On The Threshold Of The New Millennium

12/22/99—#1

CLEARING LOOSE ENDS

Hatonn—This message is probably going to come as an answer to some of your questions as we reach the end and the beginning of what YOU call a holiday season, which ends something, and a new year, which supposedly begins something. BOTH ARE INCORRECT ASSUMPTIONS, as each moment is an ending and a beginning and not even your calendars are accurate.

However, it is as good a time as any, in any given period of “time” perception, to speak of that which was and that which is, and consider how some things might well come to be.

So much is taking place beyond your “viewing” capability, and no, not even God tells that which is not within YOUR recognition or which is not YOURS to yet see. So, no, when such as Ed Young tells you, or anyone else tells you, that they directly commune with God on venture matters outside their recognition in the human form—and have all the information regarding that topic, and the ability and authorization to interpret, edit and pronounce—THEY LIE. And anyone who bases his input on anything “MAGIC” MAY WELL HAVE SOME INFORMATION, AND EVEN SOME OF IT WILL BE CORRECT—BUT MYSTICAL AND MYSTERIOUS ARE NOT THE SAME MEANING. IF YOU COME TO BELIEVE THE LIE, IT DOES NOT MAKE IT TRUTH; AND WHEN “MAN” SETS HIMSELF UP ABOVE THAT WHICH IS CREATOR, IT IS AN ERROR IN GOOD JUDGMENT.

RECENT HAPPENINGS

Many opportunities to set things to right in ongoing activities, confrontations, etc., as to purpose of journey for individuals, have been put forth and they have been ignored—which is the same as denial. Opportunities are offered and then the opportunity passes—FOREVER.

Therefore, as we move forward in “organizing” for our ongoing activities and duties, we NOW REMOVE THOSE PARTIES FROM OUR LIST OF CONTACTS FOR JOBS THEY HAD PRIORLY PETITIONED TO FILL. The offers are now withdrawn.

I will tell you now that NOTHING is going to be as IT WAS in structure, as to our ongoing multitudes of forward movement.

We never had any type of “communal” type of group, listing or other such category. You who wished to make it such make no difference in the reality of our purpose or our ongoing intentions.

You who might think selves ready to move to Tehachapi, for instance, to join some kind of coalition or group activity—DON’T. STOP NOW, for there will never be again any such structure as had developed in that area as set forth by, yes, our own enemies—now proclaimed of their own words and actions.

A tiny crew has kept things alive, and our precious readers and friends have managed to keep alive the paper and things of necessity for use in the phase-out/phase-in period of time.

All of this sharing will be returned in abundance, as God promises all of his participants. But we will not further jeopardize our own missions or bog in the mud of that which takes, steals, lies and cheats our very own people. So anyone who thinks it better to be in a place such as Tehachapi had best look carefully at your own intent, for there will be NOTHING there as you expect it to be, ever again. Our people have been leaned on to the point of no longer standing as the foundation upon which all manners of ill-intent, or even good intentions, are acceptable. Never were you told ANYTHING ELSE.

Many of you claim to be “packed” and ready to move and serve. Serve what? If you cannot do well where you ARE, how think you that you can uproot and make it alone in a strange village, where the original circle of people no longer exists. Now, if you are looking for a “group” or a “cult” of some kind—you certainly should well consider the Spectrum group for both your support and jobs—we no longer have anything to offer ANYONE.

The full intent has been accomplished in asking those who pulled away if they would like to rejoin some “business” program, and they have continued to bash, internationally, the hand that feeds them. So be it—that offer is now OVER.

There are some, yes, who are probably going to relocate to various places, perhaps Tehachapi, but it will be more of a “home base”, as in retirement. Things like the paper will continue but in a much larger and business-like manner, where we abundantly pay our contributors, have professional staff, printers, etc.

We will hire computer professionals to structure a recovery-of-information program for cross-reference and retrieval of information produced over the last dozen years. We hoped that some of our original participants would have LIKED to serve in that BUSINESS ARRANGEMENT—but alas, they made other choices. Man individual would rather be “right” than righteous, even if he be WRONG. So be it, for we are now relieved, team, of the testing of our own attitudes.

We must consider that which was and THAT WHICH IS, appreciate the lessons in discernment and JUDGE THE ACTIONS of all who have passed our way. Recognize TRUTH and release all those who wish to play games. We work, henceforth, with professionals in their fields of capabilities, i.e., engineers when we need engineering, press people where we need press operators, professional incorporation agents where needed—and no STRINGS attached because somebody once said they were our friend. THOSE WHO BETRAYED US WILL NOT AGAIN HAVE OPPORTUNITY TO WORK WITHIN ANYTHING WHERE BETRAYAL IS SO EASILY ACCOMPLISHED!

Outstanding confrontations will henceforth be worked out in a legal court of law—with no more “settlements” to avoid the unsavory need for litigation, settlements which would avoid the need for others to confront their nasty actions.

But, I repeat: Don’t ANYONE just up and dash for Tehachapi, for you will not find what you expect—ever again. We made exceptions in the past because we knew people did not understand, and we were gathering our “crew” and “team”; that is no longer in point, for those of a distance are not the least lesser on our “team”, and they have done it without being in the same location or even area.

If there are other “groups” around in which you might participate, please feel free to contact them, but for all practical purposes around Tehachapi, we have met the enemy and we don’t really like them—and never again will we jeopardize anything to have more than a few friends with which to exchange old memories, while we continue in our own purpose as to work avenues. And I repeat that if you wish to continue the “groupie concept”, please go with Dr. Young—and they will furnish you with the same entities (as they offered), and you can live on in your misinformation and continued lullaby of foolishness. GOD IS EVERYWHERE AND YOU NEED NO BROKER BETWEEN YOU AND GOD. AND NEVER AGAIN SHALL EKKERS HAVE TO LOSE ANYTHING OR BE IN HIDING IN THEIR OWN HOMETOWN. THAT PHASE OF THIS GAME IS OVER!

I don’t want anyone to have to “think” about refusal or acceptance of an offer—if it comes from me, consider it OVER—if you needed to think about “what does it pay” or “what’s in it for me?” This is to separate the true friends from the people otherwise acquaintances—for, when we play games of that sort, WE WILL GO NOW TO PROFESSIONALS, WITH NO ATTACHMENTS TO ANYTHING PAST OR PRESENT, AND ONLY A DESIRE TO DO THE VERY BEST BUSINESS POSSIBLE IN ALL RESPECTS—IN THE FUTURE. IN OTHER WORDS, THE TABLE IS NOW CLEAR AND CLEAN, AND WE WILL FUNCTION IN THAT MODE, HENCEFORTH. WE WILL MEET ALL OBLIGATIONS AND COMMITMENTS, RETAIN OUR FRIENDSHIPS WHERE POSSIBLE AFTER BALANCING ALL DEBTS, AND MOVE FORWARD WITHOUT THE ANCHORS AND TRAPS OF OUR PAST CLINGONS.

This is hard to imagine or accept? WHY? The people who have served 24-hours-a-day for nearly a quarter of a century—have nothing but relief and joy over the prospects of getting on with what we set forth to achieve at upstart.

The reason I speak so succinctly and directly is that there are some people who plan to move back into our spaces, take up old positions or new ones and simply continue in the WRONG PERCEPTIONS. No, it is neither righteous nor good to allow such thoughts or intents to be considered, for IT WILL NEVER BE THE SAME AS IT WAS “PERCEIVED” (AND NEVER WAS)—AGAIN.

Does this mean that Hatonn, et al., just “fade away into the sunset”? Oh, don’t my confronters wish! Of course not—God doesn’t leave you—YOU LEAVE GOD. So, take your playmates from the ethers and astral planes of earthbound energies, edited and rewritten by such as Dr. Young—and go your way.

If you wish to compete, as in a paper or anything else, with GOD, do so—but expect to eventually lose. Remember: GOD WINS—and that “GOD” is not some perceptualized entity structured by a clan, a tribe or a groupie under the explanation and direction of some man, who has such ego that he cannot see beyond self. When you end up asking Satan to guide you—in no matter what disguise you find the old snake—he certainly will do so and laugh all the way to the dump, for he will not even give you a good funeral.

And to any who assume you’ll just wait and “clean up” on the Native American games: I don’t think so!

I want to do a second writing today, which will read as 12222 in honor of Little Crow—the Spotted Eagle) of Sipapu, whose number is “22”, of sorts; although not Dec. 22—but it is as good as any, for none of your OTHER dates are reasonable or correct, either. But the words of wisdom are constant and worthy of honor.

I am asked by some burdened hearts about Karen and her position in Sipapu Odyssey, the motion picture. Why? Nothing has changed with anything—that is up to KAREN. Don’t you see? A lot of people got sucked into a trap by the “snake of the day” and blew it, nothing more; and it is what came AFTER the obvious that makes the difference, chelas—every time.

Karen worked with the legal team WHILE WAITING PATIENTLY FOR THE MOTION PICTURE TO BEGIN TO TAKE FORM. The kids went right on, and husband Andy got a better skill and education, and would now offer even better credentials to serve in a very meaningful way on film locations, etc. NOTHING HAS CHANGED; Wally Gentleman felt he lost a daughter, whom he not only relied on but deeply, deeply cared for. There is an amazing future for “Whites”, as the industry grows and flourishes. These are the “purposes” postponed until the sequence could be fulfilled.

And, by the way, to you who requested your funds back from the Institute—NO, that is fine, and pretty soon now it appears that there will be enough of a release to be allowed to fulfill those requests, even though loans have not MATURED. There will be consideration in the “business” accounting as mandated under the law and corporate structure to attend all ramifications—but asking for your return is suitable. It is not, however, suitable to go and “frame” or “set up” the very ones who have fought tooth-and-nail on your behalf to ensure the stability of that Institute.

Does this somehow mean that those who became adversaries will lose their assets? No, it means that once clear—Ekkers no longer have any fiduciary, or otherwise, responsibilities to ANYONE involved—PERIOD. Expenses caused directly by litigation and expenses of corporate struggles will, of course, be brought into full consideration of “owed” refunds—as set by a court. This will likely include punitive damages, as well, for the inability of the corporation to function fully in behalf of all interested parties.

You who set up TV programs and international disaster-lies will probably have to compromise your positions to some extent to take into consideration expenses incurred and damages done—although there is NO WAY TO PAY FOR THE DAMAGES DONE. The Ekkers, frankly, just want to be free of you with no further interchange at all—and, therefore, everything will be handled through legal third parties. Further recourse is not at issue at this writing, for damage assessment is impossible to make—and some have certainly damaged far more than others, who simply listened to the liars. There would be some consideration for assisting some who have been, as well, damaged by the nucleus group of “do-badders”.

We now welcome all lawsuits, for we are cleaning our houses and we want that information in all its misery and subterfuge right out there before the Federal Courts. We do, indeed, intend to find out things—such as where the house “rent” went that somehow ended up in the loss of property and seizure of the house. Who instigated that whole action? Who wanted Millers, furthermore, to somehow be instrumental for Federal charges against Ekkers and PI—on loans not even due or owing? We know, don’t we? Well, GOD is into “justice”, not “forgiveness”—GOD HAS NOTHING NOR ANYONE “TO FORGIVE”, AND YOU ARE A REFLECTION OF YOURSELF, GOOD FRIENDS. BUT SOME PUSHED OTHERS INTO DOING THINGS THEY WOULD ORDINARILY NOT HAVE DONE—AND JUSTICE SAYS THAT YOU SHOULD BE CONFRONTED TO THE FULLEST EXTENT, UNDER THE LAW OF THE LAND AND KARMA.

Many of you PROVED that to “settle” or “allow” you to go on with your dirty dealings was a true error in good judgment—you should have faced the hangman THEN, and perhaps you wouldn’t have continued to so damage others, such as Millers, with your dirty deals.

By the way, the threats of Federal “indictments, warrants for Ekkers’ arrest”, etc.—as circulated through Rick’s writings, Gail and Rick’s international games and then Bellringer’s blatherings—are grounds for incredible repercussions, for that constitutes THREAT TO LIFE AND PROPERTY. And yes, we do KNOW, with hard evidence, that this bunch of misfits tried to get Millers to bring charges—in a Federal manner—against US. The old order of things works on “cause and effect”, and the “effect” of these “causes” will be forthcoming long after everyone has forgotten about the deeds. Nobody from “that side” has done ANYTHING to set these wrongs to right—they have only tried to further lie, cheat and steal to cover truth. So be it, for I hope the “Watchers” are still watching, and remember: YOU PUBLISHED THAT “ORACLE” GAVE UP EVERYTHING TO “GO NORTH TO STOP THE EKKERS”. WOW—AND PUBLISHED IT IN YOUR EVER-MORE DEBACLE OF A PAPER OF THE RAINBOW RAYS.

And thank you, Pierre and America East, for continuing to give ammunition with your foolishness on e-mail, etc. Doesn’t anyone realize that electronic mail, solicitations, etc. are incredibly EASY to both monitor and retrieve? Besides, your friends, Pierre, spread the word you had died here a couple of months ago—nice friends, or was that your idea in order to trick Hatonn, somehow? How silly do you children have to get? Stupid is as stupid does, is the saying, I believe.

If this is a help to our “home team”—as we make consideration for moving on in the new millennium—I appreciate the opportunity to respond to your inquiries. And no, we haven’t “stopped” anything—we are moving into the real purpose of our journey in this tired old world beset by evil and pain. God did NOT create you to “suffer”; HE CREATED YOU TO ALSO CREATE WITHIN HIS OWN SELF—IN JOY AND GLORY; AND WHEN WE REACH OUR HAND TO ANOTHER—WE FULFILL THAT CIRCLE OF POSSIBILITIES; AND FOR THOSE WHO WILL COME AFTER, TO WALK IN OUR SHOES—WE MUST MAKE SURE

THAT OUR MOCCASINS ARE HEADED IN THE “RIGHT” DIRECTION!

Dharma, I really do want to offer again the section from Little Crow, as written within the Sipapu manuscript, for you must be reminded from time to time about REALITY.

Thank you, dear, and as we write over the next few days, let us remind our people at home doing the paper that we need to have some things available, so that the paper itself can be done well ahead and, if necessary, skip an issue—or double up on chapters of the IMMACULATE DECEPTION book. It is unbelievably well received here in the Philippines and we need to keep THAT INFORMATION flowing. But don’t short the possibilities within God and His ability to “change” people. You might find George, Jr. to have “changed” quite a bit in the last few years.

We will probably stop sending anything of great importance on the electronic systems, if they are running at all, so that you have a base from which to continue in publications—if we have a break in ability to communicate during the chaos expected. We don’t want to further infections from viruses, so don’t open your files if there is no identification, because that is the new game. If you aren’t near the infecting viruses, you won’t get the disease! And, if you do get it, we will upgrade after the whirlwind dies down a bit. And yes, we CAN.

As to vehicles for product delivery, etc.: Just use your better vehicles, which allow for better security for long trips, etc. Yes, we CAN replace “yours”, as we sort our business, and get you new vehicles and equipment—and relegate the older ones to use in the businesses or get new ones for there, also. Let us just continue to make it through here in this immediate interim time for, in so doing, we are better able to keep strings untangled. I would hope that Mark would be able to spend quite a bit of time in LV after we acquire help and start other enterprises, which could really use the backup assistance there.

If it becomes necessary to close the product line for a while, so be it. Rick has turned us in so many times that we want no reference to anything ongoing in a negative way. He (they) have called our customers and claimed bad product. So, if you get a quantity ahead—as in colloids, minerals, etc.—let it go, if need be, until we can again come forth under the full shelter of the, yes, governmental regulators. We hide NOTHING; we will work with them, meet all regulations, open the markets worldwide as appropriate and enlarge our product line—for we are not in competition with anyone, nor do we argue with prescription items.

We need to be able to supply our “friends”, and we will want to allow them to “stock up”, if necessary. The drias store indefinitely, as do the colloids. If there is a “release” of particulate in the colloids—set aside and re-colloidalize, as you colloidalize more. My people need a rest, and if others can’t fill in—we will close the operation until we restructure.

We need to know, as at the farm, if there is anything at all worthy of “saving” in that old mobile home, for that is not our problem or our asset. If it is worth “salvage” or replacement, we will consider it a bit later. I apologize to the new people who wanted to use it, if it has become an inconvenience—but it is up to them what they choose to do, for it should have been understood from early on that we have nothing with which to work, or to spend, and have no real interest longer in the farm except holding it—until we can later decide on how to dismantle what is there: keep it as a business venture, of some kind, or whatever else might come along. We have no further interests in it as originally it was established. We certainly did not intend to make any commitments and understood that this was a request, as to possibilities, for the friends in point. We wish to be no burden to anyone, but neither can our people take on additional burdens, for this is “PHASE-OUT” time for a lot of those old dreams—and an awakening within the visions of new possibilities.

I recognize that there is no particular “pull” of these people to myself or my team, and feel that they might actually not remain content or happy within any arrangements that cost them any such investment of time or assets, as in reclaiming that mobile home. It would, yes, be nice to have Turner or someone roof the building to prevent further damage—but that is HIS PROPERTY—not ours. We stood expenses and labor to redo the house, the barns, etc. We do not need to rebuild anything further which is nothing but a problem to us, to either drag away or dismantle—or repair. I hope there was no misunderstanding. My people are weary unto the end with all the responsibilities of trying to sort this myriad of things.

I had asked for the flooring laying in the attic of the Adam Dr. house to be pulled out for exactly that sort of use—as in some type of re-roofing to stop the damage if needed, here and there—but that was interrupted, and we have no other from which to pull at this time; and David Campbell still has the lift, which could have moved all that material. We are caused, now, to wait and take stock as we can. But Turner needs to be informed and inspect the place, and he can decide if he wishes to do anything. Therefore, if Rex and Mark—or someone there—will ask him to look it over, please do so, ASAP.

As you watch the world become as day in the nearness of the moon in a few days, don’t become werewolves, silly children—recognize GOD in all things and stop copping out on: “The devil made me do it...!”

And, friends, all of you had better start RETHINKING your status as a whole. You can consider your desire for sovereignty as a person, as a nation or however narrow you wish to remain—BUT YOU ARE A GLOBAL SOCIETY, WHETHER OR NOT YOU LIKE IT. IT IS TIME TO CONSIDER THE REALITY OF THIS FACT AND SEE IF YOU CAN’T SOMEHOW MAKE THIS A SOVEREIGN PLANET, WHICH CAN BE ACCEPTABLE IN A WORKING “ORDER” TO THE BROTHERHOOD OF OTHER PLANETS AND COSMIC ORDER. A PLANET HAS NO “EGO”, OTHER THAN THAT OF THE INDIVIDUALS WHO INHABIT SAME—AND, THEREFORE, WHEN YOU DAMAGE TOO GREATLY—YOU WILL NOT BE IN CONSIDERATION AS AN INDIVIDUAL EGO-ENTITY. THE WORLD WILL “NOT” BE “SACRIFICED” FURTHER FOR YOUR EGO-GREED AND AVARICE—PERIOD.

In love and hope for YOUR tomorrow, perchance?

HAPPY YULETIDE

Hatonn—As we sit to write this morning I could write on a dozen topics from the fast-flow of data passing through my view. So, let us talk of “Christmas”—WITHOUT the myths and within the reality of what is presented in REALITY. “CHRIST” is a REALITY, a VITALITY OF LIFE, FACTUAL (NOT VIRTUAL) and is a STATE OF BEING-NESS.

Man, presented as in “human being”, is caught in the trap of the play he is experiencing, no matter how worn the curtains, the stage itself or the content of his script. He is then twice more caught in the experience of having virtually only TWO WAYS TO GO: SUICIDE BY DEATH OF BODY, OR LIVING WITHIN THE FRAMEWORK FOR LIFE HUMAN IN WHAT “IS”!

The cycle of each human experience, as you recognize it to be, is an AVERAGE of some 70-75 years of YOUR counting to make it through to “escape”. However, it is sufficiently long enough TO LEARN TRUTH, “IF” you “haul ass”, as the more practical professor would tell you, if he is honest. And to pass your grades, chelas (students), you must not only “haul ass” but you must KNOW and set aside the fun and games of what is pronounced upon you—in order that others CAN CONTROL YOU. THE SECRET, YOU SEE, IS THAT YOU CAN “CREATE” WHATEVER YOU WANT—FOR SELF—GOOD OR BAD IN YOUR PERCEPTION. Most people choose to succeed at failure, as perceived by SELF. However, FACTS ARE that to “succeed” at “failure” is only a PERCEPTION and is, in FACT, not even the “easy way to go”.

SET YOUR GOAL AND THEN “CREATE” THAT WHICH IS REQUIRED TO MAKE IT SO

I said “create” because I specifically mean “CREATE”. ALL LIVING HUMAN FORM can do one of two things: CREATE, or USE, PHYSICALLY, THAT WHICH IS ALREADY PRESENT AND CREATED. This is a very sad commentary, for just as everything is available for failure, SO TOO IS EVERYTHING AVAILABLE FOR “PERFECTION OF SUCCESS”. THE PHYSICAL MANIFESTATION IS THE PLACE IN WHICH YOU CAN EXERCISE PHYSICAL PROCESSING.

When we speak of Christmas, we find that “christ” is part of “a” word and “mas” is, in itself, a “procedure”, as in “mass”, as would be a “ritual” performed in some manner, shape or form.

Ah, but you think “mass” and you immediately visualize Catholic Mass. NO, that is incorrect visualization, although a traditional recognition—BUT, before there was Catholic—there was catholic (meaning all within one).

