that we will not let the CIA report get traded, whitewashed, covered up, overlooked, hidden or given away to keep any politician in office. The corruption it leads to is at the heart of all that is now wrong in Washington.
Already I am receiving e-mails from around the country expressing support. The Greens are joining the effort and a number of celebrities from around the country have stated they will be there.

No matter what, this will be a demonstration by and for the people. It will not be co-opted or taken over by any politician, pundit, so-called leader or group. Those who speak on that day will be only the ones who worked to make it happen.

It is impossible to say that the devastation which occurred in 1992 was not connected to the destruction of property values, the violence, the flight of businesses and capital which resulted from the flood of drugs which CIA, Oliver North, George Bush and others brought here in 1982, and 1983 and 1984, and 1985 and 1986 and 1987 and 1988 and which continues to this day.

We will gather peacefully and we—the people—will start to take control of our government. We will not let the truth, which Gary Webb and so many others have risked life and limb to tell, be ignored.

I now firmly believe that African-America was targeted to receive the drugs and I will discuss that in a future issue of my newsletter
From The Wilderness at <www.copvcia.com>. There is enough proof in CIA's own report to justify reparations and this is but one of the points we will bring to the front on April 29th.

To pull this off will require a Herculean effort of both time and money. The infrastructure must be built and the organization must be thorough. The chief organizers of the demonstration will be Deacon Alexander of the National Alliance and the people of South Central. I will work with them on a daily basis to help make it happen.

As the country sinks into a theater of the absurd you can make your voice, your heart and your spirit be felt. You can put some sanity into the picture.

BE THERE—JANUARY 12th [for the meeting].

I think there is a great possibility here if they ask God for guidance and listen to it that this could be the start of a big reform in our government. Remember they are going after one of the "elite's" biggest "fish"—George Bush—and to get an admission of guilt and compensation for their dastardly racial warfare deeds. If this is handled properly, we could end up with something that will go down in history as a major turning point in our determination to return sanity and God into our halls of government. What better place and what better people with which to continue the start that the 2-Million-Man March made in Washington to wake up our leaders that we-the-people are not going to take their war on us any longer? This kind of action is what the crooks in high places most fear.

Bad news on power grid; National Guard,
FEMA plan for major y2k breakdowns.

By David M. Bresnahan (0 1999

The Federal Emergency Management Agency, the National Guard and other federal agencies engaged in y2k planning are now expecting loss of electrical power and other related problems before the year 2000.

Nuclear power plants will begin to shut down in July, according to government sources [emphasis mine].

"As far as I'm concerned, the public has a right to know this. It isn't classified, so I'm not violating any rules that I see. I might be hampering somebody's planning, but this needs to get out," an officer from the National Guard Bureau in Washington told WorldNetDaily in an exclusive interview.

The officer, and several others who continue to provide information, believe they will be reassigned or disciplined if their identity were made known.

"Then I'd be out of the loop," said one.

For Immediate Release:

CURE FOR AIDS AT HAND!

The Foundation for Incurable Diseases is pleased to announce it has come to an agreement with Dr. Marvin Antelman of Antelman Technologies, which will provide to those suffering from AIDS a cure for little or no cost!

Dr. Antelman has developed Tetrasil (r) (tetrasilver tetroxide) which is a patented bioinorganic antipathogenic molecular crystal device. Tetrasil kills pathogens by electrocuting them!

Dr. Antelman, whose work throughout the years has varied from innovative designs for nuclear submarine reactors and smart-card batteries, discovered that silver (Ag) actually is formed by Ag and Ag₃, and it is this discovery that lead him to the development of Tetrasil.
(Tetrasil is not colloidal silver.) Through the construction of a molecular-sized semiconductor,
Dr. Antelman was able to force natural silver (which is actually Ag₂) into its two separate components of Ag and Ag₃ and to keep them separate, thus retaining the potential for an electron discharge. In layman's terms, one section of the Tetrasil machine contains an extra electron charge that desperately wants to cross to the other side, but cannot due to the manner in which the molecular machine is constructed. The molecular machine is, thereby, polarized and charged, and remains so until triggered. The Tetrasil machine is triggered when it comes into contact with a pathogen (thus the reason for the name "anti-pathogenic molecular crystal device"). Pathogens (bacteria and virii alike) are drawn to the device by strong covalent forces, and when they come into contact with the machine they are locked into place by these forces. The extra electron charge is then free to make its way to the other side of the Tetrasil machine by traversing the cellular membrane of the pathogen, which it immediately does. The 2-volt discharge electrocutes the pathogen in the process. A chelation process is triggered as a result and both the Tetrasil machine and the dead pathogen bound to it are removed by the liver. The liver is stressed, but not damaged.

Tetrasil is classed as an EPA Class IV substance—the SAFEST rating available, which means it is safe for human consumption. EPA Class IV status is equivalent to FDA Stage One approval.

Tetrasil has redefined the standards by which the government judges efficacy against e-coli: nothing works faster and more effectively than Tetrasil.

In human clinical AIDS trials, a SINGLE IV injection of Tetrasil cured 8 of 10 terminal AIDS patients, who showed no sign of disease one year after treatment. The two other patients succumbed due to the damage already inflicted by the disease. It was too late for them.

Tetrasil will be distributed:

- * as a cure for FAIDS (feline AIDS—30% of all cats suffer from the disease) in the USA, for which FDA approval is not needed.

- * as spray disinfectants and wipes

- * as treatment for drinking water and waste water (no poisonous chlorine needed any longer)

- * as disinfectant for cooling towers (no more legionnaires disease)

- * AS A CURE FOR HUMAN AIDS

- * and many other uses

Dr. Antelman turned down millions of dollars from an NIH-associated group that wanted all rights to Tetrasil because he knew they would make the treatment too costly or suppress it altogether. (Dr. Antelman knows how the system works and is disgusted by it.)

Tetrasil has the potential to cure practically all disease caused by pathogens, from TB to the common cold. Dr. Antelman, an orthodox rabbi, is a righteous man who seeks to help ease human suffering, not profit from it. (Rabbi Marvin S. Antelman is a member of The Supreme Rabbinic Court, aka 'the Sanhedrin', the oldest established court in the world.)

The Foundation for Incurable Diseases (FID) needs public support to bring this modern miracle to the people of the world.

The pharmaceutical industry is already rallying to stonewall distribution of Tetrasil, because it will replace all their poisonous (and highly profitable) treatments for AIDS—all of which will kill a healthy person. Help us fight the true killers—the pharmaceutical industry. More people die from treatment for AIDS than from the disease itself. The time has come to cease this nonsense.

No one need ever die of AIDS again.

There is at LEAST one patent for silver that implies its tremendous antibacterial effect: United States Patent 5,571,520, [also: US Patent 5,676,977], Antelman Nov. 5, 1996.

Molecular crystal redox device for pharmaceuticals

Inventors: Antelman; Marvin S. (Rehovot, IL).

Assignee: Antelman Technologies Ltd. (Providence, RI).

Appl. No.: 286,007

Filed: Aug. 4, 1994

Primary Examiner: Hulina, Amy; Attorney, Agent or Firm: Salter & Michaelson

The employment of molecular crystals as bactericidal, viricidal and algicidal devices, and specifically the molecular semiconductor crystal tetrasil silver tetroxide Ag(4) O(4) which has two trivalent and two monovalent silver atoms per molecule, and which through this structural configuration generates electronic activity on a molecular scale capable of killing algae and bacteria via the same mechanism as macroscale electron generators.

HMMM, oxygen and silver can kill bacteria anerobic (pathogenic).

The FDA wants to regulate it as a drug to keep me from turning blue while I die from an antibiotic-resistant infection.

How noble of them.

Maybe someone can explain the trade off between, turning blue (if it does happen with a pure colloidal solution) and dying from an antibiotic-resistant infection. [End quoting]

He tells it like it is. Isn't it nice to have this verification of what we've been saying about silver, but it looks like he has boosted its usefulness to even a higher level? And also, what he has to say about the AMA murderers is right on.

SUPERBUG WAITS TO HIT COMPUTERS AT QUIETEST TIME

From THE GAZETTE, Montreal, 12/27/98: [quoting]

A devious genius has unleashed the most powerful virus experts have ever seen and it strikes when it can do the most damage.

LONDON—Businesses are being told to be on their guard against the most dangerous computer virus ever detected.

But it may be too late. The new virus is the first that can spread through a network unaided and then strike during the night or weekend, turning computer files into unintelligible code.

Unlike conventional viruses, Remote Explorer, as it calls itself, can infect a machine without the user having to open a file—usually an attachment to an e-mail.

Even more worrying, the virus is so sophisticated it can spread through a network without having to hitch a ride on an e-mail or file. It then uses an internal clock to strike at a quiet time, because it will take longer for problems to be detected.

Last week, computer security experts at Network Associates' U.K. base in Aylesbury, Bucks, wrote a program that can detect the virus and destroy it. It is now available on the Internet at <www.nai.com>.

But the virus writer may have an even more sophisticated version he is waiting to unleash. Peter Watkins, general manager of Network Associates' Security Division in San Francisco, says that whoever is behind the threat is the most sophisticated virus writer he has come across. [End quoting]

It looks like y2k isn't enough to worry about when it comes to computers.

NEW KNEE SURGERY

From POPULAR MECHANICS magazine, Aug. 1998: [quoting]

Teaching the body to make its own cartilage can save patients surgery and money.

Cartilage damaged in knee injuries usually can't repair itself, explains San Francisco surgeon Kevin R. Stone. To obtain the tissue to make repairs, surgeons must now remove a small amount of healthy tissue in one operation, grow it in a laboratory, and transplant the expanded mass during a second surgery.

Stone's technique does all the work in one step. Under local anesthesia, he removes a small amount of cartilage and porous bone from the leg bone. The tissues are mixed and placed in the defective area. Cartilage regrows in about six weeks.

Besides avoiding a second operation, patients save money. "The 2-step surgical procedure and cell culturing process can cost more than $60,000," Stone says. "The new surgery can be performed at one-tenth the cost." [End quoting]

It's hard for me to understand how he won't get kicked out of the medical profession for taking away a big portion of the orthopedic surgeons' income.

LAW PROVIDES "NEW" Y2K SOLUTION FOR Y2K-INDUCED POWER OUTAGES

From the INTERNET, by Jim Lord, <www.y2ktimebomb.com>, 1/11/99: [quoting]

An old technology offers a great y2k solution thanks to recent regulatory changes in many states.

Electricity is needed to keep most homes warm in the winter. It can be used directly to make heating elements glow or indirectly to operate compressors, pumps, blowers or controllers. Some heating systems won't work efficiently and many won't work at all without electricity. Because of this dependency, power outages brought on by y2k would be uncomfortable for most and even perilous for many.

Under moderate to severe y2k conditions, we clearly need a good way to heat homes and businesses without electricity. An ideal system would be inexpensive, clean, highly efficient and safe. Fuel would be widely available. (And, if it did NOT involve a backyard full of firewood, it would get my vote for certain.)

Such a system does exist. In fact, it has been widely used for twenty years or more in industrial applications. Conflicts between state building codes and bureaucratic fumbling, however, have prevented its use in home heating. (More on that later.)

The improbable solution is vent-free gas heaters.

Vent-free means the heater doesn't have a stovepipe to carry away the fumes. Now, this seems dangerous—for at least two reasons. First, what about carbon monoxide—aren't the papers full of stories about whole families perishing in house trailers with open-flame heaters? And what if your house is tightly sealed—no air flowing (or sneaking) in from the outside. Won't this thing use up all the oxygen and suffocate the poor occupants while they sleep?

Those are, indeed, concerns but they were also solved many years ago. The carbon monoxide problem is eliminated by designing the heater to operate at very high temperatures, much like a catalytic converter. Vent-free heaters burn the gas so completely they are commonly rated at efficiencies greater than 99.9%. This means the gas is entirely consumed—virtually all the energy is converted to heat. Testing, for example, shows there is no production of carbon monoxide at all. None whatever. The only byproducts of the combustion process are, interesting enough, carbon dioxide and water vapor. Exactly what you breathe into the air when you exhale.

And the oxygen? That concern is taken care of by an Oxygen Depletion Sensor (ODS). This gadget measures the oxygen level in the atmosphere—20% under normal conditions. If the level drops just a fraction down to 18%, the unit simply shuts down. It won't work at all unless the oxygen inside stays at normal levels.

If these things are so hot (pun entirely intended), where have they been for the past twenty years? A great question and therein lies a sad tale of heavy-handed federal meddling, clumsy lawmaking, states rights, babies and bath water.

In the early 1980s (boy it's hard not to say "80s" there but I'm trying). Anyway, in the early 1980s, ODS-equipped, vent-free heaters came onto the scene. Fresh from the ravages of the oil shortage, the bureaucrats were ever watchful for energy efficient appliances. Extensive testing revealed these heaters were just, well, flat wonderful. So the federals passed a law superseding all state laws and making the heaters instantly legal in all fifty states. In other words, they just jammed them down everybody's throats. Sort of like the fifty-five-mile-an-hour speed limit.

At that point, most of the states adhered, in large part, to the Uniform Mechanical Code, a voluntary standard that, for safety reasons, did not allow the unvented burning of any fuel inside residential structures. The crafters of this code, of course, had not tested these fancy new heaters.

The new federal law, meanwhile, was fatally flawed as it allowed states to apply for an exemption. Now, the state bureaucrats don't like to be pushed around any more than the rest of us. Since the exemption was there for the asking, virtually every state applied. And, for twenty years, this highly beneficial technology has been withheld from the public.

So what is it that has changed the situation? Well, just recently, most states, in the pursuit of even greater standardization, have adopted the newer, broader standard contained in the INTERNATIONAL Mechanical Code. Adherence to this standard makes it easier for many manufacturers to both import from and export into foreign markets. And here's the kicker—the new code approves of vent-free gas heaters as long as they are equipped with Oxygen Depletion Sensors. (My home state of Utah, for example just adopted the new code this very week.)

Now that I have (hopefully) convinced you that these heaters are legitimate and legal (if your state has also adopted the International Mechanical Code), what makes these heaters so special? Here's why I like them so much.

* They use no electricity at all. For y2k purposes, this breaks the dependence on electricity for home heating—typically, one of the most critical uses of electricity in the home.

* Because of the above, they are probably the most efficient forms of heating known. You can expect your heating bill to decrease dramatically, sometimes by fifty percent and more.

* They are easy to install. There are no holes to punch into the ceiling, no chimney is required and there are no electrical lines to worry about. They do require a gas line, of course. Installation of the unit is accomplished with three screws into the wall.

* They operate on either natural gas or propane. These fuels are, of course widely available and, in the case of propane, are easily stored in quantity. (More on this later.)

* They are amazingly inexpensive to purchase. A thirty-thousand-BTU unit will run in the $225-$400 range depending on source. A single unit of this size will usually heat a 1500-square-foot house.

* They will humidify your home if you live in a dry climate. The humidity level is typically maintained at about thirty percent, eliminating the dry throat and scratchy eyes often encountered in forced-air systems.

* They are thermostatically controlled, making them easy to set up and forget about.

OK, these are really neat gadgets but what about the y2k supply chain and disruptions in the delivery of fuel? First, propane provides a pretty good solution because it is fairly easy to store enough to last an entire winter, especially since the heaters are so amazingly efficient. A tank can be installed just by setting it atop a few concrete blocks. And then, of course, you would need a gas line run into the house. While you're at it, you might want to consider a stub-out for a nice gas grill to cook on. Just in case.

Then there is natural gas, the preferred choice, at least in my neck of the woods. Here's why. The state of Utah is served by the Questar Gas Company. Service extends essentially over the entire state and into southwestern Wyoming and parts of southern Idaho.

Here's the really good news. The ambient pressure of the gas coming up out of the system of wells is sufficient to provide forty percent of the entire system demand. Translated, that means that if there is no electricity to operate any pumps, compressors and such, the gas will still come out of the ground and flow throughout the system because of the natural pressure at the wellhead.

The forty-percent figure does not have the impact you might expect. Federal law mandates that gas companies must adhere to a set priority for distribution of gas in the event there is a reduction in supply. Hospitals get first priority—they will receive all the gas they need. Residential customers are next, meaning all the homes on the entire system will receive 100% of the gas they need. Business and institutional customers bring up the rear.

My Tip of the Week is to consider vent-free gas heaters as, first, a great way to provide primary heat to your home. Secondly, consider these heaters as a very inexpensive backup source of heat to your existing system in the event there are y2k-induced power outages. Next, investigate the availability of natural gas in your area. If it is available, talk to the gas company and find out what the ambient pressure of the system is in the event electrical power is completely knocked out. You may find you can have all the gas you need. If natural gas is not available or if your system has insufficient ambient pressure, consider propane instead.

(Note: I owe immense gratitude to a friend with years experience at a gas company for the excellent research he provided for this article. Thanks, pal.)

Good Luck!—Jim Lord

DIAFIL 610— FOOD STORAGE MINERAL

From the INTERNET, <para-discuss@tje.net>, 1/7/99: [quoting]

PLEASE REPOST WIDELY—your lives could depend on what food you put away for you and your family—don't let the bugs eat it up. READ THIS—SAFE, CHEAP AND PROVEN WAY to store your grains!!! Kills parasites, fleas, lice and other crawlers too!!! If you can put this up on your sites I'd appreciate it greatly—thanx—Charmaine.

DiaFil 610—For use in the safe storage of grain, including barley, buckwheat, corn, oats, rice, rye, sorghum wheat, wheat, and mixtures of these grains. The most effective method known for eliminating insect damage to stored grain. Insects that come in contact with or ingest this powder, will die within 48 hours.

The information on this mineral has been suppressed from you, the little people—it is a natural, non-toxic, safe for human consumption mineral with the physical appearance of corn starch. The Establishment has taken this natural mineral and suppressed its overall value and numerous uses from the public. YOU NEED THIS PRODUCT IN YOUR HANDS especially with the approaching calamities that will be the result of y2k.

DiaFil 610 is a non-toxic natural mineral that complies with the food chemical codex regulation of the EPA (no. 59910-1). It is a superior quality diatomite (diatomaceous earth silica—not to be confused with diatomaceous earth product used in swimming pool filters which would be dangerous to use).

It consists of the skeletal remains of single-cell aquatic plants known as diatoms. They have accumulated in what was then a huge inland lake that covered much of land that is now Nevada, and was then thrust up by geological processes. It is widely used as an insect-control agent for protection of grain in storage elevators, and as a carrier for any chemical agents, DiaFil 610 is an exciting alternative to conventional chemical insecticides and is extremely effective against a wide variety of insects. Because it is a non-toxic mineral and is safely fed to all animals, and is safe for human consumption—you can even drink some of it in water to rid yourself and pets of PARASITES!! How about that!!—I'm doing it and I'm ok!

Anyway, folks—I have a lot of information sheets on this stuff and I don't want to make this post too long—so here's the deal. For 20 bucks you get 3 pounds of this remarkable stuff that Big Brother doesn't want you to know about—in fact Big Brother will tell you that it's dangerous!!—even though they use it in the grains already and in toothpaste and a whole lot more stuff—it's like laetrile—you know—we can't have folks curing themselves of cancer or what would happen to those big pharmaceutical companies and the American Cancer Society!!—Etc. 2.8 ounces will safely treat and keep the bugs out of 50 pounds of grains!! You can get some of those big white 5-gallon clean paint containers from the paint store and put some of this in the bottom and then pour in your grains and put more DiaFil on the top and close the air-tight lid and this stuff will kill any bugs that hatch in there or try and get in! I'm sure a few of you out there have gone into your pasta pantry and found some weevils have taken over and it's a lot of work to pick those little guys out, plus they are pooping in your food!

It has gained wide acceptance in agriculture for its efficacy and purity and safety inherent in its inertness and low crystalline silica content that classifies it as amorphous. It is used widely for lawn fertilizer and insect control. Likewise by gardeners and farmers, in fertilizing and as a feed additive for all animals, with a big improvement to their health!! Whoa—how come we aren't reading about this stuff on the front page of the controlled media!!!

Heres a few more of its uses:

- Non-Toxic and odorless
- Overall feed cost savings
- Controls internal and external parasites. Mixed with feed it constantly attacks parasites. Feed intake reduced 10% by improved feed conversion.

Mixed with feed it controls insects, weevils in stored feed.

Controls Warbles (what the heck is that—sounds nasty to me!)

Average daily weight gain increased in beef cattle by one-half pound.

Increased milk production in dairy cattle by better feed conversion. Eliminates mastitis infection in dairy cattle.

Odor and moisture control in stalls and chicken houses.

Fly control in manure.

Cannot overdose animals.

Kills fleas, ticks, mites, etc., externally treated on farm animals and pets.

Kills parasites internally treated on farm animals and pets!!! and YOU, TOO—kills the worms that are a big cause in disease in this country THAT YOU ARE NOT BEING TOLD ABOUT. Your processed fast foods and a lot of other stuff are full of worms and grossities in general—YUCK!

Safe, non-toxic to children and pets yet effective insect control inside the home.

Fertilizes and controls insects outside the home, lawn, garden, bushes and fruit trees and more!!

MIXED WITH GRAINS of all kinds and seed, eliminates weevil infestation from within stored items and from insects gaining entry from outside package of all stored foods.

AND THERE'S MORE TO LEARN ABOUT THIS GREAT but suppressed product—YOU NEED IT NOW!!

Besides being an effective insecticide, the dust contains 14 beneficial trace minerals in chelated (readily available) form. When the dust is washed off by heavy rains the minerals are carried down into the soil, where they continue to be effective—the list goes on and on!!! It's almost too good to be true—but pinch yourselves—BECAUSE IT'S ALL TRUE!

PARA-DISCUSS: DiaFil 610—FOOD STORAGE MINERAL

I'm not in the habit of making perjurious statements like some folks I know! So—

If you want the 8 xeroxed pages of the report on this—you can send me 2 bucks to help me with the copying and mailing and I'll get it right out to you. I don't handle the orders—my friends at Minute Man Network Work III are doing all that—I'm just helping out here—and of course I'll get a few bags myself for sending you to them so be sure and mention my name if you do order. Some of you have already received complimentary xeroxes from me—just please pass this post along or slam it on your site for a while and make copies of the materials for your friends and loved ones—I'd really appreciate it!! ISRAEL SOLD RED CHINA SOPHISTICATED U.S.-MADE WEAPONS

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 1/11/99: [quoting]

All sales complete. Six years ago, Israel sold Red China, in defiance of an agreement made with the Clinton administration, the most sophisticated U.S.-made weapons. Clinton had lavished the guns on the ministate solely for its defenses, but the lure of easy billions was too hard to resist. Israel hawked the valuable U.S. hardware and software to eager buyers across the world. China purchased many billions [worth]. However, the billions were soon squandered and the Israelis went back to the Reds. Israel claimed it had undercharged for the weaponry, so it wanted more money. The Chicoms were outraged and flatly said no. The Israelis threatened the Reds—if they did not pay the extra billions demanded, Israel would use the Israeli lobby in Washington to sabotage China's trade. Now China is siding with most of the rest of the world on the Iraq issue. [End quoting]

Israel's profiting from American arms is hardly a new story, but it helps every so often to be reminded of the shenanigans these crooks employ to advance their own war-minded agenda. Since they have bought our Congress with our foreign-aid money, what's a little arms dealing as

REVISIONIST FINED $21,000

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 1/11/99: [quoting]

An appeals court in France has recently upheld a conviction of a man accused of disputing facts regarding the Holocaust in his 1996 book, The Founding Myths of Israeli Politics. Roger Garaudy, 85, was convicted and sentenced to a six-month suspended prison sentence and was fined $21,400. [End quoting]

One wonders just how much longer the Khazarian Zionists will be able to get away with their Holocaust fabrication. While it has been a lucrative business, too many holes are appearing in their deception fabric.

SOFTER SIDE OF HILLARY

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 1/11/99: [quoting]

First lady Hillary Clinton has reportedly been lashing out at Secret Service agents in the White House who are there for her and her husband's protection. On one occasion, an agent told the press that upon greeting the first lady as she walked by, his "hello" was rudely returned with profanity. The agents said they are considering filing an official complaint. [End quoting]

Could the huge stresses resultant from lies and evil-doings be affecting the first family?

JOB CUTS ARE WEAK LINK IN STRONG CHAIN

Excerpted from THE ORLANDO SENTINEL, 1/8/99: [quoting]

Amid signs the American economy finished 1998 on a strong note, a jump in unemployment-benefit applications and a huge increase in lay-off announcements pointed to a weaker economy in the new year [emphasis mine].

"The job indicators are starting to blink big warning signs," said economist Robert Brusca of Nikko Securities Co. International Inc., in New York.

The number of Americans claiming unemployment checks fell by 22,000 to a seasonally adjusted 350,000 during the week ended Jan. 2, the Labor Department said Thursday. But that only partly reversed a surge of 83,000, the biggest in six years, to 372,000 the week before. [End quoting]

Don't ignore the worrisome doublespeak in the above message.

ELIZABETH DOLE RUNS FOR PRESIDENT?

From U.S. NEWS & WORLD REPORT, 1/18/99: [quoting]

They're in. Forget all that coy talk from Elizabeth Dole that she is only thinking about running for president, say advisers. They tell Whispers that she has all but decided to set up an exploratory committee in "two to three weeks"—after she has moved out of her Red Cross office. But, they note, Dole is also in the market for the vice president's job. Texas Gov. George W. Bush, meanwhile, is telling friends he will probably announce his candidacy in May, not March, as expected. Why the delay? He wants more time to boost his record and fine-tune his "compassionate [barf] conservatism" theme. [End quoting]

This is the same Elizabeth who took the millions in payoff with her hubby before he resigned. The crooks will never give up until we stop them.

FBI WANTS TO IMPORT CROOKS

Excerpted from MIDDLE AMERICAN NEWS, Jan. 1999: [quoting]

The FBI, like American corporations, has gone global. No longer interested in spending its resources to track down American criminals, it is using U.S. tax money to help track down Hungarian ones instead. The Boston Globe reports that the FBI has set up shop in Budapest, host to just one of 32 offices the bureau has established around the world. To stamp out crime in Hungary, the FBI wants to establish a "witness protection program" for Hungarian mobsters. The plan is to give the crooks a new name and let them live here in the U.S. if they will testify against their pals in Hungary. [End quoting]

Then they have ready-made agents to do their dirty work here for them—talk about "killing two birds with one stone". Remember they'll be under blackmail if they don't cooperate.

FLYNT CALLS HOUSE REPUBLICAN HYPOCRITE ON ADULTERY, EVASION

Excerpted from THE DAILY NEWS, Los Angeles, 1/12/99: [quoting]

Hustler publisher Larry Flynt struck again Monday, accusing a House Republican on the team prosecuting President Clinton of hypocrisy for refusing to answer questions under oath about an adulterous affair.

Flynt's target this time: House Republican Robert L. Barr of Georgia, the first member of Congress to call for President Clinton's resignation.

According to Flynt, Barr invoked Fifth Amendment-type responses, on his attorney's advice, about the alleged affair during a deposition taken during a divorce proceeding of his former marriage.

According to copies of a deposition released by Flynt, Barr and his future wife, on attorney's advice, repeatedly avoided answering questions about whether they were having a sexual affair before and after the congressman separated from his former wife.

"He was having an affair and refused to answer questions about it," Flynt said when he made the revelation on Geraldo Rivera's CNBC talk show Rivera Live. [End quoting]

Larry Flynt is exposing the hypocrites in Congress who seem to have no problem condemning Clinton for similar "crimes" to their own. This is a good example of the dark ones warring with each other.

AGENCIES SIGN AGREEMENT TO PROTECT ILLEGAL ALIENS FROM IMMIGRATION LAW

Excerpted from MIDDLE AMERICAN NEWS, Jan. 1998: [quoting]

To protect illegal aliens from deportation and help them keep U.S. jobs, government agencies charged with enforcing federal law have agreed to hide evidence that employers are hiring foreign workers illegally.

Knight Ridder News Service reported in November that investigators from the Labor Department's Employment Standards Administration will keep evidence of suspected violations of immigration law away from the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

In a "memorandum of understanding" signed by officials of both agencies, authorities who investigate allegations of federal labor violations pledge not to tell the INS about suspected illegal aliens so that immigrants will be encouraged to file complaints about labor practices against the companies that hire them.

[End quoting]

Now the immigrants have two different agencies to distrust.

CORN BYPRODUCT HELPS PREVENT ICY ROADS

From the INTERNET, <para-discuss@tje.net>, 1/11/99: [quoting]

Madison, Wisconsin—Twelve counties are experimenting with new techniques, including liquid waste that is a byproduct from making canned corn, to keep roads from getting icy. Scientists have found that the liquid is harder to freeze. It can slow down the formation of ice if it is sprayed onto roads before a storm, an official said. [End quoting]

If it works, that's great news.

WINGED VICTORY

From ANGELS ON EARTH, Nov/Dec 1998, Guideposts, 39 Seminary Hill Rd., Carmel, NY 10512: [quoting]

On Monday afternoon, a few days before Christmas vacation, our high school principal announced over the intercom a door-decorating contest between the classes. I looked around at the other juniors and noticed a lot of rolling eyes. "Who wants to do that?" someone groaned. I do, I thought. I even had an idea: a beautiful angel, like something out of a sixteenth-century painting. Golden hair, halo, flowing robe...

I'll go home and make it myself, I decided. I was always sketching one thing or another. The other guys liked to play soccer or shoot hoops. I liked to draw. If my angel was good enough, maybe the athletic students would understand me better.

Gym was my least favorite period. I dreaded it. I was usually the last one picked for basketball, and my teammates never let me near the ball—they wanted to win. I just wished that when they saw my angel, the guys would realize I was good at something.

At home I unrolled a big sheet of paper on my dining room table and outlined the angel—face, wings, gown and hands. Then I colored her in with pastels, blending the shades until I got them just right. When I was finished, I raided my mom's gift-wrapping supplies for some gold tissue paper and pasted it behind the head for a halo.

It took me all evening. Finally I stood back and admired my angel. She wasn't half bad. Careful not to smudge the colors, I rolled up the picture.

But at school the next day I got nervous about what the other juniors might say. What if they didn't think my angel was any good? What if they thought it was stupid that I'd spent all night on our door decoration? I decided to test it on my friends Jessica and Lauren. If there was anything wrong with it, they'd let me down gently.

I unrolled the paper, watching for a reaction. They stared and stared and then they laughed. Both of them. They must really hate it, I thought.

"What's wrong?" I asked. "Is it ugly?"

"Ugly?" Lauren exclaimed. "It's not ugly. It's beautiful!"

"I'm laughing because it's so good," Jessica said. "I can't find anything wrong with it."

What a relief! Now I was ready to show my angel to everyone else. Holding the paper up to my chin, I turned and faced the class. "That's awesome, Jason!" came the response. "Cool! We're going to win!"

I put my angel up on the door. Suddenly it became "ours". During study hall, several of my classmates hovered near it. "Some blue would really set it off," Brian said. He looked to see if I agreed. "Go for it," I said. So he and Jeff wrapped blue paper around the door to frame the angel. "Something's still missing . . ." Lauren said. "I know. A star!" She and Randi made a big one out of gold paper and cardboard. Kristin wrote a Bible verse on the angel's sash. Lea, Mike and Mark decorated the blue paper with little gold stars, turning it into sky. The door was looking better and better with everyone's touches.

When it was all finished, Josh, one of our star basketball players, walked over to the angel. "Nice work, Jason," he said. "I could never do something like that."

"That's the way I feel when I see you on the basketball court!" I laughed.

Everyone else laughed too. Everyone except Josh. He was still studying the angel on the door. He must not have heard me. His mind was probably on basketball.

Gym class was ninth period. I could feel my stomach churning even before I got to the locker room. After I changed, I stood and watched while the other guys warmed up. It amazed me how fast some of them dribbled the ball downcourt, how easily they made baskets. They seemed to float on air. Why care about drawing if you could do something like that?

Our gym teacher blew the whistle, our cue to line up. He checked to see that everybody was in proper uniform, then chose team captains—Justin and Josh. No matter what the sport, Justin and Josh were usually the captains.

Now came the worst part: picking teams. One by one the others would be chosen and join their team, leaving me standing all alone. Here we go again, I thought. Josh went first, "Jason," he said.

Everyone stopped talking, as shocked as I was. He must have made a mistake, I thought. He'd be better off playing by himself than with me on his team. A couple boys laughed.

"What's so funny?" Josh asked. "I want Jason."

I walked over and stood beside him, wondering if I was dreaming. In no time the teams were chosen. (Things sure seem to move faster when you're not standing around waiting to be picked.) Then we started playing. Right away Josh passed me the ball. "Shoot," he said. I did. But the ball bounced off the backboard. "Good try," he said as everybody ran down court. As usual, Justin scored.

Josh brought the ball back to the other end of the court and threw it to me again. "Shoot," he said. This time the ball tipped off the rim. "Next time, Jason," he said.

He never gave up on me, encouraging me to take shot after shot. Finally one went in. "Way to go!" Josh yelled. "Good job!" My teammates slapped me on the back. I couldn't believe it. I had actually scored!

When I walked off the court, I felt different. Josh had given me a sense of what it meant to be part of a team. Each of us working with the others,

In the locker room I told Josh, "Thanks." He just smiled as if it were no big deal.

I would like to end this story by telling you that my team won the game and our junior class won the door-decorating contest. We didn't, in either case. But that's not important. What I learned is that whether you draw good pictures or play a good game of basketball, you can be kind and get everyone involved. That's what it takes to make an angel.—by Jason Rondinelli, Clairton, Pennsylvania [End quoting]

The Alpha Memorandum

1/11/99 #1 HATONN

THE "ALPHA" WRITING

This is a bit of an inside code, "Alpha", because our file numerals are 01111. You won't want to change that but you will want to make this writing easily accessible. I am going to explain what is taking place in the Philippines and with the Asian central bankers, along with Greenspan and the Bank of International Settlements in Hong Kong.

The "Global" "thing" has become that hot potato with which nobody wanted to deal but could no longer bury. And no, I don't speak of elderly certificates or cute contracts—but criminal activities. You can't do anything with paper if it is deemed in the world to be no good. However, if you utilize the PLAN there is much you can do with leverage.

I am obligated to not give details of any ongoing negotiations or structured, in structuring, or conclusive agreements. However, I am not going to HIDE or further secret away the methodology of the Plan itself and how it is being both wisely and unwisely utilized.

This will be a big focus at the "informal" bankers' meeting in Hong Kong today. We will just wait to see what the outcome of those "top secret 'informal'" meetings might produce but it is hard to call all that stuff in the fan anything other than what it is and, my goodness, there is a lot of "Oh shit-ing" going on on the merry-go-round.

Rumors are correct: the Global "stuff" has been qualified and a lot of worst-case banking games are being uncovered as buy-offs and outs have been attempted but there is something about the criminal mind—you can't shut up everyone all the time. And, further, it is not due to filching that brings the house of cards down—it is the boasting big shots right through their mouths.

Does Greenspan have a problem? Not if he works with the global community but otherwise his problem ranges, in the counting of one to ten, somewhere about 197.

THE PHILIPPINE GAME

The "game" in the Philippines is as expected, a cute "try to filch" gamble. Can they pull off a big coup, get money FREE from the scoundrels without having to pay anything (as is being promised by the Elite brokerage players called British Israel Elite [City of London]). How? Well, kids, "Where did all the gold bars go? Long time mi-iss-ing. Where did all the gold stuff go—a long time ago?" 2nd chorus: "To the Devil all of it—a long time ago." Well, you get my meaning.

Now for a tiny tale, but one of which great movies are made: "One day a long time ago—there were some men who thought they could gain the world and take the property, the gold AND control, while owning the people."