Christ must be attached to any religious body, because even if you deal in Satanic ritual, it is in OPPOSITION TO CHRIST-NESS. You see, chelas, “Christ” recognizes the LIGHTED GOODNESS, WHICH IS THE REFLECTION OF GOD. Evil is generally classified as in “opposition to” the accepted “goodness”.

“But what about Jesus?” you might ask. Well, “Jesus” is a label given that one you now consider Jesus Christ by one Saul of Tarsus (calling himself “Paul”)—years after meeting the “man” he would later “name”. This particular MAN in point was named Emmanuel, Immanuel, “Immanuel of the House of Joseph of...”. He is called Isa, Esu, Isus, Yoshua, etc. A person bearing the teachings of Christness is, in some manner, recognized as a Christian in all varying levels or grades of progression into and within “Christ” knowing. Here, I do not discuss “belief”, for all birthed, natural, human entities are BORN WITH KNOWING—AND BELIEF IS A TAUGHT IDEA.

IN OTHER WORDS: YOU KNOW RIGHT FROM WRONG WITHIN THE KNOWING OF SELF. And believe me, parents, if you wish to quarrel: WATCH YOUR CHILDREN. They will, ACTUALLY, present what you BELIEVE. They will believe, for instance, in Santa Claus—as long as YOU pretend such silliness.

I would prefer to see parents take their children and tell them: “XXXX, you are not perfect BUT I LOVE YOU. I AM NOT PERFECT—AND, THEREFORE, LET US JUST RECOGNIZE AND LOVE ONE ANOTHER. AND, THEREFORE, I AM GOING TO GIVE YOU ‘SOMETHING FOR NOTHING’, BECAUSE I LOVE YOU—NOT BY PRETENDING ‘SANTA’ MAGICALLY BROUGHT IT TO YOU.”

In your present mode of operation, you cause your children to play silly games “on you”. They will pretend to keep your games going. Is it not more wondrous to have grannies, parents, siblings, friends—loving you enough to give you something (or not, if there be no wherewithal) than to have to believe that some elf-brain in a red suit decides on your fate? That “red suit” is nothing but a re-presentation to fool you, of the Satan in Red. It is a Coca-Cola fabrication to sell you “coke”, literally—as Coca-Cola once had quite a bit of cocaine in its formulae. “THAT” was the “secret in the recipe”.

Yes, there were goodly people who could become “Saint” something-or-other, but do you really think that such an entity should become such a success story for the very adversary of Christ—as in ST. NICK? “Nick” is synonymous with the Devil.

And no, I am not here to ruin your holidays and spoil the last vestiges of a holiday that brings people, family and giving forth in joyful coalition. You should have at least 52 special occasions in a year, and they should last at least 7 days each.

The Dec. 25 declared “holiday” for Christmas was established long before anyone such as Esu Emmanuel was birthed. That was a standing holiday of rather pagan characteristics. The MAN “JESUS” (Emmanuel) was actually BORN IN AUGUST, with no tinkling snow-bells or sleigh rides, unless on skids across a very arid land. Therefore, recognize that you live in mythology, and enjoy the fun and games in the actual glad tidings of REALITY. You will, in that way, be celebrating LOVE AND LIFE, AND NOT DEMANDING TRADING OF COMMODITIES. Santa Claus, I repeat, was born out of an advertising campaign of EXTREMELY COMMERCIAL FABRICATION. The IDEA AND IDEAL of giving is birthed in love, sharing and heartfelt caring. And, if you have to have your name on every gift you give to get accolades and thanks in profusion unending for your gift—YOU GAVE FOR THE WRONG REASON AND FIT THE SANTA CLAUS GROUPIE. So, if you are going to give to your children, whether it be large or small—do it with LOVE and UNDERSTANDING of the FACTS OF THE GIVING. You WANT them to have the “whatever it is”. And do the same for SELF, and that might even become more important: GIVE TO SELF AND STOP BLAMING WHAT YOU DON’T GET ON SOMEONE ELSE’S LACK OF NOTING YOUR IMPORTANCE. Why set self up for disappointment? GET SOMETHING FOR THAT WONDERFUL BEING—CALLED SELF!

Sometimes a gift given to “self” is so great in “attitude adjustment” about the WHOLE thing that the entire family or group is blessed by your caring enough about Self to “send the very best”. Don’t think of that which you don’t have—treat self and loved ones with what you DO HAVE. And, students, there is no lack of availability of LOVE—it is CREATED infinitely. You cannot even “manufacture” it, neither can Santa or YOU purchase it.

Honor the celebration of all religions which honor God of Light, for they are like you—moving to that orchestrated dance offered in the teaching and training of culture and tradition—OF HUMAN EXPRESSION. DO NOT HONOR IN ANY MEASURE AT ALL THAT WHICH IS EVIL. But, you see, there is wisdom in recognition. “Santa”, as a person in a red suit, is NOT EVIL, so the game of let’s pretend is OK—if you don’t get serious about it.

I note that the thrust is to give to the “needy” a couple of times a year—try every day! AND, KNOW, YOU CHILDREN OF THE CHAOS—THAT YOU AND YOURS ARE USUALLY THE MOST “NEEDY” OF ANY YOU SHALL MEET AND CONSIDER LESSER. Charity is fine, PITY is quite sad. Give to those whom you CAN, for in the giving is the expression of true desire to share, or it represents nothing more than a token of alms in the blindman’s cup. And no, I do not suggest you stop giving—GIVE MORE, WITHIN THE RIGHT “REASON”, AND WATCH “SELF” BLOSSOM. SO, IF YOU MUST: DO IT FOR SELF. BE GREEDY FOR GOODNESS.

I chuckle at your little games of such as: “If you aren’t good, Junior, you will get coal in your stocking.” Let me point out that if Junior is cold, he will have received the best of all gifts in a sack of coal, which might then warm the entire group around him as they gather to the fire now made available. And when YOU consider the lump of coal as the blessing it is—you will be grateful for ALL THINGS.

I like to tattle on Dharma when I get a good chance for an example—and yes, she gives me lot of chances to take note. You are of me and her and, therefore, we can share—for you are the same.

Yesterday, in this little apartment-hotel in which Ekkers have lived now for some time longer than the couple of weeks expected, they were accepted as family with the employees. They don't know the owners—but they are among the employees at every opportunity. Yesterday was E.J.'s birthday, as well as being the day of the employee celebration, so some choices had to be made when the employees issued a SPECIAL invitation to Ekkers to their party. And it was totally wondrous to see the interchange as children were shared, dancing was everywhere, traditions were shared and, yes, even the laundry team was smuggling beer to the Ekkers' seats, because Granny was turning red from the heat. There is no ice and snow in Manila—it has cooled to, perhaps, 93 degrees. Doris and E.J. were also asked to judge performances and costumes, as some on the program were dressed “for the New Millennium”—which was an interesting concept and an even stranger presentation. Doris went about telling the staff that they were accepting bribes, but no bribes came, so she voted the winner to be the guy smuggling the beer. Anyway, it was fun, and E.J. was interesting in his dancing, for you who know him from Green River Stomp days, dancing on his cane and giving thanks that the “new dancing” only requires a bit of gyration, without moving location.

This was a winding way of noting that not only was this a wonderful sharing time of EQUALS in heart and dreams, but before the party part started, a priest had come to do “Mass”.

I'm going to tell you this, because—as it turns out, and although there were NO MEETINGS scheduled—the most IMPORTANT one person, and part of his family, appeared just ahead of the party.

It was even more interesting, for these are the people setting up a bit of “interim” funds for a loan. The man involved said E.J. had not given him full instructions on how to handle one or two coordinates—and needed that information so as to fully manage whatever was being attended.

Doris had not met the person or most of the group with him, and now what do you do? You have a choice to make, which, of course, is no choice at all, because you must, number one: keep your commitment, and two: E.J. could handle one, while Doris could stand in for the other. So, off Dharma went to first meet the people and then attend the employees.

Don't you see that the very KEEPING OF A COMMITMENT meant more to that MAN than anything else that could have happened? And where would Doris be going? Well, of course, to Mass! To Mass (?) you might query, but she isn't.... Ah, but she is “catholic”, she just isn't Roman Catholic. But, she had two “bodyguards” with her to see to “Mom's” feeling comfortable, and the next hour was a totally delightful experience.

She met the humble Father presiding and, before the service, they were great friends. Also, since the “other” meeting was so very important, her heart was full and grateful—a combination not to be lightly overlooked. So, with gracious comments, the Father gave appreciation and acceptance of her presence among them, and did a wonderful lesson on CHRISTMAS—mostly in Tagalog. But, you see, no language was necessary: LOVE WAS SHOWN LIKE THE THING IT IS—THE FACE OF GOD.

But what was humorous? After the service, the Father again met with Doris, and he beamed and said: “I am praying for your success, and I will pray twice as hard from now on.”

Dharma said to the man that dreams are coming true for “we-the-people” of God, and we must only pray for “others” and our “relations”, and that she had worked this thing out pretty well: she “would pray hard for him (the priest)” and if he prayed hard for our projects, we would get this thing done. SO, THERE'S A LOT OF PRAYIN' GOIN' ON AROUND HERE.

There was so much love and appreciation among everyone that the “business people” didn't leave until the party was almost over—sitting in the open dining area and experiencing their own family members in renewal of some long-neglected relationships. Oh, indeed, chelas, YOU HAVE CREATED THE WAY, AND THESE THINGS OF LOVE FOR WHICH WE WORK UNSTINTINGLY WILL MANIFEST—and now, more quickly than you might have imagined, for the ground is now cleared and the fields ready for the next crop to be the fruit of our labors. WILL IT BE EASIER? YES, INDEED, IF YOU ARE OF US. IF YOU SERVE SATAN, YOUR SPIRAL “DOWNWARD” WILL LIKELY INCREASE, BUT YOU ARE GOING TO EXPERIENCE THE “POSSIBILITY” OF CHANGE.

There is foot-dragging here, because the overall, larger plan is now set in the schedule for after things settle from the silliness taking place in the world of confusion. But the plans are accepted, the needs are noted and being taken care of from various “end” departments, where impacts are greatest, and this is to allow no jumping of any starting gun. This is why there will be totally separate assistance, if arrangements can be concluded to allow for a better ease in integration of the programs and projects ahead. WE ALWAYS MUST CLEAR UP THAT WHICH IS PAST—TO EASILY, AND IN KNOWING OF PLAYERS, DISCERN WHO IS DEPENDABLE AND WHO WILL DROP AWAY, AND WHO IS TRUE FRIEND VS. GOOD-WEATHER ACQUAINTANCE AND WHO IS AND HAS DECLARED THROUGH VOICE OR ACTION TO BE “THE ENEMY”. WE DO NOT SERVE THE ADVERSARY, INTENTIONALLY, TO ASSIST IN HIS EVIL GAMES. THIS IS JUST “THE WAY IT IS”.

Our hearts are filled to overflow with gratitude and thanksgiving, as we anticipate the NEW. You now have “New World Disorder” and, whether or not you LIKE IT, you have a global status, as in “community”—but, ah, the community is in total unbalance and confusion. You need individual SOVEREIGNTY in equal understanding and opportunity WITHIN a community of the ONE. Technology has brought the FACT of world communications and “being”; you must now form a basis upon which to build that community as a WHOLE, to bring you to the ABILITY TO FUNCTION WITHIN YOUR NEXT NEIGHBORHOOD OF COSMIC PARTICIPATION, WHICH WILL BE YOUR NEXT DESIRE AT ANNEXATION. AND YOU AREN'T GOING TO BE LIKED AS THE NEW KIDS IN SCHOOL IF YOU CONTINUE TO BLOW UP EVERYTHING YOU TOUCH. AGAIN, YOUR “DRUTHERS” ARE OF LESSER IMPORTANCE THAN THE FACT THAT “THIS IS THE WAY IT IS”.

Ideas come and grow, and knowledge of the BEST way to go is often presented—unfortunately, sometimes it is prior to that which is possible for even movement within the given setting. We do not go to battle; WE MUST WORK WITH AND WITHIN THAT WHICH IS—AND GROW EVER UPWARD TOWARD LIGHT AND FREEDOM. THE WAY MOST EASILY PRESENTED FOR SUCH ACHIEVEMENT IS TO ACTUALLY NEGOTIATE AND GROW RIGHT WITHIN THE SETTING PROVIDED, WHICH MAY WELL NOT YET BE TO YOUR IDEAL STAGE OF PRESENTATION. WE WORK WITH “WHAT IS” AND GROW INTO THAT WHICH “IS DESIRED”.

I caution my own team that you cannot dictate to that “other” party, who “co-ventures”, what he shall do with “his”, once the co-venture is accomplished; for our portion of the joint venture ENDS in the agreement, with the funding. Ah, so! Participate in the joy, but do not dictate that which the other MUST DO with his rightfully acquired assets.

This protects the base spring, from which amazing things can be brought to life elsewhere and in other ways. You can disagree with a man without causing his desire for non-participation, or confronting in any type of insult to his own ideas and ideals. THE BETTER WAY WILL PRESENT ITSELF WITHOUT YOUR ATTITUDES AND OPINIONS OF PERSONAL NATURE CLOUDING WISDOM BY “SELF-DEFENSE” OF EGO MANIFESTATION. YOU DO YOUR PART, AND WE SHALL DO OURS—AND THE OTHER SHALL COME TO SEE THE BETTER WAY—IF, INDEED, WE OFFER A BETTER WAY. “WE FIND A NEED AND FILL IT”—AS THE CAPITALISTIC ADVERTISEMENT GOES.

If we keep our agreements—then the other man can know that he will be secure in keeping his. GOD KEEPS HIS AGREEMENTS, BUT MAN IS PRONE TO BREAK HIS.

I don't want to linger on this message, because you have so much ahead to confront and with which to grow. It is a time of change—as is all “time” and universal thought.

So, at Christmas—put a bit of “CHRIST” into and within your being and in your actions, and the reality will present, while the mythology is also taken in its proper perspective as part of the illusion of the play within which you are manifest.

It is a wondrous opportunity to present change, because the longings of mankind are better focused on that which is goodly, as a mass consciousness, no matter which “religion” you choose. Religions are clubs—GOD IS. Unfortunately, the “clubs” of Earth are based on the very forgotten premise of GOD THAT IS.

And, how can you know whether or not a man who claims to be God is real or false? His claim makes him FALSE. He can be OF God, With God and WITHIN God, but if he proclaims to be THE “second coming of Christ”—he is NOT. For one thing, it “cannot” be only the “second coming of...”, so the whole premise is incorrect, in actuality. When we THINK in the REALITY of WHAT IS, we stop making such foolish errors.

And, remember: A THING is only of value relative to the value YOU GIVE IT. GOD IS TOTAL; a THING is but your perception of it.

My wish is that you have JOY and GLORY during ANY festival of lights or sharing, and even more joy and glory in your REALITY OF TRUTH, LOVE, LIGHT AND BEINGNESS.

Give A Man A Vision And He Will Accept Nothing Less

12/20/99—#1

TRANSITIONS AND EVOLUTION

Hatonn—Dharma, I ask that we get the writings lined up early, as in right now, so that the team can have a bit more comfortable time-schedule. While we double-up on work during holidays, we must remember that there are family things to be attended and friendships to be strengthened—and Y2K games waiting in the data banks to allow the kiddies of chaos to spring a few “gotchas”. Let us avoid getting bound up or our computers infected.

It is pretty much “time” for us to go pretty much into “silent running”, for a lot of things are taking place; people are going out on a limb to help, “ahead” of time, to accommodate our needs, and if it can’t be worked out suitably, then NOTHING can actually “change hands” or accounts until that calendar turns over. We can do a lot of things in 7 days. Actually, it is often said that God CREATED the world in 7 days! Or, was it six, and He twiddled his thumbs on the 7th? How quickly we forget!

We are working with THE people who will get this project done and running, while having to work around world schedules, for there is no concept of the masses as to anything, including that which is right in front of them or, actually, on them. There is mass deadening, without the ease of anesthesia. The pain grows, while the perception of ability to change weakens.

The commercialism built into the current concept of Christmas has caused people to be totally blinded by the lights, the hype and the actual needs of the moment, in which they who have NOT will not recognize the extreme difference in themselves and their masters. A man in this position will actually give his life for 100 pesos this afternoon, rather than be willing to wait (unless forced to do so) for next week and a better job, position, future or whatever would come—if we just work solidly together. But this is MAN’S time of choosing—and he has become accustomed to being enslaved, so he cannot perceive the vision beyond the visual chaos of his circumstance.

Next, what happens? Well, the “ordinary” man will now give his helplessness to the “Lord”, because he has no place, seemingly, otherwise to turn. So he prays, and usually nothing happens, for ALL he does is pray—for God to fix it. God is not going to do that “FIXING”—so the church preachers have taught man HOW TO SUFFER. They will teach that even the Christ came forth to teach mankind HOW TO SUFFER. No, the Christ-teachers came forth to teach man that there is ETERNAL LIFE. Well, who the heck, in the pits of hell, wants “eternal” life? However, with the HELP of the religious rhetorical oratory and the political hogwash, a man learns to tolerate his suffering. He will actually TURN AWAY FROM ABUNDANCE, IN FAVOR OF SUFFERING! This is not only NOT unusual—but is the normal thing to happen. He will actually turn from the Godly TRUTH and follow the clowns of Disney World.

Well, I will share something with you readers: There is not a single employee in this hotel in Makati, Manila that doesn’t KNOW this is all going to happen, and some are having their confirmation meetings each day, several times, to add strength to Ekkers’ task at hand. THE most important persons to the beginning of this projected PLAN now come here because they can relax, visit with “family”, share with “US” and witness the love that has grown between our two representatives and the people. THIS WHOLE “THING” IS FOR THE PEOPLE, REMEMBER? But the people have to be reminded of how wondrous THEY ARE, so that they step right out and seize the moment—they are the leaders of tomorrow!

You want to witness joy and acceptance? You truly would have delighted at the hotel employees’ party. The laundry persons and the housecleaning staff kept old Mom and old E.J. on the dance-floor all evening—with smiles from ear to ear. Doris—and E.J., on a cane yet—learned the funky chicken wiggle-giggle and the Hard Rock gyration-invasion, and our “lender” VIP learned a bit more about “his people”.

In the Philippines, the biggie is to send away “contract workers” to all parts of the world as “slaves” to serve the higher masters. Poo, these people are bright, and all they need is an opportunity to “dance” circles around those Puppet-Masters’ puppets in high places. Life and living will be EXACTLY what YOU make it to be.

Do you really think human-to-human, in LOVE, is not enough to “cut it”? Well, I beg to differ, for in sharing as equals in a project for growth, out of 186 rooms and apartments full of guests—exactly five people outside the employee staff were even allowed at this gathering. Moreover, THIS year, the owner had to rearrange the usual routine to allow the possible new buyer to see how great they treat their staff. Wow, they were allowed to have their party by the pool and their dinner laid out in the “Conference” room off the pool—and actually to have Mass in the same room. Last year and all other years, what little they had was under the shed in the under-back of the hotel. GIVE A MAN A VISION AND HE WILL ACCEPT NOTHING LESS. HE MAY NOT BE ABLE TO SEE HOW “HE”, ALONE, CAN DO MUCH—BUT WITH UNBENDING STRENGTH TO FOLLOW, HE WILL ACHIEVE THE GOAL, FIRST OF THE LEADER-GUIDE AND THEN FOR HIMSELF.

How can Ekkers possibly fail? There is more praying from REAL HEARTS going on around here than you can imagine! Dreams of educations for themselves and their children, self-respect, security for their families through their own labors—are the visions now held strong. And yes, we will know how to DO IT when the time is come—“I” can see to “that”.

Ah, but first, hearts have to be opened, so that MINDS can be opened and egos put aside, while reality of worth finds its rightful place at the top of the list of individual attributes.

And furthermore, for whatever all the reasons might be for Ekkers not going home and leaving everything up in the air until they have their own family interchange—the people witness a GROWING instead of a lessening of effort—and a staying of the course—WITH THEM. AND, READERS, GOD IS RECOGNIZED WHEN HIS PEOPLE STAY THE COURSE.

I come into the witness of the badgering of the Millers back home, as the insipids try to get them to sign-off on documents that somehow would, they are told, “hang the awful Ekkers”. How so? Tricky, et al., would ACTUALLY FURTHER DAMAGE THE MILLERS? My goodness, is there no end to the atrocities?

I am going to offer here the information Bellringer got from Rick Martin and ran on INTERNATIONAL Internet. Read carefully, as if you are an attorney-at-law, and see what you see as potential for litigation, for or against the parties. Note the hedging of “facts” and, if you remember the entire episode as it unfolded, you will recognize that this came on top of major placement of this information in the “hijacked” editions of CONTACT and in Spectrum. Then there was a major effort to make circumstances so difficult to manage that Ekkers would have to come home to attend business—or LOSE EVERYTHING, INCLUDING, AGAIN, THE HOUSE AND PERSONAL THINGS. IT WAS NEVER IMAGINED THAT EKKERS WOULD JUST LET IT GO IN ORDER TO FINISH THIS JOB IN SOUTHEAST ASIA. SO BE IT. YES, WE HAVE FACT—FOR MILLERS SAID THAT “THAT GROUP” ASKED THEM TO FILE MAJOR COMPLAINT PAPERS AGAINST EKKERS/PHOENIX INSTITUTE, AND MRS. MILLER SAID THAT SHE HAD REFUSED TO DO SO.