So, these men set about finding the perfect way to accomplish this feat. That wasn't too hard, what with everyone in POWER in the highest political places, so they set about their task with great gusto and macho mayhem.

Since the major gold and currency criminals had a big network and their own "gain the world" plan working it became an easy thing to merge parts of both plans into a big loop over which control could be exerted, THEY THOUGHT, until the end of time. But oops, they didn't take into consideration, GOD. Oh darn it! Neither did they take into consideration that once they started murdering Russell Herman, the holder of these precious documents, he wouldn't play ball with them and would see to it that they were CAUGHT in the act of sticky-finger rape and plunder with ever so little an amount of pillage.

Russell Herman called on ME, Yeorgos Ceres Hatonn, who happened to hold a pretty high position up the ladder—almost to the Cosmos, as a matter of fact. He placed the whole package, hook, line, and corporation into my CARE AND NURTURING.

All things were then registered and entered into the LEGAL BOOKS OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

Now for you inquiring minds: Mr. Bentsen of Texas took over the mandated qualifying and hiding of said stuff, HE THOUGHT. Oh, elaborate plans were carried out and even Col. Ollie North got to lie, cheat and steal, under the shelter of National Security, about those little deals—about most of which he knew NOTHING (at first). By the time Russell was dying, however, he knew how serious this mess had become. But after all, it became his problem of just how to extract information and signatures from Russell without getting Bush and brigade caught—you know, SPECIAL FORCES methods of information gathering. But, I could help Russell go through that phase of his ordeal by removing "him", basically, from the experience except to observe.

All good students of history will recall that Mr. Bentsen remained into the next administration (Clinton's) for some strange reason, beyond that of ordinary changeover. Further, at about that same time the Secretary of Treasury was being paid by the IMF and all the transfer of the U.S. Judicial System along with the Treasury Department was being finalized within the Federal Reserve System, IMF and World Bank. All the gold reserves had been shifted out of the vaults of the U.S. and into the vaults of the NEW system. The gold remaining in the United States went to the British Israel operations (through the brokerage houses and Elite banks) in New York, or was shipped for storage abroad.

I marvel at the limited scope of your realization, people. You know all that gold wealth being paid to Holocaust victims from here, there and everywhere? Why don't YOU apply, citizen? Have you not been HURT by that old and nasty Holocaust? No, I mean YOU, whoever you are or whatever you claim as race, creed or color. YOU HAVE BEEN HURT, YOU MUST REALIZE THAT—DON'T YOU?

The rest of the gold available was stashed hither and yon—yea, even with Saddam you-know-who.

Things went along fine except that, even after the recovering of the corporation and reconfirming and reconfirming the documents into legal negotiable CONTRACT, the BOYS didn't want to give up their lop-sided game.

By this time Rubin was in the Treasurer seat and Janet Reno was in the judicial seat of power—BOTH ARE PAID EMPLOYEES OF THE INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND (you will find that so too are such as the Sec. of State, Defense, etc., paid by FOREIGN POWERS THROUGH THE SAME SYSTEM). WITH NOTHING TO DO WITH THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA EXCEPT AS POWER-WIELDERS FOR FOREIGN POWERS. You will note that these people do not use the U.S. Constitution nor do they actually use the U.N. Charter—they use the Talmudic Law of the Elders of Zion.

Ah, but even with the ongoing security IN PLACE, the “Boys” didn’t quit. They came along and did their own thing—AGAIN. But it is quite unlawful and invalid—ISN’T IT? But by now a lot of collapse, horrendous fall-out and a lot of bad management have passed under the bridge of LIGHT and LIFE. In addition, a LOT of very important (at least to themselves) people were not aware of the game being shoved off onto their “responsibility” shoulders by those with access to “Plausible Denial”.

So came Soros and the money banditos snatching and snitching while dealing in currencies and gold reserves, gold in general, derivatives, options trading, rollovers and anything with multi-100 + percent pay-back per WEEK (or day), whichever was good on a given day and transaction.

Now, back at the farm, I could just watch and wait for I have a lot of patience and plenty of “time” to wait—until everything got into as big a mess as it appears to be today. So, we will just leave it there for now.

Our program is not to cash out anything, ladies and gentlemen, with undue coverage or non-restraint. The only way you can balance anything and bring any kind of order back into your world programs is to back that currency in your hands, now run into chaos, through a substantial “backing” with value. That is usually gold as the accepted commodity.

But, the grabbers are still in there “everywhere” doing their insane interest-gaining fiddling. And, moreover, most of the Elite politicians, who think themselves so very important, work right along with them. Both play games of intrigue and lies. They don’t even know any other way to play. AND, THEY ARE FEAR-FILLED COWARDS OF THE WORST KIND.

The brokerage butchers, i.e., Morgan, Smith Barney, et al., offer and give backup, agree to do loans on bond floats and lower interest than the IMF and hope to save face out there some five years minimum before they are found out as having bought the whole offering themselves. But, it seems there is nothing else they could have actually done.

Fine. But who would invest under such circumstances? Nobody. So, what has happened? SIMPLE: The Central Bank is backing the bonds with GOLD. Now, know that the Central Bank is the ONLY BANK that can even handle gold in the Philippines, so that gave the Central Bank the inside edge on this deal. The Philippines has NO INTENTION WHATSOEVER OF PAYING BACK THE IMF, PAYING OFF THE NATIONAL DEBT, OR PAYING ANY INTEREST BEYOND “SHOW”, AND NEVER THE PRINCIPLE INVOLVED. Never did and never will!

Ah—BUT BIG FLUB IN THE THINKING! THAT LEAVES NOTHING UPON WHICH TO BASE THE FUNDING AND, LATER, WHAM, BAM, AND THANK YOU MA’AM, THE GOLD WILL BE SEIZED, IF THINGS CONTINUE AS THEY ARE NOW MOVING, BY THE ELITE FORCES (ARMY) OF THE WORLD GOVERNMENT—AND THE PHILIPPINES BECOMES A THING (NATION) OF THE PAST HISTORY OF THE DOWNFALL OF THE WORLD KNOWN AS EARTH SHAN.

Are you with me so far, readers? Isn’t this a cute tale of intrigue and nastiness?

Cogs began to fall into the spokes, however, when George Bush bought a bunch of stashed gold from Saddam. They were just running a really smooth game and it is still in progress. That nice Inter-American Development Bank (Bunko) has just set up little nice banks all around, you know, the little Asian Development Bank, European Development Bank, Hong Kong Development Bank, East Po-dunk Development Bank, and ever so many more. This sprang out of Inter-American Investment Corporation—MINE—originally set up by the Bush Boys but never through Incorporation—OOPS, BIG GOOF!!

This also was pretty much inclusive of the DEPOSIT TRUST outfit who runs all the stocks, etc., yours included. Names are changed on investments and never do the investors even be able to FIND their accounts and all those that can be located NOW will not be around after y2k for that is why y2k was invented in the first place.

Several banks were set up specifically to run this money into arms, drugs, whatever, among which were BNL AND THE OLD AND FAMOUS BCCI.

Now comes along goodie-two-shoes with golden wings or something and thinks a change can be wrought? Yep, and these boots are gonna walk all over the spooks.

Can it be done through established banks? Of course, but not if they won’t play fair and just.

It WILL be done through non-interest bearing banks which have been kept as big dark secrets from you nice Judeo-Christians—and are generally recognized in the bank circles as ISLAMIC-TYPE BANKS.

Now, anybody who has gold can play in this game and they don’t even need us—UNTIL they find that the world forces can come forth and simply take their gold reserves up, up and away to their secret hiding places.

IF, HOWEVER, THERE SITS A DEBT AGAINST THE TAKERS, WHOEVER MIGHT REPLACE THE IMF OR WHATEVER—THE BANK SIMPLY HANDS THE AMOUNT OF OBLIGATION OVER TO THE TAKERS IN LIKE FORM—RIGHT OUT OF THEIR OWN POT.

Now, I ask, IS THIS HARD TO UNDERSTAND? I didn’t think so! And, are there banks enough, nations enough, and people enough to use such a strange idea as gold for currency? The U.S. did until the Federal Reserve took over the U.S. and then the World—thanks to Mr. Wilson.

Oh indeed, Global has truth and the right-real stuff. Who will dare to use it? The better question is: WHO DARES NOT TO USE IT IN THIS COLLAPSING WORLD ECONOMY?

The silly shysters put outrageous “market” numbers up for your attention. People, wake up, anyone with a net-line can put up any numbers they want you-the-dreamy-eyed to see and be fooled all the time. The Big Boys are out of their minds with concern and panic.

Do they want to “deal”? Well, as Bush said once, “...not at this time”. Actually they do but I wanted to remind everyone of the original offering of cooperation at the beginning of this odyssey. Let’s just call it the Yellow Brick Road Odyssey.

Can “they” play in the game too? Yep, and it would make everything so much easier on EVERYONE. THE WORLD WANTS A WAY TO RECOVER STABILITY, NOT HANG CRIMINALS. THE POLITICIANS AND THIEVES WILL HANG THEMSELVES, OR ONE ANOTHER.

Does my little Team know all this and/or the details of my negotiations or the twirp-games being put forth? No, and they don’t need to know. They just need to keep on plugging away and hold strong in the face of great difficulties. But always remember something: GOD’S DELAYS ARE NOT GOD’S DENIALS.

And the “Philippines” or anyone else can play any game they want to play—and it simply will only be a momentary relief—sort of like soothing the stomach ulcer pain—but the ulcer is just getting bigger and bigger and bigger and it will again hemorrhage without ability to put a cork in the hole.

The bandits may well be able to contain some of the people some of the time—but they cannot, nor shall they ever, contain ME.

I would in fact like to just sign off this little message as:

Art Of War

warmongers of antiquity (who better to advance a plan of aggression?) and have devoted their entire existence to controlling the lives of others.

The Protocols Of The Learned Elders Of Zion are the overall blueprint for the taking of a world, especially by use of GOLD to BUY influence and power. "Every man has his price" is a maxim which these dark ones have utilized quite successfully to facilitate many generations of corruption.

However, in order to carry out "The Plan" of the true so-called "elite", the Zionist "foot soldiers" need a more specific set of protocols to follow, lest these Zionist Khazars find themselves outmaneuvered by competition.

Enter: Sun Tzu's Art Of War. This treatise by an Asian warlord (remember the Khazar tribes are of Nordic, Turk and MONGOL heritage) is the secret "bible" for the Global Intelligence groups and is the inspiration for their underlying guerilla tactics used against the innocent masses of you nice citizens in this "new age" of so-called World Order.

The "Order" is a nice way of making the word "genocide" or "euthanasia" palatable for you who are to be done away with—though you are unaware that the idea of massive population reduction is central to the plan.

As an aside here, on the subject of death, Dr. "Death" Kevorkian's video-taped assisted suicide is no different than the Clinton-Lewinsky airing of thinly-veiled glorifying of lewd, spiritually debasing, AND DEADLY behavior (what with man-made retro viruses, such as AIDS, floating around). The aim of the pageantry paraded before your eyes via your idiot boxes, in Kevorkian's case, is a display to cause you ones to accept the killing of a certain group of people. Today it is "terminally ill" patients—whether or not YOU KNOW if that person is terminal, or just categorized as such through the greedy perspective of the Khazarian-run American Medical Association. Tomorrow a certain group may be "undesirables" or there will be the mind-control programming, through your media, which leads to an open acceptance of wholesale slaughtering of the unborn.

Impossible in your modern world?

What do you think is going on in Third-World countries, where NO NEWS of real atrocities leaks out? There are entire government-sanctioned research and development programs working around the clock coming up with "better and more efficient" ways of killing people.

During the Truth Hearings in South Africa, recently leaked from the Arab world, military intelligence (Britain's MI-6 and Israel's Mossad will always be at the root of such heinous schemes) was caught planning AND CARRYING OUT the deaths of many thousands of people using methods "designed to kill pigmented people only". The announced scrubbing of one of John Glenn's experiments regarding melanin (a dark pigment found in skin and hair) was part of the research for, among other things, making a more effective and selective agent for murder.

How can such heinous plans be carried out without the masses of you-the-public finding out about them? For most of you, how would you ever know if the CONTROLLED media does not tell you?!

It has been told to you repeatedly that being peaceful—yet as informed and as shrewd as the proverbial serpent—is how evil is bested. All things considered, God-Aton's people have the advantage because Satan's armies are limited to things of evil, "low-frequency" conjuring, whereas Lighted workers have within them waiting to be tapped—for lack of a better descriptive—"high-frequency" Light with which to create true miracles. Never forget: evil does not flourish, nor can it survive very long, bathed in the Light of Truth.

Remember that all things manifest are constructed of Light, and Aton is ultimately the SOURCE of that Light. Therefore, it should make sense that those who live by the Natural Laws of God's Lighted Creation, which is based on Truth, Love, Giving and Regiving—all the conditions that allow Aton's Universe to evolve on into infinity with TOTAL BALANCE AND HARMONY (even if you don't wholly perceive it at your current state of evolution)—will be the ultimate victors in any confrontation with an adversary lost in darkness.

But always, you must know your enemy and his ways. So let me end this digression and return to the subject at hand—so that you may KNOW the ways of darkness and thus be in a better position to recognize and counter such deviant behavior.

SUN TZU'S THE ART OF WAR

The following is translated by Thomas Cleary, Shambhala Classics, Boston, 1991, from the 2000-year-old manuscript. Commentary in this translation has been selected from a collection of eleven interpreters who lived from the second to the twelfth centuries and is included in parentheses. It is interesting to note that the Khazar empire, which prided itself on being a barbarous, warrior race, flourished during the first large-scale implementation of Sun Tzu's teachings.

My commentary will be indicated as [K:] within the document.

[QUOTING:]

I. STRATEGIC ASSESSMENTS

Military action is important to the nation—it is the ground of death and life, the path of survival and destruction, so it is imperative to examine it. (The ground means the location, the place of pitched battle—gain the advantage and you live; lose the advantage and you die. Therefore military action is called the ground of death and life. The path means the way to adjust to the situation and establish victory—find this and you survive; lose this and you perish.)

Therefore measure in terms of five things, use these assessments to make comparisons, and thus find out what the conditions are. The five things are the way, the weather, the terrain, the leadership, and discipline. (These are to be assessed at headquarters—first assess yourself and your opponent in terms of these five things, deciding who is superior. Then you can determine who is likely to prevail.)

The way means inducing the people to have the same aim as the leadership, so that they will share death and share life, without fear of danger. [K: This is the job of the conspiracy-based media. By utilizing films and television for propaganda purposes, "the people" become willing cannon fodder for those who wish to increase—or keep, as the case may be—their wealth in oil and stolen lands.] (The way means humaneness and justice. In ancient times a famous minister of state asked a political philosopher about military matters. The philosopher said, "Humaneness and justice are the means by which to govern properly. When government is carried out properly, people feel close to the leadership and think little of dying for it.")

The weather means the seasons. (In ancient times many soldiers lost their fingers to frostbite on campaigns against the Huns, and many soldiers died of plague on campaigns against the southern tribes. This was because of carrying out operations in winter and summer.) [K: Weather modification by your government through the weather grids along your nation's shores, or by Russia's hovering weapons platforms and Moon-based beam systems—let us not forget the French and American underwater nuclear detonations enhancing El Ninos and La Ninas—has added a new dimension to "unconventional" warfare that very few know about; however, with the drastic changes in your climate, where hundred-year records are broken with each severe storm, people are beginning to suspect that someone has been tampering in Mother Nature's domain.]

The terrain is to be assessed in terms of distance, difficulty or ease of travel, dimension, and safety. (In any military operation, it is important first to know the lay of the land. When you know the distance to be traveled, then you can plan whether to proceed directly or by a circuitous route. When you know the difficulty or ease of travel, then you can determine the advantages of infantry or mounted troops. When you know the dimensions of the area, then you can assess how many troops you need, many or

few. When you know the relative safety of the terrain, then you can discern whether to do battle or disperse.)

Leadership is a matter of intelligence, trustworthiness, humaneness, courage, and sternness. (The way of ancient kings was to consider humaneness foremost, while the martial artists considered intelligence foremost. This is because intelligence involves ability to plan and to know when to change effectively. Trustworthiness means to make people sure of punishment or reward. Humaneness means love and compassion for people, being aware of their toils. Courage means to seize opportunities to make certain of victory, without vacillation. Sternness means to establish discipline in the ranks through strict punishments.)

Discipline means organization, chain of command, and logistics. (Organization means that the troops must be grouped in a regulated manner. Chain of command means that there must be officers to keep the troops together and lead them. Logistics means overseeing supplies.)

Every general has heard of these five things. Those who know them prevail; those who do not know them do not prevail.

Therefore, use these assessments for comparison, to find out what the conditions are. That is to say, which political leadership has the way? Which general has ability? Who has the better climate and terrain? Whose discipline is effective? Whose troops are the stronger? Whose officers and soldiers are the better trained? Whose system of rewards and punishments is clearer? This is how you can know who will win. (The ancient classic of documents says, "The one who treats me well is my leader; the one who treats me cruelly is my enemy." The question is: which side has a humane government, and which side has a cruel government.)

Assess the advantages in taking advice, then structure your forces accordingly, to supplement extraordinary tactics. Forces are to be structured strategically, based on what is advantageous.