There is NO case against the Phoenix Institute. Loans are not due and owing, as has been attested and tested IN COURT! Further, if the issues are pushed because of the legal “tie-ups” by parties who have perpetrated fraud on international TELEVISION, there will be further damages to consider by you attached to PI against the greedy thieves—most of whom have NOTHING invested, loaned or coming. They have been the users and takers for, lo, these years.

I want you to look at this paragraph and see what YOU WOULD DO, if you were near the end of the incredible journey to success of a whole change?

“Financial authorities in the United States are claiming that fraud charges have been filed against E.J. and Doris Ekker, and that there are some very serious warrants out for their arrest, should they return to the United States. Apparently, the charges include misuse of Phoenix Institute funds and misuse of the Herman Peruvian gold certificate.”

Errors included? Well, from back to front: Ekkers have never even seen a Peruvian gold certificate or, much the less, a Herman Peruvian gold certificate. They have been shown copies of “duplicated” “things”, which are NOT either certificates or valid duplicates.

Well, actually, with full knowledge of EVERYONE, after this very referenced publication, the Ekkers DID RETURN HOME. But have the miscreants again, AS THEY DID BEFORE, turned in anonymously the Ekkers to avoid being caught AGAIN in their OWN TRAP? Sometimes it is better to NOT KNOW—it doesn’t cloud your thinking about IMPORTANT PRIORITIES. If YOU were told, Mr./Ms. Reader, that you were going to be arrested by the Federal authorities, should you “return to the U.S.”, and you were away—about to finish the job you went to accomplish—WOULD “YOU” RUSH BACK TO SAVE A HOUSE FROM THE AUCTION

BLOCK? WHY? IS THERE NO REASON IN YOUR MINDS? IF YOU ACCOMPLISH WHAT YOU SET FORTH TO DO—AND IT INCLUDES VERY LARGE FUNDING RESOURCES—IS “THAT” HOUSE OF “REAL” VALUE? ONLY IN THE HEART, FRIENDS, ONLY IN THE HEART.

The misfits have tied themselves into incredible knots of libel, fraud and mismanagement (along with criminal activities), since that was first placed to Internet, so as to have actually wrapped up the case against them—hook, line and sinker. I would have assumed that Millers had already paid quite enough for listening and acting on this terrible advice and pressure. The COST to them, alone, is far more than the price of the house in point.

I asked Doris to sit and respond to Patrick Bailey, for there is a friendship that goes back a dozen years—but Patrick “Bellringer” went on international Internet supporting Rick’s lies and condemning Ekkers, primarily Doris. Those papers were never published by CONTACT, nor even scattered to all the E-mail recipients—but did go to Bellringer, for a retraction on his Internet site. Did he do that? Not to the notice of those checking. At last statement (from materials SENT to Malaysia and Brunei), the message from Rick Martin must still be currently on that site. BUT I TELL YOU AGAIN, NOW, THAT TRUTH WILL “OUT”; IT HAS “OUTED”, AND IT IS NO LONGER THE EKKERS IN JEOPARDY. This is only the very best EVIDENCE FOR THE COURT OF LAW—THE VERY BEST! Rick, et al., should be known as the Anonymous Shadow People of the Lie, for they never do anything openly—for what they offer is so filled with lies as to never make themselves publicly recognized. They play silly, childish games with those who do not appreciate games in the first place—and childish stupidity is not condoned under any circumstances. Have YOU ever noticed how totally imbecilic and silly Satan is?

Well, readers and friends, we do not jeopardize this program to go weep over our stolen goods—NOW OR EVER. I believe that to begin the NEW YEAR by cleaning the closets, we will probably ask that all those pages of writing to Patrick be offered in CONTACT, for we do NOT hide—we want it right out there into the public arena for all eyes to see and ears to hear. GOD IS NEITHER A WIMP NOR A PIOUS FOOL ACTING ON THE MOST RIDICULOUS AND INSIDIOUS PERCEPTIONS OF MISFITS AND MISCREANTS. GROW UP!

The problem is that the exchange took place in June (13-14), and thus, so much has unfolded since that the information is “book”-sized, and we don’t actually want to give away our own strategy because it is being forced into court on many counts—after the children of the lie were given every opportunity, along with associates, to clear the entire situation(s).

It is not “just Ekkers”, readers; this hit Cort Christie, as they turned in his operation to the Feds on the basis of something-or-other—legal (IT IS NOW PROVEN) but reported as illegal activities (the “boys” don’t bother to learn facts). It ruined the stability of income for one of Cort’s LEGALLY SERVING employees and cost, now, probably around a million $$$ a year for loss of that asset. It also caused Cort, via blackmail (is the only way to put it), to fire a worthy, loyal employee and keep the very offender on his payroll, with even more “responsibility”. But more than these things, Phoenix Institute and Ekkers, personally, funded the very upstart of NCH, paid travel (move to Las Vegas for Cort) and literally built the company, only to never get help of any kind—and find now that the whole of the stock was issued, personally, to Cort, himself.

That incorporation agency was started as a BUSINESS—one of the PROJECTS into which people had loaned money to establish it. Do we now let that slide, while our people hurt and are made to lose, to disallow confrontation over the FACTS? I do NOT mean “Ekkers”, good friends—I AM TALKING ABOUT YOU OF PHOENIX INSTITUTE CONNECTIONS. THAT business has done INCREDIBLY WELL, and what do we get in exchange? Oh, things thugged from the warehouse, a takeover of some of the corporations—on more than one occasion—and, to “distance” himself, a lawsuit brought months ago against Ekkers for over $40,000 in “so-called” arrearages. Of course, Mr. Moorhead is the “controller” and apparently forgot how the company was structured at upstart—and NEVER WAS CHANGED, except that Cort branched off into a dozen different directions, instead of attending what he was PAID AND ESTABLISHED TO DO.

Margie, do you kiss goodbye the loan you made, so Cort can slide? Well, you out there are going to have to make some choices, aren’t you?

Offers were made to Millers regarding a resolution of damages over the house property, and they were given until November 14 to respond. They didn’t bother, and now their lawyer is caught in a terrible squeeze—of actual malpractice, it appears.

Cort was given time to respond and resolve this matter: simply square up the records, recover the stolen corporate records (taken by the Spectrum children from the house) and get the other corporations attended and brought current, and cease and desist from deliberately giving out FALSE INFORMATION regarding Global Alliance.

That didn’t stop, and we now have the “Mayor” of Bataan back in town, full to overflow about his trip “abroad”, including his treatment or experiences while in Las Vegas and at NCH. He had funders WITH HIM—really good show to have no notion from your Corporate Agent that you even exist.

So, against all odds, we have succeeded? Certainly, we have succeeded “enough” to be able to attend these nasty little games and continue with our work.

Where does EVIL find footing? In those who think themselves to be beyond reproach. If you are working for God, do you actually think Satan won’t pull in his best tricksters? Oh, you children of the lie—you sit for 10 or more years proclaiming your allegiance to goodness and then follow the vipers the first time you stick your foot into the jackal-poop.

It is hard to sit and write day after long day and hold to truth, while the battering ram is pounding your door and your heart—but we do it, and we become stronger for the beating, and we will face whatever comes next on the home front—or abroad. You are in a global COMMUNITY, no matter what you choose to believe. You can’t ignore a “New World Order”—you are in that New World Order. All you can do is change the structure within toward a better way and get “what is” on your team to help. GOD ALLOWS—MAN MUST CONFRONT; AND WHEN YOU GET THAT STRAIGHT, YOU MAY YET MAKE IT.

IT IS NOT A “NEW MILLENNIUM” IN POINT, AS YOU MOVE AHEAD—IT IS WHAT YOU DO WITH THAT WONDROUS GIFT OF “TIME” THAT DETERMINES YOUR LEGACY TO A WORLD AND MANKIND. IT HAS NOTHING TO DO WITH BUGS IN YOUR COMPUTERS—THERE ARE NO BUGS IN YOUR COMPUTERS—JUST LACK OF BRAINS. STOP SCAPEGOATING YOUR LACK OF COURAGE TO CHANGE ANYTHING.

I wish to move on and, in so doing, I want to share a Max Soliven editorial column. I am not going to delve into politics, but you must attend that which is no longer isolated or selective as to location—YOU ARE IN A GLOBAL INTERCHANGING WORLD—FACE IT!

[QUOTING, Max Soliven, Publisher and Chairman of the Board, the Philippine Star, Sun., Dec. 19, 1999:]

GOOD OVERCOMING EVIL IS WHAT CHRISTMAS AND NATIONHOOD ARE ALL ABOUT

Resisting the urge to dispense sermons at Christmastime taxes even the most ingenuous of pastors, opinion writers—and villains—during the Yuletide season.

There is always a great deal of prayerful thought and introspection during this “holy season”—but it is eclipsed by the crass materialism of the shopping spree.

This reminds me of the unforgettable but cynical lines of Daniel Defoe (1660-1731), better known for his novel, ROBINSON CRUSOE, than for his more serious works. In a book called THE TRUE-BORN ENGLISHMAN (1701), a satire on King William III, Defoe wrote:

“Whenever God erects a house of prayer,
The Devil always builds a chapel there.
And ‘twill be found upon examination,
The latter has the larger congregation.”

[H: Wow, does this fit today, or what?]

I was reminded of these lines from the English author when businessman Jaime Augusto Zobel de Ayala II, the scion of the clan that built Makati, remarked upon receiving a Ten Outstanding Young Men (TOYM) award for business leadership that “crime and corruption get all the attention (but) goodness goes unreported”.

The “cynicism and skepticism of the times,” Zobel the Younger lamented, “misrepresent the way people and things really are.”

Perhaps there’s wisdom in promoting this kind of optimism. Truly, then, Jaime Augusto deserves the TOYM award for business leadership, for as Napoleon Bonaparte, the great French Emperor, declared in his Maxims: “A leader is a dealer in hope.”

As a matter of fact, however, Napoleon, the “Child of Destiny” who conquered most of Europe, didn’t trust in leadership and hope alone—he perfected the use of artillery and cavalry.

The same should be true of us as we fight for right, decency, liberty and freedom of opportunity for everyone. We must establish a just society which lives by the law, and not by the wiles of lawyers. As one of America’s founding fathers, Thomas Jefferson, put it so well in a letter to Abbe’ Arnold in 1789, “The execution of the laws is more important than the making of them.” [H: Well, no wonder the Native Americans so despised Mr. Jefferson—Jefferson was one of the worst respecters of “Indians” known at the time. And he is, in fact, WRONG. If the laws are GOOD, they shall stand, and to “enforce” bad laws against helpless people is an atrocity. You have example after example of bad laws being inflicted against all of Creation so, if nothing else, perhaps Mr. Jefferson should have been hanged for furthering such a bad idea.]

We have one of the best bodies of law in the world; the problem is that, despite hundreds of excellent statutes, we don’t observe or revere them. “Justice” has become a game of wits, with everybody seemingly engaged in scheming to evade the law or punch through loopholes in the law. [H:

IF THERE WERE TRUE JUSTICE, THERE WOULD BE NO NEED FOR LOOPHOLES, FOR THE CRIMINALS WOULD BE DISEMPOWERED.]

Which brings us back to Zobel's argument. Of course, crime and corruption get more attention than goodness. [H: One good reason for that state of affairs is that there is ever so much MORE corruption than goodness taking place.] As Jean Cocteau, the French thinker, said in Le Rappel; a' l'Ordre, "If it has to choose who is to be crucified, the crowd will always save Barabbas (not Christ)."

Good will, in the end, we earnestly believe, overcome evil. However, it will take a long time and a great deal of sacrifice to accomplish that. [H: No, it takes no longer than actually confronting evil and researching possibilities, but just like Mr. Soliven, people won't bother, for they set themselves ABOVE AND BEYOND those who offer "the way" and treat them exactly like they did the Christ—as if they are NOTHING, and certainly NOTHING of importance to waste a half-hour of a busy man's schedule for a meeting with his own cronies. Mr. Soliven had an opportunity to MAKE HIS POSITIVE POSITION IN THE LEGACY OF A NATION AND A GLOBE, AND HE WAS SIMPLY IRRITATED AND SAID, "HOW DO I KNOW WHO YOU ARE?" OH, WELL. AS TO SACRIFICE? WHAT SACRIFICE? ARE YOU SAYING THAT TO ACCOMPLISH JOY AND JUSTICE IT REQUIRES SACRIFICE? ISN'T IT ABOUT TIME THE "SACRIFICE" IS MADE BY THE GUILTY CRIMINALS, BY LOSING THEIR ABILITY TO CORRUPT, SKIVE, STEAL, LIE AND CHEAT? DON'T ASK THE PEOPLE TO LONGER SACRIFICE WHILE THESE IDIOTS LEAD—GET RID OF THE SCUM, AND THE PEOPLE WILL TAKE BACK THEIR GOVERNMENTS AND "LEAD". This may all sound very good, Max, but the facts are, it is just more rhetoric now dumped on the people to make them feel they must longer sacrifice. Why don't you "sacrifice" your own ego-trappings and come DOWN HERE with we-the-people?]

There is no peace in Palestine, in Israel and the Middle East, where "Christianity" began. It is the battleground of contending Faiths; how strange it is that religious beliefs bring discord and hatred, rather than brotherhood, each side convinced it is doing the will of God, of Yahweh and of Allah, all one and the same [supposedly] Deity.

Even among Christians, bloody wars were fought through the centuries, martyrs hanged, drawn and quartered; saints, scientists and thinkers burned at the stake.

Fearful of ending his "reign" on a sour note of failure, America's President Bill Clinton is attempting to forge a last-minute "peace" between those two hostile nations, Israel and Syria. [H: And yes, indeed, sort of as with little Monica—by raping them both. When Satan leads, what possible GODLINESS can come from the plan set forth?]

The peace talks being held in Washington, DC, on the other hand, got off to a very shaky start. The Foreign Minister of Syria, Mr. Farouk Shara, delivered a fiery and hostile opening speech—which took Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak and Israel's Foreign Minister David Levy aback, and was declared by them as "unacceptable".

Nonetheless, President Clinton had apparently compelled the men from Jerusalem and the delegation from Damascus to go on talking. The suspicion arises, despite the assurances of Prime Minister Barak, one of Israel's most decorated generals in the past, that he is ready to discuss the "return" to Syria of the verdant and strategically-located Golan Heights, which Israeli forces seized in the Six-Day War 32 years ago, driving thousands of Syrians from their farms and homes, and, in the intervening decades, converting that fertile patch of orchard and pasture land into a place of "milk and honey".

At least half a million displaced Syrians have their roots in the Golan (from Israel fortifications and pillboxes there you can see Syria's capital of Damascus with the naked eye).

In spite of Barak's assurances of discussing the exchange of "land for peace", there is now bitterness among the 17,000 Israelis who settled there, and even among 20,000 Druzes of Syrian origin.

I can understand the reluctance. In 1965, on a long-ago visit to Israel, Jordan and Lebanon, I spent with my wife a few days in the most exposed kibbutz (or settlement) in the Galilee, a place called Kibbutz Tel Katzir, which means "Hill of the Harvest". Our spell in this hardworking "fortified" settlement was laced with some danger. A wall protected Israelis and their children from Syrian snipers perched high above them, in the Golan Heights. But, once in a while, a fusillade of bullets and mortar rounds would harass the kibbutz, which stands not far from Lake Kinnaret, better known in Biblical fame as the SEA OF GALILEE, where Jesus once walked upon the water, and where He enjoined His apostles to cast their nets to bring up swarming loads of fish and where He promised to make them "fishers of men".

Barak, indeed, while a tough Prime Minister determined to pursue the interrupted "peace process", risks his own life by proposing the "return" of the Golan to the Syrians.

In my last visit to Israel, in 1996, I arrived just a few weeks after November 4, 1995, when a visionary Prime Minister (himself a famous general), Yitzhak Rabin, was assassinated by a militant Jew for daring to talk "peace" with the Arabs.

We laid flowers at the site of Rabin's murder in a square in Tel Aviv.

We subsequently met Barak himself in Jerusalem. He was then foreign minister and a fire-breathing nationalist, although, as a friend, he mourned Rabin's martyrdom. Now, having overthrown the radical, "anti-peace" government of Bibi Netanyahu, Mr. Barak has come across, in the Rabin model, as a moderate and a peacemaker.

It's early days yet. The Syrian-Israeli talks may still bog down. There has been too much bloodshed, there have been too many injustices, too many feuds, too much fanaticism on both sides. As the Russian writer Nikolai Gogol once described it, man's fate is too often burdened "by the weight of the dead souls".

On that trip, a group of editors and journalists from Asia, Europe and the United States, undertook an expedition to the Golan. As we wheeled our way up the mountain trail to that high plateau, it snowed. At the summit, there was a fortification. A soldier stood guard in the bitter cold. I ASKED HIM IF HE WAS A "SABRA" (AN ISRAELI BORN IN ISRAEL, NAMED AFTER THE PRICKLY BUT SWEET FRUIT OF THE CACTUS).

"NOT AT ALL," THE IDF SOLDIER REPLIED IN THE MOST ATROCIOUS NEW YORK ACCENT. "I'M FROM BROOKLYN."

From the Golan, you can cross the mine fields into Syria.

During the Black September War of 1970, I found the Golan useful as an infiltration point. I had flown straight to Ben Gurion Airport from Rome at the start of the "war" between Jordan's plucky late King Hussein and the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO's) warriors for the control of his Hashemite Kingdom.

Hussein crushed the PLO uprising with the armored strength of his Arab legion, which had been trained into a hard-as-nails combat force by the late General Glubb of Britain. The Syrians punched in with their Russian-made tanks to "rescue" the PLO men, who were being battered.

In the nick of time, I had managed to sneak up the Golan and cross into Syria's Irbid Peninsula—and witnessed that crucial battle. The Jordanian Arab Legion's British-made (World War II vintage) Centurion tanks sliced through the Syrian armor like a knife through butter.

Within a few hours, with Syrian tanks burning all around, the confrontation was over. Under the cover of darkness, the Syrians, humiliated, towed the charred wrecks of their destroyed tanks away. (It was the neatest form of sad "garbage disposal" I had every witnessed.)

The Israelis had ranged their tanks and armored units along the demarcation line, just in case the Syrian tank units got "ambitious" and strayed towards Galilee. They were gratified to be only "spectators", having avoided being drawn into that decisive battle. But this just goes to show how strategic and vital to Israel's defense the Golan remains.

Will the Israelis ever trust the Syrians? Will the Syrians ever accept a peace forged by the Americans, always Israel's biggest supporter and guarantors?

It's just like the miracle of Christmas. It requires a leap of faith.

Over the December skies will we see the Christmas Star, and not the blazing trail of Scud missiles?

This is the conundrum.

And yet, this desert region is a place of miracles. One of the most astounding miracles is how the PLO's leading terrorist, Yasser Arafat, has—in the past few years—become the Apostle of Peace. God bless them all.

[H: This "miracle" of Arafat is not so unusual. He underwent an ambush where he, only, survived. He was killed, and he met GOD FACE TO FACE—THAT changes a man's outlook on a lot of things.]

Another country which belongs intimately to the chronicle of Christmas and Christianity is next-door Egypt, the former Land of the Pharaohs, where—instead of commemorating the Third Millennium—the Egyptians are announcing the celebration of their Seventh Millennium, or 7,000 years of civilization.

You see this fact proclaimed in all those CNN advertisements. On New Year's Eve, a large helicopter will deposit a cone of gold atop the world-renowned and ancient Pyramid of Cheops on the outskirts of Cairo. [H: And doesn't this make all you Illuminati illuminates just a bit squeamish in your sandals? That is a JEWISH antic, with a lot of money poured into the commercial adventure by France, which makes up the KZB (Khazarian Zionist Bolsheviks). The serpent people are showing you that they are a long way from dead—yet!]

The gold cone will rest there only a short while and will then be whisked away—again by helicopter—probably lest somebody steal it.

The name "Cairo" is a corruption of the appellation in Arabic, El Kahira (The Victorious One). The title was given to their Arab encampment by the Fatimid conquerors of Egypt in the Year 969 AD [H: That was a good year, when Satan got trapped between God Allah and Aton.] Many of the world's Islamic leaders—and quite a number of terrorists and rebels (like Mindanao's Moro Islamic Liberation Front supremo, USTADZ Salamat Hashim) were educated in Cairo's university. [H: Please remember that Mr. Max Soliven is writing this article, NOT ME OR MINE.]

Islam has held sway in the land of Egypt for so many centuries that even Christians have forgotten that there, long before Islam, lived the first Christians. [H: Yes, it is easy to forget, since the Christians ceased to act in any manner like “christ”.]

Not only was Egypt (which after all borders on Israel) one of the cornerstones of the early Christian faith, but—if you think of it—Cairo could be called, as validly as Bethlehem, the “hometown” of Jesus Christ.

Think of the Bible story: Jesus could not have been more than a few days old before Joseph and Mary were compelled to flee with Him into Egypt to escape the murderous wrath of King Herod.

The King had been told that a male child had been born in Bethlehem of Judah [H: Well, we all thought that to be Judea but we so quickly forget truth in mythology.] who was destined to become “King of the Jews”. [H: No, he was never to become KING of any Jews. The very word “Jew” was not introduced into ANYTHING until about the Thirteenth Century AD. The term Jew was taken by the Khazarian Serpent People—and I suggest you all brush up on our Journals, if you don’t have current access to true historical writings, as in THE THIRTEENTH TRIBE, etc.]