A military operation involves deception. [K: This is important. Your media induces you to love to want to go to war and sacrifice your babies, but what they do that is even more sinister is portray your "enemies" as buffoons ill-equipped for battle, when in actuality it is you Americans who are not ready. The technology that is already perfected in the fields of electronics, military-grade biological and chemical weapons, and laser and particle-beam anti-personnel systems is so incredibly destructive that entire armies can be destroyed in a matter of seconds. Yet your troops train using grossly outdated methods and equipment. You are not supposed to win any wars, chelas, and the only thing that has kept you alive so far is the Godly and Christian elements of your Kremlin and Arab adversaries who are not completely in the pockets of the banker moneychangers.] Even though you are competent, appear to be incompetent. Though effective, appear to be ineffective. (This means that when you are really competent and effective, you outwardly appear to be incompetent and ineffective, so as to cause the enemy to be unprepared. Deception is for the purpose of seeking victory over an enemy; to command a group requires truthfulness.) [K: Truthfulness within their own small circles protected by oaths, to later use as tools against the masses, such as the Jewish-Khazarian Kol Nidre (or "vow of vows") whereby each year these ones swear to lie to all the non-Jews over whom they have positioned themselves in your civilian and military courts, and local and national lawmaking in the hopes of building an all-powerful Israel. Is it that cliquish? Sherman Block, the late former Sheriff of THE LARGEST POLICE AND PRISON SYSTEM IN THE WORLD, could boast in Mossad circles that his racist police department was and will always be controlled by the little "nice Jewish deli owner". Did anyone blink an eye when the entire political body of movers and shakers in the city of Los Angeles got behind the suggestion to vote a corpse back into office? Even supposed enemies wholeheartedly supported the idea of keeping the Block power structure intact. Could it be because the Israeli 6-pointed Star of David is what the badge really stands for? Didn't Texas and the Old West glorify 5-pointed stars? People, if you don't open your eyes to the deception flaunted in front of you, how can you expect to take back your streets and your nation—not to mention your world—from those who have planned your demise? The Mossad (Israeli Intelligence) motto of "Thou Shalt Make War By Deception" has its origins here.]

When you are going to attack nearby, make it look as if you are going to go a long way; when you are going to attack far away, make it look as if you are going just a short distance. [K: How about "when you occupy the state capital, make it look as if you are their greatest ally". The strong Jewish Lobby groups in Washington are the most aggressive non-patriotic organizations to ever ascend IN MASS upon your Capital, and yet, they smile at you while building your gallows—and you pay for that too!]

Draw them in with prospect of gain, take them by confusion. (When the states of Wu and Yue were at war with each other, Wu sent out three thousand criminals to give an appearance of disorder so as to lure Yue. Some of the criminals ran, some of them gave up; the Yue army fought with them, only to be defeated by the army of Wu.) [K: By drawing your Representatives in with the prospect of gain—bribes, payoffs, and kickbacks—your Congress was bought and paid for by the British, through Israel; the confusion will be through orchestrated riots and unrest; and when FEMA legally takes over—backed by a UN mercenary army—the faces of your true enemy will be unmasked.]

When they are fulfilled, be prepared against them; when they are strong, avoid them. (If the enemy's government is fulfilled—meaning that there is mutual love between the rulers and the ruled, there is clarity and trustworthiness in the system of rewards and punishments, and the soldiers are well trained—then you should be on guard against them. Do not wait for a clash to make your preparations.)

Use anger to throw them into disarray. (When their military leadership is obstreperous, you should irritate them to make them angry—then they will become impetuous and ignore their original strategy.)

Use humility to make them haughty. Tire them by flight. Cause division among them. Attack when they are unprepared; make your move when they do not expect it. (Strike at their gaps; attack when they are lax; don't let the enemy figure out how to prepare. This is why it is said that in military operations formlessness is the most effective. One of the great warrior-leaders said, "The most efficient of movements is the one that is unexpected; the best of plans is the one that is unknown.")

The formation and procedure by the military should not be divulged beforehand. (To divulge means to leak out. The military has no constant form, just as water has no constant shape—adapt as you face the enemy, without letting them know beforehand what you are going to do. Therefore, assessment of the enemy is in the mind; observation of the situation is in the eyes.)

The one who figures on victory at headquarters before even doing battle is the one who has the most strategic factors on his side. The one who figures on inability to prevail at headquarters before doing battle is the one who has the least strategic factors on his side. The one with many strategic factors in his favor wins; the one with few strategic factors in his favor loses—how much the more so for one with no strategic factors in his favor. Observing the matter in this way, I can see who will win and who will lose.

II: DOING BATTLE

When you do battle, even if you are winning, if you continue for a long time it will dull your forces and blunt your edge; if you besiege a citadel, your strength will be exhausted. If you keep your armies out in the field for a long time, your supplies will be insufficient. (Arms are tools of ill omen—to employ them for an extended period of time will bring about calamity. As it is said, "Those who like to fight and so exhaust their military inevitably perish.")

When your forces are dulled, your edge is blunted, your strength is exhausted, and your supplies are gone; then others will take advantage of your debility and rise up. Then even if you have wise advisors you cannot make things turn out well in the end.

Therefore I have heard of military operations that were clumsy but swift, but I have never seen one that was skillful and lasted a long time. It is never beneficial to a nation to have a military operation continue for a long time. (As it is said, be swift as the thunder that peals before you have a chance to cover your ears, fast as the lightning that flashes before you can blink your eyes.)

Therefore, those who are not thoroughly aware of the disadvantages in the use of arms cannot be thoroughly aware of the advantages in the use of arms.

Those who use the military skillfully do not raise troops twice and do not provide food three times. (This means you draft people into service once and then immediately seize victory—you do not go back to your country a second time to raise more troops. At first you provide food, after that you feed off the enemy.) [K: The Khazars have been feeding off your American life blood for so long that they have all but murdered your nation.]

By taking equipment from your own country, but feeding off the enemy, you can be sufficient in both arms and provisions.

When a country is impoverished by military operations, it is because of transporting supplies to a distant place. Transport supplies to a distant place, and the populace will be impoverished. [K: Impoverished hardly covers the incredible circumstances you are in financially under the British-Israel/Federal Reserve-IRS system and inflated costs tacked on by the munitions makers. Your deficit is so many times higher than your politicians publically announce that they fear you would riot and rebel if you knew the true numbers.]

Those who are near the army sell at high prices. Because of high prices, the wealth of the common people is exhausted. (When supplies are transported far away, the people are worn out by the expense. In the markets near the army, the prices of goods shoot up. Therefore long military campaigns are a plague to a nation.) [K: You've been at a constant state of war since 1934 with public AND SECRET campaigns, conflicts, and "advising"—substituted for the label "war". Your Constitution stipulates that only Congress can "declare war". The treasonists simply don't call it "war"; then Congress does not need to be told anything.]

When resources are exhausted, then levies are made under pressure. When power and resources are exhausted, then the homeland is drained. The common people are deprived of seventy percent of their budget, while the government's expenses for equipment amount to sixty percent of its budget. (The people are the basis of a country; food is the heaven of the people. Those who rule over others should respect this and be sparing.) [K: This is serious. The farmers are being driven off their land and their properties foreclosed because it is fully intended that during war your enemy will simply allow you to starve to death. You have no more than a week of reserves for emergencies and all your surplus is given away to China and Russia. The plight of the Black farmer is even worse as the Agriculture Department is regarded as the "last slave plantation" due to its blatant attempts to prevent the Black farmer from maintaining and acquiring the equipment and supplies necessary to grow crops and hold on to their land.]

Therefore a wise general strives to feed off the enemy. Each pound of food taken from the enemy is equivalent to twenty pounds you provide by yourself. (It takes twenty pounds of provisions to deliver one pound of provisions to a distant army.)

So what kills the enemy is anger; what gets the enemy's good is reward. (If you reward your men with spoils, that will make them fight on their own initiative, so the enemy's goods can be taken. That is why it is said that, where there are big rewards, there are valiant men.)

Therefore, in a chariot battle, reward the first to capture at least ten chariots. (If you reward everyone, there will not be enough to go around, so you offer a reward to one in order to encourage everyone.)

Change their colors, use them mixed in with your own. [K: This is being done to perfection as you will note Israel and UN blue is mixed with Air Force colors, and, on a larger scale, the European Union's Red, White and Blue is the flag colors for all the key nations important to the New World Order plan. This stems from the days when the Rockefeller family consolidated (for the Rothschilds) big business with government (Fascism—two giant fascis are mounted on either side of the House Speaker in Congress) and the likes of Standard Oil, Chevron, and Mobil would have the same colors in the makeup of their logo. Even such as the presumably Japanese company SONY (Standard Oil of New York) readily shows its Rockefeller roots in the cartel's monopoly.] Treat the soldiers well; take care of them. (Captured soldiers should be well treated, to get them to work for you.)

This is called overcoming the opponent and increasing your strength to boot. (If you use the enemy to defeat the enemy, you will be strong wherever you go.)

So the important thing in a military operation is victory, not persistence. (Persistence is not profitable. An army is like fire—if you don't put it out, it will burn itself out.)

Hence, we know that the leader of the army is in charge of the lives of the people and the safety of the nation.

III: PLANNING A SIEGE

The general rule for use of the military is that it is better to keep a nation intact than to destroy it. It is better to keep an army intact than to destroy it; better to keep a division intact than to destroy it; better to keep a battalion intact than to destroy it; better to keep a unit intact than to destroy it. (Wei Liaozi said, "Practicing martial arts, assess your opponents; cause them to lose spirit and direction so that even if the opposing army is intact, it is useless—this is winning by the Tao. If you destroy the opposing army and kill the generals, mount the ramparts shooting, gather a mob and usurp the land, this is winning by force.)

Therefore those who win every battle are not really skillful—those who render others' armies helpless without fighting are the best of all. [K: This is the state of your military, especially the Air Force, with its mass exodus of pilots and skilled computer personnel. You are flying outdated aircraft and employing technology that is bested by Russian, Cuban, and Communist South American fighters. You have maybe one type of aircraft that is somewhat comparable, but in a war an adversary will overwhelm you by sheer numbers alone.]

The superior militarist strikes while schemes are being laid. The next best is to attack alliances. [K: As you are well aware, the U.S. has no friends in the world, thanks to Israeli-directed aggression.] The next best is to attack the army. (To be good at successful attack, deploying your forces without a hitch is yet another notch down. Therefore a great warrior-emperor said, "One who fights for victory in front of bared blades is not a good general.")

The lowest is to attack a city. Siege of a city is only done as a last resort.

Take three months to prepare your machines and three months to complete your siege engineering. (Some say that Master Sun's point here is that you shouldn't get angry and rush to attack. This is why he says to take time.)

If the general cannot overcome his anger and has his army swarm over the citadel, killing a third of his soldiers, and yet the citadel is still not taken, this is a disastrous attack.

Therefore one who is good at martial arts overcomes others' forces without battle, conquers others' cities without siege, destroys others' nations without taking a long time. (A skillful martialist ruins plans, spoils relations, cuts off supplies, or blocks the way, and hence can overcome people without fighting.)

It is imperative to contest all factions for complete victory, so the army is not garrisoned and the profit can be total. This is the law of strategic siege. (Complete victory is when the army does not fight, the city is not besieged, the destruction does not go on long, but in each case the enemy is overcome by strategy.) [K: The suicidal plans of the Bolshevik-Khazarian Zionists are such that, if they cannot have the world, then no one will—and nuclear war is still part of the plan!]

So the rule for use of the military is that if you outnumber the opponent ten to one, then surround them; five to one, attack; two to one, divide. [K: You, the "opponent", outnumber the Khazarian parasite class of evil manipulators a billion to one.]

If you are equal, then fight if you are able. If you are fewer, then keep away if you are able. If you are not as good, then flee if you are able. (This advice applies to the case where all else is equal. If your forces are orderly while theirs are chaotic, if you are excited and they are sluggish, then even if they are more numerous you can do battle. [K: This is why you are constantly being bombarded with all types of distractions: drugs (prescription or otherwise), mind-numbing "music" and visual media with confusing subliminal programming, right down to fluoridation (rat poison) of water supplies, etc. All these things are to soften you up for the takeover. When the Khazar tribes of old would focus upon laying siege to a city, they would get the city, unknowingly, to open their doors to these nomadic conquerors that set up camp nearby. CIRCUMCISING was introduced to the city's men as a show of cultural exchange and sharing, but when the men were weak from the ritual cutting, the Khazar warriors would come back into the city at night and burn the city to the ground, taking whatever plunder they could carry off as they moved on to their next victim.] If your soldiers, strength, strategy, and courage are all less than that of the opponent, then you should retreat and watch for an opening.)

Therefore if the smaller side is stubborn, it becomes the captive of the larger side. (This means that if a small country does not assess its power and dares to become the enemy of a large country, no matter how firm its defenses be, it will inevitably become a captive nation. The Spring and Autumn Annals say, "If you cannot be strong, and yet cannot be weak, this will result in your defeat.") [K: The small nation of Israel is actually the third superpower; Russia and the U.S. are number one and two respectively. The secret stockpile of nuclear weapons and other ACTUAL weapons of mass destruction in new Khazaria (Israel) is enough in itself to blow away your planet. Meanwhile, China smartly waits like a sleeping giant, till the sands shift and the odds favor her striking for domination.]

Generals are assistants of the nation. When their assistance is complete, the country is strong. When their assistance is defective, the country is weak. (If the generals do not help the leadership, and harbor duplicity in their hearts, then the country will be weak. Therefore it is imperative to be careful in choosing people for positions of responsibility.) [K: This is why all positions of key importance are staffed with Bolshevik-Zionist or Israeli Mossad agents or members of the Jewish Mishpucka crime families.]

So there are three ways in which a civil leadership causes the military trouble. When a civil leadership, unaware of the facts, tells its armies to advance when it should not, or tells its armies to retreat when it should not, this is called tying up the armies. When the civil leadership is ignorant of military affairs but shares equally in the government of the armies, the soldiers get confused. When the civil leadership is ignorant of military maneuvers but shares equally in the command of the armies, the soldiers hesitate. Once the armies are confused and hesitant, trouble comes from competitors. This is called taking away victory by deranging the military. (If you try to use the methods of civilian government to govern a military operation, the operation will become confused.)

So there are five ways of knowing who will win. Those who know when to fight and when not to fight are victorious. Those who discern when to use many or few troops are victorious. Those whose upper and lower ranks have the same desire are victorious. Those whose generals are able and are not constrained by their governments are victorious. These five are the ways to know who will win. (To talk about government orders for all this is like going to announce to your superiors that you want to put out a fire—by the time you get back with an order, there is nothing left but ashes.)

IV: FORMATION

In ancient times, skillful warriors first made themselves invincible, and then watched for vulnerability in their opponents. (Making yourself invincible means knowing yourself; waiting for vulnerability in opponents means knowing others.) [K: Your Khazar enemies certainly know you and your vulnerabilities—after all, they helped to create them. Your education system is under complete manipulation and guidance by Zionist-Jewish “psychologists” while their banksters (banking gangsters) control the companies (by being the majority stockholders) that supply your textbooks. Remember: “...shape the brains of the goy (non-Jew) children to suit ourselves...” is the directive from The Protocols Of The Learned Elders Of Zion.]

Invincibility is in oneself; vulnerability is in the opponent.

Therefore, skillful warriors are able to be invincible, but they cannot cause opponents to be vulnerable. (If opponents have no formation to find out, no gap or slack to take advantage of, how can you overcome them, even if you are well equipped?)

That is why it is said that victory can be discerned but not manufactured.

Invincibility is a matter of defense; vulnerability is a matter of attack. (As long as you have not seen vulnerable formations in opponents, you hide your own form, preparing yourself in such a way as to be invincible, in order to preserve yourself. When opponents have vulnerable formations, then it is time to go out to attack them.)

Defense is for times of insufficiency; attack is for times of surplus.

Those skilled in defense hide in the deepest depths of the Earth [K: Underground will always be the best defense—for man or animal—against enemies or a hostile environment. However, you do not have to live your lives totally underground; there is nothing wrong with having a little “root cellar” for storing or growing a few vegetables, and if you have a war, no one is going to object to you and your family jumping in there until the shooting stops.], those skilled in attack maneuver in the highest heights of the sky. [K: The Bolshevik-Zionist warlords regard your Air Force and NASA as queen and bishop to use against you and their Kremlin and Arab enemies in their games of New World Order strategy.] Therefore they can preserve themselves and achieve complete victory. (In defense, you hush your voices and obliterate your tracks, hidden as ghosts and spirits beneath the Earth, invisible to anyone. On the attack, your movement is swift and your cry shattering, fast as thunder and lightning, as though coming from the sky, impossible to prepare for.) [K: Unfortunately, lightning “coming from the sky” is no longer an appropriate metaphor. These days, charged-particle-beam weapons, scaler-prana waves, invisible neutron rays, and sonic howitzers (capable of piercing the armor plating on tanks with focused or pulsed sound energy) are all now part of an army’s armament stores.]

To perceive victory when it is known to all is not really skillful. Everyone calls victory in battle good, but it is not really good. (Everyone says victory in battle is good, but if you see the subtle and notice the hidden so as to seize victory where there is no form, this is really good.)

It does not take much strength to lift a hair; it does not take sharp eyes to see the Sun and Moon; it does not take sharp ears to hear a thunderclap. (What everyone knows is not called wisdom; victory over others by forced battle is not considered good.)

In ancient times those known as good warriors prevailed when it was easy to prevail. (If you are only able to ensure victory after engaging an opponent in armed conflict, that victory is a hard one. If you see the subtle and notice the hidden, breaking through before formation, that victory is an easy one.)

Therefore the victories of good warriors are not noted for cleverness or bravery. Therefore their victories in battle are not flukes. Their victories are not flukes because they position themselves where they will surely win, prevailing over those who have already lost. (Great wisdom is not obvious; great merit is not advertised. [K: This is why there is such an obvious hiding of Jewish influence in a media that is nearly 100 percent Jewish. Aside from an occasional reference to “...a nice Jewish boy...”, the Khazar Jew gives away nothing that could reveal his hidden matoid (a diagnosed disorder that affects such as barons, lords, noblemen and other “royals” which manifests itself as the individual developing a lack of compassion for humankind while pretending to be society’s most ardent philanthropist) tendencies.] When you see the subtle, it is easy to win—what has it to do with bravery or cleverness? When trouble is solved before it forms, who calls that clever? When there is victory without battle, who talks about bravery?)

So it is good warriors who take their stand on ground where they cannot lose, and do not overlook conditions that make an opponent prone to defeat.

Therefore a victorious army first wins and then seeks battle; a defeated army first battles and then seeks victory. (This is the difference between those with strategy and those without forethought.)

Those who use arms will cultivate the way and keep the rules. Thus they can govern in such a way as to prevail over the corrupt. (Using harmony to hunt down opposition, not attacking a blameless country, not taking captives or booty wherever the army goes, not razing the trees or polluting the wells, washing off and purifying the shrines of the towns and hills in the countryside you pass through, not repeating the mistakes of a moribund nation—all this is called the way and its rules. When the army is strictly disciplined, to the point where soldiers would die rather than disobey, rewards and punishments that are trustworthy and just are established. When the military leadership is such that it can achieve this, it can prevail over an opponent’s corrupt civil government.) [K: This is why MILITARY coups are used by such as Mossad-CIA operations to overthrow “uncooperative” so-called Third-World countries.]

The rules of the military are five: measurement, assessment, calculation, comparison, and victory. The ground gives rise to measurements, measurements give rise to assessments, assessments give rise to calculations, calculations give rise to comparisons, comparisons give rise to victories. (By the comparisons of measurements you know where victory and defeat lie.)

Therefore a victorious army is like a pound compared to a gram; a defeated army is like a gram compared to a pound.

When the victorious get their people to go to battle as if they were directing a massive flood of water into a deep canyon, this is a matter of formation. (When water accumulates in a deep canyon, no one can measure its amount, just as our defense shows no form. When the water is released, it rushes down in a torrent, just as our attack is irresistible.)

V: FORCE

Force means shifts in accumulated energy or momentum. Skillful warriors are able to allow the force of momentum to seize victory for them without exerting their strength. [K: This is the same as your built-up momentum to have a holy war (secretly and subtly planned by Israel) against your Arab brothers—who by the way, ARE SEMITES JUST LIKE MOST OF YOU. KHAZAR “JEWS” HAVE NO ACTUAL RELATION TO SHEM-SEM; this makes the much touted or whined accusation by these fakers “antisemitism” a misnomer from the mouths of the accusers. The sleight-of-hand magic trick here is Israel’s USE OF AMERICA to achieve victory by USING AND DEPLETING U.S. RESOURCES while Israeli stockpiles are saved for the hoped-for day when all their enemies are decimated by atomic war. Then they plan to be the ONLY superpower in the world. Heinous plans indeed, but they are not fool-proof.]

Governing a large number as though governing a small number is a matter of division into groups. Battling a large number as though battling a small number is a matter of forms and calls. (Forms and calls refer to the formations and signals used to dispose troops and coordinate movements.)

Making the armies able to [defeat] opponents without being defeated is a matter of unorthodox and orthodox methods. (Orthodoxy and unorthodoxy are not fixed, but are like a cycle. Emperor Taizong of the Tang dynasty, a famous warrior and administrator, spoke of manipulating opponents' perceptions of what is orthodox and what is unorthodox, then attacking unexpectedly, combining both into one, becoming inscrutable to opponents.) [K: This is also called changing the rules of the game in mid game. As you watch your sexual, religious, political, and military "rituals" lose all sense of what is orthodox and unorthodox (right and wrong), your enemy, with the polished British-Israel facade, masking a Satanic and decadent government, will come at you adhering to a policy whereby the complete lack of moral behavior and ethics is the order of the day. You, being goodly Christian people looking to "do the right thing"—even if it means sacrificing your own freedoms in the process, are totally defenseless against the evil ones whom you blindly trust for leadership. This is not to suggest that you also cheat, lie, steal, and break laws; just know your adversary has another set of rules he follows that excludes consideration or participation of the masses.]

For the impact of armed forces to be like stones thrown on eggs is a matter of emptiness and fullness. (When you induce opponents to come to you, then their force is always empty; as long as you do not go to them, your force is always full. Attacking emptiness with fullness is like throwing stones on eggs—the eggs are sure to break.) [K: All your military strategists of any substance will tell you it is a big mistake for the U.S. to involve itself in any wars outside its borders. They are well aware of the true goals of the Bolshevik-Zionist planners, and if courageous ones try to bring these suicidal plans to your attention, they are either not given a public forum to speak or suddenly find themselves discredited amidst scandals. If they get too persistent, sometimes their aircraft are simply made to fall out of the sky. Otherwise there are medical traumas. Within the past few years this has happened to a number of officers who were in a position to expose the truth.]

In battle, confrontation is done directly, victory is gained by surprise.

Therefore those skilled at the unorthodox are infinite as Heaven and Earth, inexhaustible as the great rivers. When they come to an end, they begin again, like the days and months; they die and are reborn, like the four seasons. (Sun and Moon travel through the sky, they set and rise again. The four seasons succeed one another, flourishing and then fading again. This is a metaphor for the interchange of surprise unorthodox movements and orthodox direct confrontation, mixing together into a whole, ending and beginning infinitely.)

There are only five notes in the musical scale, but their variations are so many that they cannot all be heard. There are only five basic colors, but their variations are so many that they cannot all be seen. There are only five basic flavors, but their variations are so many that they cannot all be tasted. There are only two kinds of charge in battle, the unorthodox surprise attack and the orthodox direct attack, but variations of the unorthodox and the orthodox are endless. The unorthodox and the orthodox give rise to each other, like a beginningless circle—who could exhaust them?

When the speed of rushing water reached the point where it can move boulders, this is the force of momentum. When the speed of a hawk is such that it can strike and kill, this is precision. So it is with skillful warriors—their force is swift, their precision is close. Their force is like drawing a catapult, their precision is like releasing the trigger. (Their force is swift in the sense that the force of the momentum of battle kills when it is released—that is why it is likened to a drawn catapult.)

Disorder arises from order, cowardice arises from courage, weakness arises from strength. (What this means is that if you want to feign disorder so as to lead opponents on, first you must have complete order, for only then can you create artificial disorder. If you want to feign cowardice to spy on opponents, first you must be extremely brave, for only then can you act artificially timid. If you want to feign weakness to induce haughtiness in opponents, first you must be extremely strong, for only then can you pretend to be weak.)

Order and disorder are a matter of organization, courage and cowardice are a matter of momentum, strength and weakness are a matter of formation. (When an army has the force of momentum, even the timid become brave; when it loses the force of momentum, even the brave become timid. Nothing is fixed in the laws of warfare—they develop based on momenta.)

Therefore those who skillfully move opponents, make formations that opponents are sure to follow, give what opponents are sure to take. They move opponents with the prospect of gain, waiting for them in ambush. (Formations that opponents are sure to follow are formations that give the impression of exhaustion. Opponents are moved by the prospect of an advantage.)

Therefore good warriors seek effectiveness in battle from the force of momentum, not from individual people. Therefore they are able to choose people and let the force of momentum do its work. (When you have the force of momentum in war, even the timid can be courageous. So it is possible to choose them for their capabilities and give them the appropriate responsibilities. The brave can fight; the careful can guard; the intelligent can communicate. No one is useless.)

VI: EMPTINESS AND FULLNESS

Those who are first on the battlefield and await the opponents are at ease; those who are last on the battlefield and head into battle get worn out. [K: The U.S. military is about as worn out and thinly spread as it can be. Your enemies know this—you do not. They are just waiting for orders (or the correct sequence of events) to strike when you are most vulnerable, WHICH IS NOW. Your troops have zero protection against conventional attacks, much less chemical, biological or nuclear strikes for which a shelter system can quickly and easily be provided. After all, if you have no soldiers to protect your borders after the shooting stops and the (radioactive) dust settles, what is the point in having an army or militia in the first place? This is not an advocacy to encourage your warring tendencies, but an attempt to prevent the slaughter of millions of God's people—on both sides of the battle line.]

Therefore good warriors cause others to come to them, and do not go to others. (If you make opponents come to fight, then their force will always be empty. If you do not go to fight, then your force will always be full. This is the art of emptying others and filling yourself.)

What causes opponents to come to their own accord is the prospect of gain. What discourages opponents from coming is the prospect of harm.

So when opponents are at ease, it is possible to tire them. When they are well fed, it is possible to starve them. When they are at rest, it is possible to move them. (You attack unexpectedly, causing opponents to become exhausted just running for their lives. You burn their supplies and raze their fields, cutting off their supply routes. You appear at critical places and strike when they least expect it, making them have to go to the rescue.)

Appear where they cannot go, head for where they least expect you. To travel hundreds of miles without fatigue, go over land where there are no people. (Striking at an open gap does not only mean where the opponent has no defense. As long as the defense is not strict, the place is not tightly guarded, they will fall apart in front of you, as if you were traveling over unpopulated territory.)

So in the case of those who are skilled in attack, their opponents do not know where to defend. In the case of those skilled in defense, their opponents do not know where to attack. (When directives are carried out, people are sincerely loyal, preparations for defense are firmly secured, and yet you are so subtle and secretive that you reveal no form, opponents are unsure—their intelligence is of no avail.)

Be extremely subtle, even to the point of formlessness. Be extremely mysterious, even to the point of soundlessness. Thereby you can be the director of the opponent's fate. [K: This is another area that has been taken to the nth degree. You have aircraft of the stealth variety that have the capability of hovering high in the air over a country or near its border, whereby conventional or beam weapons bombard a target without any warning or detection of point of origin. Cruise missiles are usually the cover for such operations.]

To advance irresistibly, push through their gaps. To retreat elusively, outspeed them. (Military conditions are based on speed—come like the wind, go like lightning, and opponents will be unable to overcome you.)

Therefore when you want to do battle, even if the opponent is deeply entrenched in a defensive position, he will be unable to avoid fighting if you attack where he will surely go to the rescue.

When you do not want to do battle, even if you draw a line on the ground to hold, the opponent cannot fight with you because you set him off on the wrong track. (This means that when opponents come to attack you, you do not fight with them, but rather, set up a strategic change to confuse them and make them uncertain.)

Therefore, when you induce others to construct a formation while you yourself are formless, then you are concentrated while the opponent is divided. (What is orthodox to you, make opponents see as unorthodox; what is unorthodox to you, make them see as orthodox. This is inducing others to construct a formation. Once the opponent's formation is seen, you then mass your troops against it. Since your form is not revealed, the opponent will surely divide up his forces for security.)

When you are concentrated into one while the opponent is divided into ten, you attack at a concentration of ten-to-one, so you outnumber the opponent.

If you can strike few with many, you will thus minimize the number of those with whom you do battle. (While being deeply entrenched and highly barricaded, not allowing any information about yourself to become known, go out-and-in formlessly, attacking and taking unfathomably.)

Your battleground is not to be known, for when it cannot be known, the enemy makes many guard outposts, and since multiple outposts are established, you only have to do battle with small squads.

So when the front is prepared, the rear is lacking, and when the rear is prepared the front is lacking. Preparedness on the left means lack on the right, preparedness on the right means lack on the left. Preparedness everywhere means lack everywhere. (This means that when troops are on guard in many places, they are therefore scattered into small bands.)

The few are those on the defensive against others, the many are those who cause others to be on the defensive against themselves. (The more defenses you induce your enemy to adopt, the more impoverished your enemy will be.)

So if you know the place and time of battle, you can join the fight from a thousand miles away. If you do not know the place and time of battle, then your left flank cannot save your right, your right cannot save your left, your vanguard cannot save your rearguard, and your rearguard cannot save your vanguard, even in the short range of a few to a few dozen miles.

According to my assessment, even if you have many more troops than others, how can that help you to victory? (If you do not know the place and time of battle, even though your troops outnumber others, how can you know whether you will win or lose?)

So it is said that victory can be made. (If you cause opponents to be unaware of the place and time of battle, you can always win.)

Even if opponents are numerous, they can be made not to fight.

So assess them to find out their plans, both the successful ones and the failures. Incite them to action in order to find out the patterns of movement and rest. (Do something for or against them, making opponents turn their attention to it, so that you can find out their patterns of aggressive and defensive behavior.)

Induce them to adopt specific formations, in order to know the ground of death and life. (This means that you use many methods to confuse and disturb enemies to observe the forms of the response to you; after that you deal with them accordingly, so you can know what sort of situations mean life and what sort of situations mean death.)

Test them to find out where they are sufficient and where they are lacking.

Therefore the consummation of forming an army is to arrive at formlessness. When you have no form, undercover espionage cannot find out anything, intelligence cannot form a strategy. (Once you have no perceptible form, you leave no traces to follow, so spies cannot find any chinks to see through and those in charge of intelligence cannot put any plans into operation.)

Victory over multitudes by means of formation is unknowable to the multitudes. Everyone knows the form by which I am victorious, but no one knows the form by which I ensure victory.

Therefore victory in war is not repetitious, but adapts its form endlessly. (Determining changes as appropriate, do not repeat former strategies to gain victory. [K: In the case of your adversary, they never change their methods of taking over nations and peoples. They don't need to—the masses fall for their lies every time.] Whatever formations opponents may adopt, from the beginning I can adapt to them to attain victory.)

Military formation is like water—the form of water is to avoid the high and go to the low; the form of a military force is to avoid the full and attack the empty; the flow of water is determined by the Earth, the victory of a military force is determined by the opponent.

So a military force has no constant formation, water has no constant shape: the ability to gain victory by changing and adapting according to the opponent is called genius. [K: Even though the Israelis fight tooth-and-nail to keep stolen land (Palestine) to call their own, the Jewish-Khazarian practice is to spread themselves over the entire globe, for in their "religious" work, the Talmud (written to sidestep spiritual truths contained in the Judean Torah), it suggests that Jews should be dispersed "...because the world ought to belong to us."]

VII: ARMED STRUGGLE

The ordinary rule for use of military force is for the military command to receive the orders from the civilian authorities, then to gather and mass the troops, quartering them together. Nothing is harder than armed struggle. (The fight with people face-to-face over advantages is the hardest thing in the world.)

The difficulty of armed struggle is to make long distances near and make problems into advantages. (While giving the appearance of being far away, you step up your pace and get there before the opponent.)

Therefore you make their route a long one, luring them on in hopes of gain. When you set out after others and arrive before them, you know the strategy of making the distant near. (You use a special squad to lure the opponent on a wild goose chase, making it seem as though your main force is far away; then you send out a surprise attack force that gets there first, even though it sets out last.)

Therefore armed struggle is considered profitable, and armed struggle is considered dangerous. (For the skilled it is profitable, for the unskilled it is dangerous.)

To mobilize the whole army to struggle for advantage would take too long, yet to struggle for advantage with a stripped-down army results in a lack of equipment.

So if you travel light, not stopping day or night, doubling your usual pace, struggling for an advantage a hundred miles away, your military leaders will be captured. Strong soldiers will get there first, the weary later on—as a rule, one in ten make it. (When the road is long, the people are weary; if their strength has been used up in travel, then they are worn out while their opponents are fresh, so they are sure to be attacked.)

Struggling for an advantage fifty miles away will thwart the forward leadership, and as a rule only fifty percent of the soldiers make it.

Struggle for an advantage thirty miles away, and two-out-of-three get there.

So an army perishes if it has no equipment, it perishes if it has no food, and it perishes if it has no money. (These three things are necessary—you cannot fight to win with an unequipped army.)

So if you do not know the plans of your competitors, you cannot make informed alliances.

Unless you know the mountains and forests, the defiles and impasses, and the lay of the marshes and swamps, you cannot maneuver with an armed force. Unless you use local guides, you cannot get the advantage of the land. (Only when you know every detail of the lay of the land can you maneuver and contend.)

So a military force is established by deception, mobilized by gain, and adapted by division and combination. (A military force is established by deception in the sense that you deceive enemies so that they do not know your real condition, and then can establish supremacy. It is mobilized by gain in the sense that it goes into action when it sees an advantage. Dividing and recombining is done to confuse opponents and observe how they react to you, so that then you can adapt in such a way as to seize victory.)

Therefore, when it moves swiftly it is like the wind; when it goes slowly it is like a forest. It is rapacious as fire, immovable as mountains. (It is swift as the wind in that it comes without a trace and withdraws like lightning. It is like a forest in that it is orderly. It is rapacious as fire across a plain, not leaving a single blade of grass. It is immovable as a mountain when it garrisons.)

It is as hard to know as the dark; its movement is like pealing thunder.

To plunder a locality, divide up your troops. To expand your territory, divide the spoils. (The rule for military operations is to feed off the enemy as much as possible. However, in localities where people do not have very much, it is necessary to divide up the troops into smaller groups to take what they need, here and there, for only then will there be enough. As for dividing the spoils, this means it is necessary to divide up the troops to guard what has been gained, not letting enemies get it.)

Act after having made assessments. The one who first knows the measures of far and near wins—this is the rule of armed struggle. (The first to move is the guest; the last to move is the host. The guest has it hard; the host has it easy. Far and near means travel—fatigue, hunger, and cold arise from travel.)

An ancient book of military order says, "Words are not heard, so cymbals and drums are made. Owing to lack of visibility, banners and flags are made." Cymbals, drums, banners, and flags are used to focus and unify people's ears and eyes. Once people are unified, the brave cannot proceed alone, the timid cannot retreat alone—this is the rule for employing a group. (To unify a people's ears and eyes means to make people look and listen in concert so that they do not become confused and disorderly. Signals are used to indicate directions and prevent individuals from going off by themselves.)

So, in night battles, you use many fires and drums; in daytime battles, you use many banners and flags, so as to manipulate people's ears and eyes. (You use many signals to startle their perceptions and make them fear your awesome martial power.) [K: In space battles, your enemy will use many "stars" to convince the Earth-bound masses that an extraterrestrial threat exists, so you will unify under the One World Government banner.]

So you should take away the energy of their armies, and take away the heart of their generals. (First you must be capable of firmness in your own heart—only then can you take away the heart of opposing generals. This is why tradition says that people of former times had the heart to take away hearts, and the ancient law of charioteers says that when the basic mind is firm, fresh energy is victorious.)