Seeing this as a threat to his throne, King Herod ordered the massacre of all male infants in sight, thus we commemorate the Feast of the Holy Innocents. However, the Holy Couple, warned by an Angel, fled with their Child across the desert of the Sinai into Cairo. Of course, the place wasn’t called Cairo in those days (and only one of the four Evangelists, St. Matthew, mentions the flight into Egypt). Yet, there are words of the prophet attributed to Almighty God—“Out of Egypt have I called My Son...”.

In 1992, we drove to Mataria, about six miles from downtown Cairo, not far from Heliopolis, where President Hosni Mubarak lives—and near the international airport. In ancient times, Heliopolis was known as the city “sacred to the God Ra, Lord of the Sun, and to Horus, God of the Sky, the falcon-headed god (son of Osiris, God of the Underworld and Isis, Mother of the Earth).” [H: I suggest you ALL go look up very carefully what ALL THAT MEANS—you know, check it out with some of those like the new breed of so-called brainwashed ritual killers. You know, like Arizona Wilder, for you have just had some pretty big names dumped on you here.]

Near the renowned Youssof Kamal Palace is a street named Shagaret Mariam (The Street of Mary’s Tree). In this area stands a sycamore tree, gnarled with age but still green, protected by a high pink wall, in the shade of which—tradition says—the Holy Family sheltered at the end of their Flight into Egypt.

The little grove of sycamores was reputedly planted by Queen Cleopatra VII—the last of the line of Pharaohs descended from Ptolemy, a general of Alexander the Great....

[H: And so it goes!]

[END OF QUOTING]

Well, and how are your holiday schedules coming along? I suggest you DO keep in mind:

“Whenever god erects a house of prayer,

The Devil always builds a chapel there.

And ‘twill be found upon examination,

The latter has the larger congregation.”

I remain quite curious as to JUST HOW you overcome EVIL AND CORRUPTION by way of more evil and corruption? It never worked before. Oh, well...!

The Future Will Be Just What We Make It

12/22/99—#2

[D: Actually, I set this file up at exactly 12:22 and then decided that I was tired and needed to go to lunch, and in this “FREE-WILL” choice, as I perceive it to be, I have CHOSEN to go and come back in time to begin this real writing at exactly 2:22. How is that for daring adventure? I’m still not sure about this “free-will” stuff, for every time I deviate from the INSTRUCTIONS and go off into my “free-will” course of selfish ways, I somehow get “struck with the lightning and monsoons” of the heavens. I didn’t think I believed in “destiny”, but that obviously is not a good perception—in consideration of everything as a WHOLE. Fate? We’ll have to THINK ON THAT a bit more. I am going to exercise this two hours of free-will and see if I get struck dumb or something—well, er, mute, that is—“dumb” was a poor choice of words. I also note that a storm is heading in over Manila, and there is a bit of thunder and lightning. Not to quake in my boots, however, for I can cop-out by saying that the “power may fail”, and I may as well wait until this electrical blow is over.]

[D: Ah, HA! It is 2:22 and I almost overshot, so had to hurry with the computer routine. No zap, however. So, we have 1222222, and I do not mean to make trivial something with great meaning beyond that which we wish to KNOW. Commander said it would have much meaning for Little Crow.]

MOTHER EARTH AND THE ANCIENTS

Little Crow

Spotted Eagle rose and greeted GOD, after which he turned to the crowd and began to unfold his message:

Standing atop Bear Butte my eyes gazed out over the lands far below my vantage point. The wind blew in from the north and all about me everything was in movement, along with my spirit. It was a very special time for me—for this was the time of my seventh vision quest. It had been a long and lonely journey this time for my spirit and me, for the pathway lay hidden; covered over by the tailings of all those who came this way in more recent times. But so few are aware of the proper reasons. The grandfathers sang on this night and the thunder of their drums rumbled across the darkened skies eventually fading away far off into the distant universe. Suddenly, I was lifted—.

THE BEGINNING: It sounds like the start of a wonderful story. A story about America’s favorite pastime—American Indians. And, in particular, it sets the scene for what so many feel to be the ultimate experience—a vision quest—which somehow will bring knowledge.

A vision quest, a magnet for those digging into the Indian world. The unexplained need of these searchers to experience this mystic act or, at best, know all that there is to know about this ancient ritual. As if knowing about this “thing” will somehow change their lives and bring magical powers and much needed knowledge to their beings.

But, as you know, the vision quest is only one of the seven sacred rites of the Lakota People. There are other rites that go to make us a whole and complete PEOPLE, but that is for another time. What we are to talk about now is what came in the vision quest for one human being, and how that vision can now be shared with all people.

I am Little Crow, a Dakota/Lakota, born in the year 1933, making this birth the 198,000th incarnation of my spirit. Returning to this Earth plane only to share an infinite message with all life forms at the proper time. Permission to do so came during the early morning hours of January 5, 1987. To set the stage for this event were twenty-two strikes of lightning, ending at exactly 2:22 a.m. In this life, my spiritual number is a twenty-two (22). And away we go!

THE SHARING: I share with you now the following information as it has been given to me to “only remember” over these many life times. I do not feel the need to support any of this information with any other written data or readings. For the source of this information is the same for everyone. This source as we shall refer to it has ALWAYS BEEN AND WILL ALWAYS BE. WITH NO BEGINNING AND NO END. IT EXTENDS OUT BEYOND ITSELF AND COMES BACK TO ITSELF FOR THE SACRED CIRCLE. INFINITY—!

THE MESSAGE: We are travelers from unimagined regions of the universe, with homelands in many places. This planet and the surrounding ones are the most recent stopping-off places in this current vibrational form. Once more to act out the responsibilities of our selective realities, those being to accept who we are. No more! No less!

Our ability to travel is determined by our faith and nothing more. For all of the progress we’ve made on this place, we are still only able to move the physical properties of our being. It is sometimes hard to imagine our first journey to this place, this Mother Earth. I have come from the Seven Star System to this place, from Pleiades.

GOD: To the many peoples of this planet there have been offered hundreds of explanations of the whos, whats, wheres and the whys of God. Different religions have fought countless battles over whose truths should be accepted. Millions of souls have been forced into unnecessary vibrational changes in the name of God and conversions. Countries and lands have been stolen and destroyed in the name of God.

Leaders (as they call themselves) have ranted and raved throughout our brief history on this planet, forcing into our human mindset a system of fear and guilt. This guilt being so strong that humans had to devise various ways of escape, all self-destructive and utterly confusing.

Separation from the concept of God became the reality of the human being. Removal from center of the source of all things left mankind struggling and blinded by age-old analogies concerning God. Many came among the people, pulling them in separate groups, turning them one against the other, using the written word to convince them of their superiority of one over the other. Darkness reigned and reigns yet!

There are examples upon examples, and we could go on forever, seeing, on the passing screen, all that has occurred and the effect that these things have had upon the entire and related universe. The answer has always been simple and within our grasp, if only we were willing to take responsibilities of our creative spirits.

You are of God and God is of you! The existence of God is only possible by our own existence. The maximum power of God at any one time is only in direct ratio to the numbers who have accepted their responsibilities of living within this concept. There was no beginning and there is no end; WE (GOD) have been and will be forever. We, as humankind, will exist in this vibrational form only as long as it takes for us to realize our responsibilities and our ultimate powers.

DIMENSIONS: There are no dimensions where any one object, thing, act, person or religion is better than any other. By this we mean that no one is more spiritual, more religious, more saved, less saved, more sinful or less sinful than anyone else. No one thing is more or less inclined to receive any greater reward than any other thing.

Dimensions have only been a creation of mankind, and a pretty screwed up one at that. What it has done is to serve as a fuel for the fires of ignorance, hatred, greed, destruction and all of those wonderful things which we as human beings continued to hold up for our children to emulate. This has forced them to run faster and faster, all in pursuit of golden idols, running from God instead of towards God.

We are all from the same source; we are that source; we are the God we seek. How can we not see the simplicity of this fact? We seek outside of ourselves what is within.

No one is better or worse—we are the same, only in other forms. The time has now come to remove all of the stupid man-made barriers to the pathways of acceptance and balance. There were no dimensions created by God—only those we have created against ourselves. WAKE UP, DUMMIES!

RELATIONSHIPS: We are related to each other and everything that ever has been or that will ever be. It is not only in the spiritual connection of which we speak, but it also refers to our physical connections, as well.

This is to say that each and every thing that we do effects and affects everything else within the universe to the same degree that things which occur in the universe effect or affect our current vibrational forms. This, in simplest terms, means that we are RESPONSIBLE to EVERYTHING else for each and every thing that we think or do. This is surely similar to the overall responsibility that we mistakenly attempt to put upon the shoulders of the mythical man-made God that we have necessity in creating.

Everything is your relative and your responsibility. That is all and nothing more! (By the way, there are no greater rewards for anyone who comes to this conclusion, only discomfort and fitful nights of restless sleep.) So put aside all of the self-indulging misconceptions that God created man to rule over anything or anyone. This has been one of the main stumbling blocks to our being able to remember just who and what we are. SO STOP PREACHING “DIVISION” NONSENSE and let's get on with the business at hand—our responsibilities as God—to the rest of our relatives.

RESPONSIBILITIES: We have brought the world and its relatives, the entire universe, to the point of destruction: self-destruction! When the big bang goes down it won't be because of the Russians, the Arabs or anyone ELSE. It will be because of our own selves. Nothing more and nothing less!!

There are no outs and no scapegoats! There are no fall guys and no more “SAVIORS” to die for us. (Boy, how long have we kicked that one around?) Now it is down to just us—you and me, folks. We did it and we have to clean it up, stop it, change it or let it go as is. No one, and let me put this in Earth terms: “No one but no one is going to come down from anywhere and save our asses.”

Our brothers and sisters from the far reaches of the universe have been watching us for some time now, and they are attempting to assist us in reaching some kind of balanced position from whence we can, at last, launch into some constructive and realistic efforts at resolvment. That is, if we let them do so. By now, we are so afraid of anything on our sophisticated but childish radar screens that we're ready to blow anything and everything out of the unfriendly skies. How dumb can we be? And, how long do we intend to stay that way?

Their advancements have been totally a result of their acceptance of the God Self and its relationship to their own individual being. They are attempting to come among us and remind us of our responsibilities to the make-up of our total selves. We are the universe and we are about to self-destruct.

They are not coming to preach to us in the manner or sense that we have been in the most recent past or present. This present dimension junk has done nothing but keep us blinded and confused as to our real purpose. It has served to turn us outward against all things that don't act, think, look or worship like we do. We have wasted so much time buried in all this nonsense that we have totally lost sight of our spiritual reality. Is it any wonder that our prayers are not heard—we are too busy praying for ourselves to even be able to respond. We become selfish, rude and, worst of all, doubtful of our very beings. Is it any wonder that we haven't been able to remember anything of importance?

THE NOW: It is time for all of us to come together in the reality of our beings and return the Earth to the condition in which we found it. I give no consideration as to just when you got here, it remains your responsibility, just as much as it is mine.

What were the plans we had for handling all of the toxics and other things that we have created in the name of progress? We are clogging the roads and skies so badly that we're bumping into each other. Soon there will be no more room to fit even one more car, and yet, we continue to turn them out. Please don't waste conversation on the economics of “everything” argument—it doesn't matter any more. What does make a difference is our ability to get ourselves together and correct what we have done; we can, if we want to! But, it will call for all of us to come together and work out this dilemma.

All colors of beings must accomplish this—it is the responsibility of all colors of beings. All mindsets of beings must come together and work together, and all of us must come together NOW!

THE FUTURE: It will be just what we make it, not what we allow someone else to make it FOR us. No one can do it for you or for me. We are the ones that have to make the future a reality—not just an empty statement.

THE CONCLUSION: There are no separations of beings, no one is going anywhere without the other. There are no better or worse beings, one to be shipped here and the other to go there; get it out of your head and get down to the task at hand.

We come from the same place and to that place we shall, in time, return, but only after we have met our commitments and responsibilities—and not before; certainly not before anyone else, because we've been a better Jew, Catholic, Christian, Pagan or anything else that we care to utilize in an attempt to try and slide by.

For the total time of our creation, we have always looked for the easy out—for someone to come and do it for us. This time it won't work. It's up to us—it is our problem and we have to resolve it. It doesn't have a thing to do with how good you've been or how bad, but rather if you are capable of seeing the reality of God.

We started together and together we will end—no one will finish before the other—so let's get to work and re-educate ourselves and our relatives.

As the vision said, God will only exist when mankind accepts the fact that the spark within them is, indeed, the God-Self! I wish you well; maybe this time we can get it done. FOR ALL MY RELATIONS!

Installing Love

12/21/99—#1

HEARTS AND HISTORY OF CHRISTMAS

Hatonn—I ask that we share something sent to us from Pete (from Indy) and it came to him as an “original message” from one Tory Creech. You of the computer world of “installing programs” might just like to have a bit more important program in your systems.

[QUOTING:]

HEART INSTALLING LOVE

Customer: I can do that. I’m not very technical, but I think I am ready to install now. What do I do first?

CS Rep: The first step is to open your HEART. Have you located your HEART, ma’am?

Customer: Yes I have, but there are several programs running right now. Is it okay to install while they are running?

CS Rep: What programs are running, ma’am?

Customer: Let me see...I have PASTHURT.EXE, LOWESTEEM.EXE, GRUDGE.EXE, and RESENTMENT.COM running right now.

CS Rep: No problem. LOVE will automatically erase PASTHURT.EXE from your current operating system. It may remain in your permanent memory, but it will no longer disrupt other programs. LOVE will eventually overwrite LOWESTEEM.EXE with a module of its own called HIGHESTEEM.EXE. However, you have to completely turn off GRUDGE.EXE and RESENTMENT.COM. Those programs prevent LOVE from being properly installed. Can you turn those off, ma’am?

Customer: I don’t know how to turn them off. Can you tell me how?

CS Rep: My pleasure. Go to your Start menu and invoke FORGIVENESS.EXE. Do this as many times as necessary until GRUDGE.EXE and RESENTMENT.COM have been completely erased.

Customer: Okay, I’m done. LOVE has started installing itself automatically. Is that normal?

CS Rep: Yes it is. You should receive a message that says it will reinstall for the life of your HEART. Do you see that message?

Customer: Yes I do. Is it completely installed?

CS Rep: Yes, but remember that you have only the base program. You need to begin connecting to other HEARTs in order to get the upgrades.

Customer: Oops...I have an error message already. What should I do?

CS Rep: What does the message say?

Customer: It says, “ERROR 412—PROGRAM NOT RUN ON INTERNAL COMPONENTS.” What does that mean?

CS Rep: Don’t worry, that’s a common problem. It means that the LOVE program is set up to run on external HEARTs but has not yet been run on your HEART. It is one of those complicated programming things, but in non-technical terms it means you have to “LOVE” your own machine before it can “LOVE” others.

Customer: So what should I do?

CS Rep: Can you find the directory called “SELF-ACCEPTANCE”?

Customer: Yes, I have it.

CS Rep: Excellent, you are getting good at this.

Customer: Thank you.

CS Rep: You’re welcome. Click on the following files and then copy them to the “MYHEART” directory: FORGIVESELF.DOC, SELFESTEEM.TXT, REALIZEWORTH.TXT and GOODNESS.DOC. The system will overwrite any conflicting files and begin patching any faulty programming. Also, you need to delete SELFCRITIC.EXE from all directories, and then empty your recycle bin afterwards to make sure it is completely gone and never comes back.

Customer: Got it. Hey! My HEART is filling up with really neat files. SMILE.MPG is playing on my monitor right now and it shows that WARMTH.COM, PEACE.EXE, and CONTENTMENT.COM are copying themselves all over my HEART!

CS Rep: The LOVE is installed and running. You should be able to handle it from here. One more thing before I go....

Customer: Yes?

CS Rep: LOVE is freeware. Be sure to give it and its various modules to everybody you meet. They will in turn share it with other people, and they will return some really neat modules back to you.

Customer: I will. Thank you for your help.

[END OF QUOTING]

Salu. DAD@SOURCE.COM

And, how IS your “HEART.COM”?

[QUOTING, Alejandro R. Roces (a Filipino columnist):]

HISTORY OF CHRISTMAS

The Nativity is the day for presents, for obeisances to godparents and for visits to friends and relatives. During the Spanish period, the magical gift-givers were the Three Kings. When the Americans came, the role slowly shifted to Santa Claus, creating a generational Christmas gap. There was “The Christmas of the Old” and “The Christmas of the Young” and some families observed both; but gradually the Three Kings faded away as the theurgic givers. The original magical gift-giver, however, was the pagan god WODEN, who in the dark season of the winter solstice passed through the world on his horse to reward or punish men. [H: That “solstice”, by the way, is TODAY.] When the Nativity of Christ replaced that of the Sun, WODEN lived on in folk belief; his role had to be filled by the Three Kings and St. Nicholas. WODEN not only lives in the magical gifts of Christmas, he is ever present in our Gregorian calendar, FOR THE FOURTH DAY OF EVERY WEEK IS WODEN’S DAY. [H: I bet that’s a tidbit you forgot!]

[H: Please pay attention to this next:]

The Nativity began only in the FOURTH CENTURY. The Gospels are non-committal as to the day of Christ’s birth. The fact that there were shepherds keeping watch over their flock by night denotes that it was NOT during winter. The Nativity was once just a minor aspect of the Epiphany. What brought the Nativity to the forefront was a COMPETING deity called MITHRA, the god of light of the ancient Persians. The Mithraic religion had many affinities with Christianity. It preached immortality through moral purity. (St. Thomas More paid tribute to the Mithraic religion when he called the Supreme Being of his Utopia, “Mithra”.)

The 25th of December was the winter solstice of the JULIAN calendar. The time of the year when the days begin to get longer. In the Mithraic religion, this was the Nativity of the Sun. They celebrated it by retiring to inner shrines from which they would emerge at midnight, shouting: “The Virgin has brought forth! The light is waxing!” The newborn Sun was represented by an infant. In these festivities, Christians took part. When the Church authorities saw that the Christians could not be weaned FROM the festival, they instituted a similar feast to commemorate the Nativity of Our Lord. St. Augustine had to exhort his flock “not to celebrate the occasion on account of the Sun, but on account of HIM who made the Sun”. So the Nativity is a syncretic festival.

The Americans brought their Yuletide traditions to the Philippines and eventually Santa Claus and his reindeer (Dasher, Dancer, Prancer, Vixen, Comet, Cupid, Donder and Blitzen), Christmas trees, Yule cards, plastic hollies, Bing Crosby’s White Christmas, aerosol snow, Charles Dickens and Clement C. Moore became part of the Philippine tropical Christmas. Nicholas of Myra disguised as Santa Claus became the SUPER Christmas saint.

[END OF QUOTING]

How does your HEART.COM feel now? Oh, Nora, you are still so needed in your “two-shoes” role. It is fine, however, for if each is only a MYTH, let us keep the MYTH.COM but always USE the LOVE.COM. Enjoy the sharing, the love, the expectation and excitement, but make your programming TRUTH.UNIV.COM and remember to also bring up on your screens: FACTS.REALITY.COM.

Yes, I realize that this will be run in the paper AFTER the Solstice is past—and yes, it IS intentional, because I think a better time for receiving truth is AFTER AN EVENT, when the mind is better able to accept TRUTH—after the disappointment in the perfection of Santa Claus has moved on and REALITY can better be recognized. So please, stop whining and get those HEARTS open!

TAINTED MONEY?

Indeed, back to that “dirty” topic of money. But before we share this topic let ME REMIND YOU OF SOMETHING: MONEY IS! IT IS NOT DIRTY, TAINTED, NAUGHTY OR NICE. ONLY MEN CAN HOLD THOSE PARTICULAR HONORS AND DUBIOUS CATEGORIZATIONS.

Is there no privacy desired in your world, people? If a person has MUCH money or assets, is it simply ASSUMED it is from illicit and fraudulent gain? It is through these very articles of MISREPRESENTATION that you fall prey to the largest of all lies, good friends. Just because you are a world leader and gain large sums of “money” or assets, it seems next that the press, media, etc. cause you to be a worthless S.O.B. of some kind, who deals in nothing but rot and corruption, drugs and smuggling. THIS IS NOT SO—AND UNTIL YOU GET “YOUR” BALANCE, YOU ARE NO BETTER THAN THE WORST OF THE ACTUAL THIEVES.

Moreover, get over this lopsided perception that somehow there are no good people seeking privacy, or that no MAN, WOMAN OR ENTITY could possibly simply want privacy for protection of that which has been acquired—IN A FREE AND SOVEREIGN NATION.

I want to share an article with you from SPOTLIGHT, presented by an outstanding writer-investigator, Martin

Mann. And yes, I AM going to pick the “reasoning” to bits and pieces. My intent is to allow you to actually SEE how you do away with your own sovereignty by—under relatively UNKNOWING circumstances—demanding more and more controls. You THINK the controls are against the rich and famous—BUT, ULTIMATELY, YOU BRING DOWN YOUR OWN ABILITY TO SEEK PRIVACY. YOU DO IT TO YOURSELVES, DEAR ONES—IN TOTAL IGNORANCE.

The Dec. 6, 1999 issue of Spotlight presents a picture of Chase Manhattan Bank, David Rockefeller and John Reed (Citicorp chief executive). And you think your life is dull, readers? Well, our lives are not, so how could yours be?

E.J. was meeting with a man a few days ago, then Doris met with him and several of his family and friends. This is regarding some “interim” funds and it is absolutely amazing how God works His wonders.

The topic was funding and all the other things negative about the IMF, WB, big banks and bankers—and, you know, the things business people discuss. The subject got around to which entity might be utilized most effectively to assist in getting the major proposals under way and functional, etc., etc.—just a conversation.