So, morning energy is keen, midday energy slumps, evening energy recedes—therefore those skilled in use of arms avoid the keen energy and strike the slumping and receding. These are those who master energy. (Any weakling in the world will fight in a minute if he gets excited, but when it comes to actually taking up arms and seeking to do battle, this is being possessed by energy—when this energy wanes, they will stop, get frightened, and feel regret. The reason that armies look upon strong enemies the way they look at virgin girls is that their aggressiveness is being taken advantage of, as they are stirred up over something.)

Using order to deal with the disorderly, using calm to deal with the clamorous, is mastering the heart. (Unless your heart is wide open and your mind is orderly, you cannot be expected to be able to adapt responsively without limit, dealing with events unerringly, facing great and unexpected difficulties without upset, calmly handling everything without confusion.)

Standing your ground awaiting those far away, awaiting the weary in comfort, awaiting the hungry with full stomachs, is mastering strength. (This is what is meant by getting others to come to you while avoiding being induced to go to others.)

Avoiding confrontation with orderly ranks and not attacking great formations is mastering adaptation.

So, the rule for military operations is not to face a high hill and not to oppose those with their backs to a hill. (This means that when opponents are on high ground you shouldn't attack upward, and when they are charging downward, you shouldn't oppose them.)

Do not follow a feigned retreat. Do not attack crack troops. (If opponents suddenly run away before their energy has faded, there are surely ambushes lying in wait to attack your forces, so you should carefully restrain your officers from pursuit.)

Do not eat food for their soldiers. (If the enemy suddenly abandons their food supplies, they should be tested first before eating, lest they be poisoned.)

Do not stop an army on its way home. (Under these circumstances, an opponent will fight to the death.)

A surrounded army must be given a way out. (Show them a way to life so that they will not be in the mood to fight to the death, and then you can take advantage of this to strike them.)

Do not press a desperate enemy. (An exhausted animal will still fight, as a matter of Natural Law.) [K: Those of you programed into thinking Muslims are your enemies should know so-called "fanatical zealots" (or other terms maliciously applied to the Arab world) fight with much more passion and commitment than do armies raised on "Rambo" movies. However, the animalistic ferocity of an army of PROGRAMED synthetic replicas surpasses both in terms of "efficient" killing.]

These are rules of military operations.

VIII: ADAPTATIONS

The general rule for military operations is that the military leadership receives the order from the civilian leadership to gather armies.

Let there be no encampment on difficult terrain. Let diplomatic relations be established at borders. Do not stay in barren or isolated territory.

When on surrounded ground, plot. When on deadly ground, fight. (Being on surrounded ground means there is steep terrain on all sides, with you in the middle, so that the enemy can come and go freely, but you have a hard time getting out and back.)

There are routes not to be followed, armies not to be attacked, citadels not to be besieged, territory not to be fought over, orders of civilian governments not to be obeyed.

Therefore, generals who know all possible adaptations to take advantage of the ground know how to use military forces. If generals do not know how to adapt advantageously, even if they know the lay of the land, they cannot take advantage of it.

If they rule armies without knowing the arts of complete adaptivity, even if they know what there is to gain, they cannot get people to work for them. (If you can change with the momentum of forces, then the advantage does not change, so the only ones who get hurt are others. Therefore there is no constant structure. If you can fully comprehend this principle, you can get people to work.)

Therefore the considerations of the intelligent always include both benefit and harm. As they consider benefit, their work can expand; as they consider harm, their troubles can be resolved. (Benefit and harm are interdependent, so the enlightened always consider them.)

Therefore what restrains competitors is harm, what keeps competitors busy is work, what motivates competitors is profit. (Wear enemies out by keeping them busy and not letting them rest. But you have to have done your own work before you can do this. This work means developing a strong militia, a rich nation, a harmonious society, and an orderly way of life.)

So the rule of military operations is not to count on opponents not coming, but to rely on having ways of dealing with them; not to count on opponents not attacking, but to rely on having what cannot be attacked. (If you can always remember danger when you are secure, and remember chaos in times of order, watch out for danger and chaos while they are still formless, and prevent them before they happen; this is best of all.) [K: This is good advice for the goodly.]

Therefore, there are five traits that are dangerous in generals. Those who are ready to die can be killed; those who are intent on living can be captured; those who are quick to anger can be shamed; those who are puritanical can be disgraced; those who love people can be troubled. (If you appear in a place they are sure to rush to defend, those who love the people there will invariably hasten there to rescue them, troubling and wearying themselves in the process.)

These five things are faults in generals, disasters for military operations. (Good generals are otherwise: they are not committed to death, yet do not expect to live; they act in accord with events, not quick to anger, not subject to embarrassment. When they see possibility, they are like tigers, otherwise they shut their doors. Their action and inaction are matters of strategy, and they cannot be pleased or angered.)

IX: MANEUVERING ARMIES

(This means choosing the most advantageous ways to go.)

Whenever you station an army to observe an opponent, cut off the mountains and stay by the valleys.

Watch the light, stay on the heights. When fighting on a hill, do not climb. This applies to an army in the mountains. (One version says, "Fight going down, not climbing up.")

When cut off by water, always stay away from the water. Do not meet them in the water; it is advantageous to let half of them cross and then attack them.

When you want to fight, do not face an enemy near water. Watch the light, stay in high places, do not face the current of the water. This applies to an army on water. (In a river basin your armies can be flooded out, and poison can be put in the streams. Facing the current means heading against the flow. It also means your boats should not be moored downstream, lest the enemy ride the current right over you.)

Go right through salt marshes, just go quickly and do not tarry. If you run into an army in the middle of a salt marsh, stay by the waterplants, with your back to the trees. This applies to an army in a salt marsh.

On a level plateau, take up positions where it is easy to maneuver, keeping higher land to your right rear, with low ground in front and high ground behind. This applies to an army on a plateau.

It was by taking advantage of the situation in these four basic ways that the Yellow Emperor overcame four lords. (All martial arts began with the Yellow Emperor [a Taoist ruler of late prehistoric times, ca. 2400 B.C.], so he is mentioned here.)

Ordinarily, an army likes high places and dislikes low ground, values light and despises darkness. (High places are exhilarating, so people are comfortable, and they are also convenient for the force of momentum. Low ground is damp, which promotes illnesses, and makes it hard to fight.)

Take care of physical health and stay where there are plenty of resources. When there is no sickness in the army, it is said to be invincible.

Where there are hills or embankments, keep on their sunny side, with them to your right rear. This is an advantage to a military force, the help of the land. (Advantage in a military operation is getting help from the land.)

When it rains upstream and froth is coming down on the current, if you want to cross, wait until it settles.

Whenever the terrain has impassable ravines, natural enclosures, natural prisons, natural traps, natural pitfalls, and natural clefts, you should leave quickly and not get near them. For myself, I keep away from these, so that opponents are nearer to them; I keep my face to these so that opponents have their backs to them. (Then you have the advantage, and he is out of luck.)

When an army is traveling, if there is hilly territory with many steams and ponds or depressions overgrown with reeds, or wild forests with a luxuriant growth of plants and trees, it is imperative to search them carefully and thoroughly. For these afford stations for bushwhackers and spoilers. (It is imperative to dismount and search, lest there be ambush troops hiding in such places. Also, there is concern that spies might be lurking there, watching you and listening to your directives.)

When the enemy is near but still, he is resting on a natural stronghold. When he is far away but tries to provoke hostilities, he wants you to move forward. If his position is accessible, it is because that is advantageous to him. (What this means is that if an opponent does not keep a position on a natural stronghold but stations himself in a convenient place, it must be because there is some practical advantage in doing so.)

When the trees move, the enemy is coming; when there are many blinds in the undergrowth, it is misdirection. (The idea of making many blinds in the underbrush is to make you think there might be bushwhackers hidden behind them.)

If birds start up, there are ambushers there. If the animals are frightened, there are attackers there. If dust rises high and sharp, vehicles are coming; if it is low and wide, footsoldiers are coming. Scattered wisps of smoke indicate woodcutters. Relatively small amounts of dust coming and going indicate setting up camp.

Those whose words are humble while they increase war preparations are going to advance. [K: This is what the Khazar tribes excel at! Israel's neighbors are not fooled by the false promises and sweet talk of peace agreements. Ariel "the Butcher" Sharon is one of the masterminds behind any proposed "peace" talks; can you trust a man PERSONALLY guilty of great bloodshed and who was also a member of the ruthless Zionist Stern Gang? (Remember that Heinz Stern is Mr. Kissinger's true birth name.)] Those whose words are strong and who advance aggressively are going to retreat. (If his emissaries come with humble words, send spies to observe him, and you will find that the enemy is increasing his preparations.)

When light vehicles come out first and stay to the sides, they are going to set up a battle line.

Those who come seeking peace without a treaty are plotting.

Those who busily set out arrays of armed vehicles are expecting reinforcements. (They wouldn't rush around for an ordinary rendezvous—there must be a distant force expected at a certain time, when they will join forces to come and attack you. It is best to

If half their force advances and half retreats, they are trying to lure you. (They feign confusion and disorder to lure you into moving forward.)

If they brace themselves as they stand, they are starving. When those sent to draw water first drink themselves, they are thirsty.

When they see an advantage but do not advance on it, they are weary.

If birds are gathered there, the place has been vacated. (If there are birds on a citadel, the army has fled.)

If there are calls in the night, they are afraid. (They are fearful and uneasy, so they call to each other to strengthen themselves.)

If the army is unsettled, it means the general is not taken seriously.

If signals move, that means they are in confusion. (Signals are used to unify the groups, so if they move about unsteadily, it means the ranks are in disarray.)

If their emissaries are irritable, it means they are tired.

When they kill their horses for meat, it means that the soldiers have no food; when they have no pots and do not go back to their quarters, they are desperate adversaries.

When there are murmurings, lapses in duties, and extended conversations, the loyalty of the group has been lost. (Murmurings describe talk of true feelings, lapses in duties indicate trouble with superiors. When the military leadership has lost the people's loyalty, they talk to each other frankly about the trouble with their superiors.)

When they give out numerous rewards, it means they are at an impasse; when they give out numerous punishments, it means they are worn out. (When the force of their momentum is exhausted, they give repeated rewards to please their soldiers, lest they rebel en masse. When people are so worn out that they cannot carry out orders, they are punished again and again to establish authority.)

To be violent at first and wind up fearing one's people is the epitome of ineptitude.

Those who come in a conciliatory manner want to rest.

When forces angrily confront you but delay engagement, yet do not leave, it is imperative to watch them carefully. (They are preparing a surprise attack.)

In military matters, it is not necessarily beneficial to have more strength, only to avoid acting aggressively; it is enough to consolidate your power, assess opponents, and get people; that is all.

The individualist without strategy who takes opponents lightly will inevitably become the captive of others. (If you have no ulterior scheme and no forethought, but just rely on your individual bravery, flippantly taking opponents lightly and giving no consideration to the situation, you will surely be taken prisoner.)

If soldiers are punished before a personal attachment to the leadership is formed, they will not submit, and if they do not submit they are hard to employ. [K: The modern "American" Zionist Occupational Government (ZOG) does not sit on your throne wearing the mask of the beast; always they start off touting "civil liberties for all" and "champion of the people". After your admiration is undying (and unquestioning), then you-the-people become expendable human resources for their schemes.]

If punishments are not executed after personal attachment has been established with the soldiers, then they cannot be employed. (When there are underlying feelings of appreciation and trust, and the hearts of the soldiers are already bonded to the leadership, if punishments are relaxed, the soldiers will become haughty and impossible to employ.)

Therefore, direct them through cultural arts, unify them through martial arts; this means certain victory. (Cultural art means humaneness [K: The Humanist Manifesto fits right in here along with this and all the other orchestrated manifestos, protocols, charters and New Age isms conceived to enslave you ones.], martial art means law. Command them humanely and benevolently, unify them strictly and sternly. When benevolence and sternness are both evident, it is possible to be sure of victory.)

When directives are consistently carried out to edify the populace, the populace accepts. When directives are not consistently carried out to edify the populace, the populace does not accept. When directives are consistently carried out, there is mutual satisfaction between the leadership and the group.

X: TERRAIN

Some terrain is easily passable, in some you get hung up, some makes for a standoff, some is narrow, some is steep, some is wide open.

When both sides can come and go, the terrain is said to be easily passable. When the terrain is easily passable, take up your position first, choosing the high and sunny side, convenient to supply routes, for advantage in battle.

When you can go but have a hard time getting back, you are said to be hung-up. On this type of terrain, if the opponent is unprepared, you will prevail if you go forth, but if the enemy is prepared, if you go forth and do not prevail, you will have a hard time getting back, to your disadvantage.

When it is disadvantageous for either side to go forth, it is called standoff terrain. On standoff terrain, even though the opponent offers you an advantage, you do not go for it—you withdraw, inducing the enemy half out, and then you attack, to your advantage.

On narrow terrain, if you are there first, you should fill it up to await the opponent. If the opponent is there first, do not pursue if the opponent fills the narrows. Pursue if the opponent does not fill the narrows.

On steep terrain, if you are there first, you should occupy the high and sunny side to await the opponent. If the opponent is there first, withdraw from there and do not pursue.

On wide-open terrain, the force of momentum is equalized, and it is hard to make a challenge disadvantageous to fight.

Understanding these six kinds of terrain is the highest responsibility of the general, and it is imperative to examine them. (These are the configurations of terrain; generals who do not know them lose.)

So among military forces there are those who rush, those who tarry, those who fall, those who crumble, those who riot, and those who get beaten. These are not natural disasters, but faults of the generals.

Those who have equal momentum, but strike ten with one, are in a rush. Those whose soldiers are strong, but whose officers are weak, tarry. Those whose officers are strong, but whose soldiers are weak, fall. When colonels are angry and obstreperous, and fight on their own out of spite when they meet opponents, and the generals do not know their abilities, they crumble. (Generally speaking, the entire military leadership has to be of one mind; all of the military forces have to cooperate in order to be able to defeat opponents.) [K: In the case of God's Lighted "troops" all must have the same goal in their hearts and spirit, which is to follow the Laws of God and The Creation to the best of your ability, for only then are all other problems and obstacles overcome.]

When the generals are weak and lack authority, instructions are not clear, officers and soldiers lack consistency, and they form battle lines every which way; this is riot. When the generals cannot assess opponents, clash with much greater numbers or more powerful forces, and do not sort out the levels of skill among their own troops, these are the ones who get beaten. (If you employ soldiers without sorting out the skilled and unskilled, the brave and the timid, you are bringing defeat on yourself.)

These six are ways to defeat. Understanding this is the ultimate responsibility of the generals; they must be examined. (First is not assessing numbers, second is lack of a clear system of punishments and rewards, third is failure in training, fourth is irrational over excitement, fifth is ineffectiveness of law and order, and sixth is failure to choose the strong and resolute.)

The contour of the land is an aid to an army; sizing up opponents to determine victory, assessing dangers and distances, is the proper course of action for military leaders. Those who do battle knowing these, will win, those who do battle without knowing these, will lose.

Therefore, when the laws of war indicate certain victory, it is surely appropriate to do battle, even if the government says there is to be no battle. [K: This has become the modus operandi of the Bolshevik-Khazarian-Zionist power structure in Washington and, left unchecked, it is all but signing your death warrants. The balloon surveillance mission—along the same "cover excuse" strategy as Amelia Earhart employed many years ago—is at this moment approaching close enough to Russian Cosmodrone rocket-launching facilities and the two main Cosmosphere support installations at Semipalatinsk and Novosibirsk to cause a lot of trouble. This is very serious, people, a Korean Airline Boeing 707, flight 902, was shot down for attempting to gather intelligence over this area. Why is it so important for the Khazarian warlords who have usurped the Pentagon to get "live" sensors over these bases? Because Project Z, the nuclear first-strike triggering a Northern Hemisphere atomic war (where all the superpower nations reside) requires instantaneous feedback from the secret advance strike portion (a strategy discussed in Sun Tzu's treatise) that is to precede—BY MERE MINUTES!!—the launching of everything in the U.S. nuclear arsenal. In order to know whether or not the advance force of kamikaze super-stealth RPVs (remote- and robot-piloted vehicles) with their nuclear payloads explode over their targets, at least one sensor needs to be in place and operational to register the gamma helium rays that come only from atomic detonations. Since the NRO (National Reconnaissance Office) and NSA have no operational spy satellites in orbit to use against Russia, the Bolsheviks resort to balloons, airliners, experimental gliders AND EVEN SPACE SHUTTLES to briefly get a sensor in place. Your adversary certainly keeps everyone on their toes, for the toys they tinker with are so dangerous that in the disabling, if not done properly, a detonation of such as hydrogen devices could start a chain reaction that would require Space Command's assistance to shut down. The Khazarian-Bolsheviks are determined to have a war using atomic weapons, but it is still up to you if it is a small one, with one or two bombs, or something much more devastating. Again, the mere existence of shelters protecting your civilian and military populations brings the odds of such a war down so low that it no longer becomes a feasible plan. Let us continue, please; always you must go about your work steadily and undeterred by negative issues and news, lest you become incapacitated whereby your enemy wins by default. Just KNOW that God and His Team win in the end!] If the laws of war do not indicate victory, it is appropriate not to do battle, even if the government orders war. Thus one advances without seeking glory, retreats without avoiding blame, only protecting people, to the benefit of the government as well, thus rendering valuable service to the nation. (Advancing and retreating contrary to government orders is not done for personal interest, but only to safeguard the lives of the people and accord with the true benefit of the government. Such loyal employees are valuable to a nation.)

Look upon your soldiers as you do infants, and they willingly go into deep valleys with you; look upon your soldiers as beloved children, and they willingly die with you.

If you are so nice to them that you cannot employ them, so kind to them that you cannot command them, so casual with them that you cannot establish order, they are like spoiled children: useless. (Rewards should not be used alone, punishments should not be relied on in isolation. Otherwise, like spoiled children, people will become accustomed to either enjoying or resenting everything. This is harmful and renders them useless.)

If you know your soldiers are capable of striking, but do not know whether the enemy is invulnerable to a strike, you have half a chance of winning. If you know the enemy is vulnerable to a strike, but do not know if your soldiers are incapable of making such a strike, you have half a chance of winning. If you know the enemy is vulnerable to a strike, and know your soldiers can make the strike, but do not know if the lay of the land makes it unsuitable for battle, you have half a chance of winning.

Therefore those who know martial arts do not wander when they move, and do not become exhausted when they rise up. So it is said that when you know yourself and others, victory is not in danger; when you know sky and earth, victory is inexhaustible.

XI: NINE GROUNDS

According to the rule of military operations, there are nine kinds of grounds. Where local interests fight among themselves on their own territory, this is called a ground of dissolution. (When the soldiers are attached to the land and are near home, they fall apart easily.)

When you enter others' land, but not deeply, this is called light ground. (This means the soldiers can all get back easily.)

Land that would be advantageous to you if you got it and to opponents if they got it is called ground of contention. (A ground of inevitable contention is any natural barricade or strategic pass.) [K: For over 600 years the Khazar Empire flourished as the most powerful nation on Earth thanks to the natural fortifications along the borders of Khazaria. The Caucasus mountain chain, which makes up its southern border, is nearly 1000 miles long, with a heavily glaciated central section containing several summits rising well above 16,000 feet and is home to Europe's highest mountain. Khazaria's east and west borders are the Black Sea and Caspian (Khazar) Sea. The Caucasus connects these two vast seas and together the three natural barricades form a highly defensible gauntlet.]

Land where you and others can come and go is called a trafficked ground.

Land that is surrounded on three sides by competitors, and would give the first to get it access to all the people on the continent, is called intersecting ground. (Intersecting ground means the intersections of main arteries linking together numerous highway systems: first occupy this ground, and the people will have to go with you. So if you get it, you are secure; if you lose it, you are in peril.)

When you enter deeply into others' land, past many cities and towns, this is called heavy ground. (This is ground from which it is hard to return.)

When you traverse mountain forests, steep defiles, marshes, or any route difficult to travel, this is called bad ground. (If you are capable of extraordinary adaptation, you can travel this ground.)

Where you will survive if you fight quickly, and perish if you do not, this is called dying ground. (People on dying ground are, as it were, sitting in a leaking boat, lying in a burning house.)

So let there be no battle on a ground of dissolution, let there be no stopping on light ground, let there be no attack on a ground of contention, let there be no cutting-off of trafficked ground. On intersecting ground form communications, on heavy ground plunder [K: The displaced Soviet Khazarian-Bolsheviks (not to be confused with the Russian people) consider deeply occupied America "heavy ground", and if you allow them to continue their plans for your nation, history will record the greatest "plunder" man has ever witnessed—as a country, and then a world, is sacked by Satan's parasitic army.], on bad ground keep going, on surrounded ground make plans, on dying ground fight. (On a ground of dissolution, the soldiers might run away. Light ground is where soldiers have first entered enemy territory and do not yet have their backs to the wall; hence the minds of the soldiers are not really concentrated, and they are not ready for battle. It is not advantageous to attack an enemy on a ground of contention; what is advantageous is to get there first. Trafficked ground should not be cut off, so that the roads may be used advantageously as supply routes. On intersecting ground, if you establish alliances, you are safe, if you lose alliances, you are in peril. [K: China is (grudgingly) your secret ally; however, they are not willing to allow you full access to their territory because they do not trust the Bolshevik-Zionists either. Remember, China is the “dragon” from biblical prophecy, so Saddam and the Kremlin are not the only ones to watch for retaliatory (or preemptive) strikes. Does the world hate the U.S.? Yes. But they do so only because of your allowance and backing of Israel’s barbaric policies and heinous acts (public and secret) in the name of global conquest. Take back your nation from the usurpers of freedom, and the world will again look up to what was once “the Great Experiment in freedom”.] On heavy ground, plundering means building up supplies. On bad ground, since you cannot entrench, you should make haste to leave there. On surrounded ground, bring surprise tactics into play. If they fall into dying ground, then everyone in the army will spontaneously fight. This is why it is said, “Put them on dying ground, and then they will live.”)

Those who are called the good militarists of old could make opponents lose contact between front and back lines, lose reliability between large and small groups, lose mutual concern for the welfare of the different social classes among them, lose mutual accommodation between the rulers and the ruled, lose enlistments among the soldiers, lose coherence within the armies. They went into action when it was advantageous, stopped when it was not. (They set up changes to confuse their opponents, striking them here and there, terrorizing and disarranging them in such a way that they had no time to plan.)

It may be asked, when a large, well-organized opponent is about to come to you, how do you deal with it? The answer is that you first take away what they like, and then they will listen to you.

The condition of a military force is that its essential factor is speed, taking advantage of others’ failure to catch up, going by routes they do not expect, attacking where they are not on guard. (This means that to take advantage of unpreparedness, lack of foresight, or lack of caution on the part of opponents, it is necessary to proceed quickly; it won’t work if you hesitate.)

In general, the pattern of invasion is that invaders become more intense the farther they enter alien territory, to the point where the native rulership cannot overcome them.

Glean from rich fields, and the armies will have enough to eat. Take care of your health and avoid stress, consolidate your energy and build up your strength. Maneuver your troops and assess strategies so as to be unfathomable. (Consolidate your keenest energy, save up your extra strength, keep your form concealed and your plans secret, being unfathomable to enemies, waiting for a vulnerable gap to advance upon.)

Put them in a spot where they have no place to go, and they will die before fleeing. If they are to die there, what can they not do?

Warriors exert their full strength. When warriors are in great danger, then they have no fear. When there is nowhere to go, they are firm; when they are deeply involved, they stick to it. If they have no choice, they will fight. [K: Whether the warriors are seasoned special operations Army, Navy or Air Force commandos, CIA, MI-6, KGB, or ONI paramilitary operatives and agents, or Israeli Mossad-Mishpucka gangster terrorists—all will perish in a nuclear confrontation. No, chelas, war is not the way to achieve any ends in this age of true weapons of mass destruction. You have only one planet, and it must sustain and house everyone; one group has no more “right” to be there than the next, so realizing and adhering to God-Aton’s Law of ONE, whereby all can coexist in harmony and balance, REGARDLESS OF AFFILIATIONS, RACE, CREED, FRATERNAL ORDER, OR ANY OTHER DIFFERENCES YOU CAN MANAGE TO CONJURE UP, IS THE ONLY WAY ANY OF YOU ARE GOING TO SURVIVE INTO THE NEW MILLENNIUM.]

For this reason the soldiers are alert without being drilled, enlist without being drafted, are friendly without treaties, are trustworthy without commands. (This means that when warriors are in mortal danger, everyone high and low has the same aim, so they are spontaneously on the alert without being drilled, are spontaneously sympathetic without being drafted, and are spontaneously trustworthy without treaties or commands.)

Prohibit omens to get rid of doubt, and soldiers will never leave you. If your soldiers have no extra goods, it is not that they dislike material goods. If they have no more life, it is not that they do not want to live long. On the day the order to march goes out, the soldiers weep.

So a skillful military operation should be like a swift snake that counters with its tail when someone strikes at its head, counters with its head when someone strikes at its tail, and counters with both head and tail when someone strikes at its middle. (This represents the method of a battle line, responding swiftly when struck. [K: Or when liberties are being stolen, whereby response is equally swift but within the laws of the land.] A manual of eight classical battle formations says: “Make the back the front, make the front the back, with four heads and eight tails. Make the head anywhere, and when the enemy lunges into the middle, head and tail both come to the rescue.”) [K: This is a reference to where the term “Serpent People” (the name the Khazar people labeled themselves) has its origin for the ancient “warrior race”. This continues from the serpent “ideal” in the story of Adam and Eve; you see, you are dealing with the same old energy, the same wolf (snake) in sheep’s clothing. Is it not time for God’s people to wake up and win one?]

The question may be asked, can a military force be made to be like this swift snake? The answer is that it can. Even people who dislike each other, if in the same boat, will help each other out in trouble. (It is the force of the situation that makes this happen.)

Therefore, tethered horses and buried wheels are not sufficiently reliable. (Horses are tethered to make a stationary battle line, wheels are buried to make the vehicles immovable. Even so, this is not sufficiently secure and reliable. It is necessary to allow adaptation to changes, placing soldiers in deadly situations so that they will fight spontaneously, helping each other out like two hands—this is the way to security and certain victory.) [K: This is also the way to ensure great and mounting casualties on BOTH SIDES. You are in a New Era (eleven years and five months, to be exact) and your reckless warring ways and minds have no place in the Age of Radiance. Physically and spiritually, ones so aligned will not be allowed to make passage unless the negative tendencies are released.]

To even out bravery and make it uniform is the Tao of organization. To be successful with both the hard and soft is based on the pattern of the ground. (If you get the advantage of the ground, you can overcome opponents even with soft, weak troops—how much the more with hard, strong troops? What makes it possible for both strong and weak to be useful is the configuration of the ground.)

Therefore those skilled in military operations achieve cooperation in a group so that directing the group is like directing a single individual with no other choice.

The business of the general is quiet and secret [K: Privacy is one thing (that which is precious and valuable to you), but secrecy IS NOT OF GOD. He is open and just; that which seems mystical is simply not yet known to you, no more and no less. When you come into learning of how Aton’s universe functions, there will be no mysteries, only full recognition of your Co-Creatorship with the Father-Mother Principle: God.], fair and orderly [K: How many leaders have you had who were fair and orderly?]. (His plans are calm and deeply hidden, so no one can figure them out. His regime is fair and orderly, so no one dares to take him lightly.)

He can keep the soldiers unaware, make them ignorant.

He changes his actions and revises his plans, so that people will not recognize them. He changes his abode and goes by a circuitous route, so that people cannot anticipate him. (When people never understand what your intention is, then you win. The Great White Mountain Man said: “The reason deception is valued in military operations is not just for deceiving enemies, but to begin with for deceiving one’s own troops [K: Your enemy HAS control over your top generals, so your troops are in very grave circumstances; however, it is not too late for you-the-people to come to their rescue.], to get them to follow unknowingly.”)

When a leader establishes a goal with the troops, he is like one who climbs up to a high place and then tosses away the ladder. When a leader enters deeply into enemy territory with the troops, he brings out their potential. He has them burn the boats and destroy the pots, drives them like sheep, none knowing where they are going. [K: By the way, this analysis on war applies equally to civilians because it is you who make up any potential “reinforcement troops” once the initial force is confronted. There is another treatise that is circulated amongst the bankster (banking gangster) elite that spells it out even clearer for you ones—however, the penalty is death to members who allow leaking of such documents, and it will be a brother bankster who is assigned the task.]

To assemble armies and put them into dangerous situations is the business of generals. Adaptations to different grounds, advantages of contraction and expansion, patterns of human feelings and conditions—these must be examined. (When he talks about the advantages and disadvantages of contraction and expansion, he means that the ordinary patterns of human feelings all change according to the various types of ground.)

Generally, the way it is with invaders is that they unite when deep in enemy territory but are prone to dissolve while on the fringes. When you leave your country and cross the border on a military operation, that is isolated ground. When it is accessible from all directions, it is trafficked ground. When penetration is deep, that is heavy ground. When penetration is shallow, that is light ground. When your back is to an impassable fastness and before you are narrow straits, that is surrounded ground. When there is nowhere to go, that is deadly ground.

So on a ground of dissolution, I would unify the minds of the troops. On light ground, I would have them keep in touch. On a ground of contention, I would have them follow up quickly. On an intersecting ground, I would be careful about defense. On a trafficked ground, I would make alliances firm. On heavy ground, I would ensure continuous supplies. On bad ground, I would urge them onward. On surrounded ground, I would close up the gaps. On deadly ground, I would indicate to them there is no surviving.

So the psychology of soldiers is to resist when surrounded, fight when it cannot be avoided, and obey in extremes. (Not until soldiers are surrounded do they each have the determination to resist the enemy and sustain victory. When they are desperate, they put up a united defense.)

Therefore those who do not know the plans of competitors cannot prepare alliances. Those who do not know the lay of the land cannot maneuver their forces. Those who do not use local guides [K: spies] cannot take advantage of the ground. The military of an effective rulership must know all these things.

When the military of an effective rulership attacks a large country, the people cannot unite. When its power overwhelms opponents, alliances cannot come together. (If you are able to find out opponents' plans, take advantage of the ground, and maneuver opponents so that they are helpless, then even a large country cannot assemble enough people to stop you.)

Therefore if you do not compete for alliances anywhere, do not foster authority anywhere, but just extend your personal influence, threatening opponents; this makes town and country vulnerable.

Give out rewards that are not in the rules [K: bribery], give out directives [K: executive orders and treasonist treaties] that are not in the code. (Consider the merit to give the reward, without rules set up beforehand; observe the opponent to make promises, without prior setup of codes.)

Employ the entire armed forces like employing a single person. Employ them with actual tasks; do not talk to them. Motivate them with benefits; do not tell them about harm. (Just employ them to fight; don't tell them your strategy. Let them know what benefit there is in it for them; don't tell them about the potential harm. If the truth leaks out, your strategy will be foiled. If the soldiers worry, they will be hesitant and fearful.)

Confront them with annihilation, and they will then survive; plunge them into a deadly situation, and they will then live. When people fall into danger, they are then able to strive for victory.

So the task of a military operation is to accord deceptively with the intentions of the enemy. If you concentrate totally on the enemy, you can kill its military leadership a thousand miles away. This is skillful accomplishment of the task. (First you go along with their intentions, subsequently you kill their generals—this is skill in accomplishing the task.)

So, on the day war is declared, borders are closed, passports are torn up, and emissaries are not let through. [K: Martial law is openly declared and, in the case of the U.S., United Nations peacekeepers come out of their hiding places in your deserts, "abandoned" bases, and NATIONAL PARKS, and occupy your towns and cities, daring you to do anything about it. (In places such as Area 51/A6 in Nevada, UN patrols driving UN-style sports utility vehicles—white with black markings—have orders to shoot-to-kill if THEIR!?! perimeter is breached by U.S. citizens.) Your leaders have already signed treaties—the most powerful international instruments available to the bankster elite—allowing foreign troops to police your streets.]

Matters are dealt with strictly at headquarters. (Strictness at headquarters in the planning stage refers to secrecy.)

When opponents present openings, you should penetrate them immediately. Get to what they want first; subtly anticipate them. Maintain discipline and adapt to the enemy in order to determine the outcome of the war. Thus, at first you are like a maiden, so the enemy opens his door; then you are like a rabbit on the loose, so the enemy cannot keep you out.

XII: FIRE ATTACK

There are five kinds of fire attack: burning people, burning supplies, burning equipment, burning storehouses, and burning weapons.

The use of fire must have a basis, and requires certain tools. There are appropriate times for setting fires, namely when the weather is dry and windy. [K: The brush fires that now seem to be seasonal in California and, as of late, other parts of the world, are intentionally set. We have told you this before, but now you can better understand why and how it is advantageous to your adversary.]

Generally, in fire attack it is imperative to follow-up on the crises caused by the fires. When fire is set inside an enemy camp, then respond quickly from outside. If the soldiers are calm when fire breaks out, wait—do not attack. When the fire reaches the height of its power, follow up if possible, hold back if not. (In general, fire is used to throw enemies into confusion so that you can attack them.) [K: In addition to the obvious effects of starting fires, subtle behind-the-scenes plans also are set in motion. The huge, always understated, financial toll (through your all-encompassing insurance agencies—in actuality, fronts for the British-Israel intelligence apparatus—which will bring to a close your "white collar" class prosperity in one fell swoop when the stock market is allowed to crash—permanently) is in itself enough to trigger the implementation of Martial Law. Through EOs (Executive Orders) practically ANY sort of disturbance—manmade or otherwise—can cause the troops to march all over you.]

When fire can be set out in the open, do not wait until it can be set inside a camp—set it when the time is right.

When fire is set upwind, do not attack downwind. (It is not effective to go against the momentum of the fire, because the enemy will surely fight to the death.) [K: In the midst of an attack, you can expect other communist troops, in addition to the UN, to march into your cities from across the Mexican border. Governor GEORGE W. BUSH WILL LEAD THIS ASSAULT. He is much worse than his father, in past and present misdeeds, and his fluent Spanish is not for friendly campaign speeches to his Latin constituents—rather, his skills ARE TO COMMAND CIA-TRAINED COMBATANTS! Can ones such as Daddy Bush and his bad seedlings be turned around to the point of helping your plight? Yes and no, just like your embattled President in the "Monicagate" impeachment hearings. You indeed have some pretty crooked leaders, but what you have waiting in the wings is worse by far. When you have a government that is of the people, for the people, and by the people, it won't matter who is in office, for if you reestablish your Constitutional Republic—and get rid of all the garbage amendments added to confuse and trap you—your government will function just as your Founding Fathers envisioned, but better, seeing that you never had the chance to quite operate as a true Republic from the start. The British Freemasons introduced "Democracy", a Soviet communist term, so they could dismantle and destroy the freedoms of the people. Free people are impossible to control, so they had to devise a way of removing your sovereignty—that is, cause you to demand that it be taken—without the masses realizing what was being done to them. That is why seemingly well intentioned organizations like the UN are so useful to the manipulators. Kofi Annan, the UN Secretary General, and such as Rilwanu Lukman, Secretary General of OPEC (Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries), who head these organizations, are being used to put a different face on the plans for world domination. Blacks are especially useful to the Khazar elite, because by putting Blacks in high-profile positions, it is harder to prove a Jewish conspiracy exists. Since Blacks outnumber Whites 11 to 1, Blacks are placed in figurehead positions, such as mayor or police chief or whatever, to (1) pacify Blacks, and (2) set the groundwork for staged and manipulated sparks of racial strife. Remember, no non-Jews are included in their Global 2000 Plan. However, any and all ones will be used along the road to getting there. Ones so used are either willing participants because the price is right (and they may be unaware of the bigger picture and the ramifications of their actions) or, as in Nelson Mandela's case (after decades of "persuasion"), there was not much of a choice to begin with.]