The man in point spoke up, smiled and said: “I own Citicorp and thus Citibank.” E.J. in his subtle way said: No guano! Well, I josh, for what he really said, was “No Way! When did you acquire it?” “A long time ago,” said the man. E.J.: “Oh, well, then I don’t like your people.” The man: “Oh, you mean such as John Reed?” E.J.: “Well, yes, I guess I include him.” The man, with a large smile: “Well, that’s OK, he is my son-in-law!”

The man agreed with everything E.J. said, and then suggested that possibly E.J. didn’t “quite understand” that to change a world you must work within what IS and within that which can accomplish the job, while you then build and grow with those assets presented.... He further said that the IMF is in “fact” already a partner, as is the WB, etc. “NO WAY,” E.J. retorted; I do not like those people and they most certainly are NOT “my” partners. Oh yes, but they ARE, the “man” replied—and that is WHY we will succeed in reclaiming this nice old world. “I, too, speak to the man upstairs, and HE has also given me my instructions and I have followed them to the letter—and this is going to be done.”

I won’t go on with this because I divulge on privacy information. So, go find out who actually OWNS such as Citicorp—and you will not find out! Remember, chelas, you gobble up what you are “fed” as information, and you act on OTHER PEOPLE’S THOUGHTS, WITHOUT SO MUCH AS DISCERNING WHAT MIGHT BE OTHERWISE PRESENTED.

[QUOTING, Martin Mann, Spotlight, Dec. 6, 1999 issue:]

CONGRESS IGNORES DIRTY MONEY LAUNDERING

A SENATE PROBE HAS COVERED UP A HUGE WALL STREET CASH-WASH, WHICH ROUTINELY CONCEALED AND CONVERTED TRILLIONS (YES, TRILLIONS) OF TAINTED DOLLARS. [H: WOW, THERE YOU GO—TAINTED!]

[H: I PROMISE AND GUARANTEE THAT WHAT IS BEING TALKED ABOUT “HERE” IS NEITHER TAINTED NOR REMOTELY IMPROPER IN ANY RESPECT. THE FACTS ARE INDICATED TO MY TRUTH BY THE FIRST SENTENCE.]

CONGRESS SCHEDULED A SERIES OF

HEARINGS INTO MONEY-LAUNDERING LAST MONTH, but then adjourned them on the second day, apparently frightened by what it had uncovered. [H: SMILE, you are on Candid Camera. BUT, LOOK AT THE WRITER’S “ASSUMPTION”—BASED ON NOTHING.] What researchers [H: What researchers? Would this be Tricky, Astral, Hortense or Freddie Scissor-hands?] unearthed amounted to a vast financial underworld in which leading Wall Street banks routinely “stashed” trillions of dollars for thousands of unsavory clients from some of the world’s worst badlands. [H: Who says? What “unsavory clients”? What “badlands”? Stashed? As in, “hid the loot”? My, my!]

Led by Chase Manhattan, the financial flagship of the Rockefeller empire, most major U.S. money centers maintain so-called private “banking facilities” for special customers with at least $1 million in cash to squirrel away.

“Private banks cater to clients who don’t just want to bank their funds; they need to hide them,” said Axel Immern, an independent investment adviser. [H: Gosh and golly-gee, do you think Mr. Immern doesn’t use, as an independent investment adviser, such privacy facilities?]

Often a New York private banker will cater to this need by setting up a so-called “private investment company” (PIC) for his client in a “secrecy area” like the Caymans, where covert money management is protected by law. [H: What makes you think it is “covert” money?]

A PIC is a front, an offshore shell company. [H: BS—IT TRULY IS SIMPLY GOOD BUSINESS IN THIS DOG-EAT-DOG WORLD YOU HAVE BROUGHT DOWN ON SELVES.] Its registered owner is another shell company based in Panama or Switzerland. The private banker in New York controls both fronts. [H: Well, yes, that is for the most part true. You most certainly find the biggie banks in every offshore haven.] The name of the real owner is now thoroughly walled off from prying regulators, tax collectors or—most importantly—criminal investigators. [H: I thought that was exactly what you people were seeking to establish in your “sovereign” world. You told me that was what you sought: shelter, privacy, the right to that which you earn and thus-and-so.]

Banks call such setups “fiduciary accounts”. [H: WOW, AND “FIDUCIARY” RESPONSIBILITY IS WHAT EKKERS TRIED TO TAKE IN BEHALF OF “YOUR” FUNDS IN CORPORATIONS—AND SOME HAVE SINCE TRIED EVERY MEANS IMAGINABLE BY THE “GRABBERS” TO DESTROY YOUR OWN SHELTERS AND LEGAL PRIVACY.] The name of the depositor does not even appear in the private bank’s own accounts, where he is listed only under a code such as CC (Confidential Client) 2201.

That was the code used by Amy Elliott, a Cuban-born Vice President of Citibank’s private banking division, to hide the $100 million or so in drug payoffs and other rakeoffs deposited with her by Raul Salinas, brother of former Mexican President Carlos Salinas. [H: I would even doubt this story, for she seems to “be alive” to tell the tale, and most drug dealers don’t leave such mouths around long enough to talk—twice. MONEY, by the way, is STILL NOT THE ISSUE. If this is “drugs” money—then STOP the drugs dealing and you don’t have a problem, DO YOU? And “Salinas”? What do YOU know about

Salinas? And NO, I have not said that Salinas is a “good dude”. I merely ask YOU what YOU “KNOW” ABOUT THIS, IN “FACT”?]

Citibank also arranged to have the dirty cash brought in by Salinas laundered into offshore accounts. This is best done through conduits called “concentrated transfers” in which a client’s money is mingled with Citibank’s own funds.

That makes tracing such accounts “just about impossible”, Mrs. Elliott admitted in her appearance before the Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Susan Collins (R-Maine). [H: Gollee—I sure hope you are PAYING ATTENTION.]

That Raul Salinas is serving time in Mexico for murder, while under investigation for a number of other crimes, does not affect the case, Mrs. Elliott told the assembled committee. [H: That also makes MY POINT!]

“Keep in mind that of the seven or eight [MM: secret] PICs I managed at Citibank, the Salinas account was by no means the most important. It was one of the smallest and least active,” Mrs. Elliott explained. [H: I’m confident that is true.]

Mrs. Elliott’s boss, Citibank executive Edward Montero, subsequently testified that Citibank managed “some 40,000” stealthy private accounts.

“How much suspect cash do those accounts represent? If, as Elliott suggested, most of them are ‘larger and more active’ than the $100 million belonging to the Salinas family, we’re talking about hundreds of billions of dollars’ worth of fugitive funds here,” says financial writer Bodo Thalmann. [H: AGAIN! WHY IS THE “ASSUMPTION” THAT THESE ARE “FUGITIVE FUNDS”? DO YOU SEE HOW “YOU” ARE MENTALLY BEING MANIPULATED RIGHT HERE BY THESE WRITERS? THERE IS NO INFORMATION HERE—ONLY CONJECTURE, OPINION AND NON-FACT. THIS, IN ITSELF, IS MISINFORMATION AND BAD JOURNALISM IN ITS FINEST EXAMPLE.]

In fact, Wall Street’s private banks are estimated to hide an eye-popping $21.5 trillion in such deviously deodorized deposits, according to an unpublished estimate by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), the prestigious international economic monitor.

WHY?

Why does such vast wealth go underground? The Citibank executives at the Senate hearing could offer only halting and lame explanations to that question, arguing that some very affluent clients feared being “kidnapped” or “extorted” if their riches were publicly displayed.

“That’s nonsense,” snorted Thalmann. “Such deep secrecy is not contrived to hide wealth from ‘kidnappers’. It is meant to hide these trillions from the law.” [H: I guess Mr. Thalmann hasn’t spent much time in Mindanao, Hong Kong, Panama, Rome, etc., where kidnapping is THE THING TO DO, ON A DAILY BASIS.]

The Senate’s money-laundering hearings shied away from exploring such potentially explosive issues. This populist newspaper, however, will continue its investigation of this stunning financial mystery that has robbed taxpayers of trillions of dollars.

[H: Say what? “Robbed taxpayers”? Could it possibly be, citizens, that these things of sheltering assets ARE LEGAL AND ABOUT THE ONLY RECOURSE ANYONE WHO CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE IN THIS WORLD HAS—TO EVER UTILIZE ANYTHING TO REALLY HELP ALL THOSE “TAXPAYERS”?] [END OF QUOTING]

Do you see, readers, that in your haste to JUDGE, condemn and demand—YOU ARE NOW VICTIMS OF YOUR OWN “LIARS”? IF A MAN HAS A BANK ACCOUNT—HE IS NOT AUTOMATICALLY A THIEF OR A CRIMINAL. OTHER ACTIONS MIGHT WELL DETERMINE THAT HE “IS”, BUT NOT BASED ON LEGAL BUSINESS INTERCHANGE. “YOU”, AS CITIZENS, HAVE THE SAME RIGHTS UNDER THE LAW—USE THEM, AND STOP YOUR WHINING FOR SOMETHING FOR NOTHING. IT IS AS WITH INCORPORATION—YOU HAVE ACCESS FOR THE “SMALLEST” MAN TO HAVE EVERY BENEFIT OFFERED—AND YOU JUST CONDEMN THE SUCCESSFUL PEOPLE FOR THEIR COMPETENCE.

THINK ABOUT IT, FOR IT IS “YOU” WHO DESTROY YOUR PRIVACY AND YOUR WORLD—NOT A HANDFUL OF BUSINESSMEN WHO “THINK” THROUGH THEIR PROBLEMS FOR ILLICIT USE OF A SYSTEM. THERE IS NOTHING WRONG WITH THE SYSTEM—IF THERE IS ACTUAL VALUE TO BACK THE STORED FUNDS TO STABILIZE THE SYSTEM. IF THERE ARE CRIMINALS WHO GET AWAY WITH “CRIME”—THAT IS DIFFERENT, BUT “YOU” CONDEMN ON THE BASIS OF NOTHING OTHER THAN OPINIONS OF THOSE YOU KNOW EVEN LESS THAN THE MEN CONDEMNED. How many of you know this Amy Elliott? How many of you know Bodo Thalmann? And how many of you even know what Raul Salinas looks like? Can’t you see how you destroy your own potentiality? Is it not time that you take a look around you and stop the blindman’s bluff games of childish years? HOW ARE “YOU” PLANNING TO MAKE A BETTER WORLD? OH, YOU ARE GOING TO PRAY TO GOD TO FIX IT? WELL, I HAVE TERRIBLE NEWS FOR YOU—YOU WILL FIX IT, OR IT IS NOT GOING TO BE FIXED!

Is there “bad” money in the world? NO. Are there “bad” men in the world? Well, if you want to label “bad” or “good” on a scale of “evil” vs. Good—yes; but you lump everything that DISAGREES WITH “YOUR” IDEA OR OPINION AS “BAD”, AND THAT IS BOTH “BAD AND WRONG”. Now—I’ve lost some more “followers”? I don’t have followers—I ONLY HAVE LEADERS and “WAYSHOWERS”, so if you continue to judge, condemn and spout opinions in IGNORANCE, I guess, I HOPE, I have lost a lot of stragglers who are into doing it “my way, by God” and Not God’s way at all.

By the way: SOME OF THOSE “STASHED” FUNDS ARE PUT THERE TO SAVE YOUR ASSES AND ASSETS, GOOD BUDDIES! SO, IT WOULD BEHOVE “YOU” TO TAKE CARE IN YOUR JUDGMENTAL ATTITUDES, LEST YOU NEED AN ADJUSTMENT IN OPEN-HEART SURGERY FOR YOUR “LOVE.COM” PROGRAM.

Think BIG, chelas, for if you do not—then you are lingering under such LIMITATION that it binds you to UNREALITY.

Yours infinitely, Dad

A “Perfect” Philippines Stock Market?

By E.J. Ekker

The wonderful benefits of stock ownership for “common men”—to share in the growth, profits and pride of a worthy company delivering a worthy product or service—have for a long time been buried and perverted by the manipulations of “wealthy men”, whose motivation is very different—to get the money of other men, whether by hook or crook.

The concept of a central stock market, where all of the tools required for the purchase and sale of stocks and bonds are easily available, is also very beneficial—the one drawback being that the wealthy men (so-called “insiders”) make and change the rules and are thus always at some advantage over the common man or the man whose ownership was “earned”.

The price of a widely-held publicly-traded stock is most greatly influenced by the “news” written or spoken about the stock/company. So, long ago it became useful for those same “insiders” to either own the news media themselves or to have them owned by some trusted “friends”, who could occasionally “manage” the news a bit to assure a more predictable (to the insider) price move.

If all of these practices are well known to regulators, politicians and legislators, which of course they are, and if they are adjudged to be deleterious to the Republic of the Philippines, as well as to the nation’s stock market, why are they allowed to persist? Who is it that is so powerful that their greed is to be satiated before the needs of nations are considered, if at all? Are they Filipinos? Or do they come from the world’s controlling bourses in London and New York City?

Why is President Estrada so committed to “Concord” and the opening of ownership of Philippine companies and properties to foreigners, even in the face of apparent political suicide? Could he be expressing a preference for political suicide rather than the other kind?

The Republic of the Philippines is about to undergo a metamorphosis that promises to far exceed anything ever experienced in the world before the year 2000. It will be as if huge wealth were suddenly discovered in each Barangay of every province in the archipelago, wealth that does not require time to drill, pump, mine and/or refine; inexhaustible, as long as the people follow God’s Laws.

Do the insiders know about this? Of course—it is the same wealth they have been stealing from the peoples for centuries. God is making them give it back in a very “physical” manner. What can they do? Just what they are doing—cry and whine for “globalization”, “open markets”, “transparency” and every other advantage they can conceive, like derivatives, “high yield” and “rollover” programs to accelerate the puffing up of their own fiat paper currency, and “options”, “puts” and “calls” in newly created “commodities and options markets”, where they can make new rules faster than people can learn to use the old ones—a market so corrupt and “managed” that Hillary Clinton’s friendly broker can take her $1000 and in a few weeks give her back $100,000.

Why would nations that know that the big British/European/American banks (often referred to as the International Banking Cartel) also own or control the major brokerage firms, as well as most of the stock exchanges, allow (yea, even encourage) the introduction of ever more “sophisticated” “investment products” (such as derivatives)? These are all tentacles of the same octopus, forever intent upon sucking the life-blood (money) from EVERY nation on planet Earth—and the new “products” always prove to be simply more efficient, faster ways of “winning” larger and larger amounts of money from the more honest (and, of course, naïve) investors. And, of course, this includes the kids running the mutual funds. The big U.S. mutual funds are but the private piggy banks, toys and tools of the Cartel. The Cartel knows how to capture their value (not their so-called assets) at any moment, having already used them to run up the value of—and now be stuck with—hundreds of vastly overpriced stocks.

Is there an alternative?

Not if we continue to listen to the same brainwashing litany learned from and parroted by the generations of “money-lenders” going back to the time of the Pharisees. For example: Who today is willing to even consider the idea that there might be a better way of paying for the use of money than “interest” (usury)? Or that the “ancient and outdated” Constitution of the United States of America (upon which the first Constitution of the Republic of the Philippines was based) was quite correct in providing for no federal “income tax” on its citizens? But usury is necessary to the “trading” activities of the “insiders”, and the personal income tax is the most effective means of taking the earnings of the people to pay the interest due on “foreign debt”. Even foreign debt is completely unnecessary for all but the very smallest of nations, so the real motivation for all of these false concepts is the exercise of power and control—colonization by subterfuge.

The alternative, a properly designed and operated stock market, would be far easier to manage, while also being far more beneficial to the nation. For instance, there is no real justification for anyone making a profit from a stock’s, or stock market’s, declining price. The true value of investing one’s money in a stock should have far more to do with the pride of ownership, of having selected the company out of respect for its management, of a willingness to actively find and/or suggest ways of improving the performance of the company, of supporting the company and its management in challenging times (rather than “selling it short” and beating it down), as well as the willingness to chastise management for dishonest acts or producing/selling inferior merchandise.

When the legislators and regulators remove the last vestige of “gambling”, or of “something for nothing”—so it is safe for the people to INVEST their money in the nation’s successful companies—the money will flow in a flood to those companies with management of integrity, providing products and services of value. The others will wither and die, as they deserve, or they will see the light and mend their ways. And when the market is so structured that there is profit only in a rising stock, there will be far more “venture capital” available than there is now—it is human nature to be in a hurry to have one’s judgement confirmed.

In summary, then, the perfect stock market will exist when anyone and everyone who buys a share of stock is secure in knowing that manipulators cannot force down the price of stock or dilute its value in other ways. To remove the casino image (which will, in turn, remove many of the casino players) from the stock market will benefit the nation and its people hugely. There is no real reason or justification for wanting or inviting foreigners to own stocks or properties in this nation. Their money is not needed; what is needed is a gold-based currency, issued in sufficient quantities to satisfy the needs of the nation to conduct its commerce without shortages. The only limiting factor is gold upon which to base the currency, and there is far more gold in this nation than there is oil in Brunei or even Saudi Arabia. This is not a poor nation; its people have been misled and lied to, but they are rich.

The Immaculate Deception

The Bush Crime Family Exposed

Chapter Seven

By Russell S. Bowen

CHAPTER 7

"OUT OF THE LOOP"

"National Security has become a synonym for coverup. Reagan didn't know, Bush denied, Casey died, Poindexter lied, Ollie was tried and Noriega fried, all while patriots-for-profit made millions from the Iran-Contra, Panama and Gulf War. It's time to stop the 'Bushlip!'"—James "Bo" Gritz, war hero, author, and presidential candidate

*"...the United States Government is inherently and operationally incapable of developing and successfully carrying out clandestine operations, primarily because they run at total opposites to our basic way of life.—L. Fletcher Prouty in *The Secret Team: The CIA and Its Allies in Control of the United States and the World

Hours after being sentenced to two years' probation for perjury in the Iran-Contra scandal on January 24, 1990, retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord said that a "cowardly" former President Reagan "has been hiding out" to avoid accounting for his participation.

Secord, the middleman, did not receive jail time or a fine for lying to congressional investigators about buying former White House aide Oliver L. North a $13,800 home-security system.

Secord told a news conference that he believed Reagan "was well aware" of the "general outlines" of the covert operation involving secret arms sales to Iran and clandestine assistance to Nicaraguan rebels.

He claimed that Reagan "should have stood up and taken the heat right at the time the disclosures started coming out" more than four years ago. Secord claimed that the plan was a presidential directive, regardless of how much Reagan knew about its specifics.

"The diversion was a small portion of a large, difficult, dangerous covert operation on which Reagan was briefed regularly," he said. He added that two former National Security Advisers, John M. Poindexter and Robert C. McFarlane, and the late CIA Director, William J. Casey, all had assured him Reagan was kept informed of the operation.

Richard Brenneke, a self-professed contract operative for the CIA, recounted to reporters Frank Snett (himself a former CIA agent), Jonathan King, and to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, that from 1983 on Bush's office had been a "control point" for Contra-supply operations by Israeli agents out of Panama, Honduras and El Salvador. He fingered Bush's then-National Security Adviser, Don Gregg, as ringmaster, and Felix Rodriguez as a principal field operative. He even implicated himself, saying that as a contract pilot he had flown drugs to the United States as part of the increasingly corrupt U.S.-Israeli supply shuttle.

Some sources told Snett and King that Brenneke was an Israeli-intelligence plant trying to discredit former Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres and other Laborites in Tel Aviv, who had embroiled Israel in the Iran-Contra scandal. When ABC's World News Tonight broadcast three circumspet accounts of his allegations in spring 1988, the White House savaged his credibility, tagging him falsely as an indicted co-conspirator in a New York gun-running case.

A year later, after Bush's election, the Justice Department brought perjury charges against Brenneke, alleging that he lied about his affiliation with the CIA (he'd said he had one) and an early episode in the Iran-Contra affair. By the time he was finally cleared of all charges last May, his reputation had been so sullied by mudslinging that neither the press nor Congress could be persuaded to re-examine what he had said. Killing the messenger had been raised to a fine art.

The real significance of Brenneke's case is how it ties in Bush. During the 1989 trial of Oliver North, the government released a 42-page condensation of classified documents that thrust Bush to the very center of Contragate.

More recently, two Washington-based organizations, the National Security Archive and Public Citizen, have used the Freedom of Information Act to pry loose previously suppressed portions of North's diaries that damage what's left of Bush's deniability.

To appreciate these revelations and Bush's cover-up you have to recall what he and his former aides have said about their role in Contragate. Don Gregg, who once headed the Vice President's National Security Staff, declared flatly: "We never discussed the Contras. We had no responsibility for it [the Contra War]. We had no expertise in it." Bush insisted that he knew nothing of the "privatized" supply initiative until it became front-page news in late 1986, after the congressional ban on Contra aid had eased.

Given the new historical record, it's now clear that we were Bush-whacked: The "privatized" aid network Bush allegedly knew nothing about never really existed anyway. What's more, Brenneke has been proven right about the issue that so dominated the Iran-Contra hearings. The "diversion" of Iran arms profits to the Contras, he warned us, was never more than a decoy to draw attention away from a far darker scandal in which Bush was deeply involved.

When CIA Director Bush met Don Gregg in 1976, using third-party "cutouts" to fund unpopular causes behind Congress's back was the rage in Langley, Virginia. A year before, during the twilight of the Vietnam War, both Israel and Saudi Arabia had been encouraged to provide secret handouts to Saigon to offset U.S. aid cutbacks. Not long after Bush settled into his CIA job, two of his deputies proposed that the CIA look to private companies to front and implement sensitive operations.

As a sometime CIA liaison to Congress, Bush knew how crippling oversight by Congress could be. The answer to that, apparently, was increased deniability of the sort these cutout operations allowed.

During Reagan's first year-and-a-half in office, cutouts and indirect funding became operational staples at Casey's newly "revitalized" CIA, and basic tools in its burgeoning secret war against the Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

In July 1982, Gregg, then an intelligence specialist on the National Security Council, drew up a "finding", to be signed by the President, designed to give legality to such deep-cover operations.

His draft, though later overlooked by Iran-Contra investigators, reads in retrospect like a blueprint for everything that would finally define Reagan's "secret war": "funding, arms supply and some training" by "third-country nationals", combined with supplementary aid from "selected Latin American and European governments, organizations and individuals".

The "finding" was never adopted; nobody wanted to add to the lengthening paper trail. But, soon afterward, two of Gregg's old Vietnam colleagues, Rudy Enders and Felix Rodriguez, rallied him behind an impressive substitute.

Both Enders and Rodriguez had met Gregg in Vietnam in the early 1970s and had worked with him in developing a highly effective helicopter-assault strategy for jungle warfare. Rodriguez was already renowned for tracking down and killing Che Guevara in 1967, and Enders studied at Gregg's elbow to become one of the CIA's top paramilitary specialists.

In 1981, he and Rodriguez, who had retired from the Agency several years earlier, traveled to Central America to combat leftist insurgents more effectively. The blueprint they drew up, dubbed "Pink Team Plan", borrowed heavily from the assault strategy they had conceived in Vietnam but with one critical difference. Whereas CIA contract pilots had flown the prescribed counterinsurgent missions there, this time Cuban exiles did the dirty work, under the ostensible sponsorship of Honduras, El Salvador and Guatemala.

In March 1983, Gregg, now elevated to the Vice President's National Security Adviser, forwarded the Pink Team Plan to his colleague Robert McFarlane, who sent it to his boss, the President's NSC Chief, William Clark. "This is representative of the kinds of things we can do with Israel, if we work quietly behind the scenes," McFarlane wrote in a covering note that escaped notice during the Iran-Contra investigations. "I set this in motion with my Israeli counterpart, David Kimche, over a year ago." Kimche was a top Israeli intelligence expert, and what he had set in motion, according to Brenneke, was a joint Israeli-U.S. paramilitary operation against the Sandinistas.

The Israelis had long been involved in Central American affairs. In the late 1970s, when the U.S. cut aid to the region's various pariah regimes, including Anastasio Somoza's Nicaraguan dictatorship, weapons merchants from Tel Aviv and Haifa picked up the slack. As the Somocistas gradually transformed into the Contras in the early 1980s, Israeli entrepreneurs simply followed the market. By late 1982, the CIA, working with the Mossad, had set up a covert pipeline to the newborn Contras, running from arms marts in Eastern Europe, through warehouses in Texas and North Carolina, to bases in Costa Rica and Honduras.

In the author's version and experience there is a lot more to this.

On Friday, May 27, 1983, the Tico Times of San Jose, Costa Rica, under the headline "U.S. Beating Victim Back in Texas", reported that Mark Clark, "The U.S. tourist who was mugged on a Gulfito Street, then apparently falsely accused of murdering a Civil Guard, viciously beaten by a group of police in the middle of the street, and held in jail for a week, is home in Houston, Texas, sore and bitter."

Many serious questions still linger about this event eight years later but, to my knowledge, there has never been any further investigation into the mugging, beating and escape of Clark from Costa Rica. The following is only a partial list of the unanswered questions which spring immediately to mind:

- Why was Clark (if that was even his real name) in Gulfito at that time, and how did he come to be mugged?
- If he had actually been victimized, why would he have been charged with murdering a Civil Guardsman?
- If he was not responsible for the death of the guardsman, what has been the disposition of the murder investigation by the Costa Rican authorities?
- Why would Clark have been beaten by other Costa Rican guards, if he had himself been mugged?
- Is it possible that he was actually involved in the killing?
- How did he receive messages to learn that a hold had been listed against his name by Costa Rican immigration officials, as the article reported?
- How could he possibly have escaped from the Gulfito jail with accomplices, or was he actually under house arrest, and, if so, why would that have been permitted in the case of a capital crime?
- Who else helped Clark escape?
- Why does the escapee from Costa Rica escape the scrutiny of Iran-Contra Investigators?

Since Clark's escape, private individuals attempting to reconstruct the details of the event have been told by employees of the Tico Times that the newspaper office burned down and the original issues were lost in the fire. The replacement issues with which they were provided carried a completely different story in the section previously containing the Clark escape story by Linda Frazier. She was one of the eight journalists and Contras killed in the bombing of a press conference held almost exactly one year later by Eden Pastora, the dissident former Sandinista hero, at La Penca, Nicaragua to denounce the CIA's role in the Contra war. Is it possible that the La Penca bombing, which specifically targeted journalists, was also planned to eliminate Linda Frazier?

The following is an Associated Press article:

"EX-CIA OFFICIAL PLEADS INNOCENT IN IRAN-CONTRA"

Alexandria, VA—The former CIA Station Chief in Costa Rica, Joseph Fernandez, pleaded innocent Monday to four criminal charges based on his role in the Iran-Contra affair. U.S. District Judge Claude Hilton set a trial for July 10, then released Fernandez on his personal recognizance. He set May 12 for motions on how to handle classified information that may come up during the trial. An indictment filed by Special Prosecutor Lawrence Walsh alleges that Fernandez, who operated under the pseudonym Tomas Castillo, lied about plans to build an airstrip in Costa Rica to supply the Nicaraguan Contras at the time of a congressional ban on military aid to the guerrillas. He also is charged with lying to investigators when he denied that then-White House aide Oliver North was involved in the Contra supply operation.

The following are excerpts from an Associated Press story:²

Washington—A federal judge threw out the Iran-Contra case against a former CIA Station Chief Friday, two days after Attorney General Dick Thornburgh barred courtroom use of classified information on CIA facilities and programs in Central America.

The information, protected by an affidavit that Mr. Thornburgh filed Wednesday, concerns the locations of three CIA facilities, including stations in El Salvador and Honduras. The government also refuses to allow details to surface in court about three CIA programs in Costa Rica where Mr. Fernandez was CIA.

On July 24, the day Mr. Fernandez's trial was to begin, Judge Hilton rejected a last-minute proposal by the Justice Department and Independent Counsel to substitute numbers for the CIA facilities and to drop part of one charge dealing with an airstrip to avoid delving into the programs.

Mr. Fernandez was indicted on four charges, including making false statements and obstructing inquiries into the Iran-Contra affair by the CIA Inspector General and the presidentially-appointed Tower Commission.

The retired CIA officer called Judge Hilton's decision "wonderful" but said he was troubled that CIA operatives performing what he called legitimate duties could be subjected to political motivation.

Fernandez' CIA programs had the following results:

- Transcripts and witnesses were made available to the government of Costa Rica proving that ex-President José Figueras was an admitted CIA agent while president.
- Robert Vesco was allowed to remain in Costa Rica by this same ex-President, while the U.S. government allegedly had warrants for his arrest.
- "Vesco" got an offer from this same CIA-agent President that he could not refuse: to go to Cuba as CIA Station Chief and to infiltrate Castro through the "bowels" of drugs imported into the U.S.A.-guaranteed market from Robert Haynes to Costa Rica to Cuba to U.S.A.
- The escape of Mark Clark, May 20, 1983, from Costa

Rica, engineered by [this author] Russell Bowen, directed by control officer Haines

- The initiative through ex-President Figueras to allow the exchange of arms for drugs at airstrips
- The setting up of a safe house for terrorists sympathetic to the U.S.
- The setting up of a bank with Bob White of the IRS-DUCK Operation in order to launder drug money with Panama
- The plan to eliminate Commandante Zero (Eden Pastora)
- The plan to blow up the walls of the U.S. embassy to help start a southern front
- The plan to create and operate a CIA free-operating state in Costa Rica, a neutral country

Early in the Iran-Contra investigations, the Senate Intelligence Committee produced a secret report that focused on the Israeli connection. But, as the hearings progressed and political sensitivities came into play, the search for culprits veered away from our most important Middle Eastern ally to less-valued scapegoats.

It was only when Brenneke stepped forward in early 1988 that suspicion swung to Jerusalem. In light of the story he told, the Pink Team Plan looked like part of a much larger scheme linking Bush's office to the deepest secret of Reagan's clandestine war.

If you believe Brenneke, Gregg became Bush's National Security Adviser specifically to coordinate Israel's Contra account. In fact, Brenneke claims he phoned Gregg's office repeatedly beginning in 1983 to seek instructions for Israeli supply masters.

Gregg told Frank Snepp and King that he is "morally certain" that he never talked to Brenneke, whom he considers a liar, and Brenneke has not been able to document the missions he claims to have flown for the U.S.-Israeli network. Still, evidence of massive Israeli complicity in Contragate, the core of his allegations, is now persuasive.

In 1989, at North's trial, the Bush Administration cracked the window. According to its plan, in 1983, Casey proposed and retired-General Secord negotiated a joint supply venture with the Israelis, known as Operation Tipped Kettle.

Under this arrangement, the Pentagon was to receive a substantial consignment of captured PLO weapons and then pass them to the CIA for distribution. In return, the Administration promised "flexibility" in meeting Israel's own financial needs, the kind of trade-off that would characterize the Reagan-Bush approach to all "third-country" support of the Contras.

How much Bush's staff knew of Operation Tipped Kettle cannot be determined. But, shortly after the Israeli aid spigot began to flow, the National Security Council expanded the Vice President's role in all covert operations. By the following November, according to two NSC memos available to (but never utilized by) Iran-Contra investigators, the Vice President was asked routinely to "concur" in major supply shipments to the Contras.

Even more, he was beginning to show up where the Contras needed special friends. In December 1983, for instance, with Gregg and North in tow, Bush headed to Panama to confer with the dark angel himself, General Noriega. Israeli intelligence sources, including a Mossad operative named William Northrop, have stated that Panama was by now the switching station for Israeli supply lines reaching into Costa Rica and Honduras, and former Noriega aide Jose Blandon claims that his ex-boss had become a virtual protege of the Israelis' man on the scene, former Mossad superagent Michael Harari.

To judge from official accounts, Bush and Noriega engaged in little more than diplomatic small talk, but Blandon says the get-together persuaded him to get behind the Contras. Blandon's credibility has been challenged by Bush supporters, but one thing is certain: Over the next year-and-a-half, Noriega became one of the Contras' staunchest supporters.

The Contras now needed all the support they could get, for U.S. aid transfusions were drying up. By spring of 1984, the CIA's audacious mining of Nicaraguan harbors had so infuriated Congress that an aid shutdown was planned, and pressure was mounting on the Administration to find alternate supply sources.

In March, according to the North trial, Casey proposed another aid pitch to the Israelis (the result was Operation Tipped Kettle II) and, shortly thereafter, newly appointed National Security Adviser McFarlane persuaded the Saudis to contribute $1 million a month to the Contras' war chest. With that, the stage was set for what now appears to have been Bush's initiation into Contragate.

The baptism came at a White House meeting on June 25, 1984 on how to keep the Contras alive. Initially, Iran-Contra investigators dismissed the session as a moderately important policy review. But, in light of evidence at North's trial, it appears to have been a pirate's ball. As Bush and the President looked on approvingly, Casey took the floor to argue for a radical new approach to Contra resupply, including bribing countries like Honduras and Costa Rica to lend support.

According to recently declassified notes, Bush cheered Casey enthusiastically, asking at one point how anyone could object "to the U.S. encouraging third parties to provide help to the antiSandinistas". He worried that the Administration might be seen to be trading favors for such assistance. But evidently, over the next several months, this concern faded. From a mere advocate of Casey's plan, Bush allowed himself to be converted into an active player.

The following February, with U.S. military aid now cut off, a group of senior Administration officials, including North and Deputy National Security Adviser Poindexter, plotted out a battle plan for Honduras.

According to the North stipulation, they drafted a letter to Honduran President Roberto Suazo Cordova, promising him "enticements", including increased aid, if he could hop on the Contras' bandwagon.

Already U.S. economic assistance to his regime had been frozen to soften him up, and in early March it paid off. Suazo said yes. On the 16th, George Bush hurried to Tegucigalpa to hand him a basket of benefits to compensate for what we had held back. Thus did the Vice President become the bagman in what amounted to an officially sanctioned extortion scheme.

Nor was Honduras the Administration's only "touch". The previous August, according to recently revealed evidence, Secretary of State Shultz had proposed a similar trade-off with El Salvador, linking U.S. aid commitments there to continued support for the Contras; in January, McFarlane met with President Duarte to close the deal. Though Bush wasn't directly involved, he wasn't out of it, either. By early spring, Felix Rodriguez, longtime friend of his National Security Adviser, had become Bush's eyes and ears inside the Salvadoran military.

From the moment Contragate hit the front pages, Rodriguez was Bush's Oliver North, an inconvenient gun-bearer whose excesses threatened to backfire on the patron himself. No one could deny the two knew each other.

The public record showed that Rodriguez had met three times with the Vice President, first in January 1985, and again in May 1986, and had made over a dozen phone calls to Bush's staff. But a "chronology" released by Bush's office on the eve of the Iran-Contra investigations effectively "sanitized" these contacts, implying that Rodriguez only discussed with Bush his work as a "counter-insurgency expert" in El Salvador.

Like most good cover stories, this one contained a seed of truth. >From March to September 1985, Rodriguez flew about 100 combat missions against Salvadoran rebels from Ilopango airfield in El Salvador. But where Bush and his apologists played false was in casting the Salvadoran venture as unconnected with the Contra War. The North stipulation makes clear that from June 1984 onward, the Administration saw El Salvador as a crucial launchpad for Contra supply deliveries. It's also apparent from this document that by the time Rodriguez planted himself at Ilopango, the Salvadoran regime had agreed to let the air base be used by gunrunners servicing the Resistance.

During the Iran-Contra investigation, the Vice President's staff maintained that Rodriguez hadn't become involved until September 1985. But some sources allege that he was recruited into the Israeli network as early as 1983. In his recent autobiography, Shadow Warrior, he acknowledges: "Like many of my friends in Miami, I'd been actively helping the Contras since the early eighties."

Even though Bush claims he knew nothing of this, it can now be shown that he helped set up one of Rodriguez's early supply runs. As the government admitted at North's trial, Bush came up with a clever pump-primer before his trip to Honduras in March 1985. Hoping, apparently, to convince the locals that the Resistance had friends everywhere, he proposed that a private group "supportive of the Resistance" fly medical supplies to Tegucigalpa to coincide with his own arrival there. The North stipulation does not identify the private group, but in his autobiography, Rodriguez reveals that he made a supply drop as Bush was arriving.

Nor were supply deliveries Bush's only immediate concern. During the Iran-Contra hearings, investigators came across an entry recording a meeting on January 23 between North and the Vice President that dealt with "CentAM CIA" (Central American covert action). No one could guess what this signified. But a passage from North's notebook shows that one "CentAm CIA" high on the Lieutenant Colonel's priority list in early 1985 was a planned sabotage mission inside Nicaragua involving General Noriega of Panama.

Given Bush's expanding role in covert planning, North may have briefed him on this operation. How much he may have told him cannot be determined, but on March 6, Panamanian sappers backed by British mercenaries blew up a major munitions dump in Managua.

Years later, after Noriega became a public embarrassment, Bush's defenders tried to justify our continued reliance on him by insisting that there was no

"firm" intelligence in 1985 linking him to drug trafficking or anything that might have disqualified him as an ally. Again North's notebooks raise serious questions. A recently released entry reveals that at the moment of the Managua operation, Bush was complaining to other U.S. officials about narco-trafficking in Panama. "VP distressed about drug business," wrote North in March 1985.

By the following summer, the taint of drugs was seeping through the entire Contra supply system as contract pilots often doubled as mules for the cartel. On top of this, the press and Congress were beginning to suspect a scandal. On August 8, the New York Times said the Contras were getting military advice from White House officials, and within days the House Intelligence Committee launched an inquiry that could hardly have gone unnoticed in the Vice President's office.

As publicity and corruption began to crimp the machinery, North and his collaborators shifted to a new tact, urging Secord to set up a supply shuttle. By September, this allegedly private enterprise was taking shape so rapidly that its principals were already scouting for air bases. It was at this point that the Vice President's staff stepped into the center of the Contra supply muddle.

The tip-off comes in a North diary entry dated September 10, 1985. On that day, says North, he met with Gregg and Col. James Steele, the U.S. military adviser in El Salvador, to discuss Contra-related logistic problems. During the Iran-Contra hearings, investigators released only a fragment of this note, a fragment so artfully censored by the White House and North's own lawyers that little could be made of it.

Its very brevity gave Gregg an excuse to deny that the meeting had taken place. That smokescreen has since evaporated. In 1988 testimony to congressional investigators, Steele confirmed the meeting had occurred. Though he denied having discussed the Contras at that meeting, portions of North's notebooks contradict him. They also contain such a detailed account of the get-together that they cinch the case for Gregg's own complicity.

What emerges is a picture of three knowledgeable officials huddled around a conference table, weighing the merits of Ilopango over Aguacate in Honduras as a principal Contra supply base. One participant (North does not say who) complained of "radar coverage" at Aguacate and noted that Contra leader Enrique Bermudez "was prepared to devote a special ops unit [to sit] astride" rebel supply lines threatening an unidentified site in El Salvador. There was also discussion of a trip by Bermudez to Ilopango "to estab[lish] log[istics] support/maint[enance]".

The September 10 meeting, with Gregg front and center, apparently hastened the Contra resupply overhaul, for soon afterward the pieces fell into place. On Steele's advice, North decided to enlist Rodriguez's services, and on September 30, as Rodriguez admitted at the Iran-Contra hearings, he called North to tell him "it was a go". In his testimony, Rodriguez neglected to say that he also placed a call to Gregg that day, but Gregg's own phone logs, obtained in a 1988 lawsuit, confirm that he did. They also reflect a call from North, suggesting that everybody with a stake in Secord's new setup was now gabbing openly about it.

Over the next few weeks, Secord and company geared up for their first major supply run. In late November, North, now heavily preoccupied with Iran arms shipments, accepted their help in completing a botched Israeli weapons delivery to Iran.

Bush later denied any knowledge of this but, only a couple days after Secord helped make good on the delivery, the Vice President sent a Thanksgiving note to North commending him for his "tireless work with the hostage thing and Central America".

Some see this note, which was glossed over at the Iran-Contra hearings, as definitive proof of Bush's full complicity. But an even stronger clue might be found in the seemingly strange U.S. reaction to the crash of an American aircraft near Gander, Newfoundland, two weeks later. According to the Canadian Air Safety Board, it was ice on the wings that caused the downing of the chartered DC-8 on December 12. Officially, the ill-fated 248 American soldiers on board were heading home for Christmas. Nobody in the Pentagon hinted that some might have been secret operatives or that the charter company, Arrow Air, might have been doing more than routine transport work.

Our research suggests, however, that at least 20 of the crash victims were U.S. commandos returning from a counter-terrorism mission in the Middle East, and that Arrow Air was no run-of-the-mill charter but a CIA proprietary airline, and an important part of the Contra supply network and the arms shuttle to Iran. In little-noticed Iran-Contra testimony, one of Secord's associates admitted the company's involvement in both operations.

Given the airline's covert accounts, a prompt and thorough inquiry into the Gander crash might have thrust Iran-Contra into the headlines a year before it surfaced. Even now, the tragedy could come back to haunt Bush. As Vice President, he headed up Reagan's counter-terrorism task force and was responsible for monitoring operations of the sort allegedly undertaken by the commandos on the flight.

To imagine that he wasn't fully briefed on the circumstances surrounding their death, or the reported sensitivity of the carrier's mission, is unreasonable. According to long-time Army Criminal Investigation Department (CID) investigator Gene Wheaton, the tragedy was hushed-up because so much was at stake.

Even before the Gander crash faded from the headlines, another piece of the Contra supply network suddenly came unhinged, and Bush again found himself handling repair work. The crisis arose in late 1985 when Jose Azcona Hoyo was elected to replace Suazo as President of Honduras. Lest the new regime renege on the deal the United States had levered out of its predecessor the previous spring, Bush was hustled to Tegucigalpa the following January for another round of "Let's Make a Deal".

In a recently released notebook, North keys the trip to a new "third-country solicitation". He said the State Department wrote Bush's script, framing a good-cop/bad-cop scenario in which he was the pitchman while Admiral Poindexter muscled Azcona.

The script apparently played out as written. Within weeks Azcona approved a trial supply delivery to the Contras, and the Administration paid him with a security-assistance package worth $20 million.

With Bush again personally embroiled in Contra support, his staff routinely got involved. In January 1986, Gregg's new deputy, Colonel Sam Watson, packed off to Honduras and El Salvador to survey supply bases and airfields. Inexplicably, Iran-Contra investigators missed the significance of this trip. Only after a previously undisclosed Watson memo surfaced in a 1988 lawsuit did anyone realize that here was further proof the Vice President lied.

Written in February, shortly after Watson's return, the memo bears some scrawled notes from Gregg stating that "Rodriguez agrees with this". This belies his claim that he and his old friend never discussed the Contras' supply problem before that August.