If it is windy during the day, the wind will stop at night. (A daytime wind will stop at night; a night wind will stop at daylight.)

Armies must know there are adaptations of the five kinds of fire attack, and adhere to them scientifically. (It will not do just to know how to attack others with fire; it is imperative to know how to prevent others from attacking you.)

So the use of fire to help an attack means clarity; the use of water to help an attack means strength. Water can cut off, but cannot plunder. (Water can be used to divide up an opposing army, so that their force is divided and yours is strong.)

To win in battle or make a successful siege without rewarding the meritorious is unlucky and earns the name of stinginess. Therefore it is said that an enlightened government considers this, and good military leadership rewards merit. They do not mobilize when there is no advantage, do not act when there is nothing to gain, do not fight when there is no danger. (Armaments are instruments of ill omen; war is a dangerous affair. It is imperative to prevent disastrous defeat, so it will not do to mobilize an army for petty reasons—arms are only to be used when there is no choice but to do so.)

[K: Know that your munitions makers (Rockefeller Cartel, etc.)—together with their bankster partners (the Rothschild Family and blood-marriage relations)—ALWAYS generate reasons to use arms, for such is a great money maker for these so-called "elite" manipulators. War games are second only to the medical scam as to the great sums sucked from the masses to keep you impoverished and ailing; and, as with any parasitic creature allowed to freely drain the lifeblood from its unsuspecting host, the outcome is DISEASE and, if not remedied in time, death.]

A government should not mobilize an army out of anger [K: This is important, so pay attention, please.]; military leaders should not provoke war out of wrath. Act when it is beneficial, desist if it is not. Anger can revert to joy, wrath can revert to delight, but a nation destroyed cannot be restored to existence, and the dead cannot be restored to life. Therefore an enlightened government is careful about this; a good military leadership is alert to this. This is the way to secure a nation and keep the armed forces whole. [K: If it were up to we of the Hosts, you would have no military and no weapons of any sort—you would just revert back to sticks and rocks, I suppose. But since you have developed armies, it behooves your children and your planet to avoid going to war in the Middle East, Africa, China, both Koreas, Russia, Kosovo, or anywhere else. There are great and wondrous things awaiting your experience—if you'd just allow your physical bodies to survive long enough to get there.]

XIII: ON THE USE OF SPIES

A major military operation is a severe drain on the nation, and may be kept up for years in the struggle for one day's victory. So to fail to know the conditions of opponents because of reluctance to give rewards for intelligence is extremely inhumane, uncharacteristic of a true military leader, uncharacteristic of an assistant of the government, uncharacteristic of a victorious chief. So, what enables an intelligent government and a wise military leadership to overcome others and achieve extraordinary accomplishments is foreknowledge. [K: This is the unwritten credo of such as your Blackbird Surveillance CIA-ONI pilots. The incredible advancements in transonic aircraft/spacecraft and the excitement of flying these vehicles—and the "rewards" that come with it—are enough to tempt the most loyal patriot. Their cloak-and-dagger exploits of a mostly bygone era is as addicting as any drug can be. These ones experience a heightened excitement of the senses that causes a feeling of euphoria and, in this state, judgement about what is right and wrong is impaired. That is why ones formerly associated with the lifestyle of a "James Bond" have a much more difficult time than civilians when it comes to working on the side of Truth. To spend all your life acquiring "foreknowledge" about potential enemies—when the enemy is the one who sent you out in the "field" in the first place—is a hard FACT for humans to deal with. However, after a soul-searching communion with God, and a true desire to find your purpose, these ones become some very good Earthly sources for information that the masses can use to defeat Satan's master manipulators at their own game.]

Foreknowledge cannot be gotten from ghosts and spirits, cannot be had by analogy, cannot be found out by calculation. It must be obtained from people, people who know the conditions of the enemy.

There are five kinds of spy: The local spy, the inside spy, the reverse spy, the dead spy, and the living spy. When the five kinds of spies are all active, no one knows their routes—this is called organizational genius, and is valuable to the leadership.

Local spies are hired from among the people of a locality. [K: The Mossad calls these spies sayans, but their practice is that of blackmail instead of financial rewards.] Inside spies are hired from among enemy officials. Reverse spies are hired from among enemy spies. Dead spies transmit false intelligence to enemy spies. Living spies come back to report. (Among officials of the opposing regime, there are those who can be secretly approached and bribed so as to find out conditions in their country and discover any plans against you; they can also be used to create rifts and disharmony.)

Therefore no one in the armed forces is treated as familiarly as are spies, no one is given rewards as rich as those given to spies, and no matter is more secret than espionage. (If spies are not treated well, they may become renegades and work for the enemy.)

One cannot use spies without sagacity and knowledge, one cannot use spies without humanity and justice, one cannot get the truth from spies without subtlety. This is a very delicate matter indeed. Spies are useful everywhere. (Every matter requires previous knowledge.)

If an item of intelligence is heard before a spy reports it, then both the spy and the one who told about it die.

Whenever you want to attack an army, besiege a city, or kill a person, first you must know the identities of their defending generals, their associates, their visitors, their gatekeepers, and their chambermaids; so you have your spies find out. (Whenever you are going to attack and fight, first you have to know the talents of the people employed by the opponent, so you can deal with them according to their abilities.)

You must seek out enemy agents who have come to spy on you, bribe them and induce them to stay with you, so you can use them as reverse spies. By intelligence thus obtained, you can find local spies and inside spies to employ. By intelligence thus obtained, you can cause the misinformation of dead spies to be conveyed to the enemy. By intelligence thus obtained, you can get living spies to work as planned.

It is essential for a leader to know about the five kinds of espionage, and this knowledge depends on reverse spies, so reverse spies must be treated well. [K: This is what you are witnessing with the Jonathan Pollard spy case and other Israeli agents in the U.S. or sought for extradition in Israel. The disputes comes from the fact that American citizens are finding out that Khazarian Jewish students, businessmen, etc., are getting away with murder (literally) and your government is hard-pressed to explain why they condoned it. It is not the American people who set up and allow these things to go on; it is through Jewish point operatives. The most visible of these are: Vice President Gore, Secretary of State Albright, Defense Secretary Cohen, National Security Advisor Berger, James P. Rubin of the State Department, and Mossad agent Scott Ritter; he is a former UN weapons inspector turned NBC correspondent. The more the Bolshevik-Zionists exert their massive influence over the U.S., the more they come to the surface.]

So only a brilliant ruler or a wise general who can use the intelligent for espionage is sure of great success. This is essential for military operations, and the armies depend on this in their actions.

[END OF QUOTING]

Thank you for your attention. I know this is tedious at best, but it is important that you have some insight into the state of mind of those who have declared themselves your enemy. If you are to function effectively in the face of your accusers, ALL available "intelligence" should be used.

Commander Kortton to standby, please. May Love for God and your fellow mankind give you courage and strength to see you through this wondrous journey of Knowledge and the discovery of your God-self.

AHO!

Soltec: Feel The Changes In The Air For 1999 & Beyond

1/4/99 SOLTEC

Good morning, my friend. It is I, Toniose Soltec, come in the Radiant One Light of Creator Source. Be at peace.

Always look for the clues when looking toward the future possibilities. There will always be the “signs” that you need along your journey. None will have their path so clearly painted that they will not have to think or take responsibility. However, one who observes closely all of the subtleties of their experiences, and learns to accurately interpret these signals, will have a much more productive, rewarding, and enriching journey.

As usual, our message is vague in terms of specifics, yet these words will cause within you a stirring which cannot be easily ignored. Why such words at this particular time? Why do we choose certain word combinations that seem to “jump off the page” at you?

All is for a reason! Do not discount even the slightest word choice, for there can be much communicated in terms of tonal frequency or reactionary response to a single word placed in proper sequence.

Allow for the changing (rising) frequency of your planet. But, perhaps even more importantly, please pay close attention to the inner feelings and emotional responses that you ones are feeling from day to day. Growth is not usually something that explodes in your face, but rather, a gradual evolution of thought and understanding brought about from years of experience.

Your inner world is constantly offering to you a feeling response to that upon which you focus your attention, from moment to moment. Many of you have had a noticeable “inner tension” since the first of the year. Some would describe this as a sense of foreboding or uneasy anxiousness of sorts.

Did something “happen” as the clock on the wall ticked past midnight in your area on the first of the year? Yes!

There was a shift in planetary awareness resulting from many people seeing that the year 2000 was just around the corner. And, with the perception of time being such that the last year is mostly a blur for the majority, many are left with an anxiety and an anticipation of the next year. There was no real change in physical space, but there is indeed a “charge” in the non-physical space that precipitates the events that get played out in the physical.

Each and every day you ones make seemingly small decisions and choices that affect your daily lives—from what clothes you choose to wear, to what food you will eat, and so forth. Though these are seemingly small choices, they can have quite a large impact on your daily experience.

If you choose clothing that is comfortable, neat and appropriate, yet unobtrusive, you will likely be far less distracted than if you choose clothing which draws a lot of attention or makes you feel “out of place”. Wearing a bikini to the grocery store on a typical winter day is an extreme example. Likewise, if you choose to eat a lot of garlic or beans, you may also become quite a distraction to others!

Now, if we look at the fact that there exists this very real feeling that most of you are feeling as we enter 1999, and we understand that this feeling is mostly due to the inner stirrings of the masses, then we have just made note of an important clue. In taking this look toward the future, there would seem to be a “significance” about the coming year which no one seems to be able to put their finger on.

This feeling is their Higher Self offering a “wake-up” call. Many are still consciously ignorant about the personal meaning of this sensation, but deep down in their “gut” they know that there is indeed a “quickenings” occurring, and that massive, life-altering change is coming.

When the mass consciousness alters in this way, the energy must seek its proper density for outlet. If you feel hope and anticipation with eagerness associated with this energy, you will walk Lightly through these times of change and attract experiences with that same Lightness. On the other hand, if you anticipate hardship and trouble, you will attract more of this “heavier” (lower frequency) burden. Either way, the emotional energy that has been generated will seek its outlet (a grounding of sorts) in terms of physical manifestation.

There is no experience you can have that will not first play out in mental and emotional (non-physical) spaces. The more “in tune” you are with the intent of your Higher soul-purpose, the more peaceful will be your experience. When you are “off course” with respect to your core intent, you will find the coming times quite stressful in terms of inner emotional conflict. This is a perfect time for self examination in terms of “feeling out” exactly where you are with respect to fulfilling your intended purpose for this physical life experience.

Please also know that, if you are drawn to these types of messages, then you are, at the very least, on the path of educating yourself in terms of understanding how you fit into the Divine Tapestry of Creator God’s thinking.

You are each in a schoolroom, trying to better yourselves and find greater knowledge. The mere fact that you have chosen to come forth in such a manner says that you have lessons to learn. Many view ignorance as a weakness and it is hard for some “intelligent” ones to accept that their current perception of the universe and why they are here could possibly be in error. Yet, many of you who read this message have great errors in your “learned” thinking (this includes the one writing this message) that need to be looked at and “studied”.

Now comes the challenging part: How does one identify their errors in perception and thinking? First and foremost, accept that you DO have such errors and that you are there to have experiences that will show them to you.

This means that your whole life is a journey with challenges and choices which will bring about experiences that will lead to more choices and future experiences. When you recognize a recurring “theme” in your life, you can be sure that there is a lesson therein, and that you now have a different perspective on the situation—hopefully one of expanded growth and awareness. However, if you make the same choice you did the last three or four times, you will likely confront the same experience yet again.

Approach life with a balance of humility and exuberance. You each make mistakes every day. This is a natural function of the learning process. Some will learn faster than others, and some will simply hold on to the irresponsible belief that they are the “victim” of luck and chance happenings.

Your current world situation will evolve in a manner that will cause every living being to look within and ask questions. The most prominent question for those who are not numb to life will be: WHY? Ones who ask this question are wanting to understand how these things happen and how they fit into the experiential equation.

OK—why ask why? Experience shows that if ones have an accurate working model of any situation, they will be better able to make a better choice as to what course of action to take. It stands to reason that the inner desire to survive in the physical will drive ones toward a desire of understanding.

Many at this time have chosen to ignore the clues that are all around, and have thus chosen to remain in a state of “sleepy” ignorance. Closing their eyes and escaping the “reality” of the situation, as it now exists, will not serve these ones for very much longer.

Slumber time has ended, and many ones, for a brief moment around the first of the year, looked forward in time and felt great confusion and uncertainty. This energy charge will dissipate in the form of all sorts of distractions and seeming catastrophes. It is, in essence, self-fulfilling prophecy. In actuality, it is out of spiritual ignorance to the fact that you ones have the innate ability to create, that much of what will manifest will cause confusion due to a lack of understanding the creative process. Regardless of your beliefs on the subject, YOU create your own reality and your own experiences. PERIOD!

Denial of the “scientific” aspects of spiritual truth does not change things one single bit. Go within and realize that this inner uneasiness need not be a negative potential. It is mostly unfocused energy that is seeking its proper path. You can tap in and use it any way you like, and direct it toward that which you feel to be of the greatest good. In doing so, you will find it an invaluable resource in the months and years ahead.

Our work (mission) is not to scare the hell out of you, nor is it to tear down or destroy any one or any thing. We come, as promised by Creator God, so that those of you who want to understand the underlying spiritual fabric in which physical reality is immersed can have an external, objective viewpoint to consider that is from a broader, uninhibited perspective.

We come as Teachers and Guides who are trying to prepare you for the upcoming challenges along your current path. Much like the tour guides who can make a vacation trip much more informative and enjoyable because they can impart their knowledge and experience to you, we too have come to add to your experience so that you may have a greater opportunity to expand your awareness and understanding of who you REALLY are.

These messages are only intended as insightful viewpoints from we Tour Guides. They are written, for the most part, for the general public reader. You must ALWAYS choose for yourself what path you will take and what you will do with ANY information that comes your way. We wish to help you maximize the quality of your experiences at this time.

If you choose to touch the leaves of a Poison Oak plant, after your trail guide has told you that such a plant is dangerous, then you cannot blame the guide for not warning you. Your subsequent discomfort will be a result of YOUR OWN CHOOSING.

You ALL have the ability to connect within to your own personal Guidance. Learn to recognize for yourself what this Guidance is and how to interpret it for yourself.

Your Guides are eager to work with you and will always present you with the proper experiences so that you will come to recognize this connection. Be persistent and willing to connect and hear at all times. And be responsible enough to accept what you hear, whether you “like” it or not. If you have a question you would like help with, then ask yourself, as a way of tuning-in to your Guidance, the following: “How would an en-Light-ened being from the Higher Realms of creation answer this question?”

You each, who read these messages with regularity, know how to discern truth for yourself. Stop being followers of another. Your Guidance always comes from within, first! Writings like these are for your confirmation as much as they are for your education.

Never blindly follow another. Every word of this writing should be questioned within for yourself! EVERY WORD!

How do these words (in this writing or any such writing) make you feel inside?

Do you agree with them?

Why do you agree or disagree?

Does the writing help you?

Does the writing cause you confusion?

Does the writing “sound” like it came from a wise and high-frequency Lighted being?

What do you feel the intent of the writing is?

Is there a manipulative agenda telling you to do this or that—or else? (That is manipulation through fear.)

Is there an even-tempered, informative nature to the message which says: if you do this, then the consequences are likely to be that?

You should be asking these questions EVERY time you read ANY source of information! A wise person will NEVER blindly accept information as Truth without first asking a few simple questions, like the ones above. The best intending soul on your planet will not be able to help you as much as you can help yourself. You know what is best and right for you.

There are Teachers and Guides who have come to assist the masses with their insights and knowledge. Many of you have been reluctant to accept the responsibility of your role and await another to do it for you. This is fine, for there remains the experience of ever evolving consciousness, which you are all a part of, that does have great and true value. No experience is meaningless or without value.

Trust your heart and trust what you have learned for yourself. If a person is declared evil by someone, then question seriously the one making such an accusation.

Are they judging the person or their actions? How does this one know the intent or contract of another?

What gives this one the authority to make such a pronouncement?

Have YOU any personal proof of such actions, or are such merely the opinion of another?

Are the words stated with compassion and understanding, or are they stated with anger and hurt?

Which of these characteristics do you think to be a hallmark of Higher, en-Light-ened Teachers, and which seem to be the product of lower-frequency, adversarial intrusion?

Be consciously aware of the reactionary emotional nature of the physical being. When ones feel they have been wronged, there is often a period of time wherein ones want to justify their own (low-frequency) feelings to the world—so that they can avoid confronting the truth that they do not have the proper understanding of the TRUE reasons for the agitating events in the first place.

All grief, anger, and frustration come as a result of ignorance to the true reality of your situation. We of the Higher Realms view all occurrences in terms of energy flow and can easily see how it is that you ones attract into your experiences the so-called “negativity”. YOU ARE MERELY EXPERIENCING THE REFLECTION OF YOUR OWN ENERGY VIBRATION!

When you harbor negativity toward another, then you will ALWAYS summon forth like negativity into your experience. Learn to allow for the ignorance of others, and “forgive them, for they know not what they do” as you were taught by the great christed Teacher.

This message is as much (if not more) for the one who pens this message as it is for any and all who read it. Do not, for one moment, think that our scribes are beyond the need for lessons. They are seeking answers just like any of you! If they had all the answers, they would not be there. Also, we do NOT give them the answers that will short-circuit their own personal growth. This is to say that they too must, as I said early in this writing, learn to discern all the clues around them. Much like with playing a game of poker, you must learn when to hold them, when to fold them, or when to simply find another game because you are out of your league!

I am Ceres Anthonious “Toniose” Soltec, come in response to the heart’s call for clarity and understanding. I am one of several thousand such Teachers communicating with you ones at this time. Seek first your own Truth and follow your own Guidance, and you will have the confirmations that you seek.

In the Light of Creator Source, I bring insights which may help you, like the tour guide, to get the most out of this grand experience before you.

Salu!