Equally damning are two other documents later generated by Gregg's staff. Both are "scheduling memos" written in anticipation of a May 1 meeting between Bush and Rodriguez, and both list "resupply of the Contras" among topics to be discussed. When questioned about these documents, Rodriguez insisted that El Salvador, not the Contras, was the only topic he'd broached with the Vice President. In later testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Gregg cast the "resupply" notation as a reference to some sort of operation involving "resupply of the 'copters'" which Rodriguez had been flying against Salvadoran rebels.

Possibly he and Rodriguez may have been telling the truth. But there is now plenty on record to indicate that by early 1986, Rodriguez's Contra connection and, indeed, his increasingly troubled relationship with Secord were the talk of Bush's office.

Watson's own diaries, obtained during the Iran-Contra hearings, reflect a preoccupation with such problems. One entry, dated July 29, recounts a White House staff meeting at which Rodriguez was accused of having "shut down pilots resupply". Three days later, Watson noted a complaint from North that "F[elix] screwed up s[outhern] front", a reference to the Contra operation in Costa Rica.

In his autobiography, Rodriguez admits that in his pique over Secord's inefficiency and alleged money grubbing, he asserted control over the "private" supply shuttle. His main worry, apparently, was that Secord would commandeer the air fleet and sell it to the CIA for personal profit once congressional restrictions on Contra aid eased. Always the crusader, Rodriguez wanted to ensure that the Contras got their fair share.

Had the Iran-Contra committees questioned Rodriguez about Watson's notebooks, they might have discovered that Bush's staff knew earlier than anyone would admit. But again they pulled their punches, allowing both Rodriguez and Gregg to pretend that it was not until early August, after the congressional aid ban was loosened, that Bush's men learned of the Rodriguez-Secord partnership.

If you believe Bush's official chronology, the revelation came on August 8, when Rodriguez sailed into Gregg's office to blow the whistle on Secord. Until then, supposedly, Gregg hadn't realized that Secord and North were running a private supply shuttle for the Contras.

The notes Gregg took during this session do not read like a man caught by surprise. They plod through Rodriguez's revelations as if they were no news, and contain a stunning phrase, "a swap of weapons for $ was arranged to get aid for the Contras", that suggests insight beyond Rodriguez's problems with Secord.

Rodriguez told Iran-Contra investigators that he couldn't remember mentioning a "swap" to Gregg. When Gregg was asked by a reporter if he might have been referring to the "diversion" of Iran arms profits to the Contras, he countered that he'd known nothing about it.

Nobody on the investigating committees asked him whether [or not] the swap reference might relate to the aid-for-arms deals the administration had struck with Israel, Honduras, Guatemala and El Salvador. Nor was he pressed to explain why, after hearing Rodriguez out, he hadn't alerted Bush. His explanation, "It was a very murky business," left his congressional inquisitors nodding dumbly.

On October 5, a Sandinista gunner shot [down] one of Secord's planes over Nicaragua, thus ending the Contra supply operation. Appropriately, Rodriguez placed the first distress call to Watson, and soon Eugene Hasenfus, the lone surviving crew member, announced from jail in Managua that Rodriguez had honchoed the supply effort with Bush's knowledge.

Based on North's notebooks, the Administration's reaction was to look for a scapegoat. On November 25, Poindexter apparently proposed that Bush contact the Israelis and persuade them to accept blame for the profits-diversion scheme. There is no evidence that Bush followed through. But the fact that Bush was the logical go-between lends weight to Brenneke's claim of collaboration between the Vice President and Jerusalem.

With Bush vulnerable to political damage from Contragate, he and his staff immediately launched a damage-control gambit. In mid-December, Gregg helped prepare the chronology that distanced Bush from the secret war. As time passed, Gregg increasingly mortgaged his own credibility to spare his boss. During the 1989 congressional hearings on his ambassadorial appointment to South Korea, Gregg dodged so many questions about Iran-Contra that even a staunch Republican supporter confessed that some of his testimony "strain[s] belief".

As for Bush, he simply brazened it out, initially rebuffing questions and finally seeking shelter behind the Iran-Contra committees' concluding report, which didn't clear him but ignored him.

During the North trial last year, as the trade-off deals he'd negotiated with Honduras came to light, he continued to stonewall, declaring, "There was no quid pro quo." In the end, Bush emerged without a scratch. Gregg got his ambassador post and Brenneke just barely escaped jail.

For all of Bush's diligence in constructing a cover-up, however, he couldn't have done it without Congress' help. During the Iran-Contra hearings, probers ignored certain leads to protect Israel and other allies. There is also evidence in North's notebook that some of them may have been guilty of collusion with the White House. The clue appears in a newly declassified entry written on March 4, 1985, just before Bush's first trip to Honduras.

On that date, according to North's shorthand, Robert McFarlane briefed four congressmen, including Henry Hyde and Bill McCollum, on the plan to seek "third country support" for the Contras. A plan, as North described it, called for "center[ing] the activity in the White House".

Later, as members of the Iran-Contra panels, Hyde and McCollum became the Administration's most vocal cheerleaders, joining fellow Republicans in a minority report that got Bush off the hook.

Not only did the report find the Vice President ignorant of the supply effort, it dismissed the possibility "that any quid pro quo was sought or received in return for any third country contribution to the Resistance". In view of Hyde and McCollum's newly revealed inside knowledge, it's extraordinary that Bush still cites this as proof of his innocence.

Iran-Contra prosecutor Lawrence Walsh once speculated that Irangate was really about the skewing of our constitutional checks-and-balances through imperial sleight-of-hand. It is one thing, he suggested, for a White House official to claim "executive privilege" when he doesn't want to tell Congress about a secret policy. That puts lawmakers on notice and triggers debate.

But if the White House tries to keep Congress out of the decision-making process by hiding the truth, he added, the scales are thrown out of kilter.

For all of its faults, the Iran-Contra investigation left most Americans feeling that the scales had been unbalanced and that Reagan himself deserved much of the blame. But no one seemed to be able to fix Bush's responsibility, because the heart of the scandal—the secret horse-trading on the Contras' behalf—remained hidden.

With this last secret blown, Bush now stands exposed and much more than we expected. He emerges not merely as Reagan's equal in subterfuge, but as his master in action, someone who actually helped execute a dirty-tricks scheme to hijack Congress' authority. Make no mistake: When Bush traveled to Central America in 1985 and 1986 to barter for Contra support, he pursued a covert-action formula borrowed from his CIA days, the mobilizing of cutouts to protect the government. Only this time the object wasn't to keep some hostile foreign power in the dark, but all of us.³

The Bush-Reagan team rode to office on the issue of terrorism, pledging to halt it by never negotiating with terrorists and stopping others from doing so. For much of their Administration, federal law prohibited waging war on Nicaragua. Yet Bush attended dozens of meetings at which were discussed either our active role in the Contra War or the secret supply of arms to Iran, which publicly he called a terrorist state.

Bush's assertion now that he didn't know of these activities is difficult to accept. An aide's notes record him being briefed on arms shipments to Iran as they were in progress. He says that he misunderstood; he thought that the sales were Israeli.

This doesn't add up. The records show that he had been told Israel was our front in the transactions. Bob Woodward reported, and Bush hasn't denied, that Bush was with Reagan when the President signed the Bible that was a gift to the Ayatollah, along with a planeload of missiles and arms. This remains an unsolved mystery.

Entering the picture at this point in 1984 was Dan Quayle. Yes, the Dan Quayle, at that time a relatively obscure senator from Indiana. Bush claims he picked Quayle as his 1988 running mate because of his strong right-wing principles, no doubt true.

But he also owed Quayle a favor and, importantly, Quayle was someone Bush could trust.

When the Administration expanded its illegal war against Nicaragua by secretly opening a southern front in Costa Rica, it used Quayle's office. Quayle's staff aide, Rob Owen, put North in touch with another Indianan, John Hull, who owned vast lands in northern Costa Rica.

Hull's property, containing six airstrips, became the secret Contra arms depot and staging base. Owen went further as a facilitator. For his help, Hull got a $375,000

U.S. government loan to build a lumber mill (he never built it), and Owen was trying to get him $500,000 more. Officials of the lending agency have testified that fraud was involved in that deal. We know how Quayle was rewarded.

Correspondence between Owen and North showed concern that drug dealing among the Contras could embarrass the operation, and even identified some drug dealers on the Contra team. But no one followed through. Aircraft-maintenance receipts with signatures have been obtained which prove that the planes of a convicted Colombian cocaine cartel leader, George Morales, carrying Contra leaders as well as drug smugglers were serviced and refueled at the Salvadoran base where Rodriguez managed the war supplies; Rodriguez reported to Bush, who supposedly ran the Administration's anti-drug program.

Contra arms were being supplied through Panama with the help of Manuel Noriega, but Bush says he didn't know this, which could put him in a class by himself among drug enforcers. In fact, when Bush took over the CIA in 1976, the Agency had just received a high-level report from the Justice Department (the DeFeo Report) citing Noriega's major role in drug trafficking; the report mentioned that U.S. drug agents had even proposed Noriega's assassination. Noriega was then working for the CIA.

The initial public reaction to the Iran-Contra revelations inspired hope that after 40 years the nation would finally recognize that covert machinations overseas subvert our stated policy goals. But the hearings seemed damage-controlled by the Administration, and the Democratic Party refused to follow it up, for reasons unknown.

As long as the "out" [political] party ignores such duplicity in government, the United States has, in a sense, become a one-party state.⁴

The government allowed the Oliver North defense team to reveal evidence of Bush aiding the Nicaraguan Contras in an agreement that keeps other sensitive information out of the courtroom, according to sources close to the negotiations.

The agreement disclosed Bush's role in promising millions of dollars in aid to Honduras, the Contras' most important ally. But it concealed evidence that North's attorneys wanted to introduce that might have revealed covert military operations against Nicaragua by the CIA and foreign intelligence services, the sources said. These operations were referred to in the document only as "certain specified actions".

Bush refused to answer questions about this. "I am not going to comment on any aspect of the North trial while it's in progress," he said.

A member of the Tower Commission, which investigated the Iran-Contra affair, acknowledged that the three-member Commission never asked Bush about soliciting third-country aid.

"We knew we did not have the whole story," said former Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine. The Commission's other members were former Sen. John Tower, who lost a bitter confirmation battle to be Bush's Defense Secretary, and retired Gen. Brent Scowcroft, now Bush's National Security Adviser.

Bush, who said that he was "out of the loop" when the Reagan Administration decided to sell arms to Iran, was a key backer of the initiative, a White House memorandum acknowledged.

In 1986, shortly before the first U.S. weapons sale to Iran, then National Security Adviser John M. Poindexter wrote that while some top Administration officials opposed the transactions, "most important, President and VP are solid in taking the position that we have to try."

The House and Senate panels that investigated the Iran-Contra affair described the memorandum as "the first evidence [albeit hearsay] the committees have found concerning the Vice President's position on the Iran initiative".

Bush told reporters that if it "says that I stood with the President, the answer is yes, as I've been saying all along". He insisted that the disclosure would not damage his credibility.

Bush has said that he had missed key meetings involving the arms transactions but repeated an earlier contention that "I expressed reservations" about the sales.

The congressional investigators and the Commission headed by former Sen. Tower concluded that Bush's role in the Iran-Contra affair was minor. The Senate's panel leaders, Chairman Daniel K. Inouye (I-Hawaii) and Vice Chairman Warren B. Rudman (R-N.H.) said in a joint statement that nothing in the new evidence "would alter the committee's conclusions".

But at least one other GOP leader, Alexander M. Haig, Jr., expressed displeasure with this.

Haig, who had previously denounced the Vice President's role in the Iran-Contra scandal, said, "George Bush has a credibility crisis on this issue. The American people have a right to know just what he advised our President: to pay ransom or to not pay ransom."

Throughout the 1988 presidential campaign, the Iran-Contra affair put Bush in an uncomfortable position: If the Vice President did not know much about the sales, he was left out of decision-making in an Administration where he has claimed an important role.

On the other hand, if Bush participated extensively, this would raise questions about his judgment.

"I think he has not faced the issue directly; I think he will have to in the course of his [presidential] primary campaign.... The question becomes not one of intent but one of judgment," said Sen. William S. Cohen (R-Me.), a member of the Senate panel.

Bush told NBC's Meet the Press, "If I'd had a lot more knowledge of what was going on, I would have said, 'Don't do this.' Or if I had been sharp enough to see into the future, that a program that started out as not having arms for hostages turned into that, I'd have said, 'Don't do that.'"

So much for Iran-Contra. Bush dodged that bullet. American voters apparently feared Willie Horton more than Manuel Noriega.

RIDING OUT Y2K IN FRAMINGHAM BUNKER. A FULL ALERT ON NEW YEAR'S EVE

By Michael Crowley, Boston Globe, 12/12/99

On Dec. 31, as citizens around Massachusetts begin arriving at New Year's Eve parties, about 200 officials—legislators, police, National Guardsmen—will descend 40 feet underground into a concrete-walled bunker to monitor the coming of the year 2000.

Inside the bunker's atomic blast-proof walls, the group will watch over power grids, global maps and 24-hour news reports, and stay in telephone contact with Australia and Europe to see how the date rollover to 2000 affects those continents first.

Even as they plan their huddle inside the Framingham fortress, which has its own food, water and air supply, officials emphasize that they do not expect catastrophe and say disruptions akin to a powerful winter storm are more likely.

Still, they will be ready. A secured communications line is being dedicated so the governor, who lives 10 minutes away, can keep abreast of the situation around the state.

"If something goes bad, he's going to get in his car and come here," said Peter Judge, spokesman for the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency.

The Agency is even posting armed guards outside the bunker entrance, in the unlikely event that pranksters or people frightened about Y2K disasters try to gain entry.

The underground operations center, commissioned during the Cold War by President Kennedy, will be on alert from Dec. 30 through Jan. 1. The Agency is bringing in about 30 extra cots for officials who will be working shifts of up to 24 hours.

Those officials will represent agencies throughout State government, as well as the State's utilities. They include a liaison from the U.S. Department of Defense, members of the state National Guard and State Public Safety Secretary Jane Perlov. Also expected are State Representative Lida E. Harkins and Senator David P. Magnani, cochairs of the Legislature's Science and Technology Committee, and a throng of reporters.

The building, staffed year-round by the emergency agency's workers, is often used to oversee disruptions, such as northeasters, as well as disasters such as the October crash of EgyptAir 990 off Nantucket. It was last at a state of full alert during Hurricane Floyd this fall.

Built in 1962 as part of the Cold War Civil Defense program, the bunker was designed to keep State leaders alive through a Soviet nuclear attack....

...It boasts 14-inch-thick reinforced walls, an eight-inch-thick steel door and massive springs that allow it to move up to one foot in any direction—and absorb the shock of a nuclear bomb.

To help those elites underground survive, backup power generators were installed, along with specially purified air and water, bunk beds and a cafeteria.

"We could close the doors and 300 people could survive here for 30 days," Judge said. (Most of those people, at least: the bunker is equipped with a small morgue capable of storing two bodies.)

Those heading underground are viewing the experience as something in between a serious exercise in emergency management and a sleepover party....

...The officials will spend most of their time in the bunker's main operations room, where six wall-mounted televisions will be tuned to news reports, and giant maps will be used to identify and track trouble spots in Massachusetts and around the world. In a nearby communications room outfitted with radio equipment and weather computers, red, orange and black phones will provide direct hot lines to the Seabrook, Pilgrim and Plymouth nuclear power plants, as well as to federal agencies such as the Secret Service.

Despite the bunker's ominous-sounding amenities and precautions, officials say their time underground might be uneventful. But the hours leading up to midnight on Dec. 31 and the first days of 2000 will be filled with considerable tension.

The bunker's state of alert will begin at 7 a.m. on New Year's Eve, when the date change first arrives in populated time zones across New Zealand and Australia. State officials say those locations will offer the first indications of how modern industrialized society is affected. The Framingham bunker will also be wired to London's Heathrow Airport for word of how Europe has been affected.

The mood in the bunker at midnight will be based on what Y2K has wrought elsewhere in the world, Judge said, especially in countries with comparable technology and Y2K awareness.

"It depends on how the previous 17 hours go. Obviously, if things are not going well elsewhere, we may have a little more trepidation," Judge said.

Judge noted that even if midnight passes quietly, it will be too soon to exhale. "Just because everything doesn't go black at 12:05 doesn't mean we're all set. It's going to go through the next day before we have a feel for how things are working."

Val Asbedian, the top State official monitoring Y2K readiness, expects little more than "annoyances" come Jan. 1, many of which could take hours or days to materialize.

Asbedian, who will be in the bunker, acknowledges that midnight will be a hold-your-breath moment. "You can't help but be waiting for it," he said. But he adds the pivotal moment will likely pass quietly....

[JR: Yes, fellow chelas, officials are making these preparations all over the U.S., in every state, county and city; however, most won't publicly acknowledge they have had these control-center bunkers for years, some since the '60s. Illinois' Dupage County, just outside of Chicago, recently released a similar report that all their County officials will be hunkered down in that County's control-center bunker for the turnover of the century. They claim they will all be working to see that the infrastructure continues to operate while everyone else will be celebrating the millennium. And where do you suppose Bill and

Hillary will be? They'll certainly be down-under, and I don't mean Australia. With all the hype about the Y2K computer bug and now the increased terrorist scare tactics put out by our government, it's best to err on the side of caution and also be prepared to ride out any type of emergency. It shouldn't be a problem, unless they use this event as an opportunity to make it so.]

LESS THAN HALF OF TICKETS FOR EGYPT MILLENNIUM PYRAMIDS BASH SOLD

Sightings.com, 12/9/99

CAIRO, Dec 8 (AFP)—Egyptian Culture Minister Faruq Hosni renewed his defence Wednesday of Egypt's millennium music and light show at the foot of the pyramids and said all of the most expensive tickets have now been sold.

Members of parliament have complained about the 9.5-million-dollar cost of the concert by French multimedia artist Jean-Michel Jarre, especially given that only 18,000 tickets have been sold out of the 50,000 on offer.

But Hosni told reporters at the pyramids that all 7,500 top class tickets have been sold at 400 dollars each and assured that worldwide television coverage of the event would secure Egypt invaluable promotion time.

He also countered charges that the Egyptian government is imposing Masonic symbolism on the pyramids by planning to lower a golden capstone on the largest of the three Giza pyramids during the festival.

Hosni said the Egyptian pyramids could not be compared to the Masonic symbol because their dimensions are different, the Masonic symbol having a shorter base than height.

The Islamist newspaper Al-Shaab has run a campaign against Hosni and Jarre, accusing them of conspiring to impose "Zionist Freemasonry" on Egyptian civilization with the luminous capstone, which the paper likened to a Jewish skullcap.

The minister added that plans to place the capstone frame on the Cheops pyramid could be changed, responding to fears it may damage the monument.

The original plan was for a light-emitting golden pyramid to be lowered by helicopter, in what is said to be a replication of the practices of the ancient Egyptians, who crowned their pyramids with a golden capstone to celebrate their completion.

Hosni said 80 percent of preparations for the stage and concert facilities have now been completed and that a cabinet millennium committee had been formed to ensure the event runs smoothly.

The culture minister was forced to defend the show in parliament on Monday after MPs criticised it for faults ranging from its cost to its perceived disharmony with the Islamic fasting month of Ramadan, which lasts until the first week in January.

The Frenchman's concert, entitled "The Twelve Dreams of the Sun", is Egypt's only official millennial celebration near the pyramids and is due to last from sundown December 31 until dawn January 1.

[JR: Thanks to God's Plan, the Elite, as of 12/16/99 have had to back down from placing their golden crown on the great pyramid as their Masonic symbol for signifying ultimate control. IRRADIATION OF MEAT APPROVED IN U.S.

FOX News—Reuters, 12/16/99

NEW YORK—The Department of Agriculture has given approval for treatment of refrigerated or frozen raw meat and meat products—such as ground beef and steaks—with ionizing radiation to reduce the levels of pathogenic organisms and extend shelf-life.

“While there is no single silver bullet to cure all food safety problems, irradiation has been shown to be both safe and effective,” U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman said in a statement.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration determined in 1997 that irradiation of raw meat was safe, and scientific data has shown that irradiation can significantly reduce the levels of hazardous microorganisms such as Salmonella, E. coli 0157:H7, and Listeria monocytogenes.

Under the new regulations, irradiated food sold at retail must be labeled with the international radura symbol, along with a statement indicating that the food was treated with radiation. Products having irradiated meat as an ingredient must also reflect this in the final ingredient statement.

The Department of Agriculture recommends that consumers should still treat irradiated meat the same as other raw products, because not all bacteria are killed by irradiation, and cross-contamination with bacteria from other foods can also occur.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration had allowed irradiation since 1963 for certain uses, such as reducing spoilage in fruits and vegetables and reducing insects and microorganisms in spices. The agency approved the use of irradiation in pork in 1985 to control Trichinella spiralis, and irradiation of poultry in 1992. [JR: Well, if we had maintained adequate and honest food inspectors it wouldn't be necessary for our meats to be irradiated. Also, cattle should not be fed, just prior to slaughter, grains mixed with potentially contaminated ground animal parts as a supplement to increase weight.]

HYDROGEN PEROXIDE COULD POWER FUTURE FUEL CELLPurdue University, Science Daily, 12/15/99

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind.—Researchers are developing a new type of environmentally friendly fuel-cell that runs on aluminum and renewable resources, and generates about 20 times more electricity per pound than car batteries.

The cell produces electricity through chemical reactions between hydrogen peroxide and aluminum. If perfected, such an electricity source could one day replace conventional batteries in many applications, including portable electronic equipment.

“It has a huge amount of energy potential,” says John Rusek, an assistant professor of aeronautics and astronautics at Purdue University, who is working with students to develop the cell. A poster paper about the research was presented in November, during the Second International Hydrogen Peroxide Propulsion Conference at Purdue.

Hydrogen peroxide, or H₂O₂, also offers promise in developing low-cost, nontoxic rocket fuels. The chemical differs from water only in that it contains two oxygen atoms. It is relatively easy to manufacture—in principle, it could be made from water—and it is far less dangerous or expensive than conventional “oxidizers”, such as liquid oxygen, which are needed to burn rocket fuels.

“It is actively being studied together with new types of nontoxic propellants made from alcohol that offer promise as alternatives to the conventional petroleum-based rocket fuels,” Rusek says.

Engineers hope to have hydrogen-peroxide-based rockets in operation within a decade. But at least one visionary couldn't wait that long. Richard Brown, a British engineer, became the fastest man on two wheels in September, when his Gillette Mach 3 Challenger rocket-powered motorcycle hit 365 miles-per-hour at the Bonneville Salt Flats.

“All I can say is the G-force is absolutely obscene,” Brown, 34, told researchers during the hydrogen peroxide conference. The 26-foot-long vehicle was powered by rockets that used hydrogen peroxide as an oxidizer.

Unlike the hydrogen peroxide that is found in drugstores, which is about 97 percent water, the rocket-propulsion variety has just the opposite concentration—3 percent water and 97 percent hydrogen peroxide—and it has had critical contaminants removed, says Stephen Heister, a professor of aeronautics and astronautics at Purdue.

This purified, concentrated form of H₂O₂ is then broken down with chemical catalysts, yielding oxygen that combusts with alcohol-based fuels, such as methanol or ethanol, which can be derived from corn. Such a propulsion system would provide an alternative to today's nonrenewable hydrocarbon fuels that are processed from crude oil, Heister says.

In the fuel cells, hydrogen peroxide serves two roles: It is a “catholyte”, meaning it is both the electrolyte—a liquid that conducts electricity and allows the reaction to occur—and it is the cathode, or the portion of the battery that attracts electrons. The aluminum serves as the cell's fuel and its anode; as it oxidizes, it gives up electrons. Waste products include water and recyclable chemical compounds.

Serendipity has helped the Purdue researchers overcome a major obstacle in the fuel-cell work. Earlier attempts by the U.S. Navy to develop the cells were abandoned because the reaction with aluminum quickly formed a thick sludge that hindered the flow of electricity. However, because the Purdue engineers didn't have pure aluminum for their work, they used an aluminum alloy. To their surprise, they found that the alloy did not form the sludge, Rusek says.

One problem with the experimental cells is that, unlike batteries, they do not immediately provide a steady supply of electricity; it takes about two hours for the cells to reach their peak electrical output before producing a steady current flow, says engineering student Kok Hong Lim, a junior from Singapore, who is majoring in aeronautics and astronautics.

Future work will include research aimed at correcting that problem, he says.

Aluminum was chosen originally because it is an abundant natural resource and is readily available from recycled sources, says Rusek, who estimates that the cells are at least 20 times higher in energy density than a standard lead-acid car battery.

“That means a 20-kilogram lead-acid battery would put out the same amount of energy as a one-kilogram hydrogen peroxide fuel cell,” he says, noting that other metals, such as lithium alloys, might also work in hydrogen-peroxide fuel cells.

[JR: This is promising and science at its best. At least this technology could lead us into the new millennium with better ways to meet the challenges of lightweight power storage and use. Economical lightweight electric cars come to mind, as well as backup battery banks for home utilities.]

CLINTON'S FASCIST VISION FOR AMERICABy James Henry, The New Australian—U.S. Report, 12/5/99

The state of American education being what it is, the vast majority of people are totally incapable of recognising a fascist economic program, even when it is used to slap them in the face. This is because they have not been taught that fascism means state direction of the economy, cradle-to-grave “social security”, complete control of education, government intervention in every nook and cranny of the economy—and the belief that the individual belongs to the state. This was Clinton's State of the Union vision, which is why those chowder-heads who call themselves journalists loved it. People cannot grasp that fascism is socialism, because they have not been taught to distinguish between form and substance. They do not realise that once the state controls everyone's property, that property now belongs to the state, because control is ownership, no matter who possesses the deeds. In this situation, might is right.

Clinton's audacious plan to confiscate the earnings of Americans so that politicians, like himself and Hillary (the couple that helped empty the Madison Guaranty in Arkansas), can use them to gradually socialise the economy is a typical statist tactic and one to be expected from the Clintons. This is no exaggeration. Just reflect for a moment on his proposal to save Social Security by investing taxpayers' money in the stock market. By controlling a company's shares, the state would come to own the company. It would not even have to control a majority of the shares. It would then dictate where the company would invest, in what it would invest.... This is precisely how Mussolini and Hitler ran their economies. The term for this is central planning.

But America is different, or so the likes of Dan Rather and Geraldo Rivera would claim. But does anyone imagine for a moment that the likes of Bill and Hillary would hesitate to use that power? ...Under his scheme, investment would become a function of the state, just as it was in the late Soviet Union. Politicians and bureaucrats playing at being entrepreneurs with trillions of dollars. Such policies have always resulted in the destruction of liberty, economic collapses and mass poverty and would not faze the Friends of Bill Club, particularly if they figured they would get a slice of the action. One only has to think of what the Clintons did to Arkansas. No wonder Greenspan is still in a state of shock.

That Clinton has only contempt for the mass of Americans was made clear by his arrogant statement that “We [I love the Royal We] could give [the surpluses] all back to you and hope you spend it right...But if you don't spend it right....”

...Clinton is literally telling Americans they are too dumb to know how to spend their own money (I guess his poll results gave him that idea). Americans are losing nearly 50 percent of their incomes to all levels of government, with Washington grabbing 21 percent, the highest in the nation's history. And it's going to get worse. And what are the Clinton Democrats' solutions? Massive government intervention combined with massive increases in government spending. No wonder personal savings have collapsed.

How dare this lying hypocrite tell the American people they are too dumb to save, when his own profligate proposals would see trillions wasted on huge government programs designed to buy a Senate acquittal and shore up the support of the faithful. He claims Americans are irresponsible, yet his programs would consume not only every penny of the surplus but would increase federal spending by at least 20 percent, lead to another era of budget deficits, large-scale government borrowings and massive tax increases. Now politicians have a choice with surpluses: They can either spend them, which then results in more deficits unless spending is cut, or they can return the money to its rightful owners. Democrats have once again shown which kind they are.

This is what Adam Smith had to say about Clinton's arrogant proposals:

"It is the highest impertinence and presumption...in Kings and ministers to pretend to watch over the economy of private people...Let them look well after their own expense, and they may safely trust private people with theirs."...

[JR: If the above doesn't ring your chimes, how about the absurd proposal being considered to hit the American taxpayers with Bill and Hillary's estimated $40 million in legal fees? How's that for chutzpah?]

RUSSIA LAUNCHES NEW MISSILE AS WARNING

NewsMax.com, 12/15/99

In a calculated warning for the United States to butt out of its internal affairs, Russia launched with fanfare its newest strategic nuclear weapon Tuesday.

It soared eastward across 3,400 miles and seven time zones, landing as programmed in a target range on Russia's Kamchatka Peninsula, just short of Alaska.

But its true impact was directed westward, toward the American heartland, now shown to be within easy range of the versatile Topol-M intercontinental ballistic missile.

This awesome display of force came only four days after President Boris Yeltsin—outraged at President Clinton's criticism of his war to suppress the breakaway Caucasian republic of Chechnya—placed Russia's nuclear missiles on full war footing.

In a move intended to signal that Russia means business, Prime Minister Valdimir Putin, who is strongly prosecuting the Chechen War, made a display of being on hand to witness the Topol-M blast off.

He issued a blast of his own when he said Russia "will use all diplomatic and military-political levers at its disposal" to resist the American President's "interfering" in Chechnya.

"The diplomatic levers are clear," Putin said, "and as for the military ones, Tuesday's successful launch of the Topol-M intercontinental ballistic missile is one of them.

"No one can accuse the government of inappropriate use of anti-terrorist measures in Chechnya, [or] call Russia an aggressor or an occupier.

"Some nations and blocs under cover of international organizations are interfering into affairs of independent states, and trying to speak to them in the language of force.

"We are not used to such language, since Russia has a nuclear shield."

This was an abrupt reversal of Putin's conciliatory language only a few days earlier, when he tried to modify an angry statement by Yeltsin reminding Clinton that "Russia is a great power that possesses a nuclear arsenal."

Putin also took the occasion at the Topol-M launch pad to warn Clinton one more time that Russia will not tolerate his efforts to modify or scrap the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty in order to build an American anti-missile defense system.

The Clinton Administration says such a shield is needed to protect its territory against a limited missile attack by a "rogue nation", not a nuclear onslaught such as Russia can inflict.

But Russia, for decades fearful of becoming vulnerable to a U.S. first strike, has regarded the ABM Treaty as its only effective nuclear shield.

If the U.S. goes that route, Russia says, its response will be to fit its Topol-M missiles with multiple nuclear warheads capable of penetrating any defensive screen.

With its earlier long-range missiles obsolete, Russia is betting the farm on its vaunted new Topol-M.

Unlike previous Russian ICBMs, with their massive payloads and launch power, Topol-Ms are relatively small, highly mobile on trucks and very difficult to detect and track before they could deliver a crippling blow.

The launch of the Topol-M, with its reputed ultimate range of more than 6,000 miles, is the latest in a series of recent alarming military moves in Russia.

In October, Yeltsin revealed plans for a massive military build-up, escalating the military budget by half.

In November, the Russian Navy fired two ICBMs from a submarine some 3,000 miles [away] onto the Kamchatka range.

In response to U.S. and NATO military intervention in Kosovo, both military and civilian leaders have made clear their war games are preparation for a conflict with the U.S.

Russia has been deploying subs and planes on cat-and-mouse surveillance with U.S. ships and jets.

[JR: Prime Minister Putin ("former" KGB) is the #1 successor to Yeltsin and is popular with the Russian people because of his handling of the Chechnya situation. If Putin maintains his popularity, look for the push to increase pressure on the U.S. as the favored Russian enemy. The Russian people know the betrayals and the bullying by the West and will continue to make sacrifices for the victories the military will promise them.]

PALESTINIANS' CONTINUED HOPES FOR A REAL STATE ARE DIM

Georgie Anne Geyer (UPS), Chicago Tribune, 12/17/99

JERUSALEM—Suddenly, out of the stalemate and impasse of the sinuous "peace process" here, came the Syrian surprise. Israelis and Syrians would resume the talks that closed nearly four years ago—and that was no small matter....

...At the same time, we should not lose track of what is happening here with the Palestinians, for that will be the final arbiter of whether there can truly be a lasting peace in the region.

Palestinians on the West Bank and Gaza, for instance, were more depressed than I had ever seen them in 30 years of covering the region, even more so than during the years of outright conflict. When I asked Ghassan Al-Khatib, the moderate director of the Jerusalem Media and Communications Center in East Jerusalem, whether the Palestinian Authority was really institutionalizing itself, he, like so many these days, was very negative.

"No," he said, "everything is deteriorating. There is no respect for human rights, no effective management of the economy, no due process and law, no empowering of the judicial system. Rather than developing, the West Bank is actually de-industrializing. Hotels and restaurants have opened, but factories have closed because they are unable to face the competition of the Israeli industry. The Palestinian market is the second-largest market for Israeli exports after the U.S. Almost everything we consume is Israeli."

He, like perhaps most Palestinians (and many Israelis, at least until last week), has felt that "the two leaderships cannot afford agreements. At the same time, they cannot afford a collapse of the peace process, so they continue to move between a lack of agreement and collapse."

The internal depression within the Palestinian Authority, the de facto Palestinian government that emerged from earlier negotiations and which is the entity that must make peace or not make peace, has grown so intense over the last few years that even a longtime Yasser Arafat supporter and high PLO official, Salim Za'anoun, was quoted at a conference at Beir Zeit University last June as saying: "If we don't put our own home in order, we don't really deserve a state."

The facts, then—as opposed to the potential whirlwind of international diplomacy that will doubtless now ensue between Jerusalem, Damascus and Washington—are dull and harsh. They provide few windows for Palestinian hopes. Israel has such complete control on the ground that Palestinian cities and towns are totally divided from one another, often by the settlements, which are growing, not diminishing. The Israelis carefully control all the water resources, and Palestinians need, but rarely given, special military permits even to visit Jerusalem for any purpose: social, religious, or even medical. Finally, there are no contiguously Palestinian-controlled areas around those urban centers and thus little possibility of creating any real "Palestinian state."

The best that one can see emerging from this strange grid of power and of dependence is a series of little Palestinian "city-states" living within Israel and controlled by it. Palestinians would very gradually have more personal powers, but they would never have a real working state, even one in confederation (the old hope) with Jordan.

If the now much-heralded negotiations with Damascus arrive at some solution between the Israeli and Syrian states, it may loom large as a real possibility for the first time in all these years of struggle.

But it is far from what the world has expected of the great "Middle East peace."

[JR: Ms. Geyer has nailed the problem as to why any peace in the Middle East is such an illusive goal.]

CLINTON AND CASTRO'S DRUG-RUNNING BUSINESS: IS THERE A CONNECTION?

The New Australian—Special Report, 11/15-21/99

WASHINGTON—Despite Fidel Castro's well-documented drug-running activities, Clinton personally intervened to keep Cuba off the list of major drug transit countries, even though the DEA (Drug Enforcement Agency) protested his move. This intervention by Clinton will have the convenient effect of significantly reducing scrutiny of Havana's "counter-narcotics" activities, which the DEA has privately stated to be a sham.

Clinton claimed his intervention was justified because drug trafficking in Cuban air and sea space had fallen significantly against last year's level. Missing from this explanation is the fact that drug flights over Cuba leapt by 50 percent in 1998. This alone justified putting Cuba on the list of major drug transit countries. But the White House refused. Why?

Equally curious is Clinton's attitude to a 7.2 metric ton shipment of cocaine, with a street value of about $U.S. 1.5 billion, which was seized in Colombia in December 1998 by Colombian police. Shipping records showed Cuba as the destination. Drug agents reported that the drugs were ultimately destined for the U.S. Moreover, the DEA is convinced that Castro has formed an alliance with Central American drug lords. However, Clinton made the remarkable statement, despite intelligence reports to the contrary, that the drugs were really heading for Spain.

Even more curious is that Clinton's bizarre claim, which no one supports, flies in the face of the findings of a recent investigation by House staffers that clearly indicated Cuban officials were directly involved in the $U.S. 1.5 billion drug shipment. There is also the testimony of the defector Juan Antonio Rodriguez, who was a Cuban official, that Castro had organized drug trafficking in the U.S. and that he had competitors murdered. Rodriguez only confirmed what the FBI and the CIA have known for years.

Castro's drug trafficking first came to public attention in 1982, [when] the head of the Cuban Navy and a number of Castro's officials were indicted by a Miami grand jury for running drugs.

Clinton's benign view of Castro running cocaine into the U.S. has set the rumor mill spinning again. Is Castro blackmailing him? Is it a payoff for campaign funds? Whatever the reason, the stink just gets worse.

[JR: I don't think he is subject to blackmail because he feels invincible after the ruse of the House prosecution of his impeachment, so it must be for settlement of debts. So many have protected him in so many ways throughout his political life that he could never fully pay off his debts. If the untouchables over the drug traffickers have used him since the early days of Mena, then isn't it possible these controllers could even control the presidency?]

G-7 SPINOFF ORGANIZATION MEETS TO SET ITS MISSION

Chicago Tribune, 12/17/99

BERLIN (AP)—The newly established Group of 20, comprising the world's seven richest nations and 13 emerging economies, held its first foreign ministers' summit, agreeing Thursday to general steps to avert global economic tailspins.

Participants issued a modest one-page list of achievements and goals, including the need for balanced budgets, stable exchange rates and more financial openness.

How to achieve all that remained a topic of debate when the session closed, but G-20 Chairman Paul Martin, the Canadian Finance Minister, called the meeting an important first step.

Delegates agreed the new group should pinpoint the reasons economies suddenly turn sour, as they have recently in Mexico, South Korea, Russia and Brazil.

U.S. Treasury Secretary Lawrence Summers said the group supported the World Trade Organization in opening global markets and breaking down trade barriers.

The G-20, an extension of the G-7, was formed in September to give emerging economies such as India, China and Brazil a bigger say in worldwide financial matters. All told, the G-20 accounts for roughly 80 percent of the world's economic productivity.

Attending were delegates from the G-7 countries—the United States, Japan, Germany, France, Italy, Britain and Canada—as well as those from Argentina, Australia, Brazil, China, India, Indonesia, Mexico, Russia, Saudi Arabia, South Africa, South Korea and Turkey, plus European Union representatives.

Officials from the World Bank and International Monetary Fund also attended.

The 13 new members make up only 22 percent of the world's gross domestic product, compared to the G-7's 65 percent. But the emerging economies represent 54 percent of the world's 6 billion people, far more than the 12 percent living in the seven richest countries.

[JR: It's wonderful that the Elite of this G-20 can issue a "modest one-page list of achievements and goals" after so many recent world economic disasters. Who is speaking for whom with this select 13 and the general omission of most of Southeast Asia and many other countries still recovering from the bad policies of the IMF and WB?]

U.S. TO PAY $28 MILLION TO CHINA FOR EMBASSY HIT

Reuters, Chicago Tribune, 12/16/9

BEIJING—The United States has agreed to pay China $28 million in compensation for NATO's destruction of Beijing's embassy in Belgrade during the alliance's air campaign against Yugoslavia, a senior U.S. official said Thursday.

State Department legal adviser David Andrews said China agreed to pay $2.87 million for damage to U.S. diplomatic missions in China as a result of violent demonstrations against the embassy bombing.

"I hope this day marks the beginning of a more positive trend in U.S.-China relations," Andrews added.

It was unclear whether the settlement of the compensation dispute—reached in the early hours of Thursday morning during the fifth round of talks—would put an end to an argument that severely damaged already difficult relations.

Nor was there any immediate word on when the payments would be made or who would pay first.

A U.S. official said the American payment would be included in the budget for the 2001 fiscal year, meaning it will have to be approved by Congress, which has been hostile toward China in recent months.

The official New China news agency quoted Foreign Ministry spokesman Zhu Bangzao as saying China still demanded that Washington conduct a comprehensive investigation into the bombing and punish those responsible.

Those were among four demands an enraged China made after the bombing. These included insistence on compensation for the destruction of the embassy and for the three people killed and 27 wounded.

The United States earlier agreed to pay $4.5 million in compensation for the deaths and injuries; Thursday's agreement completes fulfillment of that demand.

President Clinton met the fourth Chinese demand by making a public apology.

China never has publicly accepted the U.S. explanation that the bombing was a mistake based on faulty intelligence.

Despite the cooler relations, the two countries last month signed a deal that paves the way for China's membership of the World Trade Organization after 13 years of trying.

[JR: If China regards the demand for an investigation into the bombing of the Chinese embassy of real importance then they won't accept the payment for the damages. If so, it's a stalemate in agreements. Will we ever know the truth? Both governments play truth or dare with their people.]

PLUTONIUM MOVE IS ON; JUDGE REFUSES INJUNCTION

Chicago Tribune News Services, 12/19/99

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN—The Energy Department indicated on Friday that it will ship a small quantity of plutonium from New Mexico to Canada after a judge rejected a request by environmentalists to block the transport.

Chief Judge Richard Enslen ruled that although the plaintiffs' arguments appeared to have merit, the government's assertions that an injunction would hurt nuclear-disarmament talks were more important.

The transport is part of a joint U.S.-Russian experiment to determine whether commercial nuclear reactors in Canada can use material from decommissioned Russian nuclear weapons as fuel.

As part of the experiment, the United States is shipping a sample of radioactive material from New Mexico to Canada. The sample, which contains about 4.2 ounces of plutonium, will be transported on an armored truck.

The truck's itinerary is not being publicly released. When it does occur, the transport is expected to pass through Michigan.

The six individuals and environmental group that sued the government had argued the law required the agency to conduct an environmental impact statement, instead of the less-exhaustive assessment the department did.

Verna Lawrence, mayor of Sault Ste. Marie, the last Michigan community the shipment might pass through before entering Canada, said she will stop the shipment's passage through her community if she can.

[JR: I find it strange that the only weapons-grade plutonium for this so-called experiment in Canada has to come across country, all the way from our nuclear waste storage bunkers in New Mexico. Aren't we still decommissioning nuclear weapons in some border state? Also, why hasn't the U.S. determined years ago if this type of use was feasible instead of storing our decommissioned nuclear weapons in bunkers. Is something wrong with this picture? Could it possibly involve some sweetheart contracts? These law suits were but an exercise in futility, since the questions of alternative actions were so ineffectively addressed. Also, I just love it when a judge finds merit to a case yet rejects it because Disarmament Treaty talks are far superior to domestic laws and the general safety of the American people.]

TELEPHONE HOTLINE 661-822-0202

As an adjunct to CONTACT, the Telephone Hotline keeps you as informed as possible on current events and other important information that needs to get to our subscribers before our publishing date.

The message machine will answer after 2 rings if there are any new messages for that day, and after 4 rings if not. Thus daily callers can hang up after 2 rings and save toll charges if no new message has been recorded. If the Hotline does not answer your call, then there is currently no Hotline message.
